Students with at least a C plus average are preferred for the work, and 75 cents an hour will be paid to those students who procure the jobs, according to Albert Razum, bacteriology instructor here.

The duties of the laboratory assistants include clerical work, bacteriological work, preparation of equipment for the laboratory classes, care of the laboratory specimens and greenhouse, running errands and taking inventory.

Hours of work are flexible, ranging from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Mondays through Fridays, Razum declared.

"Students who have science courses will truly find this opportunity an "ideal setup" as they will have the use of the costly laboratory equipment to clarify experiments in their own science classes and be paid for it at the same time," he added.

All students interested may apply to Razum in Room 306 of the main building.

AS Card Sales Nearing Goal

Jim Bouick, chairman of Associated Student card sales, revealed that 75 per cent of the expected 2,000 card goal has been sold.

"To date, 1,492 cards have been purchased," Bouick said. "The sales committee was highly gratified by the number of cards sold at the gate, and we will complete our goal soon if sales continue the way they have been going."

Several new discounts besides those announced last week may be added soon, he declared, and there are still games and rallies this semester, closed to non-members of the Associated Students.

Admission to AS sponsored functions is now one card per couple, Bouick pointed out.

AS cards may be purchased at the Rampornium, at the student desk in the main building, during working hours, or from Bouick and committee members Gale Wright, Mary Louise Carl, Ken Flege, Meg Shick, and Lou Faibri.

Committee Will Select Denman Scholarship Winners Next Week

The Denman scholarship committee will meet next week to decide upon the two women students who will receive the 1952 Denman award valued at $125, according to F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare. The exact date was not announced.

Dr. Marsh named Louis G. Conlan, president, Archibald J. Cloud, president emeritus, Lloyd Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction, and Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, as those forming the committee, along with himself.

The two winners will be announced before the Thanksgiving holiday, but the exact date is still undecided, Dr. Marsh said.

The two awards are given annually to the two best qualified women students by Judge James Deuman of the Superior Court, and his sister, Mrs. Cora Cheatham, in memory of their father.

Applicants for these awards are expected to have completed at least one semester at the college with a B average. It is necessary that they be graduates of a San Francisco public high school.

Final date of filing applications was Friday, October 10.

Dr. Marsh commented that many times it is very difficult for the committee to decide upon the final winners as they are "all so good" that the determining line is extremely narrow.

Auditions To Be Held For Variety Show

Auditions for a proposed variety show, scheduled December 5 to 7, will be held in the college little theater next week, November 5, 6 and 7, from 2 to 5 p.m. and November 6 from 7 to 9:30 p.m., according to Michael Griffin, drama instructor.

"Each talent has been selected to be ladies' afternoon musical drama and dance, but as the title of the show suggests, many types of entertainment are needed, he said.

Merchandise Majors Receive Training

Approximately 35 students are receiving merchandising training through part-time employment in large department stores.

Students enrolled as merchandising majors gain not only practical experience with monetary returns but also college credit, Virginia Gohn, business education instructor, said.

Club Cavalcade: CAB Day Spurs Membership

By Betty Wong

CLUB DAY, October 17, was a big success. Student enthusiasm was high, displays were interesting, and membership in organizations was pronounced on the up-swing.

Alpha Lambda Chi held its first affair October 12 at the home of Carol Rosenblatt. The second affair will be a dinner for the rushes at the Fireside Room of Simpson's, Friday, November 7.

Alpha Sigma Delta held their second affair October 19 for new prospective members at Ernie Smith's. A pledge instruction was held at the home of George Kaplanis, October 26. Pledges served at Delta Psi's second affair last night.

The Chinese Students Club had their last meeting on October 17 in Room 107 during college hour. The scholarship of $50 from Sweetheart Ball funds was thoroughly discussed and qualifications for the recipient were decided upon. Darlein Young will represent the club at the Club Activities Board.

For the second main social function of the semester, Phi Beta Rho will hold a dinner at the home of treasurer, Faye Hirsh.

The United Students Association, newest club on campus, invited students to contribute their time and talent to the organization. The group holds regular meetings in Room 5L during college hour.

BetaeTau held a banquet at Lucca's restaurant on October 18 for their second affair.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon, in order to perpetuate the memory of their late brother Fred Freedman, will award a trophy in his honor.

Zeta Chi held a second rush affair at the home of Louise Gerber. Sing-a-long, skits, and songs provided entertainment. There will be a joint meeting with Kappa Rho tonight.

Alpha Sigma Delta held an interrogation for rushes at the home of Dale Strickland, October 21. Members of the fraternity served and entertained at a dinner for members and rushees of Delta Psi at the Fox Hostess House.

The Globe and Anchor Club is probably the most active on campus at the present time. They are sponsoring the Blood Day drive which reaches a climax today with a Marine Corp Band demonstration. Future activities include the selection of a standard pin for the organization. Students interested in joining the organization are asked to attend the club meetings during college hour in Room 9A.

The Newman Club's Bunny Hop Dance, held on October 17 at St. Emydius Center, was a success with an estimated 350 students participating. The next meeting of the Newman Club will be held at the center tonight at 7:45 p.m. The center is located on Jules and De Mazenod Streets.

The Canterbury Club holds joint meetings twice a month with the San Francisco State College Canterbury Clubs. Every first Friday of each month there is a joint corporate communion with the State College group at St. Francis Church, Ocean and San Fernando Way. Anyone interested should attend the meetings in Room 122 on Fridays during college hour.

Deadline for all club news is Wednesdays at 1 p.m. Information for publication in this column should be submitted to the Club News box in The Guardsman office, Building 4.

Over Two Hundred To Donate Blood Here Today

Globe And Anchor Society Pushes Blood Drive To Successful Finale

By Dick Firth

A total of 250 students pledged last week to donate their blood today in the Red Cross mobile unit, which will be stationed on the west campus.

Donations today bring to a climax a three week drive, which featured a rally last Wednesday and a car parade last Thursday.

The rally was staged under the direction of Don Douglas, head of the Globe and Anchor Society, and featured Paul Desmond, and Pat Jauqui plus the Marine Corps band under the direction of Commanding Warrant Officer Greer.

The Marine Corps Band, which incidentally ranks second only to the Presidential Band, played a variety of marches and popular tunes climaxed by a medley of service songs dedicated to each branch of the service.

Meanwhile, last Thursday a blood drive car parade, highlighted by loud honking, music, and Red Cross banners, left the college in an effort to recruit outside donors for today's donations.

The 16 cars which participated in the parade were escorted by the campus police force, and music was provided by Michael Perry and his public address system.

The parade was organized by Duane Bates and Ted Alonzo.

Fletcher To Send Five To LA State Conference Nov. 28

City College will send five representatives, November 20 to 22, to the State Junior College Conference at Los Angeles, Sally Galvin, Associated Student vice-president, announced at last Thursday's Student Council meeting.

Miss Galvin, who presided over the meeting in President Stan Fletcher's absence, stated that the representatives will be Fletcher, Paul Bixel, Associated Men Student president; Lou Shepard, Information Service chairman, Norm Hoise, Finance Committee chairman; and Miss Galvin herself.

The conference is designed to help all California two-year colleges discuss and solve problems which might confront their respective student organizations.

The representatives will be accompanied by administrative heads, Louis Batnale, college controller, and Robin Dunn, dean of student activities.

Miss Galvin also announced at the meeting that nominations for a new freshman council member will take place at tomorrow's council meeting as Mary Louise Carl, former council member, was forced to take a leave of absence from college because of illness.

Luckmann's TV Show On KPIX Extended

Gold Label Roundtable, television political information series which features Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator of instruction here, was to have its last showing last Wednesday, after a successful 13 week run preceding election day. However, public interest in the show and the need for such programs has prompted its extension, according to the KPIX Program Department.

Seen every Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock over KPIX, Gold Label Roundtable has featured representatives of the two major political parties who have answered questions regarding their platforms and candidates, put to them by four "grass roots voters."

Luckmann will continue as moderator, and there will be no change in show time or format.

Rally Cancels Club Meetings Friday

Club meetings will not be held during college hour because of the Sacramento-City College football rally scheduled for that hour.

November 21, being Business Education Day and a college holiday, there will necessarily be no college hour for club meetings for the week, Louis Batnale, college controller, explained last week.

The college hour schedule for this week is as follows:

- 8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 8:50
- 9 o'clock classes— 9:00 to 9:40
- 10 o'clock classes— 9:50 to 10:30
- College Hour—10:40 to 11:20
- 11 o'clock classes—11:30 to 12:10
- 12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1:00

Business-Ed. Day Stresses Co-operation

Business-Education day will be held this year on Friday, November 21, with no classes scheduled for students that day, Dr. Lloyd P. Luckmann, coordinator of instruction, announced this week.

Randle Shields, manager of the special events department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, was responsible for the first business-education day in San Francisco in 1950.

San Francisco was one of the first cities in the west to undertake this program which is now nationwide. It was so successful in obtaining understanding and co-operation between business and education that it was decided that it be a yearly event.

The purpose of business-education day is to promote better relationship between educators and businessmen, Dr. Luckmann said.

Educators are invited to visit any business or industry in San Francisco to learn what is required of education that it may equip the student more readily to find his place in that particular field.

A cross section of business is represented, including newspapers, television, manufacturing, restaurant, banks, stocks and bonds and many others.

Flower Shop To Enter National Show This Month

The flower shop, under the supervision of John Lawrence, announced yesterday that it is now busy making plans for the coming San Francisco International Floral Show, to be held at the Civic Auditorium from November 22 to November 29.

The fiesta will probably surpass San Francisco floral exhibit since the 1915 World's Fair, Lawrence continued. The department has already won six consecutive top prizes in California Floral Shows.

The horticulture department under the direction of Harry Nelson, is currently preparing the soil between the men's and women's gymnasiums for an elaborate landscaping job. Using a borrowed tractor, the department is planting 26 different types of lawn seed for experimental purposes, Nelson added.

The horticulture department hopes to have the men's gymnasium, is the meeting place for many civic beautification and Horticulture clubs.

There are open to any first semester student who, through his scholastic records in high school, is a honor member of its honor society. Associate membership carries with it the right of full participation in Alpha Gamma Sigma.

Jensen, who is also President of the Northern California Sector of Alpha Gamma Sigma, described it as an organization dedicated to the welfare of its member colleges in the state.

One of its most important functions on the statewide level, according to Jensen, is the administration of scholarships. Many colleges and universities in California reserve scholarships for members of the society, he said. In addition to these, each local chapter keeps its members advised of the availability of scholarships of all types and assists in preparation of applications for them.

In this regard, Jensen announced that he presently has information on a number of them, but closing dates for applications are near and is invited anyone interested to call on him immediately for details.

In addition to these services Jensen said, the local chapter activities in past years have included many timely programs of benefit and interest to associated students, as well as to its members.

Among these was an evening lecture series, open to the public, which featured such speakers as Mervin Stusberg, of the political science department, who spoke on Red Tides in Asia. Other lectures treated such subjects as science and history. This series, Jensen indicated, may be revived shortly.

Alpha Gamma Sigma has also sponsored such services as a tutoring program, operated by student members, which is still in operation, and a student information bureau which published details of cultural and entertainment events in the Bay Area, Jensen said.

New AGS Members To Be Honored At Dinner

The traditional installation dinner of the college's Omega Chapter of Alpha Gamma Sigma is presently in the planning stages, faculty sponsor Don Jensen announced last week. He advised that arrangements are being handled by Bob Lucier, president of the local chapter of this two-year college scholastic honor society.

The purpose of the dinner is not only to install new members, Jensen said, but also to award honor pins to students who have qualified for membership for two or more semesters. Scheduled date for the affair is expected to be announced shortly.

Discussing benefits derived from the society, Jensen said that anyone who is a member for three out of four, or four out of five semesters here, and maintains the grade point average established by the administration may be graduated "With Honors."

Available in the society, Jensen said, are associate memberships.

In Flanders Field . . .

Armistice Day, November 11, Tragic Reminder To Americans

NOVEMBER eleventh may not mean more than a holiday from College to most students, but to the families and friends of those who lie in Flanders Field it brings back a significant meaning—the end to one of the most dreaded phenomena of mankind . . . WAR.

Most of us wish that there could be another Armistice Day today to end the bloodshed which covers the Korean battlefront. It is a certainty that the veterans around the campus can tell you what Armistice Day really means.

Many of the instructors on the campus can tell you what November eleventh meant to them in 1918. It meant more than just placing a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and more than a day to take holiday. To them it meant the end of a war than a day to take a holiday. To them it meant the end of a war Flanders Field.

Many of us experienced the same event in 1945 when World War II came to an end. We gave a sigh of relief and more or less forgot about the strife which had snuffed out the lives of our families and friends, but July of 1951 brought forth a new menace, the thought of plunging into World War III.

Let us hope that another Armistice Day comes in the near future, one that will last eternally and keep the dove of peace hovering over head.

Cleanup Committee Conducts "Neater Campus" Campaign

The clean up committee, continuing their sustained drive for a cleaner campus, climaxed their past week's effort with an inspiring pep-rally last Friday.

The portable rally, one composed of active members, and an eight-piece band, made a circuit of all the student "hangouts" on campus. Extolling the virtues of cleanliness, the rally toured the student lounge, the fountain, up the hill to the main building.

Campus clubs have me ged with the clean-up committee, and are taking an active part in the campaign. Special spots have been assigned the various clubs, and each club has assumed the responsibility and are working diligently toward that end.

Extensive poster display and public address announcements reminding students of the committee's goal have been prepared and are keeping the thought of cleaning uppermost in the minds of the students, the committee's chairman, Sally Galvin, said last week.

The committee's hopes that there will be a noticeable change in the campus appearance in the near future, thus enabling a cleaner place for the students to associate and study during "class breaks, committee members said.

Last Friday's rally, with its gunket around the campus, expressed the primary goal of the clean-up committee, but the committee reiterated that the responsibility of keeping the drive in action, and maintaining a clean campus will rest entirely in the hands of the students.

During the first week of October the committee was organized. It was met with President Lewis Conlan, and Dean Louis Barnes, ex-officio members of the clean-up, and placed the campaign in the hands of the student body.

College Hour Friday Features Football Rally

The rally for the Sacramento Junior College football game, Friday night at Kezar will be held Friday during college hour in the west campus auditorium, according to Stokely Wilson, Rally Commissioner.

Featuring college and "name" talent, entertainers will include "Noodles and Cider plus 1," Wilson said. Also tentatively planned on the program is the return to the campus of Paul Desmond—comedian, who excels in pantomimes and imitations, Wilson added.

Bob Lowe's trio, a group from the music department, and Bill Jones, a "terrific" vocalist, will also be introduced at the rally, according to information supplied by Wilson late last week.

Wilson added that admission to the rally will be by Associated Student membership card.

The rally will also feature a speech from the captain of the football team and there will be a display of the San Mateo-City College torn-torn trophy which was retrieved October 25 when the Rams defeated San Mateo, Wilson declared.

Robin Dunn, adviser of student activities urged participation in both the rally and game.

Blood Day—The College's Most Important Event

TODAY marks the final and most important event of the blood drive which has been carried on here for the past three weeks. The blood rally is a memory of the past, the last pledge card has been signed. All that remains now is the actual giving of the many pints of blood which have been pledged by students here.

It hardly seems necessary to comment on the importance of such a day. The latest Korean casualty list, issued last week, showed a total of 1279 Americans killed, wounded, and missing in a seven day period of fighting. The dead, blood cannot save. For them the battle is over.

No, the blood sent by students here to the battlefront is only for the wounded. It is for the wounded so that they may not join the ranks of the dead. To save a life seems a strange and wonderful thing. It may be assumed that the pints of blood donated by patriotic students will save many, many lives.

The blood drive here was organized by the Globe and Anchor Society, an organization composed of Marine veterans. If any group realizes the importance and greatness of this day, it would be this one whose members have experienced war and have perhaps been saved by a pint of blood sent by someone from "home."

The Guardsman is sincerely proud to congratulate the members of the Globe and Anchor Society and all other organizations which participated in this event.

Forgetting for a moment the excellent rally by this organized group, forgetting for a moment the work that went into this effort, we commend them for "showing us the way" on this truly important day.

Cleanup Campaign Is Not Over Yet

TWO WEEKS ago today, the editorial page of this paper contained a piece on the disgraceful situation of a dirty campus and the proposed plans for "campus cleanup." At that time the idea, as expressed by administration and student leaders, was eagerly accepted and plans were made to see that the campus was a credit—not a disgrace—to the students of the college.

The idea was carried out with vigor, and the untidy condition of the campus was improved.

With each passing day, however, it seems the campus is returning to its untidy condition of two weeks ago. It is surprising to see what a short life span an idea can have.

While it has been said that "excellent efforts" have been made to clear up the campus and that a trend toward campus tidyness has been established, we cannot see that this is now the case. The floors of the snackbar seem almost as littered as ever. The disposal cans still stand—often unused—within the reach of each and every snackbar visitor.

We are not saying anything new here that we did not say two weeks ago. Two weeks ago, however, we commented with pride in the hope that a successful conclusion to this problem would be made. Now we comment with wonder.

It is fine to talk. It is fine to have good ideas. It is fine to have the desire to carry out plans.

To talk, to have good ideas, to have the DESIRE to carry out plans is of no value to any situation, however, unless definite plans for improvement are carried out not for a few days or weeks until the situation dies down a bit, but permanently, so a precedent is set for the future.

Let's not speak too much of "excellent efforts" until excellent efforts have been made on a definitely permanent basis, and we can say that our campus grounds ARE a credit—NOT a disgrace.

Blond Captures Heart Of Coeds

Boots Has A Method To His Madness, Big Help To Busy Boss

By Garry Wormser

There is a little Cocker Spaniel named "Boots" who sits on the grass outside of Building 3 all day while his master, Walter McCloud, counsellor here, is busy working in the Veterans Affairs office.

According to observers, this little doggy is really a big wolf at heart and has a technique that rivals Don Juan. With his long blond hair, flapping ears and wagging tail, he manages to capture the attention of most of the campus coeds.

"Of course, there is an ulterior motive to his madness. Although he doesn't speak English very well, he told a Guardsman reporter that all he really wants out of life is to please his master. As "Boots" put it:

"Dis guy comes along and takes me away from me mudder and sets me up in a nice comfy penthouse, complete with me own bed and flea powder, and then he waits on me hand and foot.

"Now naturally I am indebted to dis guy and want to pay him back. So what do I do? Well, when me boss goes to work out at City College, he takes me with him and I sit out in front of the building and make sure that the good looking girls around the campus don't get into the building and distract me boss from his work.

"Doing dis is easy; me friends in de animal world consider me quite a good looking bluide and de dames love to run their hands over me blond locks.

"When dey do, I stand on me hind legs and flash de big eyes at them and brother, I get more results than Johnny Ray; when de gals go into the building, they only have eyes for me and this enables me boss to get done with his work on time so I can go home and eat me Friskies.

"From where I sit, outside of Building 3, I can also see what goes on in The Guardsman office, and sometimes, when I am stretched out on de grass, sharing some pretty coeds lunch, I say to myself, 'Gee, but that Guardsman staff works like dogs.'"

Russian Situation

Tiny Spy Offers "Stinging" Reply

John M. Selig, political science instructor here, wasn't lecturing on the birds and bees but on the biological science claims of Russia and Joseph Stalin when an unexpected visitor gained entrance through the window last week.

It seems a bee decided to invite himself to class, and—headed for the standing target.

MORAL OF STORY: Talk about Stalin and you'll get stung in the end.

College Players Find Comfort In Training Rooms

By Joe Callas

The training room in the men's gymnasium has served a good purpose in the sports field ever since the college was opened in 1935.

The football team is now the main user of the room which contains a whirlpool for treatment of ankles, knees, elbows and other spots where bruises could, and do, occur.

The heating lamp is another means of restoring physical health to the athletes. The training table used for rubdowns of the athletes' sore muscles is another helpful health-restorer.

Training rooms have been helpful to all types of sports including soccer, now in season (which also sends many men to the training room) baseball, basketball, and many other strenuous sports of its type.

The whirlpool is a miniature tub-shaped object made of tin through which water runs. Its use is to circulate the blood faster in the location of the injury.

The heating lamp takes care of all bruised muscles and loosens the muscles so that the player can be in top shape.

Shots At RAMdom: Election-time Chorus Echo

By Edwina Killoren

Well now that the last ballot has been cast in polling places over the nation, the American voter can retire to normality for another four years.

And a good thing, too! For Mr. Average American voter couldn't stand for more than four months the physical and mental anguish that campaigning causes between the nominating conventions of July and the November elections.

For eight months of the year the American citizen is usually a rather complacent and sedate individual, but then comes that hot July sun blasting humbuggery and tomfoolery over the nominating conventions.

And whether or not Mr. A. A. can afford a ticket to a certain stockyard area in Chicago or must be content to watch proceedings four feet from his television screen, he's in on the fun for its full run.

And what fun it is! No longer is Mr. A. A.'s home his own. It belongs to his "party."

Jamboyant stickers appear around home campaign headquarters. From the family car to little sister's tricycle, the party's choice is plastered on. Shiny buttons that glow in the dark, change pictures and slogans are pinned on any substance that doesn't yell ouch!

Current topic of conversation over backfences, in college classrooms, and shady bistros is the election.

Educators, doctors, lawyers, and Mr. A. A. switch from taking cigarette tests and turn their entire concentration to figuring the odds on the presidential hopefuls.

And what character changes! Dignified businessmen start making bets with corner cigarstores. Neighbors who have lived in peace for four years suddenly draw a sharp "party" line between their hedges, and children set up political caste systems for the duration of the election.

And why for! Presidential elections are supposed to be serious affairs. To intrust a country's existence for a long duration to a small handful of administrators isn't funny. So why does the whole nation go mad these months? Competitioners with seltzer bottles, doorbell ringers, raccous speeches, party hokum — these are not corrective to constructive action.

And yet! Who has more of a right to make sport with pre-election doings than a free people exercising their right for free expression. The election is for free, it's available for any qualified voter. And by partaking in it everyone's a winner.

Campus Radio Brings News To Students—And Other Things Too

By Dick Wiltshire

As the student multitude makes its daily pilgrimage across the parking lot en route to or from the clapboard Champs Elysees of the west campus, the chances are that it will be subjected to a sort of serenade emanating from the "P. A." system atop the uncloistered walls of Building 2.

It is during these preciously vacant moments of cerebral lethargy that a voice, which shall remain nameless (primarily because its owner was not investigated, though, laziness aside, this article would do ill to assault any particular individual) proceeds to inform the impressionable passerby of a number of things, some of them rather important, most of them somewhat encumbered with . . .

"Don't forget, the Rams play Subnormal tomorrow! Let's all turn out and cheer the — what'd you say, Homer? Huh? . . ."

At this point technical difficulties not readily described by the English language set in for a brief but telling space. . . .

"Duh . . . ah . . . as I was saying, don't forget the . . ." (Raucus laughter in the background . . .) "Don't forget the . . . here's Leon Pfitt's latest recording — Homer, for Pete's sake! . . ."

The heralded recording then ensues on what approximates the soundtrack of an early day home movie. Noises centaine in the background with utter disregard for Leon Pfitt's distorted talents and presently, "da verse" resumes with . . .

"As I was saying, the big dance this Saturday night will be at — what? You've got to take Math 51 again . . . ?"

The hopeful bystander has by now given up. Wearily, in utter frustration, he continues his way, wondering what the games is and just where the dance will be held.

If we could only behold this voice, not to mention Homer and the rest of-the cast, they would come alive to us as people and we might take a rather personal interest in the proceedings. We might even wait long enough (hardiness tolerance varies with the instructor) to hear a completed sentence.

We might even find out what's going on!

So it all sums up to the fact that a training room is a must for all colleges that have athletic teams.

The Voice Of The College

Educational TV Topic For Speech On November 28

Frieda Hannock

By Ken Molino

Educational Television will be the subject of a talk to be given on Friday, November 28, at 8 p.m. at the Women's City Club, 165 Post Street, by the Honorable Frieda B. Hennock, according to Henry Leff, of the radio-television department here.

"This college has shared Miss Hennock's views on education by television for some time and has pioneered that field in this area," Leff said. He stated that her talk is open to any students of the college who might wish to attend.

Miss Hennock, Leff advised, is the only woman member of the Federal Communications Commission and one of the outstanding women in government service.

From the time of her appointment to the Federal Communications Commission, Miss Hennock has constantly championed the interests of the radio listener and televiewer.

In 1950, when the Commission prepared to release those television channels which had previously been frozen, she alerted the educators to their opportunity to obtain a proportion of the available channels for educational purposes. One of the results was that, in this region, a group known as BAETA, The Bay Area Educational Television Association, is actively making plans to use Channel 9.

Pulse Of The Campus

RAM'S HORN

• Spark of Life

Editor: The Guardsman:

I am a "weed fiend," a nicotine addict or what ever you want to call it. Anyway, I must have my regular supply of cigarettes a day or suffer extreme torture. When my supply is cut off, due to the lack of nickels and dimes, for the cigarette machines around campus or because of a lack of matches, my nerves begin to twitch, I get jumpy and irritable. I bite my finger nails and pull my hair. If I am forced to go without tobacco for more than two hours, I become extremely dangerous and am liable to commit a crime.

On one occasion, when I was without a match to light my precious pack, I removed a spark plug from a car that was idleing in the campus parking area and stuck my cigarette down into the combustion chamber in an attempt to get a light.

Unfortunately, the car was to be stoned to run on cigarette paper and I am still picking tobacco out of my hair.

Many of my friends are in the same predicament as I am, so we appeal to you Mr. Editor. Would it be possible for the fountain, cafeteria and bookstore to sell cigarettes, and matches from behind the counter. I know that if these places on campus would do this, it would certainly make many nicotine stained lungs breath easier.

Soph Week Scheduled For End of January

Plans for sophomore week, to be observed near the end of January, are near completion Dale Strickland, sophomore class president, announced recently.

Main event of the week is the selection of the Bass King and Queen and their crowning on the evening of the formal ball.

Rallies are among other activities featured for the week, and the athletic field is the scene of the semi-annual sophomore vs. faculty contest, this semester in basketball.

ELA Scores In First Quarter, Wins 32-7

Rams Outplay Huskies In Last Three Periods; Kelly's Running, Hiona's Passing Feature Ram's Offensive

By Joe Callas

The East Los Angeles Huskies erupted with 25 points in the first quarter to down the City College Rams by a 32 to 7 count before a sparse crowd at Kezar Stadium last Friday night.

After the fatal first, the tilt was as even as a pane of glass, as the Rams and Huskies battled for the remaining three quarters, each chalking up seven points. The Rams actually outplayed ELA in the last three periods.

The Husky's first TD came three plays after the opening kickoff, as Jerry Taylor, ELA halfback, burst off tackle and outran the Ram secondary for 50 yards into paydirt.

SF's George Ransom, who played a terrific game at defensive tackle, broke through and blocked the Husky's conversion try. Ransom, incidentally, blocked ELA's first three conversion tries.

Touchdown number two came on the kickoff following touchdown number one. The Rams failed to down the ball on the kickoff, and Los Angeles recovered the free ball in end zone for another six points with but two minutes gone in the game. Junior Jackson was the Husky who recovered the ball in the end zone.

The Husky's third touchdown came when Jerry Taylor intercepted Ram quarterback Sam Hiona's pass. Then Pete Parkovich found Ben Garcia in the end zone with 23 yard aerial toss.

The Francisco ended another ELA threat as he intercepted Parkovich's pass on the Ram ten yard line and brought it back ten yards to the 20 yard line. CCSF was forced to kick after they made a first down, and it was then that ELA scored their last touchdown of the half.

Fine running by QB Pete Parkovich set up Gil Pedrozza's one yard drive into paydirt. Ben Garcia's conversion was good, and it was 25 to nothing.

The Ram attack came alive in the second quarter, as Fil Julariral and Bernie Kelly bolted for 16 and 20 yards respectively. Kelly went for six more yards, and Hiona found Bob Oliver in the clear for 15 more.

A fifteen yard penalty set the Rams back to the 21 yard line from where the Rams scored their first and only TD as Hiona pitched to Kelly who raced unmolested into the end zone. Jim Bauman's conversion was good, and the score was 25 to 7.

San Hiona opened up the second half with a fifteen yard toss to Bill Jones as the Rams looked to be starting another scoring march. However, Roger Porterfield intercepted Hiona's pass and set up ELA's last touchdown.

The Huskies moved down the field and scored on a Parkovich to Frank Cui's conversion try was good once again to bring the score to 32 to 7.

Vandolf Parish gave Ram followers a chance to yell as he broke into the clear after taking Hiona's pass but was caught from behind by the Husky's safety. The Rams failed to score however as another Husky interception halted the drive.

Kelly's running was the Ram highlight of the night as he gained 92 yards on 17 carries. Hiona completed 6 of 17 passes for 165 yards.

Rams, Panthers Battle In Locals' Home Finale

By Joe Callas

Sacramento Junior College Panthers furnish the last home competition for the City College Rams for this season.

The tilt, to be played this Friday night at Kezar Stadium, will give San Franciscans their last glimpse of the Rams at home this season, since they will be on the road for their last two games.

The Panthers, it can be remembered, are the team that rolled up a 27 to 0 halftime lead over the then undefeated Ram powerhouse of last season, before a tremendous second half rally of 40 points by San Francisco pulled the game out of the fire and preserved the championship.

Coach Grover Klemmer will bring a draft-riddled team into the stadium Friday night to face the Panthers who lost by only one touchdown to the great Contra Costa team earlier in the season. Gone will be big Bob Oliver, the player who was on the receiving end of the Sam Hiona to Bob Oliver passing combination. He is Army bound as is Ed Hayes the terrific tackle who plays next to Oliver on the right side of the line. These are a pair of holes that cement couldn't clog.

The Panthers, coached by Jack Weemer, bring an inexperienced team to San Francisco. Halfback Joe Uhn is the spark of the Sacramento team. Ed Shinn of Polytechnic is the only San Franciscan on the Panther roster.

The Ram attack will be somewhat shored up by the loss of the two previously mentioned men. It is not yet known who will be taking their places. Klemmer will probably have to pluck some linemen off of the defensive team to help fill the hole.

Hiona's new passing mate will possibly be Vandolf Parish, former alleity end from Commerce High. Parish has just recovered from an ankle injury and has looked good in the last few outings.

The Rams' racehorse backfield, Bill Jones, Fil Julariral, and Bernie Kelly, have been gaining good yardage in previous tilts and will be counted on even more in the next three games.

Rams And State Booters Battle To 1-1 Deadlock

A fourth quarter goal by Larry Agius, enabled the City College soccer team to tie the San Francisco State College booters one to one in their fourth game of the season.

Hampered by a wet field and a heavy ball, both teams battled up and down the field in a great defensive battle.

In the opening quarter, the Gators drove past the Rams' two defensive fullbacks and shot in their lone score. This goal loomed larger and larger as the game progressed.

Midway in the fourth quarter, Ram center half, Carlos Munoz was awarded a free kick from 25 yards out. Instead of kicking toward the goal, he passed beautifully to inside left, Agius, who drove the ball past the opposing goal tender for the game tying score.

City College's fullback Lime Smith and inside right Enrique Mello performed creditably for the Reds while ex-Ram Charley Andrews sparked the State attack.

The Rams were dealt two reeling blows recently when two first string booters received draft notices. The two, Mello, and left wing Issa Jadallah, who have been sterling performers all season reported for duty last Monday. According to Coach Roy Diederichsen, the loss of the pair would leave a gaping hole in the first string lineup.

The Rams open the second half against the California Bears at Berkley a week from Saturday. They hope to avenge the 1 to 0 shut out suffered from the Bears earlier this season.

Boxing Tourney Signups Due Now

Intramural boxing will get underway the latter part of next month. Persons who are interested in participating in this intramural sport are encouraged to sign up now at the men's gymnasium, Ralph Hillsman, intramural director, announced yesterday.

Boxing Coach Roy Diederichsen is handling the coaching and practicing of the boxers, all of whom must be novice. To fall into the category of a novice, means participation in no previous bouts. There will be competition in all weight divisions, ranging from bantamweight to heavyweight, Hillsman said.

To open the 1952 intramural boxing season, the first tournament bout will be conducted Tuesday, November 25, at 8 p.m. All bouts will be fought here in the men's gymnasium. Boxers who are interested should sign-up with Coach Diederichsen now.

Meet The Players . . . Fullback

Fil Julariral is the fullback on this year's Ram eleven.

Julariral is a 5' 10", 175-pounder from Galileo High School, but he did not participate in football there. Although small for a fullback, he has come through creditably this year as a blocker and runner.

In the system used here, the fullback is called on to block more than fullbacks have to in other systems. Julariral has done a great job protecting the passer this year, and it isn't too often that an onrushing end can get by him on pass plays.

Julariral's running has been dazzling this year, and although he hasn't scored often himself he has set up several TD's with his breakaway runs. His first touchdown of the season was scored in Los Angeles where the Rams defeated LACC 21 to 6.

Other fullbacks (unavailable for pictures) on the squad are L. C. Polk, former all-city end from Mission High School, who has been converted from an end this year. Jim Bauman the other FB is from Lincoln High where he was a member of the Link basketball last year.

Sportrait Of Ram Coach

Burkhead Former High School Great

The second of City College's six-foot tall football coaches is line coach, Ray Burkhead. Burkhead, a 5' 10" 190 pounder, last year led the City College gridders through to the Big Seven Conference championship, is now in his fourth year here.

Burkhead graduated from Healdsburg High School, where he was a tremendous all around athlete. As a matter of fact, six letters worth. He participated in baseball, basketball, football, track, tennis, and swimming.

Following his graduation from high school, he entered University of San Francisco, where he continued to stand out in athletics, winning letters in football, baseball and track.

Burkhead's first assignment as a coach was at San Diego Naval Training Center in 1942, assisting in football and track. During 1943, he was executive director of Physical Education at the San Diego base.

In 1947, Burkhead took command of football and basketball duties at Lakeport High School in Lake County, winning both titles in both sports.

Burkhead's record at City College has been mostly in assistant roles. His 1948 Ram swimming squad took second to the National Junior College champions, Stockton College.

In 1949 and 1950, he was football line coach, moving to head coach of the cridders and the track team the following year.

The 1951 Ram football powerhouse roared through the conference season undefeated, while the tracksters took third in the state.

RAMblings . . Schwartz Rated Top Prep Coach Of '51

By Joe Callas

WE WILL have to admit that this college was mighty fortunate when given the services of end Coach Alex Schwartz. Coach Schwartz was elevated by the Board of Education from the head coaching job at Mission High School to an assistant coaching job here.

The elevator has just begun to rise for the well liked mentor, and undoubtedly will not stop until he is thrust into a much higher position, if not here, then at some other major institution.

An opinion shared by many is that Coach Schwartz was the top gridcoach in San Francisco last year.

We believe this to be true. He did not have the playing material that Milt Axt had at Polytechnic, but still his Mission team was beaten by only one touchdown in the championship tilt. There is no doubt that all Schwartz-coached teams are well drilled.

The end coach is well liked by his players because he takes a personal interest in each of them. He will go out of his way to help his players in any way that he can, and vice-versa. He is responsible for the fact that City College has the best group of ends in the Big Seven Conference.

THERE is a rumor that independent football may come back to the Bay Area in the persons of the University of San Francisco and St. Mary's Colleges. If they do continue football activities, there is a chance that Loyola of Los Angeles may follow in their footsteps.

San Jose State and College of Pacific have continued their independent football because they have been attracting high school football players. Something that USF and St. Mary's had failed to do to a certain extent.

Nevada University which also abolished football last year, announced earlier in the year a football schedule of four games to be played "just for fun" with little institutions in California.

The coaches expected a turnout of between 25 to 30 men when opening practice was announced, but were surprised when a total of 70 showed up. This they were sure they could survive a year of football.

This action by Nevada of continuing football could be the spark that was needed to bring back independent football on the West Coast.

A FEW weeks ago, the question of televising football games was discussed. We took the nationally televised Stanford-Michigan game as an example. As a result of televising this game Stanford lost a total of thirty thousand dollars. This is one of the many points against the televising of football games.

Grid Personnel Losses Mount As Season Progresses

There's an old axiom which states, "There's a limit to everything." This certainly has not been so concerning City College's 1952 football personnel losses.

Roy Burkhead, Ram line coach, pointed out that normally a team can expect to lose one or two men; however, when figures reach double digits, it is a little more than one team can manage.

Such has been the case of the City College football squad. Coaches Grover Klemmer, Burkhead, and Alex Schwartz opened practice sessions early this year with 80 hustling aspirants, and things were looking up for the Rams.

With three of the most important tilts of the season still on the slate, the Ram roster hovers way down around the 25 mark.

What happened to all the squad? First of all, drop outs from college diminished the group. Then, ineligibility reasons lopped off a few more men and the age old problem of injuries took its worst toll in the years.

This year, another squad-reducing element, the military draft has taken key men off the team.

To understand how hard the squad has been hit, Burkhead stated that 14 men from the first and second strings were lost to the squad in the past three weeks. These losses included four excellent tackles and several good ends.

With such top-rate teams as Sacramento, Stockton, and Modesto set to be encountered, Burkhead feels that the coaching staff definitely has problems.

City College appears to be the hardest hit of the Big Seven Conference colleges by the military draft, injuries, and ineligibilities, according to Coach Klemmer.

Lensmen Composing Series Of Films Illustrating Technique Of Motion Picture Photography

Work was begun last week on a series of training films in the department of photography, according to Bey Pasqualetti, photography instructor.

The series, which will illustrate the technique of motion picture photography, step by step, is being done by three students in the Advanced Motion Picture Workshop, Pasqualetti said. These are Fred Shelle, Howard Blanco, Guardsman photographer, and Fadil Kadhum.

Use Of The Tripod, the first of several films to be made, is now being photographed in Building 9.

Subjects to be covered during the semester, Pasqualetti announced, will treat the subjects of motion picture optics, method and purpose of the basic shots, special effects, and camera handling.

The series is slated for use in future motion picture classes at the college, Pasqualetti said.

Exhibitions of student work from the department of photography have been in demand by local retail stores recently, Pasqualetti declared.

"A variety of photographs, commercial, portrait, and creative, in color and black and white, have been shown in a number of stores during the past months," he said.

Pasqualetti also mentioned displays which have been seen at the Park and Recreation Department's Photography Center on Ocean Avenue, and at various art shows in the Bay Area.

He stated that in all these a good deal of interest has been aroused in the college's photography courses, because of the quality of the work shown.

Hurley Village Plans Activities

Newcomer in Hurley Village is well provided for in the forms of more than 300 children whose parents attend City College or other colleges in San Francisco, Mrs. Arthur James, assistant manager of the village, declared recently.

Playground equipment was given to the children of the village with the $500 proceeds of the operetta, The Vagabond King, produced here in spring 1948.

There is a playground committee composed of six parents who conduct money raising campaigns for the village, such as rummage and cake sales, for the care of the playground. Each year a new committee is appointed.

Mrs. James said that several students who live in the village are from foreign countries. Mr. and Mrs. Julio Aldecoa are from Spain. Aldecoa is a student at the college. Mr. and Mrs. Galo Camacho are from Guam, and Camacho attends the college.

Esmail Serrafzadeh is a student from Iran. His wife, Nancy, was born in the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Akbar Evazkhani are from Iran. Both of them are students at the college.

Mr. and Mrs. "Hurricane" Machelle are from Casa Blanca, Africa. Machelle is a student here. Mr. and Mrs. George Kahn are from Palestine, and both attend the college.

Denman Winners To Be Announced Soon

Names of the two women students who are to be awarded the $125 Denman scholarship for 1952 will be announced shortly, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, said last week.

The committee who will decide upon the two winners is composed of Dr. Marsh, Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, Archibald J. Cloud, president emeritus, Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator of instruction, and Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

As The Guardsman went to press, the exact date on which the committee would meet was undetermined, but Dr. Marsh added that it probably would be sometime this week.

Vets Should Submit Eligibility Cards To Counseling Office

Korean Veterans awaiting course approvals by the Veterans Administration should bring their letters of eligibility to the college's veterans counseling office immediately upon their receipt, Walter McCloud, veterans counsellor, said today.

Those veterans, who have already had their programs approved, McCloud declared, must still report to the counseling office monthly to fill out the required "Monthly Certificate of Training prescribed under the provisions of the new GI Bill.

Certificates, McCloud emphasized, must be prepared during the last week of each calendar month in order to leave the counseling office no later than the fifth of the following month.

Failure to do so, McCloud said, can mean an entire month's delay for the veteran in receiving his subsistence check.

Homecoming Queen Ceremony Climaxes Week Of Festivities

Crowning of contestant Evelyn Salomon as Homecoming Queen at the rally October 24 climaxed an entire week of homecoming festivities here.

Miss Salomon, who was elected by popular vote among student association card holders from among 20 contestants, reigned at the Homecoming Rally, dance, and the Rambler-Gael clash the following day. She was presented with the Associated Men Students' Homecoming Queen Trophy and received various awards and prizes.

The name of the winning queen contestant was kept secret until the rally and the official announcement. The runners-up were also introduced as part of the highlighting ceremony of the rally.

Queen contestants included Barbara Alvarado, Barbara Campello, Jean Hack, Julie Hanan, Gail Hurley, Lynn Knox, Colleen McElroy, Beverly Naditz, Pat Norbary, and Betty Salerno.

Marilee Scholl, Marilyn Schroeder, Barbara Scott, Patty Shamons, Jo Anna Smith, Sue Speer, Anne-Stewart Odette Trouillette, and Jane Zelinsky.

Miss Salomon was the Newman Club entry in the queen contest and is the second coed sponsored by that group to capture the homecoming honors, according to a statement made by John Selig, Newman Club faculty adviser. Selig identified the previous homecoming queen from his group as Corinne Lambert. Miss Lambert was further identified by Selig as a former Association Student Vice-President.

Paul Bixel, AMS president and chairman of the Homecoming Week committee, was in charge of all arrangements.

Club Cavalcade: Many New Club Activities Planned

By Betty Wong

Hell Week for the fraternities drew to a successful close last week with the new pledges duly initiated. Various organizations on campus are once more underway with plans for coming activities, now that the first midterms are practically just a bad dream in the past.

A bowling party is being planned by members of the Collegiate Christian Fellowship, with date and time to be announced at a later date. There will be a few hours of bowling followed by refreshments and a closing worship at the home of Marilyn Strayer, president.

The Latin American Club has been reorganized this semester and will be holding meetings in Room 2L during college hours.

The president of the Inter-fraternity Council, Lou Shepard, wants to thank all fraternities for their full co-operation in helping to make the dance last Saturday, Hayloft Hop, a success.

Members of Kappa Phi gave a surprise bridal shower for Lynn McCormick at the home of Donna Hart on October 14. Miss McCormick will be married some time in November.

Zeta Chi had their second affair on October 26 at the home of Louise Gerber. A smorgasbord dinner with entertainment afterwards was on the evening's agenda. Toni Young, a talented sorority sister, danced for the rushees.

New officers for Tau Chi Sigma for this semester include President, Phi Malnick; Vice-president, Tom Reid; and Secretary-Treasurer, Clayton Richards. Socials are scheduled for Friday, November 7 and Monday, November 10.

The new pledges for Tau Chi include Dick Kebels, Bernie Cheryl, Ralph Hessler, Ron Atkinson, Ross Eich, Evan Grenfel, and Roger Reimer.

Beta Tau fraternity is making plans for their traditional annual dance, Mistletoe Mingle, on Friday night, December 12. As Christmas treeapplied by the organization, will be placed by the Silver Pole in the main building to be strowed down to the dance that night.

There were three candidates for Homecoming Queen from Kappa Phi; they were Patty Simmons, Marilyn Schroeder, and Colleen McElroy.

Gamma Phi Upsilon has accepted 16 pledges this semester. They held a joint meeting with Zeta Chi last Thursday during fraternity Hell Week.

Club news will now be collected on Tuesdays at 1 o'clock at Club Activities Board meetings from club representatives. Information for publication in this column may still be submitted on Wednesdays in the Club News box in The Guardsman office, Building 4 by 1 p.m.

College Magazine Asks For Stories, Poetry By Jan. 5

Articles, which must needs January 5, 1953 deadline, may be of any literary or artistic nature. Stories, essays, drama, articles, poetry, translations, verse and narrative on any topics are requested, Miss Mercer said, and Forum's editors are particularly interested in publishing works of students who have not previously been contributors.

The most readily acceptable page for manuscripts, Miss Mercer continued, is approximately 8.500 words, and all articles must be typed and double-spaced.

Students are requested to give completed work to either faculty advisers Miss Mercer, Building 19; John Gertsung, Building 4, Rk; Jessie Fullwiller, Building 19; Joanne Tuenes, Forum Editor; or Ken Davis, art editor on or before the deadline.

Symphony Passes Available Here

Ushering passes will be available beginning Thursday, November 6, for the 1952 symphony series at the War Memorial Opera House, Dean Margaret Dougherty announced yesterday.

The series will start on Thursday, November 13, and continue for 18 weeks. Dean Dougherty reminded students who are interested in ushering in exchange for free admission to symphony performances that they must obtain admittance passes from her in Building 2, one week in advance of the scheduled program at which they desire to usher.

In addition to the regular symphony performances, the California Civic Music and Arts Foundation will present another concert series at the Opera House.

"Of special note to students," Dean Dougherty said, "would be the fact that the concerts will feature noted conductors this year. Among them are Vladimir Horowitz, pianist, Arthur Rubinstein, pianist, and Isaac Stern, violinist. Singers will include James Melton, noted tenor, and Marian Anderson."

Passes for these concerts may also be had from Dean Doucherty and they will be handled in the same way as the symphony passes.

Debaters Journey To Stockton

College debaters prepared today for a trek Saturday, November 8, to College of Pacific in Stockton where they will engage in a panel discussion with members of other Northern California colleges on the topic of Fair Employment Practices In Law.

Members of the team making the tour are George Effenberger, Julie Hagan, Karl Nolte, Jim Lopez, Pat Miller, John McDonald, Meg Schick, and Adviser Thomas Dutcher.

The topic will be discussed in round table by the Northern California Forensic Association. Leading sociologists of this area will do the actual debating, Dutcher said, with the college representatives stating their various opinions later.

Registrars Meet On November 9

The annual convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Collegiate Registrars is to be held at San Jose Sunday, November 9, through Tuesday, 11, it was learned from Mary Jane Learnard, college registrar today.

Registrars or their representatives from all two and four year colleges and universities in California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Arizona and British Columbia will assemble to discuss current and individual problems relating to administrative systems, transcript reviews, foreign credential problems and registrar-faculty-student relationships among other items, Miss Learnard said.

The conference will be keynoted by Dr. John Barthy, head of the education department at Stanford University, on "New Directions in Higher Education."

Christmas Concert Coming December 10

The college's 18th annual Christmas Concert will be given Wednesday, December 10, in the Auditorium Building 1, Flossita Badger, A Cappella Choir director, announced last week.

Soloists from the Opera Workshop will take part and a tableau will be contributed by the drama department. Featured in the program will be the dramatic cantata, "The Night Before Christmas," Miss Badger said.

The choir and soloists will sing for the Ladies' Guild of St. Francis Church, Ocean and San Fernando Way, Tuesday, December 2 and on Sunday, January 18, a guest performance with Ludwig Altmann, Municipal organist, is to be held at the Palace of the Legion of Honor.

Tentative 17 Point Program Introduced At Student Council To Boost Voting Participation

By Dick Firth

In an effort to erase the "black eye" which has befallen upon past student governments because of uncontested offices and poor participation in voting, Lou Shepard, IFC chairman, brought before council last Thursday a possible 17 point solution.

This solution was first presented to a committee of students interested in student government last semester to build up better participation by students in voting after the Spring election had proved a flop because of low voting participation and the office of president being the only contested student government office.

The most drastic issue of the proposed program is the elimination of student activities for one semester, the idea of this being the old proverb, "absence makes the heart grow fonder."

A controversial point of the program is the idea of opening voting to all students. In the past and now, voting is limited to Associated Student members only, but results in recent years show this has led to poor voting turn outs.

The third major point of the proposal is the possibility of reducing the number elected to student government offices.

Four points of the proposal which seem to deal along the same line of thought have already been taken care of with the formation of the United Student Association. The four points are as follows:

1. Form an organized second party.
2. Disband party politics.
3. Form a unified Club Activities Board for a second party.
4. Ask Inter-Fraternity Council to stop party politics if there is no opposition.

One feature of the program is the great demand for greater publicity of all activities. Five suggestions in this category are listed in the following way:

1. More publicity by free use of the west campus area.
2. Sell student government to students.
3. Increase club sponsor interests.
4. Let instructors stress the importance to students.
5. Send a representative from each 12 o'clock class to council to report back to that class.

A few minor points of the proposed program include the organization of a strong campaign prior to the election encouraging students to fill out petitions prior to any nomination convention, subsidizing of new clubs, and inviting all students to attend council meetings.

"Something must be done to erase the black eyes cast upon the preceding student government," Dean Louis Balmain said.

SHICK NAMED TO COUNCIL

At an election held last Thursday at the Student Council meeting, Meg Shick replaced Mary Louise Carl on the Freshman Council.

Miss Shick, who was unanimously elected by the council, takes over for Miss Carl, who resigned from the council after taking a leave of absence because of illness.

College Debating Team Embarks To Meet C. O. P.

The college debating team, with Jim Lopez and Pat Miller representing the college, embark tomorrow for College of the Pacific at Stockton where they will uphold the negative side of the question: Resolved, Congress Should Enact Compulsory Fair Employment Practice Legislation.

This is the second scheduled debate between members of the Northern California Forensic Association. The association is composed of eight major four year institutions and two two-year colleges, Stockton College and City College of San Francisco.

The next scheduled debate takes place on Tuesday, November 18, when the college will play host to the University of San Francisco. Members taking part will be George Effinburg and Julie Hannan.

Commended for their outstanding performance by Thomas Dutcher, Phi Rho Pi adviser, were Lou Shepard and Carl Nolte, who met University of California debaters here, October 30.

Foreign Students Invited To Holiday Dinners

All foreign students are invited to celebrate Thanksgiving Day with San Francisco families, according to Walter McCloud, counsellor here.

Sign-ups for the holiday are now being taken through the foreign students office, Building 3, west campus, with the last day for registration scheduled for Friday, November 21, McCloud announced.

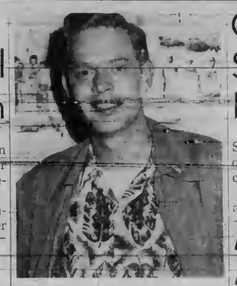
Cooperating with the foreign students office is Carolyn Johnson, representative of Fellowship for Overseas College, University Students. This organization, better known as FOCUS, seeks to establish the foreign student in the college community through the help of interested persons who plan activities for the new students, Mrs. Johnson explained.

Future plans for the benefit of these students are in preparation through FOCUS and the college's foreign students office, Mrs. Johnson said.

Social gatherings of different nationalities are expected to meet at various times during the college year, she added.

Fire College Adds 2 New Courses On Department Curriculum Here

The announcement of two new courses at the fire college here was made by Michael Lo Presti, fire college coordinator, last week.



A four week course in radiological monitoring was begun October 31. Instruction is given once a week by John Bogher and Manfred Mueller of the chemistry department of the college.

By means of a rate measuring instrument called a monitor, the men are taught to determine the amount of radioactivity after an atomic blast. The roof of the main building is being used as a testing ground.

A special course for parochial school bus drivers was given November 5. The whole day was devoted to instructing these 30 men.

To make sure the men had no physical reactions that are below normal, psycho-physical tests were given. Lectures were given by Sergeant Robert Gremminger, in charge of Safety Education; Battalion Chief William Gilmore, director of training and instruction; and Lo Presti.

And Then There Were Four, and Traffic With the Devil were two movies on driver safety shown the men.

AGS Chooses Lucca's For Dinner Site

Alpha Gamma Sigma's traditional installation dinner will be held at Lucca's Restaurant on Thursday evening, November 20, faculty sponsor Don Jensen announced last week.

On that date, he said, new members will be installed and students who have qualified in this honor society for two or more semesters will be awarded pins.

Cost of the roast chicken dinner will be nominal, according to Jensen.

Although complete information will be sent members through the mail, Jensen stated that he will be available in his office in Building 3 to answer any questions and to accept reservations.

He suggested that anyone who needs transportation to the restaurant or who has transportation to offer, call on him early so that necessary arrangements can be made.

Alpha Gamma Sigma President Robert Luehr has announced that the dinner will serve a dual purpose this semester. New officers will be installed and representatives to Alpha Gamma Sigma Executive Council will be introduced.

Besides Luehr, who is entering his second term, new officers include John Wilson, Vice-president, Helene Shields, Secretary; Hilda Sweeney, Treasurer; Lois Anne English, Lore Menders, Diane Perrine, George Morrison, Shirley McVey, Dorothy Cutler and Eleanor Klein, representatives to the Executive Council.

Shipwreck Dance To Row In November 20 In Campus Auditorium

Shipwreck, the next dance of the semester, under the sponsorship of Phi Beta Delta fraternity, will be held in the west campus auditorium Thursday, November 20, and the next day is Education, therefore a student holiday.

This annual affair will be traditionally decorated with flags and palm leaves to bring out the theme, according to Mel Watson, president of the fraternity.

Cost to members and non members of the Associated Students alike will be $2 per couple. Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, and Bob Emerson's band, which has played all over the bay area, will provide the music for the evening, Watson said.

Informal attire of Ship and Shore costumes to suit the theme of the dance will be appropriate, Watson stated.

Tickets will go on sale on Wednesday, November 12, and they may be obtained from any Phi Delt, who can easily be recognized by the traditional bamboo tattoo he will wear around his neck, Watson added.

Coffee Hour Planned By Student-Faculty Committee For Friday, November 14

College hour, Friday, November 14, has been designated by the Student-Faculty Relations Committee for an informal gathering of faculty members and students, Maurice Power, chairman of the committee, announced last week.

"This meeting affords the student an opportunity to talk with and meet members of the faculty and thus get better acquainted without the formality of the classroom," Power said Friday.

The meeting will be the third of a series to create better relations between student and faculty, and will be held in the student lounge in Building 2 where free coffee will be served.

Faculty members who will serve on the committee are Valerie Phillips, Katherine Shorb, Don Smith, Mildred Barnard, Mary Goulding, and Power. Gerald Schween, Lou Shepard, Barbara Scott and Stokely Wilson are student representatives to the preparation meetings.

Power explained that faculty members on the committee are scheduled to pour coffee and mingle with the students in an effort to establish a level of friendliness and informality that will put all present at ease.

Power has been an active participant on the faculty coffee hour committee, and he is among the strong advocates of better student-faculty social relations.

Burrow Resigns; Frediani New Alumni Leader

Succeeding Trev A. Burrow, east bay insurance executive, as president of the college's Alumni Association is Edwin Frediani, San Francisco attorney, according to Gloria Dunn, secretary of the association.

Other officers elected at a special alumni meeting November 4, include Robert Winegardner, vice-president, and Carl Heltenberger, who was appointed to the executive board. Mrs. Dunn was reelected as secretary.

According to the Alumni Association, any person who has attended the college for one or more semesters and left here in good standing is an alumnus and eligible to join the Alumni Association.

Charter membership for life is $10. Other memberships in the Association are Active, $2 dues, and Subscriber, $5 dues.

Started four years ago under the auspices of Joseph Amato, Burrow, Frediani, and Donald Jensen, the association offers to new members, assistance in selective placement services, contacts, counsel, and activities Mrs. Dunn said.

Retiring Alumni President Burrow, a journalism major, was Associated Student President and later Editor of The Guardsman while at the college. Frediani, active in college affairs, was Sports Editor of The Guardsman.

Jensen now a counsellor and instructor here was President of the Associated Students.

Campus Police Qualify As Sharp Shooters

Members of the campus police here qualified with the 38 caliber pistol November 3, at the San Francisco police range, John Robert Lewis, chief of the campus police, declared yesterday.

Fourteen policemen qualified last month at the range, while two of the policemen, Charles Oehlerking and Walter Winter, qualified as experts.

Other men who qualified are Art Bronstein, marksman; Victor Dale, marksman; Norman DeNardo marksman; Fred Fitzgerald sharpshooter; Phil Gardner, sharpshooter; Leo Hertzgher, marksman; John Robert Lewis, sharpshooter; Don Mutch marksman; Frank Penirian, sharpshooter; Lee Trimmerding marksman; and Gale Wright, sharpshooter.

Frank Penirian, former campus policeman, passed a Civil Service test on finger print technician at the Bureau of Identification in Sacramento, and is now employed at the bureau, Lewis said.

Tom McGuiness, former campus policeman, left last week for the United States.

College Hour Features Gable Movie

Supplementing the club meetings scheduled for college hour, Friday, November 14, will be the movie, Mutiny On the Bounty, Lillian Desmond, of the audio-visual department, stated early this week.

The movie, which stars Clark Gable and Charles Laughton, will be shown three times, at 9:40 a.m., 10:40 a.m., and 12:30 p.m., in Room 136, Miss Desmond said. Each showing will be 40 minutes long.

Admission is free, and all students are invited, by the audio-visual department, to attend.

Meanwhile, Don Dunn, dean of student activities, announced that more than 20 clubs will be meeting during college hour on Friday, and all members are urged to attend the meetings of their groups.

Regular college hour schedule will be observed on Friday, November 14.

Filipino Students To Attend Tea In Honor Of Consul General

All college students from the Philippines have been invited to a tea to be held in honor of the Philippine Consul General at the San Francisco Museum of Art from 4 to 6 p.m., Tuesday, November 18, Walter McCloud, foreign student counsellor, said today.

Letters of invitation have been mailed, McCloud said, but students not registered in the foreign students office may not receive theirs and are therefore requested to contact the foreign students counselling office as soon as possible, if they are interested in attending the tea.

Hurley Village Units In Demand

Arthur James, student at the University of San Francisco and manager of Hurley Village, reported that there is a long list of families waiting to obtain a unit in the village.

Applications are being accepted by James at 250 Marshton Avenue and the telephone number is JUniper 5-2583.

The units consist of a living room, kitchen, bedroom and bathroom. A stove, heater and all utilities are included in this fee. For $4 extra a month a family can rent any furniture that they need.

James reported that there are 217 units. They consist of 134 one-bedroom houses at $35 a month, 50 two-bedroom houses at $37.50 and 33 two-bedroom houses at $40.

Students from other colleges in San Francisco occupy about 50 per cent of these living quarters. This is due to the fact that a few years ago City College was unable to keep these units occupied but it is an entirely different situation now, James said.

Hotel Restaurant Division Long Established At The College

One of the most important, though perhaps most taken for granted departments, here is the college's Hotel and Restaurant Division. From a difficult and humble beginning, this once little known part of the college has not only become a complex and well-organized organization but an organization with a truly amazing record.

Way back in 1936, just one year after the college's start, the Hotel and Restaurant Division was born. Its birth took place under the guiding hand of John P. Gifford, a former biology instructor here, and a graduate of the Cornell Restaurant Management School. It grew up in the cafeteria of Marina Jr. High School and Galileo High School.

With the move of the college to its present location, the restaurant division found itself in 1940, in the basement of the main building. There, in what is now the fabia building snack bar, it continued operation now under the leadership of Hilda Watson Mrs. Watson, a graduate of the Cornell Restaurant Division School, came to the college in 1937.

"We were in the main building until the Fall of 1947," Mrs. Watson said. "Then we moved for two reasons. For one we try to train all our students for industry. The members of the hotel industry themselves thought that we might better train our students if we had more room for instruction. Then too, the interest in the division grew to such an extent, that we extended the number of students allowed to enter the course from 60 to 120."

The equipment used by the restaurant students is among the finest found in the bay area. Among a vast array of such lesser items as bowls, choppers, and mixers are such standouts as two walk-in refrigerators, a walk-in-deep-freeze, five huge ovens designed for baking, roasting, and general cooking, and a dangerous looking collection of meat slicers and tenderizers.

Mrs. Watson explained that all hotel students receive expert instruction from experienced hotel chefs and business men. Incoming students learn of the elementary preparation of foods and take courses in Hotel business accounting.

As the student matures and becomes more experienced Mrs. Watson said, he is given tasks with a great amount of responsibility and skill needed.

"Let me emphasize that our students do all the planning, arranging, and cooking of the meals served here," Mrs. Watson added.

The students not only plan the menus for the campus a week in advance, but actually, buy all the produce needed for the semester. Dry goods, Mrs. Watson explained, are purchased in quantity [illegible]

Sandwiches Satisfy Hunger

Cakes Made At The College

HOTEL STUDENTS George Yeakey, Claudine Claussen, and Edward Nylund prepare to ice a cake baked by students here. All bakery goods for the college are made by the students themselves. The cakes are baked in huge ovens, capable of a very high temperature, especially designed for baking. These pictures show only a scant portion of the division's activities.—Photos by Denevi.

The "Hole"

'Reconstruction' Bypasses Gate, Cuts New Entry

By Dick Wiltshire

The makings of a great crusade have been destroyed by the anonymous strokes of metal shears, but perhaps therein hangs a tale by itself.

Not all of the student body is or ever has been aware of "the hole." Not all have had to use it, thank heavens. Not all have had to stoop (figuratively as well as literally) to the ignominious procedure of extricating oneself from the campus by means of what was until very recently an aperture of some three feet in diameter in the gate to the rear of Building 8.

But many did, many suffered scrapes and scratches not to mention the moral torture involved as they made their daily entrance and exodus.

The fact remained that a perfectly good gate, constructed, one would think, for the purpose of admitting authorized traffic both mounted and foot-borne, had been reduced to the status of a hole-in-the-wall.

Human beings were being obliged to contort themselves in the most degrading of manners in order to accomplish the perfectly legal — yea, commendable — act of entering the college by the portal most convenient to their classes. Indignation was mounting high. This, went the unspoken threat, is the stuff revolutions are made of!

So, now, after the hose has been torn, the shoes scuffed, and the scalp lacerated, some thoughtful soul has widened the breach.

It is now to the point where one can come and go without having taken modern dance; a simple twist of the body will do it, unless the frame juts well over 72 inches. The ominous rumblings have receded, if not ceased.

And yet, those who employed the gate in "the old days," can not but look with some measure of scorn at the less enterprising souls who use it now that the trail has been blazed at an immeasurable toll of human dignity.

But then, somebody's got to be the pioneer.

Blood Day Is Best Forgotten By Most Students Here

BLOOD day is over. The mobile blood bank units have come and gone. The event is a thing of the past — to be forgotten.

Or is it to be forgotten? We think not. We cannot forget no matter how we try. Too often success and pride are easily passed over. Too often failure and shame remain, like a millstone, for a long time.

IT IS WITH SHAME THAT WE REMEMBER BLOOD DAY HERE.

Not shame for the members of the Globe and Anchor Society who diligently worked for many weeks to make the day a success, nor shame for the small handful of students and faculty members who took about 30 minutes out of their day to donate a pint of blood, but for the overwhelming majority of the students here who "just couldn't be bothered."

A few almost complete statistics will clearly show just how bad the situation was.

Latest enrollment figures show a total of 5594 students attending the college. Out of this number a grand total of 361 students deigned to sign pledge cards. When members of the Globe and Anchor checked by telephone on these pledges, they found that only 270 students out of that 361 total could or would give blood.

True, some students had reasonable excuses, so this number is not so startling as it may seem. Incidentally, while checking on the pledges, the Globe and Anchor group found that approximately eight students, for some reason known only to themselves and their consciences, gave false addresses and telephone numbers when making out their pledge cards.

Out of the 270 students who said they would give blood, 169 students came in to donate. One hundred and eleven students, almost 50 per cent, never showed up. Forty-two of those who did show up were disqualified, with the end result that, at last count, a mere 127 actually did donate.

These are the figures. They stand as a tragic disgrace to the students of the college, to college students in general, and, if duplicated elsewhere, to the nation at large.

Naturally, the Globe and Anchor members are bitterly disappointed over this miserable showing. As veterans they know fully the importance of the need for blood. As veterans they find it hard to understand that citizens far removed from war and its impact can not or will not do anything to help.

If a few of those who failed to appear on blood day would make an appointment with the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank and carry out the promise they made, the situation would improve. This, we realize, is highly unlikely.

No, we cannot forget blood day. We wish we could.

Campus Students Need Book On Etiquette Via Emily Post

By Lonanne Morford

EMILY, POST should compile a special edition on manners for the college set and add a few handy hints on some of the everyday situations that arise on the campus.

May it be further suggested that Miss Post (if she were to write such a book) do some research on the subject of campus etiquette right here.

For example, Miss Post might be asked to solve a problem that faces many a gallant during the damp weather of typical San Francisco winters.

WHO'S FIRST?

"Is it correct, Miss Post, for the gentleman to stand aside and allow the lady to go through the door first and risk getting drenched by cold rain or descending upon her by way of the selve-like arcade roof before she can recover from the shock of her unexpected cold shower and put up her umbrella? Or should he bound through the door ahead of her and put up the umbrella and thus save her beautiful coiffure?"

THE GRACEFUL ART

Miss Post could certainly find many incidences of unusual behavior in the fountain and snack bar. In fact she would probably find enough material to occupy days of study. Perhaps she would be able, at the end of a week or two of experiments, to find a graceful manner to eat a hard roll sandwich without getting crumbs and/or mayonnaise all over oneself.

Undoubtedly she would be fascinated by some of the methods of eating a sandwich now employed. Notably the "scientific approach" which involves the "slow dissecting" of various components of the sandwich and eating each part separately and a small, torn tidbits.

THE DISTAFF SIDE

Another problem that Miss Post might solve for all women is a graceful manner in which to get into a car. Miss Post might thereby receive high honors from the women of America for her contribution to grace.

CLEANLINESS

Neatness and cleanliness, especially here, might come into the book. Undoubtedly Miss Post would conclude that no cleanup campaign would be necessary if everyone minded his own manners and picked up their own mess. But then everyone should know that without referring to Miss Post; and, since that is the most pressing problem in etiquette that City College has, maybe she won't have to write her study of college etiquette—if everyone will remember what his parents have undoubtedly already taught him.

Pulse of the Campus

• Opinion

Editor, The Guardsman:

I am pleased that Boots, the blond cocker, receives affection from the girls, that the college players find comfort in their training rooms, and that the flower shop is going to enter a national show. All these hors d'oeuvres are pleasing! Rose for The Guardsman! BUT!

Why can't your editorial column, which is supposed to be the high point of the paper, deal with news more pertinent to the college in general. Now it's a fine idea to promote cleanliness on the campus but I feel the matter has been a little over done. In fact the subject is trite. If students aren't going to heed your "dynamic" appeal don't waste your editorial on these worthless warped miscarriages of education. It seems to me that with a little ingenuity you would be able to dream up something of more interest to the college.

The returning lettermen from last year are Art Back, Warren Hagberg, Bob Bondanza, Ken Hansen, and Payne. These players will be helped along by a great array of former prep talent who will perform this year for the Rams.—Photo by Scammon.

RAMblings . .

By Joe Callas

IN THIS column a few weeks ago, we discussed football specialists and made a statement saying that the days of the triple threat football players are gone.

We realize that this statement was a bit pre-mature, because it seems that the days of the triple threat are on their way back, due to another old football standard, the single wing, which is also catching its second wind.

Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, the inventor of the single wing formation, stated, after the "T" formation was introduced to football in 1940 by Clark Shaughnessy and George Halas, Stanford University and Chicago Bear coaches respectively, that coaches would awaken to the fact that the single wing is a more powerful offensive attack than the more colorful "T" formation. He said this after the "T" was adopted by nearly every high school, college, and pro team in existence.

Many coaches made the statement that the defenses were catching up with the "T" and that it wouldn't be long before this farmation would gradually descend.

Michigan St. College, currently the nation's Number 1 collegiate grid team, is a single wing endorser. The two undefeated Pacific Coast grid powers, U.S.C. and U.C.L.A., have made the single wing switch and have come into the Rose Bowl picture.

Either one of these two teams will receive the Rose Bowl bid, and it won't be decided until the Bruins and Trojans clash in late November on the Los Angeles Coliseum turf.

The more teams that re-adopt the single wing, the more chances of having triple threats. There aren't more than a handful of the three timers in big time football at the present moment, because this is the day of specialists.

The "T" formation cannot produce one since the quarterback is usually the only one who passes. He could be the kicker, but very seldom is a runner.

Frankie Albert of the local 49ers falls into the category of triple threat QB's. Albert is a good passer, and a great punter. He is undoubtedly one of the greatest field runners in modern football. Being a "T" QB, Albert's running is limited.

The tailback is the main cog in the single wing attack and should be a good runner and passer. Paul Cameron, U.C.L.A.'s All-American is excellent at these two, but does not do his team's punting. U.S.C.'s Jim Sears is in the same situation as Cameron.

Thus, 1952 could be the year that "Pop" Warner's ancient single wing formation ended the 13-year reign of the triple threatless "T".

Intra Cage Play Ends; Four Roses, Parkers Champs!

By Don MacDougall

As tipoff time is rapidly nearing for the coming inter-collegiate 1952 basketball season, the final scene has been concluded in the intramural league competition as the Four Roses and the Parkers captured the victor's laurels.

Closely following these respective teams in the runner-up positions were the Snookers in the Tuesday and Thursday league, and the Anythings in the Monday and Wednesday opposition.

The results of the inter-fraternity schedule find the Newman Club retaining the coveted first division championship.

Coach Ralph Hillsman, director of the competition, commented on the final outcome of the league and summed up the three man games by stating,

"I'm rather impressed by the results of the tournament play. I feel that this intramural season served two purposes. They gave the fellows a chance for competitive experience, and I also spotted much of the coming varsity potential just by observing the play."

The official opening of 1952 basketball practice began on October 31, with returning lettermen Chuck Payne, Ken Hansen, Art Back, Warren Hagberg and Bob Bodanza vieing for the coveted starting berths.

Casaba Coach Hillsman Has Great Record

In five years of coaching at City College, the story of Ram basketball coach, Ralph Hillsman, is one of great success.

Under Hillsman, the City College cagers have won the Northern California Junior College title four out of five years.

Hillsman graduated from the local Galileo High School, where he starred on the basketball and soccer teams.

Upon graduation from high school, he attended City College, where during his athletic career, he was captain of the first organized inter-collegiate basketball squad at City College under the coaching of Louis G. Conti, now president here. Remaining here at the college for one year, Hillsman later transferred to the University of California.

His first coaching assignment was in 1939 at Lassen Junior College in Susanville, where he was head man in basketball, football, baseball and track. Hillsman's success began in his very first year at Lassen when he guided all four teams to conference championships.

After two successful years at Lassen, he served four years in Uncle Sam's Navy where he was stationed at St. Mary's Pre-Flight School.

In his first season here, Hillsman's cagers went on to win the California State Junior College title.

Besides four Northern California titles, the Rams have copped the Modesto Tournament twice, and the consolation two times. Last year the Rams were ranked third in the state, and eighth best in the nation.

Commenting on the coming season Hillsman said that the Rams have the best balanced team in years, but every position is wide open because of an abundance of talent.

The Modesto and the Visalia tournaments are two important tournaments on the Ram schedule this year. The State Junior College championship in Long Beach awaits the winner of the Big Seven Conference.

Rams Hope To Upset Stockton Friday Night

City College Rams venture to Stockton this Friday to encounter the Stockton Junior College Mustangs in a Big Seven Conference clash at 8 p.m. in the home college's Baxter Stadium.

The Mustangs are undefeated in league competition, having knocked off previously unbeaten West Contra Costa and holding the Bulldogs highly heralded Sam (First Down) Brown to a total of only 34 yards which defeated WCC 14 to 6.

The Grover Klemmer coached Rams lost their last encounter to East Los Angeles City College 32 to 7 after winning two in a row prior to the ELA contest.

The Rams will have to be at their best if they are to defeat the Mustangs who have fneed rough competition this year and have still emerged a power.

Bob Oliver, all-conference end, has been lost, having played his last game against ELA. The Rams have shown definite improvement since early season and could be geared for an upset, particularly if the Mustangs show overconfidence.

There will be only a slight chance of overconfidence though, as Stockton will not forget that it was the Rams who pasted it on last year and humiliated the Mustangs to the tune of 46 to 7. This was the only league defeat suffered by the Mustangs last year.

The Ram attaek is paced by the running of fullback Fil Julaibal, and halfback Bill Jones, and the passing of QB, Sam Hiona. The defensive unit has been great all season, being led by Pat Fracisco, George Ransom, Pete Hontales, and Jerry Fletcher.

Ram Soccer Squad Defeats Santa Clara 3-1

Racking up their first victory of the season the college soccer team rolled over Santa Clara to the tune of 3 to 1, November 1.

Highlighted by sparkling boots by Carlos Monge and Nick Malneck, the Rams who boast the stoutest defensive club in the league, put forth their greatest effort of the season.

With their offensive attack finally jelling, the Rams look forward to their remaining second round games. They met California last Saturday, and will tangle with U.S.F. this Saturday, November 15.

Parish Scores Twice To Lead Rams In 20-7 Triumph Over Sacramento; Malnic, Kelly Lead Ground Attack

By Charles Brigham

In a game in which the score belied the effectuality of their opponents, the City College Rams fought to a 20-7 victory over the Panthers of Sacramento College last Friday at Kezar Stadium.

In taking their second league win of the season, the Rams were paced by dependable halfback Bernie Kelly, quarterback Sam Hiona, end Van Parish, and halfback Sandy Malnic.

Kelly did a large percentage of the ball carrying and was a big factor in the Rain drives.

The Hiona-Parish pass combination accounted for one of City College's touchdowns and was a steady source of yardage and Malnic, another consistent ground gainer, planted off tackle for the final Ram tally.

Tackle George Ransom did a fine job on defense, often throwing Panther plays for losses.

The two teams started the game fairly even, and the first quarter was scoreless.

However, in the second period Ram halfback Pat Fracisco returned a punt to the Panther twenty-five yard line, and on the first play Hiona flipped to Parish in the end zone for the game's first score. Paul Papathakis converted to make the score 7 to 0 for City College. The first half ended with that score.

The third quarter was uneventful, and with the teams exhibiting an equality that threatened to prevent further scoring, the third period ended in the same 7-0 score.

The fourth quarter, however, had some surprises in store for the sparse but enthusiastic crowd in the stadium.

To open the fourth quarter, City College climaxed a downfield drive with a pass from quarterback Dick Landucci to Parish from the 25 to the 12, from where Parish ran it over for the touchdown. The conversion failed, but it seemed as if the Rams had the game cinched with the score now 13 to 0 in the fourth quarter.

But the Panthers were not to be so easily demed. Showing flashes of excellence. Panther quarterback Don Sauer and 205 pound halfback Joe Ulm rambled roughshod over the Ram defense, piloting a 68 yard drive to the City College one yard line.

From there Sauer connected with a pass to halfback Rolland Mullholland for a T. D. Halfback Dave Fanner ran over the line for the extra point, and the Panthers were definitely still in the game with almost ten minutes of the fourth quarter remaining.

Faced with the possibility of losing in the fourth quarter, the Rams settled down and regained control of the play.

In the game's closing minutes, Sandy Malnic returned a Sacramento punt to the Panther 19 yard line. From there, Kelly and Co. rolled to the three, and then sent Malnic smashing off tackle for the final score of the game, Papathakis kicking the conversion to make the score 20 to 7.

The Rams are members of the Big Seven Conference, and this victory chalks up their second league win, giving them a record of two wins and two losses.

This gives the Rams a seasonal total of three wins and four losses, with two games still to be played.

City College ventures to Stockton to meet the undefeated Mustangs in a league contest Friday night.

Intra Boxing Tourney Begins November 25

Meet The Players . . . . . Quarterbacks

In the Meet-the-Players series this week, we have the quarterbacks, the spark plugs of the offensive attack.

In the picture on the left are the two Ram QB's Sam Hiona shown passing, and Dick Landucel doing the blocking. Hiona, the starting quarterback, is a 5' 9" 155-pound product of Commerce High School. His passing ability has improved tremendously over his prep school days, and he now ranks as one of the top passers in the Big Seven Conference.

Landucel is a 5' 8" 160-pounder who was also the second string quarterback to City College's Dave Tivio last year. He is a good passer and is pressing Hiona for a starting berth.

Both players have improved in their ball handling since the early part of the season, with ball handline being a vital part of a quarterback's repertoire.

Hiona had a hand injury at the start of this season and although it did not hamper his ball handling it did hamper his receiving of the ball from the center. It did not hamper his passing either, as he is up with the leader of the Big Seven in total yards gained passing.

Landucel has a good completion average in the short time he has appeared so far this season.

AWS Tea And Fashion Show Feature 15 College Models

Fifteen models, approximately, will be featured in the Associated Women Student combination tea and fashion show, Campus Casuals, Thursday, November 20, according to AWS President, Odette Trouillet.

Miss Trouillet, yesterday, disclosed that the following women students had been chosen as models:

◆ Lola Lee, Dolly Collins, Betty Salerno, Joanna Smith, Annie Monego, Sue Speer, Connie Coleman, Irene Enstrom, Roberta Usher, Janet Sewall, Jean Bramwell, Alice Hammond, Audrey Peters, Jackie Jeffries, Shirley Plichick, Rita Santiago, Jane Zelinsky, Naomi Carlisle, Helda Sweeney, Dottie Pfeiffer, Jean Mertens, Carol McKenzie and Janet Terry.

"We had 22 names submitted to us" Miss Trouillet explained, "but we will be able to use only approximately 15 of them. In order to be perfectly fair in our selection, we put each name on a separate piece of paper and mixed them well in a box.

"With Dean Margaret Dougherty to help, we picked out one name at a time and put it down on the list. The first 15 on the list will be models, while the others will act as alternates as they appear."

The models are named above as they appear on the list.

Campus fashions for the show will be furnished by Alex de May of Lakeside Village.

The show will take place in the student lounge between 1 and 5 p.m. High school women will be the guests of honor at this semi-annual affair.

For entertainment, Miss Trouillet said, the A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Flossita Badger, will sing.

College Variety Show Planned For December 4, 5

Talent has been selected to appear in a variety show, which will be presented here Thursday and Friday nights, December 4 and 5, Michael Griffin, drama instructor, said last week.

There will be a dance immediately following the performance on Friday night, December 5, he added.

Ticket sales will begin today. Admission to the show will be 50 cents to Associated Student members, or $1 to non-members, and tickets may be obtained on the campus, Griffin said. There will be no charge for the dance.

Many fields of entertainment will be represented, Griffin declared, including an original production number featuring the voice of Bill Jones, who was introduced at a recent football rally.

Old time original Orpheum skits and blackouts — contributed by Larry Allen, of the City of Paris box office — will be performed by Jerry O'Connor and Dawn Gallagher, and the Three-Little-Bears series with Paul Bixel, Stokely Wilson and Connie Webb will be included in the comedy division, Griffin indicated.

In the terpsichorean section of the show, Griffin listed a professional dance production from the Stanley Kahn Studios with Beverly Axelrod, Bill Bixby, Jerry O'Connor, Dawn Gallagher, Joyce Cody, and Penelope Warshot; Tony Young in a gypsy dance characteristic of her homeland; and Mary Allen in a ballet number with harp and orchestral accompaniment.

Although tryouts were held last week, Griffin announced that there is still time for anyone with talent to see him about an audition.

Ushering Passes Free to Students

Ushering passes are available for the symphony series and the California Civic Music and Arts Foundation concert series at the War Memorial Opera House.

Student passes may be obtained from Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty in Building 2 one week in advance of the scheduled program at which they desire to usher. These ushering opportunities are offered to interested students who wish to exchange them for free admission to performances, Dean Dougherty said.

The presentation at the Opera House for Friday, November 14, will be Ana Marie's Spanish Ballet. Dean Dougherty may be consulted for any additional information.

Full Term Credit For Drafted Students

Students inducted into the armed forces on or after December 8, 1952, may receive full credit for the entire Fall semester, according to F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare.

College policy, Marsh said, has been to give full semester credit to students called on or after commencement of third midterm periods, providing their scholastic and attendance records have been satisfactory during all of the semester in question.

Thus, Marsh pointed out, it would be wise for men intending to enlist in any of the services to postpone, if feasible, their reporting dates until the start of a third midterm period. Otherwise the student receives no credit for the semester's work, regardless of the proficiency of his studies.

Pre-registration For Spring Begins Today

Pre-registration for Spring semester, 1953, started today as counsellors began helping students plan their programs for next semester, according to F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare.

Priority in registration is gained by the pre-registration number stamped on the student's proposed program, Marsh added.

Those students who have not as yet made appointments to be interviewed are urged to make their appointments as soon as possible in Building 3.

Blood Day-Patriotism, Humor And Defeat

Two Pints Blood: 'Take It Easy When You Get Up'

(Editor's Note: The following story is a first hand account by a student blood donor who made his pledge, October 31, and followed through by carrying out his pledge November 5.)

The call of patriotism forced Sam Blythe, Editor-in-Chief of The Guardsman, and me to donate a couple of pints of blood last Wednesday.

While we were waiting in line, a girl broke down and cried when she was told that she couldn't give any blood. This impressed us greatly.

If all of the students had this attitude, the number of donors at the college would have been much greater.

Anyway, Sam had been working rather hard and, in outward appearance, he looked as though he needed a couple of pints of the red stuff himself.

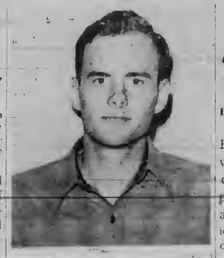
His temperature was high and his pulse was 40 beats above normal. My pulse, heartbeat, et cetera were normal, and besides being on the chubby side, I was a fine specimen, an ideal donor.

Well, we both got by the censors and were placed on a cot where a couple of good looking nurses started prodding our arm muscles.

When they began the procedure, I tried to comfort Sam:

"How are ya coming?" I asked.

"Fine, fine," he replied, "it's spurtin' like old faithful." Mine was barely flowing.



In a few minutes, the nurse came along and removed a full pint of red and rare "B" type fluid, which only 10 per cent of the populace have, from Mr. Editor's veins.

Being a fine physical specimen and an old hand at bloodletting, I shouted to Sam, "Take it easy when you get up." He bounced up. He floated over to the Red Cross refreshment stand and gulped down two glasses of orange juice. He pounded his chest and left. What a man! I was still pumping.

Ten minutes later I sat up. Five minutes later I woke up. Three nurses and a doctor were peering over me. "A violent reaction, followed by fainting and convulsions," said the doctor.

I heard a far away voice whisper, "poor baby." I was the subject of pity. I had reached the height of disgrace.

Anyway, it just goes to show that one pint of blood means a lot, unless you're an editor, and that it means life to the fellows in Korea. — By Garry Wormser.

DON DOUGLAS — "Disappointment Bitter"

Students Here Have Colds Of One Hour Duration

Dean Edwin C. Browne reported that there is currently an increase in absences because of the cold epidemic.

Browne added: "It is amazing how frequently sudden attacks of various illnesses rule spontaneously from 8 to 9 a.m., but at 9 a.m. the students completely recover for the balance of their classes.

"Science has yet to discover what it is that brings on this unwelcome epidemic at 8 a.m., rather than at different hours of the day. It is a mystery to the parents who sign the notes indicating that their son or daughter had this 8 a.m. trouble."

More Hotel Division

while perishables are purchased a week in advance.

Mrs. Watson also noted that special studies made by the students enable the department to gauge how much a particular food stuff will be sold on any given day.

The best example as to how successful the Hotel and Restaurant training has been from its beginning in 1936 to date is that the organization has had an absolute 100 per cent record in placing graduates in the industry. — S. B.

AS Cards on Sale at Bank and Ramporium

Jim Bouick, chairman of Associated Student card sales, announced that AS cards are still available at the student bank, main building, during banking hours or at the Ramporium.

"The purchase of an AS card is money well spent," Bouick said. "You will get returns on discounts, admission price cuts, and admission to college activities."

High School Students Will Visit College

Tenth graders of the local high schools will visit the college tomorrow, and make an extensive tour of the campus and the various departments in conjunction with the program of the college counsellors to acquaint the potential college students with the available facilities in public education.

The students will arrive at the college before noon, and have lunch here at the cafeteria. In the afternoon they will be conducted on their tour by Jack Brady, dean of semi-professional courses.

Turnout Here Falls Far Short Of Goal; Only 127 Donate

By Lomanne Morford

Efforts toward a successful Blood Drive came to an end last week in what appeared an anti-climax to elaborate and intensive preparation made by the Globe and Anchor Society in the opinion of Earl Taylor, charter member of the society.

Disappointment by leaders in the drive stemmed from failure of pledges to donate. Don Douglas, president of Globe and Anchor Society, released the following statistics in connection with the expectation of the society and the actual turn out:

Approximately 350 volunteered, but after appointments had been made, only 270 of the original number were still able to donate. The number of persons who appeared Wednesday with the intention of donating was 169.

Taylor explained that there were many persons who had legitimate reasons for not appearing. Veterans of the Korean war, he continued, were ineligible since they have been within the malaria area within the past three years.

Persons wishing to give blood were able to do so between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. in the lounge on the main floor of Building 2.

Facilities accommodating eight persons simultaneously were set up and members of the Globe and Anchor Society as well as the medical personnel were in attendance in Building 2 all during the day.

In a statement made Wednesday afternoon Taylor said, "Those who gave were terrific to go to the time and trouble to donate, but we were desperately disappointed by the slight response from a college which boasts a day enrollment of around 3600."

Despite concern expressed over the failure of so many students to come through on their pledges, Douglas commented favorably upon the fact that his own, as well as a few other campus organizations, participated in the drive 100 per cent to the extent possible by eligibility.

Cameramen Film Work On Library

Guardsman staff photographers are now working on a long term assignment for the college, according to Bev Pasqualetti, photo-journalism instructor and head of the department of photography here.

Weekly photographs are being taken by each staff member, showing progress of the construction of the classroom-library building on the hill, Pasqualetti announced.

Upon completion of the building, a great number of photographs will have been taken, he said, and the best of them will be bound into book form as a permanent pictorial record of its construction.

Club Cavalcade: Holiday Season Spur Club Fans

By Betty Wong

Holidays coming in the fall semester in the college year are always occasion for the party, picnic, and other social plans to emerge. This week the organizations on and off campus will be holding meetings to discuss and iron out the many activities slated throughout the holiday season.

The United Students Association will meet Friday, November 14, in Room 5L during college hour. The first order of business will be the election of this semester's permanent officers.

All students interested are invited to attend the meeting of this new organization which was formed during the summer.

Kappa Phi will have a joint meeting with Kappa Rho tonight. They will hold a presentation of the new pledges on Sunday, November 16, at the home of Pat Simmons.

The Masonic Club announces that it holds its meetings during college hour in Building 5-A. Those who are eligible are invited to attend.

The appointed and elected officers for the semester are President, Bill Anderson; Vice-president, Mary Ada Sea; Secretary-treasurer, Doris Erwin; Social chairman, George Davidson; Sponsor, Donald Atherton.

Zeta Chi sorority held a joint meeting with Alpha Sigma Delta at the home of Bea and Lorraine Lundgren on November 5.

Last Saturday, the Latin American Club held its third affair of the semester. Anyone who is interested in the club is welcomed to attend the meetings held in Room 2A on Fridays during college hour.

Tau Chi Sigma held a smoker last Monday at the home of Gene McIntee, an alumnus of the fraternity. Plans are now being formulated for a formal initiation and pledge dinner.

The Hillel Foundation held a regular meeting last night at 8 p.m. at the Jewish Community Center.

Le Cercle Francais are discussing service projects to the college, and from many suggestions that have been offered, the final project will be picked and announced at a later date.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon has completely renovated the little guard house at the west campus exit at their own expense. The fraternity will also continue to use their own P.A. system to help inform the students and to distribute the Guardsman from this point.

The first playday of the Women's Athletic Association for this semester was held at San Mateo Junior College on November 1, and proved to be very successful. The next playday will be held Saturday, December 6, at East Contra Costa Junior College for badminton, archery, and tennis.

The Newman Club had a meeting on November 5, and a movie was shown.

The officers of the Inter-Fraternity Council for this semester include President, Lou Shepard; Vice-president, Yash Yasnitsky; Secretary, Gene Beaudet; Treasurer, Mel Watson.

The following fraternities are members of the IFC:

Alpha Phi Epsilon, Alpha Sigma Delta, Beta Tau, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Kappa Rho, Phi Beta Delta, and Tau Chi Sigma.

Club news will now be collected on Tuesdays at 1 o'clock at Club Activities Board meetings from club representatives. Information for publication in this column may still be submitted on Wednesdays in the Club News box in The Guardsman office, Building 4 by 1 p.m.

Gaudy Colors And Shoddy Shoes Set New Fashions In Campus Clothing

By Dick Wiltshire

College styles, both male and female, are exhibiting interesting features this fall. As seen on the local greenswards, leave us report the following:

Mary Alvin was spotted in her dashing new saddle shoes, complete with socks. Both items seems to be very popular this semester.

Leyton Schmidt is causing a mild furor with his natural khaki slacks and rhinestone belt-buckle. The slacks are imported.

And gaudy as a papa peacock is David Georgeson, replete with his Luxe-faded blue denims smartly set off by an interesting, kidney-shaped patch on the left hip. Lane Bronco can also be seen in denims with the novel twist of a blending repair job on the right hip.

While really an eye-catcher is Babs Durbock with her flaring chartreuse riboso around the neck, not to mention those enviable earrings cunningly fashioned from discarded baling wire.

Don Sour has been receiving jealous looks for his olive drab neckwear, while Burbura Rathss features the feminine counterpart in pleated muslin scarfs.

The list is really endless, but Jane Razzis' lovely black and brown, starched serape and John Cadilac's charming mother of pearl tennis shoes must be mentioned. And, let's face it, the fashion spectacle would not be complete without Chyril Chaser and her ever popular duty lenon beret or Helen Swagil's delightful, peek-a-boo, tartan sweater.

Oh, yes, and Carole Felton has simply been getting raves for her smart, burnt-charcoal shaded handbag with hair ribbons to match.

And, too, of course there's Jean Wright's darling, pale white lipstonge, not completely a fashion, but worthy of mention, nonetheless. (Oops, almost forgot Frank Newground's sporty, light vermillion sweat shirt with the hook-and-eye system down the back.)

Well, this could go on and on and on, but the picture at least is clear. College students certainly are the style setters!

Local High School Sophomores Guests At Career Day Conference Held Here For College Potentials

Career Conference Day, for potential college students from San Francisco high schools, was held here November 13 as part of a growing program aimed at acquainting students with the opportunities and facilities offered by City College.

Students, selected from among the sophomores enrolled in San Francisco high schools, were given a full day of conferences and panel discussions dealing with chemistry, chemical engineering, civil engineering, dentistry, electrical engineering, law, mechanical engineering, medicine, military engineering, mining and metallurgical engineering, radio engineering and structural engineering.

The program commenced at 9 a.m. in the auditorium where Louis G. Conlan, president of City College of San Francisco delivered the welcoming address. President Conlan's talk was followed by comments by John L. Roberts, coordinator, Child Welfare, San Francisco Public Schools; Clyde E. Bentley, chairman of the San Francisco Engineering Council, and M. P. O'Brien, Dean of Engineering at the University of California.

The first panel discussions convened for one hour at 10 a.m. in various classrooms and laboratories. A second panel convened at 11:10 a.m. to afford students an opportunity to receive information in a second professional field.

During the afternoon session talks were delivered by Dean John Brady and Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare and Guidance.

Marsh explained to the guests how best to prepare themselves for entrance into the college and stressed that City College is open to all high school graduates, that tuition here is free and that it is conveniently located for all residents of the Bay Area.

Marsh concluded his speech by commenting, "No matter where you plan to go you can do not better than to take it here with us at City College."

Career Conference Day was originally sponsored by the engineering department of the college to inform prospective engineering students of the opportunities offered here for their primary training. The original scope of the conference has since been extended to other departments.

Use of Red Paint Causes Red Faces

Photographic speedlight units are expensive.

So, in order that the college's set would be more recognizable, for obvious reasons, Bev Pasqualetti, head of the department of photography, has painted them a shocking red.

It seems like a good scheme until the first time they were used and it was discovered that the paint was not of the highest quality.

At present three photography majors are sporting the maddest red slacks on campus as a result of carrying the lighting units on their hips.

Pasqualetti is expected to come out of hiding shortly.

Flub Of The Week

Tom McGuiness, the ex-campus flat-foot who left the college for "the United States" via a blushing typographical error in last week's issue of The Guardsman, has made the journey safely and with dispatch, it was reported by unreliable, well—misinformed sources today.

Student reaction to The Guardsman's announcement that the college no longer resides in the USA has been rather slow, possibly because the sheer horror of it all has had difficulty sinking in.

Guardsman Editor Sam Blythe, after having sand-bagged the telephone in anticipation of a flood of irate readers demanding in the tone of an enraged Judy Holiday — "Wh-A-A-A-A!", has come out of hibernation and may now be seen walking once more on the sunny side of the street.

"It certainly is a credit to the students that they've taken this with such heroic silence," said Blythe, gratefully mopping his brow with yesterday's jelly sandwich.

"There has been nothing from the Mayor's office — nothing official on this at all."

And sorry, but there still isn't.

Variety Show To Be Presented Here December 4 and 5

Student response to the call for talent to be used in the Variety Show to be presented in the college auditorium Thursday and Friday nights, December 4 and 5, has far surpassed all expectations, Michael Griffin, show director, said last week.

"It seems as though everyone wants to get in the act," Griffin declared. "Choosing material has been most difficult because there has been such a wealth of fine talent representing all the entertainment fields. Consequently the show will present the very best the college has to offer," he added.

One of the additions to the show is a dance production number, Slaughter on Tenth Avenue. This is a professional act that was performed by Vera Zorina and Ray Bolger a few years ago.

Other additions are the skits: Desert Heat, a burlesque of the light opera, The Desert Song; and The Drunkard, old time melodrama.

Also included in the program are the blackouts: Number Please, Paul Revere, Last Will, and Sick Maid; a record act, "Noodles and Cider, an Hawaiian comedy dance, and a Can-Can dance number.

Original songs are by Anthony Watts; sets designed by Bill Ito and Bill Roldan, celebrated scenic artists; lighting by Pete Wiesick and Norman Hiese.

Hurley Village Housing Available

A few one-bedroom apartments are now available to City College families, Mrs. Arthur James, assistant manager of Hurley Village, reported yesterday.

A family may apply at 250 Marston Avenue, Hurley Village. The James telephone number is JU 5-2383.

Mrs. James reported that results from a survey show that married City College students in Hurley Village receive better grades than unmarried students at the college.

Lyle Essea, resident of the village and former City College student, purchased a rabbit for the purpose of studying the village children's reactions. All the children's reactions seem to those of fascination, Mrs. James reported.

Mrs. James added that at least half of the village people work in various branches of the United States Post Office.

AWS To Honor High School Senior Women

Tea And Fashion Show Planned For Student Lounge

By Patricia Ray

High school senior women will be honored by the Associated Women Students at a combination tea and fashion show from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the student lounge on the west campus, according to AWS President Odette Trouillet.

Campus Casuals is the theme around which the show will revolve, Miss Trouillet said. Highlight of the program, she added, will be the modelling by approximately 15 women students of campus fashions to be furnished by Alex de May of Lakeside Village.

A double trio, under the direction of Flossita Badger, music director here, is scheduled to sing four numbers.

Miss Trouillet said that women students will help with the serving, preparation and clean-up. Hotel and Restaurant students are baking cookies for the tea. Coffee, tea and cake will also be served.

Helping Miss Trouillet is her committee consisting of Barbara Scott, Meg Shick, Mary Louise Carl, Mildred Pinkus, Marilee Scholl, and Josephine Amniratl.

The models for the show are Dolly Collins, Lola Lee, Betty Salerno, Joanna Smith, Annie Monego, Sue Speer, Connie Coleman, Irene Enstrom, Roberta Usher, Janet Sewall, Jean Bramwell, Alice Hammond, Audrey Peters, Jackie Jeffries, Shirley Plickich, Rita Santiago, Jane Zelinsky, Naomi Carlisle, Helda Sweeney, Dottie Pfeiffer, Jean Mertens, Carol McKenzie and Janet Terry.

Miss Trouillet exclaimed enthusiastically, "We are planning one of the best teas ever held at City College and all the women students are invited to drop in for coffee, fun and entertainment!"

Phi Beta Delta's Shipwreck Dance Tomorrow Night Highlights Social Season In West Campus Auditorium

Phi Beta Delta fraternity presents its annual Shipwreck dance tomorrow night in the west campus auditorium.

As in the past, this affair will be decorated with ships, flags, and palm leaves in accordance with the traditional theme, according to information supplied by Mel Watson, president of the fraternity.

◆ This dance will be open to members and non-members alike of the Associated Students at $1.50 per couple, Watson said, and dancing is scheduled from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight. Music will be furnished by Bob Emerson and his orchestra.

Informal attire of Ship and Shore costumes for both men and women to suit the theme of the evening will be appropriate, he added.

"Last year the dance proved to be the most elaborate of the entire season," Watson declared, "when the members of the fraternity borrowed discarded piling from San Francisco's waterfront, a wrecked pilot house from Fisherman's Wharf and worn-out fish nets which were later put together to comprise the decorations. The whole effect was very realistic," he hastened to explain.

The sale of dance tickets started last Wednesday, and Watson urged all students to obtain them from any member of Phi Beta Delta, preferably before tomorrow night.

Sponsor for the group is Elmer E. Patterson, economics instructor here. Publicity is under the chairmanship of Al Lithgow and Abe Battat, but each member of the fraternity is equally responsible in publicity work for the dance, Lithgow stated. He also said that as always this dance promises to be one of those never-to-be-forgotten affairs of this semester.

"Last minute details have all been shaped up. President Watson declared and concluded by saying, "The decorations have been put up beautifully, and I am sure that it will be the best Shipwreck dance that has been held and consequently the best dance that has ever been given at our college."

Lundgren, Orton Win Annual Denman Awards

Beatrice Lundgren and Betty Orton were named the two Denman scholarship winners for 1952 at a luncheon in the faculty dining room on Monday, November 17. The awards amount to $125 each.

Present at the luncheon were the scholarship committee members including President-Emeritus Archibald J. Cloud, chairman of the group; F. Frank Marsh, coordinator of student welfare; President Louis G. Conlan, Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator of instruction, and Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

"We had about 10 applicants this year," Dr. Marsh commented, "and all of them were almost equally outstanding. The choice was a difficult one to make, but the committee finally chose Miss Lundgren and Miss Orton."

The two awards are presented annually to the two best qualified women students by Judge James Denman of the Superior Court, and his sister, Mrs. Mary Denman Cheatham, in memory of their father.

Applicants for these awards are expected to have completed at least one semester at the college with at least a B average. The requirements state that they be graduates of a San Francisco public high school.

The winners will be interviewed for a forthcoming edition of The Guardsman.

Phi Rho Pi Plans San Jose Debate

Under the joint sponsorship of San Jose State College and the San Jose Chamber of Commerce, a round table discussion will be held on Tuesday, November 25, at 7 p.m. at San Jose's Hotel St. Claire, Thomas Dutcher, debate club adviser, announced today.

Representatives of City College will be Pat Miller and George Effenberger in the upper division, and Jim Lopes and Andy Schneider in the lower division.

The round table discussion is a regular scheduled event of the Northern California Forensic Association and is the last of two discussions preparatory to Student Congress which will be held December 5 and 6 at St. Mary's College.

Lucca's Chosen As AGS Dinner Site

Alpha Gamma Sigma's annual installation and awards dinner will start at 7:30 p.m. at Lucca's Restaurant, tomorrow night, faculty sponsor Don Jensen announced yesterday.

He stated that a few reservations for the affair are still available to members of this two-year college scholastic honor society who have not as yet made arrangements to attend. Cost of the dinner is nominal, Jensen added.

"Anyone who needs transportation to the dinner or who can offer a ride to another member should call on me in Building 3 today," he urged.

A Cappella Choir Featured At AWS Tea Tomorrow

A group of six women from the A Cappella Choir will take part in the Associated Women Student tea and fashion show to be given for high school senior women in the student lounge tomorrow, according to Flossita Badger, choir director.

Soloists will be Phyllis Trigones, Theresa Pearlman, and Jane Fukuda. A double trio including Dorothy Larew, Karen James, Miss Fukuda, Carol Dailey, and Odette Trouillet will perform several ensemble numbers.

The choir will give a half hour Christmas program at The Emporium on Monday evening, December 1. This will be followed by a dinner for the choir featured in the program will be the dramatic cantata, The Night Before Christmas, Miss Badger said.

A program for the Ladies' Guild of St. Francis Church, Ocean and San Fernando Way on Tuesday, December 2, the annual Christmas Concert to be given here on Wednesday, December 10, and a guest performance with Ludwig Altmann at the Palace of the Legion of Honor on Sunday, January 18, are the remaining activities for the choir during this semester.

Holidays, Midterms Erase College Hours

Teacher's Institute, Thanksgiving, and midterms are following each other in close order this semester, close enough to eliminate college hours until Friday, December 12, according to Robin Dunn, dean of student activities.

The holidays also interrupt publication of The Guardsman until Wednesday, December 10, according to the semester schedule adopted by the Publications Board, October 3.

Student Government—A Needed Overhaul Is Underway

WITH the presentation of the 17 point program designed to "erase the black eye" which Student Government has received in previous semesters, the real attempt to over-haul student government in general has been inaugurated.

These proposals directly effect each and every member of the student body whether they know about it or, care about it or not.

Let's discuss some of these proposals to see what the effect might be. A complete list of the 17 proposals will be found in the November issue of The Guardsman.

First and perhaps most blunt of the proposed measures is the one which would curtail all student activities for one semester. This, we suppose, is directed at the student who will presumably wish for the "good old days" of the football games, plays and blood drives that almost no one supported: "School spirit" as such is at so pitiful a level that any curtailment of a thing barely breathing might be its death knell.

Second on this list is the proposition designed to junk the constitution law which permits only student card holders to vote. Opponents of this measure will say that this will greatly cut down the number of student cards sold here. A working and successful student government however, which has the trust and support of all the student body, is more important than the money received from these sales. This suggestion is an excellent one and proves definitely that the council is sincere.

One proposal submitted by the committee which particularly interests us is that which asks for the curtailment of "Party Politics." Right below that measure we read that "Inter-Fraternity Politics should be disbanded IF THERE IS NO OPPOSITION. Further down the list, among the "lesser" propositions, it is urged that a "strong campaign" be offered in forthcoming elections. WHERE IS THE LINE DRAWN BETWEEN "PARTY POLITICS" AND A "STRONG CAMPAIGN?"

Definitely important in the list of propositions are those designed to promote faculty interest in Student Government and student participation in student affairs. Whole-hearted faculty support of the college is essential to its well being. One proposition, of this nature, intended to increase club sponsorship interest, seems a little vague. The idea is fine; how do we go about it?

Then too, the timeless proposition of "Selling student government to the students" is offered. This cry has been offered by colleges across the land for many years and will most probably be offered many years hence. Under this proposal comes the suggestions that instructors stress the importance of Student Government to their students, that a representative from each 12 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday class attend council meetings, (they'd better make arrangements to move to a larger room) and that all students be invited to sit in on the council meetings. These ideas are all excellent, but it is doubtful if the latter two could be put into effect.

NO ONE could criticize the sincerity of the committee in the planning of these 17 propositions. Will the measures, however, serve as beef steak to cure their "black eye" or only as hamburger to disguise it? We hanestly don't know.

Only one comment can we offer here. The "selling" of Student Government should start at registration time. Not halfway through the semester. And it must be "sold" to all the students of all types and interests. Only if all interests of the student body are represented in the government can it succeed, for history proves that minority "rule" can't work.

Gadgets Test Driving Dexterity

By Garry Worinser

City College firemen wear red suspenders. They work so hard that a belt won't fit around their receding waistlines.

Recently, the fire college, located in Building 4, tested a number of drivers, mostly women, who drive automobiles for parochial schools. And if you don't think that testing women for driving dexterity isn't nerve-racking, you're a pedestrian.

According to Michael Lo Presti, fire college director, the testing program started out with lectures by various fire department heads, and then was followed by a movie depicting the horror and tragedy of automobile accidents.

The actual examinations included "Complex reactometer" tests, vision accuity tests, and depth preception tests. After three are completed, the driver's capabilities and handicaps are laid out on paper for examination, and the results are usually quite conclusive. As Lo Presti put it:

"You'd be surprised at the number of prospective drivers who can't see out of the corners of their eyes. After our tests, some people have even discovered that they were blind in one eye."

These same tests were given to fire college students and during the coming weeks, they will also be given to many city firemen. Considering the number of students that narrowly miss running over campus policemen, Lo Presti believes that it wouldn't hurt if all of the students at the college took these examinations.

Lo Presti also disclosed that although the buildings on west campus may look like fire hazards, they comply completely with fire safety regulations.

Shots At RAMdon: A Poll Of A Menace

By Edwina Killoren

FOLLOWING the procedure of the late, unlamented Dr. Pheffi of Dunsmoor U. as an opinion surveyor, we sought to poll for unpolitical objectives the college student's attitude toward the new menace to education — chlorophyll.

Equipped with pad, pencil, and chlorophyll nosegay, we proceeded to plough through the ripe fields of student thought.

Puzzling to scientists as well as students is the green stuff's colorful rise to public attention. What was once a few years back a green substance found in plants, eaten by goats along with tin cans, is now a multimillion dollar business for advertisers who have parlayed its potentials into more than 100 lucrative items.

BREATH OF TROUBLE

Chlorophyll made its debut on college campuses under the innocent form of toothpaste. No longer did the well-groomed student display pearly white choppers. Instead he foamed with pride scent emerald elegance.

After this initial shock, students were prepared for almost any new addition to the education scene.

Following close on the heels of the debutante, chlorophyll innersoles were presented to the students. Student A, when asked if they had any appreciable affect on his well-being replied "that since using chlorophyll innersoles, the trip over 'broken arch' hill to the gym has been greatly eased."

Piped into the chemistry lab, chlorophyll "air sweet" spray has been found to reduce the student mortality rate of ordeal by H.S.

GRADE AA

A delicious and nourishing grade of fresh, fragrant horsemeat has been innoculated with the green substance in order to keep man's best friend kissing sweet.

On quizzing Boots, the mascot canine on campus, he said, "When I eats me 'Friskies', with chlorophyll added, it makes me breath kissing sweet."

NEW VIEW

With practically all sources exhausted, we entered the library to find some intellectual comment on the green menace. Seated in a dark corner clutching a copy of "Blue Book is my Borscht," we found our last opinionated commentator who offered these words of wisdom "is no good this chlorophyll, is wrong color."

Classroom Lights

From Edison To Fluorescent Tubes The College Moves Ahead

Ever noticed the mixture of blue and yellowish fluorescent tubes in classroom lighting fixtures here?

The supply of blue tubes did not run out, they are not replacing the yellow tubes, nor is the electrician color blind. There is a definite and practical purpose for the mixture, much to the benefit of those who must toil daily under its glow.

Audio-Visual Exclusive

Motion Picture Operation Shown

Although not the Warfield Theatre, the City College Audio-Visual department has proved itself to have a splendid array of equipment and entertainment.

Stop and think how many persons attend movies or watch educational documents which are shown in classes. But how many of these persons understand the intricate mechanics which make an inanimate white screen come to life.

Motion pictures are a series of still pictures of closely related action, printed on a strip of transparent film and shown in succession at the rate of 24 pictures per second (at sound speed).

There is nothing mysterious about motion pictures; in fact, they are based upon the simplest type of projection image. The shadow is caused by a light falling on an object. In motion pictures, the object is the film, and the shadow becomes a picture by virtue of the graduations of dark and light in the emulsion of the film.

A reflector and lenses concentrate and focus the light to make the shadow, or picture, clear and bright. The shuttle mechanism permits the intermittent movement of the film as it passes before the beam of light, which is interrupted by the shutter during the period of actual movement.

The appearance of motion in the visible image called "motion pictures" actually is an optical illusion made possible by the human sense called persistence of vision, which is the ability viewers have to see an object for a fraction of a second after it has disappeared from view.

All light is measured in degrees of temperatures as well as intensity. It is either cold (bluish), or warm (reddish) and, strangely enough, the cooler (bluer) the light in appearance, the higher is its temperature in degrees Kelvin (Centigrade plus 273 degrees Centigrade).

The common 100 watt light bulb burns warmly (yellowish) at about 2900 degrees Kelvin; a white fluorescent at 3500 degrees Kelvin, and a daylight fluorescent at about 6500 degrees Kelvin. The latter is very blue in color and is close to the effect of an overcast sky.

The midway point between the so-called white fluorescent and the daylight type is 5000 degrees Kelvin, and herein lies the crux of the whole scheme.

The mean noon sun, scientifically measured at Washington, D. C., burns at just slightly more than 5000 degrees Kelvin. It was discovered that at this temperature light is easier on the eyes and psychologically better for workers.

Thus the mixture of yellow and blue fluorescent tubes was developed to approximate the light given off by the noon day sun.

A far cry from the old kerosene lamp (which, in case anyone is interested, burned at but 2400 degrees Kelvin), this lighting arrangement is another small step in science's attempt to make life more pleasant, labor more productive, and study more rewarding.

Fate Of First School Replica Classified As Stinkin' Shame

By Ken Molino

Standing on the west campus is a replica of San Francisco's first public schoolhouse which was a feature attraction in Portsmouth Square during the California Centennial Celebration. The small hut is now serving the very practical purpose of fertilizer storage here.

It would be assumed, the source for this information would be the San Francisco Board of Education, since this was a San Francisco Public School Building . . . Phone call number one was placed to the Board of Education office.

This reporter was referred to the Park Recreational Department.

This Department, it seems, knew what Portsmouth Square was and where it was located, but suggested the California Historical Society for information on the school building.

The first glint of success shone from the latter source. Although the Centennial Commission was no longer there, they had heard of the replica but couldn't give any details. Perhaps if the President of the Society were called—he was.

The telephone number suggested turned out to be the OAKLAND Tribune.

Yes, the OAKLAND man had all the information on this bit of SAN FRANCISCO'S past, but this was the day before a national election and he couldn't be bothered to come to the telephone on such a trivial matter.

Then came a little glimmer of dawn. Somewhere, sometime, this bedraggled staff member had heard that. If there was anything to be known about the college, one man in particular on campus would know it.

Without further ado, a call was placed for Finlas Schlesenger, foreman of the campus maintenance crew. Within a few minutes the story was told.

The building, erected during the Gold Rush days as San Francisco's first public school, represents quite a contrast between itself and its descendent, the college's main building. Small and insignificant it now is, as it sheltered the gardener's supply of fertilizer and tools. The day was when it was a prominent California landmark.

The first teacher to occupy the building was one Mr. Douglas—his devotion to the field of pedagogy was questionable. After a short sojurn in that position he failed to show up one wintry morning and was later

• Blood Day — Forgotten?

Editor, The Guardsman:

You are so right, blood day was an unfortunate fiasco. Those who diligently planned and executed it, did a job par excellence. The students who feel themselves so far removed from the tragic war situations that exist all over this globe and primarily in Korea are the ones who deserve a verbal spanking such as the one you administered so efficiently last week.

Having witnessed the feeble response to the urgent plea for blood here on the campus, am disgusted with those who didn't feel the obligation to help, and great pride in those, like the reporter who lost consciousness and suffered injured dignity in an effort to do their part.

Unfortunately, you were so right when you said blood day is best forgotten. I wonder, however, if you realized that the ones who will forget soonest, if they have not already done so, are the ones whose conscience should have been pricked by what you said.

The ones who have read your editorial and taken it to heart are the ones who did their share, and they can only nod their heads in agreement.

Those who should have read it are not the type who would even bother. They are not interested in anything.

BAY AREA grid prestige has taken a sudden drop in the past month, after a four year reign over Pacific Coast football.

The University of California, once the proud king of western football and yearly visitor to Pasadena on New Year's day, has been humbled by the three Coast Conference buddies, USC's Trojans, UCLA's Bruins, and the Washington Huskies.

Stanford University, last season's PCC's Rose Bowl representative, was defeated by the same threesome that manhandled the Bears.

Even the pro-49ers' championship outlook took a turn for the worse as they were beaten twice in succession by the two big cities, Chicago and New York.

The two best collegiate teams in the United States are to be found in Los Angeles. The order of the two will not be decided until this Saturday when the Bruins and Trojans clash.

The opinion stated is shared by many, but not by eastern football writers who insist that Michigan State and Maryland are the top two.

It's no secret that the two Los Angeles representatives have the best defensive units in America, led by defensive stalwarts Donn Moomaw and Terry Debay of the Bruins, and USC's George Timberlake and Marv Goux. All four mentioned are linebackers which is the core of each defense.

The Bears and Indians have no great linebackers since Cal lost the grent Les Richter.

Exactly a month ago the Bears were rated the nation's number one team with Stanford listed tenth. The Trojans, Bruins, and Huskies dropped these two from their high perch and improved their own Hooper.

The Game of the Week, and possibly the Game of the Year which takes place this Saturday between USC and UCLA will be the decider for the Rose Bowl representative on New Year's day.

It will undoubtedly be a defensive battle all the way, and going out on a limb we pick Paul Cameron to lead UCLA to a 14 to 10 victory.

After the Bruin tilt, the Trojans take on another powerhouse, Notre Dame who defeated Oklahoma.

Rams Upset Cal In Soccer Tilt; Face S. F. State

By Don Earl

Turning in a startling upset, the City College soccer team defeated a highly favored University of California club 3-2 November 8 at Edwards Field in Berkeley.

Larry Agius scored two goals for the Rams and was aided by teammate Carlos Monge who pulled the local team even with a 30 foot boot.

Dennis Ivason scored both goals for the Bears.

Commended by Coach Roy Diederichsen for turning in a great effort, the hooters now look forward to erasing a 1-1 tie with cross-town rival San Francisco State. The State game is scheduled for Saturday, November 23 at State Field.

The Rams are now tied for the lead in the second round league standing and with an even break in the remaining games could win the second round.

The University of San Francisco was the first round winner, and will play the winner of the second round for the league championship. The winner will then head East to compete in the Inter-Collegiate Soccer championships.

Intramural Football Postponed Until November 24; Entries Still Being Taken For Fight Night

By Don MacDougall

Under the direction of Coach Ralph Hillsman, the present intramural six-man touch football league is now in a state of temporary postponement during the reconditioning of Balboa Park, but is definitely scheduled to resume their six game round robin series, November 24.

Now in the process of surveying and leveling off the playing turf, not too much has been accomplished in the way of playing games, but previous to the condition of the field, two practice games were held between the six squads.

Residing in the win column for the first encounter of the season, were the Pick-ups decisioning the All-Stars, the '69'ers' besting the Newman Club, and Gamma Phi Ypsilon outpointing Burgle AC.

Commenting upon the current observations of the games already played, Coach Hillsman stated that "the present intramural football program is definitely expected to expand in the future. By the beginning of next spring we hope to have our league in operation in order to observe potential football talent prior to the regular playing season, and that means a program not conflicting with the scheduled season of varsity play."

Listed below are the rosters of the participating squads in the current intramural league:

"69'ers": Toni Morrow, Larry Fjelstrom, Bill Ellison, Fred Rudjers, Art Galegous, Jack McClaren, and Joe Hare, manager.

Burgle AC: Stan Blanshie, Jim Eggert, Bob Hoffine, Jerry Scharock, Rich Fine, Dan Syufy, and Ed Arana, manager.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon: George Korby, Don Anderson, Lee Primerstel, Pete Wisick, Ezeo Maiola, Frank Fevranova, Chuck Amasen, Joe Jackelvich, Snook Persotti, Ken Dunwood, and Bob Mancuso, manager.

Pick-Ups: W. Perasso, Bob Hendricks, David Elkin, Stan Shalit, and F. Jones.

All-Stars: Bill McLaughlin, John Jackson, William L. Smith, Stewart Brown, Gary Kirstein, Bob Wong, and Tony Arroyo, manager.

Shifting interest to the intramural boxing competition, Coach Roy Diederichsen's sluggers have been occupying all their free time in the fine art of pugilism practice.

The coming feature event of this season's boxing competition will take place Tuesday, November 25, at 8 p.m. in the men's gymnasium with the presentation of several three round bouts listed as a novice tournament.

Up to the present time, the entries have been at a standstill. As of November 12 the following list of entrants for the intramural squads are listed below:

120 lbs.—No entries to date.

125 lbs. — Glen Lanum, Eugene Lumpkin.

130 lbs — William Zelayeta, Bob Cappa.

135 lbs.—Bob Moretto, Terry Chin.

140 lbs.—Fred Guinn, Bill Nimnis.

145 lbs. — Lee Dickonson, Robert Watson, Charles McMenomey.

Klemmer Once Record Setter

Undoubtedly, one of the truly great athletes produced at the University of California is City College's head football coach, Grover Klemmer.

A superb, all-around athlete, Klemmer lettered in football, basketball and track at the Berkeley campus. However, he is best known for his fabulous track exploits.

In his first year at Cal, following his graduation from Galileo High School, Klemmer set a world's record for college freshmen with an unbelievable 47. flat time. He is also co-holder of the American College Record for the quarter-mile by American citizens with a 46.4 clocking and at one time held the world's record for the 100 meter dash at 46 seconds flat. Klemmer was anchor man of the University of California mile relay team which set and still holds the world record.

Klemmer was also an outstanding griddder at Cal, playing tailback under Coach "Stub" Allison. In 1942, he played football under famed coach, Paul Brown, while at Great Lakes Naval Training Station. During 1942, the Great Lakes team upset the great Notre Dame team 33 to 7.

Klemmer embarked on his coaching career here at City College. In 1946, his first year, he was assistant football mentor to Leland Eisan. The Rams claimed the Northern California Conference championship that year.

He became head grid man in 1947, and in the following season produced the greatest football team in City College history. Led by National Junior College All-Americans, Ollie Matson and Burl Toler, the 1948 Rams ran over 12 consecutive opponents and were ranked national co-champions.

Besides his football duties, Klemmer is also head coach of City College's track team. Usually hampered by the lack of depth, the Rams have never been able to win the conference crown in track, although they did place third in the State meet in 1951.

Commenting on this season's Ram footballers, Klemmer stated, "If we had all the material now, that we had to begin the season, we would certainly be up at the top battling for the championship."

Klemmer also added, "Even under the conditions we have been up against, I have never seen such an outfit with so much perseverance and the will to stick together."

Rain And Mud Sink Rams As Stockton Ices Big 7 Conference Title By Shutting Out Klemmermen 20 To 0

By Don MacDougall

Failing to score twice from within their opponents ten yard line, the City College Rams went down in defeat as the Stockton College Mustangs bucked to a 20-0 win last Friday night on their own Baxter Stadium turf.

Performing before some 300 freezing, cheering rooters, the Mustangs applied last half pressure on a determined Ram eleven to clinch the Big Seven Conference crown.

Winning the toss of the coin, the Rams returned the opening kickoff to their own 19 yard line. On a first down play from scrimmage, Bernie Kelly, on an off-tackle thrust, rambled 43 yards to the Mustang 31. On the next play, quarterback San Hiona pulled a quick pass to Coleman Moss good for 35 yards, but the play was nullified due to a Ram offside penalty.

On the next play, a City College fumble gave the Mustangs possession of the ball on their own 37. On Stockton's first play of the game, quarterback Mel Nayden tossed to end Clarence Wessman on an offensive pass good for 46 yards that brought the crowd to its feet.

This put the Mustangs on the Ram 11 yard line, where a determined City College line, spearheaded by John Roy, George Ramsom, Pete Hontales, Ed Hjerlie and Van Parish, charged the Mustang offense causing them to fumble on the Ram 13.

Uncorking what was to be the most sensational play of the game, quarterback Hiona baffled the defense to toss a 25 yard completion to Parish who ran it for another 36 yards before he was stopped. This put the ball on the Mustang 10 yard line where after four consecutive plays, the Rams failed to score.

Using a 7-2-2 defense for the most part of the game, the Ocean and Phelan eleven constantly stopped the dangerous Mustangs to a 0-0 first quarter.

Early in the second stanza, Ram halfback Bernie Kelly gave the fans a rarely witnessed surprise by quick-kicking 44 yards on third down to put the ball deep into Mustang territory.

Later, upon an exchange of punts, Ram halfback Bill Jones, swivelhipped from his own 34 yard line to the Mustang 47. Again on the very same play, Jones danced to the Stockton 33. At this point in the game, the Rams were threatening to score for the second time. Halfback Kelly, then pushed the pigskin to the Mustang 11 yard line. Four plays later, the Mustangs took possession on downs on their own four yard line, as the Rams failed to score ending the half, 0-0.

Following the third quarter kickoff, the style of play grew rougher and many penalties were assessed against the various squads as the official literally had a "field night."

Hitting off left guard from the Ram 15 yard line, Mutang fullback Lee Frank plunged over for the first score of the game. The conversion fell short making the score, Mustangs 6, CCSF 0.

After an exchange of punts, the third quarter was all Stockton. On a third down play, half Lloyd Serpa went off left tackle for 20 yards and a touchdown. The conversion was good making it 13-0, in favor of Stockton.

Late in the final quarter, Mustang quarterback Gillespie tossed 16 yards to Wessman for the final tally of the game. The conversion was good and the score read, 20-0, Mustangs.

Trying, in a final attempt to score, the Rams pushed the ball to the Mustang 11 yard line,

Rams Close Out Mediocre Year Against Modesto

By Joe Callas

City College of San Francisco closes out a mediocre football season this Friday night at Modesto against the Modesto Pirates.

It would be untruthful to say dismal season, because it has to be remembered that many key members of the Ram's grid team were lost during the course of the season, either through injury or draft, or other uncontrollable reasons.

The Rams this year were, and still are, a team of great potential that has yet to be realized, but could be in the grid climaxer Friday night.

Modesto will go all out for this game as second place will be at stake for the Panthers. Stockton College has already clinched the championship of the Big Seven Conference, but second place is still undecided.

The Pirates have a bevy of fine backs led by Bill Beasley, the local's candidate for all-conference honors. Arlo Wenstrandt is another Pirate who could give the Rams a tough time.

The Rams boast one of the best defensive lines in the conference, and it would take a great running attack to consistently move them.

Credit for fine line play should be given line coach Roy Burkhead who was the head man of last year's championship eleven.

West-Contra Costa has been the only team to actually out-play City College this year, and that was due to their great running attack led by Sam "First Down" Brown. Defensive standout in the Ram forward wall is George Ransom, a tackle who has shown in the last three or four outings. Other standouts are linebackers Paul Papathakis and Pete Hontales.

An aerial duel could be on tap between the Rams' Sammy Hiona, who has a good pitching target in Van Parish, wing-footed end from Commerce High School, and the Pirates' FOUR — that's right four quarterbacks.

Stan Pavko, Modesto's coach is blessed with a quartet of equally adeptable QB's in Frank Niebaum, Ray Dellavecchia, George Pinchley, and Bob Hodges. Niebaum is currently the number one man, but Coach Pavko could start any one of the other three without having an emotional letdown.

San Francisco's running star Bill Jones has seen limited offensive action in the past few games because of a bad back. Little Sandy Malnick has taken over Jones' right halfback spot and has performed creditably.

As stated before, the Rams did not measure up to last year's powerhouse. The potential was there, but so was the army.

Flower Shop Plans Brazilian Motif

Lawrence Accepts Fiesta Invitation

By Don Earl

Six departments have combined their talents in an effort to make the college's floral exhibition a success at the forthcoming Flower Fiesta sponsored by the San Francisco Chronicle, John Lawrence, flower shop instructor, announced today.

The flower shop and the horticulture society, headed by Raymond Peterson, will display exhibits of flower and plant arrangements displayed against a background of bamboo. The central area of the display will be occupied by a monolith of Modern Brazilian style in architecture.

There will be two table displays, one depicting a wedding table and the second will be an Autumn Theme set by the Hotel and Restaurant Division, Lawrence said.

The entire exhibit including props and background, art and photography will be designed and constructed by students attending the semi-professional courses here.

These courses include the flower shop, Lawrence, instructor; horticulture society, Peterson, sponsor and instructor; ceramics and jewelry, Roy Walker, instructor; Hotel and Restaurant, Hilda Watson, head of this division; photography department, Bev Pasqualetti, instructor; graphic arts, George Mullany, instructor; and the art department, William Eckert, instructor.

The First Annual San Francisco International Flower Fiesta is designed to run from Saturday, November 22 to Saturday, November 29 inclusive. All days are open to the public except the first, which is a preview night.

Sponsored by the San Francisco Chronicle, the event is being advertised highly on television, radio, and by press and magazine, and will include many special features and exhibits by commercial local florists, Lawrence declared.

In providing the people of the bay area with this annual exhibit, the sponsors donate their contribution of beauty, education, culture, and good will to the international scene, Lawrence added, "something which is sorely lacking of late."

The management of the show has a background of over 30 years experience in successful production and management of national and international fexpositions, and the advisory counel includes such distinguished San Franciscans as Mayor Elmer Robinson, Julius S. Girod, Superintendent of Parks; Mrs. Walter G. Brendel, Garden Center Chairman of the California Garden Clubs, Inc.; Louise A. Boyd, Fellow, British Horticultural Society; and W. P. Fuller, III, president of San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Students And Faculty Leaders Leave Tomorrow For LA State Conference

A total of five student leaders and two faculty advisers embark on tomorrow's 11 a.m. Los Angeles bound airliner to attend the State Junior College Conference there.

Stan Fletcher, Associated Student president, Sally Galvin, Associated Student vice-president, Paul Bixel, Associated Men Student president, Lou Shepard, IFC chairman, and Norm Heise, Finance Committee chairman, will be the five student leader representatives, while Louis Batmale, college controller, and Robin Dunn, dean of student activities will be the faculty advisers, who will accompany the representatives.

The conference is held once every semester and is used as a link between the state two year colleges in an effort to bring them as close together as possible so that they may discuss each of their individual problems in the hopes of one of the others having a solution.

Meanwhile at the regular Student Council meeting last Thursday, Fletcher announced that Gene Beaudet, Freshman Class president, had resigned from his office as he had been forced to take a leave of absence from the college.

Fletcher and the entire council gave a tremendous applause for Beaudet in appreciation of the tremendous work he had done for the Freshman Dance.

The council also unanimously approved Fletcher's appointment of Don Douglas, Globe and Anchor Society president, as Election Commissioner.

Douglas had been recognized for his tireless work in the recent Blood Drive.

Police Department Plans Road-Block

John Robert Lewis, campus police chief, reported that a road block will be set up soon on the west campus to ascertain and cite students who are driving without operator's licenses, no license plates, mufflers that are illegal, or no registration card on display.

This block will run all day, Lewis said, as he requested the co-operation of all students.

Lewis also reported that since the campus police force was formed in 1948 there has never been a personal injury accident.

Since the beginning of the semester there have been 254 citations; 287 warnings, and 254 tags issued to students here, he added.

seen prospecting for gold in the vicinity of Sutter's Mill.

Left in the lurch, his class undoubtedly looked to its own devices (as students will) and it is a matter of speculation that some of them followed their tutor to the Sacramento gold fields.

The structure was rebuilt for display in Portsmouth Square, and at the end of California's Centennial Celebration it was moved here temporarily.

It is expected, according to Schlesenger, that a permanent home will soon be assigned the structure.

The moral here, of course, is this. If you want to know anything about San Francisco in general, and the college in particular, or if you are interested in hybrid orchids, see Slesg!

Amori To Preside At CCVA Meet

Joseph A. Amori, president of the Council of California Vocational Associations, and placement director here, will preside at the semi-annual conference Friday and Saturday at the California State Building, Los Angeles. The council is comprised of five state vocational groups with an approximate membership of 5000.

The opening session will be held in conjunction with the Commission for Vocational Education of the State Department of Education, represented by Wesley Smith, director, and the five Bureau chiefs, including Julian McPhee, president of California Polytechnic College, San Luis Obispo.

The C.C.V.A. will consider pertinent problems affecting the various aspects of vocational education and trafning in California, local, state, and federal departments. Specific areas will encompass the fields of work experience, curriculum, federal appropriations for vocational education, vocational guidance, general and vocational education, and other vital issues, Amori said.

New System Used In P.O. Hiring

John Fixa, postmaster, San Francisco Post Office, has initiated this year a new policy for hiring Christmas post office workers.

The new system eliminates the sponsorship card of previous years and allows any person of 18 years of age, American citizenship, and San Francisco residence, to compete for the 6000 holiday positions.

Veterans will be given preference in the hiring, according to directives from Washington, D. C., Joseph A. Amori, placement director here, said.

The positions are clerical, for truck driving, loading, sorting, delivery, and special delivery. The jobs pay a base rate of $1.51 per hour through $1.71 per hour, depending upon the shift. Graveyard shifts pay the highest differential. Males are preferred by the post office because of the late hours and also because of the type of work involved, Amori said.

Approximately 1500 students and faculty members have been employed by the post office in the past years, Amori declared.

Students interested in this type of work should apply directly to the post office, Seventh and Mission Street, Room 127 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Amori said. Filing of an application does not guarantee a position, for 10,000 applications are expected of which only 6,000 will be selected. Actual hiring is scheduled to commence Monday, December 1.

College K-Vets Urged To Submit November Attendance Reports

By Dick Wiltshire

Korean Veterans attending City College must submit "Attendance Reports" to the college's veterans' counselling office not later than the end of next week in order to receive their November subsistence checks on time, Walter McCloud, veterans counsellor, warned today.

Furthermore, McCloud said, those veterans under the new GI Bill, who have just received their letters of eligibility from the Veterans Administration, should bring them to the counselling office immediately upon receipt if prompt action on their monthly checks is to be effected.

"Apparently," McCloud commented, "many of the Korean veterans now studying or intending to study here are unaware of the required procedures under the new law."

After the initial application has been made with the VA, which incidentally requires a photostatic copy of the veteran's discharge or separation from duty document, the VA will forward to him after several weeks notification of the fact that his application is under consideration. This is merely an acknowledgement.

Then, after another week or so, the veteran will receive the aforementioned 'Letter-of-Eligibility,' which he must bring to this office as soon as possible.

"We then prepare notification to the VA of the veteran's enrollment," McCloud said. "Subsequently, we forward at the end of each month a report of the veteran's training status, made in conjunction with the veteran concerned.

"After our initial report has been forwarded to the VA," he added, "the veteran will then receive official notice from them of his enrollment in the college. This he merely keeps for his own record.

"Upon receipt of the previously mentioned Letter-of-Eligibility," McCloud pointed out, "it is not mandatory that the veteran enroll in the college at once, if he does not choose to do so."

Conlan Expresses Continued Need For Cleanup

Supporting editorial sentiment expressed in this paper three weeks ago, President Louis G. Conlan expressed a need for continued efforts toward a cleaner campus and a more vigorous clean up campaign in a statement made last week.

President Conlan highly commended efforts to a point, but he emphasized the fact that there is still a need for much improvement before any one can express extensive pride in the college campus and the steps taken to improve it.

"There is no one group responsible for the success achieved thus far in this campaign, nor is there any individual or group of individuals to urge to greater efforts. This is either a co-operative project or it is a failure," President Conlan commented.

Three decisive steps toward putting the problem before the student body have been taken to date. Clean up poster, public address system campaign, and the aid of the Club Activities Board have added to the fighting power and kenetic energy solicited by the clean up committee.

The clean up campaign, which started in the middle of October, was instigated by reports to students from college authorities. They had noticed an excess of debris about the college and the need for many volunteer groups to direct the execution of an active clean up campaign had become apparent.

A recent trend toward lethargic interest and participation in the clean up campaign was noted some time ago and commented upon in The Guardsman. It has been noted by many that interest in clean up has been spasmodic at best, President Conlan indicated in his comments.

AS Cards Cut Price Of Variety Ducats

Jim Bouick, chairman of the Associated Students card sales committee, announced that sales have leveled off, adding that only a few are still being sold.

All AS card holders should take advantage of their chance to purchase variety show tickets at the earliest possible date, Bouick suggested. "These tickets sell to AS members for 50c and to non-members for $1," he said.

Card holders should, if they lose their card, go to the student bank in the main building and receive a duplicate card, Bouick added. In order to vote in the AS elections, the voter must present his card at the polls.

Merchandising Club Hears Executives

Bert Cohn, newly elected president of the Merchandising Club, presided recently at the club's first social-business activity this year.

The function, a dinner held at the Veneto restaurant, was designed to familiarize students with the fine arts of retailing in addition to being a social gathering, Virginia Cohn, adviser-instructor, said.

Aiding Cohn in his new job are Jane Bonos, vice-president, and Connie Maravelias, secretary-treasurer.

Club Cavalcade: Formal Initiation Ceremonies Slated

By Betty Wong

MORE names of new pledges were submitted this week from the fraternities and sororities, and in conjunction with this, there will be many affairs with pledge instruction, presentations, and formal initiations slated on the social calendar.

The Canterbury Club presented a dance on November 7 at St. Francis Parish Hall, with the theme Autumn Shadows. All who wish are invited to attend their club meetings in Room 132 during college hour on Fridays.

Beta Tau fraternity is in the midst of planning their traditional annual dance, Mistletoe Mingle, to be given on Friday night, December 12. As in the past, the members will supply the Christmas tree to be placed at the Silver Pole in the main building until the night of the dance.

Last Sunday, the pledges of Alpha Phi Omega had a council meeting with the University of California chapter to plan for their homecoming activities. Other colleges around the bay area that attended include Stanford and San Jose State.

Dancing and refreshments followed last Tuesday's meeting of the Hillel Foundation. Plans are being formulated for a bowling party to be held at Park Merced Bowl at a date to be announced later. Refreshments for the evening will be served there. A New Year's party is also slated.

Door prizes are given away at every meeting of the group, and are available to those who arrive before a given time. At the last meeting a table lighter was the prize.

The Newman Club will hold a regular meeting tonight at St. Emydious Center, Jules and DeMontford Streets at 7:45 p.m. Dancing, refreshments and a movie will follow.

On November 10, over 45 members and their friends had an enjoyable time at a skate party at Skateland.

The new pledges of Alpha Kappa Rho were announced and include the following: Ray Brooks, John Lonacher, Bob Dolan, Justin Seammon, Henry Thurlow, Bill Bixby, Jack Stackich, Bob LaLonde, and John McDonald.

Their pledge dinner was held November 8 on Saturday night at the Belmont Casino.

For Gamma Phi Ypsilon fraternity, the pledges include Morrie Perrotti, Joe Jakigvick, Keith Franks, Al Falchi, Dick Bambary, Bert Peterson, Lee Diekenson, Herb Burford, Chuck Amundsen, Harry Roebling, Tom Connolly, Sam Morreio, Steve Korbay, Charles Burns, Walt Wright, and Doug Stevenson.

During Hell Week the pledges cleaned up Phelan Avenue, the guardhouse, and swept the fountain at different times.

Kappa Phi had a joint meeting with Kappa Rho last Wednesday. Their presentation of the new pledges was held last Sunday at the home of Patty Simmons.

Club news will now be collected on Tuesdays at 1 o'clock at Club Activities Board meetings from club representatives. Information for publication in this column may still be submitted up to 1 o'clock on Wednesdays in the Club News box in The Guardsman office, Building 4.

Pre-registration For Spring Underway

Pre-registration for the Spring, 1952, semester is continuing this week for students who have not already done so, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, said today.

Students are requested to make appointments with their counsellors at their earliest convenience. Marsh continued, as registration will be effected on the basis of the student's pre-registration number which is established by the order of the student's pre-registration interviews.

End Of Secondary School Classification Asked By L.A. Student-Government Conference

By Dick Firth

Twenty-two proposals covering everything from debatable athletic eligibility to self-improvement measures were passed during the California Junior College Student Government Conference in Hollywood November 20 through 22.

Fifty-two California two year colleges were represented by 263 student delegates, 66 faculty advisers, and other special guests during the three day affair, which is designed to give each representative two year college the opportunity to discuss and try to solve, with the help of the other representatives, the problems which may confront its campus.

Stan Fletcher, Lou Shepard, Sally Galvin, Norm Heise, and Paul Bixel represented City College at the 14th semi-annual meeting, while Louis Batmale and Robin Dunn accompanied the representatives as the faculty advisers.

The representatives reported on their five workshop activities to council last Tuesday as follows:

1. Publications: Bixel reported that an athletic news bureau will be set up for each of the three California two year college divisions (Modesto will serve as the news service in Northern California).

Bixel also noted the fact that a letter had been sent to the Tide Water Oil Company in an effort to have published a two year college football schedule, of each of the 67 California two year colleges such as is printed for all the western four-year colleges.

2. Special State: Shepard attended this workshop and reported that a measure was passed to request the state legislature to modify the California Educational Code so that two-year colleges may receive the same privileges as four-year institutions.

Included also was the proposal for acceptance of fraternities and sororities on two year college campuses.

A request will also be made to the legislature to make other special provisions for two year colleges as opposed to the secondary school classification which they now hold.

3. Finance: Heise reported that his workshop had discussed the financial problems which confront many of the colleges and noted the fact that City College has one of the lowest prices for Associated Student membership in the state yet has one of the lowest membership privileges in relation to enrollment.

4. Athletics: Attended by Fletcher, this workshop reported that many important measures had been taken with the most important one defeated, that being the proposition that athletes from out of state attending California two year colleges should be required to be residents of the state for one year before being able to participate in athletic activities.

Discussion then moved to the Little Rose Bowl and it was decided that all California two-year institutions be given equal representation in the annual classic.

Proof of the effectiveness of this measure was carried out two weeks ago with the naming of Hartnell College of Salinas as the first Northern California two year college to be invited to participate in the game.

5. Student Government: Miss Galvin was the City College representative and returned to the college with many ideas on campus improvement. Miss Galvin reported that two important resolutions had been passed including the awarding of merits to students participating in extra-curricular activities, and future conferences will have their agenda worked out before the beginning of the conferences in order to give the representatives more time to discuss the programs.

Beta Tau's Annual Christmas Dance Set For Saturday At Richelieu Hotel

The next dance of the semester, the Mistletoe Mingle, under the sponsorship of Beta Tau fraternity, will be held at the Hotel Richelieu this Saturday, December 13, in the Casino Room.

This annual holiday affair will be introduced by the placing of the Christmas tree at the Silver Pole in the Main Building and the distribution of mistletoe corsages, both donated by the fraternity, according to President Joe Scafidi.

Admission to the dance will be $1.80 per couple to members and nonmembers of the Associated Students alike.

Dancing will be from 9 to 12 p.m. Appropriate dress will be informal suits and cocktail dresses, Scafidi said.

Tickets are on sale at the student bank, Room 118 in the main building, or they may be purchased from any Beta Tau member wearing a mistletoe on their lapels. Tickets will be sold at the door, Scafidi added.

Charlie Stern and his band will provide the music for the evening.

Sponsor for the group is George Stewart, accounting instructor here. The dance is under the direction of Bob Hare, vice-president.

"Mistletoe Mingle has been presented by our fraternity for many years, and it has always been the highlight of the Fall semester," member Lou Shepard declared.

The Beta Tau's Mistletoe Mingle will wind up the college's pre-holiday activities, Bixel said. He added that it is the last dance of the Fall season with the exception of the Sophomore Ball now scheduled for Saturday, January 31.

$100 Scholarship Honors McKiernan

A new scholarship fund of $100 has been created through Beta Tau fraternity from an anonymous donor in memory of Charles H. McKiernan, English and Speech instructor at the college and first sponsor of the fraternity.

McKiernan, who came to the college in 1937 and remained until his death in 1951, was remembered as being "more than a faculty member and sponsor but a friend to each and every one of his students."

A committee composed of the president of Beta Tau fraternity, faculty adviser George Stewart, Dean of Student Activities Robin Dunn, and Dean Edwin C. Browne is meeting shortly with members of the fraternity to govern the allotments of the scholarship.

The student awarded this scholarship, which is offered on a basis of merit and scholastic achievement, will be named at the beginning of the Spring '53 semester, a committee spokesman said.

Carols, Tableaux Featured In 18th Annual Event

By Edvina Kilburen

Caroling in the Yuletide Season, the college's 18th annual Christmas Concert makes its bow tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the west campus auditorium, according to Flossita Badger, director.

A preview dress rehearsal of the concert will be open to students who are unable to attend the evening performance at 11 a.m. this morning in the auditorium, Miss Badger said.

Presented by students of the music and drama departments, and sponsored by the Faculty Association, Associated Students, and Music Guild, the concert will present selections by the A Cappella Choir, as well as soloists from this group and the Opera Workshop.

As prelude to the program the college orchestra, under the direction of Meyer M. Cahn will play a medley of Christmas carols.

A Cappella Choir numbers include Adeste Fidcles, selections from The Messiah, an English carol, A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and the Fred Waring Night Before Christmas.

Ave Maria is to be sung by Gary Rhopoulos, soprano. The A Cappella Choir sings Shepherds, Shake Off Your Drowsy Sleep, The Three Kings, and Silent Night, with Jane Fulcuda soloist. Baritone Elmer Delany will sing O Holy Night.

Drama department students are cast in two tableaux, directed by Michael Griffin, and entitled The Holy Family and The Night Before Christmas. Students are Loretta Warchot, Jerry O'Connor, Dawn Gallagher, Beatrice Sanchez, Bill Bixby, Pat Joyce, Pete Wiesick, Joyce Cody, Alba James, Arnetta Jackson, Ronald Atkinson. Accompanists for the tableaux and soloists is Betty Wicklund.

USA And IFC Begin Tentative Plans For January Elections

Nominating conventions of the Inter-Fraternity Council and the United Students Association will be held early in January to determine party candidates for spring semester Associated Student elections.

Tentative date for the IFC nominating convention is Wednesday, January 7, following the screening council meeting, Tuesday evening. "The screening council, which includes IFC officials, insures the integrity and qualifications of prospective nominees," Lou Shepard, IFC chairman, explained.

Dean Dougherty Gives Students Yuletide Message

Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, yesterday extended Christmas greetings to the students of the college.

"As the Yuletide Season approaches, we greet our friends and acquaintances with the familiar words 'Merry Christmas,'" Miss Dougherty said.

"It gives me a great deal of pleasure to extend to the students of City College of San Francisco this same greeting and let us all offer a handclasp of good will and cooperation to those less fortunate than we are. Let us strive to be messengers of 'Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men,' to everyone.

"Many of the college students plan to work during the three weeks vacation," Dean Dougherty commented and added that many students have found employment at the post office.

At the college, holiday celebrations will include the 18th annual Christmas Concert to be given tonight in the west campus auditorium.

Following classes December 12, vacation will begin, lasting until January 5.

DEAN OF WOMEN MARGARET DOUGHERTY extends Christmas greetings to City College students.

United Students Association's nominating council is set for Tuesday, January 6, when candidates will be chosen for ability and the meeting of the requirements of the Associated Students, Chuck White, USA's publicity director, said.

"This is the first semester that the USA has been in operation and it seems the answer to the problem of candidates for office being unopposed," White said.

Members of the election committee, with the exception of Don Douglas, election commissioner, have not yet been approved by the Student Council.

Date of the election rally is tentatively scheduled for Friday, January 16, and elections will be held during the week of January 19-23.

College Plans New TV Show

Members of the radio-television production staff here met with representatives of KPIX during November to discuss plans for the college's next educational television program which will again offer free college credit.

At the meeting it was announced that the show, planned to start in January, will concern itself with an introduction to psychology. Featured is Phyllis Haley, instructor in psychology here, who will guide listeners through the course, tentatively called, Know Yourself Better.

Henry Leff, producer of the college's radio-television series, announced that further details of the new course will be revealed shortly.

Leff said that favorable response to the college's past ventures in radio and television has prompted this new venture.

Sophomore Formal Plans Announced

The sophomore formal has definitely been scheduled for the San Francisco Yacht Club on Saturday, January 31, according to Dale Strickland, class president.

As the highlight event of Sophomore Week, the ball will feature, as tradition demands, the results of the election of the Sophomore King and Queen followed by coronation ceremonies. Rhythm and melody will be provided by Walt Tolleson and his band.

Strickland is chairman of the Sophomore Week committee and is assisted by Charlie Heari, vice-president, Josephine Grannucbi and Barbara Duhr.

Rallies and the semi-annual Sophomore-Faculty contest are among other activities being planned by the sophomore class according to Strickland's statement.

Contribution of ideas to further the success of Soph Week will be appreciated, Strickland added.

Canterbury Club Shows Film Friday

Picture In Your Mind, a film discussing the origin of race prejudice in the sub-conscious, is scheduled to be shown during college hour, Friday, December 12, by the Canterbury Club, Katharine Pedley, Canterbury Club sponsor and member of the Library Staff, stated last week.

The colored film, a product of the International Film Foundation, is entertaining as well as informative, according to Mrs. Pedley.

The film will be shown in Room 200, Mrs. Pedley said, and the showing will be 16 minutes long.

All students are invited, by the Canterbury Club, to attend and to participate in the discussion which will immediately follow the showing of the film.

The Saturday Review of Literature, in its Educational Film Guide, says of Picture In Your Mind, "A powerful statement on prejudice, drawing on anthropology, sociology, and mythology, and using an effective experimental combination of color animation, music, and the spoken word."

Variety Show—Barbary Coast Or Campus Entertainment?

SOME people might say that the attendance at the 1952 Varieties last week end was too small. On the contrary, for the good of the college, it may well have been too large.

Great emphasis, this year, was put on the fact that the Variety Show was a student planned, student operated and student performed program. Emphasis also was made that the show was intended not only for the student body but for the general public as well. The Thursday performance especially was to be the "general public" night with ticket sellers giving special stress to that idea. The public came to see a show that had been described as fast moving and well planned. They came to see just what the students of this college could do. They saw.

What would have been a good show was spoiled by a few acts and individuals who seemed to think they were performing before a men's smoker instead of the parents, wives, and friends of students here.

An important factor in the planning of any performance is to ask the question "what will the audience reaction be." We heard first hand, and it was not very good.

Crudeness for crudeness sake would seem to have very little place in a show which is to be supported by a paying public. A program which may very well be in bad taste to some people is not a good idea for a college which had claimed that the performance was well planned. Most important of all: What will the paying public's opinion be of the college itself after witnessing such a performance?

Three or four ribald acts for the benefit of a few who "think they are getting away with something" is a large price to pay for losing the support of interested citizens.

With such excellent talent available on the campus, the college need not stoop so low.

Why drive the public away?

McKiernan Award Is Fine Tribute

AFTER long delay, the committee for the handling of the Charles N. McKiernan memorial scholarship is set and ready to go. The $100 award, donated by an anonymous friend of the college and Beta Tau Fraternity, wil be awarded on a basis of merit and scholarship standing early next semester.

The money designated for the scholarship was in the college's hands some six months ago. For several unforseen reasons, not traceable to any one person or group, it has been impossible to do anything about it until this time.

We cannot imagine a finer tribute for an instructor here who devoted 14 years, from 1937 to his death in 1951 to college service. The scholarship not only speaks well of a late instructor but well of the college and its friends as well.

We congratulate the unknown donor for his interest in the college and the welfare of its students. We hope that this is not the last scholarship of this type offered.

Shots At RAMdom:

Fall Semester—Two Days Less Instruction But More Homework

By Lonanne Morford

TO MOST students the fall semester is way ahead on popularity.

After the long spring days, unbroken for such long stretches by any college holidays, the fall is like a Christmas present. Compared to the spring, with its four days of rest, the long breaks in the continuity of fall instruction is like a dream.

STATISTICS

With the aid of a calendar and a pencil, it is possible to come up with the startling figures concerning the number of vacations that students of the college have and will continue to enjoy before the rugged Spring session starts.

Twenty-three weeks are involved in the period that we know as this semester; of this the Board of Education salvaged 84 days for the purpose of educating the local youths and allowed 21 days as college holidays. Marvelous, isn't it?

CONTRAST

By way of contrast take a good look at the Spring semester which is scheduled to commence on February 13.

To begin with there are 18 weeks of classes, 90 academic study days, minus only four days of much-needed vacation. This provides for 86 entire days of college, two more than are involved in the Fall.

WARNING

This sad state of affairs should be sufficient warning to all college students to enjoy those days of vacation that they have this month, for they will have to last for a good long time.

There is a drawback attached to these long periods of educational neglect. In case you haven't figured out what the difficulty is, here it is in a nutshell. Take those textbooks home over the Christmas holidays for you will have less than a month to prepare for finals when you come back.

Exemption Eligibility Tested

Post-Test Jitters Descend Upon Hopeful College Men

By Betty Wong

An unusually long and agonizing three-hour written examination was taken last Thursday by men students of draft age who wished to prove their intellectual capacity for the lack of IQ in order to postpone the missive from the United States government which starts out, "Greetings."

The student who is a fine, upstanding and conscientious scholar, has remembered to pay a visit to his local draft board to obtain his application for the Selective Service College Qualification Tests.

Any repentant, by this way, is eligible to have this opportunity there will be just one more of the current series dient April 2) to provide evidence for eligibility for exemption from military service.

There were approximately 1,000 centers in the United States giving the examination that day, and one of them was right here in Room 100 in the main building.

At any rate, the examination included reading comprehension and math.

Many students found to their annoyance that they could read a paragraph over and over again and still be doubtful as to the central thesis when the given answers are all practically alike. Also that they can get pretty rusty on their high school algebra and geometry once they've laid it aside, and wished they'd gotten a firmer grasp on equations, theorems, and postulates.

Students have done their best, and all they can do is to sit back and wait for the results to be forwarded to their draft board.

Do not despair; there is yet a consolation. In the event that students flunked and get called in any day now, they're entitled to full credit for this semester, and they can go scot-free without having to suffer through any FINALS!

Solution Offered To Increase Total Of Mail Boxes On Campus

By Gary Wormser

There is a conspicuous lack of U. S. mail-boxes on the west campus. Maybe there is a hidden one in the counselline office from whence the classcut letters are mailed, but as far as most students are concerned, the only letter box within miles is the jumbo-sized jewel located at the beginning of the circular drive that leads up to the main building.

In mail-boxes on other college campuses, many bewildered postmen have found bubble-gum, Eskimo-pie sticks, and Schenley bottles (empty) mixed in with a comparatively small amount of literary matter.

It is quite possible that the S. F. Postal Department didn't install mail-boxes on the campus for this reason. However, they underestimated the carrying capacity of the big one that sits on Phelan Avenue.

Maybe that is why Post-Haste Pete, the west campus mailman, just quit his job and joined the Marines. He probably would rather carry a seventy pack on his back than the results of the college clean-up campaign.

But don't give up hope. According to Professor Von Dribblebowser, Dean Emarriedus at the University of Minsk, there is a way to step lunch wagon remains from being deposited in college mail-boxes, and if post offices through out the country adopted Von Dribblebowser's method, a copious quantity of boxes could be installed outside of every building on the west campus and Uncle Sam would not have to worry.

Says Dribblebowser, "Our problem is mainly psychological. Change der name from U. S. Mail, letter box to U. S. Femail, letter box and they vould no longer become loaded vid food because vomen vatch their diet, no?"

Anyway, anybody with thick-soled shoes and an interest in earning a few pense and losing a few pounds may apply to Joseph Amori, placement director, for a job as mailman.

Cercle Francais Head Issues Squelch Of Week

Squelch of the week comes from Paul Schwarzbart, president of Le Cercle Francais, the college's extra-curricular collection of francophiles.

Constantly harassed by questions of, "Is that a Boy Scout pin?" in reference to the metal Fleur de Lis appearing on Cercle members' lapels, monsieur le president finally turned on one of his tormentors, smiled coyly and replied, "No Girl Scouts."

Incidentally, Le Cercle this year is having a bit of trouble recognizing itself. Among its members are one or more people from Iran, Egypt, Russia, Hong Kong, Austria, the Philippines, Armenia and Denmark. Who said that French was no longer the international language?

By way of explanation for the uninitiated, Le Cercle is the college's recognized French club, meeting semi-monthly at members' homes. A degree from the Sorbonne is not a prerequisite for membership, and any interested parties may contact Doris Hemried of the language department for further information.

Educational TV

Frieda Hennock, Local Educators Spark Channel-9

By Ken Molino

Frieda B. Hennock, sole woman member of the Federal Communications Commission, visited the Bay Area durin[g] Thanksgiving week to share [in] educational television w[ith] of BAETA (Bay Area Television Association) [in] here.

The college's radio-t[elevi]sion pioneers of local t[elevi]sion education for several years, spent many hours with Miss Hennock, according to Henry Leff, radio-television program director here. Much mutual benefit was derived from the meeting, Leff added.

Miss Hennock's time in this area was well occupied. Appearing on a number of local television interview programs, she proved to be a very dynamic supporter of Channel 9, the channel reserved for use by public service institutions in this area.

On one such program Miss Hennock joined in a roundtable discussion with members of BAETA. The discussion was moderated by Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator of instruction here, and the panel included such prominent personages as Wilson Sea del, President of BAETA and superintendent of Alameda County Public Schools, Dr. Herbert Clish, superintendent of Public Schools in San Francisco, and leading educators of the area who are directly concerned with the subject.

The people of San Fran[cisco] can, under Miss Hennock's directive [be] asked to support BAETA in its [drive] to secure funds to meet the requirements of the FCC in obtaining Channel 9.

According to Miss Hen[nock] requirements include the [es]tablishment of an adequate television sta[tion].

This, she said, could be done for about $300,000. One-third of this amount has been pledged by an unnamed foundation with the proviso that the remaining $200,000 be raised by citizens of the Bay Area. This must be done within two months or the channel will be released to commercial interests, according to Miss Hennock.

In an effort to satisfy the requirement, BAETA is now staging a membership drive to solicit contributions toward the fund. Leff announced the last week. Ten dollars will buy a membership for a year, he stated, and will materially aid in reaching the $200,000 goal, and insuring educational television for this area.

Asked whether this money would have to come from taxpayers, Miss Hennock suggested that "... there must be any number of public spirited institutions in this area who would gladly chip in to carry this expense. If everyone chipped in the necessary funds to build and operate the station would be forthcoming ..."

For those who like to make figures tell stories, the following facts stand out:

A. Washington High School has more graduates here both in the total enrollment and among new students.

B. Women outnumber men only in figures for Girls High School (egad!) and for California High Schools other than local and East Bay. (Miss Learnard attributes the latter to the preponderance of women in night classes with a higher proportion of the students in those classes being from out-of-town high schools.)

C. San Francisco Public High Schools contribute 38 per cent of the total student body, 32 per cent of the new students this semester.

City College Football Team Ends 1952 Season With 3 Won, 6 Lost Record; Kelly Leads Ram Scorers

By Joe Callas, Sports Editor

A turnout of 70 football players was on hand to open City College's football practice sessions in early September. After two weeks, the outlook was much brighter than most persons suspected. But after a few weeks of the season, something happened. The Rams just couldn't get rolling.

Two players were taken into the armed forces, and a few were injured, and this may have caused just enough uneasiness to throw the Rams off stride.

Mid-season rolled around; Head Coach Grover Klemmer had about 30 players in the squad. Not much. But, enough to work with.

The Rams were a good outfit despite their three won and six lost record, but as stated before, there was something missing.

Menlo, 1951 champions of the Coast Conference, furnished the opposition to the Rams in the opening game at Kezar on September 27. Bill McCormick, reserve Oak halfback, tallied two touchdowns to lead his team to a 26-12 triumph over the Rams. Held scoreless 'til the last quarter, the Rams were jinxed by fumbles through out the game. Bill Jones gained 83 yards rushing to lead San Francisco's offense.

The Rams then trecked to Santa Rosa to meet the Bear Cubs in their first Big 7 Conference clash. It was one of the hardest fought contests of the season, as Santa Rosa scored two touchdowns in the last two minutes of the game to win 13 to 6.

Trailing 6 to 0, Bear Cub quarterback Don Frantz tossed a 46 yard aerial to Doug Boyd, who was shoved out of bounds on the four Harry Hinson hit pay dirt on the next play. The conversion try was missed. Santa Rosa fullback Bob Burgmen intercepted Sam pass following the kick off and ran back for the winning score.

The game was mighty Contra Costa all the way as Sam Brown, for the first time in three games, the Rams were stopped as Brown tallied all four Comet TDs to lead the East Bay boys to a 26 to 7 triumph. Brown's running was matched by San Mateo's Bill Jones who gained 125 yards rushing. Fil Juliarbal cracked the Comet line for 77 yards.

City College's first victory came in far away Los Angeles as Los Angeles City College succumbed 21 to 6 to San Francisco's ground game and Sam Hiona's passing. Bernie Kelly and Juliarbal scored on short drives, and Bob Oliver tallied after receiving one of Hiona's passes.

The Rams returned home to meet San Mateo in their traditional battle on the Kezar turf. City College fiddled around with the Bulldogs to the tune of 32-12 as touchdowns were scored by Van Parish, Pat Francisco, Dan Brosnan, Oliver and Jones. Francisco and Brosnan scored on pass interceptions of stray Bulldog passes.

East Los Angeles came up to avenge the LACC defeat and met a resounding Ram eleven fresh off a two game win streak. San Francisco's win streak was halted as ELA came out on the long end of a 32-7 score. The game was much closer than the score indicated as the Huskies scored 25 points in the first quarter, but were outplayed by the Rams the rest of the way.

City College came back against Sacramento College and won 20 to 7 as Van Parish grabbed two passes for touchdowns, one from Hiona and one from Dick Landucci, Sandy Malnick scored the clinching TD after Sacramento showed signs of life in the fourth quarter.

The Rams then invaded Stockton to meet the league-leading Mustangs. Lloyd Serpa and Lee Frank led Stockton to a 20-0 victory over the hapless Rams upon a rain drenched field.

San Francisco closed out the season at Modesto and were thoroughly outclassed by the Pirates 33 to 0 in the Rams' worst beating of the year.

Kelly, Ram halfback, emerged as the Rams' scoring leader of the season with four touchdowns.

Local Booters Drop Tilts To State, Stanford

The college soccer team closes out its season tomorrow at Santa Clara in a game with the Bronco booters.

Currently in fourth place in league standings, the Rams, composed almost entirely of freshmen, look forward to a better season next year, Coach Roy Diederichsen announced today.

In their past two games the local booters lost a hard fought game in the last minute of play to S. F. State on a disputed play. The Gators punched over the deciding tally when the locals had only ten men on the field to win by a score of 2-1. Diederichsen said he will not protest the game.

After holding a strong Stanford team to a scoreless deadlock for three and one half quarters, Diederichsen, in order to give everyone some playing time, swept the bench, and the Indians drove for four goals to triumph 4-0.

Coach Diederichsen praised highly the season efforts of Carlos Monge, left half, and Ernie Smith, fullback, who made first string all-conference.

Also commended for outstanding performances were left wing Issa Jaddalan who was placed on the second string conference team, and Goalie Joe Hare, who garnered a spot on the third club.

Trophies Won By Kelly And Monge

Bernie Kelly and Carlos Monge were awarded trophies for being the outstanding football and soccer players of the 1952 season respectively at the semi-annual Block S. F. banquet honoring football and soccer letter winners which was held November 2 in the west campus cafeteria.

A total of 45 athletes was feted for their outstanding contributions to the football and soccer squads. Twenty-six gridders and nineteen socceremen received their blocks from respective coaches Grover Klemmer and Roy Diederichsen. Twelve of the recipients were second-time winners.

Honored guests at the dinner presentation were football coaches from each San Francisco high school, who personally congratulated their former high school athletes.

Ram Cagers Defeated In Opener 61-57 By Bronco Frosh; Down ECC And Blues; Visalia Tourney Thls Weekend

By Charles Brigham

Basketball season at City College got off to a successful start last week as the Rams took the second and third games after losing a heartbreaker in the season opener.

The Ram's first game was played at Stanford with the Santa Clara Freshmen. Santa Clara had a one point lead at the half time, but City College fought back in the third quarter to an eleven point lead. However, the very excess of spirit that caused them to come from behind caused three of the San Franciscans to foul out, almost simultaneously in the middle of the third quarter.

At fault were Forwards Bill Welch and Art Back, and guard Tony Lazzeri. Without these key men the City College attack flagged, and the score at the end of the game was Santa Clara 61, City College 57.

Forward Frank Hess sparkled in defeat, scoring 17 for the losers.

The next game, however, with East Contra Costa, was a different story. City College was in comfortable control of the game from the outset, maintaining a lead of no less than 12 points after the first ten minutes of the game. The final was City College 63, Contra Costa 51. Lazzeri was high for the Rams with a sterling 19 points. The game was played at City College.

Saturday's game, immediately preceding the F.C.-U.S.F. Varsity game, was played at the University of California gymnasium with the Rams facing a slightly favored Cal Blues team.

A crowd of about 500 saw the San Franciscans gain an early lead which they held for most of the game. In the fourth quarter, however, the Blues fought back to tie City College, and then to a one point lead.

The closing minutes of the game saw the score teeter back and forth, favoring first the Blues and then the Rams, until, in the last three or four minutes, the Rams, with a score of 53 to 52 in their favor, began to stall in an attempt to control the ball until the final gun.

The determined Blues, however, were not to be so easily denied, and they got the ball and scored, tying it all up. Bill Lazzeri, who had played a brilliant game throughout, drove in and dunked a setup to pull the Rams ahead, and after a breathless final two minutes the game was over with City College prevailing, 55 to 54. Again Lazzeri led Ram scorers with 17 points, with Frank Hess close behind with 15.

Little Bobby Bondanza, Ram guard, who has been compared with former Ram, now UCLA's Bob Matheny, also played an excellent game, coordinating so well with Lazzeri that the Blues coach claimed that it was the two S.F. guards that broke the Blues back.

This weekend is an important one for the team, as the Visalia tournament is scheduled for Friday and Saturday nights at Visalia.

In the tournament are the four top teams from the last year's state tournament at Visalia: Ventura, Visalia, Fullerton, and San Francisco. On Friday night, City College plays Ventura, and Visalia plays Fullerton. If the Rams win, they play the winner of the other game; if they lose, they play the loser.

Admission Prices Set For Home Games

Admission for this year's home games of the City College basketball team will be as follows: free to holders of Associated Student cards, 50 cents for holders of high school student cards, and one dollar regular admission, Dean Louis Batmale announced last week.

For games away from home, A. S. card holders are expected to be admitted at half price. All Ram home games will be played in the men's gymnasium, while away games will be played in the home bases of other Big 7 Conference teams. Games are to be played on a home and home basis.

Intra Fight Card Produces Notable Novice Pugilists

Providing some 500 spectators with an evening of excitement and entertainment, the annual intramural boxing tourney, held November 21, was, according to boxing coach Roy Diederichsen, "a tremendous success."

Starting the program in the 125 lb. class, the first bout matched William Zelayeta against Glen Lanum in a novice encounter, with Zelayeta winning a close decision over Lanum.

Following the first battle, the second start pitted Jay Miller vs Eugene Lumpkin in a 130 lb. novice bout. Matched 129 to 130 lbs. respectively, Miller edged Lumpkin in another close singfest.

In the 135 lb. category, Gene Worthington 138, pounded out a fast decision over Terry Chin 140, and another 135 lb. weight bout followed with Bob Moretto edging Larry Young in the only senior battle of the evening.

Hitting hard in the 145 lb. class, Robert Watson 145 came from behind to garner a split decision with Lee Dickinson in the fifth novice match of the evening.

At 155 lbs., Charles Thompson and Don Gullikson hit it off with Gullikson taking the nod in an overweight contest. Following this fight, John Threadgill handed Branko Pudarich a loss in the 165 lb. class on another decision while the 175 lb. division Jack Kennedy and Frank Blackburn in a fast bout gave the crowd four rounds of thrills as Blackburn rallied to win.

In the final encounter of the night, the main event witnessed Paul Papathalis ousting Art Ersepke in a heavyweight tangle. Commenting upon the outcome of the show, Coach Diederichsen said, "I felt this show had produced some of the most exciting bouts we've seen here at the college. I felt it was a tremendous success."

WITH HOPES of equalling the record of the 1951 championship club, Coach Ralph Hillsman presents a cage team of five veterans and eleven newcomers to take over where last year's five left off. Players, above, are (left to right) top row: Ken Collins, Art Back, Rudy Knudsen, Bill Welch, Bill Gregg, Horald Hansen, Coach Ralph Hillsman; middle row: Tony Lazzeri, Frank Hess, Warren Hagberg, Ken Hansen, Don Rolfus, Boyd Nelson; bottom row: Warren Baxter, Jerry Stack, Ray Rasolas, Bob Bondanza.—Photo by Lazzeri.

AGS To Offer Cash Award For Forum Stories

Further incentive was offered this week to members of Alpha Gama Sigma scholastic honor society, for submision of material to Forum Magazine, according to society president, Bob Luehr.

At the suggestion of Vice-President John Wilson, a contest has been planned which offers a cash prize for the best essay, short story, prose, or poetry submitted by an Alpha Gamma Sigma member, Luehr said.

"The contest is restricted to society members," he declared, "and the deadline, which has not been definitely decided as yet, will be approximately two weeks prior to Forum's copy deadline."

Luehr added that judging will be done by himself, by sponsor Don Jensen, and representatives of the English department.

He added that only a first place prize was planned at present but the five best compositions submitted will be turned over to Forum editors for consideration.

"Complete details for the competition, to be settled this week, will be announced to the membership through a letter prior to the Christmas holidays," Luehr concluded.

Employers Seeking Available Workers

Because of the shortages of available personnel in the San Francisco Bay Area for holiday workers, employers have focused their attention on this college for assistance in meeting their Christmas season employment needs, according to Joseph A. Amori, placement director here.

"The excellent record established by the students in the past years coupled with an early Christmas season closing, set at Friday, December 12, and a late opening, Monday, January 5, lead various firms to concentrate their employment efforts here," Amori said.

Although the San Francisco Post Office has already hired several hundred men and women for a wide assortment of jobs, Amori declared, the department stores, railroads, confectionary firms, florists, and airlines are beginning to hit their employment peak this week.

For the first time in ten years, Amori said, women workers are being recruited by the post office. The demand for workers has been so pronounced that many foreign students, cleared through the United States Bureau of Immigration, have been hired for numerous jobs.

Interested students are requested by Amori to apply immediately at the personnel placement service office on the west campus, Building 2.

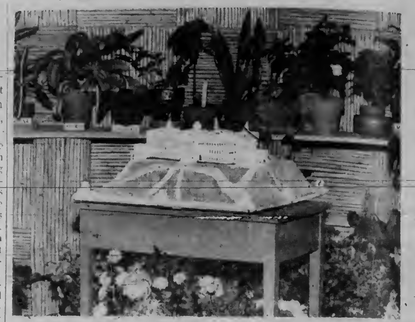
Flower Shop Cops Three Awards In First International Show

The college flower shop, under the supervision of John Lawrence, kept its prize-winning record intact by winning a First Award, Best Educational Exhibit Award, and a Special Award in the recent First Annual San Francisco International Flower Fiesta, held at the Civic Auditorium the last week in November.



The local group, in winning the Special Award, was praised by John Paul Edwards, head of the judging committee, for contributing an outstanding exhibit toward the success of the fiesta and added that the blue ribbon was earned by the unanimous vote of the entire judging committee.

The educational exhibit award, a silver bowl awarded by the Piedmont Garden Club, was earned in competition with other local colleges.

Exhibits of authentic foreign garden scenes from all over the world were created by prominent commercial florists of California, and leading decorating artists arranged a gala array of flower arrangements.

In the gardens of the Governors were displayed floral displays from many States of the Union, and the foreign exhibits included scenes from Italy, Egypt, Netherlands, Great Britain, and Japan.

Working in conjunction with the flower shop, a total of six college organizations took part to make the project successful. These groups were the Horticulture Society, and the ceramics and jewelry, photography, graphic arts, and commercial art departments.

Air Force Now Using Building 8

The 2360th Air Force Reserve Specialist Training Center has chosen the college as the site for a series of reclassification interviews with inactive reservists it was learned here recently.

The interviews, which began December 1 and will continue through Saturday, January 24, are taking place in Building 8 on the west campus.

In charge of the reclassification interviews is Lt. Colonel Martin L. Fellhauer. Colonel Fellhauer has at his command a staff of 12 officers and ten enlisted airmen.

The colonel estimated that 3,000 men will be interviewed during the December 1-January 24 period. "We expect to handle approximately 50 men a day," he said.

Purpose of the reclassification interviews, which cover the period since the reservist left the Air Force to the present, Fellhauer said, is "to see just what the Air Force has.

"Suppose a man who was a cook with us during the last war has since gone to college and come out as a dentist or an engineer. That man certainly doesn't belong in his original classification."

Another example of a possible reclassification, noted by Fellhauer, would be the case of a veteran who, since the war has married and had children. "It is to the benefit of the Air Force and the reservist to have their reclassification interviews," he continued.

The Colonel emphasized that the Air Force at present has no plans for activating any of the reclassified men.

Visual Aids Plans Documentary Movie

Featured during the college hour this Friday, December 12, will be the film, California's Golden Beginning, a documentary movie about early days in California.

According to Emmett Smith, audio-visual aids instructor, the film will be shown during college hour, and at 9:30 a.m. and 12:20 p.m. in Room 136, main building.

Robin Dunn, dean of student activities, announced that clubs will meet in their designated rooms. "Most of the college clubs are always ready to welcome new members," Dunn stated.

The sessions, which are held in Miss Hernreid's office, Room 134, main building, are scheduled as below.

However, if unable to come at those hours, students can arrange for assistance at any of the other times listed, if the coach is not engaged.

Book Drive For Wounded Vets Climaxes Here Friday

As a result of Red Cross policy, patients in local veterans' hospitals will be denied the morale-building effect which had been planned as a special feature of the Globe and Anchor Society's current book drive, scheduled to end this Friday.

According to Don Douglas, member of that society, the drive, under the direction of Pat Miller and Harry Robling, was to have had its climax when the books were distributed to veterans by a group of the college's women students.

Following Red Cross policy, however, all books collected here will be turned over to them for distribution.

The Globe and Anchor Society, a group of Marine Corps veterans here, has been soliciting students for any and all types of reading material for the past week, according to Douglas.

Receptacles have been placed in conspicuous position about the campus to receive novels, pocket books, magazines, or any other material which, though not necessarily new, is in readable condition, he said.

These articles, when turned over to the Red-Cross, will be sent to Letterman, Oak Knoll, and other government hospitals in this area to brighten the Christmas days for patients who might otherwise be forgotten this Yuletide.

Douglas cited the fact that two days remain before holidays begin here and stated his hope that a response to the drive will be sufficient to justify future programs of this nature.

Student Congress Held At St. Mary's

Student Congress, highlight of the Northern California Forensic Association fall debating sessions, was held December 5 and 6 at St. Mary's College, Thomas Dutcher, Phi Rho Pi adviser, announced today.

Pushing a 3 p.m. deadline the last of 37 petitions for Associated Student offices were filed last Wednesday with Election Commissioner Don Douglas.

Active campaigning from both the Inter-Fraternity Council and the United Students Association is underway with concentrated emphasis being given to a double-college hour rally this Friday in the auditorium which will be the debut spot for the election candidates to the AS vacancies, according to Douglas. Providing additional entertainment to the proceedings will be the college band and members of the drama club, Douglas said.

IFC nominating convention January 8 followed the opposite USA election January 6. Dr. Louis G. Conan, president of the college, was the keynote speaker at the IFC convention. As the Guardsman went to press the outcome of both of these conventions was not released.

Election committee members include Don Anderson, Sigma Phi Epsilon; Mrs. Doreen Jean McDonald, Associated Women Student Council; Mel Shick, Chuck Wright, and Gail Wright. Don is announcer.

Deadline For AS Constitution Changes Today

As of January 8, no amendments to the Associated Student Constitution had been submitted to the Student Council for approval and inclusion on the AS election ballot.

Final date for posting of such additions is today, under rules specified in Article 7 of the Constitution.

Under this article all amendments proposed shall be published in The Guardsman and/or posted in a public place at least one week before voting takes place.

The proposed amendment will become effective if ratified by a two-thirds majority of the votes cast at the election.

One means of amendment is by AS initiative. The proposed amendment is signed by ten per cent of the members of the association and then placed on the ballot.

The second means is through representation in the council by acceptance by it of, by a two-thirds majority vote of those present, at not-, of a proposed amendment presented to it by the association.

Student Council balloting, January 8, for the Outstanding Student Award, given for service during the semester, narrowed down to Joe Scudill and Chuck White. The final decision will be announced at the Student Council banquet, Wednesday, January 28.

Election rules on posters and other campaign materials have been released by Don Douglas, election commissioner. Deadline for such approval is Monday, January 19.

Five posters will be allowed each candidate on the west campus with the number allowed on each of the east campus. Each candidate will be allowed a maximum of two handbills and a maximum of 25 personal letters.

Following steps are involved in the election procedure, and candidates are urged to acquaint themselves with them: Petitions must be signed by 25 members of the student body and filed with the election committee. Petitions must be filed by 3 p.m. on the deadline date. Petitions will be checked for validity of signatures. Candidates will be notified of election rules similar to those governing campaigning. Candidates are urged to contact Douglas or Student Council office, Building 4.

Student Receives Cadet Appointment

Kenneth Bevan, letters and science major here, has received an appointment to West Point through Congressman Francis E. Walter, Bevan's congressman. Bevan has taken out a leave of absence and will report to West Point on July 7 as a member of the 1957 class.

The former Alpha Gamma Sigma is graduate of Polytechnic high school.

Symphony Ushering Passes Available

Ushering passes are available for the symphony series in the War Memorial Opera House, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, said this week.

Alfred Wallenstein will conduct three performances, which are scheduled for Thursday through Saturday, January 22-24.

Students who are interested in ushering in exchange for admission to performances must obtain admittance passes from Dean Dougherty, in Building 2.

Passes are also available for the concert series presented by the California Civic Music and Arts Foundation at the Opera House, Dean Dougherty said. The next three concert presentations are Elena Nikolaidi, contralto, on Monday, January 19; Victoria De Los Angeles, soprano, on Friday, February 6; and James Melton, tenor, who will appear here Wednesday, February 18.

A New Scholarship And Two Winners

Denman Scholars Both Participate In Student Activities

By Lorianne Mortorel

Betty Orton and Beatrice Lundgren, recently named the Denman Scholarship winners are, beyond their basic academic achievement and athletic interests, representatives of two widely diversified fields of endeavor.

Miss Orton and Miss Lundgren, both third semester students here, will graduate in the Spring '53 semester. Both are from local high schools.

Miss Orton, who graduated from Washington High School, is majoring in sociology and intends to complete her college career at College of the Pacific at Stockton.

According to Miss Orton, who includes membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma and the job of secretary-treasurer of the Women's Athletic Association in her busy schedule, professional plans are indefinite, but she stated they will undoubtedly be connected with social work.

In contrast, Miss Lundgren's plans are quite definite. A graduate of Balboa High School, she explained that she will enroll at San Francisco State next September, where she will continue to major in science.

Speaking of her professional aspirations Miss Lundgren, who is a member of Zeta Chi, Alpha Gamma Sigma, Cercle Francais, and the Women's Athletic Association and the Student Council, stated that she will teach after graduation from San Francisco State.

Cloud Fund Due For First Award Next Semester

Initial use of the Cloud Scholarship Fund is expected next semester following procedure established last month by the College Faculty Association, James Billwiller, association president and English department head announced last Friday.

The sum of $100 will be awarded annually, will go to one or more students with actual selection made by the faculty committee on Student-Faculty Relations, the association decided.

Establishment of the fund was made by the Faculty Association in 1949 to honor President Emeritus Archibald J. Cloud who retired as college President that year. Since then the fund has grown through proceeds from the Faculty Show of 1951.

A committee of faculty members worked out a plan for allocation of the fund whereby a fixed income can be derived to finance the actual scholarship on a permanent basis. Members of this committee are Thomas Gaibert, Don Jensen, and Maurice Power.

Further information concerning application for the scholarship will be released soon, Billwiller said.

President Cloud was the first president of City College, named to that position by the city Board of Education when the college was opened in 1935.

His book "The Stanford Axe, relating the history of the football rivalry between the University of California and Stanford University, was published in November.

Big Story Writer Pays Visit Here

Bob Hall, reporter for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, recent recipient of the Pall Mall "Big Story" award and whose big story was broadcast via the radio, visited the beginning class in journalism here before the Christmas vacation.

At the request of George Mullany, Journalism 31 instructor, Hall made the visit to recount what happened and trace a San Jose murder for the benefit of the newswriting group.

Each week the class is assigned the task of listening to the "Big Story," and writing a news lead, or the beginning paragraph which contains the most important facts of the story. This was the first occasion that the class had been able to have a story by a local reporter, and a local story as an assignment.

Students Here Will Do Actual Hotel St. Francis Management January 20

Preliminary organization of the semi-annual Hotel Day, to be staged Friday, January 30, at the St. Francis Hotel is now underway, according to a statement made last week by Director of the Hotel and Restaurant Division, Hilda Watson.

Under the direction of Dan E. London, General Manager of the St. Francis Hotel and Mrs. Watson, approximately 30 students from the college will take part in the full scale operation of one of the city's largest hotels for one day.

Students participating in the project will be selected from four of five departments besides the hotel and restaurant division. Among the departments expected to participate will be the photography, law enforcement, and journalism departments.

Mrs Watson explained that the object of the project is to offer the executive facilities of the hotel for a discuss a plausible working ground which would enable prospective hotel and restaurant men to get first hand professional experience.

"The heads of all the divisions planning to take part must meet with Mr. London and me before any definite steps can be taken," Mrs. Watson said.

Final selection of students and their assignments for Hotel Day have not been made, Mrs Watson stated.

AS Card Holders Total 1,554: Fall Short Of Goal

Jim Bouick, chairman of the Associated Student card sales, announced recently the total receipts for the semester.

Bouick said that 1,554 membership cards were sold, bringing in a total of $7,770, leaving the Associated Students $497 short of their anticipated total of $8,200.

"The sales were good considering the late start we made," Bouick remarked. "We had expected a better turnout, but we are satisfied with the sales we have completed."

"Plans for next spring's sales activities are being worked on, and will be revealed at a later date."

"I should like to thank all those who participated in our drive, and also to give a big vote of thanks to my committee members who worked with me all semester."

Card sales committee members include Jack Wright, Alma Peirce, Carol Ann Fiore, Mel Shick, Lou Fabian, and Gayle Pedroni.

Week Limit Set On Illness Verification

Dean Edwin C. Browne urged yesterday that all students who have been absent because of illness bring their excuses within a week's time to the Dean's office. Any excuse older than a week is invalid, he warned.

During the first heavy rain there was a marked decrease in attendance because of colds, but the following day, very surely, a miraculously large image number of students had recovered, Dean Brown stated.

Let's Give 'Em ---- Boys Or How Not To Cover An Election

ONE week from today, a two day period, which marks the most important event of the college calendar will be with us. On Wednesday, January 21, and the following day an entirely undeterminable number of voters will elect a Student Body President and a host of lesser officers. It is thus with great responsibility that The Guardsman, as official campus publication, undertakes the duty of election coverage. As the major stories of the semester, the nominating conventions, the campaign, and of course the election results themselves must receive major coverage. This coverage can be carried out in several ways. For instance, the bold approach—
HEADLINES:
"GLORIOUS CANDIDATE OF PARTY Q PRESENTS BRILLIANT CAMPAIGN STATEMENT."
Then with a quick shift to the other side of the fence—
"CANDIDATE OOO OF THOROUGHLY DISCREDITED, XXX PARTY ATTEMPTS FALSEHOOD."
Now let's really give it to 'em—
EDITORIAL:
"It's obvious therefore that we cannot support candidate OOO of the renegade XXX party. We honestly cannot see how college officials here can permit a student who has failed five out of six subjects this semester, who in fact has failed 283 out of 297 subjects taken during his 47 semesters of attendance here and, worst of all, failed to pick up his copy of The Guardsman the fourth week of his 19th semester, to run for office. On the other hand we point with pride to the noble candidate of party Q. Party Q, although thrown off campus 12 times in the last three weeks has overtaken this tremendous disadvantage and nominated the man who . . ."
We hear we shouldn't run an editorial without the backing of a —NEWSTORY.
"In a shocking 'star chamber session' which reeked of graft and corruption OOO was nominated as standard-bearer of the libelous XXX party. This writer, skillfully disguised with buttons and badges, heard one hopeful candidate say to OOO, 'I'll switch my strength to you on the 83rd ballot if you'll sign in for me in Hygiene class.' "
Let's get back to Party Q.
"In a convention marked by democracy in action the Q party was unanimous in their well-forced choice of . . ."
Lots of fire. Lots of spirit. But not a good idea.
Unlike the professional paper. The Guardsman presents the coverage in an entirely impartial style. The professional paper, as witnessed by the recent national campaign supports a candidate. In most cases this support is governed by the choice of the newspaper's publisher. The Guardsman's publishers are the members of the Associated Students which represent a large cross section of the campus studentbody. Our "publishers" therefore represent varied voting interests. For this reason and with the belief that it should deal with issues, not personalities. The Guardsman has in past years remained impartial in election campaigns and we hope it shall continue to do so.
Overshadowing any attempt at levity here is the forthcoming election with its great importance. As far back as last November the first of a series of meetings were held with Guardsmen staff members and leaders of the two campus parties. At these meetings, plans for absolutely impartial coverage were hashed out.
As a result we are able to present the campaign as it should be presented. No slants, no coloring, simply objectivity.
We don't support a candidate. We do support a vote.

College Presents New Psychology TV Series

Know-Yourself-Better To Run 13 Weeks

By Ken Molino

Would you like to "Know Yourself Better?"
Have you ever wondered how you differ from others or whether it really matters? Do you know why you "hurt" or why certain little quirks in people bother you?
These questions have apparently affected other critics of the area because, in answer to their requests, the college begins the third in its television-radio series of programs for college credit next month.
Called "Know Yourself Better," the theme of this new 13 week feature will be Adult Psychology.
According to Phyllis Haley, instructor here and cast in that role on the show, "Adult psychology is many things besides little Viennese men with Van Dyke beards and couches or white mice in a maze."
So much so in fact that the first program will be devoted to discovering how many things the subject encompasses. Our subsequent weekly screenings, Miss Haley and her on-set class will investigate the mysteries of human behavior.
Work has been in progress since early last year to make this program the "best yet" in the college's many range series, according to Henry Leff who is charged with producing the shows.
One unit of free college credit is granted upon successful completion of the course, Leff said, contingent upon the students' ability to pass two mid-term and a final examination. These will be mailed to each set-side student's home.
Complete registration information will be outlined on the first program, date and time of which will be announced shortly, Leff said.

Highlighters

Chance Meeting Leads To New Campus Trio

Rapidly increasing their popularity among music enthusiasts on and off campus, the Highlighters, an instrumental trio featuring Dave Sharkey, string bass; Charlie Oppenheimer, drums; and Don MacDougall, piano, have been and are at the present time fulfilling engagements at many of the Bay Area's social sorority and fraternity functions.
Relatively new to the campus here, the group originated at a chance meeting where they got together and combined their talents. Since then, they have proceeded to improve on their technique and original style of presentation.
Many of their past performances have been connected with the several sororities and fraternities here at the college where the trio combined to produce several dances and social affairs.
Although all of the members of the trio live in San Francisco, their lives have all had a trace of showmanship.
Throughout his high school years, Sharkey has been playing the bass. He also maintains a job in his spare time with two other musical organizations in San Francisco.
Oppenheimer has in the past played with several traveling road troupes, and has been guided by a master of the beat, Gene Krupa.
The only member of the trio that has not professionally participated prior to entering City College has been the pianist, MacDougall. Primarily a classical exponent, he has studied under Alfred Johnson since the age of six.
Even though the men are doubtful as to whether they will pursue their musical interest in the capacity of a trio, it is possible that anyone of them might obtain a playing job with some prominent orchestra in the future.
They are certain of a summer job this year, that being with the Warm Springs Resort deep in the heart of Cheyenne.

Lunch Wagon Well Known Here

"Whatilyahave?" This is the familiar greeting of Khan Mihan one of City College's longtime Associated Student members—six semesters.
Mihan first came to the campus in 1947 and since then he and his wagon have been a combination of gracious host and snackbar for many famished students during lunch time and between classes.
The lunchwagon, which is usually situated at the entrance ramp to the main building, is, in outward appearance, a 1934, VS-1½ ton, Ford truck with an engine that was rebuilt by Mihan himself.
On the inside, however, the innocent-looking-truck outdoes itself. The interior is a "Rube Goldberg" affair, featuring a dry ice freezer, a popcorn machine that operates off of a gas heated device installed on the side of the truck and an endless amount of nooks, crannies and cubicles which contain enough sweets to rot the Statute of Liberty's choppers.

Shots At RAMdom:

Target Practice—Some Bullseyes, Near Misses, Errors At RAMdom

By Edwina Killoren

RAMDOM is a tall target to shoot at. So completely does it encompass students, faculty, tradition, public opinion, that though a writer take careful aim, his words sometimes fall short of their objective.
Shooting at complete Ramdom interest then, we turn to group relations, for all Ramdom is concerned with its individual and collective ego.
In the society in which we move today, many groups are in a perpetual state of conflict. We are an association-conscious people, we like to belong, and in belonging we are inclined to praise or denounce other groups as groups but then consider our own group as composed of individual units. Within our circle we insist on dealing with the individual, with the personal; without, with the group, with the general.
Perhaps our perspective should be reversed, perhaps we look at society through the wrong end of the telescope, compressing all to our own minute interests.
All of Ramdom then, all the singular elements that make it the individual body that it is, should consider other groups as individuals with specific good and bad points before condemning them as a body, and in doing this each group must act not as divided individuals, but as a unit.
Often in writing a column one finds words of interest to only a small faction.
These are the near misses of perhaps the information holds interest only to the writer; these are the errors, but once in a great while the article scores a dead center bullseye and in this is fulfillment.
Thus too, Ramdom polls errors, near misses, and bullseyes as it deals with its individual problems and finds solution through collective action.

Glamor Jobs

Photographers Ask Variety Of Modeling Types

"All models are not glamourpusses."
This statement came last week from the office of Emmett Smith of the college photography department.
Smith, who teaches photographic advertising and fashion photography, said his classes are in need of models of all types, both men and women.
"We're not only interested in the classic statuesque 'Vogue type' model, although I'll be happy to interview such applicants," Smith said, "but I would like to develop a file of people of all types upon whom I might call when a specific job of model casting presents itself in our advertising classes."
Smith indicated that his assignments require as many "Typical Teen Types" as they do high fashion models. He stated that his students often have need for male models.
Asked whether his own students were not used for this type of project, Smith replied that photographers, strangely enough, are usually self-conscious when facing the "business end" of a camera.
He invited all who would be interested in gaining modeling experience or in securing a collection of photographs of themselves to call on him in Room 155 Tuesdays and Thursdays before 3 p.m. or on Monday of Wednesday afternoons. In the meanings of the latter two days Smith may be found in Room 9D on the west campus, he advised.

The President Goes To PRISON?—Just A Visit

Conlan Impressed By San Quentin Atmosphere

By Flick Wiltshire

President Louis G. Conlan and Harry Nelson, floriculture instructor here, paid a visit recently to the state prison at San Quentin, it was learned via an article in that institution's newspaper.
The delegation went to view the prison's horticultural accomplishments, and to discuss with its authorities a two year program of training in that field for its inmates as projected by Conlan who has been acting as consultant to the prison on such matters for some time.
Dr. Conlan was evidently impressed with San Quentin's progress in general, (and in fact may have been impressed by something even more significant), when he was quoted by the prison journal as saying, "San Quentin reminds me very much of a college campus."
Naturally, we were wondering if he had any particular college in mind. So The Guardsman made homage to his GHQ the other day in search of either clarification, rejection, or explosion of the statement.
President Conlan's reaction to our question, it can happily be reported, was a most bemused smile. After assuring The Guardsman that the quote was somewhat lifted from context, he proceeded to elaborate on his impressions of San Quentin.
"The atmosphere in the print, machine, and other craft shops that I visited," he informed us, "was just so unlike what one usually thinks of a prison, that I could not help but be struck by it. The emphasis is on learning, not coercion."
Conlan went into further detail on the matter, and then turned to the controversial subject of parole, which he believes is being intelligently handled by the San Quentin authorities.
"Most people," he said, "do not seem to realize that in many respects there is a greater risk to society and the inmate concerned when the latter is unconditionally released after serving his full time, than when out on parole.
"The longer the individual remains in confinement, the more difficult, as a rule, his rehabilitation to the outside world. And if he should get into trouble after final discharge, the entire process of trial and sentence recommences. He is entirely alone, as regards professional help from the prison staff.
"However, if he be paroled, he is under surveillance by prison authorities, who offer him every counsel and assistance in his struggle to reintegrate with society. It is the feeling today of most in penal work that the latter plan is usually superior."
We thanked President Conlan for his information and left. We felt very well satisfied, but just for fun we glanced along the west campus fences to verify the exits.
Yup, they're still open.

Rams Enter Big Seven Conference Play Tonight

SF Five Captures Visalia Tourney Defeats Ventura, Sequoia College; Places Fourth In Modesto Clash

By Charles Brigham

City College's Rams, who downed Ventura and College of the Sequoias to win the Visalia Invitational Tournament in December, open their Big Seven Conference play tonight at 8 o'clock as they face the hosting West Contra Costa Comets.
In the first game with Ventura, Coach Ralph Hillsman's Rams fought to a lead at the halftime, but found themselves behind at the end of the third period. In the final quarter, however, the long-range accuracy of guards Bob Bondanza and Tony Lazzeri and fine clutch work by Center Ken Collins tied the score at 71-71.
As a clincher, Bondanza and Collins made respective foul shots a few seconds later making it 77-74, as the final buzzer sounded. Forward Bill Gilkey of Ventura was high scorer with 20 points, while Guard Bondanza and Forward Bill Welch accounted for nineteen and eighteen respectively for the Rams.
The next night, City college came from behind in the second half to tie the game with College of the Sequoias in the final minutes.
The lead changed hands twice, and with less than a minute remaining, Lazzeri tied it up with a field goal and then, seconds later, stole the ball, and as the highly partisan stands went wild, drove down court for a layup and dunked as the Rams forged into the lead. As the game ended C.O.S. took the ball out, worked it down court, and Buddy Burgoss, who was high point man for the game with 28, shot and missed. The final was 68-66 for the Rams.
Following Burgoss for high point honors was Collins with 23 and Lazzeri with 18.
Triumphant from their victory at Visalia, the Rams faced Menlo. As the first half ended, it seemed that City College had the game well under control, most of the first string left the game and the second and third strings went in. Menlo, capitalized on this and closed the gap, gained the lead, and held it to the end of the game.
The first club came back in at the game's end to put out the fire and was unable to do so. The final score was Menlo 54, C.C.S.F. 51.
The Rams next met and defeated easily El Camino by a score of 41-35. Lazzeri was high point man with 14.
Two days later the Rams were downed by Fullerton in two overtime periods by a score of 78-73. Dave Hall of Fullerton was high scorer, with 22, followed by Collins of City College with 20. Again City College's opponents won the game against the second string after the first string was taken out with the Rams seemingly secure in a 20 point lead.
Against College of Marin the Rams sparkled, winning handily by a score of 69-50 as Bill Welch and Collins tied for scoring honors with 16 each.
Last weekend the local cagers traveled to Modesto for the State Invitational Tournament for Junior Colleges.
Collins and Lazzeri were on the bench throughout, the one for ineligibility and the other due to injuries. Welch played through the first game and one quarter of the second with a broken nose until it became apparent that he, too, could play no more.
Frank Hess was benched after one quarter in the third game with blisters on his feet, and with Bondanza the only first stringer playing, the opposition could afford to put two men on him to guard him.
In the first game, John Muir downed the Rams, 54-48. Bondanza was high scorer for the Rams with 11. In the second game, C.C.S.F. met and defeated the C.O.S. cagers by a score of 64-58.

Initial Baseball Meeting Tomorrow

All students interested in trying out for the 1953 City College baseball squad, should meet tomorrow in Room 108 in the men's gymnasium at 3:10 p.m.
According to Coach Bill Fischer, the meeting will be held to discuss the coming methods of tryouts and also to obtain facts on the eligibility of all men going out for the sport.

Cage Star Tony Lazerri Caught At Work

Inheriting and developing his athletic ability from his famous father, the late Tony Lazerri of New York Yankee baseball fame, Tony Jr. has proceeded on his own to establish himself as a number one starter on this year's edition of City College basketball.
Lazerri has been considered by some sport writers, and many of those who seem to know the inside of sport talent, as definitely "a boy that bears watching."
Under the guidance of Coach Hillsman, he has been one of those competitors who never gives an inch or asks for one and has proved in more ways than one his potential abilities.

Coach Of The Week Spotlight On Boxing, Golf Mentor Diederichsen

By Fred Fukuchi

This week's coaches spotlight centers around Roy Diederichsen. Diedrichsen, who is now in his sixth year at City College, is head man of the soccer and boxing teams.
Diederichsen graduated from Mission High School where he was a stand out in athletics. He lettered in basketball, baseball, tennis and soccer. In basketball, he was an All-City forward for two years and one year led the city in scoring.
Diederichsen attended San Jose State after graduation from Mission and continued to sparkle in five sports. In boxing at San Jose, he was the 155 pound champion and an all-conference fullback in soccer.
In 1943, he began coaching at Lincoln High here in San Francisco as head basketball and track coach. His Lincoln cagers won the City College Invitational Tourney three years running.
Diederichsen transferred to City College in 1947, and promptly proceeded to build up the Ram boxing team to national fame. The 1947-48-49 Diederichsen boxers were Northern California Junior College Champions. The 1948 team placed second in the nation behind Pasadena City College.

Coach Roy Diederichsen

Diederichsen pointed out that in recent years intercollegiate boxing has been suspended temporarily from the Northern California Junior College athletic curricula because of the current manpower shortage and is now being carried out on an intramural basis.
The City College soccer team, headed by Diederichsen, competes in a league composed of five Bay Area four-year colleges. Against these odds in talent and man power, the Rams have never finished worse than fourth.

Pat Francisco, freshman from Livermore, was Rams' ace safety man . . . intercepted a number of enemy passes.
Harry Lee, sophomore, was another of the 1951 holdovers . . . he played center on offense.
Mat Russell, freshman from Lowell . . . big 205 pound center . . . should be a big help on the line next year.
Paul Papathakis, freshman from Washington was a powerhouse on defense . . . was an All-City center.

Coleman Moss, freshman from Washington was a good defensive lineman.

Conlan, Eisan, Work Post-Season Contests

President Louis G. Conlan went to the Rose Bowl Game, and hygiene instructor Lee Eisan to the East-West Shrine contest, but they didn't have to buy a ticket.
Conlan served as field-judge in the USC-Wisconsin battle, won by the Trojans 7-0, while Eisan served as referee in the Shrine contest which was won by the East for the second year in a row 21-20. Both men said that the games were closely fought and well played.

Soph-Prof Basketball Upset Rumored; Traditional Slated To Hit Hardwoods Jan. 30

Bouncing into what promises to be a "brawl" instead of a ball game, the traditional semi-annual Soph-Prof basketball game will be held Friday, January 30; during college hour in the new gymnasium.
The Fall Soph-Prof game deviates from the Spring traditional in only one respect, that the game played will involve the fine art of shooting a basketball instead of the primitive method of hitting a softball.
Last Spring, the softball game turned out to be a rattling slugfest, with the sophs trouncing the hapless professors into actual submission as the profs couldn't quite seem to cope with youth.
According to some underhanded rumor, the profs have been secretly scrimmaging against the members of the 1952-53 City College varsity, and, as one observer puts it, possess a smooth working unit of blinding speed and amazing shooting accuracy.
Concentrating particularly on his ability to hit 20 out of 20 free throws, Alex "Choke" Shwarz promises to be the outstanding threat as well as Ralph "Hot Eye" Hillsman who has proven himself a very capable long shot artist.
Grover "Galloping" Klemmer, a surprise starter according to pregame talk, may prove to be almost unstoppable as he uses body English to weave his way through the sophomore enemy defenders.
Roy "Dribbling" Diederichsen has in the past been a most reliable man on the prof roster. This year, look out, he's hot!
Hoping to hit for an all high soph-prof game scoring record, Roy "Clutch" Burkhead has been shaping up so rapidly, reports have it that he's been approached by what some might call a subversive character to throw the game.
Here is the remaining schedule: Gamma Phi Ypsilon vs. All-Stars; Burgie AC vs. Pick-Ups; Newman Club vs. Pick-Ups; '69'ers" vs. All-Stars; Gamma Phi Ypsilon vs. Pick-Ups; '69'ers" vs. Burgie AC.
Because of his basketball coaching duties, Coach Hillsman has not devoted as much time as he would like to the intramural program, however, when the cage season terminates, he promises to introduce a cluster of new activities among which will be ping pong, tennis, badminton, volleyball, and full court basketball.

"Pick-Ups" Lead In Intramural Play; Hampered By Rain

Hampered by continual rainfall and by the fact that many of the participants hold after-school jobs, the intramural six-man touch football league, presided over by Coach Ralph Hillsman, has yet to claim a champion, although the season should have been culminated on November 26.
Originally, the circuit was comprised of six teams, but up to date, the All-Stars and Gamma Phi Ypsilon have failed to take part thus adding to the league problems.
Of the games that have been played, the Pick-Ups are still setting the pace with their slate showing two wins in as many outings, followed closely by the "69'ers" who have split their twin encounters.
The Burgie AC, shares the bottom rung with the Newman Clubbers, as both squads are winless. All of the tilts are played at Balboa Park. With the kick-off getting under way at approximately 3 o'clock, Hillsman hopes the clubs will play out the schedule before the termination of the Fall semester.
Here is the remaining schedule: Gamma Phi Ypsilon vs. All-Stars; Burgie AC vs. Pick-Ups; Newman Club vs. Pick-Ups; '69'ers" vs. All-Stars; Gamma Phi Ypsilon vs. Pick-Ups; '69'ers" vs. Burgie AC.

Holiday Grid Games, PCC Slate Recapped

By Dan MacDougall

WITH all the pageantry and splendor so consistently traditional of the annual Shrine East-West game, Saturday, December 27, was no exception, as an eager, expectant, sell-out crowd of some 62,000 fans witnessed the 28th annual edition of "football's finest hour."
Combining the nation's "cream of the crop" in football talent, the Shrine annual event is the kind of attraction that yearly grosses the gate receipts for the benefit of the many crippled children hospitalized in the many Shrine hospitals throughout the country.
Despite a sudden downpour of "California Sunshine," few of the fans who witnessed the event left the contest, and those who didn't, saw one of the finest last minute rallies ever staged by an underdog in San Francisco's Kezar Stadium.
Elsewhere in the world of sports, the famous class of intercollegiate bowl games throughout the nation took form during the New Year holidays. Far and away the most magnificent and colorful was the annual Rose Bowl classic in Pasadena. For the first time in seven years, the Pacific Coast won out as the University of Southern California defeated a top University of Wisconsin aggregation, 7-0 in a bone crushing contest.
As the collegiate scene of football has concluded, basketball has taken over and the hardwoods are ringing with the sound of little feet and dribbled basketballs.
With the PCC cage race only one week old, the University of California, coached by Nibs Price, has already given the followers of the sport something to talk about by taking a pair from the UCLA Bruins.
Taking his victory-hungry Bears, who had lost their four last tilts, into the Bruins' home court, Price and his sure-shooting Bears notched two 72-68 and 68-66 wins Friday the second and Saturday the third of January respectively.
The Trojans from USC shared the spotlight with California in the Southern division, but boasted a better season-al record than Cal.
Forrest Twogood's five downed Bob Burnett's Stanford twice over the January 2 and 3 holiday, 73-53 and 72-63. The two victories gave the Southern Californians a record of 10 straight with no losses and makes them the club to beat for the PCC championship.
Up in the Northern part of the conference, Washington served notice on the coast that it intended to garner the crown from all opposition. With Washingon's Bob Houbregs playing his usual All-American game, the Huskies overcame Oregon on January 2, 79-73 and repeated the performance the following Saturday eve, 76-60.

Nominations For Soph King And Queen End Jan. 23; Dance Schedule For SF Yacht Club

All clubs, sororities and fraternities are invited to nominate candidates for king and queen of the sophomore ball, Dale Stricklin, class president, announced today. The only requirement for eligibility is sophomore standing, he said.

Deadline for entries is Friday, January 23.

Voting is scheduled for the Student Lounge Monday through Wednesday, January 26 to 28. All members of the Associated Students are eligible to vote, Stricklin said.

Feature event of sophomore week is the formal which will be held at the San Francisco Yacht Club from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Saturday, January 31. Bids, which go on sale Monday, January 19, are $2.50 per couple, Stricklin said, and the ball will be semi-formal; dark suits for men and formals for women. Al Wilson, Walt Tolleson and his band have been engaged for the dance.

Highlight of the ball will be the announcement of the king-queen election results and the coronation of the winners, who will each receive loving cups as tokens for the Beta Tau and Theta Tau perpetual trophies, upon which their names will be engraved.

The ball, climaxing soph week, is the last major social activity of the Fall 1952 semester, Stricklin declared

Rams Top Broncos, Cop Third Place In Soccer League

Climaxing their season with an outstanding offensive, the college soccer team splashed to a 3-2 victory over Santa Clara on the Bronco's very wet field last December 10.

Punching over two quick goals in the first quarter, the Rams were never headed.

Larry Acres, the team's leading scorer, scored two of the locals with Antonio Rojo and Hector Llamas contributing one goal apiece.

The local booters finish their season in third position ahead of California and Santa Clara, with perennial champion U.S.F. annexing the top spot and the right to compete in the national championships.

Coach Roy Diederichsen praised the 1952 club as the best defensive and all-around balanced team he has coached in his stay here, with the placing of Joe Hare, Ernie Smith, Issa Jaddarcah and Carlos Monge on the Northern California Intercollegiate Conference team.

Diederichsen added that the tennis season will begin in February and material is needed for the men's varsity team, he asked all interested students to sign up with him in the men's gymnasium now.

Pre-Registration Appointments Urged

Pre-registration for the spring semester continues this week, P. Grant Marsh coordinator of student welfare, said today, again calling attention to the fact that students' registration will be affected by the priority established on their pre-registration numbers. He urged that all students who have not yet done so make appointments immediately.

Barring unanticipated rises in Armed Forces' manpower demands, college enrollment for the spring semester should remain at approximately 5,000, he declared.

Cafeteria Offers Brown-baggers Lunch Bag Special

By Garry Wormser

When it's lunchtime at City College, people eat. Some people eat food and others eat a dry ration that comes in a lunch-bag.

The college cafeteria realizes this, and they also realize that by the time a student has bought a drink to wash down his dry sandwiches and some dessert to top-off the whole kaboodle, he has spent far more than his weekly allowance anticipates.

Therefore, thanks to a lot of generosity and "know how," the cafeteria has taken up where the lunch-bag leaves off and has concocted a "Lunch-Bag Special."

This special consists of soup, a half pint of milk or coffee and the regular luncheon dessert, and you save your money-belt back on, it's all for 25 cents.

The idea, which was evolved by the cafeteria staff a week before Christmas vacation, has already been put into effect, and is expected to continue indefinitely.

Conlan Names Dept. Heads

Designation of departmental chairmen was made last week by President Louis G. Conlan.

The 12 larger departments will be headed by individual chairmen rather than department committees, and the faculty members so designated will serve as members of the President's Council.

The 12 departments and their chairmen are as follows: Business, H. Glenn Mercer; Chemistry, Philip Davidson; Engineering, William K. Mayo; English and Speech, James L. Billwiller; Foreign Languages, Marjorie Balthache; Hotel and Restaurant, Frida L. Watson; Life Sciences, Jules Haden; Mathematics, Ernest Hilferson; Physical Education, Men, John R. Gaddis; Physical Education Women Laurine K. Bergin; Physics, Alfred P. Acosti; Social Sciences, John Gerstung.

As in the past, a number of departments will continue to be under the immediate supervision of Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator, Division of Instruction. Jack Brady, dean of semi-professional courses, or Edward Sandys, dean of general education courses.

Geological Sciences, Journalism, Radio and Television will remain under the direction of Dr. Luckmann.

Advertising Art, Fire College, Floriculture, Graphic Arts, Law Enforcement, Paint Technology, and Photography will be supervised by Dean Brady.

Extension Division, Fine Arts, General Education, Home Economics, Library, Music, Recreational Leadership, and Visual Aids will be supervised by Dean Sandys.

Staff Positions For Forum Open

A number of staff positions for Forum, the college's annual creative writing publication, are still open, according to Joanne Tuohey, Forum editor.

Students interested in assuming the reins of art editor, assistant are editor, or business manager, are invited to apply to Dorothy Mercer, sponsor of the organization, in Building 19 or attend the next Forum discussion group which is scheduled for Thursday evening, January 15, in the library room of Building 2, west campus.

Topic for tomorrow evening's session will be, The Soundness of Modern Attitude Toward Psychology.

This informal discussion group, which meets the second and fourth Thursdays of each month, is also open to anyone who has an idea to contribute on any of a host of varied topics, Miss Tuohey said. The range is from Bop to Bismarck, a different subject under discussion at each meeting.

FINALS END FEB. 5

Final examinations on Thursday, February 5 will close out the current semester on that date, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced today.

Mechanical Defects, Uulawful Mufflers To Be Checked In Tentative Campus Road Block

Showers of news poured from the pen of Campus Police Chief John R. Lewis this week, and he placed emphasis upon the forthcoming "Campus Road-block."

Automobiles will be checked for various types of mechanical defects, and unlawful mufflers. No traffic citations will be awarded to the owners found with faulty cars, but persons whose cars are cited for having mechanical defects will be required to report to the Mechanical Defects Bureau of the Police Academy. There they will be required to show proof that the defects cited here by the Campus Police have been corrected, Lewis stated.

Checks will also be made for automobile registration cards, driver's licenses and parking permits.

Students are urged to report to the Campus Police office building, and to finger-printed so that a student file may be established. This program is in conjunction with a recent request by the National Defense Department.

The Red Chimney Restaurant in the Seventeenth will be the site of the police banquet at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Alumni members are also invited to attend, but will be assessed $1 per person.

Police Chief Lewis has completed a volume of Rules and Regulations for the Campus Police Department. This project took one year of effort on the part of Lewis, and it is the first book of its type for governing the department. Mimeograph copies will be prepared and issued to incoming students of the Law Enforcement School which will be of service and aid to both the new students as well as the "old-timers."

Uncle Sam sent his "greetings" to William Pilsler and Donald Mutch, students of the department, effective at the end of the semester.

Pat Miller To Appear In Radio Debate Jan. 24

Phi Rho Pi, the college debating society, is anticipating a scheduled series of radio debates with other member colleges of the Northern California Forensic Association.

The initial presentation will take place on Saturday, January 17. The college will be represented on Saturday, January 24, by Pat Miller.

Participating in the panel discussions will be four members and a moderator. Participants will express their comments and views in relation to their college education.

Thomas Dutcher, Phi Rho Pi advisor, announced that George Effenberger, in competition with students from major four year universities, was awarded a certificate of great merit for his outstanding efforts at the Student Congress, held December 5 and 6 at St. Mary's College in Moraga, California.

Tea will be served from 2 to 4 p.m. and the guests will be escorted through the School of Nursing of the new hospital. All women students who may be interested in nursing as a profession are welcome, Dean Douglas said.

Club Cavalcade: Exams, Elections Slow Activities

By Betty Wong

ONCE again it's back to the books and the battle begins in long preparations for those fatal finals as the semester comes to a close. Clubs are occupied, by and large, with elections for new officers and otherwise getting the next semester set up on the social side.

Alpha Lambda Chi will hold its business meeting tonight at the home of Millie Pinkus. Plans will be made to round out the semester's activities and lay the groundwork for the social calendar for the Spring semester.

The Collegiate Christian Fellowship held a meeting last Friday during college hour. The group discussed election of new officers and re-laid plans for nominations of new officers. After the business was completed, there was a Bible quiz. President Marilyn Strayer gave the quiz by popular demand based on the success of a previous similar activity. The last meeting of the semester is set tentatively for Friday, January 30. Other meetings will be cancelled because of the coming rally and baseball game activities slated for future college hours.

The Hillel Foundation had a Christmas party at the Community Center before vacation with the chapter from State College. The next meeting of the group will be announced at a later date.

Gamma Phi Upsilon held a meeting last Monday to discuss their election of new officers. The new vice-president of the fraternity is Ecro Makela to replace Al Coppin who was drafted, and the new historian to replace Makela is Erve Cox.

At the last meeting a joint meeting was planned for a future date to be announced next issue.

The Newman Club also had nominations for new officers last Wednesday at their regular meeting. St. Dunstan Hall with dancing and refreshments following the business. The chaplain, Father Edward Cassidy gave the message.

The French Club enjoyed two wonderful Christmas parties before the holidays. One was a Christmas dinner given by the sponsor for the group, Doris Hernfeld, at her home. The other was a house party given by club member Patty Simmons for the group. Two more meetings of the group are slated for this semester, the last one for the express purpose of electing new officers.

Club news was collected Tuesday at Club Activities Board meetings from club representatives for publication in the last issue for this semester. The respective persons so appointed are urged to submit any overlooked item(s) to The Guardsman office before 1 o'clock today.

Heise, Osborne Head Party Tickets

Lack Of Party Affiliation Title Causes Chaos

In a spectacular post-council session last Thursday, the United Students Association threatened withdrawal of its entire slate, charging favoritism in the mailing of sample ballots without party designation.

A compromise with Inter-Fraternity, USA members, and Election Commissioner Don Douglas settled the dispute with the provision that sample ballots will include party affiliation (these ballots will be mailed to students of the college) but that the candidates of all parties will appear by Associated Student office rather than by party on the official election ballot.

This dispute, coming after discussion of same had been ruled out of order at the regular Student Council meeting last Thursday, was referred to an Election Committee meeting, and this action started a wave of confusion and excitement over the words and actions of IFC, USA, Independents, and other interested observers.

For a few suspenseful minutes, a two-party election hung in the balance, while party leaders conferred.

"Misunderstanding and misinterpretation on the part of a few members of each of the parties led to the general but temporary confusion. Fortunately both sides were broad-minded enough to recognize that the situation had dangerous potentialities and immediately dissolved their difficulties by a compromise," Douglas said in a post settlement statement.

Norman Heise

Charles Osborne

"Speaking for both myself, and for the other candidates running on the Inter-Fraternity Council ticket, I can assure you that we will do our utmost to represent the Associated Students.

"Having been active in student government for over a year and a half, we have obtained the experience necessary to represent the Associated Students and our college.

"We feel, therefore, confident and qualified to carry out the duties of the offices, for which our candidates are running, in an intelligent and advantageous manner."

"I am sure that your selection of United Students Association candidates will strengthen, which is expressed around the campus by the majority of voters who join with me in support of a better City College.

"In gratitude and respect for the leaders of our student government whose names you have considered in past elections, may I pay my own personal regards for the contribution and effort they have expended in the past.

"I am confident that my selection as Associated Student President will strengthen both our parties immeasurably for the hard implacable work that lies ahead for all of us."

Alumni Association Elects Frediani As New President

Alumni Association members elected Edwin Frediani, San Francisco attorney, as president, at its November meeting, Joseph Amori, the association's placement director, revealed yesterday.

Other officers elected include Robert Winegardner, vice-president, and Carl Helfenberger, who was appointed to the Executive Board. Gloria Dunn was re-elected as secretary-treasurer.

According to Amori, eligibility for association membership is open to anyone who has attended City College for one or more semesters and left here in good standing.

Membership dues, as stated in the Alumni Association booklet, are $10 for a life membership, $2 for active membership, and $5 for a subscriber membership.

Soph Royalty Nominations Close Friday

By Gloria Lorenzo

The deadline for nomination of candidates for king and queen of the sophomore ball is Friday, January 23, Dale Stricklin, class president, warned today.

He urged all clubs, sororities, and fraternities to submit their candidate entries without delay. Sophomore standing is the only requirement.

Voting for the king and queen will take place in the student lounge on the west campus, Monday through Wednesday, January 26 to 28 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Holders of Associated Student cards are eligible to vote, Stricklin declared.

Bids to the sophomore ball, now on sale, are $2.50 per couple and may be purchased from student salesmen at the Silver Pole in the main building and elsewhere on campus. The dance, climaxing sophomore week, January 26 to January 31, will be held at the Saint Francis Yacht Club on Saturday, January 31. Walt Tolleson and his band will provide music for the 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. dancing.

Leading events of the evening will be the announcement of the results of the king-queen election, and the coronation ceremonies at which time the king and queen will be presented with engraved loving cups by the sophomore class, Stricklin declared. Following this is the coronation waltz led by the king and queen.

The sophomore ball, which is semi-formal, is the last dance of the Fall season, he added.

Stricklin, chairman of the sophomore week election committee, is aided by Charlie Heart, vice-president, Josephine Grannuchi, and Barbara Duhr.

Globe And Anchor To Sponsor Hospital Day

The Globe and Anchor Society is sponsoring a Hospital Day at Oak Knoll Naval Hospital this Sunday, January 25, according to Bob Vazquez, vice-president.

The purpose is to raise the morale of the hospitalized veterans; in conjunction with this, the group of Marine veterans here is soliciting the aid of student talent to plan entertainment.

Vazquez is chairman of the committee, which includes Henry Roebling, Bill Boldenwick, Dena Gofas, George Effenburger, and Pat Miller. Any students interested in adding their talent to further the success of Hospital Day should inform any member of the committee.

Dean Browne Issues Spring Parking Rules

Parking permits for the spring semester will be available to students approximately one week after registration, it was announced this week by Dean Edwin C. Browne.

To obtain the campus parking stickers it will be necessary to present an Associated Student card, and 1953 automobile registration certificate (the white one).

Dr. Sung Speaks In Friday College Hour

College hour this Friday, January 23, at 10:10 a.m., will afford an opportunity for club meetings, it was announced recently by acting Dean of Student Activities Robin Dunn.

In addition to the club meetings during this hour, Dr. William Sung, former president of St. John's University in Shanghai, will lecture on his personal experiences in the Far East as an educator. All students are invited to attend the lecture to be held in Room 100, main building.

The traditional cage battle between the Faculty and the Sophs will be held during the double-college hour session of January 30.

1554 Eligible To Cast Ballot In AS Election

Six Run As Indepents; Watson Quits

With 1554 Associated Student members eligible to vote in AS elections today and tomorrow, and with the two-party system re-established on campus, a heavy and close vote is anticipated.

Student lounge on the west campus, the study hall (basement) of the main building, and the cafeteria have been designated as polling centers for the election. Today, ballots may be cast from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and Thursday from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m., according to Don Douglas, election commissioner.

Two students are running for the office of Associated Student President. A third petitioner, Mel Watson, is no longer a candidate for office in this election.

Norman Heise, current Finance Committee chairman and member of Beta Tau fraternity, is running on the Inter-Fraternity slate opposite Charles Osborne, parliamentarian and Acting Chairman of the United Students Association.

Raymond Dolan, candidate for freshmen council has also withdrawn his name from the election ballot.

With the exception of the office of Associated Women Student President, every post on the ticket is contested. Fighting for the seven sophomore council seats are ten candidates, with 14 aspirants up for the seven freshmen council positions.

Running independently are seven candidates: Julie Hannon for AWS Pfesident; Bill Bixby and Dino Gofas, both for freshman President, and Barbara Campello, Joanne Hassman, Jean Royeski and Jane Zelinsky all for freshmen council.

A double-college hour rally last Friday in the auditorium was the scene for speeches by the presidential and council candidates with between-time entertainment provided by the college band and drama club.

Election campaigning, posters, demonstrations have all led up to this climactic two-day period where for the 35th time since the opening of the College, Associated Students will choose their leaders.

Cloud Scholarship Winners Known Soon

Winners of the Cloud Scholarships will be announced sometime before the end of the semester, according to Thomas Gabbert, chairman of the Cloud Scholarship Committee.

Gabbert announced that although the requirements for the scholarship are as yet unsettled, the awards will be made by the Student Faculty Relations Committee.

Council Acts To Permit Amendments

By Edwina Killoren

Two amendments were added to the election ballot, by virtue of a technical interpretation of the amending clause in the Associated Student Constitution and acceptance by Student Council at last Thursday's meeting.

Article seven of the Constitution states that all amendments proposed shall be published in The Guardsman and/or posted in a public place at least one week before voting takes place. Interpretation of this provision by council, however, allowed for an extra day time limit for the submission and posting of such amendments.

First proposed amendment provides that the Yell Leader shall be appointed by the President and be a member of the President's Cabinet. The making of the office of Yell Leader an appointive rather than an elective office has been a ballot issue in previous elections but has never been passed by the necessary two-thirds majority of votes cast.

Second amendment passed by council would have members of the cabinet appointed by the President within the first three weeks of the new semester. According to its supporters, this amendment would eliminate the sometimes late appointment of important positions such as Election Commissioner and Alumni Liason Officer.

Foster regulations and campaign expenditures were also clarified by Douglas during this day. Accompanying each petition for office, $1.50 was assessed to defray the cost of janitorial services in cleaning up the campus after election of campaign material, and to mail sample ballots to the students, according to Douglas.

Each candidate will be held responsible for the removal of his posters. Any exceptions to these rules must be through the election commissioner's office, Building 2, west campus.

Films Scheduled For College Hour

College hours of January 23 and 30 will offer students the opportunity to witness the showing of California's Natural Resources, a movie packed full of color scenes of California, and Perfect Tribute, the story behind the Gettysburg address.

Included with the showing of Perfect Tribute will be a 11 minute film presentation of The Story That Couldn't Be Printed.

No pictures are scheduled for the week of finals, it was announced this week by Emmett Smith, of the Audio-Visual Aid department.

Hope For The New Semester—An Enlightened Student Body

WELL, we're coming to the end of another semester which means that the traditional "closing out" events are here, or soon will be. Such highly topical events as finals, Sophomore week, the Soph-Prof game, and the election will be things of the past. At the moment however, these happenings are still "news" and biggest of these are the elections. Students here have seen the election rally, seen the posters urging them to vote for this or that candidate, just as they have every semester. We wonder how many editors have written how many editorials to be read by how many people.

These past editors have probably labored in vain, for it is unlikely that many people who couldn't be bothered to vote were moved by their words. On second thought, those who couldn't be bothered to vote most probably couldn't be bothered to read The Guardsman, so at least those voters who did read them might have understood a little better why they were voting and what their vote meant . . . Sorry, we forgot for a moment; nobody ever reads editorials.

At the risk that this will be read only by the cold impersonal eyes of a typesetter who doesn't have an Associated Student card and won't be voting, we shall, rather than attempt where others have failed to harrangue the student body into going to the polls, try to explain why it would do no good.

WE remember writing many weeks ago a piece about the "sense of belonging" which is essential to any student if he is to be at all active socially here. We urged the purchase of an Associated Student card as the first step in the right direction. This card, with nothing else, is worthless. Armed with an Associated Student card, the student is eligible to vote.

Why should he vote? He belongs to no club or service organization. He takes no courses which might lead to extra-curricular activities. He takes no interest in the campus. He has his card; he can cast his ballot as he casts his garbage on the campus grounds. What will that vote mean to him? Absolutely nothing. The student card is merely a ticket which has no value if left in the pocket. It is the student's duty to join in.

So the student joins an organization; he is accepted within his group. Then—and here is that human frailty of which we are all guilty—he is likely to become too engrossed, too one-sided in his out-look.

It is comfortable to be liked. It is comfortable to remain with those who feel secure. But when we do this we tend to shut out the other fellow's point of view. Our group becomes more important than any other, than any election, than the college itself. Simplified, it is hard for the new student to get acquainted and to join in. Those that do are inclined to shut themselves off and over-estimate their own importance.

Under such circumstances it is difficult to get the uninterested and the selfish to go out and vote. The candidates can speak, the posters can spell out, and the editors can write, but to no avail.

Lest we be accused of being pessimistic, let us say that there are STEPS that can be taken to solve the problem. The college must be sold socially as well as academically.

Better than waiting until the student has arrived at the college, where registration lines are confusing enough without the inevitable questionnaire handed out, student leaders could go to the high schools where the college's program could be explained and where questions could be answered. Instead of waiting for club day, where many of the more timid will not show up, the high school student will have a better idea of what to expect here.

WE must not work independently at all times. By working with others we can "see the other person's point," learn more about his group and what it stands for. We would not only improve interest in student elections, we would improve the college, for instead of being one little segment with little or no interest in what happens outside our orbit, we would be united.

We can truthfully say that some steps already are being taken which show definite improvement. Last semester, after the election farce, student leaders gathered and made plans to see that no such thing would happen again. It won't. All too few persons will vote in this election, but those who do, know that they are voting in a hotly contested contest.

For a new party has sprung up, the USA, composed of unaffiliated students who run the risk of being called "red hots" by the disinterested, but who are aided by the IFC which would rather risk defeat in an election which helped the college, than win in a contest which would be detrimental to it. We sincerely congratulate both these parties for an example of co-operation which should be followed.

No, this situation, while left standing a long time, can be remedied if not cured. We hope that the college will have the leadership to do the job.

So Long—It's Been Good To Know You

IF WE were dramatic we'd say "that's thirty!" Instead we'll just say "Amen."

We congratulate Miss Morford who has richly earned her appointment, as we congratulate the other staff members. We may assure our readers a staff under more-than-capable hands as Miss Morford has proved time and time again that she has writing ability, plus leadership. . . .

And we want to thank you, Mr. Typesetter, for putting all the "throughout the lands" and "sad to says" in proper order. It didn't really matter though 'cause you and I know — nobody reads the editorial.

Cycle Completed

High Prices And Draft Problems, Past And Present

By Ken Molino

Ten years ago the college celebrated its eighth birthday. In the first issue of the newspaper that Fall semester of 1943 the masthead bore a then familiar plea proclaiming the necessity for buying war bonds.

Further down on page one, an article announced that 31 members of the college's faculty had left for service and another said that salvage drives were being planned by students.

". . . Upon Peace"

Dr. A. J. Cloud, then president here, wrote a greeting expounding the fact that "free schools depend upon peace." The editorial, written by Bob Cuthbertson, was titled "What You Could Do (for the war effort)."

The war, then a little more than a year old, was top news.

A year later the paper informed that men students still outnumbered women, in spite of demands of the service. Three hundred army cadets were expected in November for basic training, and the men's gymnasium was being readied for their housing.

In a softball game the faculty won over the students 16 to 15 as a result of a home run driven in by "Casey ("Tarzan') Sandys."

Soph Queen . . .

The spring of that year saw three war books added to the library, and the men and women students voted for a sophomore week queen.

By 1945's end, rationing, war, and most shortages were things of the past.

In 1946 Mary Jane Leonard was appointed registrar and Hurley Village and the north campus were dedicated.

In 1948 the news of the semester was made when San Francisco Junior College became City College of San Francisco.

Then UMT?

The Fall of 1949 saw Dr. Conlan take over as president of the College. Universal Military Training was a burning issue of the day.

By the Fall of 1950, the draft was a major problem again and more activities were being affected by—not a war this time—a police action in a place called "Korea." Guardsman issues became vaguely reminiscent of those of 1943.

Prices were high, draft eligible students were worried, and "Savings Bonds" were being plugged.

In less than ten years a cycle was complete.

Do You Know Them?

Dean Stresses Defense Rules

Importance of familarity with defense and air raid regulations here was stressed last week by Dean Louis Batmale.

"While I feel that no danger is evident, we should review our defense and air raid regulations," Dean Batmale said. Batmale believes that many students, especially those new to the campus, are not familiar enough with them.

Following are the regulations:

1. When air raid warning is sounded—five long rings on class bell or air raid siren, on top of the main building, all students leave their classrooms immediately and proceed to the ground floor level according to instructions posted in their classrooms.

2. They should remain there until the "all clear" is sounded, one long bell on class bells.

Tropic Concert Tour Claims Former Coed

Betty McNamara, former opera workshop student here, is now on concert tour in the Carribean area with one of three groups of Hollywood stars.

While at the college, Miss McNamara was active in various opera workshop productions, climaxing her work here with a leading role in last spring's workshop comedy, Gianni Schicchi.

After winning first place in a Hollywood television show, Miss McNamara joined the concert group and since then has traveled with the company through Porto Rico, Jamaica, Trinidad, Panama, and the surrounding areas. The other groups are in Korea and Europe respectively.

Mock 'Sports-Battle' Slated

Shots At RAMdom:

Frowning Over Finals, Fretting Over Figures—Strictly Female

By Lonanne Morford

Those worried looks on the faces of nine tenths of the student body should be an outward manifestation of the eternal anxiety common to the last agonizing throes of each semester. In short the frowns should be proof that students still worry over finals.

However, it is more than likely, with fashion editors changing the hypothetical ideal in female figures as often as the wind changes, figuratively speaking, the worried looks (on the female faces, at least) are due to mental contemplation of a caloric chart.

To be or not to be the facsimile of a New York high fashion model—that seems to be the question these days.

The artistically slim type versus the natural weight chart type is the battle ranging all the way from the artist's drawing board to the woman on the street car or more aptly, in this case, the college girl.

VERY DEFINITE

As far as Harry Conover, head of one large New York modeling agency, is concerned there is no question involved. He declared to the public, via the newspaper medium, that he is hiring no more of the starved type for reasons of beauty, health and waspish temperaments.

Forgotten in the battle seems to be the male of the species. Other than fashion experts and other males professionally interested in fashion, the view point of the nation's men has so long been overlooked that it has become doubtful that he still cares.

Dress styles have gone from hoops to bustles, from exposed knees to demurely covered ankles, and men have remained impassively content with whatever the designer dictates.

REALLY PLEASING?

American women have sheared their heads to acquire the poodle cut or they have resorted to the horsetail in an effort to make their clothing and hair styles harmonize. Nonsense!

Long ago, it was believed that styles were set to please the appraising eyes of men, but the poor man has suffered from the hour class figure to the little boy look and back again without so much as a dissenting murmur.

Women, and college girls in particular, have starved themselves and spent so much time studying calorie charts that their conversation has become unchanged. They fight the battle of the bulge with such vigor that they have little energy left for academic studies. To be brief, they are in a rut.

Who knows what type of figure the average American woman actually has? Is she inclined to be plump or would she remain slim and trim without dieting? Admittedly it would be a risk, but wouldn't it be interesting if some experimenting were done along that line? Who knows, she may have a better natural figure than anything a fashion designer's imagination could conjure.

ANY PREFERENCE?

Maybe all that is needed is for more men to say what they prefer when it comes to hemline, padded hip lines, and the little boy look.

Their opinions might prove quite surprising to the fashion world, and quite a relief to confused womanhood.

Canine Queen Crowned; Campus Cockers Howl With Delight

By Garry Wormser

After a bitter "dog eat dog" contest last week, the college Cocker Club finally elected Buffy Browne, charming "daughter" of Dean Edwin C. Browne, as their Homecoming Canine Queen for 1953.

According to the contest judges, the Hon. "Boots the Cocker" McCloud and "Otto the Daschund" Ancker, Buffy definitely has the finest set of "gams" in dogdom, all four of which are said to function in perfect coordination.

Her all-over measurements are just a trifle short of natural perfection, with a fore and aft measurement of 37 inches and a natural blonde coat with the curls in the right places.

While Buffy was being questioned by newsmen, your Guardsman reporter interviewed the proud and blushing Dean. Here are a few quotes from the conversation:

Question: "How old is Buffy?"

Answer: "Five years come 'Michael-Mass."

Question: "What is her occupation?"

Answer: "Baby Sitter, she has been sitting and waiting for five years."

Q: "In what capacity has Buffy helped to keep peace and tranquility within your home?"

A: "She gets the morning paper for her father who, in return for her service, rewards her with (4) four Milk Bone dog biscuits, (medium size)."

Q: "How is her appetite?"

A: "She likes biscuits, parker-house rolls, and strangers."

Soph-Prof Clash Offers Surprises

By Don MacDougall

As the early morning sun rises over the blue waters of San Francisco Bay, souls are trembling, and pulses beat with rapid eagerness on the entire City College campus, which filled with anticipation, awaits the fateful day of January 30, when humble hearts will witness the eighth annual Soph-Prof basketball game.

Shrouded in a mask of virtual darkness, the secret practice sessions currently held in the men's gymnasium after dark, are being discussed only in whispers. Barbed wire has been reported placed around the entire building to ward off curious students, and the doors are reported in the process of being barred.

Resorting to ingenuity, this reporter climbed to the top of the gymnasium late last night. Trying futilely to spy through the skylight he was shot at with what sounded like a 99 gauge elephant gun.

Unable to see anything, all that he heard was the cracking of whips and the agonized cry of some poor soul filling the air. Undoubtedly, some nosey sophomore being tortured, who by now, is lost forever to his class.

Several extra janitors have been hired to mop up blood from the gymnasium floor. Reports have it that one of them is obtaining valuable experience for his job on the 30th by cleaning the hardwoods for the profs after their deadly scrimmages.

Still rating it top secret, Dale Stricklin along with Charlie Heart and manager Warren Hagberg, have as yet not released their roster list.

Limitations on seating capacity have been set at 25,000. Official observers say, "Bring yourself and take a friend, something sociable, about 80 proof, that can absorb a shock."

Ram Cindermen Open 1953 Spring Practice Three Weeks Earlier Than Scheduled; Coach Burkhead Directs

By Fred Fukuchi

The 1953 edition of City College's track and field team opened practice yesterday, three weeks early, with preliminary workouts designed to concentrate on early season conditioning.

The Ram thinclads, who last year placed third in the state meet at Santa Rosa, have suffered heavily by graduation, and as it now appears only two holdovers are returning from the 1952 squad.

The two returnees are Van Parish and Walt Rilliet, whom the Rams will depend on heavily as point earners.

Parish, who runs the 100 yard dash and the 220 yard low hurdles, placed third in the 100 in the state meet last season and tallied 24 points in the hurdles during the 1952 campaign. Rilliet, ex-Oakland High shot put and discus thrower scored 14 and 7 points respectively in his two specialties.

Head coach Roy Burkhead pointed out some of the early turnouts for the new squad were Bill Rumford and Al Palacio.

Rumford was ineligible last season but worked out with the squad. The ex-Oakland High School middle distance runner is an early candidate for the 440 and 880 runs.

Palacio, a Balboa graduate, for three years was one of the finest in the city. He was also city high jump champion in 1951.

City College will practice on the Riordan High School track which is the newest in San Francisco and one of the finest in the Bay Area. Practice runs daily from 2 to 5 p.m. Burkhead assures candidates that there are positions open in every event. Assisting Burkhead will be Grover Klemmer, who by no means is a stranger to the running game.

Burkhead said that "Some men refuse to come out for the team in fear of losing a year's eligibility for participating in junior college, but the fact is," he added, "any one transferring from one institution to another automatically loses a year."

Nine contests constitute the 1953 track schedule for the cindermen of the college, with the opening contest on Saturday, March 14, at Kezar Stadium when they meet the Junior Varsity of U.S.F. and San Mateo.

San Francisco State's Stadium will be the scene of the Saturday, March 28, battle between Santa Rosa and S. F. State. On the following Saturday the Rams journey to U. of California's "Strawberry Canyon" as they meet Cal's Junior Varsity, and Modesto. "Down on the Farm" will be the theme on Saturday, April 11, as Stanford's Junior Varsity, Contra Costa West and the Rams collide. Stockton College will play host on April 18, with Sacramento varsity also participating.

May 2 will open the Big Seven Conference meet, and the Fresno Relays will be staged on May 9. California Relays, at Modesto, on May 23. The season will conclude on May 23 with the California State Junior College Meet.

RAMblings . . . Bears In First Place Tie In PCC Race

By Don MacDougall

CLIMAXING a fast week of PCC intercollegiate basketball, the University of California, Golden Bears are still retaining the Southern Division lead as a result of a loss suffered from the highly underdogged Stanford Indians.

Pacing Stanford's inspired Indians in their current series of outings is diminutive Ron Tomsic, who led the crushing attack January 10 that delivered a 76-60 blow to stop Cal's unbeaten string of victories.

This was Stanford's first conference win of the season, and as a result of controlling the backboards all the way, the Indians forged ahead in the second quarter and from there, were never headed.

The "Cager of the Week," during that week, Cal's Bob McKeen tallied a total of 15 points as did the Bear's Bob Matheny, former City College basketball star. High in the scoring department for the hustling Indians was Tomsic potting a stellar 19 points.

PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Paul Vukicevich, USF's "Smooth Siberian," has been designated the Northern California collegiate "Player of the Week" for the second time by the Northern California Basketball Writers and Sportcasters Association.

His sparkling performances against the Santa Clara Broncos and the Saint Mary's Gaels set the foundation for the Don's second and third wins in the California Association, and won him the honor in a close contest with the aforementioned Tomsic of the Stanford Indians.

Phil Woolpert, commenting upon his past outings puts it, "Paul is comparatively unemotional, tough to get rattled, and has learned to get the most out of what athletic ability he has. He's a wonderful leader as well, and is extremely popular among his own teammates."

As the previous football season schedules have been completed for another year, the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) has settled down to pick its tournament dates, thereby starting a week-long tussle with the Nation's college sports problems.

TV ANGLE

Concentrating mainly on the television and radio angles and the college proper, the NCAA is now in the process of debating the following questions:

1. Should strict curbs be kept on televising football games? Or should all controls be dropped, as suggested by Notre Dame and Pennsylvania?

2. Should football bowl games be televised, or are they really a part of the college picture which should be continued?

3. Should the NCAA constitution be tightened so that those who violate NCAA rulings can be punished quickly and effectively?

As of last year, the NCAA climped a tight control on the televising of one game a week. The television committee has already reported on the situation and finds that it appears "satisfactory" so it seems that a somewhat similar program will be suggested for next season.

Coach Jack Gaddy Featured As Coach Of Week

By Al Palacio

A charter member of the City College faculty is the subject of this week's portrait, Jack Gaddy, personable chairman of the men's physical education department and a former athletic luminary, deserves an accolade for the fine job he has done in directing the men's athletic program here.

Gaddy attended Kelseyville High School in Lake County where he garnered All-League honors in both basketball and baseball.

In 1929, following his graduation, he moved on to the University of San Francisco, majoring in physical education. Here Gaddy performed enough feats in sports to gain himself a reputation as one of that college's outstanding athletes.

During his stay at USF, Gaddy cavorted on the football, basketball, and baseball squads.

His grid exploits earned him an end berth on the mythical All-Coast eleven and also a bid to play in the Shrine East-West game.

In basketball, he starred on the starting varsity five in his senior year.

At the conclusion of his collegiate baseball career, Gaddy was picked by Collier's Magazine as a center-fielder on the All-American nine.

Gaddy gained his sheepskin from the hilltop in 1933 and he completed his general secondary studies at the University of California.

He migrated to City College in 1935 and, at different times, he coached football, basketball, and baseball prior to assuming his present position as athletic director.

Among outside activities, Gaddy has served as field judge in grid tilts in the Pacific Coast Conference, the now defunct All-America Professional Football Conference, and the National Football League. His association with the latter terminated last year.

The entire coaching staff at City College unanimously credits Gaddy's prominent contributions to the local sports scene.

CHAIRMAN of the men's physical education department and himself a former athletic personality of repute, Coach Jack Gaddy has headed the athletic events of the college for the past seven years. Although concentrating his many interests at the present time, Coach Gaddy has in the past devoted his many free hours to football in the capacity of a field judge. During his college years, Gaddy was a recognized All-American and of the University of San Francisco and also participated in the annual East-West grid classic of 1933.

Rams Drop League Opener To WCC Comets 63-52; 53-52 Win Over Sacramento Panthers

By Charles Brigham

The City College Rams met West Contra Costa last Wednesday night at Richmond, losing by a score of 62-51 in a game that was actually shorter than regulation length.

The West Contra Costans gained an early lead which they held throughout the game in varying degrees, and one which the Rams, still feeling the loss of first stringers Kenny Collins and Tony Lazzeri, were not able to overcome.

The game featured the sharpshooting of Comet forward McKelvey, who was high point man for the game with 28 points, while San Francisco's Jerry Stack hit 18.

It was not until the fourth quarter, when the Rams were showing signs of life and had closed the gap to six points, that anyone realized that the official timekeeper, accustomed to allowing for eight minute quarters in high school games, had been starting the clock at eight minutes in this game.

After lengthy controversy, during which the tired Contra Costans had time to rest, the game was begun again with the clock at ten minutes. However, six minutes of the game had been unplayed when the final buzzer sounded, which could conceivably have made a difference had they been played.

On Saturday night, City College defeated Sacramento in a thriller at City College gymnasium by a score of 53-52.

A gratifying crowd watched the Rams, paced by the scoring accuracy of Frank Hess and Stack, and fine ball-handling and defensive work of Captain Bobby Bondanza, and the rebounding efforts of Bill Welch and Rudy Knudsen, take the lead at half-time.

The second half saw the Sacramento team close the lead, until finally, in the last quarter, City College held only a two point margin.

With three minutes to go, the Rams went into a stall against time in an effort to control the ball until the game's end, and were successful until, with about a minute left to play, a foul was called against the Rams.

With the new rule in effect, any foul within the last three minutes is a two-shot foul. This gave Sacramento a chance to tie the score.

The stands watched breathlessly as forward Syftestad's first shot rimmed the basket and rolled out. Although he made his second shot, the Rams still had the lead, and resumed their stall.

Then, with half a minute left, City College lost the ball and the Panther coach called time out. When time in was called, the Sacramento team took the ball out, but were so hard-pressed by the determined Ram defense that they were unable to get a shot off before the final buzzer.

High point man for the game was San Francisco's Hess, who hit 18, followed by Al Masters of Sacramento with 17 and Stack of the Rams with 16.

City's next game is scheduled with Stockton at Stockton tomorrow night, and their next home game is with Modesto next Friday.

Block SF Society Presents Dance

Block S. F. Society members last week chose their semi-annual date as Saturday night, February 28, following the City College and San Mateo basketball game.

Fred Quinn, president of the society, stated that the proposed date of the dance is pending approval from Robin Dunn, assistant dean of student activities.

"At the present time," Dunn said, "members are working on the procurement of new membership cards and the re-election of officers."

With the completion of football and soccer, 32 more names were added to the roster of the society to raise the total to 102.

The membership of the Block S. F. Society is composed of men who have won a letter in any City College sport. The method of earning a letter varies with the sport, but the coach of each sport must recommend an athlete before he receives a block.

Hope For The New Semester— An Enlightened Student Body

WELL, we're coming to the end of another semester which means that the traditional "c'. ing out" events are here, or soon will be. Such highly topical events as finals, Sophomore week, the Soph-Prof game, and the election will be things of the past. At the moment however, these happenings are still "news" and biggest of these are the elections. Students here have seen the election rally, seen the posters urging them to vote for this or that candidate, just as they have every semester. We wonder how many editors have written how many editorials to be read by how many people.

These past editors have probably labored in vain, for it is unlikely that many people who couldn't be bothered to vote were moved by their words. On second thought, those who couldn't be bothered to vote most probably couldn't be bothered to read The Guardsman, so at least those voters who did read them might have understood a little better why they were voting and what their vote meant . . . Sorry, we forgot for a moment; nobody ever reads editorials.

At the risk that this will be read only by the cold impersonal eyes of a typesetter who doesn't have an Associated Student card and won't be voting, we shall, rather than attempt where others have failed to harrangue the student body into going to the polls, try to explain why it would do no good.

WE remember writing many weeks ago a piece about the "sense of belonging" which is essential to any student if he is to be at all active socially here. We urged the purchase of an Associated Student card as the first step in the right direction. This card, with nothing else, is worthless. Armed with an Associated Student card, the student is eligible to vote.

Why should he vote? He belongs to no club or service organization. He takes no courses which might lead to extra-curricular activities. He takes no interest in the campus. He has his card; he can cast his ballot as he casts his garbage on the campus grounds. What will that vote mean to him? Absolutely nothing. The student card is merely a ticket which has no value if left in the pocket. It is the student's duty to join in.

So the student joins an organization; he is accepted within his group. Then—and here is that human frailty of which we are all guilty—he is likely to become too engrossed, too one-sided in his out-look.

It is comfortable to be liked. It is comfortable to remain with those who feel secure. But when we do this we tend to shut out the other fellow's point of view. Our group becomes more important than any other, than any election, than the college itself. Simplified, it is hard for the new student to get acquainted and to join in. Those that do are inclined to shut themselves off and over-estimate their own importance.

Under such circumstances it is difficult to get the uninterested and the selfish to go out and vote. The candidates can speak, the posters can spell out, and the editors can write, hut to no avail.

Lest we be accused of being pessimistic, let us say that there are STEPS that can be taken to solve the problem. The college must be sold socially as well as academically.

Better than waiting until the student has arrived at the college, where registration lines are confusing enough without the inevitable questionnaire handed out, student leaders could go to the high schools where the college's program could be explained and where questions could be answered. Instead of waiting for club day, where many of the more timid will not show up, the high school student will have a better idea of what to expect here.

WE must not work independently at all times. By working with others we can "see the other person's point," learn more about his group and what it stands for. We would not only improve interest in student elections, we would improve the college, for instead of being one little segment with little or no interest in what happens outside our orbit, we would be united.

We can truthfully say that some steps already are being taken which show definite improvement. Last semester, after the election farce, student leaders gathered and made plans to see that no such thing would happen again. It won't. All too few persons will vote in this election, but those who do, know that they are voting in a hotly contested contest.

For a new party has sprung up, the USA, composed of unaffiliated students who run the risk of being called "red hots" by the disinterested, but who are aided by the IFC which would rather risk defeat in an election which helped the college, than win in a contest which would be detrimental to it. We sincerely congratulate both these parties for an example of co-operation which should be followed.

No, this situation, while left standing a long time, can be remedied if not cured. We hope that the college will have the leadership to do the job.

So Long—It's Been Good To Know You

We congratulate Miss Morford who has richly earned her appointment, as we congratulate the other staff members. We may assure our readers a staff under more-than-capable hands as Miss Morford has proved time and time again that she has writing ability, plus leadership. . . .

And we want to thank you, Mr. Typesetter, for putting all the "throughout the lands" and "sad to says" in proper order. It didn't really matter though 'cause you and I know — nobody reads the editorial.

Cycle Completed

High Prices And Draft Problems, Past And Present

By Ken Molino

Ten years ago the college celebrated its eighth birthday. In the first issue of the newspaper that Fall semester of 1943 the masthead bore a then familiar plea proclaiming the necessity for buying war bonds.

Further down on page one, an article announced that 31 members of the college's faculty had left for service and another said that scrap drives were being planned by students.

". . . Upon Peace"

Dr. A. J. Cloud, then president here, wrote a greeting expounding the fact that "free schools depend upon peace." The editorial, written by Bob Cuthbertson, was titled "What You Could Do (for the war effort)."

The war, then a little more than a year old, was top news.

A year later the paper informed that men students still outnumbered women, in spite of demands of the service. Three hundred army cadets were expected in November for basic training, and the men's gymnasium was being readied for their housing.

In a softball game the faculty won over the students 16 to 15 as a result of a home run driven in by "Cnsey ("Tarzan") Sandys."

Soph Queen . . .

The spring of that year saw three war books added to the library, and the men and women students voted for a sophomore week queen.

By 1945's end, rationing, war, and most shortages were things of the past.

In 1946 Mary Jane Leonard was appointed registrar and Hurley Village and the north campus were dedicated.

In 1948 big news of the semester was made when San Francisco Junior College became City College of San Francisco.

Then UMT?

The Fall of 1949 saw Dr Conlan take over as president of the College. Universal Military Training was a burning issue of the day.

By the Fall of 1950, the draft was a major problem again and more activities were being affected by—not a war this time—a police action in a place called "Korea." Guardsman issues became vaguely reminiscent of those of 1943.

Prices were high, draft eligible students were worried, and "Savings Bonds" were being plugged.

In less than ten years n cycle was complete.

Do You Know Them?

Dean Stresses Defense Rules

Importance of familarity with defense and air raid regulations here was stressed last week by Dean Louis Batmale.

"While I feel that no danger is evident, we should review our defense and air raid regulations," Dean Batmale said. Batmale believes that many students, especially those new to the campus, are not familiar enough with them.

Following are the regulations:

1. When air raid warning is sounded—five long rings on class bell or air raid siren, on top of the main building, all students leave their classrooms immediately and proceed to the ground floor level according to instructions posted in their classrooms.

2. They should remain there until the "all clear" is sounded, one long bell on class bells.

Tropic Concert Tour Claims Former Coed

Betty McNamara, former opera workshop student here, is now on concert tour in the Carribean area with one of three groups of Hollywood stars.

While at the college, Miss McNamara was active in various opera workshop productions, climaxing her work here with a leading role in last spring's workshop comedy, Gianni Schicchi.

After winning first place in a Hollywood television show, Miss McNamara joined the concert group and since then has traveled with the company through Porto Rico, Jamaica, Trinidad, Panama, and the surrounding areas. The other groups are in Korea and Europe respectively.

Mock 'Sports-Battle' Slated

YOU REALIZE, OF COURSE, THAT SKILL WILL BE THE DETERMINING FACTOR OF THIS ENCOUNTER.

Shots At RAMdom:

Frowning Over Finals, Fretting Over Figures—Strictly Female

By Louanne Morford

Those worried looks on the faces of nine tenths of the student body should be an outward manifestation of the eternal anxiety common to the last agonizing throes of each semester. In short the frowns should be proof that students still worry over finals.

However, it is more than likely, with fashion editors changing the hypothetical ideal in female figures as often as the wind changes, figuratively speaking, the worried looks (on the female faces, at least) are due to mental contemplation of a calorie chart.

To be or not to be the facsimile of a New York high fashion model—that seems to be the question these days.

The artistically slim type versus the natural weight chart type is the battle ranging all the way from the artist's drawing board to the woman on the street car or more aptly, in this case, the college girl.

VERY DEFINITE

As far as Harry Conover, head of one large New York modeling agency, is concerned there is no question involved. He declared to the public, via the newspaper medium, that he is hiring no more of the starved type for reasons of beauty, health and waspish temperaments.

Forgotten in the battle seems to be the male of the species. Other than fashion experts and other males professionally interested in fashion, the view point of the nation's men has so long been overlooked that it has become doubtful that he still cares.

Dress styles have gone from hoops to hustles, from exposed knees to demurely covered ankles, and men have remained impassively content with whatever the designer dictates.

REALLY PLEASING?

American women have sheared their heads to acquire the poodle cut or they have resorted to the horsetail in an effort to make their clothing and hair styles harmonize. Nonsense!

Long ago, it was believed that styles were set to please the appraising eyes of men, but the poor male has suffered from the hour glass figure to the little boy look and back again without so much as a dissenting murmur.

Women, and college girls in particular, have starved themselves and spent so much time studying calorie charts that their conversation has become hackneyed. They fight the battle of the bulge with such vigor that they have little energy left for academic studies. To be brief, they are in a rut.

Who knows what type of figure the average American woman actually has? Is she inclined to be plump or would she remain slim and trim without dieting? Admittedly it would be a risk, but wouldn't it be interesting if some experimenting were done along that line? Who knows, she may have a better natural figure than anything a fashion designer's imagination could conjure.

ANY PREFERENCE?

Maybe all that is needed is for more men to say what they prefer when it comes to hemlines, padded hip lines, and the little boy look.

Their opinions might prove quite surprising to the fashion world, and quite a relief to confused womanhood.

Canine Queen Crowned; Campus Cockers Howl With Delight

By Garry Wormser

After a bitter "dog eat dog" contest last week, the college Cocker Club finally elected Buffy Browne, charming "daughter" of Dean Edwin C. Browne, as their Homecoming Canine Queen for 1953.

According to the contest judges, the Hon. "Boots the Cocker" McCloud and "Otto the Daschund" Ancker, Buffy definitely has the finest set of "gangs" in dogdom, all four of which are said to function in perfect coordination.

Her all-over measurements are just a trifle short of natural perfection, with a fore and aft measurement of 37 inches and a natural blonde coat with the curls in the right places.

While Buffy was being questioned by newsmen, your Guardsman reporter interviewed the proud and blushing Dean. Here are a few quotes from the conversation:

Question: "How old is Buffy?"

Answer: "Five years come 'Michael-Mass.'"

Question: "What is her occupation?"

Answer: "Baby Sitter, she has been sitting and waiting for five years."

Q: "In what capacity has Buffy helped to keep peace and tranquility within your home?"

A: "She gets the morning paper for her father who, in return for her service, rewards her with (4) four Milk Bone dog biscuits, (medium size)."

Q: "How is her appetite?"

A: "She likes biscuits, parker-house rolls, and strangers."

Soph-Prof Clash Offers Surprises

By Don MacDougall

As the early morning sun rises over the blue waters of San Francisco Bay, nerves are trembling, and pulses beat with rapid eagerness on the entire City College campus, which filled with anticipation, awaits the fateful day of January 30, when humble hearts will witness the eighth annual Soph-Prof basketball game.

Shrouded in a mask of virtual darkness, the secret practice sessions currently held in the men's gymnasium after dark, are being discussed only in whispers. Barbed wire has been reported placed around the entire building to ward off curious students, and the doors are reported in the process of being barred.

Resorting to ingenuity, this reporter climbed to the top of the gymnasium late last night. Trying futilely to spy through the skylight he was shot at with what sounded like a 99 gauge elephant gun.

Unable to see anything, all that he heard was the cracking of whips and the agonized cry of some poor soul filling the air. Undoubtedly, some nosey sophomore being tortured, who by now, is lost forever to his class.

Several extra janitors have been hired to mop up blood from the gymnasium floor. Reports have it that one of them is obtaining valuable experience for his job on the 30th by cleaning the hardwoods for the profs after their deadly scrimmages.

"Handsome" Jack Brisly [illegible]

the profs revealed for the first time his roster: Ed "Tarzan" Sandys, Louie "Casey" Batmale, Mike "Pro" Cahn, Robin "Inna" Dunn, Lee "Bulldog" Eisan, Don "Zoe Ann" Jansen, Roy "Pahoka" Burkhead, Roy "Dutch" Diedgrichsen, Joe "Hurring" Amori, Bill "No Hit" Fischer, Jack "Smiling" Gaddy, Alex "Choke" Schwarz, Ralph "Hot Eye" Hillsman, and Grover "Galloping" Klemmer..

Still rating it top secret, Dale Stricklin along with Charlie Heart and manager Warren Hagberg, have as yet not released their roster list.

Limitations on seating capacity have been set at 25,000. Official observers say, "Bring yourself and take a friend, something sociable, about so [illegible] that can absorb a shock."

Ram Cindermen Open 1953 Spring Practice Three Weeks Earlier Than Scheduled; Coach Burkhead Directs

By Fred Fukuchi

The 1953 edition of City College's track and field team opened practice yesterday, three weeks early, with preliminary workouts designed to concentrate on early season conditioning.

The Ram thinclads, who last year placed third in the state meet at Santa Rosa, have suffered heavily by graduation, and as it now appears only two holdovers are returning from the 1952 squad.

The two returnees are Van Parish and Walt Rilliet, whom the Rams will depend on heavily as point earners.

Parish, who runs the 100 yard dash and the 220 yard low hurdles, placed third in the 100 in the state meet last season and tallied 24 points in the hurdles during the 1952 campaign. Rilliet, ex-Oakland High shot put and discus thrower scored 14 and 7 points respectively in his two specialties.

Head coach Roy Burkhead pointed out some of the early turnouts for the new squad were Bill Rumford and Al Palacio.

Rumford was ineligible last season but worked out with the squad. The ex-Oakland High School middle distance runner is an early candidate for the 440 and 880 runs.

Palacio, a Balboa graduate, for three years was one of the finest in the city. He was also city high jump champion in 1951.

City College will practice on the Kiordan High School track which is the newest in San Francisco and one of the finest in the Bay Area. Practice runs daily from 2 to 5 p.m. Burkhead assures candidates that there are positions open in every event. Assisting Burkhead will be Grover Klemmer, who by no means is a stranger to the running game.

Burkhead said that "Some men refuse to come out for the team in fear of losing a year's eligibility for participating in junior college, but the fact is," he added, "any one transferring from one institution to another automatically loses a year."

Nine contests constitute the 1953 track schedule for the cindermen of the college, with the opening contest on Saturday, March 14, at Kezar Stadium when they meet the Junior Varsity of U.S.F. and San Mateo.

San Francisco State's stadium will be the scene of the Saturday, March 28, battle between Santa Rosa and S. F. State. On the following Saturday the Rams journey to U. of California's "Strawberry Canyon" as they meet Cal's Junior Varsity, and Modesto. "Down on the Farm" will be the theme on Saturday, April 11, as Stanford's Junior Varsity, Contra Costa West and the Rams collide. Stockton College will play host on April 18, with Sacramento varsity also participating.

May 2 will open the Big Seven Conference meet, and the Fresno Relays will be staged on May 9 California Relays, at Modesto, on May 23. The season will conclude on May 23 with the California State Junior College Meet.

Coach Jack Gaddy Featured As Coach Of Week

By Al Palacio

A charter member of the City College faculty is the subject of this week's portrait. Jack Gaddy, personable chairman of the men's physical education department and a former athletic luminary, deserves an accolade for the fine job he has done in directing the men's athletic program here.

Gaddy attended Kelseyville High School in Lake County where he garnered All-League honors in both basketball and baseball.

In 1929, following his graduation, he moved on to the University of San Francisco, majoring in physical education. Here Gaddy performed enough feats in sports to gain himself a reputation as one of that college's outstanding athletes.

During his stay at USF, Gaddy cavorted on the football, basketball, and baseball squads.

His grid exploits earned him an end berth on the mythical All-Coast eleven and also a bid to play in the Shrine East-West game.

In basketball, he starred on the starting varsity five in his senior year.

At the conclusion of his collegiate baseball career, Gaddy was picked by Collier's Magazine as a center-fielder on the All-American nine.

Gaddy gained his sheepskin from the hilltop in 1933 and he completed his general secondary studies at the University of California.

He migrated to City College in 1935 and, at different times, he coached football, basketball, and baseball prior to assuming his present position as athletic director.

Among outside activities, Gaddy has served as field judge in grid tilts in the Pacific Coast Conference, the now defunct All-America Professional Football Conference, and the National Football League. His association with the latter terminated last year.

The entire coaching staff at City College unanimously credits Gaddy's prominent contributions to the local sports scene.

CHAIRMAN of the men's physical education department and himself a former athletic personality of repute, Coach Jack Gaddy has headed the athletic events of the college for the past seven years. Although concentrating his many interests at the present time, Coach Gaddy has in the past devoted his many free hours to football in the capacity of a field judge. During his college years, Gaddy was a recognized All-American end at the University of San Francisco and also participated in the annual East-West grid classic of 1933.

Bears In First Place Tie In PCC Race

By Don MacDougall

CLIMAXING a fast week of PCC intercollegiate basketball, the University of California Golden Bears are still retaining the Southern Division lead as a result of a loss suffered from the highly underdogged Stanford Indians.

Pacing Stanford's inspired Indians in their current series of outings is diminutive Ron Tomsic, who led the crushing attack January 10 that delivered a 76-60 blow to stop Cal's unbeaten string of victories.

This was Stanford's first conference win of the season, and as a result of controlling the backboards all the way, the Indians forged ahead in the second quarter and from there, were never headed.

The "Cager of the Week," during that week, Cal's Bob McKeen tallied a total of 15 points as did the Bear's Bob Matheny, former City College basketball star. High in the scoring department for the hustling Indians was Tomsic potting a stellar 19 points.

PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Paul Vukicevich, USF's "Smooth Siberian," has been designated the Northern California collegiate "Player of the Week" for the second time by the Northern California Basketball Writers and Sportcasters Association.

His sparkling performances against the Santa Clara Broncos and the Saint Mary's Gaels set the foundation for the Don's second and third wins in the California Association, and won him the honor in a close contest with the aforementioned Tomsic of the Stanford Indians.

Phil Woolpert, commenting upon his past outings puts it, "Paul is comparatively unemotional, tough to get rattled, and has learned to get the most out of what athletic ability he has. He's a wonderful leader as well and is extremely popular among his own teammates."

—As the previous football season schedules have been completed for another year, the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) has settled down to pick its tournament dates, thereby starting a week-long tussle with the Nation's college sports problems.

TV AGGLE

Concentrating mainly on the television and radio angles and the college proper, the NCAA is now in the process of debating the following questions:

1. Should strict curbs be kept on televising football games? Or should all controls be dropped, as suggested by Notre Dame and Pennsylvania?

2. Should football bowl games be televised, or are they really a part of the college picture which should be continued?

3. Should the NCAA constitution be tightened so that those who violate NCAA rulings can be punished quickly and effectively?

As of last year, the NCAA clamped a tight control on the televising of one game a week. The television committee has already reported on the situation and finds that it appears "satisfactory" so it seems that a somewhat similar program will be suggested for next season.

Rams Drop League Opener To WCC Comets 63-52; 53-52 Win Over Sacramento Panthers

By Charles Brigham

The City College Rams met West Contra Costa last Wednesday night at Richmond, losing by a score of 62-51 in a game that was actually shorter than regulation length.

The West Contra Costans gained an early lead which they held throughout the game in varying degrees, and one which the Rams, still feeling the loss of first stringers Kenny Collins and Tony Lazzeri, were not able to overcome.

The game featured the sharpshooting of Comet forward McKelvey, who was high point man for the game with 28 points, while San Francisco's Jerry Stack hit 18.

It was not until the fourth quarter, when the Rams were showing signs of life and had closed the gap to six points, that anyone realized that the official timekeeper, accustomed to allowing for eight minute quarters in high school games, had been starting the clock at eight minutes in this game.

After lengthy controversy, during which the tired Contra Costans had time to rest, the game was begun again with the clock at ten minutes. However, six minutes of the game had been unplayed when the final buzzer sounded, which could conceivably have made a difference had they been played.

On Saturday night, City College defeated Sacramento in a thriller at City College gymnasium by a score of 53-52.

A gratifying crowd watched the Rams, paced by the scoring accuracy of Frank Hess and Stack, and fine ball-handling and defensive work of Captain Bobby Bondanza, and the rebounding efforts of Bill Welch and Rudy Knudsen, take the lead at half-time.

The second half saw the Sacramento team close the lead, until finally, in the last quarter, City College held only a two-point margin.

With three minutes to go, the Rams went into a stall against time in an effort to control the ball until the game's end, and were successful until, with about a minute left to play, a foul was called against the Rams.

With the new rule in effect, any foul within the last three minutes is a two shot foul. This gave Sacramento a chance to tie the score.

The stands watched breathlessly as forward Syftestad's first shot rimmed the basket and rolled out. Although he made his second shot, the Rams still had the lead, and resumed their stall.

Then, with half n minute left, City College lost the ball and the Panther coach called time out. When time in was called, the Sacramento team took the ball out, but were so hard-pressed by the determined Ram defense that they were unable to get a shot off before the final buzzer.

High point man for the game was San Francisco's Hess, who hit 18, followed by Al Masters of Sacramento with 17 and Stack of the Rams with 16.

City's next game is scheduled with Stockton at Stockton tomorrow night, and their next home game is with Modesto next Friday.

Block SF Society Presents Dance

Block S. F. Society members last week chose their semi-annual date as Saturday night, February 28, following the City College and San Mateo basketball game.

Fred Quinn, president of the society, stated that the proposed date of the dance is pending approval from Robin Dunn, assistant dean of student activities.

"At the present time," Dunn said, "members are working on the procurement of new membership cards and the re-election of officers."

With the completion of football and soccer, 32 more names were added to the roster of the society to raise it to a total to 102.

The membership of the Block S. F. Society is composed of men who have won a letter in any City College sport. The method of earning a letter varies with the sport, but the coach of each sport must recommend an athlete before he receives a block.

Other officers of the Block S. F. Society working with Quinn are: Vice-President, Ben Dito; Secretary-Treasurer, Art Ersepke; Sergeant-at-Arms, Gus Chofri; and sponsor, Coach Bill Fischer.

Two Here Win Sweetheart Ball Scholarship; Fairmont Hotel Site For Chinese Club Dance

Charlotte Lee and Dar Gook Fung are the winners of the first presentation of the Sweetheart Ball Scholarship donated by the Chinese Students Club this semester, in conjunction with the 8th Annual Sweetheart Ball slated for Saturday, February 21, according to President Wellington Lee.

Awarding of two scholarships of $50 each to the winning students each Spring semester was voted on by the respective club members he said. The fund consists of the profits of each dance held.

The presentation given at this time is to initiate the scholarship, hereafter to be awarded each June, and is made possible only through the efforts of the coeds participating as queen contestants who sell the tickets for the Ball, Lee declared.

The qualifications were voted upon by members, and the decision of the awards were made by the faculty board consisting of Dr. F. Grant Marsh, Deans Edwin C. Browne and Margaret Dougherty. Letters were submitted to the respective deans in person by any applicant of Chinese ancestry who fulfilled these qualifications:

1. Men must have a minimum of a 1.8 grade point average. Women must have a 1.5 grade point average.

2. Applicants must have completed at least one semester at City College carrying 12½ units and must remain at City College for at least another semester of 12½ units to take advantage of the benefits.

3. A letter must be submitted in person stating the applicant's major, future plans, and reasons for being interested in the scholarship.

The winners are both sophomores; Miss Lee is majoring in Pre-legal and Gook Fung in Pre-medical. Both plan to go on to the University of California when they finish here.

The Sweetheart Ball this year will be held in the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel, Lee announced. He declared that as in the past the dance will be the highlight of the year which has always drawn many visitors from colleges and universities throughout the bay area.

The contestants to compete for the title Queen of the ball, the Grand Trophy and numerous prizes donated by downtown department stores and Chinatown merchants include Betty Wong, Angela Wei, Helen Gee, Darleen Young, Grace Toy, and Lillian Yee.

The highlight of the evening will be the coronation of the Queen of the ball, the decision being based on 60 per cent ticket sales, 30 per cent popular vote, and 10 per cent campus votes, Lee stated. He also urged a large representation from City College at the affair for the two-fold purpose of making sufficient proceeds to continue the scholarships.

President Lee concluded by saying, "Judging from the progress and enthusiasm shown thus far, the dance promises to be the most successful yet held, with the scholarship giving the awards, door prizes and the queen contest a significant purpose."

National Printers' Week Observed

Six bay area business leaders joined with past and present college officials in the annual observance of National Printer's Week recently.

Graphic Arts students Carol Clark, George Parker, Arthur Bach, Al Havory, Gene Van Duyn, William Svabek, and Fred Kozy demonstrated newly acquired equipment and techniques to the visitors.

Guardsman staff photographer Howard Blanco snapped the picture (left) of part of the gathering with a Polaroid land camera which develops and prints the negatives in 60 seconds. Then, through the combined efforts of the Graphic Arts students, a booklet telling of the students and their work and the reproduced picture were given out to the guests when they returned from lunch. The whole process took 40 minutes.

Parties Present Their Platforms

Inter-Fraternity Council

WE, the candidates chosen to run for office by the Inter-Fraternity Council, do hereby declare this statement as our basic platform.

We feel that the spirit at the City College of San Francisco has been lacking in the past semesters. Further, we realize that this spirit is lacking because the college is one of transient students who must work after class.

Many of the students are striving to be admitted to a major university, and many are taking terminal courses after which they expect to go out and earn their living. We do realize the reasons for the lack of spirit and feel that it can be somewhat remedied this semester as it has been remedied more and more each semester throughout the existence of the IFC as a political party.

As long as the IFC remains in office, it will strive toward the ultimate goal of a 100 per cent Associated Student body in City College of San Francisco with a rating of spirit above that of any major college or university.

The IFC has boosted student card sales from nill to a present day 1600 (approximately), but even we realize that is not enough. Each semester, after working hard, the number of card sales has increased at a moderate rate only by the striving and forcefulness of the student officers who, we find, were outstanding candidates of the IFC. By working and striving harder than before, the officers nominated by the IFC will again bring the number of card sales up, until we finally have 100 per cent Associated Student participation.

A full and complete social program has been presented this semester and in past semesters by officers nominated by the IFC. This social program has covered all but a few weekends of the social calendar, and for the price of an Associated Student card it cannot be equalled at any other college or university. Still, we are not satisfied and feel a broader, fuller social program can be presented by us. To present this program we will need full support of all students.

Representation of the college outside the college is an important basis for choosing any student officer. These representatives must meet with civic leaders, visitors to the college, and student leaders from other colleges. In the past, as in the present and future, the IFC has been able to nominate candidates who were well qualified to represent the college.

In this platform of the IFC, we have presented and acquainted you with our basic ideas and contentions—more school spirit, more A. members, better social program one liberal in the field of activities—good representation outside the college. We cannot include under any category the hard work and real energy which is displayed by an IFC candidate.

We do not deny that there is personal prestige gained by holding an office, just as there is when playing on the football team. This pride is as natural as the sincerity of the student officer in the good he is doing for the school. It is something which is attained by seeing the finished product and knowing that it has benefited not only himself, an individual, but the school which has given him the priceless education which will make him a success in later life. His contribution adds to the prestige and success of the school as an educational institution outside the classroom as well as inside.

We, the candidates of the IFC, are deeply concerned with the welfare of the school and sincerely feel WE are the ones who will uphold the name of the college and the college itself. On the basis of this platform we urgently ask for your support and VOTE for a better City College of San Francisco.

United Students Association

THE United Students Association feels that the majority of the students have got to have confidence in the integrity and ability of the men and women who run for office and who might attain it.

As many of you know, a very small minority group, the IFC, has run student government for the past seven semesters. It would be folly for the USA to condemn these past student government administrations as such, but like most political machines, this small minority control has resulted in widespread apathy on the part of the non-fraternity and non-sorority students who comprise the big majority of students at City College.

You may help now by letting your indignation be recorded at the election booths. We urge you to vote the United Student Association ticket.

We, the candidates, declare this to be our basic platform:

1. Spirit is lacking, not because this college is a "bridge" for those students who expect to go further to other institutions of learning, but because of the reluctance of the past IFC-controlled councils to adhere to the real character of the student body, except with pressure from such independents as the USA.

We shall strive to initiate college spirit on a much broader basis than has been done in the past—they have had their chance. It is time for a change. Our goal is 100 per cent student spirit unrivaled by any major university.

2. The sale of student cards has remained a trying job for those IFC people, who in the past semesters, did not even bother to be at their posts which were assigned them. True that some worked hard in the sale of student cards, but that is not enough—we need people who will truly work for all the students.

3. A full and complete social program. We recognize the need for a wider variety of student social events with emphasis on events for all the students, and included therein is a need for better cooperation among clubs, in the Club Advisory Board—thus stimulating spirit and joint activities.

4. Representation of the college outside the college is an important role for student officers. We have an exceptional array of candidates who are well qualified to meet with civic leaders, and student officers of other colleges and universities.

5. There is need for a more vigorous Freshman program, especially for the purpose of orientation of men students in the variety and purpose of clubs, and other organizations which are offered to the student and which may further his interest in the college program.

6. We shall strengthen the two party system. With our start, there is no question but that we are best qualified to do the job.

7. We are opposed to raising student card fees but with sounder financial policies we shall expect to carry out a full scale student card sales program with the accompanying activities planned as usual.

The personal prestige which is a part of student government is no criterion for a party which since last semester's unopposed election has initiated the democratic process by opposing the "machine."

We shall be profoundly grateful and honored by your confidence in us, shown by casting your vote in our behalf. It's no casual choice which you will make; it's a decision weighted with the welfare and well-being of a college and its students.

It is up to you, as students who hold the franchise to vote, to perpetuate the two-party system by electing to office your candidates from the USA.

Auditions To Start For A Cappella Choir

Election of new choir officers will be held before the end of the semester, and the new officers will be announced at the choir banquet.

Luckmann Announces Vacation, TV Series

Coordinator, Division of Instruction, Lloyd Luckmann announced recently that the end-of-semester activities will include two week-days with no classes — Friday, February 6, and Monday, February 9, will be the days designated.

Students previously enrolled at the college will register on Tuesday, February 10, and classes will begin on Friday, February 13.

Several new courses will be offered during the coming semester, among them a course in Television Survey, and one in Biological Sciences, which will cover conservation of natural resources. Other new courses not yet announced will be listed in the time schedule, Dr. Luckmann said.

Few Lockers Empty Now, Batmale Says

Main building lockers may be obtained in a spring semester only by arrangement with students now in possession of the lockers; and will not be available unless these students are graduating or on leave of absence, it was announced today by Dean Louis Batmale.

All lockers are assigned in September on a yearly basis, with two students sharing each locker.

Hello Day Dance Will Welcome Freshmen Friday

Marking the first social event of the semester, the annual Hello Day dance, presented by the Associated Students, starts at 9 p.m., Friday, February 13, in the college auditorium, following the City College basketball game.

Under the direction of Associated Student Vice-President Sally Galvin, the dance will be held expressly for the benefit of the March of Dimes crusade now in progress.

The Campus Highlighters, featuring Don MacDougall, piano; Dave Sharkey, string bass; and Charlie Ottenheimer, drums, will provide the musical entertainment.

As an added attraction, Relda Backmann will vocalize with the trio on several popular numbers.

Admission for the affair will be through personal contributions to the March of Dimes only. Associated Student President Norm Heise, stated that "this is one affair of the semester that an incoming student shouldn't miss."

Anticipating large attendance, the Social Committee announced that attire for the dance will be strictly informal.

AS Membership Vital To All Students, Activities, College

TODAY marks the beginning of a new semester of academic study. It should also herald the beginning of a firm, new, relationship between students and the Associated Students organization.

Everyone should be interested in becoming a part of City College more than just a student body. Newcomers and old are all starting with a clean slate this week. Some are established in the position of [illegible] who will graduate during the next five months, to replace those who will be leaving.

Two student political parties exist upon the campus and each is actively vying for future management of student government. Each offers much in the way of opportunity and training for anyone who evidences an interest in campus activities.

[illegible] leaves from the Scholastically City College has always [illegible] for Student Government [illegible] and athletic excellence [illegible] support [illegible] disinterest [illegible] had been shown.

This attitude was recognized as a danger signal by both administration and student leaders, and one of the strongest movements ever made to unify and interest college students in their own activities was initiated upon this campus by a fine group of fraternity and sorority leaders.

The [illegible] back i was the [illegible] was so great [illegible] swept [illegible] '52 semester.

The job remaining cannot be executed by a small group, no matter how sincere they are. Every single person on this campus must realize what a college education really is. College should be an experience in social adjustment as well as a classroom process. To get something out of the semesters spent here, it is necessary to put something into them. Nothing could be easier. Support of the athletic functions, the cultural functions, the social functions, and student government is not only rewarding but entertaining as well.

KNIGHTS AND DAMES OF THE COUNCIL ROUNDTABLE, victors in recent Associated Student election balloting, pause to face the camera.

The lateness of the hour, as witness the clock and the proximity of lunches and various mealtime provisions around the council field give proper evidence that the 12 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday meeting time for council members postpones normal luncheon enjoyment.

On Campus Parking Permits Due In Week

New campus parking stickers will be required for the forthcoming semester and will be issued to students holding Associated Student cards, it was announced recently by Dean of Men Edwin C. Browne.

To acquire the new campus parking permits, a student should take his Associated Student card and his 1953 automobile registration slip to Dean Browne's office approximately one week after registration.

Instructor's parking permits, which were issued last fall, will be good until the next Fall semester.

The "college hour" is actually 40 minutes — a time inserted into the Friday class schedule to provide for meetings and rallies.

Activities

ROBIN DUNN, acting assistant dean of student activities, has the preliminary direction and supervision of campus activities and the college social program.

Psychology Class To Start Series On Station KPIX

Beginning Thursday, February 19 at 6 p.m. on KPIX, and continuing each Thursday for 15 weeks, the college presents its new telecourse for free credit, Know Yourself Better, Henry Leff, producer of the program, said recently.

Dealing with the area of adult psychology, the show features Phyllis Haley, psychology instructor here, as instructor, and an on-set class representing a cross section of San Francisco citizenry.

Leff stated that the new project, seventh-of-the college's radio-television ventures, is the result of long range planning and "many hours of conferences with Dr. Haley and the production staff here.

"In recent weeks we have held meetings with the class members to explain the show format." Each program, however, will be totally unrehearsed and, will be conducted as though it were a normal class meeting at the college, Leff continued.

Home viewers may participate through correspondence and are afforded the opportunity of earning one unit of credit in their homes. Complete registration information will be given on the initial screening, Leff declared.

The red and white Ram on the west campus is carved in redwood and was among the many works of art at the world's fair on Treasure Island in 1938-39.

Sally Galvin, Thompson Win Titles

Sally Galvin and Phil Thompson were elected Sophomore queen and king as a result of elections held January 26 to 28 as part of Sophomore Week activities.

Coronation of the royal pair climaxed the semi-annual affair, staged at the St. Francis Yacht Club on Saturday, January 31. Miss Galvin and Thompson led the coronation waltz and were presented with engraved loving cups as part of the ceremony.

Miss Galvin, sponsored by Zeta Chi, won with 65 votes. Other queen candidates included Alice Hamotons, Kappa Phi, 56; Connie Maravellas, Delta Psi, 46; Diane Bates, independent, 46; Noreen Farley, Newman Club, 24; Diane Georgates, Phi Beta Rho, 19.

Thompson of Beta Tau won with 69 votes. Runners up for king were Bob Murphy, Alpha Sigma Delta, 63; Gale Wright, Kappa Rho, 48; Chuck Elliot, Newman Club, 44; and Ralph Marinelly, Phi Beta Delta, 20.

All election results were announced by Dale Stricklin, former Sophomore class president. Stricklin declared that a total of 495 votes were cast, 246 for queen and 249 for king. Ballots were counted by Margaret Ancker, class sponsor, Charlie Hart, and Stricklin.

Stricklin announced that approximately 160 couples were in attendance and that the festivities were a financial as well as a social success.

"The ball was a great success and this was due entirely to the great support given the affair by the sophomore class as a whole," Stricklin commented.

Motion Picture Class Aids In Video Series

In preparation for the college's new television series, Know Yourself Better, students of motion picture photography here have been shooting films for spot announcements and as visual material, according to Bev Pasqualetti, instructor of the movie class.

Also involved in the preparation of visual aids for the programs is Emmett Smith of the Audio-Visual and photography departments, who is art director of the college's radio-television shows.

Pasqualetti stated that, at present, his group is primarily concerned with "film trailers," which will be used by KPIX as spot announcements to publicize the series.

Other assignments for the class will include short movies used to illustrate important points in psychology as they are developed by the moderator of the course, Phyllis Haley, instructor in psychology here.

"Emmett Smith's art work, a lively and indispensable feature of past shows, will be used in a like manner during the 13 week run," Pasqualetti related.

'The Students' Best Friends'

Dean Of Women

Dean Of Men

MARGARET DOUGHERTY, dean of women, has the basic responsibility of acting as a counsellor and guide to all women's activities on campus.

EDWIN C. BROWNE, dean of men. The dean's primary duties include supervision of parking, housing for men students, and attendance.

'Operation-Hotel' At St. Francis Postponed; Students To Receive On-The-Job Training February 20

"Operation-Hotel," the annual "test" for hotel division students here, when they operate San Francisco's St. Francis Hotel, was postponed last week from its original date to Friday, February 20.

Final arrangements for the second annual event were completed by Hilda Watson, division head, and Dan E. London, general manager of the St. Francis.

Controller

LOUIS BATMALE, acting coordinator of educational management, acts as financial advisor to all student activities and supervises the Ramparium.

The test, which will enable a selected group of students to put into practice their college training in hotel management, was pronounced a success by Manager London last year when he said, "Operation-hotel has been profitable to both students and hotel staff. We of the St. Francis staff have learned a great many new ideas from the students which we plan to incorporate eventually in our own operations."

The project will allow approximately 30 students from the college, selected from four or five departments besides the hotel and restaurant division, to participate in the full scale operation of the large downtown hotel. The photography, law enforcement, and journalism departments are expected to be among the divisions taking part.

Mrs. Watson pointed out that the prospective hotel and restaurant men and women, by using the extensive facilities of the hotel for one day, will obtain top-grade professional experience.

Departmental head positions will be awarded to the new fourth and third semester students, Mrs. Watson emphasized.

Globe, Anchor Sponsors Vet Entertainment

Wounded veterans hospitalized at Letterman General Hospital were recently entertained by students of the College, it was announced this week by the Globe and Anchor Society's new President, Harry Robling.

Short comedy skits, featuring Bill Bixby and Paul Bixel, topped the program at which Keith Franks, master of ceremonies, Barbara Rolfe and Ron Atkinson sang to the bed-ridden patients. Julie Hannon performed in a skit, and Georgia Martin did a pantomime.

Cookies and cider were passed among the patients by a hostess force of 13 women students, who talked with the veterans while the show was being staged.

The hostesses were: Sally Galvin, Sue Speer, Pat James, Del Pfeiffer, Dawn Gallagher, Joan Hack, Gayle Southard, Dolores Moscone, Dorothy Molise, Meg Shiek, Odette Trouillet, Connie Coleman and Lynn Knox.

Course Adding Deadline Feb. 25

Students who desire to file petitions for adding courses to their programs should do so before Wednesday, February 25, E. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

To change a program, students should get a change of program card which is obtained in the counselling office located in Building 3.

The card must be signed by the department head of the course which the student plans to add. The same applies for a course to be dropped.

The card is then filed in the registrar's office, also located in Building 3.

Movie Projection Jobs Open Here

Lillian Desmond, of the audio visual department, announced this week that there is a need for motion picture projectionists here.

Training films shown throughout the college are run by students who have volunteered for this work, she explained. They receive a nominal hourly wage.

"Experience is preferred," Miss Desmond continued, "but not essential; however, the Civil Service Commission does require that students on the payroll be residents of San Francisco County."

She requested that interested parties call on Emmett Smith or her at the audio-visual office, Room 155, main building, as soon as possible.

3 Scholarships Available This Spring Semester

Three scholarships, the Cloud, Florence Lewis, and McKiernan Memorial, are available this semester for students meeting the requirements.

Given by the faculty in honor of Archibald J. Cloud, president-emeritus of City College, the Cloud scholarship is a sum of $100, will be available for one or more students, with selection made by the faculty committee on Student-Faculty Relations.

The Lewis Scholarship of $25 in cash plus $5 for Associated Student membership will be available to a woman student. A letter of application should be sent to Dean Margaret Dougherty before Tuesday, February 24.

Applicants for this award must have completed 15 units of work with a B average or better, the requirements state.

A $100 Memorial scholarship in memory of Charles H. McKiernan, Beta Tau's first sponsor, is due for its first award.

Application is open to all men students of the college and should be presented in the form of a personal letter setting forth his need, scholastic achievements, and future educational plans.

Deadline for applications is Saturday, February 28, and all applications should be submitted to Dean Edwin C. Browne, Building 2, west campus.

Ramparium Offers Books, Supplies

The Ramparium, the City College book store, will remain open on Lincoln's Birthday, Richard Main, manager of the store, announced recently.

A full supply of text books and college materials is on hand for all students' convenience, Main said, and Associated Student cards will be on sale there.

Associated Student cards will also be on sale at the College Bank in the main building. The bank, in charge of Carl Anderson, is open from 9:45 to 11:10 a.m., and from 12 noon to 1 p.m. daily.

Main urged all students to turn their used books into the Ramparium, as the store offers a liberal trade-in on all text books which can be resold.

The book store will be open from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on all college days next semester, Main said.

Club Activities Board meetings are scheduled Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 p.m. in Building 2. The full board is composed of representatives of each recognized campus club.

Psychology Class Telecast

PHYLIS HALEY, (below) instructor in psychology here, is cast in that roll on the college's current television series, "Know Yourself Better." Dr. Haley teaches an on-set class (above) for the benefit of home viewers who may take an active part, through the mails, and earn free college credit.

Phylis Haley, Know Yourself Have TV Debut

"Look, Listen and Learn" (and earn free college credit) was the byword last Thursday evening when the college's new television series, "Know Yourself Better," was launched.

According to Phyllis Haley, psychology instructor here and on the program, "televiewers in the Bay Area may 'Look and Listen' at 6 p.m. to KPIX each Thursday for the next 15 weeks."

In so doing "they will 'Learn' adult psychology . . . the common experiences of all of us . . . and, through the mail may take two midterms and a final examination to 'Earn' one free unit of college credit."

Material for these examinations is taken from her lectures, Miss Haley said, and from topics which are covered in each of the three text books which are suggested for the course.

In order to keep the show on a level closely related to class work, home students may submit questions and suggestions through the mail, and it will be around these that future lectures and the entire show will be structured.

For this reason, and because the series is spontaneous (to the degree that it is unrehearsed), scripts are not available to viewers who may miss one of the weekly half hours. However, each program begins with a short review of the preceding week's topic and a reminder of the nature of the home assignment. In this manner a student may "catch up," according to Miss Haley.

An on-set class of approximately ten persons, under her leadership, explores everyday life and experiences from the psychological viewpoint.

The history of psychology, a study of "What is Man," the biological and mental drives and their effect on individual persons and the world around them are a few of the areas which will come under investigation, Miss Haley said.

As teaching aids she employs art work, designed by Emmett Smith, instructor in photography here. This consists of animated posters, a mannequ head, and cartoon cards, many of which are "extremely humorous," observers say.

Also in preparation for the series are movie shorts which are being shot by assistant professor of the series, Bev Pasqualetti, and members of his motion picture workshop class which includes Fred Muller and Howard Blanco.

Summing up her hopes for the series, Miss Haley declared; "Every year is a year of decision for a real person . . . perhaps our course may help us to feel better and know more about ourselves in this larger and complex world."

Applications For Selective Service Test Due March 9

Nationwide Selective Service College Qualification Test will be conducted here on April 23, 1953.

Students of the college who are planning to take this deferment test" must obtain an application card from any draft board and submit it to the Service Examination Center, Princeton, N. J., not later than midnight, March 9.

In the Selective Service System's Bulletin of Information on the examinations, persons who are eligible to participate in the nationwide test are classified.

(1) The applicant must be a Selective Service registrant who intends to request occupational deferment as a student; (2) He must be satisfactorily pursuing a full-time college course.

On the application card the applicant receives from the draft board of his choice, he denotes the site where he wishes to take the examination. In the San Francisco area there will be three examination centers: (1) City College of San Francisco; (2) San Francisco State College; and (3) University of San Francisco.

Thomas Nesbitt, who is in charge of the college entrance examinations, will be in charge of the selective service examinations. Nesbitt said that approximately 70 students competed in the December 4, 1952 test, conducted here in the main building.

660 AS Cards Sold Since Registration

A total of 660 Associated Student cards, amounting to $3,300, was sold since the start of registration, John MacDonald, chairman of Associated Student card sales, announced Tuesday.

"This is a good start, and it is hoped that sales will continue at the present rate until the goal of 2,000 sale is reached," MacDonald said.

Of special interest to students who plan to graduate this June is that caps and gowns are provided free to members of the Associated Students, and the five free commencement announcements are included. Without an Associated Student card there is a charge of $4.

On-campus parking privileges are not allowed to non-members of the Associated Students, nor are non-members allowed voting privileges.

Associated Student cards can be purchased at the Ramparium on the west campus or at the student bank, Room 188 in the main building, and temporarily at the silver pole on the first floor of the main building.

Deadline Today For Filing Petitions To Add Courses, Change Sections

Today is the final day that students of the college may file petitions for additional courses or request changes of sections, it was announced yesterday by Registrar Mary Jane Learnard.

"Full explanation on adding courses is outlined in the 1952-53 catalogue, and it stresses that once a student's program has been filed, he must submit to the registrar a change-in-program petition, which has been approved by his counselor," Miss Learnard commented for purposes of clarification.

The catalogue also points out that a student will receive no credit for a subject that is not entered on his official study list.

Students who received a grade of Incomplete on any subject undertaken last semester should consult their instructor and make up the work which was missed, Miss Learnard urged, since this work must be completed by March 12 to earn a grade better than a "D."

Approximately 535 students will be eligible to participate in June 19 1953 Commencement ceremonies and receive their Associate in Arts degree, Miss Learnard also said. Deadline for filing petition for graduation is set for Thursday, March 12.

Student Council, Cabinet Members Take Office Oath

Associated Student President Norman Heise last week swore in two cabinet members, Julie Hannon, who was uncontested in her bid for the office of Associated Woman Student President, and Walt Rillier, who was appointed, and approved, Patty Simmons, sophomore council member, was also sworn in.

The Student Council is composed of 15 voting members under the president. Members include the vice president and 14 representatives elected from the Associated Students.

Seven are representatives of the Freshman Class, and seven are from the Sophomore Class. The council allocates funds, supervises affairs, policies, properties, and conduct of the association. It also enacts the laws.

The cabinet is made up of elected officers representing every phase of student activities. It is their job, according to the constitution, to present to the council all business of their representative departments. Their function is also to carry out the laws enacted by the Student Council.

Meanwhile, Finance Chairman Don Douglas urged that today's budget deadline be closely adhered to and all budgets be in for approval on time.

Failure to comply with this directive will result in forfeiture of any funds requested in accordance with action by the governing body of the Associated Students which set an eight school-days limit on submission of budgets, Douglas said.

St. Francis Management And Students Here Laud Results Of Second Annual Hotel Day

By Ken Molino

Hotel Day's second anniversary was celebrated last Friday when thirty students from the college took over the entire operation of San Francisco's famous St. Francis.

From the position of general manager through the ranks including telephone operator and publicity department photographer, sous-chef, chief engineer, and others, students worked in close cooperation with each of the hotel people regularly assigned these jobs.

Commenting on the success of this and last year's experiment, first of their kind in the industry, Manager Dan London said that benefits derived are mutual.

"Not only did the students gain first hand experience and a broader insight into their chosen field, but the regular hotel staff listened with open minds to their comments and as a result are incorporating many of the students' suggestions into the St. Francis routine."

Earl Hazen, student in hotel management here, took over London's desk at 9 a.m. and as the day wore on he gained invaluable experience in the complications and rewards of the general manager's job. London explained that although Hazen was not allowed to ". . . purchase $10,000 worth of linen," or otherwise expend hotel funds he did handle routine matters such as checking financial statements, guest arrivals, and assisted in interviewing callers during the day. A similar procedure was used in other departments.

Assisting Hilda Watson's hotel and restaurant group were members of journalism and photography classes here. Assuming the duties of the publicity and promotion department of the hotel they photographed and interviewed key members of the staff and their proteges for the day.

Al Hooning, another student in hotel management here, served as publicity manager under the direction of Elizabeth Bell of the St. Francis. In that capacity he was interviewed on the Ann Holden radio program during the day.

Climaxing activities the principal parties gathered for refreshments in the early evening with London's staff, President Louis G. Conlan, and Irving Breyer, attorney to the Board of Education, who represented Superintendent Clish.

At the gathering London reiterated that Hotel Day will become an annual affair and President Conlan, in expressing the college's appreciation said,

"At the college we have a successful program because we have a man like London on our board . . . It may be hoped that one day, but not too soon, one of our students will be successive to the position Mr. London holds."

College Hour Rally This Friday To Rouse Game Spirit

To inspire enthusiasm for the basketball game with San Mateo Saturday night, a rally will be held in the auditorium during college hour this Friday, Connie Webb, rally connissioner, announced this week.

Listed on the program is Paul Desmond, comedian, who excels in pantomimes and imitations, and Douglas Carmichael, who will entertain with his imitations also, Webb said.

At press time the Student Council had not yet voted on whether this rally will be open to everyone or just to members of the Associated Students.

According to the official calendar, the college hour schedule for the semester is as follows:

CAB day, March 6; Holiday (Teachers' Institute), March 13; Club Meetings, March 20; Mid-Terms, March 27; Easter Vacation, April 3; Spring Sports Rally, April 10; Club Meetings, April 17; Club Meetings, April 24; Club Meetings, May 1; Mid-Terms, May 8; Mardi Gras, May 15; Rally Program, May 22; Election Rally, May 29; Club Meetings, June 5; Sophomore-Faculty Baseball Game, June 12; Final Examinations, June 19.

College To Host Bay Area Trustees

Plans for a Bay Area Board of Education meeting of board members, and trustees from the nine bay districts were formulated last Friday afternoon when three local commissioners met with President Louis G. Conlan. The meeting will be held here at the college Saturday, February 28.

"The primary goal of this meeting is to get acquainted," Board of Education President John G. Levison said, and he explained that the college's centralized location and the luncheon facilities offered deemed it the most likely site for the convention.

Accompanying Levison were Mrs. Clarence Coonan, Bert W. Levit, both city board members, and Irving Breyer, attorney to the board. From the college were President Conlan, Dr. Lloyd Luckmann, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, John Brady, college administrators, and Hilda Watson, head of the Hotel and Restaurant Division.

Block SF Dance To Honor Cagers

City College's basketball team members will be guests of honor at the Block SF Society dance programmed for Saturday night, February 28, in the student lounge, Fred Quinn, social head and vice-president of the society, revealed early this week.

The dance, second of the spring semester, will follow the San Mateo-City College basketball game. Also-invited Student card holders of both colleges, and those who attend the cage fray, will be admitted free of charge, the society representative stated.

Recorded music for the dance will start at 9:45 p.m. and continue until midnight, he added.

Many Events—Numb Student Body—Will the Twain Meet?

WITH a little cooperation from the City College student body the next few months ought to prove most rewarding for anyone with initiative enough to take advantage of the opportunities made available to them as a result of endeavors of the more civic-minded students.

Often a student body, like a person, [illegible] causes many fine plans to bog down, and gives rise to a feeling of resentment on the part of college leaders against the student body in general. The feeling is caused by a perfectly legitimate sense of frustration and discouragement and initiates much of the talk about "apathy" in connection with social functions, student government, and other college fostered events.

The charges of apathy are all too often actually understatements. Some students seem to feel that their academic studies constitute a job. Like professional employment, they in effect "sign in" at certain hours and, when their classes are over for the day, they "sign out" and rush home never thinking of the profit there is in overtime.

Monetarily speaking, college years are for most people lost years. Hence the person who goes to college must value something else as highly as he values a job that would offer him substantial financial gain during the four years of college. Why then do so many students short-change themselves and collect only a part when a few hours "overtime" now and then would prove highly profitable?

SOME students fail even to inform themselves of the opportunities available, and still others, having informed themselves or having been informed, ignore what is being done for them and thus fail to take cognizance of any advantage. The percentage of active students on this campus is pathetically meager.

What can be done to perk up student interest in the college social activities in particular? Certainly there is no lack of social events. By the time the spring semester was four days old, nine dances had been tentatively scheduled, extensive and lively planning was being done for a "best yet" variety show, and a date had been set for the big event of each spring semester, the Mardi Gras.

It seems impossible that any student is missed or misses the vast amount of publicity that heralds each forthcoming social event. Perchance then, along with lethargic student interest, the personal approach is partially deficient in getting an event "sold." How exciting does a dance sound over the public address system when you are late to an English class? The old system of "talking up" an event is still the best. The newspaper media is an old standby when it comes to publicity, but when it comes down to the final little push and collecting the money or selling the Associated Student card nothing works like the personal touch to boost the number of ticket holders.

Committees in charge of selling anything are the hardest working, least recognized and hardest to keep rolling of any connected with the college. Persons in charge of the sale of anything realize how vital that final personal touch is no matter how much publicity has been released in its connection. Yet weeks of work are lost unless publicity and the personal touch are exploited to the fullest, and most vital of all, unless the students of the college will take note of what is going on around them as well as what is going on in their text books.

The best laid plans, the best promotion schemes cannot make the spring activity calendar a success unless the students of the college, for whom all the work and effort is being expended, will back it.

The sales committees work diligently, the newspaper prints the facts, the social committee plans and the organizations push the events. All that is needed is an interested student body to really make the whole pattern fall into place.

Photographers Here Display Prints

Currently on display at the Park and Recreation Department's Photography Center 600 Ocean Avenue, are 150 salon prints made by present and former students here, according to Bet Pasquaretti, instructor in photography.

This is the first time that the center has devoted its entire display area to a showing of the college's work, he said. The collection which represents some of the best which has been done in the Department of Photography in the past three years, continues through March 15.

It may be seen on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays between 6 and 10 p.m., on Thursdays and Fridays from 4 until 10 p.m., and on Saturdays from 12:30 until 5:30. Pasquaretti advised that there is no admission charge.

Here and There

Collegiate Press News Briefs

Associated Collegiate Press: Student deferments may not be here to stay, according to Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director.

"The time for action is almost here," says Hershey. "Now that the drafting of fathers looms as an imminent necessity in the not so distant future, we certainly must look toward the colleges with something more than an appraising eye."

Draft boards are already beginning to dip down into the 19 year old age group, and it appears inevitable that at least some college students will be deprived of deferments.

Fraternity and dormitory men at Northwestern university staged a series of spontaneous snowball fights two weeks ago. When the fun was over, about 200 windows were broken.

The dean of men says repairs will be paid for by everyone concerned. Meanwhile, with as many as 64 windows out in one house, members are enjoying the fresh winter air.

It Happened Here . . .

In The Past Ten Years

A TALE is told of the reporter who, in chasing down a "Big Story," suffered, among other indignities too numerous to mention, a torn suit, a lacerated scalp and an assortment of bruises. He got his story, however, and was proud to see it make Page One. It was hot news. That evening, not four hours after his ordeal, he visited his meat market and was much chagrined when he observed the butcher slap a most herring atop his story and, with no show of remorse, wrap it up.

Too true, after a story is written it is no longer "news."

In a fit of compassion for the poor, unappreciated, unsung reporter who [illegible] herewith inaugurate and dedicate this column. Devoted to reviewing the big and little stories of corresponding weeks of the past ten years, it is hoped that in some small way it may compensate them for whatever horrible fate may have befallen their original labors of love.

RESERVES CALLED . . .

About this time in 1943 big news was the fact that the "First Army Call Takes 33 College Enlisted Reserves" . . . and equally important, it was announced that the college's extension courses were being conducted at Everett Junior High School. As usual, light balltoting was characteristic in the Associated Student elections . . . some things never change.

Registration figures in 1911 sounded more like a nose count during a lazy hour in the cafeteria . . . 327 new students showed up that spring. Even so, the college's Fourth War Loan Bond Drive was a "smashing success." As in so many things, quality, not quantity was the criterion.

1945 saw a busier year for the Registrar's crew as 1409 "low freshmen appeared" . . . and in 1946 this number grew to 3149. The School Board appointed Oscar Anderson as Educational Coordinator and John Brady as Assistant Dean of Men. Returning veterans, in swelling the rolls, also forced up the scholastic standing.

RAM EMERGES . . .

Also in 1946 someone remembered that "The Ram" had been stored in the men's gymnasium some six years previous. It was dusted, painted, aired, and placed in its position of honor on the west campus . . . Probably the man who, in 1941, wrote the following never had the satisfaction of knowing that in only two years his pleas had been heard: ". . . reposing in the dusty recesses of the men's gym our once-noble Ram, carved in redwood, is assuming an expression of great disgust under the coat of dust which has been allowed to accumulate on him . . ."

The "once-noble" Ram, by 1951 had been braving the elements in his new "position of honor" for some five years. Thanks to an imaginative mind he was given a protecting coat of paint and rededicated.

In 1947 registration hit 5200 but no figure is available to indicate how many of these bought Associated Student cards. President Cloud came up with another book, called, "Faith of Our Fathers."

BOXERS "NEXT BEST"

The Ram boxing team emerged as the "next best in the west" in 1949 . . . We here are not interested in knowing, under these conditions, who was "best".

In 1950 some enterprising soul solicited and received the services of George Shearing and the Nat King Cole Trio at a rally for the benefit of the Damon Runyon Foundation.

DRAFT BOARD RELENTS . . .

And in 1952 the Draft Board, bless their black little hearts, gave 1-S classifications to college students. Operation Hotel took place at the St. Francis Hotel (as it did again last week) and 38 students took part.

Of course, in ten years at a growing, progressive institution such as this college, many, many more things transpired and most of them were of greater importance than those we have listed here. But each of these minor occurrences affected someone and, all things being relative, these matters were of grave importance to those affected . . . and perhaps even to us who were to come . . . after all, it DID happen here—By the Feature Editor.

Meet-The-Clubs-Day March 6 Date Set By Activities Board

Club Day has been scheduled for Friday, March 6, during college hour, Robin Dunn, acting dean of student activities, announced recently.

"Purpose of this affair," he stated, "is to acquaint new students with the many clubs and organizations affiliated with the college."

Various tables will be located throughout the student lounge in Building 2, and representatives of the assorted organizations will be on hand to obtain names of interested students and also to supply information.

The day will be culminated with a dance in the college auditorium, tentative plans indicated.

Pulse Of The Campus

RAM'S HORN

Coffee Nerves . . .

Editor, The Guardsman:

In your first issue of the semester under the heading, "Ram's Horn" you mentioned that letters from past students, among other things, complained about the fountain and cafeteria hours.

I've been here but a couple of weeks now and already am in complete sympathy with this complaint.

At about two or three o'clock in the afternoon almost everyone I know hits the lowest ebb of the day and could stand a slight pick-me-up in the form of a cup of coffee or a coke. With a ten minute break between classes there's not time to go to an outside fountain. Therefore, I would like to make a suggestion to the "powers that be."

Why not keep the fountain open for limited service until about four or else install a couple of coffee machines on the campus.

This should not cost much considering what a humane service it would be to all of us who suffer this afternoon lag.

A Caffeine Addict

Editor's Note: The pulse of the campus beats slowly, if contributions to the Ram's Horn are any indication.

As explained in the first edition, this space is reserved for "student thought." However, it is realized that during the first weeks of a semester one has little time for private thought and all energy is directed toward arranging schedules, becoming acquainted with surroundings, and devising shortcuts and energy-savers to be employed whenever possible during the following weeks.

To relieve any worries, names of letter writers will be withheld on request but must be known to the editor. Material may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman office, Building 4D. Deadlines are noon each Wednesday.

Rams Play Host Saturday Eve To Mateo's Bulldogs In Final Basketball Tilt Of '53 Season

By Al Palacio

Past records will be discarded to the four winds Saturday night when the dauntless Rams of City College play host to the strong San Mateo Bulldogs in a Big Seven Conference encounter at the men's gymnasium.

This game is, beyond all doubt, the highlight of the Ram's home schedule, as the two colleges have been at each other's athletic throats since City College opened its portals in 1935.

The Rams, under the astute guidance of Coach Ralph Hillsman, will attempt to throw a monkey wrench into the visitors' plans of winning the conference crown. Also, a local victory would enable the Rams to retain possession of the Northern California Junior College Association trophy, symbolic of basketball supremacy between the Bay Area rivals.

Ray Baisley, Bulldog mentor, has two of his stars primed for a top performance, Frank Rodriguez, ex-Sequoia High flash, and John Ereeg, former Fremont High star, are among the conference scoring leaders as both casabans have been hovering around a 13-point-a-game clip.

City College will counter with a talented pair of its own, although the playing ability of the squad is equally distributed. Frank Hess, Lowell High graduate, and Jerry Stack, who prepped at Balboa High, have been the chief point getters and are currently hitting at a better than 11-point average. Defensively, Art Back, Welch, and Bob Bordanza have performed brilliantly.

Tip-off for Saturday night's joust is slated for 8 o'clock, and a wild throng is expected to be on hand to watch the two clubs close out their league commitments.

On February 10, the Rams met the West Contra Costa Comets here and wound up on the short end of a 65-52 score. The game was nip and tuck throughout the first half with the Comets holding on tenaciously to a 31-22 bulge at the intermission. Bill Welch, stellar Ram center, picked up four fouls in the first two periods and was ineffectual during the second half.

Eural McKelvey, league scoring leader, chalked up 26 points to top the night's total point output. The slender Comet forward collected 10 digits in the final three minutes as he stood under the Contra Costa basket and, when Ram rebounds were picked up by his teammates, the ball would be shot down to McKelvey who just dropped them in. Back turned in a fine defensive job for City College. West Contra Costa sank 24 of 78 shots or 29% from the floor while the Rams connected on 21 of 65 or 32 per cent.

Sacramento upended Coach Hillsmans' charges on February 13 by a 76-59 margin. The hosts posted a 17-11 lead at the quarter mark, jacked it up to 33-19 at the half, and coasted from there on in.

J. C. Masters solved the City College defense for 22 markers, while Bob Bondanza topped the visitors with 16.

Tony Lazzeri, Jr., playing his first league game for the Rams, was a defensive giant and also picked up 10 points on the offensive side.

The City College defense failed to contain Sacramento to the outer reaches of the court, and as a result the Panthers poured through for sundry shots at close range. Conversely, the Rams were forced to cast off from afar.

Sacramento hit a red-hot 54 per cent of their shots, finding the range on 28 of 52 attempts. The Rams connected on 43 per cent or 22 for 51.

The Bearcubs from Santa Rosa handed the locals their next set-back, 82-71, before an enthusiastic gathering at the Cub lair. The opening quarter action was fast and furious as both quintets battled to a 13-13 stand-off. This was the closest the visitors got, however, as Santa Rosa steadily pulled away to a 38-30 lead at half-time.

The Bearcub height advantage prevailed in the second portion of the ball game as evidenced by the 76-56 advantage half way through the third period. The Rams never lost hope and closed the gap considerably in the final chapter.

Coach Hillsman of the Rams suited up eight players for the contest and, as it later resulted, the count was perfect. During the course of the tilt, three starters — Welch, Back, and Bondanza — fouled out.

Santa Rosa's huge pivotman, Fred Jacobs, was a tower of strength on the boards and also had his hand in many a tip-in.

Howard Rodriguez topped all scorers with 23 points, and Stack finished high for the Rams with 17 counters.

Betty Orton New WAA President; Healy Chosen Veep

The Women's Athletic Association will begin this semester with a completely new list of names at its head, as Vivien Bernard, physical education instructor, takes over her newly acquired position of adviser, and Betty Orton, president; Norma Healy, vice-president; and Mollie Inzunza, secretary-treasurer, take office.

The WAA's main activities, thus far, consist of several playdays. In March, a basketball game will take place in Santa Rosa, and on May 23, Napa Junior College will play host to City College as they display their swimming ability.

The first home playday is scheduled for April 11. Many more have been planned, although their dates have not been set.

Miss Bernard, Miss Orton, and Mildred Stoll, past president of the WAA, will attend the national convention of the American Federation of College Women to be held this March at Stanford University.

Hillsman Lists State Athletic Eligibility Rules

Eligibility rules for California junior college athletes were recently brought forth by Ralph Hillsman of the City College men's physical education department.

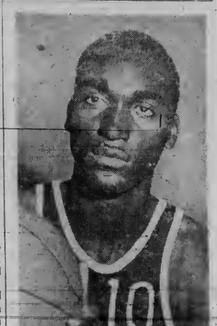
For students to compete in junior college competition, they must first conform to the rules which, basically, consist of residential, scholastic, and transfer regulations. They are as follows:

Eligibility for Junior Colleges:

1. He must be a resident of the local county or from what is considered open territory (where no junior college exists) to compete immediately.

2. If he comes to junior college from a four-year college, he is eligible to compete immediately if he is attending the junior college from the district where he originally makes his legal residence.

Scholastic Eligibility:



1. He must be a resident of the locale during the current semester, and that eligibility is checked on every two weeks of the current semester.

2. If he is an old student having attended at least a previous semester at this junior college, he must have been passing in at least 10½ units of the previous semester to the current semester he wishes to compete in.

Students wishing to compete in major colleges must keep the following in mind:

1. Twelve calendar months from the date he first registers in a junior college or a four-year college count as his freshman eligibility whether he plays or not. All eligibility after the first year is only affected if he plays.

2. Students transferring from a four-year college to another four-year school automatically lose one year of competition.

EURAL McKELVEY, West Contra Costa's six foot six inch forward, has amassed 226 points in Big Seven Conference play, breaking the old standard of 192.

Comet McKelvey Leads Big Seven Cage Scoring

With a fabulous total of 226 points this season, West Contra Costa's Eural McKelvey continues to lead the Big Seven college scorers.

The six foot, six inch Comet forward, who has already broken the conference scoring of 192, can put his tremendous total out of reach with three games remaining on the Comet schedule.

Stockton center, Nick Romanoff, holds second place among Northern California scorers with 322 points in 17 games.

City College's leading scorer is Frank Hess, who has scored 64 points, according to the latest available conference statistics.

Because of the unavailability of official Big Seven Conference scoring statistics, only the figures of McKelvey's total are up-to-date. The following figures are official as of January 30:

McKelvey, Contra Costa	128
Romanoff, Stockton	90
Hess, San Francisco	64
Kane, Modesto	61
Masters, Sacramento	58
DeVight, Contra Costa	58
H. Rodriguez, Santa Rosa	57
Stack, San Francisco	54
F. Rodriguez, San Mateo	52

Thirty Enthusiasts Key To Diamond Prospects; Fischer Lauds Quality

Coach Bill Fischer greeted 30 diamond enthusiasts at a special baseball meeting held recently in the men's gymnasium.

The player-count was below expectations but, as the Ram baseball mentor put it, "This squad may be small in numbers, but high in quality."

Fischer has been sending his proteges through daily workouts at Ocean View Park and team cuts will be made intermittently.

Among the ex-prep luminaries who entered the Ram fold were Lewis Flores, former Balboa High All-City pitcher, and Jerry Stack, currently cavorting on the City College cage quintet.

Fischer is anxious to get the club down to a sizeable working unit so that he can get a better line on what kind of material he will have.

"Undoubtedly, many of these players will go into the professional ranks," Fischer stated, "and I want them to get as much experience in junior college competition as possible."

The 1953 City College baseball conference schedule contains four doubleheaders. League play opens on March 24 versus San Mateo, and four days later the teams play return engagements.

On April 7, the Rams trek to Richmond and clash with West Contra Costa, and on April 11 the Comets visit Big Rec diamond in Golden Gate Park, the Rams' home field, for a wind-up of the two game series.

Santa Rosa will host the Fischermen in an April 18 doubleheader, and on April 25 the Rams will be the home team in a get-together with Modesto, also a double encounter.

The Panthers from Sacramento meet the Rams at Big Rec on May 2 in a twin bill, and on May 9, the locals close out the season at Stockton in a bargain day 'tilt.

The date and site of the home-and-home series with arch-rival San Mateo are subject to change as negotiations are in the planning stage.

Swim Team Status Depends On Signup

Sign up for a possible City College swimming team was announced last week by Coach Roy Burkhead. Burkhead stated that formation of a team will be determined by the number of sign ups.

All students who are interested in competitive swimming are urged to see Coach Burkhead at the men's gymnasium for complete details.

In the past, swimming has been conducted on the number of sign ups. Competition is provided by Northern California colleges, not by the Big Seven Conference, because of the lack of pools at conference colleges.

Groundwork Laid For Intramural Athletic Calendar

Progressing with early rapidity, the current intramural athletic program is now in the process of engaging softball and track as the next participation events.

Under the active supervision of Coach Ralph Hillsman, the intramural schedule has been alternated to include among its present activities, several of the minor sports such as ping pong, boxing, track, badminton, tennis, handball and swimming in the individual participant category.

Divided alternately into two separate groups, the program includes competition for both teams, and, as previously mentioned, individual sport.

Listed in the team competition division are basketball, soccer, softball, volleyball, and football. The clubs or groups of individuals who wish to participate in these various games, need only to sign up in the men's gymnasium with Hillsman. In order to play on an organized squad, six or more men choose a manager and sign up as a team in the same method.

Awards for the winning teams and individual participants will be given for first and second places respectively, gold belt buckles for the winners, and silver buckles for the runners up.

Completing a successful season of intramural competition, Hillsman commented on the deciding tournament playoffs that decided several championships last semester.

One of the most active student sports for the previous semester was basketball, and this intramural event witnessed one of the tightest neck and neck races for the league crown.

Also scheduled in competition will be alternate playing dates. At the present time, there is a Monday and Wednesday league, and a Tuesday and Thursday league. These two groups merge at the end of the regular round-robin schedule and engage in a tournament playoff.

Glory Hunters Out For Cage Prestige

IT'S too bad basketball, which was invented as a wholesome indoor activity during the winter months, has been diverted into a game of complete farce by a few prestige-seeking teams attempting to attract a few headlines.

The outlandish style of play employed by these teams resembles anything but the little game for amusement invented by Dr. James Naismith in 1891 at Springfield, Massachusetts.

Basketball at these schools has become big business now and the theory of sportsmanship as a prime requisite on the court is completely unknown.

It's pretty evident that the achievement of athletic recognition is dependent on the success of a team, hence they stop at nothing to attain this goal. In other words the ends justify the means.

Prestige has been sought for in various ways and means. Recruiting players to build better teams has been a favorite technique of many schools, but the latest device cooked up by these "glory" hunting" colleges just about everything and anything in foolishness.

Several weeks ago, newspaper sports pages blared out with a story of a cager scoring a hundred points plus in one game. This little school was put on the map over night as a result of this nation-wide publicity.

This publicity continued for weeks with stories of this player breaking records in every game he participated in.

The theory behind this type of basketball neither helps the name of the school after a period of time or aids the good name of basketball. The coach at this school orders his players to feed his star, who has stationed himself under the opponent's basket during the entire game, so that he may score prodigious totals.

The star of this team does not compete in defensive play. His function for the team is just to drop the ball in the basket when his demoralized teammates "feed him."

There was another outbreak of basketball of this type in Southern California when the coach of another team decided that one of his boys could break the fabulous 100 point plus record.

Continuation of this type of basketball will inevitably ruin the public interest in this sport. Who wants to watch a fellow stand under the bucket all night and just drop in baskets while his teammates do all the defensive work?

Local Golfers Meet East Contra Costa

Sharpening up their putts and drives, members of the local golf squad are readying themselves for their first league game with East Contra Costa on March 16.

Coach Ralph Hillsman has set his eyes on a good showing in league competition this year and states this year's club has fine potentialities.

Hillsman, who will be aided by Dick Kucich, former Ram putter, has a tentative first string in Don Gullikson, Stan Diamond, Art Pira, Charles Jose, Dave Casserri, Chuck Payne, and Hugh Templin.

Ram Netters Play Stanford Tomorrow; Mays Paces Squad

The college tennis squad will pack their rackets to Stanford University tomorrow for their first match of the spring '53 season.

The local netters, according to Coach Roy Diederichsen, are bolstered this year by returning lettermen, Don Mays, first singles and doubles man last year, Doug Alter, fourth man last season, and Charlie Woodruff. Rounding out the first string so far are Bob Pritzkow, promising new player from Piedmont, Don Seyranian from Balboa High, and Bill Wright from Washington.

Diederichsen stated that a varsity letter may be earned by competing players, and since more men are needed to round out the club, any interested student may contact Diederichsen in his office in the men's gymnasium.

Spring Curriculum Equal To Last Semester's; Luckmann Schedules No Direct Changes

Describing the present curriculum schedule as tentatively equal to that of last semester, Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator of instruction, announced today that no direct changes have been made in the current program.

Under the present system of organization, the college has developed courses to meet the basic needs of the individual student, Dr. Luckmann pointed out, and these courses are grouped into the several curricula which make up the program of instruction.

Divided into three separate and distinct groups, university parallel, semi-professional, and general college courses respectively, the objectives of the instruction program are met.

Courses outlined in the university parallel division are equivalent in respect to that of the first two years of college work. Enrollment in these courses is subject to the satisfaction of prerequisites, and in addition, Dr. Luckmann declared, "formulate the needed basis for further college study."

In the semi-professional department, students who wish to complete two years of training are offered more than thirty-seven two-year programs of study. In addition to receiving training in specific skills, the student takes courses relevant to his field to give a better understanding of the society in which he lives.

The general college courses include general orientation and instruction in the various vocations of life. Some general college courses may be counted as electives toward junior standing in a four year college.

Bixby Working On Freshman Week; Picnic Tentative

Plans for Freshman Week, March 16 to 20, are now being formulated by the Freshman officers, Bill Bixby, Freshman president, said this week.

Tentative plans are being made for a picnic to be held during that week. It is also hoped, Bixby added, that a Freshman-Sophomore baseball or basketball game can be scheduled.

Climax of the week's activities, the first Associated Student hotel dance of the semester under the sponsorship of the class, is slated for the Fairmont Hotel on Friday, March 20, in the Gold Room.

The dance will be free to members of the Associated Students, Bixby said.

The cost to non-members has tentatively been set at $2.00 per couple. Dancing will be from 9 to 12 p.m., and Walt Tolleson and his band will provide the music for the evening.

Handling the arrangements with Bixby, are Dino Gofas, Bobbie Rolph, Sue Speer, John McDonald, and Patty and Jackie Mascarelli.

Registrar

MARY JANE LEARNARD, registrar, can chort the acodemic life history of the thousands of students who have entered City College and whose records are on file in her office.

Alpha Gamma Sigma Expects Active Spring

Although no definite plans are available as yet, the college honor scholarship society, Alpha Gamma Sigma, is looking forward to an active spring semester, according to Don Jensen, faculty sponsor of the group. The society is experiencing the usual beginning-of-the-semester confusion because of necessary reorganizing.

As soon as the society is sufficiently organized, officers will be elected and complete plans for the semester will be formulated.

A series of lectures by prominent speakers will be scheduled, and these talks, given monthly here on the campus, are sponsored jointly by AGS and a faculty committee under the directorship of Jensen. Lectures will begin as soon as possible and will be on topics of interest to students, Jensen declared.

Information regarding membership in AGS may be found in the college catalog or handbook or may be secured from Jensen in his office in Building 3. Jensen further pointed out that eligibility for membership would bear looking into, since the society acts as an agency for many university scholarships.

Conlan Comments On Attendance

Commenting on the general outlook for the Spring semester, President Louis G. Conlan announced yesterday that the Spring attendance at the college has exceeded all expectations, attributing the upsurge to a "sudden spurt" in both veteran and high school graduate enrollment.

Expressing praise for the college spirit in the student government elections last semester, President Conlan urged that students not only continue with the tempo reached last semester but advance in that respect.

"As the student body increases so will the student activities," President Conlan said.

Construction of the new college buildings is so rapid, President Conlan declared, that plans for the first unit of the proposed Student Union Building have already been completed, and freshman students here this semester will probably be the first to occupy the classrooms and library which are due for completion in the Spring of 1954.

Blythe Appoints Seventeen Members To Publicity Group

Seventeen members were chosen last week as members of the college publicity committee for the spring semester by Chairman Sam Blythe.

Members of the committee are Norm Heise, Louanne Morford, Al Burgin, Jerry Schween, Paul Bixel, Charles Osborne, Andy Schneider, Don Douglas, Bill Bixby, John McDonald, Art Baek, Gloria Lorenzo, Don Earl, Diane Franklin, Sally Galvin, Jim Boutick, and Ron Atkinson.

Blythe said that members of the committee were chosen because they were in a position to help the college.

"The varied interests and skills which can be demonstrated by this committee, if it works as a unit should prove valuable to the college's entire publicity program," he said.

Ed Hjerpe Submits Mardi Gras Plans

Associated Men Student President Ed Hjerpe, in recent meetings with the deans of activities and club sponsors is working on plans to present a Mardi Gras that will not only be a huge financial success but will control the boisterous conduct of over exuberant students.

Hjerpe stated yesterday that some of the Mardi Gras of previous years have gotten out of hand, and efforts to control this matter will be ironed out before May 15, the scheduled date of the annual festival.

Hjerpe's assistants this semester will be vice-president Dave Raphael and secretary Loretta Warchot.

Student Welfare

F. GRANT MARSH, co-ordinator of student welfare, supervises counselling and registration procedures, and as his title implies, looks out for the general welfare of City College students.

Scott, Wescott New Officers Of A Capella Choir

New officers of the A Cappella Choir were announced this week by Flossita Badger, choir director.

Bill Scott, whose last semester activities included planning all of the decorations for the Christmas Concert, was elected manager of the choir. Glenn Wescott, a composer who appeared in the varieties last semester, was elected assistant manager, and Bobbie Rolph, secretary. Ron Atkinson was appointed to the new office of director of publicity.

Miss Badger announced that an initiation and welcome party for both new and former members will be held at her house on Thursday, March 5.

Two definite engagements, among the biggest the choir has ever had, are scheduled for the semester. The choir will be the featured guests in a performance at the Palace of the Legion of Honor in conjunction with Ludwig Altmann, municipal organist, and distinguished San Francisco musician.

Then the choir will participate in an all Bay Area inter-denominational Easter service at the Civic Auditorium.

Many new students have joined the choir, but there are still openings in the tenor, bass, and alto sections Miss Badger said. Students who are interested in membership should apply to Miss Badger in the auditorium, Building 1, west campus.

Variety Show Tryouts

Tryouts for the spring Variety Show to be held in April were announced last week by Bill Bixby, freshman class president, and John McDonald, chairman of Associated Student card sales committee.

The tryouts, which will be held tonight, tomorrow, and Friday from 8 to 10 p.m. each day in the west campus auditorium, include openings for acting, singing, makeup, art work, props, scenery, lighting, and general backstage work, Bixby said.

IFC Adopts New College Hour Meeting Program; Officers Elected

By Shirley Murphy

The new semester has started and members of all of the campus organizations are busily planning their spring social calendars, ironing the kinks out of their policies, and electing officers to guide them through the next six months.

The Inter-Fraternity Council has adopted a new policy this semester. It has scheduled six meetings, which will be held during the college hour. These meetings will include discussion of topics that are of interest to all IFC members and the adoption of policies. The first meeting was held on February 20, and the remaining five are calendared for March 20, April 17, April 24, May 1, and June 5.

IFC officers for the spring semester are President, Al Lithgow; Vice President, Joe Vlhardi; Secretary, Paul Bixel; Treasurer, Walt Rilliet.

A Sweetheart Dance was sponsored by the Chinese Students' Club last Saturday night. The Fairmont Hotel was the locale for the affair.

Newly elected officers of the Club Activities Board are President, Pat Miller, Globe and Anchor Society, an organization composed of former Marines; Vice-President, Gail Paghetti, Zeta Chi; Secretary, Mildred Stoll, Women's Athletic Association.

CAB is the coordinating body for all campus organizations. It is composed of one representative from each club on campus: Robin Dunn, acting assistant dean of student activities, is the adviser of the group, which holds its meetings on Tuesday and Thursday at 1 o'clock in Building 2.

All club news is to be turned in at the regular Tuesday meeting of the CAB.

The Newman Club held their first meeting of the semester on February 18 and their Communion Breakfast of all Newman Clubs throughout the state on February 23. Their next meeting will be held on March 1. Dancing and refreshments follow every meeting.

West Campus Parking Permit Enforcement To Start Next Monday

Beginning Monday, March 2, campus police will issue traffic tags to cars on west campus without a permit, Dean Edwin C. Browne said yesterday.

Associated Student card and car registration slip must be presented in Building 2 to obtain permits for the west campus parking area, he warned, adding that such permits allow cars to be parked in designated areas and do not authorize illegal parking.

Each semester permits are issued and they are subject to cancellation for speeding, reckless driving, incorrect parking, or other conduct as would jeopardize such privileges.

Parking is permitted on the circle drive behind the main building, with entrance from south approach only, Dean Browne added.

No parking is allowed on ramps at the north and south ends of the college building or anywhere on the center drive.

Forum Sets Deadline

Copy deadline for articles submitted to Forum Magazine for publication in the forthcoming edition, to be published this Spring semester, has been set by Dorothy Mercer, faculty adviser, for Monday, April 13.

Material of all kinds is in demand, such as short stories, essays, drama, poetry, humorous and narrative sketches, with the length approximately 1,500 words. All copy submitted must be typed and double spaced, Miss Mercer said.

Students wishing to submit articles, or desiring more information concerning type of material, should consult Miss Mercer in Room 19, Building 19.

Chairman Names New Publications Board Members

New members of the Publications Board were announced today by the new board chairman, Louanne Morford. They are Norm Heise, Associated Student president; Wray Jacobs and Al Burgin, managing editor of The Guardsman.

The board meets on the second and fourth Friday of every month at 1 o'clock in Room 4-D. Any student desiring information concerning any campus publication is invited to these meetings, Miss Morford said.

Robin Dunn, acting assistant dean of student activities, Dean Louis Matmale, acting controller of education management, and Joan Nourse, Guardsman adviser, meet with the board each time.

A few of the many responsibilities of the board are to prepare The Guardsman publication schedule, approve any printed matter which is to be distributed on the campus, and if approved recommend the matter to the Student Council. The only exception to this rule is election campaign matter.

The Guardsman is the only official publication of the college. The tentative schedule on which it will be published this semester is every Wednesday except Easter week of vacation.

Hill, Blankenship Awarded Harvey Toy Scholarship

George R. Hill and Frank Blankenship, both fourth semester hotel students here, were awarded the Harvey Toy Scholarships of $150 each at the annual meeting of the Hotel and Restaurant Alumni Foundation recently.

At the same meeting, the foundation elected new officers for the Board of Trustees. They are as follows: Truman Loud, president; George Smith, vice-president; Lawrence Wong, secretary; and Carl Rutledge, treasurer.

Members of the foundation's advisory board were also elected and they are President Louis G. Conlan, Henry Maschal, and Richard Flamtert.

The scholarships are from a 50 thousand dollar grant made to the college's hotel division by the late Harvey Toy, San Francisco hotel magnate.

AWS Assisting Officers Named

Appointment of assisting officers of the Associated Women Students was announced yesterday by Julie Hannon, AWS president.

Diana Bates is the new vice-president and Jane Zalinsky and Dolores Mosconi are members of the AWS committee. All four assisted new students during registration.

Major activity of the AWS this semester is a tea for women students who will graduate in June from San Francisco high schools.

A fashion show is also on the calendar, Miss Hannon said, with a tentative date of April 30 set aside.

Ushering Passes Available Now

Students wishing to usher at the Opera House and the Civic Auditorium may obtain passes from Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, in Building 2.

Appointments for weekend ushering must be made by student and approved by the dean one week ahead of time.

Operas, symphonies, concerts, and ballets are featured on program.

On Friday, representatives of the organizations will be present at tables which will be located throughout the student lounge in Building 2, and they will explain the functions of their respective affiliations. Also, they will take the names of the students interested in joining the club fold.

Dunn emphasized that a special table will be set up for the purpose of gathering student opinion on the possibility of forming new clubs.

Council Discusses Yell Leader Post, Propose Tryouts

Associated Student President Norm Heise made two more appointments to his cabinet last week at council meetings, naming Walt Rilliet as Parliamentarian and Betty Orton as Women's Athletic Commissioner.

The only cabinet position still open is that of Election Commissioner.

Selection of this semester's Yell Leader will be made by the head Yell Leader, the council decided.

If possible, council members voted, prospective Yell Leaders will have an opportunity to try out at a rally.

Don Douglas, Finance Committee chairman, warned that budgets may have to be cut considerably.

Associated Student card sales must keep up a steady pace to reach the goal of 1,500 cards, John McDonald, Associated Student card sales chairman, announced.

Paul Bixel, who was appointed Information Service chairman, was drafted last week and his position will be filled soon, Heise disclosed.

Student Council meetings are held every Tuesday and Thursday in Building 2 at 12:00 p.m. The meetings are open and the council welcomes all members of the Associated Students.

There will be no council meeting tomorrow; March 5, because a group of council members will be attending a conference in Monterey.

Hop Tops Soph's Social Calendar

Don Molteni, president of the sophomore class, announced last week the officers and social calendar for the ensuing semester. The officers are as follows: Janet Terry, vice-president, and Marlee Scheol, secretary.

The big item on the social calendar at the moment is the Inter-Collegiate Sophomore Hop which will be held Friday night at the Fairmont Hotel from 9 to 1, Molteni said. The dance, which is open to all students, is informal. Tickets are $2.50 and can be purchased at either the bank or silver pole in the main building or at the Ramporium.

The Hop will feature a queen who will be chosen during the course of the evening. City College, California, Stanford, Mills College, San Jose State, and West Contra Costa are all entering candidates.

Sally Galvin, Associated Student vice-president, is this college's candidate, Molteni said.

Phil Bavero and his band will be featured at the dance.

Poster Schedule Set

Applications for sign posters publicizing scheduled campus events must be received by the publicity committee two weeks before they are needed, Sam Blythe, committee chairman, announced last week.

"At the present time there is a shortage of persons equipped to do poster work," Blythe said.

Blythe hoped that all organizations would co-operate with the committee in this manner.

Exchange Rally With San Mateo Planned

An extensive rally schedule has been drawn up for this semester by Rally Commissioner Connie Webb.

Webb's plans call for four local rallies to be held during college hour and one exchange rally with San Mateo College.

The rally committee has made plans to take entertainment to San Mateo College next Tuesday, March 11. The acts will feature variety skits, musical and vocal entertainment, and two yell leaders.

On the local scene, the next rally will be April 10, when the big spring sports rally will be staged, open only to Associated Students.

Webb, assisted by secretary Mnrilee Scholl, has appointed Walt Rillet to handle the mike chores during class breaks and announced a twelve person committee who are Diane Bates, Don Molteni, Nina Turcich, Barbara Campello, Jean Sable, Pat Simmons, Doug Carmichael, Judy Lowenbreg, Bob Lalande, Meg Schick and Felicia Zleger.

Capers To Mark A CAB First

Club Day festivities on Friday, March 6, will be climaxed with a CAB—Club Activities Board—dance, appropriately titled "Club Capers," commencing at 9 p.m. in the College auditorium, Pat Miller, CAB president, announced early this week.

"The primary function of this affair," Robin Dunn, CAB faculty adviser stated, "is to foster interest in campus club activities."

The dance, third of the semester, is on a trial basis as it will mark the first time that the CAB has afforded sponsorship to a college dance and its future depends on the student support, Dunn asserted.

Dick Saltzman's quartet will provide the music, Miller declared, and dancing will continue through to midnight.

Student Association members will be admitted free, while non-members will be subject to a 56-cent entrance fee, Miller added.

Keith Franks, Peg Chase, Mildred Stoll, Gail Pighetti and Miller comprise the dance committee.

Student Leaders Attend Regional Meet Tomorrow

The Northern California Regional Student Government Conference, at which all Junior Colleges in Northern California are represented, will start tomorrow at the Asilomar Summer Resort in Pacific Grove, California, Associated Student President Norman Heise announced recently.

The one day conference will feature group panel meetings on subjects of immediate interest to college students, Heise said. Topics to be discussed are the draft, a comparison of social programs, and a comparison of college class schedules and finances. Heise said that all resolutions adopted by the conference will be brought up at the Annual State Conference, also at Asilomar, April 9-11.

Auditorium Chosen As Mardi Gras Site

The Associated Men Students' annual Mardi Gras this year will be presented indoors in the college auditorium and Building 2. Ed Hjerpe, AMS president, announced recently. The change has been approved by deans of activities and club sponsors to conduct this year's festival in a more dignified manner than some previous occasions.

Hjerpe has appointed an able staff of assistants to make this year's presentation a huge success. Named as chairmen are Dave Raphael, publicity; parade, Wray Jacobs; finance, Andy Schnieder; correspondence, Mildred Stoll and Robbie Violin; coronation, Dino Gofas and Bob Moore; dance committee, Roberta Usher.

AMS Vice-President Dave Raphael added that the committee will have a booth in Building 2 on Club Day and for all clubs to consult him for details about their concessions.

DURING THE RECENT HOTEL DAY at the St. Francis, students of the college's photography and journalism departments experienced an unexpected opportunity. Lunching at the hotel as guest of honor of the Consul General of the Republic of Korea, Young Hon Shoo, was Captain Ahn Chong Soon, master of the steamer Dong Hoe Ho. The captain's ship was among six purchased by the Consul from local brokers. Conversing with Young is Earl Hoge (standing), student manager of the St. Francis for the day. Representing Admiral Bertram Rodger, Commandant of the Twelfth Naval District was Capt. Wm. Wheeler (right).—Photo by Denevi. (For more photo coverage of Hotel Day, see page 2.)

Trustees Of Nine Bay Area School Districts Meet Here

By Ken Molino

Trustees of nine bay area public school districts were hosted here last Saturday by the college and the Board of Education, San Francisco Unified School District.

Purpose of the gathering, first of its kind in this area, according to President Louis G. Conlan, was ". . . to get acquainted."

He stated that by "comparing mutual problems" at this meeting the burdens of all concerned would be lessened and would result in greater educational benefits to the people of the respective communities.

In attendance Saturday were members of boards of education of Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, Napa, Santa Clara, San Francisco, San Mateo, Solano and Sonoma Counties.

Principal speakers were John Levison, president of the San Francisco Board of Education; Acting Mayor Dewey Mead; Lawrence B. White, Administrative Director of the California School Trustees Association; Irving G. Breyer, legal adviser, San Francisco Board of Education; Carl Munck, Oakland Board of Education; and Dr. J. P. Leonard, president of San Francisco State College.

A bright spot in the full day of activities was the buffet luncheon served by the hotel and restaurant division.

"The hotel and restaurant people certainly put their best foot forward today," Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator of instruction here, exclaimed.

The afternoon session moved the meeting from the main building to the student lounge where, amid a display of student projects, photographs, drawings and the like, a panel discussion was moderated by Bert Levit, San Francisco Board of Education.

Panel discussion centered about topics covered in speeches at the morning session. Those included legislation on matters of education now pending in Sacramento, a report on the recent Atlantic City convention of the National School Board Association, and a discussion of junior college, state college, and university unctions.

The San Francisco Board of Education was complimented on "... taking the first step toward integration efforts" of all the neighboring districts.

Dean Browne Stresses Attendance Regulations

Students should become acquainted with attendance regulations of City College, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, announced today.

Absences are classified in three groups: emergency, for which absences cannot exceed the number of times the class meets each week; officially excused, when a student must be absent to engage in a college activity; illness, absences because of illness may be excused by presenting satisfactory evidence to the Dean of Men or Dean of Women.

Dean Browne stressed that students under 21 years must bring a written excuse from either parent or legal guardian.

AS Card Sales Chairman Warns Illegal Users

John MacDonald, Associated Student card sales chairman, reported last week that as of Wednesday, February 25, 900 cards have been sold, which makes a total of $4,500.

MacDonald declared that the council is taking steps to check illegal use by borrowing of cards, and that membership will be canceled if the cards are mis-used.

A sale of 1,500 cards is the goal set, MacDonald stated.

Cards are on sale at the Ramporium and the college bank. The bank is located in Room 188, and cards are sold by Roberta Fredricks, cashier.

MacDonald pointed out that the cards are needed for parking permits, rallies, games and the freshman dance.

Prospective graduates need cards for graduation gowns; otherwise, a fee of $5 will be charged for each gown, according to MacDonald.

Associated Student budget requests total $14,000, MacDonald reported.

MacDonald also announced that the cards will no longer be sold at the Silver Pole at the center entrance to the main building.

Merchandising Club Here Wins Cup Trophy At State Convention

The college's Merchandising Club was awarded a trophy cup and a certificate at the statewide convention of the Distributive Education Clubs of California last month, Virginia Gohn, sponsor of the club, announced this week.

James Fernando, state historian, was presented with the prizes for his original creation, A Fashion Is Born, now on display in the corridor of the first floor of the main building.

The convention was held in the Lafayette Hotel in Long Beach on February 21 and 22.

A business meeting included election of officers, and a number of speeches given by former merchandising students of the college.

A banquet was followed by a floor show presented by a semi-professional group. Dancing followed the entertainment.

Miss Gohn reported that approximately 250 students registered at the convention.

Success Of Second Hotel Day Assures It As Annual Event

As Photographers See Hotel Day

REPRESENTATIVE OF SOME FIFTY SHOTS made by The Guardsman staff photographers during the recent Hotel Day, the surrounding photos show typical situations in which members of the hotel and restaurant division were cast for the affair.

Earl Hazen (directly above), student manager of the St. Francis on Hotel Day, smiles as Executive Manager Dan Landon explains one of the routine tasks of his position. Hazen's only comment as he was relieved of his duties at 5 p.m. was ". . . I'm tired . . ."

"We'll have that full by this evening," Edward Sequeira, resident manager of the St. Francis seems to be telling student Pete Hudson (upper left) as they begin their work day.

Assigned the position of publicity manager student Al Hooning (upper right) appeared on Ann Holden's ABC interview program during the course of the day. Hooning proved a good publicity man for his college, as well as the St. Francis, when he plugged its hotel and restaurant division and the departments of journalism and photography.

An anti-climax, after a day of enjoyable excitement for all concerned, was the huge and varied spread of refreshments set up by the hotel staff for the students. Joan Hansen (left), having been relieved from her one-day job at the hotel switchboards, stands between Chefs Ernie Eiholzer and Paul Vater, admiring an ice-sculpture swan. (Chief pastry chef Steve Vinneys confessed that it had been salvaged from a recent automobile convention at the St. Francis.)

On hand for the close of activities were President Louis G. Conlon and Mrs. Hilda Watson, shown at the right with London.

After expressing the college's thanks for the opportunity afforded the students President Conlan advised them to ". . . aspire to the high positions you held today, but work hard toward them . . ."—Photos by Denevi and Malino.

"City College—Community" Our Job Is Its Improvement

OPERATION Hotel Day is over for another year, but its tremendous success and its vast benefit to the college should prove to all sceptics what a complete and vitally alive community City College actually is.

Before a student enters college he is entitled to feel that a college is an institution of higher learning, period; that while in attendance his mental capacity will be further developed along classical lines. A college may be, to a high school student, a large building or group of buildings containing innumerable class rooms and laboratories and a variety of social organizations that will allow him to give vent to the social drive.

If after as little as a month this narrow viewpoint still exists, something is definitely wrong with the student's powers of observation.

Like any community, City College is as completely a self contained suburb as our modern age allows. Within its boundaries are facilities for something more than simple learning and social enjoyment. Presided over by a mayor (President), his cabinet and advisers, the thriving little community boasts of a cafeteria and two snack bars, a flower shop, a bank, a housing project, a choir, glee club, and orchestra, an employment agency, plans for improvement, a graphic arts laboratory, a drama group, parking problems, a police force, a photography laboratory, a newspaper, a library, athletic teams, and many other groups, all of which add to the whole of the community.

Each individual of the community daily is called upon to represent the college before the public in some small way. Of special importance, however, are the large scale operations which take groups of our people away from the college and put them on 'display' as our representatives.

Many groups from the college take part in such activities. Most recent was Operation Hotel Day at the St. Francis Hotel. Three departments from the college were involved, and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., 30 students represented "City College—Community" in a way that was above reproach. The students themselves received an experience beyond the pale of simple education, and the old concept of learning and the community received valuable publicity.

The success and growth of any community depends on its public relations. Talking about good public relations won't help; action will and hence good publicity is insured. Therefore, Hotel Day was a two fold success.

If City College continues to deserve good publicity, it will continue to get it, and such publicity should make City College the biggest little community on the Pacific Coast in no time.

St. Francis Offers Unique Services

The temporary staff of the St. Francis for Hotel Day learned that the hotel stresses the little things which are so important.

Elizabeth Bell, publicity manager of the St. Francis, explained that one of her duties is to handle the 75 national flags and pennants which the hotel maintains to honor visiting dignitaries. Each of them measures eight by twelve feet, she stated, and is flown when officials from the various countries are stopping at the hotel.

Coin washing is another of the small services offered by the St. Francis. All silver received in any department is washed in silver cleansing machines before it is put back into circulation.

Each male guest at the hotel receives personally embossed match books and each lady a flower. During hotel day all the participants enjoyed this latter service and each received a carnation.

It Happened Here . . .

In The Past Ten Years

A RECENT letter to the Ram's Horn bemoaned the short hours of fountain and cafeteria. Without doubt, there is some merit to the complaint of the student who signed himself "A Caffeine Addict," however, let us quote from the 1944 issue of this paper.

". . . city ruling permits the cafeteria to be open . . . from 11 to 1 o'clock. Mrs. Watson continued that students should 'bus their own dishes because of the shortage of help . . . and not take silver, dishes, or other equipment out of the cafeteria . . ."

Obviously we are much better off today as far as operating hours, but the help situation apparently still exists, and the missing equipment probably still shows up missing occasionally. On the other hand, dear "Addict," you are not alone and perhaps something still may be done.

In 1945, a scholarly individual complained, not of the cafeteria operating hours, but of the college operating hours. ". . . I fail to see why . . . college lets out at 2 o'clock . . ." Contemporary students are fortunate—they sometimes can't go home until five.

Associated Student card sales hit the 2765 mark in 1947—quite a record—and there was a waiting list for enrollment.

1948 saw the GI Bill lauded and a suggestion appeared that the government subsidize deserving high school graduates in their education in a sort of "perpetual" G.I. Bill.

Amid many grumbles law and order was firmly established at the college in 1949 when the police department approved uniforms for the campus police.

And early in 1950 car owners were happy about their presence. While they broke up baseball games in the parking area (which had caused some damage to autos) The Guardsman editor invited the energetic parking lot nines to join the baseball team.

A 1951 headline read, "Car Drivers Find Little Red Tabs Pretty Important" . . . just as some of them have this week. It DOES Happen Here.

Editor, The Guardsman:

In the past two semesters here I have noticed that advice on such matters as the good and bad qualities of instructors at the college usually passes on from one student to another during registration day.

Since the formation of the first educational lycgum in this country two quam stereotyped instructors have developed from which all instructors in every college and university can be classified: the very easy and the very difficult.

The latter, and the harder type of instructor for the "easy grade" seeking student to handle, is the man who, in the event you decease in class, will prop you up until the lecture is over.

But, be advised, stick with too many of the former and your brain will rust like iron and your education will go to pot.

Ram Cagers Down San Mateo In Finale

Bulldogs' Bid For Big Seven Crown Ruined

City College's erratic Rams pulled off their biggest and by far their most satisfying victory of the 1953 Big Seven campaign as they knocked their arch-rival San Mateo Bulldogs right out of the Big Seven Conference championship with a 63 to 57 conquest last Saturday night on the local court.

The Rams, playing with everything to gain, bottled up San Mateo's two potent offensive stars, John Erceg and Frank Rodriguez, and held a strong seven point lead at the half. Erceg, the Bulldog's center, who averaged in the twenties, was held to 14 points by some beautiful defensive work by Ram center, Art Back. Rodriguez, a tricky guard, was far below his par with only three measly points.

San Francisco's offensive attack clicked in its usual fashion with Frank Hess, 10, Bill Welch, 16, and Bob Bondanza, 14, chalking up their usual double numeral totals, but it was Ken Hansen, a normal second stringer, who punched in 10 points to really aid City College in the upset victory.

The San Mateo scoring attack, severely jolted by the inability of Rodriguez and Erceg, centered around the free throw line with 25 of their points coming via the charity shot and 16 buckets from the floor.

This victory for the Rams boosted their conference standings to five wins and seven losses. The loss for the Bulldogs cost them, not only the conference championship, but deprived them of a trip to Long Beach to compete in the California state junior college tournament.

The Big Seven Conference will be represented at the tournament by the Santa Rosa Bearcubs, who defeated Stockton and Nick Romanoff 65 to 51 last Saturday.

With big Nick Romanoff cooled off to a below average 16 points, City College's cagers racked up their fourth win of the season as they defeated Stockton College 58 to 55 on February 20.

Frank Hess bucketed 15 and Jerry Stack had 18 for high point honors for the locals.

The Rams took their seventh loss of the campaign on February 24, as the local cagers were made the fourth straight victim of the red hot Modesto Pirates 84-76 on the winners courts.

Modesto, which looked anything but a title contender in the first round, finally found themselves in the second half of conference play, especially so against City College, as the entire Pirate first string scored in double figures.

Ram forward Frank Hgss nabbed game scoring honors with 23, while Bobby Bondanza and Bill Welch tallied 18 and 14 points respectively for San Francisco.

Ramblings

By Fred Fukuchi

AN abundance of fine basketball talent this year in the Big Seven Conference made the task of selecting an all-conference squad a difficult assignment for The Guardsman sports staff.

The biggest single problem which confronted us was choosing five men from the outstanding array of high scoring players in the loop this past season.

After sleepless nights of meditation and deliberation, the sports staff uncovered the following players for 1953 first string honors.

First selection, and no doubt everyone else's first, was Earal McKelvey, West Contra Costa's record smashing forward. The slender Comet ace wrote his name into almost every individual scoring record listed in conference ledgers.

McKelvey shattered Ervin Bonner, San Mateo forward's twelve game record in just nine tilts. McKelvey's torrid scoring pace in itself justifies his grabbing a unanimous position on our team.

Another unanimous choice was Stockton's Nick Romanoff. The six foot six inch Mustang forward averaged 21 points plus in league play and was by far the main cog in the Stockton offensive machine. His rebounding, play making, and scoring abilities were invaluable to the Stockton squad.

After hours of arguing, the staff selected J. C. Masters of Sacramento as first team pivot man. Masters was another of the numerous high scoring players who dotted the lineups of many Big Seven Conference colleges.

The Sacramento center, the top point gatherer for the Panthers, was instrumental in many of the victories turned in by the capital city crew.

The two guards who were selected, in our opinion are just about the best in California junior college ranks. Bob Bondanza of City College and John Erecg of San Mateo were accorded the honors.

Bondanza, a veteran from the local 1952 championship team, performed magnificently all season. A superb ball handler, play maker and an excellent shot, Bondanza has all the attributes of an all-conference player.

Erecg was an equally good guard for the Peninsula outfit. His clever ball handling and advantageous height aided the San Mateo cause no end.

On the second team, the following cagers were chosen: Howard Rodriguez, Santa Rosa; Ray Goodwin, Modesto; a tie for center between Fred Jacobs, Santa Rosa and Al Mangin, San Mateo; Jim Young, Sacramento; Jerry Stack, San Francisco.

Honorable Mention: Frank Hess, Bill Welch, San Francisco; Ron DeVight, Frank Glenn, Contra Costa; Milton Kane, Bob Hodges, Modesto; Bob Syfestad, Bill Ridgeway, Sacramento; Ray Stiles, Frank Rodriguez, San Mateo; Ken Flaig, Pepper Wesley, Santa Rosa.

Well, there it is. Of colrse, the perennial cry of "They're crazy" or something or other will be mumbled by the well informed cage fan, but everybody is entitled to his own opinion, isn't he?

New Cindermen Bolster Rams' Big Seven Hopes

With new aspirants entering the Ram fold at frequent intervals, the City College track squad now looms as a strong contender for top laurels in the forthcoming Big Seven Conference competition.

Latest additions to the growing list of prominent ex-preps interested in gaining junior college prestige are Al Carlson, All-City miler from Washington; Charles Smock, a middle distance runner and also a Washington High product; and Leslie Anderson, 1952 880-yard champion in the AAA from Balboa High.

Coach Roy Burkhead has been sending his charges through lengthy daily workouts at the Riordan High field in preparation for the tough conference meets.

"The team is fast rounding into shape," Burkhead says with enthusiasm, "and we should be in peak condition for our initial assignment."

Here is the pattern followed at a typical practice session by the Rams on the Riordan oval:

At 2:20 p.m., the tracksters report for roll call and for the ensuing twenty minutes they go through a strict calisthentic routine. Following this procedure, they lope through eight laps, running the straight-aways and walking the turns. Two or three 220-yard wind sprints bring the workouts to a weary close.

Squad veterans include Van Parish, low hurdles and 100-yard dash; Walt Rillliet, shot put and discus; and Bill Rumford, 880-yard run.

Burkhead is extremely elated over the fact that all of the meets involving City College are of the triangular variety.

The Ram thinclads take on the USF Varsity and San Mateo to commence league track activity Saturday, March 14 at Kezar Stadium. Eight meets will follow the opening engagement.

The acid test for league trackmen will be on May 2 in the annual Big Seven Conference championships. The site for the latter extravaganza has not yet been selected. Winners in this affair will take part in the State Junior College meet on May 23.

TAKING THE PLACE OF HARRY WADE (left), winner of the state sprints in 1952, will be Van Parish, one of two lettermen returning to Coach Roy Burkhead's cinder squad this season. Parish will compete in the 100 yard dash and the high and low hurdles for the Ram thinclads.

With practice sessions every afternoon at the Riordan High School track, Burkhead hopes to have his charges in tip top condition by the first meet on March 14.

Basketball Tops Spring Intramural Sports Program; Entries Due Friday

Hoping to equal last semester's successful intramural athletic program, Coach Ralph Hillsman, director of intramural activities, is expecting a responsive turnout to the forthcoming basketball signups.

Signups for the event have started as of last week and will continue to the end of the first week in March.

To participate in the program, Hillsman stated that "in respect to the game, five man squads will be used and full court rulings will be followed."

A selected team manager should submit a full team roster listing each player directly to the men's gymnasium office, he added.

Following basketball, ping pong and tennis tournaments will be on the activity agenda. The process of elimination will be the method used to determine the eventual winners in the various categories.

Listed concurrently will be softball and boxing, with boxing ending the intramural semester slate with an evening of bouts.

Commenting upon the award system, Coach Hillsman declared that "to receive an intramural athletic award, the student participant must be a member of the Associated Students."

Awards will be presented in the form of gold engraved belt buckles for first place, and silver buckles for the runners up.

Tentatively scheduled in respect to the time element, the basketball successive round robin tournament will be divided into a Monday and Wednesday league for the novice competitors, and a Tuesday and Thursday section for the advanced squads.

Rams Face USF Dons In Second Game Of Season

With pre-season workouts completed, the City College baseball team prepares to take on its second practice game foe, the University of San Francisco Dons, today at 3 p.m. on the Big Tee diamond.

Ram Coach Bill Fischer, contented over the squad's rapid progress, has not announced a starting line-up but among the players who will bear watching, according to Fischer, are infielders Bill Taylor, Ben Dito, Cal Moss, and Rudolph Buffin; outfielders Ron Lawrence and Jerry Stack; catcher Fred Quinn; and pitchers Bob Ward, Lewis Flores, Min Oy Wong, and Fred Nyser.

Many players performed creditably during the recent practice sessions conducted at Ocean View Park. Individual accomplishments which warranted praise from the head man were the power hitting of twirler Flores, third sacker Taylor, and first baseman Buffin, a gangling transfer from Dallas, Texas.

"Catcher and second base are the two squad berths which are wide open," Fischer proclaimed.

Tom Jimes, first string catcher on last year's nine, may be out for the season because of injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

The dates and sites of the home-and-home series with arch-rival San Mateo have been straightened out. On March 24, the Fischer-men innovate league play when they encounter the Bulldogs at Fitzgerald Field in San Mateo. The Rams play host to the San Mateans on March 28 at Big Tee Field.

LOOKING EAGERLY forward to another successful track season is City College's genial, shinclad mentor, Roy Burkhead.

Ram's Linkmen Meet East Contra Costa

East Contra Costa's linkmen will be the first foe for the college's golf team and the first league encounter has been set for March 16.

Golf Coach Ralph Hillsman announced a tentative first string team in Don Gulliksop, Stan Diamond, Art Pira, Charles Low, Dave Casserri, Chuck Payne, and Hugh Templin.

Former golfing Ram Dick Kucich is assisting Hillsman with the golfing team.

Netmen Encounter Sacramento Friday

With two practice matches under their belts the college tennis squad journeys to Sacramento this Friday, March 6 for their first league encounter with Sacramento Junior College.

Coach Roy Diederichsen announced that Bill Wright, from Washington High, has recently emerged as the Ram's top netter and is currently number one singles man on the squad.

Diederichsen has posted the schedule for this season which includes five visiting matches and five home games. All games will be played at Golden Gate and City College courts.

The local netmen tangle with San Mateo here Friday, March 13 and then travel to Stockton for their next match on Friday, March 20.

Intramural Cage Entry Blanks

Those interested in intramural basketball must have their entries in by March 6 according to Intramural Director Ralph Hillsman. Entries will be accepted by Hillsman in the office of the men's gymnasium. Managers of club or independent teams should fill out the application below.

College Banquet Slated For April 27 Through May 1 Public Schools Week

DR. LLOYD D. LUCKMANN

San Francisco's annual Public School Week will officially commence, April 27 and run through May 1.

Sponsored in the San Francisco Unified School District by the Masonic Order, festivities and activities will be conducted through the various sectional lodges in the city.

Preparations have been made by the Forest Hill, Alta Vista, and Oriental lodges from the 32Sth Masonic District, to presem an invitational banquet here at the college, April 28.

Formulating tentative scheduling for the second aunual City College banquet, Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator of Instruction, and chairman of the program, stated that the dinner list will be set up to accommodate one hundred or more guests.

According to Dr. Luckmann, the college expects to receive information from the other Masonic Districts in relation to the coming event.

Founded by Charles Franklin Adams, a distinguished San Francisco attorney, Public Schools Week has been set aside yearly to view and discuss the current methods of operation and instruction in the public schools.

50 Courses Offered In Night Extension List; 1200 Enroll

Listing a tentative enrollment of 1200, the extension class curriculum here at the college, offers students some fifty different courses.

With unit value and grade point system equal to that of the daytime class sessions, the evening curriculum provides the student with an Associate of Art degree upon the completion of sixty units of college work.

Edwin Sandys, dean of General College Courses and Extension Division, commented that "most of the evening students find the training offers an excellent background for later work experience."

At the beginning of the semester, Dean Sandys stated, "we filled several classes from the very first day through the appeal the courses offered."

Popular courses among the evening students include, business, accounting, and psychology with each class counting one hundred or more students in enrollment, Dean Sandys said.

Beginning at 6:30 p.m., the evening classes scheduled four one-hour sessions nightly ending at 10 o'clock. Just recently, a course in business letter writing for the employees of Safeway Stores, Inc., was initiated.

Because of requests from the management of the company, the college inaugurated the class.

The course will run for one semester inclusive, and students will receive full college unit value, Dean Sandys declared.

Campus Police Sworn In As Patrolmen

Fred Fitzgerald, law enforcement instructor, announced today that ten college patrolmen will be sworn in this week by a San Francisco police chief.

Patrolmen to be sworn in are as follows:

Arthur Clarkson, Alfred Ghiorzi, Robert Ladd, Renze Panelli, Herbert Peterson, Valentine Ray, John Roth, William Scott, Arthur Tetrault, Donald Thompson.

Other patrolmen are Victor Dale, George Frey, Lee Frimmersdorf, Joe Hertoghe, Gordon Richardson, James Robinson, and Walter Winter.

Robert J. Lewis, chief of campus police, announced that his assistants for the semester are Walter L. Gulino and Charles F. Oehler.

Students here have an opportunity, beginning today, to view a number of the thousands of prints entered in the San Francisco Chronicle's recent Snapshot Contest, according to Bev Pasqualetti, instructor in photography.

On display until next Wednesday in the student lounge are approximately 50 prints which were top entries in the contest. They were all made by amateur "shutterbugs" Pasqualetti said, and some of them with very basic equipment.

Pasqualetti also reminded that the college's photography department is displaying its travelling exhibit at the Park and Recreation Department's Photography Center, through March 15.

Phi Rho Pi In L.A. Debate

Phi Rho Pi, local debating society, is anticipating a good showing in the national Pi Kappa Delta tournament which will be held at Pepperdine College in Los Angeles, March 12, 13, and 14.

Faculty Advisor Thomas Dutcher stated yesterday that the locals made an excellent showing in their last debating contest, winning four out of four events against representatives from Stockton and San Francisco State Colleges.

Dutcher announced the traveling team will consist of George Effenberger, Carl Nolte, Pat Miller, and Julie Hanan.

Dutcher added that the debating team is open to all students interested in controversial issues and extemporaneous speaking. Any student wishing to participate may consult Dutcher in his office in Room 4X.

Draft Deferment Test Scheduled April 23

Applications to take the Nationwide Selective Service College Qualification Test, scheduled to be held here April 23, must be forwarded to the examination center before midnight next Monday, March 9, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

The application cards, which serve as an admission ticket to the examination, can be obtained from any draft board. On the application card the applicant denotes where he would like to take the examination, Marsh said.

In San Francisco county the three testing centers are City College of San Francisco, San Francisco State College, and the University of San Francisco.

Freshman Week Scheduled For March 16-20

Plans for the major events scheduled for Freshman Week Monday, March 16, through Friday, March 20, are rapidly progressing, according to Bill Bixby, Freshman president.

With the approval of the Student Council, there will be a picnic for the Freshman class at Sigmund Stern Grove.

It is hoped that this picnic will help to acquaint members of the Freshman class with one another, Bixby said. A Freshman-Sophomore baseball game will be played during that week, he added.

Highlight of the week's activities will be the Freshman dance. Slated for the Fairmont Hotel on Friday, March 20, in the Gold Room, the semi-formal dance is the first Associated Student hotel dance of the semester. The theme of the dance is to be kept a secret at the request of the students handling the arrangements.

The dance will be free to members of the Associated Students, Bixby said.

"Fraudulent possession of student cards will nullify entrance to the dance, and cards will be confiscated. This deprives the rightful owner his membership in the Associated Students," Bixby warned.

The cost to non-members has been set at $2 per couple. Walt Tolleson and his band will provide dance music from 9 to 12 p.m.

Carl Kross, professional photographer, will be available to take pictures, Bixby added, and prices for the pictures will range from $1 to $1.50, depending on the size picture desired.

Assisting Bixby with the arrangements, are Dino Gofas, Bobbie Rolph, Sue Speer, John MacDonald, and Patty and Jackie Masearelli.

A Cappella Holds Initiation For New Members

Several social activities are scheduled for the A Cappella Choir this semester, according to Flossita Badger, choir director.

An informal initiation and welcome party for new and former members will be held tomorrow night at Miss Badger's home. The initiation emphasizes the importance of cooperation, participation, service and support of the college.

The choir will be featured in an April performance at the Palace of the Legion of Honor with Ludwig Altmann, municipal organist, Miss Badger said.

Then the choir will participate in a Choral Festival to be held on Monday, May 4, at the College of Pacific.

Another engagement, one of the biggest the choir has ever had, is the inter-denominational Easter service at the Civic Auditorium.

Joyce Cody and John McKim have been appointed to take care of all the choir properties, including the choir gowns.

A one unit course called the Listening Hour gives those students and faculty members interested a chance to listen to good music. The Listening Hour comes on Monday and Wednesday at 12 noon in the auditorium, and at 1 o'clock on Tuesdays and Thursdays in Room 1A.

AGS Society Accepts Members

Students who signed up for membership during registration in the college honor scholarship society, Alpha Gamma Sigma, were notified by mail last week of their eligibility and of AGS plans, according to Don Jensen, faculty sponsor of the group.

The society is looking forward to an active spring semester and is hopeful of an early turnout of old and new members, members said yesterday.

In an effort to secure a greater number of listeners, Jensen has checked over grade lists to find those eligible for membership. These students will also be notified, but since there are always some oversights, any student who thinks that he may be eligible and who is interested in joining the AGS, should see Jensen in his office in Building 3 as soon as possible.

Last Friday at 2 o'clock, the society held a meeting which was featured by a welcome message which explained the purpose and history of the organization.

At the meeting, efforts were made to establish a counselling service open to all students at a small fee. Jensen hopes to have many members in a broad number of fields to act as student counsellors and to establish an office in Building 3 for the exclusive use of these helpers.

Any AGS member intgrested in helping his fellow students should supply Jensen with a copy of his home address and telephone number.

"There is a lot of effort involved in establishing such a service and it is hoped that all AGS members and any students who actually need help will participate in the proposed program and make it a success," Jensen said.

USA College Hour Meetings Open; Jacobs Elected President

By Shirley Murphy

The first few hectic weeks of the semester have faded into dim memories, and routine has settled upon the campus once more.

Election returns are still coming in, and the new leaders are planning the agendas for future business meetings and programs for the semester.

The United Students' Association, one of the two political parties on the campus, selected the following officers: President, Wray Jacobs; Vice-President; Andy Schneider; Secretary, Robbie Violin; Treasurer, Ron Byrnes. The meetings are held during college hour in Room 5L, and they are open to the student body.

Phi Beta Delta held a joint meeting with Delta Psi on February 25.

Jim Bryson is the recently elected President of the Inter-Collegiate Christian Fellowship. The other officers are Vice-President, Arthur Triplett; Secretary, Mary Ann Rudometkin; Treasurer, Carol Berndt.

Members of Delta Psi and Kappa Rho will hold a joint meeting Tuesday, March 10. The annual affair will be a dance under the chairmanship of Sue Speer and John McDonald.

The Block Society elected officers at a recent special meeting. They are President, Walt Rilliet; Vice-President, Fred Quinn; Secretary-Treasurer, Sandy Malnick; Sergeant-at-Arms, Bill Ninnis. Membership in the Block Society is automatically open to all students who receive their block letters in athletics and who are recommended by their respective coaches.

Sunday, March 15, at 1 p.m., the patients at Letterman General Hospital will again be entertained by several students of the college, under the auspices of the Globe and Anchor Society.

Harry Roebling, Bob Vasquez, and Pat Miller have charge of the hostess and entertainment committee, while Keith Franks heads the entertainment committee with Dino Gofas and George Effenbarger assisting him.

In addition to the entertainment supplied by the college, popular pantomimist and singer, Paul Desmond, has been joined by other professional talent in volunteering his aid in presenting the show.

Any student wishing to appear in the presentation is requested to inform Roebling, president of the Globe and Anchor Society.

Early this January, the Globe and Anchor presented a show at Letterman for which they received a letter of thanks from the patients commending them for their fine job of building up their morale.

All news items that are to appear in Club Cavalcade are to be turned in at the Tuesday meetings of CAB, which are held at 1 o'clock in Building 2.

Ushering Passes For Opera Available Here

Ushering passes for the Spring Opera Festival at the War Memorial Opera House are now available, Dean Margaret Dougherty announced this week.

This is an opportunity for students to enjoy fine music in return for their ushering services, she pointed out.

Applications for the passes must be made through Dean Dougherty's office in Building 2.

Semiprofessional Courses Aid In Job Placements

Semi-professional courses, which include law enforcement and hotel and restaurant, have provided many students with the foreknowledge and experience necessary to enter their chosen professions and commendably uphold the responsibilities of their jobs, John J. Brady, dean of semi-professional courses, said recently.

The semi-professional courses offered at the college are not limited to Law Enforcement and Hotel and Restaurant, Dean Brady pointed out, but also include various phases of art craftsmanship, business records and record keeping, cost accounting, business mathematics, fundamentals of photography, motion picture workshop, elementary color photography, engineering mechanics, and many other practical courses in which a student can perform on-the-job training, and receive college credit for that training, while attending classes.

DEAN JACK BRADY

Among the alumni of the college who pursued courses in law enforcement are William G. Walker, class of June, '51, appointed Narcotic Inspector, State Department of Justice, in October, 1952; Frank Perullan, class of February, '53, appointed Identification Officer, State Department of Justice, in November, 1952.

John J. McKenna, class of February, '51, after being drafted into the Army, attended the Counter Intelligence Corps School at Fort Holabird, Maryland, graduated an agent, transferred to the Far Eastern Command in 1952 and was decorated for meritorious accomplishment behind enemy lines in Korea. Having completed his tour of duty and attained the rating of Sergeant, McKenna is returning home with an honorable discharge.

The college placement bureau, located in Building 2 and headed by Joseph A. Amori, aids all students who wish to establish themselves in a business for which they have taken semi-professional courses, as well as helping them with part-time employment during their college semesters.

Schaum's Outline Series At Ramporium

Richard Main, manager of the Ramporium, reported today that the book store has received a complete line of Schaum's outline books on the theory and problems of physics, analytic geometry, chemistry, differential equation, calculus, and engineering mechanics.

Proceeds from the Ramporium, opened here in Fall 1950, over and above running expenses, go into the funds of the Associated Students for allocation by the council to student activities.

Outward Bound is the story of a ship sailing an endless voyage with no destination. Its philosophical and human implications are developed through two major characters, attempted suicides, who gain a newer and courageous perception of life. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., gained early film stature through his performance in "the lead role.

The cast for the production, as listed by Griffin, is as follows: Scrubby, Ed Freeman; Ann, Beverly Naditz; Henry, Jim Glasson; Mr. Prior, Bill Heime; Mrs. Cliveden-Banks, Colleen Lewis; Rev. William Duke, Julian Amador; Mrs. Midget, Joyce Cody; Miss Lingley, Dawn Gallagher; and Rev. Frank Thompson, M. H. Friedrichson.

Set designer is Mary Allen, and props are prepared by Lois Storm.

Variety Show Set For Two Night Auditorium Stand

Variety Show production nights are scheduled for Thursday and Friday, April 16 and 17, in the campus auditorium, under the direction of Michael Griffin.

Tickets go on sale Monday, March 23, and will be handled by the Club Activities Board, Griffin said, but the price of the tickets has not been settled as of the present time. John McDonald and Bill Bixby are students in charge of the production.

Meyer Cahn, band instructor, is working with a jazz band for the overtures and for the breaks, Griffin said.

He added that Bob Makim, all city high school tap dancer, will do a tap and spoon specialty. Also, Beverly Axelrod, local professional dancer, who is attending City College, will do an original dance number.

Painting, construction of scenes, and the like, started last Sunday.

College Photo Labs To Hold Open House Wednesday Night

At the request of Fred Lévy, director of the Park and Recreation Department's Photography Center at 600 Ocean Avenue, the department of photography here will hold open house Wednesday, March 25.

The evening's activities will commence at 7:45 p.m. in Building 2 when Bev Pasqualetti, instructor in photography here, gives a demonstration on photographic paper choice, surfaces, and printing techniques. Instructor Charles Lamp will demonstrate the process of print toning and print retouching.

From that point the activities, which are scheduled to end at 10 p.m. will be transferred to Building 9, where a tour of the department of photography's facilities will be conducted. Included in this tour will be short explanations of typical lighting setups in the studio as they are used by classes here. Photography students will participate in this phase of the program.

Foto Fanfare, a San Francisco photo-hobbyist periodical and local newspaper will publicize the event, according to Pasqualetti, inviting the general public to attend. Pasqualetti extends his invitation to students here, their friends and families.

Films To Offer TWA Air Series

Future Friday films, shown in Room 136, will include a series of T.W.A. flights throughout the various parts of the world, Emmett Smith, of the audio visual department, announced recently.

Commencing Friday, March 20, films will be projected at these hours: 9:50, 10:40, and 11:30 a.m., if attendance permits, Smith indicated, and added that the films have the following titles: Overseas Run; Letter to a Pilot; Flight Into Time; Flight to Romance; Flight to the Sun, and Flight to New York.

All films, except Letter to a Pilot, are in full colors, last half an hour, and Smith pointed out, they will be supplemented by short subjects to cover a full hour.

Letter to a Pilot, he explained, is a story of the behind-the-scenes operation of an airline, dramatically told by a T.W.A. pilot in response to a fan letter received from one of his passengers.

Routine flight, plane service, jobs of pilot, hostess and navigator will be shown in this film.

Spring Fire College Classes To Open

San Francisco firemen will start attending their spring classes at the Fire College on the west campus late this week.

This is the seventh in the series of these classes which started back in 1947, and is the only one of its type in the United States in that it is a college within a college.

According to the man who writes the texts for this course, Fire coordinator Michael Lo Presti, the new course will deal with "rescue, life and fire hazards involving transportation vehicles." He hopes to have a couple of field trips worked into this new course. One is expected to be a visit to the Municipal Railway and study of their equipment, and another trip would be to inspect different types of elevators used in San Francisco.

Some of the other phases of fire fighting and prevention taught in this series were force entry, how and when to ventilate, and the types and uses of fire extinguishers.

Since December there has been a class for the auxiliary firemen on radiation, and radiation as a result of atomic attack.

All indications show that these classes have been increasing the efficiency of our firemen and cutting down fire destruction in San Francisco.

Frosh-Soph Baseball Game Friday Afternoon; Class Picnic Cancelled

Admission One AS Card Per Couple; Cutest Pair To Be Chosen At Dance

By Pat Moran

One Associated Student card per couple will provide the admission to the Freshman dance this Friday night, March 20, according to Bill Bixby, Freshman president.

Slated for the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel, the semi-formal dance is the first Associated Student hotel dance of the semester. The theme of the dance is to be kept a seeret at the request of the students handling the arrangements.

The cost to non-members of the Associated Students has been set at $2.50 per couple, Bixby said. Dancing will be from 9 to 12 p.m., and Walt Tolleson and his band will provide the music for the evening. Refreshments will be sold by the hotel.

Bixby warned students that fraudulent possession of student cards will nullify entrance to the dance, and cards will be confiscated.

Highlight of the dance will be the choice of the cutest couple present by the members on the Freshman committee. At press time, it had not been decided by the committee as to how the winning couple will be rewarded.

Wallace Zoin, professional photographer, will be available to take pictures, Bixby added, and price for the pictures will be $1.50 per picture. Pictures will be available at the dance.

Handling the arrangements with Bixby, are Dino Gofas, Bobbie Rolph, Sue Speer, John MacDonald, and Patty and Jackie Masearelli.

Lucille Meredith and Anthony Paciotti, the two Freshman class sponsors, will also be present at the dance, Bixby added.

There will be a Freshman-Sophomore baseball game on campus this Friday afternoon, the committee said, scheduled to begin at approximately 1 o'clock.

Because the lack of attendance would prevent its success, the picnic tentatively planned for the Freshman class at Sigmund Stern Grove has been cancelled, Bixby stated.

Institute Will Cancel College Hour On Friday

Because of Teacher's Institute Day, during which approximately 100 junior and senior high school teachers will visit City College, college hour for Friday, March 20, has been cancelled and the regular schedule will prevail, Robin Dunn, assistant dean of student activities, announced late last week.

On Friday, the large contingent of instructors will arrive on the campus at 9:30 a.m. In general, they will meet students and faculty members and get acquainted with the operation of the college. A noon luncheon with the local faculty will form a main portion of the day's activity.

This affair will be patterned in such a manner for the first time, Dr. Louis G. Conlan, college president, said, as the usual procedure in past years has been simply a get-together in a designated meeting place.

The public relations committee of the college faculty is arranging the program.

Dr. Conlan pointed out that the education code of the state law prescribes that teachers must have three institutes yearly. Friday's assembly will complete the "prescription."

There will not be a college hour on March 27, and April 3 is a holiday.

On the April 10 college hour, a Spring sports rally will be held in the college auditorium, Dunn informed, and details for the event are currently being worked out.

Visiting Teachers To Be Given Photo Of College

When teachers of junior and senior high schools of San Francisco visit here this Friday, they will be presented with an aerial photograph of the college, courtesy of the U. S. Navy, according to Bev Pasqualetti, instructor in photography.

The view was originally shot by members of the Photo Reconnaissance Squadron of Naval Air Station Oakland some years ago and has been used in the college catalogue ever since. At that time, Pasqualetti advised, the squadron was made up almost entirely of students of the department of photography here.

Semi-Annual Tea Planned By AWS

The Associated Women Students of City College are sponsoring a tea Thursday, April 30, for all the graduating High School senior girls of San Francisco, so that they may acquaint themselves with the campus.

At the present time, plans are being made for entertainment and a fashion show.

All women students are invited to attend the occasion.

Council Forms Committee For Campus Cleanup

Three major steps were edged into the busy budget concerned council schedule last Thursday.

Formulation of a clean-up committee, appointment of an Election Commissioner, and approval of a head yell leader came up during the course of the council's budget passing session and received individual consideration.

Jim Brownfield, newly appointed Election Commissioner, was sworn into office by Norm Heise, Associated Student president, in Student Council last Tuesday.

Brownfield replaced Paul Bixel, who was drafted into the army last week.

A clean-up committee under the direction of Sally Galvin, vice-president, was chosen by President Heise to plan a clean-up campaign.

Clean-up Committee members are Larry Elzardi, Diane Bates, Bill Bixby, Bob Bodanza, Ronald Byrne, Barbara Campello, Pat Guilliams, Julie Hanan, JoAnne Hassman, Norm Heise, John McDonald, Don Moffitt, Bob Moore, Meg Schiek, Marilee Scholl Jerry Schween, Stan Shalit, Sue Speer, Nina Turšich, and Bob Vasques.

Approved by council members was Bud Thomas as this semester's head yell leader.

Foreign Languages Essential To Today's College Students

Close relationship in business and trade among nations in the world today demands knowledge of foreign languages, Marjorie Bailhache, instructor in Spanish here, recently stated.

Language courses offered here are varied and should be of interest to many students. Those who intend to enter such professions as the diplomatic service, hotel and foreign business, and so forth, are urged by Mrs. Bailache to take particular note of the study offered.

Scientific German (4S and 3S) is recommended for physics and chemistry majors. Among other courses are elementary, continuntion, intermediate and conversational French, German, Italian and Latin.

Other than the courses listed the college also offers special study for foreign students.

5,315 Students Attend Classes This Semester

Approximately 3,565 day students and 1,350 evening students are in attendance at the college this semester, which total, plus a few special classes, is 5,315, according to Mary Jane Learnard, registrar.

Miss Learnard said that despite the fact that the college lost many students to the armed services, it has maintained close to the number of day students in the Fall semester because 250 Korean veterans have enrolled and there has been an increase in the number of high school students.

"However," Miss Learnard continued, "the college anticipates a considerable increase in the number of Korean veterans by the Fall, 1953 semester."

Petitions for graduation at the termination of this semester now total 375, and post-cards are being sent to those students who have applied for the petitions to inform them if their applications have been accepted. However, Miss Learnard declared, approximately 75 students may not meet the requirements.

Miss Learnard also stated that there will be no classes at the college during Easter vacation, Wednesday, April 1, to Friday, April 3. Instruction will resume on Monday, April 6.

Good Of College Necessitates Numerous Difficult Decisions

POSSIBLY one of the worst ways to attempt to "make friends and influence people" is to join a committee. Committee members have been known to turn on their own friends and committee chairmen are either the lowest of the low, (or the best friends possible).

Some committee chairmen appear most uncooperative, failing to help even their fellow chairmen. They are either swamped by those wanting something or shunned by those who feel they have been wronged. Such is the unhappy life of the committee man, the person who usually knows the most about a situation and who is given credit for knowing the least. The person who has one job, to help the college as a whole run efficiently, must often put what is best for everyone involved ahead of what is best for this group or that.

A timely illustration of a harrassed chairman might well be the leader of the finance group. The unfortunate whose job it is to cut the requested funds to fit within the Associated Students' budget. No matter where the money is withheld it is bound to hurt some group of people, so, the idea is to handle the budgets so that if funds must be less than those petitioned for, the shortage will be as painless to the college in general as possible.

The whole problem would be much simpler if everyone purchased an Associated Student Card.

When interested students who wish to enjoy the college activities do not purchase cards and thus help themselves, as well as the college, the problem can not be simple. Why is it that over 100 people will pay a half dollar each to attend one dance when for $5 they could have attended expense free that and most other dances on the campus besides receiving many more Associated Student benefits? Something is wrong, but this is one fault no chairman can assume responsibility for. Evidently the student body just doesn't understand simple mathematics.

When funds are reduced committee plans must be reduced proportionately again with an eye on the welfare of the college as a whole. If plans of any kind are changed indiscriminately ill feeling is bound to result, and, most probably many other problems as well. So it was, with a great deal of consideration and forethought that the finance committee handled the budget and it was with the same considerations and best intentions that the Publications Board dispatched The Guardsman's publication schedule.

After giving due consideration to what a newspaper is (a regularly published journal recording, for reference, all the newsworthy and entertaining events of the day) and to the funds available for the publishing of this journal it was decided that following today's issue of The Guardsman, publication will be interrupted until after Easter vacation. Two weeks after Easter vacation, (since among other reasons the extra week would make it possible for Guardsman staff members to enjoy Easter vacation instead of having to work through the holidays) on April 23, the next issue of The Guardsman will be distributed.

The Publications Board, like any other committee, dislikes the thought of inconveniencing or disappointing anyone by its action. The dates upon which there will be no Guardsman were chosen with the sincere belief that lack of a newspaper on those dates would prove less to the disadvantage of the college as a whole than other possible dates.

It is unfortunate that any publication schedule must be interrupted, but, in the face of the necessity we ask our readers and other chairmen of committees who felt they had important news for those dates to bear with us.

College Programs Point Way To Full Use Of TV Potential

By Garry Wormser

As college students, we should try to gain knowledge and valuable experience from events in our every-day lives.

Thanks to such media as the motion picture and radio, bits of wisdom that otherwise would take many years to acquire are painlessly injected into our minds; but TV, the greatest and potentially the most useful medium yet created by man, has a long way to go before it meets the standards that it should achieve.

Recently, according to Time Magazine, NBC has been trying to smuggle cultural and educational tidbits into the network's TV schedule, and they have succeeded to some extent; but as NBC's dedicated Vice-President put it, "How can culture be slipped even edgewise into such programs as Groucho Marx's 'You Bet Your Life', and the Red Skelton show?"

Of course, NBC goes a bit off the deep end by even attempting to inject culture into shows that were designed primarily for their "belly laughs." Such programs as the William Winter show, Crusade in Europe, and Victory at Sea do more than is needed to give elaborate and interesting examples of past and present world problems.

At this college, and in a few others in the nation, there have already been educational TV shows produced which are excellent in their educational material.

These shows should serve as examples to other universities and perhaps start a trend toward educational and cultural programs that have their origin in the accepted place, the institutions of higher learning themselves.

It is up to the TV producers themselves to lead their devoted subjects in the right paths, and unless they succeed in doing so, John Doe may not know that World War III is on until he sees it on television, and by that time, we should at least have technicolor.

Downward Trend In Number Of Jobs

Availability of jobs is on the downward trend in San Francisco and Bay Area business and industry, Joe Amori, placement director here announced recently.

Amori explained that employers are not tolerating inefficient people and do not want unskilled workers. There are very few part time jobs open and those which are call for a person who has been trained in the work. Skilled typists, stenographers, office machine operators, bookkeepers, and accountants are in demand.

There is a demand for full-time electronic engineers, accountants, stenographers, typists, and industrial chemists, as well, Amori said. Salaries for these positions range from $250 to $350 per month, depending upon training, experience and the industry.

Amori urged students interested in any type of work for the summer to come to his office, Room 5, Building 2, and fill out application cards immediately.

Sunspots Anyone?

Berman's Hot Tip To Astronomy Class Collapses

By Dorothy Fallon

Acting on a tip from Dr. Louis Berman, instructor in astronomy here, students of his class last week scurried to the roof of the main building expecting to observe the phenomenon of "sunspots."

Obviously however, Dr. Berman had failed to place his order in sufficient time or was at odds with the powers that be, because the spots just didn't appear. Slightly redfaced, he explained to the students that this was more unusual than otherwise for it was the first time in his memory that such a thing occurred.

Dr. Berman said that sunspots, which frequently cause radio disturbances here on earth, were discovered by Galileo, the Italian astronomer, about 1610, but the discovery was ridiculed by certain groups who believed that the sun was completely pure and therefore any imperfections were impossible.

As a consequence of this objection Galileo was advised to clean the spots from his telescope.

Among the interesting facts that the students had learned about these manifestations is that they are contrasts in light on the surface of the sun, and consist of a central, apparently black umbra, surrounded by a less dark penumbra.

Each of these regions is exceedingly bright and appears dark only by contrast with the still brighter solar disk. They move in groups across the surface of the sun, verifying the fact that the motion is due to a rotation of the sun about an axis.

San Francisco, which is 38 degrees north of the equator is a location where these spots may be observed, so it was certainly anticipated that they would be seen by the class —but no spots! What would have happened if one or more of the observers had had spots before his eyes, poses a moot question. In any event, no one suggested, as they did to "poor" Galileo, that "poor" Dr. Berman clean his telescope.

Students Flock To Punch Cards - In New College Course

In its effort to meet the ever-changing educational needs of the community, the college last fall inaugurated a course in punch card operation. In this, its second semester of operation, the course has an enrollment of 360 students.

Punch cards are familiar to students here as they are used by the registrar's office and are signed by each student during registration.

Similar to an adding machine, the punch card machine has fourteen buttons which, when pressed, cause a small hole to be punched in the card.

Each hole is part of a code and through this system large and complex records such as inventories can be kept on a few small cards. For this reason local and federal governments have been changing over to the punch system, along with private enterprise, since the end of World War II.

Could Those Be Horns?

Looking more like a character from "Dante's Inferno" than an art director, Emmet Smith who creates visual aids for "Know Yourself Better" (the college's current TV series in Psychology) mugs for the cameraman as he looks over his notes on illustrations for coming weeks' shows. Smith, whose collection of brushes, pencils, T-squares, and notes, is exceeded only by his own unique wit and talent in approaching so profound a subject as psychology, is also instructor in photography and a member of the audio-visual staff here. Formerly art director for a large national concern and more recently a free-lance photographer and artist in San Francisco and Marin, Smith has gained wide recognition for his work on the college's television programs.

Also shown here is a typical example of his work for the recent series on Parliamentary Procedure. Arms, legs and head of the mannikin moved, revealing the five-swords. Smith's work is now seen on the current program each Thursday at 6 p.m., over KPIX.

Three Easy Steps

Hole In Ground - Skeleton - Building

Since June of 1952, $2,326,800 worth of noise, dirt, heavy equipment, engineering skill, and labor has been piled into a huge hole behind the main building. Now taking shape there is the skeleton of what will be the college's future library and classroom building.

Adorned with an exterior of pink stone, the structure will comprise 17 classrooms, which will be used primarily for business and engineering classes. There will be office space for 70 instructors.

The north wing, first to be constructed, will house the gigantic boilers necessary to heat the new edifice, while the second floor of the south wing will contain law enforcement classrooms.

A large library and reading room, accommodating 700 students at a time, is planned for the central section. (Capacity of the present library is 250 students.)

New cafeteria and student activities quarters are planned to be erected to the right of the present main building and funds for his have already been approved by the Board of Education. The new Fine Arts home is proposed for the left side.

Construction is being supervised by William Sattelmayer, of the Cahill Construction Company and Robert P. Adams, city building inspector.

When completed in September of 1954 the new layout will eliminate the use of west campus by the college.

Students who have tracked mud on their shoes and tried to gopcentrate amid the confusion of hammering carpenters and the distraction of the intriguing activity of erecting a building may someday look back with fondness on remembering the birthpains of new buildings.

It Happened Here . . .

In The Past Ten Years

IN Room 155 of the Main Building is a well organized, smoothly operating unit called "The Audio-Visual Department." It boasts a good supply of sound motion picture projectors, tape recorders, slide projectors, opaque projectors, a film library, and a staff of projectionists. From all this classes here benefit greatly in that they learn through the almost painless medium of educational movies.

However, City College students were not always so fortunate. Said an article in 1943, ". . . visual aid instruments issued by the library staff . . include a motion picture machine, both silent and talking and a slide projector . . . and a record player . . ."

In 1941 the cafeteria was the site of a "step-up" in State Guard Recruiting. Applicants were guaranteed they would not have to leave San Francisco.

Saith an editorial in 1945, "Sufficient space has been provided for motor vehicle owners on the campus."

Calm down we said that was 1945 eight long years ago. . . . Despite the "sufficient" space," some rather blase souls were parking on the "carpetlike" lawns of the main building . . . for shame!

St. Patrick's Day, 1950, was the occasion for Tri Epsilon's "Shamrock Shuffle" but the big story was ". . . northern California two year college kingpins, City College's . . . cage team departs Saturday night to participate in the National Junior College Tournament in Kansas." Two issues later the happy news was announced . . . "Rams first in Nationals."

Eighteen acres were added to the north side of the college in 1946 when yet unnamed Hurley Village was acquired. Plans were under way to construct 50 homoja huts for GI's and already 53 applications were on hand.

A grim reminder of the recent war arrived on the campus in 1947 in the person of a young Filipino who had lost his sight in the battle of Bataan. He was here to make up high school deficiencies so that he could continue schooling at a university and return to his land as a teacher of the blind.

Hurley Village was expected to be open for residence in April of 1947 and student-veterans were making ready to move in.

The Associated Students were dunned in 1949 as a result of the recklessness of certain "sports" who

Reserve Training

Airmen Brush Up On New Methods

Some years ago the structures on the west campus were constructed by the government for occupancy by Wave personnel. One barracks reverted to government use recently when the Air Reserve Specialist Training Center was established in Building 8.

The organization is dedicated to training reserves in special fields of the United States Air Force.

Need for specialized training increased greatly during the past few years due to new regulations, equipment, and methods of air warfare. The center here, one of an original five in the country, was established in November, 1952, as a result of the Armed Forces Act of that year.

Members meet twice a month for instruction in air force administration, personnel management, and career guidance. In the near future communications and aircraft maintenance will be included in the curriculum. Training is restricted to ground work only. It is expected that the unit, which now has a 45 second spot on the air, will extend its radio activities on its own amateur station, MARS.

Students interested in more information regarding the activities of this arm of the Air Reserve are invited to call on officers of the unit in Building 8.

NAS Alameda's Hellcats Host Rams Today

Meet Camp Pendleton This Saturday; Practice Sessions Shaping Rams For League-Opener Against San Mateans

Plunging head-on into the tougher portion of their practice schedule, City College's hustling horseshiders trek to Alameda today for a 3 p.m. encounter with the strong Alameda Naval Air Station Hellcats.

A final practice game with Camp Pendleton is slated this Saturday at Big Rec, with the opening league encounter scheduled next Tuesday, March 24, against arch-rival San Mateo at Fitzgerald Field in San Mateo.

Starting line-up for the NAS Alameda-Ram game was not announced as Coach Bill Fischer, hoping to field a representative nine in the up-coming Big Seven Conference flag chase, is still experimenting with various combinations.

In their initial start of the practice sked, the Fischer-men were handed a merciless 16-3 pounding by a flossy San Francisco State College squad. The Gators looked in rare form as they performed smoothly both offensively and defensively to completely stifle the inept Rams. Their booming bats accounted for 18 hits. City College, however, was most unfortunate in meeting one of State's best hitting aggregations in the past ten years.

Southpaw Lewis Flores, starting Ram pitcher, was betrayed by numerous errors on the part of his teammates which resulted in the six runs given up during his three inning stint. Bob Word, Fred Nyser, and Min Oy Wong twirled the remaining seven frames for City College but they, too were denied a decent defense.

The Rams garnered their trio of runs in the third canto when, with Dick Cornfield, Flores, and Jerry Stack aboard, Bill Taylor smashed a bounder to the infield which rolled between the shortstop's legs and this, coupled with an infielder's cut-off of the outfielder's plate-ward heave, opened the scoring gates.

State's quartet of moundsmen, headed by Jerry Pandolfi, limited the visitors to six hits. Stan Fabiano collected three hits in four opportunities aplate and Norm Harris batted in five scores to highlight the attack for the Golden Gators.

The Rams next had a spot of baseball with the University of San Francisco fresh, but this time Fischer's proteges unloaded their heavy artillery. Unfortunately, the Dons did likewise and put up quite a tussle before finally succumbing, 12-11.

Jim Kinsterger opened on the hill for City College and surrendered one score in his four inning stay. He was relieved by Bob Words who allowed two runs; then Lewis Flores, who was touched for seven runs; and finally, Min Oy Wong, who gave up the last counter.

Cadigan and Hickey handled the pitching chores for USF and they allowed eight and three runs, respectively.

City College entered the top of the eighth frame trailing 11-10. Cal Moss drew a walk. Rudy Buffin singled, pinch hitter Terry Nicholas collected a one-bagger, and Belttin' Ben Dito unloaded a double down the third base line which chased across the tieing and winning scores.

Rudy Buffin's tremendous hitting power was the big feature as he collected a homer, triple, and two singles.

Wong received credit for the win while Hickey was charged with the defeat.

The University of California Ramblers inflicted the next loss on the locals by a respectable 10-7 margin on the winners field.

Swim Team Formed; 15 Mermen Sign Up

Resuming a tentative practice program of three stints weekly, the City College mermen, under the direction of Coach Roy Burkhead, are now in the process of engaging Crystal Plunge as their headquarters.

Boasting an enthusiastic turnout of fifteen members, Coach Burkhead stated that "if we can recover from our late start, we have the material necessary to make a good showing."

Bob Bondanza Named On All Big Seven 2nd Team

Bob Bondanza, City College cagers' marvelous little guard, was accorded a guard position on the All-Big Seven Conference second team recently announced by conference commissioner, H. F. Taggart of San Mateo.

The official first string consisted of Eural McKelvey, West Contra Costa; Nick Romanoff, Stockton; Fred Jacobs, and Howard Rodriguez of Santa Rosa; and Charles Young of Sacramento.

The second team included Don Stiles, Al Maugin, and Frank Rodriguez of San Mateo; Bill Ridgeway of Sacramento, and Bondanza.

Block SF Plans Participation In Mardi Gras Event

Highlights of the Block SF Society's Spring calendar, according to President Walt Rilliet, are Mardi Gras and the annual awards dinner to be held when the local sports activities are concluded.

At the Mardi Gras, the Block SF'ers have set tentative participation plans. "Our plans for this occasion are still developing, but we hope to set up two booths, one of which will be basketball shooting," Rilliet said.

At the awards dinner, attended by many high school coaches, block letters will be presented to qualifying athletes. As in the past, the guest speaker will be a prominent Bay Area college coach.

Plans are presently being formulated for the formal initiation of the new members, the society representative related.

Commenting on the recently held society dance, Rilliet stated that "it turned out highly successful and chances are that it will become an annual affair." The dance was held on a trial basis with student support deciding its future.

Eight Teams Signed Up For Intra Cage Tourney; Play To Start Today

Intramural basketball play is slated to get under way today in the men's gymnasium at 3 p.m. under the guidance of Coach Ralph Hillsman.

With eight teams signed up, Hillsman hopes this semester's loop will be as exciting as last year when eleven teams staged a donnybrook for the championship.

Besides basketball this year, Hillsman stated that competition in ping pong, tennis, badminton and softball are being planned. Entry deadlines for these sports, according to Hillsman, are as follows: Ping pong and tennis by March 31; softball, April 10; and badminton by May 1.

Hillsman was quoted as saying that the intramural league is designed to offer enjoyment and pleasure for the students. Two games a week for each team for approximately six weeks, constitute the playing season.

Individual player awards will be presented at the completion of the season to each team's best player, and the best team will also receive an award, Hillsman added.

The rosters of the eight basketball teams are as follows:

Eagles: Manager, Warren Baxter; Captain, Wilbert Fowler; Desha Williams, David Jones, and Dick Jones.

Rams: Manager, Ken Collins; Captain, Henry Arms; Harry Guiton, Lewis Villa, Wallace William, and Clayton Marshall.

Oldsters: Manager, Bob Gilmore; Captain, Rudy Knudsen; Bob Allen, Bob Schmidt, and Tony Lazzeri, Jr.

Youngsters: Manager, Elijah Hall; Captain, Wilbert Taylor; Glenn Nance, Morgan Peterson, John Gallagher, Robert Ward, and Robert Ellis.

Drifters: Manager, Jerry Bright; Captain, Jim Manning; Don Sugarman, Stan Fetterman, Kirk Marringer, Bert Kamalman, and Steve Kroft.

USA: Manager, Stan Shalit; Captain, Joe Dubinsky; Andy Schneider, Wray Jacobs, Ed Hjerpe, Ron Byrne, and Bob Moore.

Ball Breakers: Manager, Gerald Howe; Captain, D. Basicio; Tom Reid, Dave Klink, Duke Haker, Art Back, and J. Gugrul.

Pick-ups: Manager, Basil Peponis; Captain, Axel Deunis; Glen Wong, and Dave Riedemour.

Cage Results Fail To Show True Rating

By Al Palacio

Game results aren't necessarily a true means of judging a team's playing ability, although they do decide championships.

Take City College's basketball squad for example. The Rams won nine of 14 practice tilts and in Big Seven Conference play they compiled a mediocre five-won seven-lost record for an over-all accomplishment of 14 wins as against 12 setbacks.

In the final conference standings, City College finished in a dead heat for third spot with Stockton and Sacramento.

Yet, despite their spotty slate, the bold cagers of Coach Ralph Hillsman managed to knock off league champion Santa Rosa and runner-up San Mateo. The victory over the latter cost the Bulldogs a possible shot at the loop title.

Much to Hillsman's consternation, this year's basketball race was the tightest in conference history as a paltry three defeats was all that separated the first and last place teams.

The Ram cage mentor was counting heavily on Ken Collins and Tony Lazzeri, Jr., for yeoman duty during the conference commitments. Lazzeri, however, fell prey to a lingering sickness and cavorted spasmodically in only two league games while Collins was ruled ineligible in the early part of the season. The loss of these two brilliant performers undoubtedly impaired the club's championship hopes.

The Rams innovated conference activity with a team roster of 14 players and, during the course of the 12-game ordeal, six fell by the wayside.

Hillsman was pleased at the fine attitude exemplified by the players throughout. "Their high morale did not falter in spite of the constant changes in personnel," he pointed out.

The shrewd head man refusing to single out any particular players as being individually outstanding, stated firmly, "It was a team effort all the way!"

Top scorer for the Rams was Jerry Stack with 140 points to his credit while Frank Hess' 139 markers gained him runner-up laurels. Bob Bondanza, an all-conference second team choice, and Bill Welch finished third and fourth with 121 and 111 digits, respectively.

"I had a great deal of satisfaction working with this year's aggregation," opined Hillsman, "and I hated to see the season end. The squad was really coming at the drag end of the schedule."

EN GARDE, tally-ho, thrust . . . too late. This seems to be the proper phrase for Richard Wagner's predicament (right). Applying the fatal jab is Paul Press. Trackmen Meet Santa Rosa, S. F. State Saturday Week

With the 1953 season outlook better than expected, the City College track team prepares for their second triangular test of the season a week from Saturday when they face the Santa Rosa Bearcubs and San Francisco State at State's Cox Stadium.

The Rams, who last Saturday met San Mateo and USF, will be testing new men for coming meets. Little is known about Santa Rosa or State, but one thing is for sure, they too will be testing new men.

RAMBLINGS

By Fred Fukuchi

ALTHOUGH spring does not officially start until Friday, one look at City College's athletic teams is proof enough to convince anyone that the vernal season is in full bloom.

Taking advantage of the recent early dousing of California sunshine, City College's spring sports outfits have been earnestly at work preparing for impending athletic commitments.

Turnouts have been good and predictions of coming prospects range from fair to excellent. The excellent weather conditions which have prevailed have no doubt instilled high spirits into the competitors.

The track squad, blessed by a satisfactory turnout, has been working out daily on the Riordan High School oval. The baseball team has already had a few practice tilts. Coach Roy Diederichsen's tennis outfit, likewise, has put in a few warm up matches. The local golfers have been sharpening up their game with nearby bay area opponents.

AT CRYSTAL PLUNGE

City College's swimming team, whose existence was for a while in doubt, received the green light from the Board of Education and has now adopted Crystal Plunge as their home tank.

Getting back to the track team, the sign ups were something more than anticipated and good prospects are in sight. With the draft taking its usual toll, the thinclad squad was expected to be small, but the above average turn out has balanced things up a bit. However, there are still some events that are very weak.

AT OCEAN VIEW

Coach Bill Fischer's baseball crew has been working out daily at Ocean View Park. His squad is small but select and big things are viewed by Fischer.

The local netters are loaded with four returning lettermen plus a few top rate high school stars. From first glance, Coach Diederichsen's club will be one of the best in the Big Seven Conference.

Ralph Hillsman, coach of the local golf team, has been sending his charges through work outs at Harding Park. He has seven golfers as tentative first stringers.

With every team in action starting this week, all pre-season predictions on paper go for naught and the actual battle will tell the tale. It's surprising too, how much effect it has on a team if a few rooters are at the game backing them up.

The fine turn out netted the Ram thinclads strong material in the middle distance events, but the locals will still be plagued in the high hurdles, one and two mile, and the weight events.

Spearheading the Ram attack will be Van Parish, sprinter and low hurdler and all around man Charles Smock, a first year man from Washington High. Parish, one of the Rams two lettermen has already loped an easy 10.3 in the hundred. Smock, who can run anything from 100 to the 440 will concentrate on the 220, 220 low hurdles, and the broad jump.

In the 100 yard dash, the Rams have Parish, Smock, Walt Bremond, and Bill Paratore.

The quarter-mile event will see Al Carlson of Washington, Bill Rumford, a veteran from last year, but was ineligible; Charles Smock, and Bob Cross of Mission.

The half-mile is strong with Cross, Carlson, Rumford, and Al Amador of St. Ignatius all vying for number one position. Les Anderson, the All-City 880 champion from Balboa will be working out in the mile.

Al Palacio and Glen Nance are the two top candidates in the high jump, while Smock and Bremond from Commerce stand out in the broad jump.

In the pole vault, Roy Hutzler, a San Leandro High School product appears to be tops, with Frank Blackburn of Balboa challenging.

The weight events, one of the main concerns of Coaches Roy Burkhead and Grover Klemmer, has the ever-improving Walt Rilliet and newcomer Joe Davis of Mission.

Coach Burkhead commenting on the prospects of the team stated, "We'll have to concede points in the high hurdles, two mile, shot put, and the discus throw, in practice meets, but we should be pretty good for the conference and the state meets."

WAA Sports Managers Election Postponed

Because the sign-ups for Women's Athletic Association sports have just started, there has been no chance to elect sports managers, Vivien Bernard, WAA advisor, said last week.

The response has been very good, she added, with a large number of women signing up for swimming, basketball, tennis, bowling, archery, badminton, fencing, volleyball, and modern dance. So far, swimming seems to be the most popular.

The main activity of the WAA, to date, is the planning of its booth for the forthcoming Mardi Gras.

Any women wishing to participate in the playdays may do so, according to Bette Orton, president of the WAA. The playdays were created to stimulate social activity and good relationship between women of this college and other colleges.

PARTY TIME

Joint meetings which have recently been held by various organizations include a Kappa Phi-Phi Beta Delta meeting; a Zeta Chi-Block SF get-together, and a Delta Psi-Gamma Phi Ypsilon gathering.

Because of the interruption of publication for a week and the cooperation of CAB representatives, the response to this week's Cavalcade was tremendous. It is hoped that as much news will come in for all future columns.

Petition Deadline For Mardi Gras Booths March 26

Petitions for Mardi Gras booths and floats have already been given out to the various campus organizations, and the final deadline for filing the petitions is Thursday, March 26, according to Ed. Hjerpe, AMS president, and Larry Elizarde, credentials chairman.

Hjerpe also announced that petitions for a Mardi Gras King and Queen must be handed in by April 2. The two winners will be presented with a trophy at the Mardi Gras dance which will climax the evening's events on Friday, May 15.

The booths, Hjerpe said, which were previously scheduled to be constructed in the west campus auditorium, will, by popular consensus, be erected outside of Building 2 and around the circular drive that holds the statue of the college's Redwood Ram.

So cark will be permitted to park on the west campus, Hjerpe warned.

Frames for the Mardi Gras booths and floats, he added, will be supplied by the AMS, and the best marching unit in the opening parade up Ocean Avenue will also receive a trophy at the dance.

Members Of Business 85 Assist In Library Work

The majority of students who work in the library are enrolled in the Business 85 course at the college, according to Clement Scrabak, chairman of the library committee.

Each student receives one unit for each three hours of work per week he spends in the library, and one unit for classroom lectures.

There are approximately fifteen students working in the library at the present time.

Passage of 14 budget requests was accomplished by the Student Council last Thursday following presentation by Don Douglas, Finance Committee chairman.

Publishing Dates Of Guardsman Set

Necessary revision of The Guardsman publication schedule was completed recently by the Publications Board, Louanne Morford, board chairman stated last week.

Number of issues of the paper was cut from 15 to 12 for the spring '53 semester. Plans which originally called for three added issues were dropped from the calendar when financial complications developed, Miss Morford said.

Papers will be distributed on the following dates according to the latest schedule: April 15, April 22, April 29, May 6, May 13, May 20, May 27, June 3 and June 10.

One more issue still remains to be dropped, Miss Morford continued, but as yet the date has not been decided upon.

DON DOUGLAS, Finance Committee chairman, completes his presentation of proposed budget to council this week.

Honor Society Sponsors Forum Literary Contest

Alpha Gamma Sigma, the college honor scholarship society, met last week to begin planning activities for this semester.

A committee was appointed to arrange for the traditional installation dinner of the society which is tentatively planned for April.

Other topics which were discussed at the suggestion of faculty adviser Don Jensen were the coaching service to be offered by members of the society to students here, plans for participation in the Mardi Gras in May, and a projected schedule of social activities for the group.

Jensen reminded that Alpha Gamma Sigma is sponsoring a literary contest among its membership in conjunction with publication of Forum Magazine. He requested that honor students submit material, (prose, poetry, short stories, or what have you) to him in Building 3.

The society is offering a cash award to the winning work which will be chosen by a group of judges including members of the English Department here. Submission of the top five entries to the Forum Staff is intended.

Jensen announced that another meeting of the society is planned for 2 p.m. today in Room 5K. He requested that interested members of the organization attend.

Publication Is Offered Free To AS Card Holders

Forum, the college literary magazine published each spring, will run 1200 copies this year, a portion of which will be distributed free of charge to Associated Student members, Charles Osborne, business manager of the magazine, announced Tuesday, following Student Council's approval of the action.

This is the first time in the history of the college that the magazine has been given gratis to the members of the Associated Students. The price of the publication will be a half dollar to non-members, and the tentative publication date is May 25.

Material is being accepted from all registered students, and the deadline for all entries is Monday, April 13.

Work may be turned in to faculty advisers, Dorothy Mercer, Building 19, room 19; James Billwiller, Building 19, room 2; John Gerstung, Building 4, room K; or to Joanne Tuohey, editor; or Reina Martinez, Joseph Campton, and Barney Wan, art editors.

Staff members pointed out that all forms of literary expression will be considered for the magazine: stories, essays, plays, articles up to 1500 words; poetry and light verse; satirical, descriptive, humorous, or narrative sketches. Any kind of subject matter — scientific, historical, economic, literary — may be submitted. Miss Mercer particularly encouraged submitting good humorous material.

Aspiring artists may enter cover designs for the magazine, 6½ by 9½ inches, as well as illustrations for literary compositions and independent art in the black and white medium.

The magazine was initiated in 1936, a year after the founding of the college, and has been published annually since that time. Even during the war when enrollment was very low, Forum did not suspend publication.

Among the former editors who have achieved eminence in the literary world, the most prominent is Dr. Thomas Parkinson, Professor of English at the University of California.

'Sam' The Ram Sports New Spring Coat

Unknown Artists Contribute New Paint Job To Statue

By Ken Molino

"Sam" the Ram, the Redwood original version of the college mascot, who stands on the west campus through fair weather and foul with never a complaint, has been given a new protective coat by some unknown college benefactors.

The real Sammie the Ram is a Phi Beta Delta who dons a papier mache head to personify the mascot.)

The new protective coat was discovered recently by Dean Edwin C. Browne when he peered from the window in his office in Building 2 and was startled by the brightness of the huge figure amidst the otherwise drab, rainy atmosphere.

The good dean investigated. "Sam's" new appearance was a credit to the college, the administration, the Board of Education, and the people of San Francisco at large. The artist must be rewarded.

Much to his chagrin, however, every time the dean mentioned "Sam's" new coat to students here he was met either with a blankness beyond description or a deafening silence.

A few days later, however, a stone tablet was slipped beneath Browne's door, covered with mysterious scratchings. He called on his linguistic prowess and, after a few hours discovered that the message dealt with the phenomenon of "The Painting of Sam the Ram."

He read on with a great deal of anxiety. He worked through his lunch period. He was late for dinner. And all to no avail. The tablet did not reveal the secret he sought. Liberally translated, according to Browne, the message read as follows:

"... and he who discovers the name of the group who, without thought of personal safety or appearance, climbed their ladders and splashed paint of varying hues upon themselves, their coworkers, the ladder, the ground, and finally, the Ram, will be honored by a marvelous award of unmentionable value during the Mardi Gras in May ..."

It was an invitation to the students here to participate in a contest to discover just who DID the magnificent job. Dean Browne, who by this time is growing haggard with curiosity, invites any one who might know to visit him with the information. He, acting as mediator will arrange for the award and will charge no commission. The reward for his part in the venture will come when, after discovering the secret, the good dean can get a good night's sleep.

SHOWING OFF his new red and white colors, "Sam" the Redwood Ram has been the object of circumstance in receiving his spring splash of paint. The benefactors have not as yet been apprehended for this deed. Discovered by Dean Edwin C. Browne, the Redwood Ram is resplendent in its new coat of paint.

Placed in his present spot, a gift from the 1939 World's Fair, the Ram has been a predominant landmark since 1947.

Final Action On Budgets Taken By Student Council

$13,030 Estimated Semester's Income

Final action was taken in Student Council last month after two of the remaining 17 budgets were debated.

Drama budget was detained and debated by council members because the request was not itemized.

The passage of the Alpha Gamma Sigma budget was held up until the organization's request was studied.

Anticipated income for the semester was estimated at $13,030.00. Don Douglas, Finance chairman, announced.

Expected income is as follows: Reserve, $900; Ramporium, $3,500; Associated Student membership, $6,300; Basketball, $100; Variety Show, $600; Sophomore Formal, $200; Vending Machines, $500; Mardi Gras, $200; Forum Magazine (Sales and Advertising), $350; Miscellaneous, $150; Handbook (Advertising), $300; Baseball, $30.

Council voted to raise the price of cigarettes in Associated Student machines to 23 cents a package in order to increase the semester's income.

The idea of obtaining a "delicious apple" machine for students is being debated by council members.

An amendment was passed in the March 24 council meeting stating that Associated Student cards will admit students to campus plays without charge. This does not include the Varieties of 53.

New assistant yell leaders, Naomi Caryle and Colleen McElroy were approved by council last week.

Sam Blyth, Publicity Committee chairman, was granted approval to solicit advertisements for the fall handbook.

Deadline for submitting material for Forum Magazine has been extended to Wednesday, April 22, Joanne Tuohey, editor, announced today.

All types of literary expression are being considered for the magazine: stories, essays, plays, articles up to 1500 words; poetry and light verse; satirical, descriptive, humorous, or narrative sketches. Gofas To Replace McDonald As New AS Card Chairman

Deno Gofas was sworn in as Associated Student card sales chairman by Associated Student President Norm Heise at the March 26 Student Council meeting. Gofas replaces John McDonald who resigned March 24.

Gofas stated that 1120 cards have been sold making a total of $5,600. He also stressed the urgency of the sale of an additional 120 cards, which must be sold to meet this semester's budget.

Advantages of Associated Student cards enumerated by Gofas were free entrance to plays the remaining part of the semester and a ticket reduction for the variety show and Mardi Gras; rallies, games and parking permits.

Cards may be obtained from the Ramporium on west campus and the student bank in the main building for $5, the new chairman concluded.

Hollywood Production Scheduled For Friday College Film Series

On the schedule for Friday, April 17, college series film is a two part play of David Copperfield from Charles Dickens' novel, Emmett Smith of the audio visual department, announced yesterday.

The first part, David as a boy, will be shown at 9:50 a.m., while the second part will be projected at 10:40 a.m. and 11:30 a.m., Smith said.

Each film has a showing time of 38 minutes, so a prompt attendance will be very much appreciated. Smith indicated and pointed out that both films are a special version of the original Hollywood production featuring Freddie Bartholomew, W. C. Fields, Edna May Oliver and Basil Rathbone.

Pre-Registration For Fall Semester Starts

Pre-registration for the Fall 1953 semester began last week, according to Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator, Division of Student Welfare. Students who plan to continue at the college should make appointments for counselling interviews at the counselling office in Building 3, west campus.

Since priority in the registration line is established by the pre-registration number stamped on the student's program by his counselor, immediate action should be taken to avoid any delay in registering next semester.

"Spring Fever," AWS Tea To Be Held April 30

Associated Women Students tea, Spring Fever Parade of Fashion will be Thursday, April 30, at 2:30 p.m. in the student lounge, Julie Hanan, AWS President, announced last week. The semi-annual affair is held to honor all high school senior girls.

The main event of the afternoon will be the fashion show, sponsored by the Anita Shop in Stonestown. The women of the AWS board will announce the names of the girls who will model at a later date, stated Miss Hanan.

Pledges of the sororities on campus will assist members of the faculty who will pour.

All the women of the college are invited and urged to attend, Miss Hanan said.

The AWS officers include President, Julie Hanan; Vice President, Diane Bates; Dolores Moscone, Bev Axelrod, Jane Zalinsky, and Mary Cunningham.

Joanne Hassman Awarded $30 In Scholarship

Joanne Hassman, merchandising major at the college, has been awarded the Florence Lewis scholarship of $30, according to Dean Margaret Dougherty.

Dean Edwin C. Browne, Dean Dougherty and Dr. F. Grant Marsh, chairman, composed the committee which decided the winner, Dean Dougherty said.

Miss Lewis is a former student of City College and graduate of the Golden Gate College. She is now a real estate and insurance broker in San Francisco.

Details of the Charles McKiernan rotating loan fund of $100 will be announced following a meeting of Beta Tau fraternity which will be held in the near future, Dean Browne announced.

Midterm Grades OK?

Perhaps a little extra coaching in that "tough" course would help.

Don Jensen, faculty sponsor of Alpha Gamma Sigma, has announced resumption of the society's coaching service. Honor students are available for assistance in many subjects, at the nominal rate of seventy-five cents an hour.

Michael Griffin, of the English Department, and faculty director of the show, commented yesterday that the cast has displayed a great deal of "creative initiative," and that the Executive Committee, headed by Associated Student President Norm Heise, has done a good job in working out organizational problems.

Production staff members for the Varieties include Assistant Producers Alice Hammons, Jane Zelinsky and Beverly Axelrod; Joe Campton, sets; Norm Heise, lights; Barb Campello, costumes; Gail Southard, props; Sue Speer and Julie Hanan, make-up; Sam Blythe, publicity; Bobbie Rolfe, programs; Connie Webb, stage directions and Pat Simmons, assistant business manager.

Selective Service Test Scheduled Here For April 23

The Selective Service Qualification Test for possible draft deferment will be given at 8 a.m. Thursday, April 23, in the main building here at City College, according to Dr. F. Grant Marsh, college coordinator, Division of Student Welfare.

Deadline for filing applications has passed, and those taking the test are selective service registrants who are pursuing a full time course (15 or more units) and who intend to request occupational deferment as students.

General Thomas B. Hershey, head of the selective service system, has announced that the test results are to be used only in considering deferment, and passing the test doesn't necessarily mean that the registrant will be draft deferred. Test rules state that no student may take the examination more than once.'

Thomas Nesbitt, who is in charge of City College entrance examinations, will be supervisor of the deferment testing staff.

The results of the test are to be sent to the student's local draft board, and any information concerning the registrant's score or draft status should be obtained from his local board of jurisdiction.

Other testing centers in San Francisco besides City College, are at San Francisco State College and the University of San Francisco.

Those taking the test must show their application card as the ticket of admission.

The examination consists of questions of general knowledge in almost all subjects, and a score of 70 per cent or better is passing.

School Helps Students Who Help Themselves And School

STRESSED and restressed by each school, whether it be of grammar, intermediate, secondary, college or university level, are the special benefits and the great services that the school offers its students through superior academic instruction and the vast number of school-sponsored social functions.

One attitude among both educators and students holds that the school exists for the benefit and enjoyment of the student, and the student exists to bask in the warm generosity of officials who continually overwork themselves to keep everyone happily busy. Students, however, often fail to take advantage of all that is placed before them, thus making it obvious the whole idea should be modified somewhat.

A worthy approach to modification would emphasize what the student can do for the school. When a situation exists wherein one side does all the work, and the other receives all the benefit, neither group is entirely happy, and difficulties arise.

To apply this to City College is a relatively simple task. Continually the student hears of the benefits offered by membership in the Associated Students, he is assailed daily with publicity about dances, rallies, and sports events planned by the college student government or the college groups. Persistently things are being done for him, but quite often he feels detached, uninterested or simply left out. The blame for such an attitude can often be traced to the student himself. Having made no effort to be a part of the college, many students feel that the activities are planned for someone else.

Instead of continually discussing what the college can do for the student, we ought to start talking about what the student can do for the college.

Any school depends upon its students for numerous important services. Unless those enrolled in a college feel "a part" the school can do for them only a part of what is intended—and they can do nothing for their school. What is needed is a feeling of unity which can be achieved only when the student feels that he is important to the college.

Learning to be "a part" is closely related to the modern theory of education which advocates social learning as well as academic learning. It is not easy! It involves work, extra time and energy, and a desire to do something for the college. It requires new and original ideas and plans. But most of all, it requires an urge to help by putting ideas in front of people who are in a position to do something toward making them materialize.

Learning covers all fields. It should not be limited to the information accumulated in books. Even more vital, learning should involve the acquisition of the art of thinking along new lines and application of original thought to the existing situations. Everyone enrolled in this college is here to learn; why then can not all the students put this learning-to-work-together to the benefit of the college?

Until the student body fully realizes what a necessary fragment of the college it is, and how great is its potential strength, City College can not achieve the unity necessary for it to function with a maximum of efficiency. Until the majority of the students start thinking along the line of what they can do for their college, their student government, student activities, and sports—all integral parts of our college—will continue to arouse only a minute amount of interest.

• The Question — Prices

Editor, The Guardsman:

I hope you don't assume that I am a penny-pincher or some such because of this note. However, I do feel that it's about time somebody mounted a soapbox and expressed his viewpoints on the outlandish prices which prevail in the college cafeteria and fountain.

My criticism is merely this: Why not install a price scale relative to the average student's pocketbook instead of trying to keep pace with the profit-mad dining-out establishments in San Francisco?

How about it? I'm sure our fair college won't go broke if such a scale were installed

Money-less

• The Answer — Quality

Dear Money-less:

Thank you for your letter, and thanks to the editor for giving the Hotel and Restaurant Department a chance to put in its "two cents worth." We in the H&R welcome any and all opportunities to answer questions that may arise concerning our operation.

"Your letter refers to our prices. Here are some of them for all to see and judge — spaghetti, fifteen cents; soup, five and ten cents; generous salads, twenty cents; complete dinners, sixty cents (including dessert).

Comparing these with prices in any restaurant in the country (including college cafeterias) most will agree that ours are very reasonable. And when you consider the overall quality of the food served, eating regularly in your cafeteria is a real bargain.

Your college cafeteria, operated by the H&R Department as a regular classroom project, is a non-profit organization. It is not subsidized by the city or state. We use nothing but the choicest quality meats and produce in our cooking. Our students are supervised by former chefs from San Francisco's finest hotels. The chefs are employed by the Board of Education the same as all your instructors here, and are not paid from cafeteria receipts.

We know and use all of the latest cost accounting methods. Theoretically speaking, we should have a pretty good organization. And, if the business we do every day is any indication, we have been accepted by a very fair-minded group—your fellow students.

Cafeteria Efficiency Result Of Cooperation

By Dorothy Fallon

The apparent efficiency with which the college cafeteria is operated is achieved by the complete cooperation and understanding of the students of the Hotel and Restaurant Division.

Because specialization is not immediately encouraged, each student becomes familiar with all phases of restaurant management and operation, and thus becomes well acquainted with the over all picture.

Students have three week periods in which to learn about each of the varied duties connected with the operation of the cafeteria, fountain, and faculty dining room. Their period of rotation includes the duties of busboy, waiter, cook, server, storekeeper, accountant, cashier, and manager.

All menus are made up by students, and a careful notice is taken of the preference of items listed, so that there will be a minimum of waste.

All utensils are scraped into a garbage disposal unit which has as a part of its equipment a continuous stream of running water. After the dishes are scraped, they are put into a rack and washed automatically at a temperature of 180 degrees.

Drying of all utensils is accomplished by the use of steam, thus insuring complete sanitation at all times. Even the trays are sterilized, which is the reason they often feel warm.

A careful checking system is maintained to familiarize students with prices of supplies, and to insure a plentiful supply of materials at all times. There is a store room for vegetables, another for canned goods and staples, two freezer rooms for meats, and refrigerators for all perishable items. Soups and stews are cooked in large heat-controlled pots, and a baking oven with revolving shelves maintains ideal baking temperatures. Other equipment used by the students includes slicing machines, mixing machines, pressure cookers and a potato peeler.

The faculty dining room is operated like any small restaurant in town, with a maitre d' or hostess in charge. Reservations may be made by the faculty and their guests, and menus are printed from which selections may be made.

Waiters who are in charge of the tables write checks which are paid to a cashier. Tipping is not allowed in this respect the dining room differs from the usual restaurant.

Chalk To Cheese -- "New" English Speaker Lands In Sea Of Trouble

ONE can easily sense in the college that a foreign student who received inadequate training in English language encounters abundant difficulty in making verbal expression in English speaking society.

Naturally one thinks as he speaks and speaks as he thinks but, there is a deep conflict when he speaks in one tongue and thinks in another.

A non-English speaker is usually enshrouded by an unpleasant feeling when his listener raises a sharp ear, stoops whimsically, nods politely to distinguish his words from the accent and mispronunciation.

Such incidents can be observed in the classroom, bookstore and cafeteria, where the speaker has to make his words clear from chalk to cheese.

If he fails to convey his thoughts, in despair he uses the repetition method or uses the language of nature.

He discovers often that he understands while they misunderstand.

On the one hand he comes to conclusion that some English speakers look with suspicion on people whose speech is oddly made or whose words do not have the exact shade.

On the other hand he begins to think that his talk must be "cute" so it will sound proper.

He has to be "pretty good" or the "guy" listening will "kick up a lot of fuss" because he can't "savvy."

If his talk is nicely made it's "swell." If it isn't he is "lousy."

Yes sir, a non-English speaker finds himself in a sea of trouble when he does not speak the language of the majority correctly.

Campus Police

Chief Lewis Uses Marine Methods To Train Force

The Marines go marching along and that is what Campus Police Chief ex-Marine John Robert Lewis is still doing every Monday morning. He can be seen marching with his force of 19 men on the west campus in so-called close order drill. It is intended to cultivate discipline, co-operation, and "esprit de corps."

Lewis is in charge of coordinating and organizing the campus police and spends 15 hours a week carrying out his duties. Lectures are scheduled for two hours, and inspection for one hour each week. The remaining time is spent supervising the men on patrol and formulating orders of administrative matters.

Lewis is now using a series of stills and motion pictures as visual aids for the campus police. Lewis and Ken Molino, Guardsman photographer, worked on these films.

After serving three well-traveled years in the Marines, Lewis worked, for one summer, as an electrician's helper in the University of Pennsylvania's morgue. Lewis stated that "this was a very enlivening experience."

A job with Philco making television sets occupied the next 18 months of his life.

Then a long desired ambition came true in May 1951 when Lewis filled up his gas tank and headed for San Francisco and City College. Nine days later he was in the city. In June he started working for the Southern Pacific Railroad and is still employed there.

Now the most important fact of Lewis's history. In September 1951, he enrolled at City College. In March 1952 he was appointed campus police chief.

Lewis will be graduated this June. He plans to attend the University of California or San Francisco State College in September 1953 and major in criminology. Upon graduating he plans to gain a few years of practical experience and then teach law enforcement.

In reference to the student-campus police relations, Lewis stated that "many students have changed from an antagonistic point of view to an attitude of cooperation."

Coincidence Marks Instructor's Life

Coincidence has played an important role in the scholastic experience of David Dunlap, instructor in psychology, and assistant to Phyllis Haley of the psychology department here. Dunlap was formerly a student here and studied with Miss Haley as his instructor.

Before coming to the college in 1946, Dunlap was graduated from Commerce High School, where Louis Batmale, presently assistant dean in charge of student activities of this college, had been his history instructor.

THIS LATEST and most spectacular bit of workmanship, designed by John Lawrence, fit the Brazilian theme of last year's annual California Spring Garden Show. After two months of actual construction, with the aid of 95 students from his classes, Lawrence produced an artistic obstruction that not only won first prize in the Spring Garden Show and first place in the San Mateo Flower Show, but captured first prize, a gold ribbon for special merit and a silver cup for the best educational exhibit in the San Francisco International Flower and Garden Show.

The actual structure—which was made of wooden and wire frames covered with hardware cloth, gunny sacks, plaster and vermiculite, and then waterproofed and spray painted—consists of three main parts: a wire framed bowl, 36 inches in diameter, and a huge wood and plaster head piece, which is supported by four tall plaster columns that are assembled in 12 separate sections to facilitate handling, and to substitute as floral display pedestals when the exhibit is not in use.

WHODUNIT???

The mystery of who painted "Sam" the Ram continues.

Dean Edwin C. Browne discovered "Sam" (the redwood Ram on west campus) sporting his new paint job a few weeks ago and he tried, in vain, to find out who the artists were.

The invitation to all students to participate in a contest to discover just who did the renovation job on "Sam" still holds.

Dean Browne would love to know who the artists are. The mystery is driving him to distraction.

Track Monopoly

Size Of Fight In Dog Counts, Not Size Of Dog . . .

Whether it be high school, junior college or senior college it seems that Southern California steals all the honors when it comes to national track and field performances.

Year after year the boys from the Southland are listed as tops. Few words are spoken about the northern end of the Golden State. A few individual standouts appear from time to time, but hardly enough to sway opinions of the experts.

City College, a college not known as a track power, has always made good showings in the state junior college championships. Even with the un-tracklike San Francisco climate, the Ram cindermen have always placed high when the state meet is held.

Southern California which usually has the advantage of the weather, perennially comes up with the best teams on the whole, but it takes only a few first or second place winners to win a championship. This has always been the objective of City College, hence the production of a few more outstanding men and prospects for a California State Junior College Track Championship look very bright.

San Francisco high school graduates may not be the best prospects in the state, but the turnout here at City College has always been gratifying. Like the old adage "it's not the size of the dog in the fight, but the size of the fight in the dog." City College's track competitors have always made a good showing against strong odds.

Swimmers Vie Olympic Club Today, Prepare For May 8 Conference Meet

City College's ambitious swimmers face their fourth opponent of the young season tonight when they meet the strong San Francisco Olympic Club at the latter's pool at 7:15.

According to Coach Roy Burkhead the men have been working out daily at Crystal Plunge trying to compensate for their late start. Burkhead stated, "We have been working on a conditioning program recently and are now polishing up on speed and timing."

Three workout meets have already taken place with nearby teams. In their first match the Rams defeated Treasure Island 47-37. City College's second opponent was San Francisco State at the beautiful new State pool. The State meet was followed by one other workout with St Ignatius High.

Included on the present roster are Dick Avila, Tom Belton, Ron Chapman, Bob Connelly, Nowl Dietz, Ken Glazbrook, Fred Hoon, Weyland Lum, Rod Lundquist, Gary Murphy, John Stonum, Jim Winkler, Robert Wong, Ralph Yest and Bill Zelajeta.

Burkhead issued the call for team managers. "We need a lot of men who are willing to help out the team." All persons interested should contact Burkhead at the men's gymnasium.

The highlight of the 1953 season for the Ram natators will be the Big Seven Conference Meet on May 8. Burkhead stated that he hoped the team would be in top shape for this big meet.

Linkmen Engage Stockton Friday

City College's golfers under the genial guidance of Coach Ralph Hillsman have gotten off to a slow start by dropping two matches in a row to the cross-town San Francisco State Gators and University of San Francisco Dons.

The team ladder at the current time finds Gene George on the top rung. George has a best score of 76. In second place is Lou Salto followed in order by Art Pira, Charles Low, and Gary Austin.

Hillsman explained the scoring for team matches. The best men of each team tee off against each other with second of both teams doing the same. Each match is eighteen holes with the winner of the first nine being awarded one point. The winner of the overall 18 holes is awarded another point and

American League Choice

Yankees Retain No. 1 Position For 1953 Pennant Champions

By Dick Molster

With the major league season now underway, everyone, players and fans alike, will be looking forward to another season of "America's National Game."

Although it's certain that no one can be too sure who will bring home the bacon, the natural favorite for the number one spot will be Casey Stengel's perennially picked New York Yankees in the American League.

The Yanks, '52 World Champs, aren't the cheapest choice this year that they have been in most seasons past. Not only are most of Stengel's key men slowing down, but the other teams in the league are showing a great deal of improvement, especially the hard-hitting Cleveland Indians who also have a pitching staff equal if not superior to that of the Bronx Bombers.

Stengel has a well-balanced club but will have to get more power into his line-up. Phenomenal Mickey Mantle and comic book reading Yogi Berra can't carry the power load alone. The Yankees have a fine rookie crop, including infielder Andy Carey, the Alameda sensation, who has shown so much potential these last two springs.

Gil McDougald, formerly of City College, will really be pressed for his third base job by the hustling Carey. McDougald, who has the oddest batting stance in baseball, had a rather poor season in 1952 after a terrific freshman year in 1951 (he merely led the powerhouse champs in hitting).

Many attribute McDougald's mediocre showing last summer to his inability to consistently hit behind the runner; that is to slice the ball to right field. They claim that the unusual stance prevented Gil from doing this with any successful regularity.

McDougald is determined to make good this year and will modify his hitting style if need be. Coach Bill Dickey, an all-time Yankee great, is helping the ex-Ram with his batting problems and everyone is pulling for the former "Rookie of the Year" to make good, for he's a great competitor.

No less an authority than "Dr." Bobby Brown, ex-Yankee "Golden Boy," believes Mac will do it, and this writer must go along with the opinion of the good Dr. Brown, Galileo High's most recent gift to major league baseball.

There's no doubt that whoever wins the American League flag must beat the Yankees, as the dead but not yet buried cliche goes. Opposing managers must outsmart Casey Stengel and his remarkable managing genius; a combination of luck, instinct, shrewdness, and almost dumbfounded skill in handling players.

How about you campus experts? Who do you think will "pick up the marbles" this season? Why not write out your picks for 1-2-3-4 in each league and if there is enough response we'll have a contest with a good prize for the student with the entry closest to the actual major league finish.

Merely write down the order in which you think the first four will wind up in September plus your choice of the probable World's Series winner along with your name and home address. Leave this paper at The Guardsman office room D, Building 4 any time before June 1. We'll be anxious to see how close you can come.

That's all for now, and don't forget to GET IN THOSE PREDICTIONS!

Thinclads Hold 1-2 Record

Joe Hare Earns All-American Goalie Berth

By Don MacDougall

Accorded national recognition for his sophomore season of play, Joe Hare, second semester student here, has been presented with coveted All-American laurels by being named to the 1952 National Inter-Collegiate Soccer Squad.

Standing six feet, 175 pounds, 19 year old Hare, a graduate of Lowell High School, has integrated five years of previous competitive soccer experience to garner a berth as goalie on the All-American roster, as well as placing on the All Big Seven Conference squad.

Initiated into the game by his father, a past player of some standing, at the age of 14, Hare's enthusiasm for the sport developed as fast as his ability, and as a result, he became the youngest player ever to compete in the San Francisco First Division Soccer League, playing as a substitute goalie for the Mercury Athletic Club.

During the next four years, soccer became a major pleasure to Hare, and while never competing in high school, he participated with some five organizations in the same San Francisco Sunday League. It was in this league that Hare met some of the finest in Bay Area soccer competition.

In his freshman year at City College, Hare starred as first string goalie on Coach Roy Diederichsen's proved abilities, Coach Diederichsen has said,

"Joe has made more difficult saves than any goalie I have seen. He has terrific team spirit and the will to win. Joe is that true team player all the way."

During his sophomore tenure, Hare was far and away one of Diederichsen's primary mainstays. Prior to the annual Big Seven All-Conference bout, he broke his arm in the final game with Stanford University. It was during this game that Hare, playing throughout the entirety of the contest, was unconscious of the fact that his left arm was broken. The break was discovered a week later and accounted for his absence in the All-Conference match.

Asked to relate his most unforgettable experience in soccer, Hare said,

"In the California CCSF game of 1952, I received a concussion during the second half blocking a save. I guess this must have put me in a state of semi-consciousness, because I couldn't remember playing the second half at all. I don't even remember taking the streetcar home after the game, but I did."

Preparing to graduate in June, Hare plans to transfer to the University of California where he will continue his studies in medicine, and in soccer if those grade points will permit.

Netmen Post 4-2 Conference Record

Concluding their final league matches of the season, Coach Roy Diederichsen's netmen have rolled into a first division position in compiling a 4 win 2 loss record in conference competition.

In their last encounter of the '53 semester, the Ram netters faced Modesto, only to lose a 6-1 downhill battle on the Pirates' home court.

Posting the only upset of the day, Bill Wright, Ram first singles swinger, defeated the former National Junior Champion of Mexico in a stunning 6-0, 6-1 rout.

Commenting upon his squad's seasonal record and potentialities, Diederichsen stated, "I feel that this is one of the finest squads I've had in my five years at City College."

Prior to the league's termination, the Rams boasted wins over Sacramento, 7-0; Stockton, 5-2; San Mateo, 5-2; and West Contra Costa, 6-1. Scheduled for the remainder of seasonal opposition, are Stanford, California, San Jose State frosh, and Burlingame high school.

Ram Cindermen Journey To Stockton Saturday For Triangular Meet With Mustangs, Sacramento's Panthers

By Al Palacio

City College's ever-improving trackmen engage in their fifth conference meet of the season Saturday when they journey to Stockton for a triangular affair with the Mustangs and Sacramento's Panthers.

The Ram spikesters, in command of Roy Burkhead, claim a single victory in a quartet of league meets. There are, however, some individual standouts who should glisten in the forthcoming Big Seven championships.

Durable Al Carlsen led Burkhead's lads to victory in the initial league encounter at Kezar Stadium on March 14, The opposition was formed by San Mateo and the University of San Francisco, the latter being a non-conference participant. The Rams' winning total was 82½ points as against 49 for the Bulldogs and 47½ for the Dons.

Carlsen, the bespectacled All-City miler from Washington High, won the 440, 880, and anchored the triumphant relay quartet. His clockings for the quarter and half-mile were 52.8 and 2:11.7, respectively.

Little Bobby Cross, however, turned in the most gratifying accomplishment of the day, aside from Carlsen's expected doings.

The ex-Mission High half-miler arrived at the stadium a short while after the meet had begun. Coach Burkhead, noticing his late entry, wasted little time in inserting the sandy-haired runner into the gruelling two-mile event, a distance which he never before had tried. The belated move prompted Cross to utter, "I guess the coach is mad because I was late and this is his way of taking it out on me." Much to his amazement and Burkhead's delight, he arose to the occasion and responded nobly by copping the race.

The next meet was against Santa Rosa on the San Francisco State College oval. The Bearcubs amassed 70 points in defeating the Rams by a 19-point margin.

Van Parish emerged with winning efforts in the 100, with a fine time of 10.1, and the 220-yard lows, in 22.1. Rilliet threw the shot 42' 6", Hutzler soared 12 feet in the pole vault, Andersen loped the mile in 4:52.6.

The University of California frosh invited Modesto and City College to Berkeley on April 4. The Pirates from Modesto, however, stole the whole show as they entered the winners circle in 10 out of 14 events. The dual-meet score between the Big Seven entries was 86 to 34.

Rams Meet Gaels At Big Rec Today In Non-League Tilt

Coach Bill Fischer's Ram baseballers will sidetrack league competition temporarily today when they host the St. Mary's Gaels at 2:30 p.m. on the Big Rec diamond.

City College, winless in a trio of conference outings, is scheduled to follow-up today's tussle by entertaining East Contra Costa April 20.

Although the Fischer-men were shoved around in the Big Seven tilts, a pair of talented swatmen stole most of the thunder and compensated somewhat for the losses absorbed.

Rudy Buffin, a combination first-baseman-outfielder, and Jerry Stack, patroler of the outer pastures, have pilfered the horsehide at a resounding .417 and .400 clip, respectively.

Their come-through performances have certainly given the team a much needed "lift."

The Rams dropped their opening league fray to the San Mateo Bulldogs by an 8 to 2 count in the peninsula town. Bob Word started on the mound for the visitors and lasted four innings before giving way to Jim Kensberger, who toiled the remaining distance. Tony Matlock toed the slab for the opponents and received credit for the win.

The City College scores came in the third and fourth frames. Outfielder Joe Bocciioni opened the proceedings by taking advantage of Matlock's error to gain the initial hassock. Word sacrificed him along and the defensive second baseman's boot of a high bounder off the bat of Sherwood Slat resulted in the opening tally. In the fourth, Jerry Stack soloed, stole second, and came around on Bill Taylor's sharp one-bagger.

Matlock helped his own cause along by tripling in the fourth canto with one mate aboard. Rudy Buffin collected three for four to spearhead the Ram attack.

The return engagement between the rival nines was exhibited on the Big Rec field four days after the initial joust. The two rivals went on hitting sprees and when the dust had cleared, the scoreboard numerals indicated that the San Francisco participants had lost, eight to 13.

Lewis Flores' southpaw slants tamed the Bulldogs for six chapters. He was relieved by Jim Kinsberger, who hung around for one inning, and Fred Neyser, who finished up.

Bruce Davis handled the San Mateo pitching chores for exactly one frame, during which, time the Rams riddled him for six markers. Exit Mr. Davis, enter fireman Tony Matlock, the reliable chukker who baffled the Ram hitters in the previous get-together.

The Bulldogs rallied two-runs-worth in the fourth, four in the sixth, another quartet in the seventh, and the closing three in the eighth.

Sherwood Slat opened the City College half of the opening stanza by singling, likewise Ben Dito, and Flores. This opened the scoring gates. Jerry Stack walked and ditto Greg Kirkpatrick. Buffin then unloaded a screaming double to mop up the base paths. Big Rudy finished his day's work with a two for five accomplishment while team-mate Stack collected two for four.

Bob Van Amburg one-hittered Fischer's charges on April 7 to pace the West Contra Costa Comets to a 5-0 whitewash triumph in Richmond. Flores went the route for the Rams and was charged with the defeat.

Slat saved the day for the local troops by slugging a single in the opening half of the fourth canto to spoil Van Amburg's no-hit no-run bid.

Sam Brown singled thrice in four plate opportunities to lead the Comet offensive. Flores, incidentally, struck out 12 men.

RAMBLINGS

By Fred Fukuchi

THE recent selection of Joe Hare, goalie for the City College soccer squad, as All-American Goalie was a tremendous honor bestowed upon a most worthy player.

As City College soccer Coach, Roy Diederichsen, put it, "It was just the greatest thing that has happened in City College soccer history."

Hare, a modest young gent in public, is "guts unlimited" when it comes on the soccer field. He saved more than one game with his bold style of thwarting off attempts to score by opponents.

One can rest assured that if the All-American selection committee selected a player from a junior college competing against four-year schools, the player selected must have been of top-caliber.

BASEBALL INTEREST

Has interest in baseball seen its better days? Just looking at some of the attendance figures of "certain" Pacific Coast League clubs, may be so. How about here at City College? How much appeal does baseball have on the populace here at the college?

Just for fun our Dick Meister of The Guardsman Staff unearthed a new means of calculating the diamond interest of the average student and to find out if baseball really is becoming "a dying sport."

A contest submitting predictions for the forthcoming major league races. We think it's a terrific idea. It's both a test of baseball knowledge and enjoyment of the age-old American game of prognosticating.

Special Public Schools Week Observance Here

34th Annual Education Program Scheduled For Campus April 28

Public Schools Week, in its 34th annual observance, will be held throughout the state of California, from April 27 to May 2.

With the theme, "The Public School—An American Heritage," schools are now in varied stages of preparation to make this year's commemoration the biggest yet from the standpoint of school participation and general interest.

According to George D. Gavin, general chairman of the state-wide committee, "some 700 committees are organized and functioning to sponsor the local school programs," and he anticipates that "all attendance records by visitors will be broken."

Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, program chairman for City College, stated that preparations for an invitational dinner for 300 guests, scheduled for Tuesday, April 28, have been made by the 326th Masonic Order in conjunction with the San Francisco Unified School District.

Following the dinner, the visitors will meet in the main building for an introductory meeting and music by the A Cappella Choir. Dr. Luckmann said. Then the group will divide into six sections; one will see the Drama Club's production of Outward Bound, another will hear a round table discussion, another will visit the planetarium, one will hear discussion reading problems, another of human relations, and another discussion of Atomic Energy.

Superintendent of Schools Herbert C. Clish stated in view of Public Schools Week that "this annual event is of great importance to the San Francisco Schools. This, the thirty-fourth annual observance offers a wonderful opportunity for the public schools of San Francisco to inform and better acquaint all citizens of our ongoing activities and to have them upon this occasion see their schools in action first hand."

Wide Selection Of New Books In Ramporium

There is a wide selection of paper-covered books now on sale at the Ramporium, college book store, with new books coming in all the time. Some of the most popular titles are 30 Days to a More Popular Vocabulary, The Scarlet Letter, Return of the Native, and The Disappearance.

Movies For TV Course Aid Photography Class

Short movies now being shot as illustrations for Know Yourself Better, the college's television series, serve two purposes, according to Bev Pasqualetti, photography instructor here.

They are used by Phylis Haley, instructor on the psychology program, to emphasize salient points, and by Pasqualetti in his motion picture photography classes, he said, and they are excellent as visual aids in teaching the techniques of shooting for a purpose, selection, and editing.

The latest film shot, he added, will be used in his motion picture classes to demonstrate how fifteen minutes shooting time is edited to fit both material and time-wise, into a prescribed one minute, thirty second television spot.

Associated Collegiate Press Awards Fall '52 Guardsman First Class Honors

First class rating was awarded The Guardsman for the second consecutive semester by the Associated Collegiate Press recently following judging of the Fall 1952 semester volume.

College newspapers with membership in the association receive critical analysis and ratings semi-annually. The newspapers, ranging over the entire nation, are graded upon every facet, and staff members are given a detailed description of the shortcomings found in their publications. All judging is done by professional newspaper people and experts in the field of journalism.

Grading is done on the following basis: news value and source coverage, balance, vitality, creativeness, treatment, newswriting and editing, content, organization, style and leads, features, copyreading, proofreading, headlines, deadline schedule, typography, front page makeup, inside news page makeup, printing, editorials, columns, sports writing and display.

Basic divisions for the purpose of grading, involve type of college, frequency of publication, and whether or not the paper is published by letter press or mimeograph.

Honor rating include All American, First Class, Second Class, Third Class and Fourth Class. The All American award is the highest given by the Associated Collegiate Press.

In 23 semesters of membership in the association, The Guardsman has received a rating of All American 19 times and the rating of First Class four times.

Walker Heads New CAB Committee

Announcement of the organization and adoption of a new committee was made last week by Club Activities Chairman, Pat Miller.

Recently formed by the CAB has been the Advisory Committee which, according to Miller is designed to help promote the publicity of the individual clubs.

According to John Walker, chairman of the new committee, "The feeling of the CAB is that all individual members have specific duties toward the CAB. Most vital among these duties being ready to assist one another in promotion of publicity and ticket sales."

At the CAB meeting of April 9 co-chairmen were appointed to handle publicity and ticket sales. In charge of publicity are Ernest Jaurequi and Janet Terry, ticket sales, Herb Smith and Molly Inzunza.

SFFD Drill On Campus In Full Uniform

Full dress drilling program for San Francisco Fire Department ladder and engine companies began here last week.

These drills have been taking place on the far end of the west campus between Buildings 6 and 7.

Each morning at 9 o'clock, outside Building 4 on the west campus, there can be seen a company of firemen and their equipment (hook and ladder and other types of trucks) ready for the day's drilling assignments. Here the staff of the Fire College, under the direction of Battalion Chief William Gilmore, will give the companies training and instruction in the various evolutions concerning the raising of ladders and the laying of fire hose.

In the afternoons, from 2 to 5 o'clock, an additional detail of 20 firemen and four officers meet each day in the Fire College for further instructions.

This new program is another milestone in the progress of the Fire College training program here at City College.

Drama Tryouts For June Play End Friday

Try outs for campus thespians will be held by the Drama Club this week, Michael Griffin, sponsor of the group, announced late last week.

Griffin urged any students interested in acting to attend the try outs and bring their own material, not exceeding five minutes in length.

Purpose of the tryout, Griffin said, is to determine how many students are interested and available to take part in a Drama Club production scheduled for June 4, 5, 6. The play to be presented has not been selected according to Griffin, choice of the play he said, will be contingent upon actor availability.

Among those plays to receive primary consideration are The Male Animal, Detective Story, The Glass Magnagery, Craig's Wife, Gas Light, Little Indians, The Torch Bearers, and Kind Lady.

Hjerpe Schedules AMS Mardi Gras Meeting Today

Detailed plans for the forthcoming Mardi Gras will be discussed today at 2 p.m. in the Student's Lounge, it was announced yesterday by Associated Men Student President Ed Hjerpe.

Hjerpe commented that it is a meeting open to all persons affiliated with the Mardi Gras Clubs and other organizations participating should have representatives present.

Hjerpe stated that all clubs have not turned in their Mardi Gras petitions, and that these petitions will determine location of the booths. He added that a letter, outlining the existing rules and regulations for the Mardi Gras festivities, will be mailed to the club presidents next week.

Parking will be permitted on the west campus the night of the Mardi Gras, Friday, May 15, but it will be restricted to the area fronting the fountain, Hjerpe announced.

The Associated Men Students, Hjerpe said, will award trophies to the club entering the best float in the afternoon parade, and the club operating the best booth.

Schools Week Program April 28

April 24 Deadline Set For Forum Magazine Material; Korean War Contributions Glaring Omission

Material for Forum, the college literary magazine, is being accepted until Friday, April 24, Dorothy Mercer, one of the faculty advisers, announced last week.

She noted that the quality of the entries turned in so far is above average, but the quantity has not yet lived up to expectations. Miss Mercer laid particular stress on the need for more good, humorous pieces and more short stories.

The entries received so far have not been as extremely modern in tone as they have been in the past. To date no contributions have been received dealing with the Korean War, which is so dominant in the minds of all of the students.

Forum has generally reflected the trend of the times and the attitude of the country as a whole.

The first issue in 1936 placed great stress on the depression, which was still uppermost in the minds of the people. The 1937 issue of the magazine was more lyrical in nature, and the benign attitude of the people was reflected in such selections as Moon Magic, by Sibly Hunning, and Love Letters, by Vernon Peek. In the period from 1937 to 1941 the neutral position of the country was given expression.

Letter From Camp Roberts, by Isaac Abrahams, published in 1942, is a typical selection of the war years. In the post-war era Forum reverted back to tranquil themes.

Forum has grown in size and type just as the college itself has grown. The earlier issues of the magazine were mimeographed and bound with a paper cover as were the issues during the war when enrollment suffered a decided drop. Photography was introduced in the magazine in 1949.

Student-Faculty Committee To Hold Coffee Hour

A college hour-coffee hour, sponsored by the Student-Faculty Relations Committee, will be held during college hour, 10:40 to 11:20 a.m., this Friday in the student lounge, Maurice Powers, committee chairman, reported today.

Students and members of the faculty are invited to attend this gathering, Powers stated.

The faculty members and students who are preparing this social event are Mildred Barnard, Mary Golding, Valerie Phillip, Catherine Shorb, and Pat Miller, Club Activities Board chairman.

Campus organizations are also scheduled for meetings in their respective club rooms during college hour, according to Robin Dunn, Student Activities adviser.

Students belonging to clubs are urged to attend these meetings, Dunn said. With the Mardi Gras approaching, many clubs are making plans, and they need the support and participation of all their members.

The remaining college hour schedule for the semester is as follows:

Club Meetings, May 1; No college hour, midterms, May 8; Mardi Gras, May 15; Rally Program, May 22; Election Rally, May 29; Club Meetings, June 5; Sophomore-Faculty Baseball Game, June 12; No college hour, final examinations, June 19.

Fire College Plans Pump Operator Class

Fire college co-ordinator, Michael Lo Presti, is now making plans to resume classes for the one hundred and fifty new pump operators of the San Francisco Fire Department.

The classes will last for five days, Monday through Friday. Classes will begin at 8 a.m. in the fire college.

The men hear lectures on the use of five different types of pumps. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, they have field trips on which they will receive practical experience in the use of the pumps. Friday morning the men return to the college and discuss the material covered to date.

A test consisting of one hundred questions is scheduled for Friday afternoon.

TV Federation Waives Rules

Henry Leff, of the radio-television department here, recently advised that the American Federation of Radio and Television Artists, which represents actors in those fields, has been very cooperative in the college's ventures into educational television.

Leff cited the current series in adult psychology as a good example. An unseen class of fourteen persons is an integral part of the program and, although no one in the group can be considered a performer, union rules would ordinarily require that they belong to AFRTA, Leff said.

In view of the public service involved, the association has agreed to allow their appearance on local television screens without requiring that they become paying members of the union.

There have been other occasions when AFRTA displayed its good will toward the college, and educational television in general, according to Leff.

AMS In Full Swing For Mardi Gras May 15

Plans for the Associated Men Student Mardi Gras, on Friday, May 15, are in full swing.

The parking lot between Building 1 and 2 has been selected as the site area for the Mardi Gras.

Admission to the area will be 50 cents, Ed Hjerpe, AMS president, said.

Committee members Bobi Moore and Dino Gofas are currently engaged in making arrangements for the awarding of six trophies to be presented in connection with Mardi Gras.

It has been decided to distribute the trophies in the following order: one each for the King and Queen of the festival, the third for outstanding club participation in the parade and booths.

The fourth trophy will be given to the best float. The fifth award will go to the club with the best booth, and the sixth will be taken by the best marching unit in the parade.

The last four trophies will be awarded on a point system based upon originality, participation and percentage of the club membership participating in the festivities, Hjerpe said.

The next meeting of the AMS will be Thursday, April 30, and President Hjerpe urged that each club president appoint a member to represent his club at all AMS meetings preceding the Mardi Gras." Meetings will be every Thursday thereafter at 2 p.m. in Building 2A, he said.

Dave Raphael or Hjerpe announced that they will be available to help with Mardi Gras problems of any participating campus organization.

According to Hjerpe, automobiles for the float parade up Ocean Avenue will be procured from a San Francisco used car dealer. Last year, a number of Chevrolet convertibles were donated for the Mardi Gras parade by "Horse Trader" Ed Sapiro.

Hjerpe also announced that a clean-up committee, under the direction of Joe Drabkin, will be formed to dismantle the various concessions after the Mardi Gras. This process will begin on Saturday morning, May 16, and all students interested in giving their assistance may inform either Drabkin or Hjerpe in Building 2 for further information.

College Open To Public, Schedules Dinner, Music, Drama, Seminars

Preparing the final arrangements for the forthcoming annual Public Schools Week program, the 326th Masonic District, co-sponsors of the event, announced this week that this affair will be open to the general public at 7 p.m., Tuesday, April 28, in the main building study hall.

Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, program chairman for City College, stated that preparations for the dinner have been made for an excess of 300 guests. According to Dr. Luckmann, a nominal fee of approximately $1.25 will be charged for the dinner, served in the cafeteria.

Presiding over the entire evening program, President Louis G. Conlan will introduce each guest speaker and deliver the welcoming address.

Arrangements for the program will include dinner at 6 p.m., followed by an introductory meeting among the guests and then the A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Flossita Badger, will sing.

Dividing into several groups, the guests will then have a chance to attend one of five programs.

Among the seminars listed are 1, a lecture on Atomic Energy presented by Phillip Davidson; 2, a panel discussion on current events conducted by John Gerstung; 3, a lecture on various reading problems outlined by Grace Brown; 4, a lecture on the college planetarium conducted by Louis Bermin; and 5, a performance of the entire production of Outward Bound, presented by the college Drama Society, directed by Michael Griffin.

Featured in the cast for the production of Outward Bound are Scrubby, Ed Freeman; Ann, Beverly Naditz; Henry, Jim Glasson; Mr. Prior, Bill Heime; Mrs. Cliveden-Banks, Colleen Lewis; Rev. William Duke, Julian Amador; Mrs. Midget, Joyce Cody; Miss Lingley, Dawn Gallagher; and Rev. Frank Thompson, M. H. Friedrichson.

Dr. Luckmann commented that, "City College is delighted that the interest shown in Public Schools Week has been so avid. This year is by far the largest we've had in response to the affair. As well as the invited guests, we also urge the parents and general public to attend."

Also in accordance with Public Schools Week, much of the best work produced by students of photography here will be on display at several downtown stores from April 27 through May 1 according to Bev Pasqualetti, instructor in photography.

Livingston's, Brook's Camera Shop, Eastman Kodak, and The Emporium are among the establishments who will display prints.

Get There First

Late Registrants May Get The Bird

"The early bird gets the worm" and the early student signing up for pre-registration programing will get, not the worm, but a low number stamped on his program sheet.

This low number will give the registrant an early hour appointment for registration next fall, according to Alva McMillan, City College counsellor in charge of pre-registration for the Fall 1953 semester here.

McMillan stressed that students who wish early fall registration should come into the counselling office in Building 3 as soon as possible and arrange an appointment with their advisers for programing.

Many early hour appointments are still available, but since these are given out on a "first come, first served" basis, immediate action is necessary to secure them, McMillan added.

Students interested in attending the summer session here should also apply at the counselling office, McMillan declared, as the administration must know in advance of summer the number of students planning to attend and what courses they wish to study.

Art, Ceramic Groups Conduct Open House

Art in Action, title of the program for the Art Department's annual exhibition during Public Schools Week, will be featured at the department's open house from noon until 10 p.m., in Building Ten next Tuesday, Roy Walker, ceramics instructor, announced last week.

Students in Fine Arts and ceramics courses will be on hand as guides for the visitors, under the general direction of Walker and art instructors Funchon Gary, Jack Stafford, and Evans Ecke.

In addition to Art in Action, examples of student art and ceramics work will be on display for the Public Schools Week visitors. Walker also stressed that students of the college should make a special effort to be present to view the exhibition.

General Student Draft Deferment Rules Listed By F. Grant Marsh

Because the problem of possible military induction is uppermost in the minds of most American youths, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare released this week some general rules concerning draft deferments for students.

"Many students are in the dark as to draft deferment rules," Marsh declared.

The general rules are as follows:

1. Any student taking at least 15½ units of work at the college and who is in his first or second semester will receive a I-S classification from his local board which will defer him from military service until the end of his current college year.

2. Upon completing his first year of college study, the student may apply for a II-S classification if he is still carrying a minimum of 15½ units and is ranked in the upper half of his class.

This will defer him for another one year period, at the end of which he should be in the upper two-thirds of his class.

3. The Selective Service Qualification Test is to be used by the student's local board of jurisdiction in helping to determine his draft status, and taking the test is not an essential for deferment (but needless to say everyone requesting deferment should take the examination, if possible).

These rules may be changed or revoked at any time, according to General Lewis B. Hershey, head of the United States Selective Service Board.

Information concerning I-S or II-S classification may be obtained at Dr. Marsh's office in Building 3.

Annual Alumni Dinner Honors Dean Dougherty

Dean Margaret Dougherty will be honored at the Alumni Association's annual dinner, which will be held in the Faculty Dining Room, Wednesday, April 29, at 6 p.m., Edward Frediani, the association's president, announced yesterday.

Following the dinner, the stage production of Outward Bound, under the direction of Michael Griffin, will be presented in the Little Theater, Room 28, main building.

"Invitations for the dinner-drama event," Frediani stated, "are being mailed out this week."

Fourth Annual Dance Friday To Highlight Gamma Phi Program

Gamma Phi Ypsilon, campus fraternity, will stage their fourth annual dance this Friday at 8:30 p.m., in the auditorium, Walt Yakovloff, fraternity president, announced yesterday.

"The dance will climax the men's pledge week," Yakovloff stated, "and the theme will be Spring Fever."

Walt Tellison and his five piece band will provide the music for the informal dance, Yakovloff added, and fraternity members and pledges will be selling the bids at $2.00 per couple.

Vice-President Eero Makela is chairman for the event, and Chuck Byrnes is in charge of publicity, with Keith Franks heading the decoration committee, Yakovloff stated.

College Hour Movie Series To Introduce Airline Color Films

Featured this Friday in the college hour film series in Room 136, is a special introduction of American Airlines color travel films, according to Emmett Smith of the audio visual aids department.

A. L. Alpers, sales representative for American Airlines and an extension class student of City College, will introduce the films, Smith said.

Films are scheduled to be shown during the following periods: Holiday in Miami Beach, at 9:50 to 10:30 a.m. and 12:20 to 1 p.m.; Skyway to Mexico, from 10:40 to 11:20 a.m.

Scheduled for College Hour, May 1, is a special exchange rally, Robin Dunn, acting dean of student activities announced last week. Entertainment will be provided by students from San Mateo Junior College, according to Dunn.

Information Best Weapon Against "State Of Nature"

CURRENTLY, there is in existence at Hillsdale College, Michigan a state, referred to by student leaders of the University as "a state of nature."

Briefly, the scope of a "state of nature" includes no student activities, sports, publications, and—extremely important—no student government, no student constitution or official student leaders. Such a setback to student government will be difficult to overcome. With no official organizational basis for leadership upon the campus, the job of regrouping and reorganizing will be difficult, and those who take over the "reconstruction" of student government deserve the praise and full support of the entire college.

Needless to say the affair has caused much consternation and serious consideration among college leaders and groups all over the nation. And justly so; such a situation might well cause many struggling student government groups to fear like occurrences on their own campuses.

Complete details concerning the fiasco at Hillsdale are not now available, thus leaving room for much conjecture over preceding events. The Associated Collegiate Press release states that the student body voted out the old student governing theory but failed to approve the new constitution appearing on the same ballot. Hence, bringing about the "state of nature." Whatever brought about the circumstances which caused the back sliding at Michigan's Hillsdale, one thing is a known fact—one such step backward can bring about the ruination of years of hard work and advance by student governing bodies.

No college can relax, self satisfied, and calmly announce immunity to such occurrences. When the majority of students at one large institution can be so disinterested as to vote their government entirely out of existence, students elsewhere can sink into the same lethargic pit.

One possible explanation for Hillsdale's foolish legislation is ignorance. Least of all are college students presumed to be ignorant. They are, supposedly, eager young men and women with better than average IQs who are attempting to improve themselves, and consequently society, through learning. Perhaps, however, while they (the hypothetical students) are busily absorbed in the mysteries of the atom or the prepositional phrase, student government limps along—unnoticed, unstudied, and unsupported. Thus the student cheats himself by not taking advantage of studying first hand the workings of democracy and the significance of parliamentary procedure.

It is impossible to place all the blame on the average college student. If more of an effort were made to advertise student government as a democratic student organization instead of a sponsor for sundry campaigns and activities, the inquisitive and alert minds of many college students might be brought to consider it as another area of learning and a rich field in which to plant the seeds of ideas gained through other studies.

Feeling that a great need exists and fully understanding that one of a newspaper's primary objectives is to instruct, The Guardsman undertakes this week to publish the first in a series devoted to the greater understanding and fuller appreciation of the student governing organization of this college by all this paper's readers in the hope that it will never happen here.

It is dedicated to the future leaders of the college that they may more completely realize the magnitude of the work that has gone before and the magnitude of the work they will be expected to accomplish, and to those whose job it will be to make workable and lasting the efforts of our leaders.

College Welcomes Visitors

NEXT week is Public Schools Week, a time set aside to the commemoration of a great American heritage, the public school, and the right to a free education.

On the modern calendar, that is carefully marked with weeks set aside for the honoring of this or that institution or industry, only one affects closely every person in this great country of ours. That is Public Schools Week.

To our public schools we owe our high literacy rate and our constant progress as a nation competing with a world of nations, none of which have developed the free, public school idea to the extent that our nation has.

Thus the week is set aside to honor our schools, a great theory of free education, and our teachers who daily face the task of educating America's youth to face a globe darkened with complex problems.

For seven days schools all over the nation will offer a special invitation to the adult public to come view, first hand, the products of free education. Now is the time for the public to take its yearly inventory of a great and worthy investment.

City College extends a cordial welcome to those attending Public Schools Week observances here. We feel a great deal of pride in our college and it is our sincere belief that you will too, once you have seen for yourselves the vast service that your support of public schools is doing the youth of today and tomorrow, and the special significance of a City College to the community.

"Student" Khan Mihan "Belongs"

By Dick Meister

"There once was an old woman who lived in a shoe who had so many children she didn't know what to do."

The famous Mother Goose character to whom these lines refer had nothing on one of the Associated Students' members. He is Khan Mihan, the ever smiling, cheerful owner of a City College landmark, the hardy lunch wagon on Phelan Avenue below the main building. The old woman may have had many children, but the bubbling Mr. Mihan has her beat a mile with his family of 3,000 plus—the students of City College.

Mihan, who has been located here for almost seven years, is one of those fortunate people who love their work. His family of students help him enjoy his work even more by their respectful treatment of this man who deserves some sort of medal for his wonderful spirit and interest in the college.

Other signs read: "Buy it here, get the best," and "Excellent food plus good service makes good friends!"

The lunch wagon may be a business, but it is also a great service and comfort to those between-class nibblers who must have that candy or ice-cream in order to last until the next class bell rings.

Mihan, who chose this location because he wanted "to take it easy" in his later years, declares that the students here are the best customers he ever had. Here is a good positive example of that well-worn phrase, "money isn't everything." Mihan could make more of "the green stuff" elsewhere, but he couldn't be happier anywhere.

So, hats off to Khan Mihan, one of City College's greatest boosters and a friend and fellow "student" to all of us—his family.

Holder of Associated Student card number 661; Mihan has placed the card on his maroon '34 Ford Truck with the slogan, "I belong too! Do you?"

The Formative Years

Associated Student Constitution Originally Constructed In 1935

(Editor's Note: The following is the first in a series on Student Government at City College that will appear in The Guardsman. The series will deal with all aspects of the governing system and the elective offices. This week: a brief history of our student government.)

THE establishment of any organization of any scope is difficult. Involved are such things as forming a constitution or by-laws, securing approval of said document by all those concerned, electing officers, allocating funds, and numerous other responsibilities that must be assumed by the pioneer leaders.

Combined with all the ordinary organization difficulties that arose during the formative months and years of City College's Student Association, were the unique circumstances in which the college found itself for a number of years.

Mainly among these was the lack of a campus. Persistent administrative heads, however, worked to overcome the obstacles and nurtured the formation of a student government, and working with only a smattering of students supporting their efforts, they managed, during the early weeks of existence of the college, to band together enough men and women of the student body to formulate a basis for the student governing group that now exists upon this campus.

On Monday, August 26, 1935, San Francisco Junior College's official newspaper, Emanon, was distributed for the first time. Appearing on the first page of the neophyte newspaper was an appeal by Dean Edwin C. Brown for interested persons to aid with the organization of an Associated Student group.

The news article announced the date for the first meeting of any volunteers and paramount on the agenda was the formation of a constitution committee to draw up tentative plans for the organization of the Associated Students.

September 27, 1935, the following report appeared in the newly named Guardsman, "Reports emanating from room 402, 540 Powell, have it that the constitution of the Associated Students is well underway. The group in Political Science 51, Public Administration, are ready to guarantee that the constitution and fundamental laws of the United States will be put to the fullest test when the student opus is completed."

Work upon a constitution continued, until on January 27, 1936, a rough draft of the proposed constitution was published for student criticism. Many changes and modifications were made before, on Thursday, April 16, 1936, the first constitution was passed.

"Wholesale amendment" to the constitution took place ten years later in January, 1946, and further amendment was made in May of 1946.

The 1946 legislation saw a nearly complete revision of the old constitution. Primary among the changes was the increase in the number of elective student posts. This number was increased from 11 to 20 with a specified number to be elected from the Club Advisory Board and the rest elected as representatives at large. The existing council of 11 members became the cabinet and lost its vote.

In May the voters decided to do away with the amendment that stipulated a certain number were to be elected from the CAB.

Since the reconstruction program of 1946, little change has been effected in the constitution, and the by-laws established at that time are essentially the ones governing the Student Association today.

Ex-Marines, Reserves Serve Community In 'Globe And Anchor'

"To preserve certain standards and ideals peculiar to the United States Marine Corps such as decorum, citizenship, and leadership and to function as a service organization."

These are the stated purposes of the Globe and Anchor Society, an organization composed of Marine Corps veterans, reservists in good standing, and Naval personnel who have served with the Marines.

This society, as far as its members have been able to determine, is the only one of its kind on a college campus in the United States. San Francisco State College and the University of San Francisco have made inquiries regarding the group, and chapters may be started in the near future at these colleges, according to President Harry Roehling.

Globe and Anchor had its inception in spring, 1952. The founding fathers include Bob Vazquez, Earl Taylor, Bob Knighton, Dan Bloedsoe, and Dick Rubeff.

Tattered And Torn? See Doctor Jones

For eight years, five days a week, Dr. Thomas Jones, City College physician, has been available in Building 5 between the hours of 9 and 11:30 a.m.

Every morning for these eight years a long line of students, tattered and torn, battered and bruised has filed before Dr. Jones to have their wounds healed.

Sometimes students come to him with injuries that are not visible. Maybe they are having trouble at home or perhaps they are having difficulties in applying themselves to their college work. That is when Dr. Jones takes over and tries to heal their psychological troubles. However, first aid and emergency cases make up most of his work. For further treatment students are referred to their own doctors.

According to Dr. Jones the current freshman class has made good use of his services.

It is all summed up in his theory that ". . . a healthy student body is a must for a healthy student mind."

AS President Norm Heise No. One Man

Probably the "Biggest Man on Campus" is the Associated Student President who, this semester, is Norm Heise.

Born in 1933 and a graduate of George Washington High School, Heise' hobbies are politics, swimming, and student government.

Because of his friendship with Pete Chevrier, a past president of the Associated Students, Heise became interested in student politics and served as Finance Chairman for two consecutive semesters (Spring '52-Fall '52) before he was elected AS president. A member of Beta Tau fraternity, he ran on the IFC slate opposite Charles Osborne, USA candidate.

After graduation, Heise, who is a graphic arts major, plans to spend two years on active duty in the United States Naval Reserve. When he comes out of the service he hopes to attend San Jose State College to complete his four years of college necessary to receive a B.A. degree. His ambition after that is to go into the printing and lithography business with his brother.

Heise feels that the advisers and faculty members of the college have helped him tremendously and have made his two years here happy and successful ones.

WHODUNIT???

Dean Browne Still Seeking Answer

By Shirley Murphy

The mystery of who painted "Sam," the Redwood Ram remains unsolved. To date no one has volunteered any information, and the reward is still unclaimed. The contest is open to all college-level students.

"Sam," himself, is at peace with the world. Attired in his new cloak of white paint, donated by his illustrefactors, he tranquilly surveys the college scene. In a recent conversation with "Sam," Dean Edwin C. Browne learned that the reason for the benign attitude stems from the fact that he is not bothered by problems of income tax, family troubles, or any other of the problems to which the average citizen falls heir.

Unfortunately, the same peace of mind is not being enjoyed by Browne. The dean is still plagued by sleepless nights, indigestion, and visions of little humanitarians with paint brushes in hand.

He is anxiously awaiting information from some campus sleuth concerning the identity of the group responsible for Sam's "new look." The sleepless dean has been the recipient of phone calls in the middle of the night from which he has learned that the name of the redecorators will be divulged if no one has solved the puzzle in a reasonable time.

The prize, given during the Mardi Gras festivities in May, remains a mystery. Information regarding the nature of the reward is being withheld in the hope that curiosity will spur some aspiring detectives into action.

All pertinent information regarding Sam should be brought to Dean Browne's attention at once.

Rams Bone For May 2 Championships Meet

Guardsman Sports

Underdog Ram Nine Meets Stanford Today

By Don MacDougall

Promising to provide determined opposition against a favored Stanford Brave, Coach Bill Fischer's underdog Rams travel to the Indians' sunken diamond today in their eighth seasonal outing.

Sporting their second win of the season, the Rams downed the always dangerous St. Mary's Gaels to the tune of 10-8 on the Moraga campus, April 14.

Despite the fact the Rams accounted for seven errors, the clutch hitting on their part paid off in the third, fourth, and ninth frames to offset their miscues.

In the top half of the third inning, Ben Dito walked to start an eventful rally. Jim Bocchiloni then bunted safely and moved to second on a walk issued to Bob Word. Sherwood Slat then received another free pass to force in Dito. Following Ron Lawrence's pop out, Lew Flores singled, driving in two runs. Jerry Stack kept the rally alive by walking to load the bases again. Rudy Buffin struck out, but Fred Nyser singled in Flores, to culminate the scoring.

In the fourth, the Rams took advantage of two St. Mary's errors and tallied a pair of scores.

In the fatal ninth, St. Mary's hurler Spurbeck yielded two Ram insurance tallies that cost the Gaels a chance for victory. Two hits, a walk, and a hit batter finished Spurbeck, giving the Rams the decision. Bob Word copped the personal win.

Prior to the beginning of the regular conference schedule, the Fischermen posted a one win in a dishearten-ing practice round losing to San Francisco State 16 to 3, and to the Alameda Naval Air Station 5-3. They defeated USF 12-11 for their only victory.

Receiving one of the year's worst decisions, the traveling Rams were downed in a booming battle against the West Contra Costa Comets 5-0 on the Richmond diamond.

Buffin Leads Batters

Consistently belting the proverbial horsehide at a relatively sure clip, Ramster Rudy Buffin, first-baseman-outfielder is in primary contention for team batting honors.

Prior to this week he had smashed the horse hide at a resounding .417 clip. Following Buffin is outfielder Jerry Stack who previously had posted a hearty .400 average in his seventh week of competition.

Dropping their opening league encounter by an 8-2 count to the strong peninsula San Mateo Bulldogs, the Ram nine, still weary-worn and seeking their initial win, faced the East Contra Costa nine and received one of their worst decisions of the season, losing in an overwhelming tussle, 23-7.

Injuries Hit Rams

Plagued by injuries, the Rams have, according to Coach Fischer, "been really pressed for a regular starting nine. In relation to the present Big Seven Conference status, the San Mateo Bulldogs, and the Sacramento Panthers seem to be the most capable contenders for league honors," Fischer commented, "But we're hopeful that by the end of the season, we can recuperate our forces to make a reputable standing in the league."

COACH BILL FISCHER sends his undaunted Ram nine against the Stanford Braves today at Palo Alto.

RAMBLINGS

By Fred Fukuchi

FINE performances in recent outings by the City College track team have brought out broad smiles on the faces of Coaches Roy Burkhead and Grover Klemmer. As a matter of fact, better than expected performances by outstanding freshmen have boosted the Rams' chances in the Big Seven Meet a great deal.

Coming through like tried and true veterans, a previously green-looking 1953 squad has made much headway in its few triangular meets. Several thinclads running races that were new to them have responded nobly and are carrying on like old campaigners.

To look back earlier this spring, it was a sorry situation which stared Coaches Burkhead and Klemmer in the eye. Only two lettermen were returning from the 1952 squad which placed third in the state meet. Little by little high school aspirants joined the squad and after numerous shifts from event to event the two coaches had a fine squad which improved amazingly with each meet.

PARISH LEADS SPRINTERS

Leading the parade of Ram thinclads this year is the veteran sprinter and hurdler Vau Parish. Parish, one of the two lettermen on the 1953 squad, has been taking over where Harry Wade, sprint star of last year left off. Parish is yet to be beaten in the 100 yard dash and is doing fine in the low hurdles. Parish's best time in the 100 is a college record tying 10 seconds flat.

The new faces who have been highly responsible for the unanticipated success this season have been stellar performers like Al Carlson, Les Anderson, Billy Cross, Roy Hutzler, Charley Smuck, Bill Rumford, and Glen Nance.

Another veteran who has improved greatly over last year is weight man Walt Rilliet. Rilliet has been a consistent point getter in both the shot put and the discus.

LACK OF DEPTH

However, with all these fine athletes coming through, that age old problem of depth has hampered the Rams all season. In years past, the local cindermen have been unable to make a very good showing in practice meets due to the lack of seconds and thirds, but individual standouts have kept the name of City College high on the scoring list in conference and state meets.

This year the same lack of depth has kept the Rams from winning a few more triangular meets which they should be capable of doing. Although the locals have captured their share of firsts, their opponents have come up with the most place and show positions to return home the victors.

An example of this no depth was demonstrated at the recent Stanford Frosh and West Contra Costa triangular match when City College competed with only eleven participants. Yet, they defeated the powerful Comets from Contra Costa for second place.

With odds such as that to fight against, the City College track squad really deserves a hearty pat on the back.

Intra Ping Pong Tourney In First Round Of Play

With the thrilling basketball season in its final stages, the City College intramural scene is now focusing primary attention to the first round of play in the ping pong tournament.

Coach Ralph Hillsman, director of intramural league activities, stated that the ping pong tournament will be set up to accommodate many various teams in a twice weekly round robin league. As of April 15, sixteen various teams are in definite contention for the title.

Also setting a rapid fire pace for competition is the current badminton tourney. Games will be played according to tournament rules in typical singles and doubles elimination fashion, according to Hillsman.

Completing the final round of intramural basketball play, three teams are making the race close and hard fought all the way.

The Oldsters, leaders of the league for most of the tourney have received strong opposition from the Rams and Eagles. All of the pace setting squads in their quest for the title, are finding the tournament trail a little rougher going in this week of league windups.

Hillsman also announced that signups for a possible softball league must be received in his office no later than May 1.

Hillsman stated that, "we like to afford every student an opportunity to compete in some intramural sport. The only stated requirement is that the student must hold an Associated Student card."

For the benefit of all interested students, complete details on all intramural activities are posted on the bulletin board directly inside the men's gymnasium.

Awards for the winning squads in the various competitive sports are gold and silver belt buckles for the winners and runners up respectively.

Tennis Team Prepares For State Matches

Boasting a formidable record of four wins and one loss, the City College tennis team prepares for their biggest test of the year when they hope to compete in the State Championships at Fullerton on May 21, 22 and 23.

Coach Ray Diederichsen hopes to send number one man, Bill Wright and Bob Pritzkow to represent the Rams in the state encounter.

Coach Diederichsen prepared for the big match as he sent his charges through three practice matches last week with Stanford, California and San Jose State.

Despite the loss of Don Mays, one of the best players, the Rams came through in brilliant fashion.

(The Rams conference record is four wins and one loss and not four and two as listed in last week's issue of The Guardsman.)

Golfers Set For Return Match With San Mateo Friday

Having defeated the Sacramento Panther golfers 11 to 4, the City College linkmen hope to continue their winning ways this Friday when they travel down the Peninsula for a return match with the San Mateo Bulldogs.

Following the second match with San Mateo, the Hillsman linkers host the West Contra Costa Comets on May 1 at the Harding Park course.

The Sacramento victory was led by three men, Gene George, Tony Lazzeri, and Charles Low. Each of the trio racked up three points apiece. The low score of the day was turned in by George with a sizzling 76.

Student Coach Dick Kucich stated happily that the team was finally rounding into shape and should be tough to beat from here in.

Following the West Contra Costa match the Rams will await the big conference meet at Stockton on May 15 and 16. The biggest test of the year will be on May 25 when the California Junior College Championships will be held at Monterey.

Van Parish Leads Spikers In Baby Bear Warmup Saturday

By Al Palacio

Track and field is on its last legs in Big Seven Conference competition as cindermen of member colleges eagerly look forward to the May 2 league championships. City College's Rams will tune up for the important affair when they invade Edwards Field in Berkeley Saturday for a meet with the University of California Frosh.

The spikers of Coach Roy Burkhead will be out to avenge an early season loss at the hands of the Baby Bears in a trackfest also held in Berkeley.

Leading City College's thinclads into the warmup encounter will be veteran Vau Parish, a consistent point-getter in the 100, 220, and the 180-yard low hurdles.

Parish's best clocking in the century is :10 flat, while his time in the furlong is :22.

Unbeaten Bob Cross is another stalwart in Burkhead's star-studded cinder-sack. The sawed-off distance runner is set for a top duty in his two mile specialty. He posted a 11:02.1 recently. Pole vaulter Roy Hutzler has consistently cleared 12 feet and will pit his talents against the frosh's best.

Leslie Andersen, the Cloverdale Comet, is primed for a best-ever effort in the mile event.

Al Carlson, the ex-Eagle miler, is expected to get below two minutes in the 880. Burkhend indicates the half-miler shows great potential.

The host Stanford frosh, West Contra Costa, and City College engaged in a triangular meet on April 11 and the undefeated Papooses proceeded to gather all the marbles, scoring 73 points against the Rams' 50 and the Comets' 27. In Big Seven tabulations, the Rams and Comets settled for a 60-60 deadlock.

Burkhead's charges triumphed in four of the programmed 14 events but were hampered badly in the place and show departments.

The Rams' Andersen opened the proceedings by swishing to a neat 4:49 mile. This provided the spark for his team-mates.

Billy Rumford then responded with a :53 flat quarter mile and the Ram outlook appeared very bright.

Other notable City College achievements were Carlson's 2:01.7 880; Cross' 11:02.1 two mile; Glen Nance's 5' 10" high jump; Walt Rilliet's 130' 3½" heave in the discus; Hutzler's 12 foot leap for a first place tie in the pole vault; and a fine relay quartet clocking of 3:30.1.

WAA Sponsors DanceSymposium Here Saturday

Members of the Women's Athletic Association will sponsor a dance symposium this Saturday, April 25, in the women's gymnasium, Vivian Bernard, WAA adviser, said yesterday.

Georgianna George, instructor at the Halprin-Lathrop Dance Studios, will give a master lesson in modern dance.

Students of San Francisco and East Bay High schools, as well as those enrolled here, are invited, Miss Bernard said, and registration is scheduled from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

Seven participants in the Women's Athletic Association's first home playday, held April 11, made good showings, as they captured first and runner-up positions in badminton and tennis.

Carol Wong and Martha Pun scored victories in the women's badminton doubles while Steve Kroff and Dale Stricklin placed second in the men's badminton doubles, Marilyn Zebby and Dave Maroney placed second in mixed doubles, and Marvin Gordon won the men's tennis singles.

Approximately 80 participants representing San Mateo, East Contra Costa, West Contra Costa, Santa Rosa, Napa, Marin, and San Francisco battled it out on the badminton courts.

A badminton, tennis, and archery playday will take place at College of Marin in the near future. The exact date has not been decided upon. Men and women interested are asked to inform their physical education instructors, Miss Bernard declared.

Crystal-Balling The Majors

Cleveland Dream Staff, Power Can Knock Yankees From Pinnacle

By Dick Meister

Doubts have been raised in some minds as to the apparent invincibility of Casey Stengel's World Champion New York Yankees in the 1953 race for the American League gonfalon. Many competent baseball observers rate the power-packed Cleveland Indians as superior to the '52 Champs, and no one can dispute the fact that the Indians of Al Lopez are offensively superior to the Yanks.

With powerful Al "Flip" Rosen at third base and gigantic Luke Easter at first, Cleveland has two boys who can break up any game, at any time with their specialty—the home run. These two powerhouses combined with heavy hitting center fielder Larry Doby give the Indians the hardest hitting outfit in the loop.

The only question at Cleveland is—will that infield hold up? It seemed to be shot full of holes last season at the most inopportune times. Rosen and Easter are far from accomplished fielders, but Bobby Avila at second base is a steady and reliable performer.

Lopez's biggest worry has been to get a consistent shortstop, and from what this writer saw in spring training, he has just that in George Strickland, the Pittsburgh Pirate castoff. The nimble Strickland will give Lopez needed strength down the middle.

As any baseball man will tell you, a team's essential strength lies down the middle—at center field, shortstop, and pitching and catching. With the fleet Doby in the center garden, Strickland at short, and that "dream" pitching staff held up by Jim Hegan, the best receiver in the game, Cleveland will definitely have that essential.

Speaking of pitching, the Indians really have a "dream" staff in the persons of the "big three" — Mike Garcia, Early Wynn, and Bob Lemon, backed up by the revitalized Bobby Feller and Steve Gromek, Lou Brissie, et al.

This great hurling corps coupled with that powerful batting is enough to convince quite a few that Cleveland will be the one to finally topple the Bronx Bombers from their lofty pinnacle.

Over in the National League, the favored Brooklyn Dodgers are a clear-cut favorite to repeat last year's winning performance and no wonder. The return of last season's pennant winners and a corps of reserves who could play regularly on most major league teams almost assures the "Bums" of their second consecutive National League flag.

If the Brooklyn pitching comes through as expected, and the club plays up to the hilt as they always do, then you can be certain of this—The Brooklyn Dodgers will win by at least five games.

How are your predictions coming along? Remember all you have to do is list your choices for the 1-2-3-4 finishers in each league plus a pick for the World Series winner along with your name and home address. Bring these predictions to The Guardsman office, Building 4, Room D, anytime before June 1, and get in the contest.

Don't forget that the entry closest to the actual finish in September will receive a prize.

We'll be looking for those "gems" of master-minding, so don't let us down.

Spring Election Rally Dates Set By Brownfield

Prospective dates for the coming election have been set for Wednesday and Thursday, June 3 and 4, with the election rally tentatively set for Friday, May 29, during college hour, Jim Brownfield, Election Commissioner, announced in Student Council last week.

Rules and regulations will be voted on this week by council members, Brownfield stated.

Paul Denise, a representative from the World Student Service Fund, was guest speaker at the April 14 Student Council meeting.

Denise described the functions of the organization and told of the numerous ways colleges throughout the United States have helped the fund.

He stressed the fact that City College students can join with other colleges to raise money, collect clothing and books, and donate blood.

Associated Student President Norm Heise said that the matter of backing the WSSF in raising money will be discussed at a later date.

Dino Gofas, Associated Student card sales chairman, announced in council that parking permits will be checked this week.

He said that students who do not have an Associated Student card and have acquired a parking permit will receive a parking ticket.

Choir Will Sing In Schools Week

Two definite engagements are on the agenda for the A Cappella Choir this semester, according to Flossita Badger, choir director.

Next Tuesday, April 28, during Public Schools Week, the choir will give a performance here at the college. Ralph Hillis will be the featured soloist.

The choir will be the featured guests in a performance at the Palace of the Legion of Honor on Sunday, May 10, at the invitation of Ludwig Altmann, municipal organist, Miss Badger said. Gari Ellopolous, soprano, will be the soloist on this occasion.

Officers of the choir include Bill Scott, manager; Glenn Wescott, assistant manager; Bobbie Rolfe, secretary; Ron Atkinson, director of publicity. Joyce Cody and John McKim are in charge of all the choir properties, including the choir gowns.

Floriculture Dept. In Flower Show

The college's Floriculture Department, faculty directed by Harry Nelson, will display a "bench arrangement" in the Annual Flower Show to be held at the Oakland Auditorium, during the week of May 1 to May 8.

Students of the department have been cultivating tree leaf and flower plants since last September for the annual show. The college's display will include the Coleus, Tymura, Aurantica, and the Schizanthus, the latter of which is sometimes referred to as the "poor man's orchid."

"In the last show, the Floriculture department won a first place award for their exhibit," Nelson said.

Royalty Petitions Due

Petitions for Sophomore King and Queen should be submitted as soon as possible, Don Moltini, sophomore president, announced last week. He suggested that those interested consult him for details immediately.

The sophomore king and queen will be crowned at the Sophomore Ball, scheduled Saturday, June 13, at the St. Francis Yacht Club.

Student Lounge Site For Spring AWS Fashion Tea

Spring Fever Parade of Fashion, the Associated Women Students semi-annual tea, will be held Thursday, April 30, at 2:30 in the student lounge.

Climaxing the tea held to honor all high school senior women, will be fashions from the Anita Shop in Stonestown, with the women students of the college modeling.

The women who will be modeling are as follows: Cynthia Williams, Jeanne Lowe, Carol McKenzie, Faye Marshall, Sue Speer, Dorothy Crispin, Carol Riedeman, Sidnia Snow, Jan Sewell, Mary Allen, Alberta Cordini, Audrey Peters, Lois Ferrero, and Carol Goldstein. Patricia and Jacklyn Mascarelli will appear in an extra feature of the afternoon, Julie Hanan, AWS president, said.

Faculty members Mary Jane Learnard and Martha Scott will pour, while pledges of the sororities will serve, Miss Hanan announced.

Women students are welcome to attend, Miss Hanan explained.

The coming tea is the thirty-second since the event's inception in the Spring of 1937. Since then, the teas have been given semi-annually.

Attendance was small, increasing as the college moved to the campus here in 1940, where the tradition of honoring high school senior women was established. Approximately 5,000 persons have gathered at these teas

Eight Students Of Hotel Division Back From Tour

Wendell Muntz, acting chairman, and a group of eight students of the Hotel and Restaurant Division of the college, returned last week from the annual out-of-city tour of famous hotels and restaurants.

The students who accompanied Muntz, said the sponsoring hotels were as follows:

Frank Blankenship, St. Francis Hotel; Georgia Boyce, Clift, Plaza and Stewart Hotels; Samuel Boyce, Drake Wiltshire and Commodore Hotels; Earl Hazen, Sir Francis Drake and Claremont Hotels; Pete Hudson, Mark Hopkins and Chancellor Hotels; Ronald Lighterink, Fairmont and Whitcomb Hotels; Jim Roberts, Californian and Mayo Hotels; and Robert Schlewitz, Palace and Bellevue Hotels.

The group left San Francisco April 7 and returned April 14, after visiting various hotels and restaurants in Monterey, Carmel, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, Palm Springs, and Bakersfield.

Despite the extremely tight itinerary, which had almost every hour planned in advance, Muntz said that every appointment was reached on time. He further added that the cooperation was excellent throughout, and that many opportunities for employment in the various hotels and restaurants visited, will be available for students of the division.

Fiji Islander Describes His Getting-Acquainted Problems

(Editor's Note. This is the second in a series of articles by Mohi ud Dean, student in journalism here. Dean, an East Indian by descent, a British subject by colonization, and a Fiji Islander by geography, like most foreign students, has had difficulties in adjustment to life in the U. S. In this series he will recount many of these problems in the hope that, in some small way, they will ease the burden of other newcomers to this country by making the America Citizen more understanding.)

Arriving from a foreign land and living with the City College Community for the last three semesters, I have made some phenomenal discoveries pertaining to my "getting acquainted" problems.

Attempting to attain a sense of belonging by becoming a part of this much-praised institution of higher learning, I, as well as some of my foreign friends, were surprised to find that we could not meet the requirements socially speaking of certain organizations while we were disqualified in many "geno-social" clubs.

The only alternative was to resort to the proverbial "... do as the Romans do" attitude, and try to be as much like our fellows as possible.

In order to appear imitative my apparel became tight jeans, leather jackets and sport shirts, while my hair a butch cut.

Because I enjoyed social competition, slot, cigarette, coke, and candy, as well as music machines consumed my good many coins.

Always I participated as an audience in the football, basketball, and baseball pep rallies.

My five dollar student body card provided me with the above shows but, believe it or not, I am still waiting for the forty "bucks" worth a yard salesman promised.

I do not regret, however, if they do not come for the last fall blood donation pep rally afforded me a great show.

As a foreigner, to satisfy my ignorantic curiosity I investigated and was told by one blood-donor that the indiscriminatory plasma would go to Uncle Sam's boys who get hurt while shooting red snipers from UN bunkers in Korea. (They would not have to meet any geno-social requirements, thank goodness.)

One wonders why the results of blood-days made it necessary for The Guardsman editor to write, "It is with shame that we remember blood-day here." This left the pondering why the majority "just couldn't be bothered."

I have come to the happy conclusion that the trouble with me, and the reason that I haven't gotten my forty "bucks" worth, has been my own negligence and lack of "active participation."

Apparently I am not alone in this regard . . . but as I said, "When in Rome . . ."

New Heads Chosen For CAB Committees

Two new committee heads were chosen this week in Club Activities Board President Pat Miller.

Anthony Frost was appointed head of the Parliamentary Committee, and Ernie Jaurequi, head of the Constitutional Committee. Frost succeeded Dave Raphael, who found his class work too pressing to continue, and Jaurequi succeeded Herb Smith, who is now in the army.

Handwriting For Stenographers Begins Next Fall

Beginning in the fall semester a new course in handwriting will be offered, Glenn Mercer, chairman of the business department, announced yesterday.

The course, especially designed for stenographic students, will be taught from a text book compiled by Luther Lyon, a member of the business department faculty. Mercer stressed that the course would not be confined to students majoring in business alone.

Also announced by Mercer for the fall semester are new standards in the work experience program. Students will be allowed to earn a maximum of eight units toward graduation on work experience. Specific hours for conferences will be scheduled and will be considered as regular classes. Yvonne Stoupe and Harry Frustuck will instruct the course next semester.

Courses in key punch and key card accounting, which started this semester, will be continued, Mercer added. The college now offers a complete field of IBM machine work from the simplest to the most complex systems.

Photographers Set Price Scale For Sale Of Photos

Student photographers here are required to purchase their own supplies and much of their own equipment, according to Bev Pasqualetti, instructor in photography. For that reason they have established a price scale for photographs sold to fellow students in order to replace supplies used.

Prices are 75 cents for eight by ten inch prints and 50 cents for the five by seven size, Pasqualetti said.

However, he continued, these prices apply only to reprints of shots which are originally made for college use, such as publication in The Guardsman, publicity releases, and so forth, provided reprints are approved.

The nominal scale, according to Pasqualetti, is far below that charged by commercial photography laboratories, studios, or metropolitan newspapers.

Portraits or other photographs which are made to order for students or faculty members are the concern of the individual photographers and are not governed by this scale, Pasqualetti concluded.

375 Students Submit Petitions To Participate In June Commencement

Names Grads

MARY JANE LEARNARD, registrar, graduate of Stanford University, has been with the college since its opening. Riordan Auditorium Site Of Annual Commencement Exercises On June 19; Committee Starts Speech Tryouts

Preparing the tentative format for the coming 18th Annual Commencement Exercises, Dean Edwin C. Browne, chairman of the Commencement Committee, stated that the program will be held Friday, June 19 in the Riordan High School auditorium.

Outlining the general procedure, Dean Browne stated that foremost on the program schedule will be selected student speakers yet to be chosen by the Commencement Committee. Tryouts are now being conducted by William Culver who will, with the committee's consideration, select the principal speakers to represent the various departmental divisions of the college.

According to Dean Browne, the tentative program format will include several opening musical selections by either the college orchestra or the A Cappella Choir. Following this, the traditional Pomp and Circumstance processional will take place. The welcoming address and greetings will then follow.

Presented in order following the welcoming address, will be the presentation of scholarship honors and awards, the president's award, music, student speakers, the presentation of candidates for degrees, the singing of the college Alma Mater, and the closing recessional.

In reference to the coming 18th annual exercises, Dean Browne stated that "the graduating class of June 1953, is a most serious minded group. Many will be transferring to an institute of higher learning; others will be making their way in various other fields of endeavor. I sincerely hope that we have given them a better understanding of knowledge."

Clubs In Mardi Gras Urged To Complete Booths

All clubs participating in the forthcoming Mardi Gras are expected to build their booths on Thursday, May 14, Ed Hjerpe, Associated Men Students President, announced last week.

Each club will design and build their own booth according to the rules set up by Larry Elizarde, head of credentials, and his associates Jack Frost and Ted Kast.

"We are expecting a huge turn out since the only admission charge to the Mardi Gras will be the purchase of five ten-cent tickets which will be valid at all booths," AMS Vice-President Dave Raphael said.

The City College Dance Band will provide the music for the 10 to 12 p.m. dance which will be held in the auditorium. Upon payment of admission charge to the dance, which will be 25 cents to Associated Student members and 50 cents to others, each student's hand will be stamped to allow one to matriculate between the booths and the dance.

Hjerpe announced that all candidates for King and Queen will meet next Friday during college hour in The Guardsman office, room 40 to have their pictures taken.

The AMS president also announced that a cleanup committee, under the direction of Joe Dralkin, will be formed to dismantle the various concessions after the event. This will begin on Saturday morning, May 16.

Campus Cleanup Committee Set To Open Drive May 4

Acting upon the suggestion of President Louis G. Conlan, the Student Association and the Hotel and Restaurant division will open an extensive clean-up campaign next week, Sally Galvio, Student Association vice president and clean up committee chairman, stated earlier this week.

Miss Galvin announced that the campaign will be centered in the main building and in the student lounge where a number of signs will be placed on tables to remind students that the cleaning up is their job.

Membership of the clean up committee is not as yet complete Miss Galvin commented but thus far, Bob Bondanza, Stan Shiflet, Ed Hjerpe, Diane Bates, Andy Schneider and Ronald Burns will assist. Miss Galvin stressed that there will be many more members on the committee before actual clean up begins on May 4.

Miss Galvin expressed the hope that the clean up campaign will be as much toward easing the situation as past campaigns have.

Last semester's clean up problem was solved by the active supervision of the snack bars by various service organizations on the campus.

Basic slogan for the campaign is "Can It!" Miss Galvin said, and to this theme a number of students on the clean up committee have produced 18 posters and signs with "verse equally terse."

Photographers Ready To Film Mardi Gras

Students in motion picture classes here are already making the necessary technical preparations to shoot the coming Mardi Gras festivities, Bev Pasqualetti, instructor in the classes stated last week.

He explained that present plans call for the use of two cameras and arrangements are being made for the use of an official photo car from which both still and motion picture work will be directed.

"For the enlightenment of campus camera addicts," Pasqualetti continued, "the cameras used will be a 16mm Bolex and a 16mm Kodak Cine Special. The movies will be shot on black and white sound type film so that sound tracks can be added later."

Kappa Rho Dance To End Pledge Week Friday

Alpha Kappa Rho fraternity will re-establish a traditional dance Friday night in Building 2 from 9 p.m to midnight, according to information received from Joe Campton, fraternity president.

The dance, What's Up?, will conclude sorority pledge week and mark the end of sorority and fraternity initiation proceedings, fraternity vice president John MacDonald said.

A popular combo will provide the music for the evening, MacDonald announced.

College horticulture department is co-operating with the fraternity on decorations to be done along an outdoor theme, and the terrace as well as the lounge will be decorated with shrubbery and other greenery, Sally Galvin, Associated Students Vice President and director of the social calendar commented.

Miss Galvin stated that bids will be sold for $1.25 per couple and according to MacDonald they will be available at the college bank or may be purchased from Alpha Kappa Rho pledges.

The traditional dance has not been held for several semesters for a number of reasons according to MacDonald, who stated, "This is our first dance in several semesters. We have worked very hard in preparing for it and I hope there will be a terrific turn out. One thing we guarantee every one who attends is a marvelous time."

No Deferments Until Induction, Says Marsh

Draft classifications, such as 1-S and II-S, will not be issued to any student until he has actually received his military induction notice from the selective service warned Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator, Division of Student Welfare of City College.

Dr. Marsh stated that because of articles concerning draft deferments, many students have been needlessly seeking information about possible 1-S and II-S classifications. Upon receiving the induction notice, the student should then apply for a 1-S or II-S status through the college, added Dr. Marsh.

Alumni Observe Charter Day, Pay Tribute To Dean

Alumni and friends of the college will observe Charter Day by returning to the campus to participate in a dinner in the faculty dining room at 6 o'clock tonight honoring Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

College President Louis G. Conlan will speak to the Alumni Association taking as his subject, City College Looks To The Future, and Dr. A. J. Clond, president emeritus and one of three honorary life members of the association, has accepted an invitation to be at the speakers' table.

Ed Frediani, association president and a local attorney, is expected to preside at the speakers' table, with members of the association's board of directors present.

Following the dinner a special performance of Sutton Vane's play, Outward Bound, will be presented by the college Drama Club.

Tonight's dinner and drama mark the eighteenth annual observance of Charter Day, the anniversary of the State of California's acceptance of San Francisco's request for establishment of City College.

Exchange Rally Scheduled May 1

Presenting the first exchange rally held here this semester, San Mateo Junior College will hold an organized entertainment program this Friday, May 1, in the college auditorium according to Robin Dunn, acting dean of Student Activities.

Preparing the annual 1953 rally schedules, rally commissioner Connie Webb made arrangements for a group of City College students to travel to San Mateo, March 11 to present an exchange program. Friday, San Mateo will return the honor, Dunn explained.

Although there has been no official announcement of proposed entertainment, usually informed sources disclosed that the acts will feature variety skits, musical and vocal entertainment, and several yell leaders.

The remainder of the semester's college hours is as follows: May 1, Exchange Rally and Club Meetings; May 8, No College Hour, Midterms; May 15, Mardi Gras; May 22, Program Rally; May 29, Election Rally; June 5, Club Meetings; June 12, Sophomore-Faculty Baseball Game; and June 19, No College Hour, Final Examinations.

New Issue Promises Satire

Forum Copy Selection Underway

Forum staff members met with faculty advisers last Friday, Dorothy Mercer, Forum sponsor, announced, and began copy selection for the spring publication.

Miss Mercer outlined the method of selection. Each entry will be numbered and the names of the authors of the winning entries will not be known by the staff until after the material to be used is chosen.

"This issue promises to be the best in humorous content to date," Miss Mercer stated. "The humor," she added, "is slightly satiric in nature." She noted that the poetry and essays turned in have been of good quality.

Marsh Releases Information On Veteran Transfer

Information concerning transfer procedure for veterans, who are now attending City College under governmental educational benefits, was released yesterday by Dr. F. Grant Marsh, Co-ordinator of Student Welfare.

Recent information received from the Veterans Administration Office, San Francisco, stated that "Change of Place of Training" forms will have to be filled out by all veterans planning transfer for summer school, or permanent transfer from the college to seek training at another institution.

The Veterans Administration said that forms should be submitted by the veterans approximately three weeks prior to the close of the current semester, and that the final day for filing would be the first day of the summer session.

Dr. Marsh also released attendance figures on veterans presently enrolled in the college under GI Bills.

Under the most recent GI Bill, which renders educational benefits to veterans of the Korean War, Marsh said, "there are 375 veterans, all of whom have started their schooling since September, 1952. Twenty-one veterans are attending under provisions set forth by Public Law 16, a rehabilitation act offering schooling to those who suffered injuries in World War II, and 141 World War II veterans are here under Public Law 346."

Council Adopts Election Rules

Election Commissioner Jim Brownfield's two motions concerning the forthcoming spring elections were debated and passed last week by the Student Council.

The newly adopted rulings require that two petitions for Associated Student offices must be submitted by candidates seeking office.

The first petition will be submitted prior to convention and will be of a tentative nature, and the second petition, which is to be submitted after the convention, will be the definite petition of the candidates running for office.

Committeemen appointed by Brownfield were accepted by the council, and the new spring election committee consists of Diane Bates, Keith Franks, Pat Simmons, Don Douglas, Ray Jacobs, Jim Boulek, Ed Hjerpe, Chuck Osborne, and John Walker.

Summer Session Enrollment High

Pre-registration to date for the summer session at City College indicates that there will be a high enrollment this year, according to Alva McMillan, counselor in charge of preregistration here. All counselors agree that the enrollment for the Summer 1953 session should be higher than it has been in previous years, McMillan commented.

McMillan announced that two new courses have been added to the list of summer session offerings. These courses are Chemistry A and Mathematics D-2.

A summer session time schedule has been printed, he added, which will be available to students at their individual counsellors offices or at the registrar's office.

Fall semester pre-registration is moving along fast, McMillan said, but there still remains a high percentage of students to be programmed. McMillan again urged any students not already signed up to apply as soon as possible at the counselling office in Building 3 for appointments with their counsellors to get programmed for Fall 1953 registration.

18 Years Of Loyal Support Has 'Built' Our City College

THIS evening members of the City College alumni and friends of the college will gather to take part in the eighteenth annual Charter Day observance.

Present in the faculty dining room tonight will be many of the early students and faculty members who saw City College grow from the very humblest of beginnings to an impressive and hónored local institution.

Meeting tonight to commemorate the founding in 1935, of San Francisco's own two year college, and to pay tribute to their Alma Mater will be those to whom this college owes more than can ever be repaid. If during the early days of organization these persons hadn't proved their loyalty and pioneer spirit, City College would not have grown to command the respect that it does today.

A glance at history proves that only the sincere student would have ventured to enroll during those early days when the difficulties involved in attending this college must have appeared to far out number any advantages that such a school could offer.

In 1935 the college was opened without a building of its own, and Archibald J. Cloud was appointed to the presidency and the task of unifying a student group numbering close to 1500.

The prospect of commuting between the University of California Extension Building, Galileo High School, and Mission High School must not have sounded like a very inviting prospect to any enrollee, no matter how important an education might have seemed. Still, almost 1500 men and women were brave enough to enroll that very first semester and help organize the junior college which matured to become the City College of today.

Before August 1940, the college had made use of 25 locations throughout the city. Even after completion of the main building the college was still handicapped and forced to limit enrollment to 3000 students because, even though there now was a City College building, there were insufficient facilities for a larger student body.

Now after years of hardships the buildings that will make City College complete are in the process of being built or planned. Shortly there will be no more glaring inconveniences for the students to protest about, and the last of those who were with the college during its "formative years" will be gone on to other universities or careers. But those who pledged their loyalty to the college during the years when it needed every bit of support and loyalty it could muster will be the ones who really built City College of San Francisco. They are the ones who should be honored on this City College's eighteenth Charter Day observance.

"Know Yourself Better"

Local Women's Group, KPIX-TV, Dr. Clish Laud College Series

By Ken Molino

"To develop greater self-confidence, to avoid mental retrogression, to avoid empty living after age 50 . . ."

These objectives might well be used to describe the purpose of the college's current television series in adult psychology, "Know Yourself Better."

They are, however, some of the tenets of the Delphian Society, a national women's organization devoted to intellectual and social betterment.

According to Sophie Schroffel, chairman of the local chapter, the Golden Gate Assembly, which comprises chapters of the organization from Sacramento to Santa Cruz, welcomes any means by which its membership can realize its goals. That is why, since its beginning, "Know Yourself Better" has received a great deal of support within the society.

"It would be difficult for us to quote numbers, but within our society a good majority of our members are viewing the show each week and, many of them, myself included, are enrolled for credit," Mrs. Schroffel advised in a recent interview here with Phyllis Haley, instructor in "Know Yourself Better."

"The program was also lauded recently during a meeting of the League of Women Voters by both Dr. Clish (Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of San Francisco's Public Schools) and a representative of KPIX (Bill Dempsey, educational program director)," Mrs. Schroffel continued.

Henry Leff, producer of the series and an instructor here in radio and television, stated that other local groups have praised the efforts of the college in educational television. Support of such groups, he advised, is indispensable if this college or any other institution of learning is to be successful in bringing cultural television to viewers.

DR. A. J. CLOUD, president emeritus of the college and one of three honorary life members of the Alumni Association, will be among those at the speakers table during the eighteenth Charter Day observance to be held here tonight.

Cha(i)rwoman Launches Cleanup

Campaigns And Threats Should Not Be Necessary

Stop! Think twice before you discard that lunchbag or stomp out your cigarette on the floor! This (April 27 through May 1) is Campus Cleanup Week!

"Threats shouldn't be necessary with people of college age," according to Sally Galvin, Associated Student vice-president, and Chairman of the campaign. "However," she continued, "anyone caught this week dirtying the campus in any way may find themselves very much embarrassed."

Miss Galvin explained that her committee has devised several somewhat "drastic" measures to combat the recent tendency of students here to disregard the common observances of neatness expected of them here as in their own homes.

Asked at whom the "drastic" measures would be directed she said:

"The lunch room in the basement of the main building is especially bad. In fact, it is disgraceful. People are just too lazy to pick up after themselves. I wonder how many of them are that way at home?" The fountain, student lounge, cafeteria, and parking areas will also come under the scrutiny of Miss Galvin's committee during the week. She stated that full support of President Lomba G. Conlan and the faculty has been pledged.

This is not the first such undertaking. Other campaigns have resulted in a short-lived endeavor by students to take pride in their campus and do their share in keeping it clean, Miss Galvin said.

In describing the efforts as "short-lived" she was supported by grounds superintendent Phineas Schlesenger. When advised of the campaign he described himself as a "realist, not a pessimist, but," he went on, "none of these campaigns go very far." He indicated that, though admirable in purpose, these attempts at keeping the campus uncluttered usually amount to little over an extended period of time.

"If each individual student will get behind us and support the campaign this week, perhaps we can all develop some desirable habits which will obviate the need for future cleanup campaigns," Miss Galvin concluded.

Emmett Smith, instructor in photography here, recently secured a traveling exhibit of top prize-winning photographs from Photography Magazine. The display was hung in Building 9.

In discussing the exhibit, Smith remarked that a photographer usually benefits, in one way or another, from viewing such prize winning prints. "However," he stated, "the greatest good I received from this show was the realization that the everyday work of photo students here compares favorably with the hundred or more prints shown—all of which have received national acclaim."

The Voting Body

15 Have Exclusive Voting Power

(Editor's Note: The following is the second in a series on Student Government at City College that will appear in The Guardsman. The series will deal with all aspects of the governing system and the duties of the various Student Council organizations.)

In January of 1946, Student Council, as it exists today, was established during a general revamping of the Associated Student Constitution.

Voting on the revisions of the constitution was done on January 25, and on that day The Guardsman carried a digest which explained that new proposals would widen representation by increasing the number of elective offices.

After the approval of the 1946 constitution, and its consequent amendments, membership in Student Council was established at 15 voting members to be presided over by the President of the Student Association.

The voting body was divided into three groups Seven members were to be elected from the freshman class, and seven from the sophomore class. The fifteenth member is the Vice-president of the Associated Students. The president may vote only in the case of a tie.

Placed in the hands of the 15 representatives are the responsibility and the final authority in the supervision of the affairs, policies, properties and conduct of the Association. Also delegated to this group is the allocation of funds of the association to its various departments as provided for by the regulations of the City Board of Education.

Following the amendments of 1946, Student Council was not endowed with the power to present the business of the respective departments but was given exclusive power to vote and allocate funds.

The two class system of electing council members has as its basis for existence the hope of getting a highly representative group in student government. Yet a workable acquaintance with the college is made necessary by the academic requirements.

Candidates one will not fail to "find the odors of rinapani, copra, blood and beer."

Candidates are required to have completed a minimum of 12 units with a 1.00 grade point average in total units undertaken in the previous semester.

Inside City College With Mohi ud Dean

Educational Benefits Of South Sea "Paradise" Far Under US Standards

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles by Mohi ud Deen, student in journalism here. Deen, in fact Indian by descent, a British subject by colonization, and a Fiji Islander by geography, like most foreign students, has had difficulties in adjustment to life in the U.S. In this series he will recount many of these problems in the hope that in some small way, they will ease the burden of other newcomers to this country by making the American Citizen more understanding.)

A student in the "Paradise" of South Pacific of James A. Michener—an American journalist-diplomat—does not enjoy the same educational privileges as in American "paradise."

Though grateful or not he may be to his administration, an American Student is exposed to many golden opportunities in tuition-free schools which in the British-held Fiji Islands are quite adverse.

Even to capture the rudiments of learning in the Elementary and high Schools one has to meet, besides other things, the costly school fees.

Contrary to American schools, the Fijis have less spacious, ill-equipped, and below average furnished buildings.

The method of teaching basically does not vary from school to school because the government has a constant supply of young teachers from its unique and controlled teacher training college.

What, and what not, must be taught in the school is decided by the board of education.

Since the Islands comprise many heterogeneous groups, each major race has its own place in government-controlled schools except the Marist Brothers, a Roman Catholic order, practice indiscriminatory policy in their institutions for certain ethical and moral grounds.

For job opportunities and official communication the English language has become the major medium while the different racial languages are discouraged but are used for domestic purposes.

Beyond high school and after passing of Cambridge School Certificate a student, in pursuit of higher learning, has to leave the "Paradise" and enroll in some overseas college.

Most students apparently favor the next-door-neighbor Universities of Australia and New Zealand.

A limited number of Scholarships are available to the successful and promising students to The United Kingdom and India.

Like American youths the Fijians are also lovers of good and clean sports, and being athletic minded they indulge in soccer, cricket, hockey and rugby plus other minor games.

In the "environment of calm and comfort" of this remote Island of South Pacific one will not fail to "find the odors of rinapani, copra, blood and beer."

Pulse of the Campus

• Appreciation

Editor, The Guardsman:

To all students and members of the faculty who participated in the Variety Show:

I would like to personally thank every person who had a hand in putting on the recent successful Variety Show.

Although the Variety Show was not quite the financial success that we hoped it would be, it was a tremendous success as far as team work and school spirit goes. If the same spirit and cooperation is followed through for the rest of the term, then we can boast that this semester was one of the most successful in the history of City College.

Thank you again for your valuable assistance. Sincerely yours,

(Signed) Norman A. Heise,
President, Associated Students

Ring Canvas Unrolls As Pugs Start Scrapping

As one of the season's most interesting events, the intramural athletic league, under the direction of Coach Ralph Hillsman, will present its traditional novice boxing tourney, Wednesday, May 27, beginning at 8 p.m. in the men's gymnasium.

Included in the preliminary signups for the beginners boxing tournament are Richard Adams, 153; Richard Anthony, 148; Alan Aleihson, 160; Lee Dickinson, Injured; Bob Hohenette, 145; Wellington Lee, 160; Robert Menconi, 178; Pete Sinclair, 143; Bill Sinclair, 178; Sydney Ulricksen, 180; Henry Yan Galen, 165; Don Limin, 130; Miles Chapuis, 143; David Fenneman, 169; Floyd Fiser, Heavyweight; John McKim, 157; Howard Meyer, 185; Raphael Reyes, 145; Dick Jones, 160; and Frank Blackburn, 175.

Enrolled for the advanced division class are Glen Lanum, 133; Bill Ninnis, 138, and John Threadgill, 168. The bouts will commence for the evening of May 27 and constitute the third annual observance of the event.

According to Coach Hillsman, the intramural basketball quintets are rounding their competition into a very interesting and tight league of cage play.

Retaining first division laurels are the Eagles and the Oldsters, each holding a 6-1 game record. Following in second place are the Drifters and the All-Stars each snagging a 5-2 mark. Following in order are the Rams with a 4-3 record, the Clowns with a 3-4 mark, USA with a 1-6 seasonal effort and the Ball Breakers and the Pick-Ups maintaining a last division splurge with no wins and 7 losses.

Commenting on the play of the intramural cage crews, Coach Hillsman stated that "league play this semester has been most active and has brought about a great deal of basketball potential for the coming term."

Extending their margin of interest in intramural activities, the current ping pong tournament has just completed the first elimination round of action. The tourney, divided sectionally into several groupings, will include an open consolation round following the championship flight.

Ramblings

By Fred Fukuchi

SOMETHING new has been added in the way of personnel on Big Seven Conference tennis squads. A touch of seniority and an international flavor have been blended into conference team lineups.

Amazingly enough this unusual combination has boosted the quality of conference tennis sky high.

NUMBER ONE RAM

Coach Roy Diederichsen's number one man on the City College squad is 43 year old Bill Wright from Seattle, Washington. Long a veteran of the tennis wars, Wright has met some of the best in the business prior to coming to City College. Recently, he reached the finals of Class 2-in the annual Golden Gate Park Tournament.

He has been undefeated in conference play this year and even holds a lopsided 6-1 6-0 victory over Joaquin Reyes, the famed Modesto player.

Coach Diederichsen said, "Bill is a consistent player and very steady." He also added, "Bill owns an excellent backhand and has terrific placement —he knows just where the ball is going."

HERE'S ANOTHER VET

A Richmond daily recently chained West Contra Costa's number one netter Jack Gardner as the oldest player in the Big Seven. "This was, of course, before they had heard of Wright. Gardner is a spry 34 year old youngster."

Al-Modesto Junior College, two of the best young players of Mexico burned up the courts of the Big Seven. Number one is Joaquin Reyes, who claims the title of National Junior Doubles Champion of Mexico.

Crystal-Balling The Majors

It Looks Like Yanks Or Indians; Dodgers And Giants To Fight It Out

By Dick Meister

One of the most interesting features of the 1953 Major League campaign will be the closeness of the races with a better balance among the top clubs.

The American League pennant chase will most likely follow its pattern of recent seasons; the winner uncertain right up to the final games in September.

The New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians are picked by most observers as the ones to fight it out for the number one spot in the American circuit.

Close behind these two will be the Chicago White Sox with fighting manager Paul Richards at the helm, and the recently acquired Ferris Fain, ex S. F. Seal and A. L. bat champ in '51 and '52. To add to these definite assets, the Chisox have perhaps the "husthingest" club in the game and could surprise quite a few "experts."

Jimmie Dykes' rejuvenated Philadelphia Athletics are going to be rough on every team, but lack of depth plus loss of Fain, however counterbalanced by long ball hitting Eddie Robinson, will keep the A's down in the standings.

Over in Boston, the Red Sox will do better than in previous campaigns at the gate now that their cross-town competitors, the Braves, have departed for more fertile fields, but it's hard to see them doing much better on the diamond.

The Sox are going with a number of untried rookies and should these youngsters fold Lou Boudreau's club could end up way, way down in the depths of the loop.

At Washington Bucky Harris has the same old problem of money. Owner Clark Griffith just cannot or will not develop a productive farm system or buy enough first division players. Still, Jackie Jensen, Jim Busby, et al will be interesting to watch. Incidentally, look for Jensen to be one of baseball's brightest stars this year.

Pity the lowly St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers. Theirs is going to be "the battle of the year" . . . for the cellar.

In the Senior circuit, it looks like Brooklyn in a walk despite what has been said elsewhere.

Close on the Dodgers' heels come the New York Giants. Should they win, one of baseball's oldest arguments will be settled; that managers make a team, not that a team makes managers, because "Lippy" Leo Durocher is just about the best field general in the game, bar none. Leo has a great club, but the Burns' better depth and unmatched pitching should do the trick.

The St. Louis Cardinals run by Durocher's "boy," Eddie Stanky, and featuring Stan Musial, the incomparable "man," are going to be in there all the way.

Philadelphia's Phillies should finish high if only because of the presence of a hurler named Robin Roberts, who may someday be the first pitcher to win 30 games since Dizzy Dean's 1934 performance.

The Milwaukee Braves, who have made such a fast rush to the front in early season will soon find their true level but the spirit they have gained from the move from Beantown should carry them through many victories in '53.

Chicago's entry, the Cubs, give the windy city's fans something to talk about, but they haven't the balance demanded of a potential high finisher in the "Big Show."

We wish that we could say more for the Cincinnati Reds, as Manager Rogers Hornsby is one of our favorites, but the Ohioans just don't have it.

The Pittsburgh Pirates ? ? ? Ralph Kiner and a "bunch of guys named Joe." The only question here is . . . will the Bucs set a new high (or is it low ?) for losses?

There's the forecast, who're's yours?

Here are the rules again:

Write your picks for 1-2-3-4 in each league plus the probable World's Series winner along with your name and home address. Leave this paper at The Guardsman office, Building 4, Room D, any time before June 1.

Another Ram five-pointer was little Bob Cross. The verveful two-miler kept his winning skein intact while posting a 10:38.5 triumph in the two-mile.

Runner-up places were gained by City College's Les Andersen in the mile, Al Carlson in the 440, and Cholly Smock in the 100.

The Panthers were deep in every department. This was clearly shown in the field summaries where the capitol city crew garnered every place and show spot.

Ram Coach Roy Burkhead was not alarmed over the loss. "They (Sacramento) were loaded," he commented.

George Leads Golfers To Second Win

Led by the stickwork of Tony Lazzeri and Art Pira, who each racked up three points, the up and coming Ram golf team waltzed to its second conference victory, in as many outings, against a stubborn crew from Stockton last April 17, at the Stockton Country Club course.

Medal honors went to Gene George who carded an 80 for his 18 hole stint. Charles Low lost three points, but Lon Saltzo regained most of it by taking his match 2 to 1.

In a practice game against a good U.S.F. team, the Rams went down to defeat, bowing in a hard fought match 13 to 8. The Hillsman coached charges showed vast improvement since the teams last met a month ago.

As the team looks now, George is still top man on the totem pole with Saltzo holding down the second position. Low is third man on the ladder with Lazzeri and Art Pira ranking fourth and fifth respectively.

City College goes to the post next against a corps of putters from Modesto, this Friday, May 1, at Harding Golf course in a match that could tell the tale for the Rams' championship hopes.

Ex-Ram Moundsman Tops For Tigers

Dave Tivlo, ex-City College football and baseball star, last week won his sixth game in College of Pacific spangles this season. The right-handed hurler shut out the California Aggies as he held them to only four hits. Tivlo's mates punched out four runs to enable him to best the slants of John Cebull, ace Cal Aggie pitcher.

Tivlo has been the winner in all but one of C.O.P.'s victories this year.

He will be remembered here at the college for his fine mound work on the Ram baseball team of 1951.

Cindermen Crush Mustangs, Drop Nod To Panthers

Sacramento Junior College's cindermen celebrated the appointment of the capitol city as the site of the 1953 Big Seven Conference track championships by copping a triangular meet on April 18 from the City College Rams and Stockton Mustangs.

Selection of Sacramento for the annual league get-together, was made public by Harold Taggart, league commissioner. Hitherto, only the May 2 date was known.

Tabulations for the final conference three-way affair of the season were compiled on a dual basis. Sacramento's Panthers defeated Stockton College 107½ to 42½ and beat CCSF 72-50. The Rams won from Stockton 84-18.

Sacramento annexed five running events and three field contests in completely overwhelming their adversaries. The Panther relay quartet handed the Rams their initial league setback with a 3:36 timing.

Van Parrish performed very creditably for City College. The speedy dashman turned in the outstanding performances of the day as he won the 100 and 220-yard sprints and the 220-yard low hurdles. His clockings were 10.1 in the century, :22 flat in the furlong, and 24.8 in the lows.

Statuesquq Writer Rilliet also gave it everything he had for the Ram cause. The sophomore weightman spoiled the hosts' hid for a clean sweep in the field contests as he captured the shot put and discus with heaves of 43' 1½" and 124' 9".

Another Ram five-pointer was little Bob Cross. The verveful two-miler kept his winning skein intact while posting a 10:38.5 triumph in the two-mile.

Runner-up places were gained by City College's Les Andersen in the mile, Al Carlson in the 440, and Cholly Smock in the 100.

The Panthers were deep in every department. This was clearly shown in the field summaries where the capitol city crew garnered every place and show spot.

Ram Coach Roy Burkhead was not alarmed over the loss. "They (Sacramento) were loaded," he commented.

Twin Setbacks Sink Ram Nine Into Cellar

There's a time-worn adage which states, "If at first you don't succeed . . . try, try again."

With this bit of wisdom in mind, the City College baseball team attempts to start a winning streak today when they cross bats with the University of San Francisco Frosh at 3:30 p.m. on the Don diamond.

On Saturday, the Rams, tutored by Bill Fischer, meet the Sacramento Panthers in a doubleheader slated to begin at 12:30 p.m. on Graham Field in Golden Gate Park.

Double Defeat

The league-leading Santa Rosa Bearcubs handed the Fischer-men their fifth and sixth consecutive losses on April 18 which virtually cinched undisputed ownership of the conference cellar for our heroes. Up and through this pair of setbacks, the Rams were hitting .164 as a unit.

A real battle for top team clubbing honors is shaping up between first baseman Rudy Buffin and outfielder Jerry Stack. In 20 trips to the plate, Stack has garnered nine hits for a .450 percentage while Buffin has seven for 21 or .333.

In the first game of the doubleheader played in the northern town, Fischer's minions bowed to the right-handed deliveries of Howard Rodriguez by a 15-3 count.

Lefty Lewis Flores opened on the hill for the Rams and pitched seven innings before giving way to Jim Kinsberger and Bob Word who collaborated to finish out the tilt.

The Fischer-men scored their three runs in the fourth and eighth frames. Ron Lawrence reached first on an infielder's miscue, Flores singled, and Stack's towering triple drove them in. Flores opened the Ram half of the next-to-last canto by banging out a one-bagger and, reached home on Stack's double.

The Cubs staged their big uprising in the seventh when they gathered six runs on three walks, two doubles, and a pair of singles.

Jim Winstead, who topped the Santa Rosa batters with a three for six accomplishment, rammyeackled Flores' first delivery of the game into the weeds for a home run.

Stack collected three-for-three—a single, double, and triple—to pace the Ram attack.

In the seven inning encore, Jack Blair set the Rams down 6-1. Frey Nyser hurled the distance for City College.

Fischer's charges tallied their lone counter in the second. Flores lashed out a one-base safety, was advanced to second on Buffin's ground out to first, and dented the plate on Ben Dito's solo.

Dito pounded out three singles in a like number of plate appearances to top all hitters.

Viking Victory

Two days later, East Contra Costa tacked a 9-4 loss onto the Ram slate. Ambidextrous Bob Borghesani elected to serve them up from the left side as he went the route on the mound to receive credit for the win. His battery mate was one Vince DiMaggio, a distant cousin of the big league stars.

Kinsberger pitched five rounds for City College and was replaced by Word, who worked the remaining frames.

Block SF Plans For Mardi Gras

Plans are now being formulated by the Block S.F. Society for their participation in the forthcoming Mardi Gras.

According to President Walt Rilliet, the society plans to have a large float and a booth.

The second of the upcoming events for the athletic society is their annual spring banquet. This affair will honor all athletes who have participated in spring sports. Rilliet said that no specific date has been set for the event, but it is expected to be in late May or early in June.

Rilliet said, "The feature of this annual dinner will be a guest speaker. As in the past," he continued, "a prominent Bay Area coach will be our guest."

Deadline Near For Leave Of Absence, Dropping Of Course; Petition Filing Process Clarified

Last day for filing petitions with the registrar's office for leaves of absences or for dropping courses for the Spring 1953 semester is Wednesday May 7, Mary Jane Leonard, registrar at the college announced yesterday.

A student desiring to apply for a leave of absence or withdrawal from the college during the semester must obtain a petition from his counsellor, according to Miss Leonard.

The registrar further declared that action on the petition will be taken by a committee of which the student's counselor is a member, and that his parents or guardian will be notified of the committee's action.

An honorable dismissal from the college (graduation) an official leave of absence or withdrawal, is required if the student is to transfer to another college, the registrar stressed.

Students were warned by Miss Leonard that an one who withdraws from the college without a formal withdrawal or leave of absence does so at the risk of having his registration privileges revoked. He will be refused re-entry, withdrawn and all credits earned to honorable dismissal.

The registrar urged students who are leaving the college to procure a formal withdrawal since unauthorized withdrawal results in the recording of a grade of "F" in all courses involved. Grades of "F" received in this manner may not be removed by a subsequent leave of absence, and in all respects are the equivalent of failing grades obtained by an unsatisfactory scholastic record in the work of any course.

In regard to the dropping of courses, Miss Learnard stated that a student's program has been frozen, the college without a formal petition approved by the registrar's office. Courses dropped or entered without such approval will be marked as having failed that course. No credit will be given for subjects not entered on the student's official study list, Miss Leonard added.

The registrar concluded that petitions for official withdrawals leaves of absences or for the dropping of courses may be secured at the office of the student's counsellor.

May 8 Deadline Set For Submitting Of Scholarship Forms

Applications for this semester's six remaining scholarships can be turned in to Dean Margaret Dougherty and Dean Edwin C. Browne in Building 2 not later than Friday, May 8, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, Co-ordinator of Student Welfare, announced today.

Each of these scholarships consist of $50; two from the Cloud Scholarship fund; three from the 1953 Graduating Class fund, and one from the Chinese Club for a Chinese student, Dr. Marsh said.

The best application, in letter form, will be selected by the Scholarship committee, which includes Dean Dougherty, Dean Browne, Dr. Marsh, chairman, and Maurice Power, Dr. Marsh declared. Students applying must have a B average, Dr. Marsh announced.

The scholarships will be presented at a rally on May 22, Dr. Marsh reported, adding that.

Dr. A. J. Cloud, former college president, will probably be present when two of these scholarships are given in his honor.

AS Club Lists Due In CAB Tomorrow

Deadline for submitting names of campus club Associated Student members has been set for tomorrow, April 30, according to Club Activities Board President Pat Miller.

The lists must be presented directly to the Standing Committee in order to ascertain the number of AS members in the various campus organizations, he said. Each campus club must have more than 51 per cent (a majority) AS membership, according to the CAB constitution.

A motion has been passed by the CAB to organize a central committee to help place new students at the college into the various campus clubs.

According to Advisory Committee Chairman John Walker, who presented the plans for the committee to the CAB, "the main purpose of the committee is to aid the students who are unfamiliar with the range of interests that the various clubs offer."

Library Shelves Increased By 300 Volumes

The library has recently added more than 300 books in 34 fields of interest, Clement Skrabak, member of the library staff, announced last week.

These books are both fiction and fact and they range from cooking to psychology. Some of the books which will interest the average woman student are Food Becomes You, by Ruth Leverton, and From Under My Hat, by Hedda Hopper.

A book that will interest most students at the college, and which is new to the library, is Ernest Hemingway's The Old Man and the Sea. Edna Ferber's latest book, Giant and two earlier books, So Big and Show Boat, have just been added, Skrabak said.

The 34 fields in which new books have been added are philosophy, psychology, religion, social sciences, statistics, political science, economics, law and administration, and education.

Also included are books on transportation, customs and folklore; philology, mathematics, astronomy, physical sciences, life sciences, medicine, engineering, agriculture, and home economics.

Business, technology, building, fine arts, drawing, painting, music, theater, American literature, English literature, foreign literature, travel, biographical, and history, are also included, Skrabak said.

All students are urged to visit the library and look over the wide selection, Skrabak said.

Friday Film Series Presents Travel Log

In the college hour film series this Friday, in Room 136, Flight Into Time, one of the TWA series will be shown, Emmett Smith, of the audio visual aids department, announced recently.

One will see in this film, Smith indicated, how the TWA guides the travellers through the lands where Western Civilization was born and where today's historic decisions are being made.

The film, lasting 27 minutes, and in full color, will show a journey to Rome, Spain, Portugal, Greece, Egypt, and the Holy Lands, Smith added.

Fire College Boasts Unique Program

Fire College co-ordinator Michael Lo Presti, and the staff at the fire school recently announced the City College of San Francisco is the only college in the United States, to their knowledge, with an integrated fire training program which represents a day by day cooperative effort between a school district and its local fire department.

Lo Presti also pointed out that the campus fire college benefits the surrounding community in that in addition to training the fireman, the program also raises the scholastic status of the community.

While educating them as firemen, the training is also reducing the loss of life and property in the city.

Furthermore, Lo Presti pointed out, a training program of this type gives the fireman, as an individual, the initiative to raise himself in Fire Department and the community.

Blankenship, Hill Awarded Harvey Toy Scholarships

The winners of the Harvey Toy Hotel and Restaurant division scholarships for this semester are George Hill, a third semester student, and Frank Blankenship, a fourth semester student. Laurence Wong, instructor and cafeteria manager, announced this week.

These scholarships of $125 each are given every semester to the two outstanding students of the Hotel and Restaurant division of the previous semester, whose grades average better than a B, and who have contributed the most to the college itself.

The scholarships are available from the interest on $25,000 left to the Hotel and Restaurant Foundation by Harvey M. Toy, hotel magnate of San Francisco, who was one of the original sponsors of the training program of the college.

The foundation aids in the welfare of students of the Hotel and Restaurant division, and helps develop the training program. It is administered by a committee representing, jointly, the alumni, the hotel and restaurant industry and the college administration.

Personalized Items Now Available At Ramporium

Pompons, pennants, belt buckles, watch bands, charms for bracelets, all bearing identification of the college, are available as personalized items at the Ramporium.

Also stocked in the Ramporium, according to Richard Main, manager of the store, is a complete line of Schaum's Outline Books, including outlines on the theory and problems of physics, analytic geometry, chemistry, differential equation, calculus, and engineering mechanics, plus the general line of text books required for courses taught at the college, Main added.

Problem solvers are also carried. Culbertson offers an Italian verb wheel, a French verb wheel, a Spanish verb wheel, a German verb wheel, and last but not least, an English verb wheel.

If the "roulette" language method fails, the book store also stocks Vis-Ed cards to devise using cards to aid in visual education) for French, German, Latin, and Spanish. Walter Foster's art books are also available.

Flower Show Begins Friday In Oakland

The college Horticulture Society will present a bench display in the annual California Spring Garden Show which opens Friday, May 1, in the Oakland Auditorium.

According to Barry Nelson faculty adviser and director, students have been preparing their exhibits for quite some time.

This will mark the seventh year that the college has entered exhibits. Entries from the Horticultural Society and Flower Shop have previously won awards for six consecutive years. This year, only the Horticultural Society will enter active competition.

John Chamberlain, president of the Horticultural Society, is in charge of this year's display. Demonstrations and exhibits will dominate the scene during this the annual show.

Division prizes will include ribbons

Debate Society Enters Student Congress Climax

Entering the final session of the Northern California Student Congress meetings to be held at Santa Clara University, Saturday, May 2, members of Phi Rho Pi, the college Debate Society, will combine efforts to discuss How Can We Best Combat Domestic Communism?

According to Thomas Dutcher, adviser, members of the group will advocate their respective propositions from three of the congressional political parties, conservative, liberal, and independent.

Dividing the participants into a senate and a house of representatives, the primary function of the Student Congress is to afford the student practical experience in actual legislative procedure.

Formerly, the attending members had an active voice in the first discussion at the University of California, and the second at Stanford University. Attending the senate were George Effenberger, Pat Miller, Carl Molte, and John Walker, attending the house of representatives were John MacDonald, Noel Marsh, Ken Feldin, Paul Von Boden, Mary Cunningham, Guy Dutchman, Bill Bixby, and Hurst Summer.

Commenting upon the group's performance, Dutcher said "I'm most proud of the attending members and their fine appearance at the conference."

Sociology Club Planned On Campus

Plans for the formation of a new club on campus, one that would meet to discuss the present existing problems of sociology, were announced yesterday by Stan Shalit.

Students interested are requested to contact Shalit, Student Council member, or phone UN 1-0187 for details of the new organization. At the first meeting, ground work for a constitution will be outlined, which is in accordance with by-laws of the Club Activities Board's constitution governing clubs on campus.

Shalit stated that the club when formed would meet twice a month, and there would be no dues or assessments.

Space Flight Course Open Next Semester

A new two unit course in astronomy, Problems of the Upper Atmosphere and Space Flight, is being offered next fall to students of the college, Louis Berman, instructor, announced this week.

The course which is perhaps one of the first undergraduate courses of its kind in the country, will deal with physical characteristics of the upper air; instruments and vehicles for upper air research; principles of rocket flight; space ships; environmental problems of man in space; and hazards and techniques of space travel.

One of the most important problems of space travel will be space medicine, Berman said, and the army has at the present time a school where space medicine is being studied. These problems will be discussed in the course, Berman added.

Prerequisites for the course are, one semester of college physics or one semester of astronomy. However, Berman emphasized that the course would be conducted in a non-mathematical sense.

Drama Meeting Tomorrow Night

Next meeting of the Drama Society will be tomorrow night, April 30, at 8 p.m. in Room 28 of the main building, according to Michael Griffin, sponsor.

Griffin said they will "discuss plans for the Mardi Gras and will install the new members."

Students who have been active in drama are eligible to join and are invited to attend, he added.

Tryouts for a June production are still being held, and all interested students are invited to consult Griffin for information and tryout.

Griffin also announced that with new stage equipment and Connie Webb's stage crew, a play with more than one set is now possible.

Among those who have already tried out are Colleen Lewis, Pat Joyce, Joyce Cody, Bill Bixby, Dino Gofas, Gary Hawkins, Mary Allen, and Herb Smith.

Applications For Summer Jobs Being Accepted

Students who wish jobs during the summer vacation should fill out an information card in Building 2, and also apply for an interview, Joseph Amori, placement director at the college, said last week.

There are positions as counsellors, cooks, and laborers in summer camps, Amori added. The U. S. Forestry Service has positions open for qualified men. Amori said that all jobs at Yosemite Park have been filled.

There are positions for women to take care of children, in payment for which they would receive room and board and in some cases a salary also, Amori said.

Students should apply immediately for any jobs which might be open for summer.

If students delay the jobs may be filled, Amori said, adding that only qualified persons should apply for any of these jobs.

No New Clues Discovered In Sammy The Ram Mystery

By Shirley Murphy

The "Case of the Repainted Ram" remains unsolved. No new clues have been unearthed, and "Sam" still refuses to talk.

Dean Edwin C. Browne, chief of the investigating committee, in an interview yesterday, ranked the mystery with the famous Banks Bank Robbery in Boston which has never been solved.

The sleuthing dean has definitely decided it was an inside job, but he is unable to understand how the operation could have been performed in broad daylight (or broad moonlight) without having been observed by some one.

Dean Browne is not only suffering from insomnia; he is also acutely embarrassed because he is losing his reputation for being cognizant of everything going on around campus even before it happens. He is anxious because his underground spy system is rapidly falling apart, and he is seriously considering employing some Pinkerton men to replace his formerly alert force.

The good dean is also on the receiving end of gibes from returning grads who excitedly exclaim, "Why wasn't 'Sam' kept up while we were here?"

The contest to discover the painters of the Ram is still wide open, and all students are urged to make an effort to find the attrituically-minded painters—in order to preserve the peace of mind of Dean Browne.

"Tenderloin"... College Logical Source For "Honest Cops"

(Editor's Note: Direct quotations made herein are printed by permission of the City Editor, San Francisco Chronicle.)

By Ken Molino

There are honest cops in this city. In fact, according to the San Francisco Chronicle's recent "Tenderloin" series, the vast majority of them are honest.

Why, then, all the excitement, investigations, and name-calling of late? The Chronicle blames it on the few "bad apples" found in every crate.

A rather frightening episode in the "Tenderloin" series came with the revelation that there is a code among policemen. It is one of mutual protection—from investigations as well as from criminal bullets. The "good" cop can't tell on the "bad" cop. It's not cricket!

Is there any hope then that the bad apples can be ferreted out? The San Francisco Chronicle thinks so as does at least one of the real policemen on the force.

That paper said of him, "(Officer) Blank is philosophical, however. . . . He is a dedicated policeman, of good intelligence and ability. He is less concerned with his own fate than he is with a system of police procedure that relies upon 'protected' stoolies."

Said the officer, "It can be and sometimes is discouraging to those of us who believe police can serve the community without sidestep with a few favored crooks. But there are more and more men coming into the department with college training and a real interest in police work."

One of the answers then, according to a man who should know, is something with which this college has been deeply concerned for some time . . . the scientific training of law enforcement officers.

The two year course offered in that field here serves a double purpose. It trains men to become better policemen and, at the same time, allows them to test their interest in the city for its work. Perhaps even more important than training is this latter element.

Whether a man who is seriously interested in his job can defame it by "aligning with a few favored crooks . . ." or by accepting graft or closing his eyes to a fellow-officer's crookedness, is open to speculation—but it is highly doubtful.

The men who are enrolled in these courses here represent an investment by the people of San Francisco in their own futures. The fact that the citizens of San Francisco, who support this college with their taxes, are willing to invest in the youth of the city's youth to be finer citizens as well as better workers.

If these things be true then, certainly, the City College of San Francisco is meeting its community function in grand style—by training the city's youth to be finer citizens as well as better workers.

Marching Unit Sign-Up Increases For Mardi Gras Parade; Colored Lights To Illuminate Annual Event

Fourteen floats and five marching units have signed up to participate in the Mardi Gras parade, and a few more marching units are expected to sign up, Associated Men Student President Ed Hjerpe stated last week.

All clubs interested in entering the parade should consult Parade Chairman, Wray Jacobs, at once, Hjerpe added.

At 6:30 p.m., the parade will start from Junipero Serra Boulevard and proceed up Ocean Avenue to City College Station where, according to the present schedule, the trophies for the best float and marching units will be awarded.

This year is the first year the Mardi Gras area will be illuminated by colored lights, AMS Vice-President Dave Raphael declared. The wiring for this will be under the direction of campus electrician, Edgar Banderhoh.

Up to this time eight candidates have signed up to compete for King and Queen trophies, but names of those entered thus far were not released.

Ken Molino, president of Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society, stated that Mardi Gras participation was one of the many activities discussed at recent weekly meetings of the group.

The nature of the society's booth was not divulged, but Molino stated that, as a result of the "fine cooperation of certain faculty members ours should be one of the most highly patronized setups at the Mardi Gras."

Tentative arrangements are also under way for an AGS "honor graduate dinner" at the end of this semester and for other social activities to be planned during coming weeks.

"All honor students who are interested in taking an active part in the group are invited to see Mr. Jensen or to attend our meetings every college hour in room 5K," Molino said.

A Cappella Choir To Sing At Legion Of Honor Sunday

The A Cappella Choir will be the featured guests in a program at the Palace of the Legion of Honor this Sunday, May 10.

The choir will participate in this regular Sunday afternoon program at the invitation of Ludwig Altmann, municipal organist, Flossita Badger, choir director, said.

The program will be divided into two groups of numbers, she added. The first group will include Dupre-sacred pieces. The Passion According to St. John, by Schutz, will be done by the choir and the organ. Gari Ellopolous, soprano, will sing Ave Maria, an aria from Othello by Verdi. This will be followed by a Greek folksong, Mara, also sung by Miss Ellopolous.

A selection of folksongs will make up the second group on the program, Miss Badger added. Included will be, I Am a Poor Wayfaring Stranger, an American folksong; "Shango, a Brazilian number; and Abram Brown, an English folksong arranged by Benjamin Britten.

Officers of the choir include Bill Scott, manager; Glenn Wescott, assistant manager; Bobbie Rolfe, secretary; Ron Atkinson, director of publicity, Joyce Cody and John McKim are in charge of all the choir properties, including the choir gowns.

Midterm Week Exams Cancel College Hour

The regular college hour will be cancelled this Friday, May 8, because of examinations given during midterm week, according to Robin Dunn, student activities adviser.

Dunn also said that next week's college hour will be devoted to last minute preparations for the Mardi Gras.

The schedule for the remaining college hours of the semester is as follows:

May 15, Mardi Gras; May 22, Scholarship award rally; May 29, election rally; June 5, club meetings; June 12, Sophomore-Faculty baseball game; and June 19, no college hour, final examinations.

Slosberg Guest On KPIX Service Feature

As a member of a three-man panel of experts, Mervin Slosberg, instructor in political science here, recently appeared on Legislative Reports, a public service feature of television station KPIX.

Other members of the discussion group were Lieutenant Governor Goodwin Knight and Abe Mellinkoff, City Editor of the San Francisco Chronicle.

Pending legislation in the state capitol was the topic of discussion.

Graduate Awarded Art Scholarship To LA Art Center

Paul Wong, graduate of the college last Februrary, was recently awarded a four year art scholarship to the Art Center School in Los Angeles, according to Fanchon Gary, art instructor here.

In a nation-wide junior college art contest, Wong was awarded the scholarship which, upon completion of the art school courses, will lead directly to Design Executive position with the Ford Motor Company.

Selections from Wong's folio have been placed on exhibit in the art department, Building 10, second floor.

The exhibit, which includes Wong's work, will continue through Friday, May 15. The building is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and students and faculty members are invited to view the exhibit, Miss Gary said.

The art exhibit for Public Schools has a theme entitled, "Directions of Design," and, according to Miss Gary, it serves to represent the courses offered by the department.

Wong, who completed the two year basic design curriculum at the college, has exceptional craftsmanship in the understanding of different techniques, Miss Gary pointed out.

Forum Completes Story Selections

Selection of the material which will be used in Forum Magazine was completed last week, Dorothy Mercer, Forum sponsor, announced, and publication of the magazine is scheduled for the last week in May.

Miss Mercer stated that this issue will be composed of four short stories, many episodes in a satirical vein, and poetry. In discussing the material, she mentioned that two of the stories deal with veterans back from Korea and that two of the poems are outstandingly good.

Only four of the staff members are veterans of the magazine, Charles Osborne, business manager last year, is returning in this capacity this year.

Joanne Tuohey, editor, June Fairbanks, and Carl Nolte are the other three non-neophites. New staff members are Reina Martinez, art editor, Harold Painter,. Gene Soules, Wray Jacobs, Lorraine Blue, Velda Lucas, A. H. Shields, and Robert Ryden.

Student Council Investigation Reveals Parking Permit Violations; Future Violators To Lose Privileges

By Al Burgin

A recent investigation of parking permits issued for the current semester, conducted by Associated Student Card Chairman Deno Gofas, found 14 violators in possession of permits without ownership of AS Cards. The investigation was reviewed in last Thursday's meeting of Student Council.

Norm Heise, AS President, stated that in the future students found violating the rules governing on campus parking, will face confiscation of their permits, thus revoking all privileges. He added that final action on the fourteen students in possession of parking permits without cards will be taken by Dean Edwin C. Browne.

Heise commented that eight of the violators were notified of charges of illegal parking on campus, and all had purchased AS cards. The remainder in question said they would buy cards within a week.

A motion was unanimously passed by council to remove $50 from the controller's budget, a part of the Associated Student budget, and give it to the Campus Police for equipment, supplies, and miscellaneous items.

Heise's nomination and appointment of Bill Bollinwick as the new Publicity Chairman was accepted by Council. Bollinwick fills a vacancy caused by the resignation of Sam Blythe.

Bollinwick's appointment necessitates a special election to fill his seat on the Freshman Council. Nominations for the new council member were accepted yesterday and will be accepted tomorrow up to the time the special vote is called for, according to Heise.

Pat Miller, Club Activities Board president, asked council to vote Alpha Lambda Chi sorority and Beta Phi Beta fraternity on campus, stating that their preliminary clearance had been approved by the CAB at an earlier meeting.

Stan Shalit made a motion to vote on the acceptance of the two social organizations separately, but this motion was defeated and in the final vote both organizations were accepted by Council.

Alpha Labda Chi, which originated at the college in Spring of 1938, was forced to withdraw from college participation last semester when the CAB requirements for membership were not reached. Beta Phi Beta was ordered off campus in June, 1950 by the Administration.

Hawaiian Holiday Theme For Tau Chi Dance Friday

Hawaiian Holiday will be the theme for the Tau Chi Sigma fraternity dance scheduled from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, this Friday, May 8 in the West campus auditorium. Building 1, according to Ron Atkinson, president.

Walt Tolleson and his band will provide the music for the affair, according to Atkinson.

Dress will be Hawaiian sports shirts for men, Atkinson said, and dressy sport for women.

Admission will be $1.50 a couple, Atkinson announced, and tickets may be purchased from all Tau Chi Sigma members and pledges.

According to Atkinson, the dance will be the first of a new series, taking the place of the fraternity's annual House of Blue Lights dance.

Members preparing for this dance are Ron Byrne, Bernie Cervi, Bob Haines, Dick Ketels, and Buck Sabin. Ralph Haessler is in charge of this committee.

Audio Visual Calls Off Films For Friday

Because of second midterm examination week, this Friday's college hour film series schedule has been cancelled, Emmett Smith, of the audio visual aids department, announced yesterday.

Since the schedule will not be observed this week, Smith, said, the films will not be shown in the other two periods, at 9:50 a.m. and 12:20 p.m.

However, he added that the showings will be resumed with the normal college hour week commencing Friday, May 15.

AMS Builds Mardi Gras Booth, Collects Statistics

Built to obtain data on time and material required, construction of one 10 by 18 by 8 Mardi Gras booth was completed last week by the Associated Men Student Mardi Gras committee.

Illegal Parking Permits Are Evidence Of Bad Moral Trend

SOCIETY boasts two types of law, the written and the unwritten. Both types are of equal importance in our culture and, among those who respect the law, one is as binding upon the accepted behavior pattern as the other.

Each day it appears, more and more, that we are living in a civilization which is inclined to rationalize its own actions. More frequently we excuse, upon the basis that if something is not wrong in the eyes of the parties involved it is all right—any crime (or act) short of outright treason or murder. We are coming to a period wherein each being is expected to be guided by an infallible conscience. In the midst of all the war and vice that are present in our world today, we are tending toward the premise that each human being is endowed with the type of conscience that cannot recognize wrong.

Goethe philosophized, "While Man's desire and aspirations stir, He cannot choose but err." Kant believed that we should each conduct ourselves as though each act were to become an universal law. In other words, by combining the two, we cannot help but make a few mistakes, but the number we will make will be in direct proportion to the degree in which we accept or reject Kant, and the strength of individual will power.

Unfortunately our world moves so fast that often we seem to have very little time to think ahead to the ultimate of our acts. Decisions must be made in a fraction of a minute.

Often we do things that are in error even though we do realize the wrong attached. On such occasions we justify our actions by saying the circumstances forced us to do wrong. True circumstances may force us to contemplate doing wrong, but our own respect for the law should check the impulse there.

Two weeks ago an interesting paragraph appeared in a story published in The Guardsman. The paragraph referred rather blandly to illegal parking permits. Investigation revealed that, regretably, the consciences of a handful of students here did not stop them in time to save them from self-wrought embarrassment and, consequently, reprimand.

A parking permit must have seemed vital to the handful, and getting something for nothing is always attractive. So, even though Associated Student cards are clearly marked as non-transferable, a group of students violated their own code of ethics to obtain a parking permit, valued monetarily at $5.

What more proof is needed to show the error of the premise of the infallible conscience?

What a frightening conclusion we must reach about the moral fiber of American citizens when the written and unwritten laws are flaunted so flagrantly.

Cabinet Claims Department Heads

(Editor's Note. The following is the third in a series on Student Government at City College that will appear in The Guardsman. The series will deal with all aspects of the spoils system and the elective offices. This week a brief analysis of Cabinet structure.)

Responsible to their departments for the presentation of legislation to Student Council for discussion and vote are the 21 members of the President's Cabinet.

Prior to the famous overhauling of the student constitution a few years ago, these student departmental leaders comprised the powerful Executive Council, governing body of the campus. Now deprived of their voting power, these officers occupy an unique position half way between lobbyists and legislators. Some are elected, some are appointed. None have a vote.

Analysis of the cabinet can be made more logically on the basis of direct and indirect association with activities than on the basis of individual election or appointment to the positions. Most familiar cabinet positions are those dealing directly with student activities.

Dealing most directly with the student activity organization are the sophomore president, the freshman president, associated men student president, associated women student president, the rally commissioner and the yell leader.

Conducting business of basically the same nature are the class presidents. Both freshman and sophomore class leaders conduct the organization and planning of their class activities, and are members of the social committee and chairmen of their committees which have to be approved by the Student Council. The president of the sophomore class must have completed at least 45 and not more than 60 units of study prior to his term of office.

Requiring only 30 units of study prior to taking office are the presidencies of the Associated Women Student and the Associated Men Student. These two divisions direct such activities as the AWS tea, Homecoming, Mardi Gras, and the AMS has frequently acted as an organizing agent in intramural boxing tournaments.

Charged with the promotion of college spirit at all rallies and games is the yell leader. Required before candidacy for this office is the completion of 15 units of study.

The above five officers are elected at the end of each semester.

Selected by the President and approved by the council is the rally commissioner. Candidates for this office are selected from among the members of the preceding semester's Rally Committee. The rally commissioner is in charge of all rallies and programs as defined by the Student Council and is custodian of all the banners.

Schools In "Jolly Old England"

Tea And Crumpets With The Faculty, Frock Coats, Striped Trousers Are The Fashion

By Dick Meister

Have you had tea with your instructor lately?

Such a question may sound unusual to an American student here at City College, but in "jolly old England," social contacts with instructors are quite a regular occurrence, according to Don Perham, English instructor here. Perham has spent some time touring English "public" schools. (In England a public school compares to our private school.)

In 1952 Perham went through King's School at Canterbury, and the Winchester School. The contrast between these average British schools and City College is quite pronounced. For instance, most of the buildings are very old and in the classic Gothic style. One hardly ever sees the low rambling buildings so prevalent on American campuses.

Perham says that the most striking feature of the English schools is their strict adherence to tradition. The lower classmen are not only trained by instructors but are also under the surveillance of the upper classmen. The early stages in these schools are a period when the lower division students are treated more or less as novices.

The instructors, called schoolmasters, are extremely strict and their discipline is comparable to that found in United States military academies. Perham, while being shown around one school, walked into a classroom with the Headmaster (the principal or president), and the students present immediately rose and stood at attention.

The English have a respectful attitude toward their supervisors which might shock some of their American counterparts. The student is secondary in the British scheme of things, and this is an important aspect of their training.

The clothing that the English student must wear would seem outrageous to anyone here. At King's School the uniform is black shoes, striped trousers, a white shirt, a black string tie, and a black frock coat. This "high-style" apparel is topped off by a sailor straw hat with a band on it indicating the student's class rank. One of the most amusing sights Perham saw on his tour was a King's school boy wearing this outfit in the pouring rain.

Sports are strictly amateur and much more informal than ours; no admissions are charged and there are no seating arrangements. At rugby matches, the most popular form of athletics, the spectators stand on the sidelines. All students are required to participate in some sport.

Most age resident students who live in "digs," which are barrack-like dormitories. The conditions in these lodgings are very austere, but the average Englishman prides himself on the very presence of austerity and thinks a boy should not be brought up to expect too much from life.

However, when a new school is built it is done in a mode equal to that of a modern American school. One such modern building is the Sir Hamilton Langkly n School, which Perham had the opportunity to see.

The English student is very serious toward his studies and there is a minimum of "fooling around." The average British student would seem "stiff" to us Americans, who are ok so "casual."

Perham pointed out that while the schooling is strict and hard, it proves rewarding to the English people.

Foreign Student Views Negative Attitude Of Most To Regulations

Many students in the college, apparently, have developed a "negative response" problem which could become a challenge to the psychologists.

The genesis of this behavior, I assume, goes back to registration day when a student, in turmoil and tension, has to follow the instructions of the registration procedures.

"Write with ink, print your name, do not write here," all these plus half a dozen more instructions complete his mass dilemma.

The vestiges of the negative behavior during the semester may be seen amidsts the myriads of different brand, shape, and form of cigarette butts on the steps and floors of the main building in spite of the red "No smoking above basement level" sign. The "nicotic" trash must keep the janitor busy.

In the basement cafeteria of the same building a sign reads "Please Clear Table When You Leave," yet one has to look long enough to see any clearance.

The establishment not long ago inspired many indolent students to play cards, but now, "No card playing allowed" sign provides a cursory look to the gaming fans.

"Please bus your own dishes," warning, together with the characteristic cartoons, saying, "paper, silverware, dishes, tray, and thank you," in the west campus cafeteria find little result with the dignitaries.

Then laughs off one librarian, "Although the students are generally cooperative and honest, once in a while magazines and books lose their identical place despite the instructions, 'please do not remove any periodicals from this room' and 'consult with librarian if necessary to do so.'"

"Protect your property" and "Put waste towels in box" say the signs in the men's gymnasium, yet some respond with a zero look.

Frequently a student could be seen fighting for his devoured dime with the cigarette or candy machine even if the notice says the stuff is "out" or the machine is "out of order."

To do, when it reads, "Do not do" is apparently a pleasant pleasure to many.

Posters, P. A. System Aided In Recent Cleanup Campaign

Posters were very much in evidence, and the public address system was working overtime as the campus clean-up campaign got under way last week.

The campaign, under the direction of Sally Galvin, student vice-president, was two days late getting started because of the heavy rain early last week. However, when the skies cleared, Miss Galvin and her committee busied themselves posting "clean-up" posters. The public address announcements were helpful in reminding students of the committee's goal, Miss Galvin said.

WHODUNIT?? Now We Know!!

The baffling case of the "Redecorated Ram" has been solved.

Dean Edwin C. Browne, ever vigilant and watchful, detected some splashes of red and white on the garb of several students. Putting two and three together, and arriving in his own inimitable fashion at five, he deduced that these colorful students must have been the perpetrators of the action.

The brush-wielding culprits were identified as members of the United Students Association. Their names will be divulged to any proper Associated Student or college authority who demands them.

No disciplinary action will be taken as the deed was commendable in itself. The reward for the cryptic but altruistic operation will be presented on the night of the Mardi Gras (possibly to Dean Browne).

As for "Sam," he is in his glory and enjoying to the fullest the reputation he has gained as the "best dressed Ram on campus."

• Commendation

Editor, The Guardsman:

The Guardsman is to be commended for publishing its current series of articles on student government. Perhaps through this series the average student will become more aware of the fact that, though City College is young in years, it is rich in tradition.

Student Council meetings are not closed but are open to ALL students. New ideas and plans are always welcomed.

Through broader participation in clubs, committees, and council meetings, "The City College Tradition" will become even richer.

• Smoker's Dilemma

Editor, The Guardsman:

Why are there so many "No Smoking" signs adorning the City College byways and classrooms? Another point: Why is smoking prohibited within the classrooms? I believe this is mere folly and besides I feel it is up to the particular instructor whether one should or could smoke during the class session. I realize this is a touchy subject to bring up, but I sincerely hope you clarify me on the afore mentioned." I'm neither pronouncing or denouncing the ruling, just puzzled.

Freedom Of Expression

By Dorothy Fallon

Roy Walker, (right) instructor in ceramics here, feels that everyone has creative abilities which can be expressed by using materials always with design in mind, but not bound by set rules. He believes in indicating the approach to creative experience, at the same time allowing the students to project their own personality and character into their own work. Development of initiative and freedom of expression are encouraged.

The ceramics department serves related departments in the college, and has as its objective the creation of an understanding of the quality ceramics in relation to our daily lives and to the other arts. The classes are not for making "things"—creatively bad and unimaginative, but rather for the expression of artistic originality.

Students will exhibit their work at the De Young museum in May, at the San Francisco Potters Association show, and also in May at the City of Paris Pacific coast annual show. Among the exhibits will be salad sets, decanters, vases, cups and saucers, bottles, plates, sculptures, tiles and ash trays.

Profs Loom As Favorites In Semi-Annual Skirmish

Sophs Threaten 'Professorial Superiority'

By Don MacDougall

Calmly whistling the old refrain, "We Did It Before, And We Can Do it Again," as they assume their daily roles as educators, the Professors are once again out to draw Sophomore blood, Friday, June 12, on the college practice football field.

With confidence in their hearts, the Professors, leading after eight such annual skirmishes, are retaining an air of substantial nonchalance as they have virtually walked away with five of the eight traditional contests.

Despite the age factor, the Profs, with their experience plus their obvious "academic" advantage, rate the role of favorite. But with another year and another game listed in the record book, the "Sloane's Liniment" niggle may have lost that old touch.

With youth, plus a revengeful dislike of the dreaded examinations and assignments given by the merciless Profs as added incentive, the lowly Sophs could produce an upset victory over the "learned ones" who haven't been on the losing end too often.

The brave Sophomores, who have their ultimate success or failure riding on the game's final outcome, are promising an all-out effort from each active participant.

Many and diversified rumors have been released from Faculty headquarters. Among them is the hint that one of the main reasons the Pacific Coast League San Francisco Seals have been failing is that the tireless Profs are wearing down Seal spirit in batting practice. They boast an impenetrable defense, and an indefensible offense. Combining the two, what have you got? . . . Professorial Superiority!"

Confident of an early lead and ultimate victory, the brain trusts have agreed to play the game according to the rules and will use only nine men at a time, although an extra man or two may be needed to help carry some Prof off the battlefield should the affair call for too much physical exertion.

Rather than use the elevator in the main building, the Profs are climbing up and down the stairs. They are giving more exams in order to strengthen their arms by carrying the extra papers around. Why, they're even pressing harder on the chalk as they write assignments on the board.

In regard to Sophomore training, just as strenuous an effort is being made. The challengers are sharpening pencils, doing less copying in order to rest their eyes, and can even be seen carrying books to class—just for the exercise, of course.

Officials for the tilt will remain unannounced until game time as a precautionary measure and for their own protection.

City College Baseballers Close With Double Header Against Stockton Mustangs Saturday

Down, but not out, City College's fighting baseballers will attempt to salvage the last two games of a bitter season this Saturday when they travel to Stockton College to do battle with the Mustangs.

The local nine, who are presently resting in a position where they can sink no lower, will try to stretch their conference win streak to two or possibly three against an average club from the San Joaquin Valley.

Leading the Rams will be Rudy Buffin and Jerry Stack, the two big stickers most responsible for the victories turned in by the Rams. Buffin, a combination first baseman and outfielder, is rapping the pill at a gratifying .488 while Stack is powdering a good .315. However, on the whole the Ram team batting average is a poor .138.

On April 25, at the Big Rec diamond in Golden Gate Park, the Rams erased the zero in their conference win column with a 3-2 victory over the Modesto Pirates in the second game of a double-header.

Southpaw Lew Flores shackled the Pirates with six hits and toiled six scoreless innings after the Modestans nicked him for a pair of runs in the initial canto.

In the first game of the day, which the Rams were beaten, a two run splurge by Modesto in the eleventh inning ruined City College 10 to 8 Buffin slammed out four hits in five trips at bat off of Modesto's Ted Jordan, Frey Nyser, who went all the way for the Rams, gave up but seven hits, but was betrayed afield by five City College errors.

Golfers Face Comets In Harding Match

Practicing for Friday's all important Harding Course match with the tough West Contra Costa Comets are Coach Ralph Hillsman's contending linksers.

Currently the holders of a 2 and 1 record, the local golfers must defeat the East Bay quintet to stay in contention with San Mateo.

In a match last week, Hillsman's troop lost a one sided affair to San Mateo, 12½ to 2½.

Honors for City College were copped by Gene George who carded an 80. The short score for the match was as follows: Lou Salfro split with his man, Art Pira lost 2 to 1, and George Tony Lazzeri, Jr., and Charles Low came out on the short side of a 3 to 0 pasting.

Ram Swimmers In Stockton Meet

Hoping to make a formidable showing against top-flight opposition, the City College swimming team prepares to invade Stockton Friday for the annual Big Seven Conference Meet.

Stockton College will be out to defend the team championship which they have copped for six consecutive years. Coach Bill Antilla's Mustangs were recently ranked as this year's number one squad in Northern California. Their sternest competition is expected to come from second rated Sacramento, tutored by Earl Hoos.

City College, under Coach Roy Burkhead, will be represented by a small but talented band in the affair. Heading the local entries are Rod Lundquist and John Stemm, a pair of 440 free style performers who have shown neat possibilities during the league season. Lundquist is capable of picking up valuable points in the 220 free style also.

Top 100 and 220 back stroker is Noel Dietz, formerly of George Washington High. He is exceedingly swift in his twin specialties and is rated a dark horse possibility in either event.

Burkhead's splashers bowed to Sacramento on April 28th in the capitol city by a razor-thin 37-38 edge. There were indications, however, that the Rams were looking ahead to the all-important conference show-down.

Burkhead has been concerned over the lack of depth in the City College ranks and has tried to make up for the glaring deficiency by inserting two or three participants in more than their usual events.

Boxing Tournament May 27 On Tap For Intra League

By Fred Fukuchi

One of the busiest activities in the college is the men's intramural league going strong with competition in three sports. Play in ping pong, badminton, and softball is currently in progress with preparations for a fourth—the semi-annual college boxing tourney underway.

Intramural director Ralph Hillsman stated that sign ups for the college boxing tourney to be held on the evening of May 27 in the men's gymnasium has yielded twenty-two participants for the novice division and three for the advanced class. Hillsman added that the tourney will be divided into eight weight divisions similar to professional boxing.

In the torrid intramural basketball race, which terminated on April 27, the once-beaten Oldsters finally won the title after defeating the Eagles in a play off game.

The champion Oldsters included Bob Gilmore, playing manager, Tony Lazzeri, Jr., Fred Wickers, Bob Schmidt, Al Seemeore, and Pat Fraasco. The second place Eagles consisted of Warren Baxter, Riedeneur, Fowler, Williams, and Jones.

In the consolation tilt, the Drifters took third place by defeating the Hall Stars. Players on the Drifters were Bob Manning, Don Sugarman, Stan Fetterman, Bob Marineer, and Steve Croft.

The final standings in the basketball league:

	Won	Lost
Oldsters	8	1
Eagles	7	3
Drifters	6	3
Hall Stars	6	3
Clowns	4	4
Rams	4	4
U. S. A.	1	7
Ball Breakers	0	8
Pickups	0	8

"The basketball league was one of the closest races in years, and all in all it was a big success," Coach Hillsman declared. "Several of the other teams would have made better showings, but a number of key players were drafted into the service," Hillsman added.

The tennis tournament which is now in its fourth week of play, has attracted a large number of players and games are being conducted at six different hours. Three brackets are arranged, the winner's bracket, consolation bracket, and the doubles division. Even if a player should lose in the singles, he has a chance to win a crown by entering in the consolation bracket which also has its winner and runner-up.

9 City College Trackmen To Participate In State Meet

Parish Captures Two Events In Conference Track And Field Finals

By Al Polario

Nine City College cindermen qualified for the Friday, Saturday, May 22-23 State Meet as a result of their outstanding performances last Saturday night in the Big Seven Conference track and field championships held at Sacramento.

Visalia's Mineral King Bowl has been selected by the State Athletic Commission as the site for the third state junior college meet. Hosting the affair is the College of the Sequoias.

The trials are slated Friday night, with the field events getting under way at 7 o'clock and the track contests beginning an hour later. On the following evening, individual and team winners will be determined in the track and field finals commencing at 7:30 p.m.

The final scores for the Big Seven get-together were as follows with colleges listed in their order of finish: Modesto, 43 5 6; City College, 32; Sacramento, 30 1/3; Santa Rosa, 23½; San Mateo, 16; and West Contra Costa, 8 1/3. Stockton failed to dent the scoring column.

Verveful Vandolph Parish provided the incentive which sparked the Rams to a surprising second place standing behind the heavily-favored Modesto Pirates.

The bespectacled all-around performer captured two firsts and a second to top individual scoring. His twin victories were in the 100, in 10 flat, and a conference-tying 24.8 clocking in the 220 low hurdles while the runner-up spot was in the 220-yard dash. Because of this top-notch showing, Parish was awarded the outstanding athlete of the meet trophy.

The Ram relay quartet—comprised of Bill Rumford, Cholly Smock, Les Andersen, and Al Carlson — came within 1.7 seconds of breaking the 3:25.7 mile triumph.

Little Bob Cross ran the swiftest two-mile in his life, 10:43, but that was only good enough for a fifth place.

Carlson finally hit his potential as he posted a 1:59.4 triumph in the 880, just .4 seconds off the league standard. It was the first time this season that the husky runner had dropped below two minutes.

Andersen, the spindly-legged Ram miler, nabbed a second spot with a personal best of 4:39.5.

Roy Hutzler pole-vaulted 12' 2" to garner an unexpected second place for City College. This, however, was four inches below his seasonal top effort.

A pair of fourth places were racked up by big Ram weight-man Walt Rillet in the shot put and discus with heaves of 43', 11½" and 124' 10½", respectively.

City College had no entries in the 440, broad jump, and high hurdles. Smock finished fourth in the century and Al Amador took a fifth in the half-mile to complete the Ram scoring.

Ramblings

By Fred Fukuchi

FROM Southern California, the land where fabulous track and field stars are grown, comes another tale of a virtually unbelievable athlete. This is another of those numerous stories of feats by young men from the southwest corner of the United States who run faster, jump higher, and throw weights further than any other athletes of any region in the nation.

We would by-pass this, with a nod of the head, as another of those things, save for the fact this individual surpassed a track standard which was held by a student who formerly attended a junior college in the northern portion of the state.

This story emanates from the ocean-side town of Santa Monica and concerns one Mason Benner, a 240 pound jumbo sized shot putter for Santa Monica City College.

Benner has been the sensation of national junior college track circles ever since he recently surpassed the National Junior College Record for throwing the 16 pound iron ball with a staggering heave of 52 feet plus.

This effort bettered the recognized junior college record of 51 feet 4¼ inches set by Clyde Wetter, formerly of Modesto Junior College in the state meet last year.

Benner's record hettering has become a routine in every meet. His best throw of the year thus far has been 53 feet 6 inches. Records, say some, are made to be broken, but if the huge blond from Santa Monica sustains the pace at which he has been improving, he may place the national record in a position where it will take years to be broken.

He expects to enroll in the University of Southern California in the fall where he will test his talents in football. If he plays football any where near as he throws the shot, Benner will be a welcome addition to Jess Hill's squad.

It goes without saying that he will be welcome to USC's perennial NCAA Champions' club. With Parry O'Brien in his last year of competition, Trojan track mentor, Jesse Mortensen, won't have to look very far to replace the great Olympic champion. Who knows, Benner may make the fans forget all about O'Brien.

Ram Nine Lack Experience, But Are Learning Basic Fundamentals

By Dick Meister

The City College baseball Rams, led by that outstanding mentor, Bill Fischer, have had their ups and downs this spring, but it looks as if they are on the upclimb now, according to recent game showings.

The Rams' biggest trouble has been lack of experience, but under the tutelage of Coach Fischer the team is learning valuable lessons in the fundamentals of the game. To this writer's way of thinking, some of the "play-for-pay" boys could also use a bit of Fischer's wisdom on baseball's basic plays.

How often do you go to a ball game and see a "so-called" professional who can't even bunt a pitch? The bunt is perhaps the most basic of baseball's fundamentals. Your kid sister could bunt after "three easy lessons;" no kiddin', it's that simple.

Today baseball is power, and more power, but when someone does lay down even a mediocre bunt, the ohs and ahs of the startled fans are quite audible. Such a great feat for 200 pounds of coordinated muscle to do what "screwny sister Sue" could accomplish with her rag doll under one arm!

The club owners and managers are sacrificing baseball's fundamentals on the altar of the home run, but lowered attendance all over the nation clearly points out that the now frequent homer alone will not draw fans.

This home run craze has turned baseball into a veritable "game of chance." Managers aren't satisfied just to win, but they feel they must take a chance that one of their men will wrap it all up with a long hit, preferably a four-bagger, instead of taking the slow, but sure route of bunting men into scoring position where any kind of a hit or even a squeeze play will produce the same result, only without gambling. Maybe the National Baseball Shrine should be moved from Cooperstown, New York to Reno.

Most present-day players can't bunt properly, and why? Because with all the stress on power, they probably never learned, but your little sister could.

Thank the gods of baseball for such coaches as our Bill Fischer, who take the time to teach the game properly; the fundamentals are stressed and the "sure thing" style of play is up-permost.

City College Entrance Examinations For High School Seniors Completed; Washington High Enrollees Top List

Entrance examinations for the Fall 1953 semester, here at the college have been completed by San Francisco public high school seniors who expect to graduate in June of this year, according to Alva McMillan, City College counsellor.

The tests, concerning general scholastic knowledge, were given in the main building of the college on two consecutive Saturdays: April 18 and 25, with 520 graduating students taking part, McMillan said.

Of the seven high schools represented at the test, the largest number of students examined was from George Washington High School, he declared. One hundred twenty-seven Washington seniors took the examination, which is approximately 30 per cent of their June graduating class.

McMillan added that Balboa also had a large group of examinees, 83. Other San Francisco high schools represented were Polytechnic, Galileo, Lowell, Mission, and Abraham Lincoln.

City College counsellors are now arranging a schedule for personal interviews with each senior at his high school some time between May 11 and the end of the present semester, McMillan said. At these interviews the prospective freshmen and the college advisers will discuss the results of their entrance examinations, plan fall programs, and assign registration numbers.

McMillan announced that further entrance examinations will be given on Saturdays May 16 and June 13 for any other students wishing to apply to the college for admission to the Fall 1953 semester.

Their counselling interviews will be given later in the summer here, and only those tested in April will be visited for interviews at their schools, he declared.

The number taking the entrance examinations this semester is approximately the same as one year ago, McMillan said.

Students intending to return to City College next semester were again urged by McMillan to come into the counselling office in Building 3 and secure pre-registration programming appointments with their counsellors.

McMillan said that about half of the students expected to return in the have received registration numbers but that early hour appointments are still available.

In conclusion, McMillan reminded all students who will enroll in Fall 1953 that early appointments with their counsellors will mean early hour registration, and fewer disappointments in availability of classes.

McKiernan Fund Raised By Donor

An anonymous donor recently contributed another $100 to the Charles McKiernan Loan Fund, in honor of the late founder of Beta Tau Fraternity, Dean Edwin C. Browne announced yesterday.

The fund, presently at $300, will be administered by Beta Tau fraternity, as a revolving loan fund, in which students may borrow money to further their education, and pay back at a later date.

Details concerning the amount of money to be loaned, the necessary requirements to qualify, and the time allowed for paying on the loan, will be determined by Beta Tau fraternity, Dean Browne declared.

Applications for a loan may be submitted through Dean Browne, and the applications should be submitted in letter form furnishing background information pertinent to the appliean, and references.

Summer Session Signup Deadline Set For June 22

Deadline for enrolling in this year's summer session here is Monday, June 22, Alva McMillan, counselor in charge of pre-registration, announced this week.

"Interested students, however, should register with their counsellors right away," he warned, "in order to insure selected classes and instructors."

Early figures indicate that the enrollment for the 1953 summer session here will surpass last year's total registration when approximately 1100 students were in attendance. McMillan pointed out that the percentage of enrollees programmed thus far is greater in comparison with sign-ups at this same stage a year ago.

The summer classes will open on June 22 and close on July 31, with the exception of courses in Engineering 107 and 108 which are extended to August 21.

An important alteration in the list of offered courses, which is available to students at their individual counselor's offices or at the registrar's office, is the replacement of Chemistry A by Chemistry G-16. This course is offered to those lacking in high school chemistry and carries general college credit.

The maximum number of units available is six, McMillan informed, plus one-half for physical education. He further, explained that summer session courses are too condensed to warrant additional credits.

McMillan noted that the heaviest enrollment so far appears to be in Politicnl Science 36 followed by English 1-A and Psychology 1-A.

Courses listed to be offered are as follows: Bacteriology, Business Math, Machine Calculation and Typing, Chemistry, Communications, Economics, Engineering, English-College Comp. and Study of Literature, French, US and Western European History, Journalism-Methods of Public Relations, Geometry, Trigonometry, Algebra, Analytic Geometry and Calculus, Music History and Appreciation, Philosophy, Physical Education for men and women, Political Science, Psychology, Radio-TV, Sociology, Spanish, Speech, and Zoology.

Students planning to run for sophomore king and queen must file petitions for candidacy by Friday, May 22, Don Moltini, Sophomore president, announced late last week.

Moltini advised that the petitions should be submitted to him or left in Associated Student office, Building 2.

The Sophomore president stated that the voting, which will be held during Sophomore Week, June 8 through 12, will be open to all students of the college.

Site of the dance will be the St. Francis Yacht Club, Saturday, June 13.

Spring Elections To Decide Seven Key Positions

Seven key student government positions and fourteen council posts will be decided in the June 3, 4 elections to be conducted at the College it was announced yesterday by Election Commissioner Jim Brownfield.

Brownfield stated that the positions are President, Vice President, Sophomore and Freshman Presidents, Associated Men's and Women's Presidents, and Yell Leader.

Initial petitions to run for office must be submitted not later than noon of May 19, Brownfield asserted, and the final petitions deadline has been set up to noon, May 22.

Regulations and requirements for candidates seeking office are outlined in the Student Government Constitution, Brownfield said, and candidates are urged to become familiar with these requirements.

The requirements for president is 45 units of completed work, and vice president must have completed 30 units of work. Sophomore president must have completed 45 units of work but must not have more than 60 prior to his term of office. Thirty units of work is required for the offices of Freshman, Associated Mens and Womens Student's presidents. The Yell leader must have completed at least 15 units of work prior to taking office.

Brownfield stated that his Election Committee will meet this week to determine the space limitation for campaign posters, placards, and additional rules which will govern the Spring elections.

Special Program Due On TV Series

Now in its twelfth week and with three shows remaining, the college's educational television series is drawing to a close, according to Henry Leff, producer of the series.

Next week's program, Leff advised, features Mildred Barnard, counsellor here, who, with the program's regular instructor Phyllis Haley, will discuss "Testing and Therapy in Personality."

He announced that those viewers who are enrolled for credit should receive their final examinations on about the same day that the final program is seen.

Thirteen Candidates Try Out Monday For Commencement Speech Honor; 'Our College Community' Is Theme

Preparing the necessary arrangements for the forthcoming 18th annual commencement exercises, Dean Edwin C. Browne, chairman of the Commencement Committee, stated that tryouts for principal speaking roles will be held Monday, May 11.

With the theme, "CCSF, Our Community College," tryouts will be conducted by the commencement speech committee. Members of the committee are William Culver, chairman; Dean Louis G. Batmale, Thomas H. Dutcher, John M. Selig, and John O. French.

On the basis of their contributions to the college, thirteen students have been selected by the committee to tryout as commencement speakers.

Representing the Letters and Science division are Helene Shields, Irma McLaughlin, and Douglas Smith. From the Hotel and Restaurant division are Georgia Boyce and Bob Schlewitz. The Business department will choose from Winifred Walker, Louise Gerber, John Madden, Robert Jung, and Patricia Simmons.

Competing from the Science and English divisions are Beatrice Lundgren and Arthur P. Bray. Representing the Photography and Journalism departments will be Kenneth Motlino who will tryout uncontested.

The primary basis for judging each participant will be clearness of expression, originality, and vocal strength, Culver said.

Inductees Receive Credit After May 8

Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare, announced yesterday that students who are drafted into the military service after May 8, can receive a full semester credit for the work undertaken.

Marsh added that the grade will be determined on the work for the first and second mid-term periods, and students who are inducted should consult their counsellors and file for a military leave of absence.

Grade Transcripts Must Be Applied For At Registrar's

Transferring or graduating students who wish to have a transcript of their City College records sent to another institution must fill out a Request For Transcript of Record application at the registrar's office in Building 3, sometime before they leave the college, according to Mary Jane Learnard, registrar here.

Miss Learnard said that after the request application is turned in, a photostat copy of the student's record is made and sent to the institution of his choice.

If an application is made out before the end of the semester, not only are the student's preceding semester's final grades sent, but also a work-in-progress report concerning the applicant's present semester work up to point of his applying for the transcript, Miss Learnard added.

The registrar declared that final grades for the transferee's or graduate's last semester at the college are not sent automatically but only upon request of the student at her office.

Students should apply for the mailing of these final grades during the week of finals of their last semester here at City College, Miss Learnard concluded.

Fire Tower To Be Complete In 1954

Construction of a new fire department training tower will not alter the City College fire college training program, Michael Lo Presti, fire college co-ordinator, announced last week.

Plans for the new training tower at Folsom and Nineteenth Streets have been approved by the San Francisco Fire Department, and construction should start within the next few months, Lo Presti commented.

According to Lo Presti, the new tower, which is expected to be completed some time in the spring of 1954, will be equipped with modern facilities for testing such things as equipment and methods of fire fighting. It will also have class rooms, a photo lab, and a library.

Lo Presti pointed out that the integrated fire training program involving City College and the Fire College will remain unchanged.

Debate Society Ties UC, Wins Merit Awards

Phi Rho Pi, campus debating society, tied for first place and a sweepstakes award in lower division competition with the University of California at the Stanford Spring Roundtable Discussion held April 25, Thomas Dutcher, adviser of the group, announced last week.

The topic under discussion was How Can We Best Combat Communism?

The sweepstakes award is not based on the ability of any one person, but on the high level of performance of all representatives.

Reflecting this high level of performance, five City College students were awarded Certificates of Merit. George Effenberger, Julie Hagan, Noel Marsh, Pat Miller, and John Walker were the recipients of the awards.

"I am especially pleased with the performance of the group," Dutcher stated, "particularly considering the stiff competition from all of the colleges in the Bay Area." He commended the students on the amount of time spent in research and preparatory discussion before the event.

Dutcher outlined the method by which the judging was handled. Each student was assigned to a panel consisting of no more than six persons. There were six panels.

Draft Deferment Test To Be Given Here On May 21

Another College Qualification Test, a test designed to determine possible draft deferment, will be conducted here at the college, Thursday, May 21, Dr. F. Grant Marsh announced yesterday.

A recent memorandum received from the Selective Service Examining Center, stated that students unable to attend one of the regular examinations conducted in December, and last month, are eligible to participate if their reason for missing the test was due to illness, or other emergency. The memorandum went on to state that this is the last qualification test for this academic year.

Students desiring to take the test should file their application card, which is received from the student's local draft board, by next Monday, May 11, or earlier, according to the memorandum, to insure that a test will be on hand the day of the examination.

The memorandum stressed that students should enter the "May 21" date in place of "April 23" before making application to the Examination Center.

Flower Exhibits Win 7 Awards

The City College Floriculture department was awarded two departmental and five individual prizes last Thursday evening in the premiere showing at the 21st annual Oakland Spring Garden Show.

The department entry of Coleus, a special foliage, was awarded first prize while a Sebizanthus display better known as the "poor man's orchid" was the recipient of a runner-up prize.

Individual display awards went to Henry Thurlow for his flower boat arrangement; to Walter Splitt, a second place for a quartz arrangement and a second prize for a flower boat arrangement; to Mildred Moncrief two prizes, a first prize for a quartz arrangement and a second for a colonial arrangement; Christine Hansen also won a first prize for an arrangement consisting of quartz and orchids.

The college Flower Shop has two of its flower boat arrangements on display. The show will run until this Friday.

Club Cavalcade:

By Shirley Murphy

The tempo of the activities of the campus organizations has slowed down this week because of midterms now in progress, and most of the club news is in the past tense.

Hotel-Restaurant Division Hosts California Group

Luncheon May 18 Is Annual Spring Affair

The college's Hotel and Restaurant Division will entertain the California Northern Hotel Association at the 14th annual spring luncheon next Monday, May 18, in the cafeteria, according to Wendell Muntz, division acting director.

An estimated 150 persons, including hotel operators and managers, are expected to attend, and members of the Board of Education have also been invited, Muntz said.

An outstanding feature of the luncheon will be 14 ice carvings, each containing 10 surprise desserts, made by the students.

The luncheon, which will be buffet style with many types of salads and a hot dish of roast sirloin of beef, will also be prepared and served by the students of the division.

This event provides the opportunity for prospective employers to see productive efforts of the students and at the same time gives the students a chance to display their work, Muntz said.

A program has been arranged which will include a skit, Watch Your Weight, with M. H. Friederichsen, Julian Amador, Tarcetin Canop, Warren Burt, Gordon Frydlie, and Albert Boeing.

The following is a list of personnel assignments for the luncheon as released by Muntz:

Presentation of the parade trophies will immediately be followed by opening of the Mardi Gras proper, according to information from the AMS President and Vice-President, Ed Hjerpe and Dave Raphael.

Friday Deadline For Scholarship Applications

Applications for eight scholarships will be due this Friday, May 15, Dean Edwin C. Browne announced today.

Scholarships available for this semester include two Dr. A. J. Cloud awards of $50 each for one man and one woman; two class of 1952 scholarships of $50 each; one Faculty Wives scholarship of $25 for a woman graduating this semester who intends to continue her education at a four-year college; one McKiernan scholarship and one Chinese Club scholarship of $25.

The class of 1952 fund amounted to $91, and the Student Council last Thursday appropriated $9 from the undistributed fund to make the sum $100.

Students interested in applying for one of these scholarships should file a written application with the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women not later than the specified date, Dean Browne warned.

Navajo Film Featured During College Hour

In this week's college hour film series, the Santa Fe Film Bureau offers El Navajo, a 45 minute full color film, Emmett Smith, of the audio visual aids department, announced recently.

Because of a shortage of operators, the film will be shown only at 10:40 a.m. and 11:20 periods, Smith said.

El Navajo will present a study of the life of the Navajo Indians in New Mexico and Arizona.

Some tribal ceremonies are included in the film, Smith indicated.

KNBC To Broadcast "Women" Debate

The subject, Natural Superiority of Women, will be debated by John Walker of City College, and broadcast over KNBC on Saturday, May 23, at 1:30 p.m., according to Thomas Dutcher, debate coach.

A student from San Jose State College will take the negative side with Walker, and San Francisco State College and Stanford University, represented by women, will argue the affirmative.

Dolores Musconi Fills Vacant Frosh Council Office

Student Council, by means of secret ballot, unanimously elected Dolores Musconi to the vacant Freshman Council post at last Thursday's meeting. She was sworn into office by Associated Student President Norm Heise.

Initial petitions to run for the seven top positions open this semester in student government, and the 14 council posts, must be filed before noon, May 19, election chairman Jim Brownfield stated. Final petitions for candidacy must be filed before noon, May 22, he added.

Convention dates for the IFC and USA, two contending political parties existing on campus, have been set according to Al Lithgow and Wray Jacobs. Lithgow, president of the IFC, announced that the IFC Convention will be held Thursday, May 21, and Jacobs, president of the United Students, said that the USA Convention has also been set for Thursday, May 21.

Council amended several election rules proposed by Brownfield at last week's sessions. Drawing most attention was the new provision in the election rules concerning the mailing of the sample ballots. After an hour of discussion, council passed an amendment stating that with the sample ballot, one sheet of party platform information will be included.

The sheet will be divided into three equal parts for use by the Inter-Fraternity Council, United Students Association, and the Independents seeking office.

In the event that Independents may have different platforms, council ruled that one-third of the Independent's allocated space is to be divided among the candidates, rather than to one person running for office as an Independent.

Brownfield's nine member election committee includes Diane Bates, Patty Simmons, Don Douglas, Jacobs, Jim Bouick, Ed Hjerpe, Charles Osborne, and John Walker.

Legal Parking Stressed By Campus Police Force

423 Citations Awarded In West Campus Parking This Semester

If students endeavored to park their cars legally, the campus policemen would be relieved of much unnecessary trouble. This viewpoint was expressed last week by Chief of Campus Police, Bob Lewis.

Up to date some 423 traffic citations run the gamut from parking on the west campus, Lewis said and, of these 423 citations, 409 were for parking violations. The parking citations run the gauntlet from parking on roadwalks, parking on pedestrians crosswalks, parking by fire hydrants, to parking without permits, Lewis commented.

The few remaining citations were for illegal mufflers, speeding, violation of pedestrian right of way, and failure to obey the officer on duty, according to the police chief.

Approximately three times an hour campus police check the parking vicinity for illegally parked cars. No exceptions are made for any violators. They also keep their eyes open for such things as thieves, and fires, stated Lewis.

Clean Up For Mardi Gras Set For Saturday

Clean up of the Mardi Gras booths is scheduled to start at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 16, under the supervision of Ed Hjerpe, Dave Raphael, and Joe Drabkin, Associated Men Student officers.

Each club is responsible for removal of its booth decorations, but the Associated Men Students will provide a truck for the disposal of scrap lumber. Each club, however, must load its scrap lumber into the truck, and failure to participate in the clean-up will result in the forfeit of the five dollar deposit and loss of points toward the Club Participation Trophy, AMS Vice-President Raphael warned.

Raphael also pointed out that points for the Participation Trophy will be awarded on the basis of efficiency and speed with which the club cleans up the area.

AMS President Hjerpe commented that the clubs competing for the Trophy for Outstanding Club Participation would be judged by the AMS faculty advisers and officers of the AMS. He added that this trophy will be awarded at the AMS Committee meeting Tuesday, May 19, in Building 2 at 2 p.m.

Band To Serenade Booth Builders

College hour this Friday, May 15, 10:40 a.m., will be devoted to last minute preparations for the Mardi Gras, Robin Dunn, student activities adviser, said this week.

At this time the campus organizations taking part in the Mardi Gras festivities will complete the construction of booths and floats, while the college dance band serenades the builders, Manager Bob Loesch said.

The schedule for the remaining college hours of the semester is as follows:

May 22, Scholarship award rally; May 29, election rally; June 5, club meetings; June 12, Sophomore-Faculty baseball game; and June 19, no college hour, final examinations.

Another New Souvenir At Ramporium Soon

Another item will be added shortly to the long list of souvenirs and personalized articles now available at the Associated Student bookstore.

Richard Main, Ramporium manager, announced last week that photographs of the college will be sent out shortly and from them postcards will be made up for sale here.

Main expects wide acceptance of the postcards, especially by foreign students.

He was unable to state definitely when they would be available.

The pictures, taken by members of the college photography department, will deplet a variety of the aspects of City College life, Main said.

Vive le Mardi Gras And The Participants' 'Genius'

By Dick Meister

"Vive le Mardi Gras!"

On Friday night May 15, the college will once more be the scene of the highlight of San Francisco's collegiate life, the annual City College Mardi Gras.

The French have a word for it, and so does the college. Mardi Gras, translated into "City College language," means the best time of a student's life here.

Yes, that season when the traditional spring festival at City College, the Mardi Gras, takes place, is here again with its gala parade, dance, and colorful booths and concessions. This is the time for "overworked" students to relax after a hard week of mid-term exams and to "show off" the college and its organizations' "genius", outside of the academic field to all of San Francisco.

The history of Mardi Gras here is a story of success after success. The first such festival was held on May 21, 1946 as a feature of the traditional Frosh dance of the Spring '46 semester. There was a dance in the women's gymnasium and booths representing many campus organizations were in the men's gymnasium.

The proceeds from the booths went into a general fund for improvement of the student lounge. Ray Hackett's band supplied the accompaniment for the celebrants' dancing feet and, although costumes weren't mandatory, awards were given for the best ones. A prize for the best booth was also awarded.

The first outdoor Mardi Gras was on May 27, 1949. Highlight of this celebration was a parade along Ocean Avenue led by "Horse Trader" Ed Shapiro of blasting radio commercial fame. Featured in the parade were bands and floats from all over California in addition to those representing City College organizations. There was outdoor dancing in the parking lot near Building 13 to the strains of Mardy Leavey's band.

This affair was sponsored by the Associated Men Students who gave a trophy to the most successful booth. The '49 festival was one of the most colorful in Mardi Gras history since costumes were required for all students attending the celebration.

The 1952 Festival was photographed by students in motion picture classes here, and the film was shown on San Francisco television station KPIX.

Last year the Mardi Gras was combined with the dedication of the circular track and City College Station of the "K" streetcar. The parade, led by Mayor Elmer E. Robinson, accompanied by Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools; Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, and the ever-present "Horse Trader" Ed, featured 18 floats built by Ocean Avenue merchants, co-sponsors of the event.

Twenty-four booths were operated by college organizations and included everything from comic photography to a white mouse race.

The college drama club presented skits in Building 2 and a dance in the auditorium sponsored by the college band association, at which the King and Queen of the Mardi Gras were crowned, climaxed the evening.

This year the Mardi Gras celebration, under the direction of Ed Hjerpe, AMS president, promises to be one of the best ever held, and a huge turnout is expected at this "celebration to end all celebrations" . . . the City College Mardi Gras.

"They say it in "way Paree," they say it at City College.

"Vive le Mardi Gras!"

Time To Consider Seriously Paying A Debt To The College

THE end of another semester is approaching rapidly and for many of the men and women here June 19 will mark the end of their academic association with City College. It is the fond hope of many, however, that graduation will not terminate the era of mutual benefit enjoyed by both the college and the student.

The possession of an Associate of Arts degree will be of great value to its winner for a life time. It is a passport to broader fields of endeavor and higher achievement. An AA degree is proof positive of a willing spirit and a capable mind.

For two years a college nurtures the minds of its students and sends them out into the business world with the College's recommendation in the form of a degree. Hence, it is evident that the college puts its trust in its graduates and gives them a preliminary boost up the ladder of success.

Any college can give any student who is willing and able an education and a degree. Los Angeles City College or Sacramento Junior College may serve to educate students just as well as City College of San Francisco. But, the graduates of these other institutes can never be as valuable to this College, as its own graduates.

"As the alumni of a college goes, so goes the college." This has been said before; it will be said again. Repetition makes it none the less true. Most recently the idea of the integral bond between the alumni and the college was stressed by Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president, and Dr. Archibald J. Cloud, president emeritus of this college at an alumni dinner.

Evident in every step of progress made at City College has been the work of the Alumni Association. Apparent in the background during any major activity on the campus is the ever helping hand of the alumni. The members of this group are the ones who are paying back a debt of appreciation to their Alma Mater.

Upon the occasion of the founding of City College a very wise man commented that it would take San Francisco at least five years to understand what a two year college is and what its functions are. That comment was made 18 years ago and San Francisco is still unsure of what type of an investment it has at City College. Those who can best aid the general public in understanding City College are the members of the alumni. Successful examples are the most efficient way of selling something; alumni members "sell" their Alma Mater to the public.

Much work along this line must be done before City College reaches the position of pre-eminence in the community that it deserves. This is a job that can only be accomplished by a sincere and active alumni that is constantly being stimulated by new life and ideas.

Now that graduation is approaching, the men and women who will be leaving should be giving serious thought to membership in the Alumni Association and payment of a debt to the college. Membership is a rewarding investment that merits consideration by all; besides being an active service group it is a fine social meeting ground for "old college friends."

The opportunity to do something worth while is too often offered only once and if not accepted never repeated. This will not be the last time you are urged to join this association, true, but this paper strongly recommends that you not wait to be invited a second time to join so worthy a group.

Lost Articles—Where To Find Them

By Shirley Murphy

In the dim recesses of Building 2 lies a small, dingy, unnumbered room which is securely bolted at all times. Within this room there is a metal cabinet which is also inaccessible to the general public.

This vault contains some of the most interesting inanimate objects on the campus. It is commonly referred to as the Lost and Found Department.

At the present time the Lost and Found Department resembles a combined Junior Rampornium and general store. Scarves and slide rules, pens and pencils, classes and gloves, tennis balls and textbooks are stored within this Pandora's box.

Articles are kept for one semester, after which they are turned over to some worthy civic organization.

Any item which is found wandering around without an owner nearly should be turned in to Room 5 in Building 2. Articles found in the Main Building may be turned over to the telephone operator.

"Pioneers" Are Mardi Gras Guards

"Poachers beware! Steer clear of west-campus on the night of May 14!"

This warning came last week from two campus stalwarts: Ed "Kit Carson" Hjerpe and Dave "Daniel Boone" Raphael who, upon that date, will give up the warmth and comfort of their beds to sleep as did the pioneers of old, under the stars.

Huddled in sleeping bags, with one eye closed and the other on the object of their vigil, they represent vigilantes of something dear to the hearts of all students, but especially to campus club members.

These two brave men will be guarding with their "very lives," the Mardi Gras booths built during the afternoon of May 14.

To them will go a vote of thanks from all concerned when; the next day, the sun shines (it is hoped) on the bright structures.

Editor, The Guardsman:

Like a paternal adviser, to many of us foreign students, Mr. McCloud, City College foreign students counsellor, gives a lot of individual attention to us with a smiling face in his well-decorated office with pictures from all parts of the world.

One feels much at home when he interviews with him in the presence of such an exotic atmosphere.

He is considerate, understanding and friendly when it comes to making students future program.

I, on behalf of my foreign friends, extend my gratitude and wish him success for the wonderful work he is doing.

Add Hebrew To Languages Now Given

Because of popular student demand, a new course in the City College language department, Near Eastern Languages 21A (Hebrew), will be offered in the Fall 1953 semester here, according to Michael M. Zarchin, instructor in the course. No pre-requisites are required and students receive three units of university parallel credit, Zarchin said recently.

Classes are at 12 o'clock on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at a place to be announced later, Zarchin declared.

He asked that any students interested in studying the Hebrew Language see him in Building 4, Room M, before the end of the present semester. His office hours are at 9 a.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Hotel And Restaurant Director, In Japan, Says It's Small World

"It's a small world," has become more than just a quotation to Hilda Watson, well-known educator and leader in the hotel and restaurant field.

Mrs. Watson, currently on leave from her post as chairman of the hotel and restaurant department of the college, has been touring Japan.

"Thanks to our hotel fraternity, I find one feels at home in any land," she said in a recent letter.

Having left San Francisco on March 2 aboard the liner President Wilson, she was met outside the Yokohama harbor even before the ship had docked. Ichiro Inumaru, son of T. Inumaru of the Imperial Hotel, and a graduate of the City College Hotel and Restaurant Department, boarded a launch to give Mrs. Watson a surprise welcome.

No sooner had she settled herself as a guest of the Imperial Hotel was she called to the phone—Don Dougal calling, and a later call from Don Corliss. Both men are former students of Mrs. Watson, now with the army in Japan.

If Mrs. Watson had plans for getting a long deserved rest when she embarked on her voyage, she probably knows better by now. Her Japanese hosts have outdone one another in making her trip action-packed. Her tour included a ten day jaunt to Kyoto, Nara, Osaka, Shima, and Nagoya, where she had a chance to see some of the mainland which has not been ravaged by the bombings of World War II.

At the close of her visit to Japan, Mrs. Watson will travel by air to Hong Kong, Manila, Guam, and Honolulu, and then back to the United States.

Inside City College With Mohi ud Dean

College Organization, Government Resemble Those Of Miniature State

(Editor's Note: This is the tenth in a series of articles by Mohi ud Dean, student in journalism here. Dean, an East Indian by descent, a British subject by colonization, and a fun Islander by geography, like most foreign students, has had difficulties on adjustment to life in the U. S. In this series he will recount many of these problems in the hope that, in some small way, they will ease the burden of other newcomers to this country by making the American Citizen more understanding.)

From time to time I have been asked by my fellow-students what I think, feel and like about City College, but so far I have failed to make any arbitrary remark.

Compared to a miniature state this college is composed of students of different color, creed and clime, and of different strata of social life.

Within this "state" there are the faculty members who have such charming personalities and who are always ready to assist you with the best of their ability.

Just to be in here is not sufficient for the nature of this state is different, because to turn out good citizens, the members are taught and trained responsibilities through its student government.

This government is the "moral" circle from whose focal point radiates directly or indirectly the welfare of all the students, irrespective of their being one of its "citizens."

One should be very much concerned with his ruling body and since we have one here it is interesting to note that those who want to belong are under no obligation or compulsion, indicating what a fine government it is.

Strange as it seems, only about a third of the "state's" populace belong to the government and out of this a third exercise their right for the election of officers.

As I see, this indicates considerable weakness on the part of the students because of some unknown reasons they hesitate to join the student government which is supposed to offer so much for so little.

In addition to such invaluable benefits this college has an elaborate counselling center, whereby a student can adjust his vocational program thus he can obtain trainings suited best for his abilities.

Above all the employment office provides jobs, if there are any, to those who want to work and learn at the same time.

It is amazing, how much City College has to offer to the students not in its technical side but also in personality and social developments of the students.

Master Has His Day

Hanging about the campus in various rooms and buildings are examples of art work done by students here—many of them in the classes of W. J. Eckert, art instructor. The "master," too, must have his day.

Eckert, himself, is currently being honored by a display of his work at the Press and Union League Club of San Francisco.

Consisting of water colors and oil paintings, the exhibit may be seen through May 29.

City College Nine Closes Season In Cellar

Sacramento Panthers Lower Boom On Rams Twice, 9-7, 5-3; Rudy Buffin Leads Big Seven Hitters With .448

A double header against the lowly Stockton Mustangs in the valley town last Saturday lowered the curtain on Big Seven Conference play for City College's baseball squad.

The Ram nine, coached by Bill Fischer, finished out its league schedule in a seventh place standing. The local horsehiders had little opposition in their last rung bid and consequently wrote finis to just about the weakest team ever fielded by Skipper Fischer.

Sacramento's Panthers used the local club as a stepping stone in reaching a first place tie with Santa Rosa on May 2 when they swept both ends of a twin bill, 9-7 and 5-3, on the Big Rec diamond. This pair of setbacks was City College's eighth and ninth in league competition as compared with a single win.

Paul Christen opened on the hill for the Panthers in the opening game and was touched for six runs during his four inning appearance. Tim Hall relieved Christen and buried the renaming distance, allowing one score.

Ram pitcher Bob Word was lambasted for all nine runs on 14 hits. Jim Kinberger replaced him and made the last two put outs.

Fischer's stalwarts erupted for four tallies in the fourth frame. Lead-off batter Rudy Buffin, presently leading the league with a .448 average, walked to start the uprising and was advanced on Dito's single. Free passes were then issued to Dick Cornfield, Word, and Ron Lawrence. Lewis Flores lined to left field for the first out, but the rally was kept alive with two more walks to Sherwood Slat and Jerry Stack. Strike-outs by Fred Nyser and Buffin concluded the inning.

Sacramento's biggest scoring burst came in the fifth when the Panthers turned four hits and a walk into three runs.

Dito paced the Ram sluggers with two base-knocks in five attempts. Roy Coons batted two for three and scored three times to lead the Panther attack.

J. C. Masters threw a two-hitter at the Rams in the seven inning night cap to gain credit for the 5-3 triumph.

City College pitcher Flores went all the way and surrendered the five scores via six hits and five walks.

The Fischer-men tallied once in the third, fourth, and sixth cantos. In the third, Lawrence's base hit scored Don Tawse who had opened the frame with a walk. Two free passes in the fourth resulted in another run when Dito's infield bounder was mishandled by the lead baseman. Stack opened the sixth with a single and tallied on Buffin's double.

The capital city nine scored two runs in each of the first and second heats and another marker in the sixth.

Lawrence collected two for three and John Capachi banged two for four to cop Ram and Panther hitting honors.

League standings as of May 6:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
San Mateo	4	0	1.000
San Francisco	3	1	.750
Sacramento	2	2	.500
Stockton	1	3	.250
West Contra Costa	1	3	.250
Modesto	0	4	.000

(Note: Santa Rosa does not compete in golf.)

Hillsman Linkers Face San Mateo In Pennant Clash

By Tony Campilongo

City College's hard hitting golfers come up against the San Mateo Bulldogs in a return match tomorrow that will determine the Rams chances for a conference championship. This will be the third meeting between the two teams. Of the two previous contests, both were copped by the Peninsula quintet.

The Rams must win to tie the Bulldogs in conference standings and necessitate a playoff game, that would take place shortly afterward.

According to Coach Ralph Hillsman, City College could make the third time the charm with the added advantage of playing on their home field, Harding Park.

The Rams faced West Contra Costa last Friday in another all-important meeting. The outcome, which, through difficulties beyond control, is not published in this issue, will be the stepping stone for the City College and San Mateo title-decider.

On the fairways last week, the Rams won an impressive victory over a scrappy but out-manned crew from Modesto 14 to 1. Gene George copped medal honors with a red hot 77 besides taking his match 3 to 0. Lou Saltzo and Charlie Low also came through both registering shut out triumphs while Art Pira and Tony Lazzeri, Jr., fought their way to 2½ and ½ point victories.

Hillsman stated that the third, fourth, and fifth members on the team rank so close together perhaps a playoff will have to come about among the trio to determine who will accompany George and Saltzo to the state finals which is to be held at Monterey on May 18 and 19.

Profs Hold Whip Hand In Classic; Grade Threat May Lessen Soph Power

By Don MacDougall

With rumored hints of possible "murder," the annual Soph-Prof baseball clash will, if practice injuries cease, explode Friday, June 12, on the practice football field during a scheduled college hour.

Capping the series annual with five wins against three losses, the powerful Profs have bettered almost every Sophomore attempt in standing competition by out-playing, out-smarting, and out-cheating all supposed opposition, so states one based observer who obviously needs a few good grades quick.

Hoping to display a formidable showing against the so-called "Ageless Apes," the Sophomore contingent will resort to underhanded efforts if the occasion calls for it. In the not so far past, the Profs have, despite overwhelming odds, played the game fairly cleanly.

This year however, the Sophs have a few secret weapons. According to some unscrupulous spy, mention of the many horrible apparitions is entirely out of the question in respect to editorial policy.

Since the inception of the annual Soph-Prof skirmishes which began in 1943, brains has successively bested young brawn in the record book without, quote, "much effort."

Chief mentor and adviser to all his mental giants, Dean Jack "Mo" Brady, is assuring all, that this year's contest will be a spectacle to behold. Spectators will seemingly gaze with awe as the Profs will boast, if weather conditions permit, that bare middle-age spread without the added help of shirts, so goes the rumor.

Hampered by inconsistent practice schedules, the younger and highly underdogged Sophomores are still plugging along. Although it seems that they have acquired quite a knack for cutting classes, it still remains to be seen what kind of grades they will pull if they let the Profs win.

Some observers say that none will be spared, win or lose, but the hot news from that constantly growing grapevine is that side bets are being taken in hope of winning A's and B's.

Holding all the intrigue of a suspenseful mystery story, the tilt will definitely be termed one of the highlights of the socially active semester. Anticipating that some 2,000 or more ardent spectators to turn out for the game, the Rally Committee has ordered special seating facilities for all.

Officials for the contest are, as a precautionary measure, being held in secrecy until game time to avoid any undue danger to life or limb.

Rams Enter California Relays Saturday

Parish Wins 100 In 9.8 At Fresno Relays

City College's Van Parish scored his most sensational victory of his unbeaten season in the junior college section of the West Coast Relays at Fresno last Saturday. Parish blazed the 100 yard dash in 9.8 on the lightning-fast track as he inched out Chuck Swinden of Santa Ana, who earlier in the day flashed a 9.7 trial heat time. Even more amazing was the fact that Parish had not broken 10 seconds that all season. The Ram mile relay foursome of Bill Rumford, Charley Smock, Les Andersen, and Al Carlson took a fifth place. The two mile relay quartet nabbed a fourth place. San Francisco tallied eleven points for a tenth place in the scoring. Los Angeles City College copped team honors with 29 6/7 points.

Signups Boom For Intra Ping Pong, Tennis, Badminton

With the bi-annual City College Boxing Tournament to be held Wednesday evening, May 27, in the men's gymnasium, only a couple of weeks away, the intramural league is in the process of completing play in ping pong, tennis, and badminton.

The ping pong tourney, which is in its semi-final stages, finds Moasser Farrokh, Warren Baxter, Manouch Bardjesteh, and Spenser Due fighting it out for top honors.

"The turn out for the tennis tournament has been wonderful," Coach Ralph Hillsman stated. "We have had 69 singles entries and 30 doubles teams vying for honors," he added. The tennis turn out has been so large six different hours of play are conducted in order to accommodate the players.

The third sport, badminton, has attracted 28 players for singles play.

Hillsman also stated that the anticipated softball league did not pan out as well as expected with only two teams signed up. He added that play would be doubtful.

Awards for winners in the various sports are gold belt buckles and silver medals for runner-up positions.

Mardi Gras, Awards On Block SF Slate

A pair of outstanding events head the May social calendar of the Block SF Society, President Walter Rillet announced recently.

First and foremost on the society's agenda, he said, is active participation in the May 15 Mardi Gras. Early plans indicate that the Block SF'ers will enter a float in the colorful parade and also set up a basketball-throwing booth.

Secondly, the organization's Spring semester program will be climaxed with the annual awards banquet. Rillet added A positive date for this affair has not been determined, although it is expected to be held late in May or early in June.

At the dinner, the president pointed out, blocks are presented to qualifying athletes and "we hope to have as honored guest and speaker a noted Bay Area mentor."

Thinclads Amass Fifteen Awards In Big Seven Conference Meet

Entering their second consecutive week of post season activity, the City College track and fielders prepare to vie for top two-year college laurels Saturday at Modesto in the annual California Relays.

This track classic is open to all high school, two-year college, university, and club cinderpath performers. Dotting the scene and adding to fan interest will be crack Olympic games luminaries.

Heavy favorites in the junior college division are the Southern California entries, perennial track kingpins. Awards will be presented to the first six place finishers in each event. Lone exception is the relay, in which case the first three teams receive trophies.

The race trials and field finals will open the gala affair at 1 p.m.

Ram track mentor Roy Burkhead plans to enter the nine City College cindermen who performed so brilliantly in the Big Seven championships.

Incidentally, Burkhead's thinclads amassed 13 medals and two trophies in the Sacramento conference meet. Included were seven first place medals, three seconds, and three fourths. The twin trophies were for the winning mile relay quartet and the outstanding individual athlete.

In the Modesto affair, Vandolph Parish will match his skills in the 100, 220, and 220-yard low hurdles with a star-studded field. His best chance for a win seems to be in the lows where his best time is 24.8, a conference record tying achievement.

In the half-mile, Al Carlson's 1:59.4 should make him a dark horse possibility. An all-out effort could result in an upset victory.

Rated a strong outside chance for a probable triumph is the Ram mile relay, foursome of Bill Rumford, Cholly Smock, Les Andersen, and Carlson. Their top clocking is 3:25.7.

Bobby Cross, a small competitor with a big heart, is entered in his eight lap specialty, the two mile. His all-time best in this tough grind is 10:43, accomplished in the league show-down.

Roy Hutzler hit an early-season 12' 6" in the pole vault, but has since failed to duplicate the feat. Saturday's competition should spur him on to a personal best.

RAMBLINGS

By Fred Fukuchi

"IT'S the big ones that count."

That ancient line seems to be something that City College's marvelous track mentor Roy Burkhead thrives upon.

With that thought in mind, Burkhead sent nine men to the Big Seven Conference Track and Field Championships at Sacramento two weeks ago, and electrified five other conference clubs by bounding into second place in the final standings.

Still more gratifying was the fact that all nine men that Burkhead entered in the annual loop gigantic grabbed a place.

During the practice season the Rams were forced to play dogmat to the rest of the league clubs because of their perennial lack of depth, but in the "big one" where it's the first and seconds that decide the winner, the Rams did it as they took second place behind the "USC of the Big Seven Conference," the Modesto Pirates.

This Saturday Coach Burkhead will send his charges to the famed California Relays at Modesto where they will be meeting some of the top two-year colleges in the state. One of the strongest teams entered will be the City College mile relay quartet consisting of Bill Rumford, Cholly Smock, Les Anderson, and Al Carlson which turned in an excellent 3:25.7 clocking in the conference meet.

The high point man of the Big Seven meet, Van Parish will be one of the numerous talented runners who will be competing in individual events. Parish, who will probably run the 100 and low hurdles, will have to be at his best to defeat Modesto's Rodney Marramonte if the Pirate has recovered from his injury which he sustained in the conference trials. Marramonte has a best of 9.8 in the century, 21.8 in the 220 yard dash, and 24.3 in the 220 yard low hurdles. Marramonte, however, has not been consistent at these times and an off day plus his injury will hurt Modesto chances considerably.

The forthcoming state meet at Visalia on May 22 and 23 looks like it will be the greatest in history—on paper. Performances, which have leaked out of Southern California, Central California, and even our own Big Seven, indicate that unbelievable marks may be set. Marks such as 52 feet plus in the shot by Santa Monica's Mason Benner, six feet seven and a half high jump by Floyd Jetzer of East Los Angeles, and a 13 feet 7½ pole vault are in the offing for the meet, according to best performances this year.

WAA Lists Three Play Days On Calendar

Three play days head the calendar of the Women's Athletic Association, Vivian Bernard, WAA adviser, announced last week.

Nine members of the WAA will participate in a softball playday this Saturday afternoon, May 16, at the College of the Holy Names in Oakland.

The WAA has also been invited to send nine members to a play day at George Washington High School, Monday, May 18, at 3:10 p.m.

Members of the WAA swimming team will participate in a swimming aquacade on Saturday, May 23, at Napa College. According to Miss Barnard, the local team has been asked to work up a water ballet for the festival which is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. and continue until noon or 1 p.m., at which time all participants present will be served a picnic lunch.

Cabinet Members

Twelve Positions Virtually Unknown To Majority Of Students

(Editor's Note: The following is the fourth in a series on Student Government at City College that will appear in The Guardsman. The series will deal with all aspects of the governing system and the elective offices. This week a further analysis of Cabinet offices.)

Because they do not deal directly with specific student activities, 12 positions in the President Cabinet are virtually unknown to the great majority of the students at City College.

The fact that these officers do not represent individual campus groups as such does not mean that they deal with unimportant affairs. On the contrary, much of the important Associated Student business is handled by such cabinet members and their committees.

In almost complete charge of the regulations and preparations involved with campus elections is the Election Commissioner. Appointed by the President of the Associated Students, the Election Commissioner must approve all campaign literature, review all petitions for elective officers and report on them to the Student Council. To help the Election Commissioner maintain an impartial basis for elections, he himself is ineligible to run for elective office during his commissionership.

The most unsung member of the cabinet is the corresponding secretary who must handle all written communications of the Associated Students. This office is appointive.

The Information Service chairman, an almost unheard of post about the campus, is this college's chief representative to other California two-year colleges. Appointed by the President, he is an officer of the California Junior College Student Government Conference and is responsible for the collection and dissemination of information from the member colleges of the conference.

Faced with the chairmanship of one of the most difficult committees to organize and keep rolling is the student card sales chairman. Not only must this cabinet member represent the card sales group on the cabinet and to the council and make periodic report on sales progress, he must also see to the supervision of salesmen on this unwieldly committee.

The Parliamentarian, appointed by the President, is faced with the enforcement of Roberts' Rules of Order during council and Club Activities Board meetings.

All business that is of benefit to the Associated Students of City College must be communicated to the Alumni Association by the Alumni Liaison Officer. This is another appointive position.

Publicity that is posted on campus and released to the local news service is done through the Publicity Chairman and his committee. Appointed by the President from a list of eligible students submitted by the faculty adviser, this chairman prepares poster and publicity campaigns both on and off campus.

The difficult job of supervising and controlling the allocations and expenditures of Associated Student funds is delegated to the Finance Chairman and his committee. After completing a study of each budget submitted, the chairman must report his findings and recommendations to the Student Council.

All on-campus organizations elect a representative to CAB to review the constitutions of existing organizations, or newly formed organizations, once each semester. From these representatives is elected a chairman, whose job it is to preside at all meetings of the board and to present the board findings and recommendations to Student Council.

The Men's Athletic Commissioner is appointed by the President of the Associated Students, while the Women's Athletic Association elects its president who is then a cabinet officer.

The Publications Board is an integrating body for official and recognized campus publications. This board is presided over by a chairman who is Editor of The Guardsman. The editorship is selected by The Guardsman staff.

Soph Ball Petitions

King and Queen petitions for the Sophomore Ball, scheduled for Saturday, June 13, must be submitted to the Associated Student office by Friday, May 22, Sophomore Class President Don Moltini said last week.

Mobile X-Ray Units Due Here Monday

Globe, Anchor To Aid In TB Drive

Mobile units of the San Francisco Tuberculosis Association are scheduled to be stationed upon the campus starting Monday, May 18, through Friday, May 22, Dean Dunwell, case finding director of the Tuberculosis Association, announced last week.

Importance of the X-ray opportunity, Dunwell commented, is illustrated by the fact that five active cases of tuberculosis were found here by the association during the last check made some three years ago.

During the five days (from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.) the units will be operating on the campus, they will be located for four days on the east campus, two days at the women's gymnasium, two days at the men's gymnasium, and the final day the units will be situated in the west campus parking area. The locations were announced by Dean Edwin C. Browne.

Comprehensive Tuberculosis X-ray examinations will be given to students requesting them between the hours of 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Dunwell said.

Members of the Globe and Anchor Society are working with physical education instructors on the distribution of application blanks and instructions for the examination, Dean Browne stated.

Of special importance, Dunwell reiterated, is the fact that X-rays of this type are given the wholehearted approval by community leaders throughout the nation.

The examinations are being given at the specific request of President Louis G. Conlan with the complete assent of college physicians, Drs. Alice Porter and Thomas Jones. According to President Conlan the request was made as a protective measure for all students.

Weather, Midterms Curb Club News

The weather which San Francisco enjoyed last week plus midterms reduced club activities to a standstill, or so it would seem from the four short items turned in for Club Cavalcade. Because of lack of information, the column is missing this week.

Foreign Student Advisers Meet For Discussion

The National Association of Foreign Student Advisers met locally last week to discuss matters of vital concern to City College's 228 students from abroad, according to Walter McCloud, foreign student counsellor here who represented the college at the meeting.

The association members discussed the problems involved in foreign students' admission and transfer to American institutions, McCloud said.

City College's foreign students, who represent 38 countries, were warned by McCloud that if any of them are leaving the college they should come to his office for a letter releasing them from the college.

McCloud also stated that a foreign student who is planning to work this summer, rather than attend summer session, should get a letter from him which will grant the student permission to work.

"This is a must, since many employers will require such a letter before the student will be allowed to work," McCloud said.

According to new immigration laws, under the McCarren Act, a foreign student adviser is required to inform the United States Immigration and Naturalization Department should any of his charges either fail down in his regular classroom work, cut classes too frequently, take fewer than 12 units of work, or get a leave of absence from the college, McCloud declared.

A discussion of the problems pertaining to this new law was one of the keynotes of the association's convention, according to McCloud.

McCloud asked that all foreign students who have not yet taken the college entrance examination see him at his office in Building 3 as soon as possible if they intend to return to City College in the Fall semester.

Seven Individual Awards To Be Presented To Qualifying Grads

Shields And Molino In Tie For Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Cup

By Al Palacio

Seven established individual awards and a hitherto undetermined number of scholarship honors will be presented to the qualifying few of the 561 City College graduates at the Friday, June 19, commencement ceremonies on the Riordan Auditorium stage.

For the second consecutive year, two graduates are tied for the Alpha Gamma Sigma honor award, the Scholastic Cup, according to AGS Sponsor Don Jensen. The cup is presented to the graduating student who achieves the highest scholastic standing while at college.

Auguste Helene Shields and Ken Molino, each with a potential 2.97 average, are the dead-locked pair. Mrs. Shields, an English major, plans to continue her education at the University of California. Molino is majoring in Photography-Journalism and is currently President of AGS as well as assistant managing editor of The Guardsman. After graduation, he plans to enter an occupational field in his major.

Duplicate awards will be made to each student if these averages are maintained, informed Jensen.

The fall, 1952, and spring, 1953, students tentatively listed for honors at the commencement ceremonies are as follows:

Fall (definite) — Audrey Bohm, 2.41; Anna Buoneristiani, 2.32; June Fairbanks, 2.55; Irma McLaughlin, 2.78; Luz Sanz, 2.32; Edward Spitzley, 2.32; Edward Von der Porten, 2.36; Herbert Wagner, 2.49, and Young Yee, 2.64.

Spring (indefinite)—Richard Adams, 2.69; Josephine Ammirati, 2.45; Georgia Boyce, 2.81; Samuel Boyce, 2.37; Arthur Phil Bray, 2.65; Chuck Gee, 2.67; Louise Gerber, 2.81; Milton Hom, 2.35; Bob Jung, 2.57; John Robert Lewis, 2.41; Beatrice Lundgren, 2.67; John Madden, 2.49; Mary Manion, 2.63; Lore Menders, 2.40; Hercules Morphopoulos, 2.60; Bette Orton, 2.48; Diane Perrine, 2.47; Robert Schlewitz, 2.81; Elsa Scott, 2.32; Douglas Smith, 2.34; and Winifred Walker, 2.85.

Further changes on this list may be necessitated on the basis of polling instructors as the semester draws to a close.

Paint Technology Instructor Francis Wilson announced last week that this year's Harlan and Nuodex Awards winners are Raymond Joseph Bissig and Arthur C. Adams. These two students maintained the best scholastic records in the day and night paint technology classes during the entire two-year course.

A five volume set of J. J. Mattiello's Protective and Decorative Coatings constitute each award. Bissig, a Fall graduate, is currently employed in the paint laboratory of the W. P. Fuller Company, and Adams is with the Sherwin-Williams Company.

The winners of the President's Award plaque, which is presented to the man and woman graduates who have performed the greatest service to the college, will be announced on commencement night.

The Wall Street Journal Award recipient has not been decided. The award, presented to the business major who achieves the highest scholastic standing and indicated potential promise in the field of finance and investment, includes a silver medal and a year's subscription to the Wall Street Journal. Henry Wong won the honor last year.

The winner of the Alice Eastwood Scholarship, which is awarded to the outstanding student or students who major in Floriculture, is also undecided. This award, honoring Alice Eastwood of the California Academy of Sciences, renowned botanist and horticulturist, provides to the recipient $100, donated by the San Francisco Garden Club. The 1952 honorees were Alvin Alivo and Kaz Kawaguchi.

Graduates elected to life membership in the college scholastic society—three out of four or four out of five semesters membership and a 2.3 or better grade point average, will be presented with the AGS certificate and pin.

Rounding out the awards list are the Associate in Arts Degrees which are presented to all graduates.

today is at the city hall station, at a saving of . . $14,000 a year . . ."

Neal, a 39 year old Scotch-Irishman, is credited with solving even knottier problems in the short time he has been in Vancouver. They include a blanket salary boost for city employees (who had not received pay raises to keep up with the rising cost of living); a reshuffling of a variety of 13 small and overlapping city departments into eight; and an increase in tax revenue by the application of a two per cent electrical use tax (which amounts to about 12 cents a month on the average householder's bill).

Associated Student President here in 1937, Neal is a personal friend of Dean Edwin C. Browne and Joe Amori, placement adviser.

Doubtless, his laudable job for Vancouver tags him as an efficient planner—a man with an eye to the future. So does a letter recently received by Browne. Said Neal, ". . . everything is coming along fine. . . . We are planning on a baby boy sometime in October."

In view of his reputation it is doubtful that Neal will lose face even if the stork arrives with a boneless baby girl come October.

Tuesday Tourney Set For Bowling Classes

Bowling classes here are starting a tournament which begins next Tuesday, and is expected to last about four weeks.

The tournament will be held at Swanson's Mission Bowl, 3140 Mission Street, on Tuesdays and Thursdays, Alex Schwarz, instructor here, said.

Each member will bowl sixteen games.

THESE AWARDS will be presented at commencement ceremonies which will be held Friday, June 19, on the Riordan Auditorium stage. Pictured above are 1. The President's Award Plaque; 2. The Wall Street Journal award; 3. The Alpha Gamma Sigma pin; 5. The Harlan award and the Nuodex awards; 6. The Associate in Arts degree; 7. The Alice Eastwood-Honor award; 8. The Scholastic Cup.

Political Party Conventions Top Election Agenda

Candidate Petition Deadline Friday

With final petitions to run for Associated Student government offices due this Friday noon, the two contending political parties on campus plan their Spring election conventions for this week according to Wray Jacobs, president of the United Students Association, and Al Lithgow, president of the Inter-Fraternity Council.

Nominations of candidates seeking office via the United Student Association ticket will begin at 2 p.m. today in the Student Lounge, Jacobs announced.

Lithgow stated that the Inter-Fraternity Council will meet tomorrow in the student lounge at 3:30 p.m., to nominate IFC candidates. He stressed that all fraternity and sorority members should be present at the meeting that will select the candidates that will represent the IFC in the coming election.

Meanwhile, connell, in keeping with the general election theme, heard Jacobs ask that a definite ruling be made concerning requirements for the on-campus status of political parties.

Jacobs urged that Club Activities Board recommendation be made mandatory before any political party be given official recommendation. Discussion followed Jacobs' comments, but no immediate action was taken.

Walt Winters, a member of the Campus Police Department, asked council to create a cabinet post which would be occupied by a member of the campus police, the member to be appointed by the Associated Student President.

Another shift in the budgeted funds was voted on by council. One motion presented was to transfer $71 from the swiming team's budget, and reallocate it to the tennis team. The transfer will enable the netmen to participate in the State Championship matches at Fullerton, May 21, 22, 23.

The Ram track team was also allocated an additional $15 for transportation purposes.

Today Is Students' Last Opportunity To Drop Courses

Last day for dropping courses or getting a leave of absence from the college this semester is today, according to Mary Jane Learnard, City College registrar.

Miss Learnard warned students contemplating withdrawing from the college or filing drop petitions that the registrar's office in Building 3 will accept them only until its closing time of 5 p.m. today.

"Many signatures are necessary on these papers, especially on the leaves of absences, and students should try to avoid the usual last minute rush for them which often confronts many," Miss Learnard declared.

Approximately two-thirds of the number of City College students expected to return to the college in the Fall have already received their pre-registration programming, Alva McMillan, college counsellor in charge of pre-registration, announced yesterday.

McMillan said that 1400 students have been programmed and approximately 150 others have made appointments for interviews with their counsellors. This leaves about 800 students at the college who haven't yet signed up for pre-registration interviews, according to McMillan.

Those students who haven't been into the counselling office in Building 3 to get their pre-registration appointments were once more urged by McMillan to apply as soon as possible since there are still appointments available at most hours with a majority of counsellors.

St. Francis Site Of ISC Dance Saturday Night

The Inter-Sorority Council completed plans last week for their annual dance to be held on Saturday, May 23, in the Italian Room and Borgia Room of the St. Francis Hotel.

"Starlight Silhouettes is the theme of the spring fete, Pat Simmons, ISC president, said.

Dancing will be from 9 to 12 p.m. with music by Bert Whiting and his orchestra.

Informal dress, suits for men and dresses for women, will be appropriate, Miss Simmons declared, and the bids for the dance, $2.50 per couple, can be purchased from members of the campus sororities. All students and their friends are invited, she added.

The members of the ISC this semester include Pat Guilliams, Theta Tau; Diane Slater, Phi Beta Rho; Gail Pighetti, Zeta Chi; Millie Pinkus, Alpha Lambda Chi; Miss Simmons, Kappa Phi; Nina Tureich, Delta Psi.

The council is composed of the presidents of the seven sororities, and they form the committee planning the dance.

Forum To Go On Sale At AS Book Store May 27

Forum, campus literary magazine, will go on sale here Wednesday, May 27, Dorothy Mercer, adviser, announced last week.

Copies of the magazine will be distributed free to members of the Associated Students, and upon presentation of a student card, they may pick up their copy in the Ramporium on May 27, 28, or 29, she said. The Ramporium is the only center for such distribution, Miss Mercer stated. Forum salesmen will have copies for sale only, she added.

Students without Associated Student cards may purchase copies from Forum salesmen for 50 cents, Miss Mercer declared.

The magazine is composed of 32 pages, and in reviewing the material, Miss Mercer noted that its most outstanding characteristic is humor. She said this edition contains more humor than any other in the history of the magazine. Four humorous episodes, four short stories and poetry comprise the rest of the publication.

"Commenting on the content of the contributions, she observed that one story and one episode deal with veterans returned from Korea.

The cover of the magazine was designed by Barney Wan, and although it is in an abstract vein, it is intelligible to the neophyte, Miss Mercer noted.

Flower Shop Sets Commencement Stage

Stage decorations for the June commencement will be provided by the Flower Shop, John Lawrence, instructor, announced today.

The Flower Shop, Lawrence said, has decorated the graduation stage since the department was founded seven years ago.

Lawrence said floral arrangements will probably include sprays of gladiolus.

Hotel Division Students To Hear Special Lectures

Fire College Offers Hazard Series

The Fire College here will give a series of five lectures beginning Wednesday, May 27, to students majoring in Hotel and Restaurant to familiarize them with the possible fire hazards in this field.

The high light of the lectures will deal with vapors and gases, storage of bedding, and the use and handling of fire extinguishers.

The final lecture will include an inspection tour of the Hotel and Restaurant Division to point out the possible fire hazards.

Each of the five lectures will be given by a different member of the Fire College staff. The lectures are scheduled for May 27 to 28 and June 3, 5, and 10, fire co-ordinator Michael Lo Presti said.

Commencement Speakers Named

Six Candidates Contending For Eastwood Award

Qualifying field for the Alice Eastwood Scholarship has been narrowed down to six candidates, Harry Nelson, floriculture instructor, announced last week.

The award consists of $100 presented annually to one outstanding floriculture major, but the 1953 contestants are so closely bunched that the San Francisco Garden Club, which provides the scholarship, decided to select two students. Main points reviewed by the committee in judging the honorees are satisfactory grades, interest in the subject, and the student's potentiality in the field.

The following are being considered for the award: Dorothy de Fries, Virginia Blackmore, Helen Cheatham, Henry Thurlow, John Chamberlain, and Sherwood Frischl.

The award honors Alice Eastwood of the California Academy of Sciences, noted botanist and horticulturist. This scholarship is among the largest offered students here.

Two winners were also selected last year. The pair were Alva Laivo, specialist in Ornamental Horticulture, and Kaz Kawaguchi.

Psychiatrist On AGS Speech Series Discusses Freud

Alpha Gamma Sigma's current series of evening lectures last night featured Dr. Rudolf von Urban, psychiatrist, who spoke on Freud's Basic Principles.

With the semester drawing to a close, Don Jensen, AGS adviser, was unable to state whether lectures would be heard before next Fall.

Scheduled for commencement week, he stated, is a dinner honoring this semester's AGS graduates. An attempt is being made to establish this as an annual affair, to which not only graduating students but also life members of AGS would be invited. He was unable to state how many life members would attend but 30 current graduates are eligible.

Jensen explained that he hopes to inaugurate a newsletter to life members which would be sent out semi-annually. By this means they would be advised of the dinner, other activities of the society, and of the progress of the college, as well.

Commenting on the society's participation in the recent Mardi Gras, Jensen expressed his thanks to members of the faculty who cooperated in the undertaking.

Petitions For Soph Royalty Due Friday

Petitions for Sophomore King and Queen candidates will be accepted through this Friday, Don Moltini, sophomore Class president, warned last week.

Petitions must be submitted to the Associated Student office in Building 2. Voting for the King and Queen will take place during Sophomore Week, June 8 through 12, Moltini said.

The King and Queen will be crowned at 12 midnight at the Sophomore Ball slated for Saturday, June 13, at the St. Francis Yacht Club.

Bray, Gerber, Molino And Simmons To Base Speeches On College Theme

Conlan To Confer Associate In Arts Degrees, Norm Heise Slated To Preside

After reviewing thirteen candidates, the Commencement Committee selected four graduates as student speakers for the Friday, June 19, commencement exercises, according to an announcement last week by Dean Edwin C. Browne.

Members of the commencement speech committee were William E. Culver, chairman, Louis G. Batmale, Thomas H. Dutcher, John M. Selig, and John O. French. They judged each speaker by clearness of expression, originality, and vocal strength.

The honored student quartet—hasing their oration on the theme, Our Community College, are Louise Gerber, Patricia Simmons, Kenneth Molino, and Arthur P. Bray. Each speaker represents his particular field of study here.

A graduate of Notre Dame des Victoires High School and an honor student, Miss Gerber is a business major, particularly interested in retail merchandising. She aspires to attend either San Jose State or San Francisco State College.

Miss Simmons, who graduated from Biggs Union High School in Butte County, previously attended LaVerne College. A letters and science major, she plans to enter the University of California.

An alumnus of St. Ignatius High School, Bray is majoring in engineering. He is also an honor student and prior to enrolling here attended the University of San Francisco for one semester.

Molino, Alpha Gamma Sigma president and assistant managing editor of The Guardsman, received his high school diploma from St. Peter's Photography-Journalism is his major.

Distinguished participants at the 18th annual ceremonies will be Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of public schools, and John Davison, president of the board of education.

Louis G. Conlan, college president, will confer the Associate in Arts degrees to the 561 graduates, with Norman Heise, Associated Student president, presiding, and Sally Galvin, AS vice-president, also listed as a speaker.

This year's list of graduates is longer than last year's. The largest noticeable drop of graduates occurred in 1951; with the innovation of the "C" average minimum requirement, when the list dwindled from 825 to 526. Numerically, 1949's 1100 degree-receiving assemblage is still tops.

Graduates not able to attend the Riordan Auditorium program may procure their degrees at the registrar's office in Building 3 after July 1. Degrees will be mailed to those who leave a request at her office, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard said.

Cap and gown rental fee for non-Student Association card holders is four dollars. AS members may secure them free of charge.

Each graduate is entitled to a maximum of five announcements which will be available after June 1 at the student bank in the main building.

Publication Board Meeting Set May 22

A publication board meeting is scheduled at 1 p.m. this Friday, May 22, in The Guardsman office, Building 4, Louanne Morford, chairman of the publication board, announced today.

"Purpose of this meeting," Miss Morford said, "is to find a reasonable solution to the problem of financing traveling expenses for sports' reporters." She pointed out that because of limited Associated Student funds, no traveling expenses were provided for first hand accounts of out-of-town athletic contests in which the college participated. Hence, the publication board chairman explained, actual game coverage was not possible.

Hoping that a suitable solution can be found, John Gaddy, head of the Dance Band Plans Jam Session For College Hour

Band novelties and a jam session by the college dance band will be included in the scholarship award rally scheduled for college hour, 10:40 a.m., this Friday, May 22, band manager Bob Loesch said this week.

The band will open the rally with a military number, Loesch said. Following the presentation of the eight scholarship awards, the stage will be given over to the band which will begin its jam session, inviting all students present to dance, Loesch explained.

The affair will be open to all members of the Associated Students. Loesch said that this will be the first time that a combined rally and dance have been attempted during a college hour.

Members of the dance band include Abe Battat, piano; Conchita Bandoc, sax; Henry Boyce, trumpet; Cleveland Dezler, baritone sax; Bob Hax, alto sax; Ara Kapriel, trombone; Richard Kucich, trombone; Bob Loesch, drums; Kent Lundgren; trumpet; John McKim, cornet; Bob Nordstrom; trumpet; Frank Orrells, guitar; Thomas Robinson, trumpet; Dave Sharkey, bass; William Sinclair, guitar; Zorrilda Lopez, clarinet; and Tom Belton.

The remining college hour schedule is as follows:

May 29, election rally; June 5, club meetings; June 12, Sophomore-Faculty baseball game; and June 19, no college hour, final examinations.

Presentation Of Awards Due Friday

Presentation of the college's scholarship awards will take place this Friday, May 22, during the college hour rally in the auditorium, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare, announced yesterday.

According to Marsh the scholarships to be conferred are as follows:

Two Dr. A. J. Cloud awards of $50 each for one man and one woman student, to be presented by Dr. Cloud, now college president emeritus.

The Cloud scholarships are from a fund set up by the college faculty to honor the college's first president when he retired in 1949. The scholarships are awarded annually.

Two Class of 1952 scholarships of $50 each, contributed by graduates last June; one McKiernan scholarship, and one Chinese Club scholarship of $25 each, which will be presented by President Louis G. Conlan at the rally.

One Faculty Wives Association scholarship, of $25 and for a woman graduating this semester who intends to continue her education at a four-year college, will be conferred by a representative of that organization.

X-Ray Units Here

During the two remaining days of X-ray examinations for City College students, the Mobile units will be at both the men and women's gymnasiums and on the west campus, Dean Dunwell, cast finding director of the S. F. Tuberculosis Association, announced yesterday.

Team Work-Unity And Progress Go Hand In Hand With Success

PERHAPS the hardest school of learning, experimentation, is usually the best; possibly other methods of learning are better on certain occasions. Either way, one thing is definitely correct, experimentation can be painful at times!

The possibility of painful results from too drastic experiments was made very evident to an irate Guardsman staff this semester. Earlier in the semester, when a tightly budgeted campus had no funds for travel expenses for sports coverage, The Guardsman was faced with a dilemma. Its budget was only for actual publication cost of a limiting 12 issues.

Guardsman sports coverage was reduced to a choice between ignoring game coverage or resorting to "heresay" information if such information were even available prior to press time. Therefore, no traveling expense funds were requested of an already overtaxed Associated Student budget, and so, logically, none were ever allocated.

Now, several months later, the experiment, nearly a complete failure, has taught The Guardsman the value of a traveling sports reporter. The unhappy situation, which was detected by the sports desk and the newspaper staff as a whole even before the college students noticed it, has caused much disgust and aggravation among staff members. (A newspaper person realizes fully when the paper is falling down in some aspect of news coverage, even before its readers.)

Rumors of discontent within our ranks and rumors of discontent from the student readers led to the first step toward incorporating new knowledge with past experiences for the benefit of the college and the paper. So a little over a week ago a Publications Board meeting was held and The Guardsman put before the board for study the results of one semester's sports coverage along with a recommendation for future consideration.

Before the meeting was adjourned, the original recommendation was expanded upon and positive steps toward a future policy more in congress with the needs of the physical education department, the Student Association and The Guardsman had been taken.

Cooperation was the keynote to the whole period of discussion, and if the same precept of working together continues, sports coverage, and as a result sports attendance, should pick up immeasurably during succeeding semesters. One more meeting must be held before any definite conclusions or understanding can be reached, but once it is over it is hoped that nine-tenths of the physical education department and The Guardsman problem can be solved.

In the past a variety of methods governing the allocations of funds for out of town sports coverage was tried. Among the methods attempted were athletic fund appropriations and publicity budget funds. These methods worked with varying degrees of success. All were more workable than the present system.

Possibly one of the methods previously employed will be selected as tentative sports coverage policy in the fall semester. Regardless of the method, it will be the means used to reach the end that will be important. Three divisions of student activities will have worked together in harmony for the benefit of the school as well as for themselves. Perhaps this is evidence of the coming of a new and more closely united City College.

The Big Three

Two And Assistant Guide, Record

(Editor's Note: The following is the final installment in a series on Student Government at City College that has been appearing in The Guardsman. The series has dealt with all aspects of the governing system and the elective offices. This week a brief commentary on the presidential and vice presidential obligations and responsibilities.)

Most impressive and exacting are the duties of the Associated Student President.

Required to have 45 units of work completed, the President is the presiding chairman of the Student Council and is the recipient of innumerable responsibilities.

The AS President is expected to support all campus functions and is named to more committees than any other student.

Out of town conferences, public relations matters all are by their very nature deserving of high level campus attention. What more logical representative of the entire campus is there than the head of the student government? Without too much exaggeration it may be said that the President is caught in a treacherous web, known as protocol, nearly as complex as that governing the diplomatic corps.

To the President come the many problems, large and small, which are always in evidence about a campus. He is expected to be a fountain of information, his time is supposed to be unlimited, his interests cosmopolitan, and his temper consistently even.

Fortunately for the President, and the college as a whole, he is assisted by a Vice-president, who if efficient and conscientious, can relieve much of the strain that would otherwise be placed upon the AS chief.

Listed simply as chairman of the Social Committee, a member of the President's Cabinet, and a voting member of the Student Council, the Vice-president doubles in brass as a hostess, a substitute for the President when he finds his "unlimited" time limited, a publicity agent, and chairman of an occasional special committee.

These two, assisted by the Secretary of the association, who must have completed 15 units of work, 15 less than are required for the Vice-president, direct and record the campus activities. They are faced with the prospect of overseeing all student group functions and seeing to the formulating of complete and formal records of the semester.

They are living examples of the well rounded student personality. A well balanced combination of scholastic and social achievement supplemented by a high degree of leadership ability.

They are the leaders of 33 other group leaders, with whom they work constantly on the direction and governing of the student body and more specifically the Associated Students.

Hard Work Has Led To Growth Of A Cappella Choir

Since its modest beginning 18 years ago, the A Cappella Choir here has grown to be an integral part of the college.

Under the direction of Flossita Badger, instructor, the choir now numbers 47 students, consisting of the usual sopranos, altos, tenors, and basses.

Probably the two outstanding events of the year for the group are its part in the commencement ceremonies and in the annual Christmas Concert. The latter was originally staged by the choir in December, 1935, and has since become a college-wide affair with all music groups participating.

In the forthcoming commencement exercises, an original composition by assistant choir manager Glenn Wescott will be performed. Titled "Drums Away," it is one of several written by this student.

Other appearances by the group during the year were sponsored by local Kiwanis, Lions, Rotary, and various women's clubs. In its past history the choir can boast of appearances at the World's Fair on Treasure Island, at the launching of a liberty ship during the war, and as the nucleus of major campus productions.

The present group recently appeared at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor during the regular Sunday afternoon recital there. The program consisted of several choir and organ selections.

In its 18 years of existence many awards have been earned by the choir. Among them was a citation from Mayor Elmer Robinson and the Bell-Brook TV Award.

A Cappella Choirs perform without accompaniment, and as a result, require much hard work and rehearsal. The local group meets twice a week for this purpose in the auditorium and, Miss Badger states, it is due to the hard work of each individual member that it has achieved the prominence it has.

Cite Opportunity In Paint Field

Many opportunities for employment in the paint industry, in research, development, production, technical sales, and management, are available to graduates of the paint technology department here, according to Francis Wilson, instructor.

In fact, he states, the demand far exceeds the number of students graduating.

The curriculum has been prepared in cooperation with a committee representing the paint, varnish and lacquer industry of the San Francisco Bay Area. Executives of that industry assist the college in developing instruction designed to prepare students for successful employment and also cooperate with the paint technology instructors in incorporating latest industrial processes and procedures into the curriculum.

Most graduates go into the laboratories of the paint industry, manufacturing of products, or into sales. Starting salaries range from $375 to $325 monthly, and increase according to the ability of the individual, Wilson said.

Although the course has been attended principally by men to date, he believes that women could also profit by it and that they would do as well as men, especially in laboratories.

There is only one other paint technology course on the west coast comparable to that here. It is given by the City College of Los Angeles. However, the course here preceded it by two years, having been inaugurated in the Fall of 1947.

Fiji Islander Compares U.S. Holidays With Those At Home

TWO very important national holidays are in the offing for this country and, with their coming it might be interesting to look at the festive days of another.

In the British Crown Colony of Fiji Islands, October 10th is set aside for "Cession Day," which is the direct opposite of America's July 4th, Independence Day.

Cession Day is celebrated in the memory of the Islands being handed over to the great white Queen Victoria in the year 1871 by the common consent of the Native Chiefs of the Islands.

On Cession Day, a large number of people, including pupils from different schools, gather in the park before the government building, not City Hall, to hear the message from His Excellency the Governor.

After the national Anthem, God Save Our Gracious Queen, hoisting of the Union Jack and with few minutes of solemn silence, the governor's message, in many pious words, could be heard over the loud speaker.

At the termination of the speech there are cheers, tigers, hippup hurrays, and then the crowd recedes in the park where different games of British flavor are performed.

Unlike 4th July fire-crackers which declare independence, Cession Day is observed with full of joy having an atmosphere of good colonial relationship with United Kingdom, but on November 5th, Guy Faukes Day, the picture is somewhat different.

According to English History a grotesque effigy of Guy Faukes paraded in an unsuccessful plot to blow up King James I, the lords and the commons, assembled in the Parliament on November 5, 1605, in revenge for the laws against Roman Catholics.

So this day is observed by fireworks in the night and like Halloween in U. S., children in monstrous dress ask for pennies and candies.

Empire Day which falls on May 24 is also observed in the Fijis. The great queen, Victoria, was born on this day, and since at one time the sun never set in the British Empire, her anniversary was observed throughout the Empire.

There are other royal Holidays, like Prince Charles' birthday, officially recognized and celebrated in the Islands.

The second world war VE Day is observed here with a somewhat unrealistic victorious atmosphere.

These are some of the holidays which are celebrated in the Fijis and added to these are the unofficially recognized Chinese and Indian Independence Day.

Gymnasium Always Spic And Span

Sports Enthusiast Proves Conscientious Gym Custodian

By Al Palaelo

There's a friendly fellow at City College who, for the past five years, has been chiefly responsible for the spic and span appearance of the men's gymnasium.

This rotund, personable gentleman has, over the years, come to be a familiar figure while handling the janitorial chores throughout the extensive men's gymnasium. Going about his many duties with diligence and dexterity, he too seldom receives the plaudits he so richly deserves.

During his intimate affiliation with athletics at the college, he has seen one championship football team perform and, to the best of his recollection, three title-winning basketball squads. Among the many brilliant local sports luminaries still vivid in his memory are grid All-American Ollie Matson, cage phenomenon Kevin Duggan, boxer Jerry Stern, and discus tosser Robert Cook.

Born and reared in San Francisco, he has always lived in the Mission District.

At the age of 19, he became interested in boxing and performed as an amateur for the Twin Peaks Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West. In 1928, fighting at 165 pounds, he won the NSGW middle-weight title at the Dreamland Arena, now known as Winterland.

At 32 he was drafted into the army and was assigned to the Escort Guard Company in Poston, Arizona. The specific duty of this outfit was to guard the United States Japanese evacuees. In six months, he was transferred to the Italian Prisoner of War camp in Florence, Arizona, where he served as an interpreter for 19 months.

Upon discharge from the army, he accepted a janitorial position at Grant Grammar School and subsequently took a similar post at Lincoln Elementary School.

In 1948, he was appointed custodian of the men's gymnasium at City College and has been here ever since. He has been attending radio and television class at the Heald Business College, after working hours, since 1930. With an eye to the future, he holds aspirations of eventually obtaining a job with a city radio maintenance firm.

To those who haven't already met him, and undoubtedly there aren't very many, the hero of this tale is the affable Walter P. "The Champ" Giacomini.

Galvin Has Busy Schedule

"Little, but oh my!" is an apt phrase to describe Sally Galvin, Associated Student Vice-president. This little blonde crowds more activities into one day than most students do into a week.

Her duties as Vice-president include chairmanship of the Clean-up Committee, Social Committee, acting as hostess for visitors, and attendance at all activities of the college.

Miss Galvin came here from Fremont High School in Oakland. She participated in student government there as Vice-president of the low senior class and as yell leader. Prior to becoming second-in-command in student government she also served as yell leader here.

Majoring in education, Miss Galvin's ambition is to teach.

Done With Mirrors?—Nope, With Twins!

Selig Wins Post In Poli Sci Group

John Selig, popular Political Science instructor at City College, was elected vice-president of the Northern California Political Science Association during its annual meeting at the University of California last month.

The association is composed of political science instructors from Northern California colleges who meet yearly to discuss problems pertaining to their field.

The group's meeting was on the first day of a two day schedule at Berkeley. In addition to elections there was a group discussion about the American Institutions courses in Northern California colleges.

Cellar-Dwelling Rams Lose To Stockton Despite Home Run

A fielder's choice which caught Ram Lewis Flores, who had previously walked, at second base provided the final put out which culminated the 1953 Big Seven Baseball Conference for the Stockton Mustangs and the City College Rams.

The local horsehiders closed out their 12-game league schedule May 9 on a typical note, losing another pair, 6-2 and 10-4. These twin losses kept their losing skein intact and also assured a one-won 11-lost record, leaving them as sole claimants of the seven team league basement.

Anyway, the season ended cheerfully for Ram rightfielder, Eddie Fernandez. He stepped up to the plate as the third batter of the second game to face Stockton hurler, John Denevi, in the sixth frame and blasted a home run, his first hit of the present campaign. This mighty blow gave him a one for four seasonal batting accomplishment of .250.

In the curtain raiser, Mustang pitcher Frank Clenk scattered six hits to receive credit for the win. Opposing hurler, Fred Nyser, allowed eight hingles, which Stockton bunched for their six tallies.

Chris Canton gathered two hits, one of them a homer, in three chances at bat to capture slugging honors for the Mustangs. Ram Rudy Baffin reached base safely twice in four plate appearances to top his mates in the hitting department.

The Mustangs pushed in on eight hits off starter Flores in the shortened nighteap to account for their ten scores. Winning pitcher was Bill Denevi.

Stockton first sacker Chuck Ruby, stroked three singles in a like number of opportunities while teammate Canton collected a pair of four-baggers in three times at bat. Baffin accounted for two safeties in four appearances, which upped his total day's output to four for eight, or .500.

Folk Dance Group Organizing Club, Meets Friday

Organization of a folk-dancing club here is expected by the end of the semester, with meetings held in college hours in the women's gymnasium.

A nucleus of 10 students, working with Laurine Bergin, chairman of the women's physical education department, has been meeting for instruction in standard folk dances since the beginning of the semester.

Students with some training in folk dances are invited to meet with the group, Mrs. Bergin said yesterday, to become proficient in such dances as the Bunbo, Varsouvienne, Dutch Foursome, and Cotton-tide Joe.

Major aim of the group, Mrs. Bergin added, is to become sufficiently familiar with these and other folk dances that form the basic repertoire of statewide folk dancing so that students are prepared to join in either city or state folk dance festivals.

The group is coeducational, and students without any folk dance training can still attend the regular folk dance classes, also coed, to become eligible for the special college hour sessions, Mrs. Bergin pointed out. The classes meet Tuesdays and Thursdays at 12 and 1 o'clock in the women's gymnasium.

Further interest here in dance was demonstrated recently when the college was host to approximately 150 students from local high schools at a Women's Athletic Association dance symposium. Georgianna George, Halprin-Lathrop studios, gave a master lesson in modern dance.

WAA Swimmers Enter Napa Aquacade May 23

The Women's Athletic Association is planning a picnic which will be held at Sigmund Stern Grove sometime near the end of this semester, Vivian Bernard, WAA adviser, announced last week.

Members of the WAA swimming team will participate in an aquacade this Saturday, May 23, at Napa College. According to Miss Barnard, the local team has been asked to prepare a water ballet for the festival which is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. and continue until noon or 1 p.m. After the festival, all participants present will be served a picnic lunch.

Intra Badminton Series Slated To Start This Week

Offsetting the coming bi-annual City College Boxing Tourney, the active intramural league is progressing rapidly to the end of tournament competition.

Maintaining positions as contenders for championship honors in the ping pong league semi-final bracket are Moasser Farrokh, Warren Baxter, Manouch Bardjesteh, and Spenser Jue. Bids for the consolation flight have not been listed as yet, but a probable tourney will be set up as soon as possible, according to league director, Ralph Hillsman.

Completing play in the present tennis tournaments, now engaging six different hours of participation, Coach Hillsman stated that "69 singles entries and 30 doubles entries have limited playoff schedules considerably."

Badminton in the intramural division has attracted approximately 28 players for singles competition, and the league series will begin this week.

Awards for the winning participants in the various divisions of intramural play will be gold belt buckles for the winners and silver medals for the runner-up positions.

Klemmer Issues Call For Gridders

Approximately 50 prospects for the 1953 Ram grid team are due to meet Monday, May 25, in Room 107 of the men's gymnasium.

Football Coach Grover Klemmer has called the meeting to discuss plans for the Fall season and for a preliminary get-together.

The football schedule is expected to be completed soon, Klemmer said.

Newman Cagers 2nd In Tourney

In a nip and tuck game which wasn't decided until the final two minutes, the City College Newman Club was defeated, 44-35, by the University of California in the championship tilt of the Northern California Newman Club basketball tournament held recently at San Jose State's Spartan Gymnasium.

The tournament was held concurrently with the annual Newman Club Convention, and six teams — San Francisco State, San Jose State, Stockton Junior College, Sacramento State, University of California, and City College dueled for top laurels.

The Rams qualified for the final round by virtue of a preliminary 36-30 victory over San Jose State, after a 14-14 first half score.

Players representing the college were forwards Jim McKenzie, Arn Hog, George Berthold, and Pat Feasco; center Ed Keith; and guards Nick Melnik, Frank Anyong, George Salas, and Joe Congi.

Ram Swimmers Take Third In NCJC Meet

Piling up 54 points, City College's swimmers took third place in the All-Northern California Junior College swimming championships held at the Stockton College pool on May 8.

Coach Roy Burkhead's fifteen man squad was beaten only by the two perennial Northern California swim giants, the Sacramento Panthers and the Stockton Mustangs.

The Rams were paced by Rod Lundquist, John Stomm, Noel Dietz, and Ken Glazbrook, who were top performers all season.

Lundquist took second place in his 440 yard freestyle specialty with Stomm taking third. Dietz grabbed a third in the 100 yard backstroke. Glazbrook butterflied his way into third spot in the 100 yard breast strokes. In the 100 yard freestyle, Ron Chapman placed fourth while the diving talents of George Rodas earned him a third.

The Panthers from Sacramento upset the heavily favored natators from Stockton, 100 to 66½.

Parish-Led Rams Try For State Meet Track Honors

By Al Palaelo

The center of gravity in the two-year college track and field universe shifts this week to Visalia for the third annual presentation of the California State Meet.

Locale for the Friday and Saturday night affair is the Mineral King Bowl, the selection being made recently by the State Athletic Commission. Official host is the College of the Sequoias.

Friday's activity will be confined to the staging of the elimination trials, with the jumpers and throwers contesting at 7 p.m. and the runners vying an hour later. The nocturnal meet will be climaxed on Saturday evening with the crowning of individual and squad champions in the finals slated to commence at 7:30 p.m.

A galaxy of track stars from throughout the state's two-year colleges indicates that this year's show might surpass the previous engagements insofar as wealth of material is concerned. From this meet have emerged many eindermen who went on to gain added prominence at various universities.

The same nine City College trackmen who created such a stir in the Big Seven Conference show-down at Sacramento by virtue of their unexpected second place finish, will attempt to duplicate that feat in the Visalia encounter. The odds of a repeat performance, however, are stacked against the red and white Rams.

Vandolph Parish, acclaimed by observers of the recent Fresno Relays as the swiftest two-year college dashman in Northern California of his sizzling :09.8 clocking, looms a strong possibility to nab that event from the southland's best. He also figures to garner additional points in the 220-yard dash and the 220-yard low hurdles.

The other Ram threat for top laurels is the mile relay foursome of Bill Rumford, Cholly Smock, Les Andersen, and Al Carlson. Their conference performance fell 1.7 seconds short of smashing the established 3:25.7 record.

Carlson could definitely finish among the first four in the half-mile if exerted to maximum effort. The long-winded runner should lower his 1:59.4 best ever accomplishment against a pressing field.

Ram miler Andersen is still another possibility. The lathy competitor has churned the distance in 4:39.5, but this timing could be cut considerably if he stays with the front runners at the outset and utilizes that surging ultimate drive.

Red-haired Roy Hutzler will back a formidable array of talented pole-vaulters. A 13-foot achievement should place him in the thick of things.

The Ram representative in the two-mile event is fast stepping Bob Cross. He stopped the watches at 10 minutes 43 seconds in the league fracas.

Local entry in the shot put and discus throw is big Walt Rilliet, with 43' 11½" and 124' 10½" toppers.

RAMBLINGS

By Fred Fukuchi

NEXT Wednesday in the men's gymnasium, boxing makes its semi-annual return to City College when the men's physical education department presents its always interesting college boxing tournament.

Since the curtailment of competitive boxing in Northern California colleges, there has been practically no opportunity for the local boxing enthusiasts to fight competitively. Here at City College, the men's physical education department has found the answer for the loss of the boxing team by presenting a boxing tourney as part of the intramural program.

This fabulous tournament has produced some of the greatest boxers in the college's history. During the height of junior college boxing in Northern California, such fighters as Olympic Champion Louis Gage, Jerry Stern, Roy Damas, Ed Sato and many others, wore the red and white colors of the Rams to state and national championships.

Under the direction of Roy Diederichsen, Ralph Hillsman, and Tom Wilson, the show has had the mannerisms of genuine professional bouts. Numerous bouts have been lined up for next Wednesday evening with weight divisions varying from fly-weight to the big heavyweights.

We think this event should be a wing-ding affair with both novices and advanced pugs scrapping it out for all they're worth. With admission free, it will be well worth anyone's while to drop in and take a look see.

George, Sartor In State Golf Finals

City College's hard-hitting stickmen took the measure of the West Contra Costa Comets May 8 by capturing five straight matches en route to an easy 15 to 0 shut out victory at Harding Park.

Gene George led the local stickmen with a sizzling 78, garnering medal honors. Playing their best games of the season, Lou Sartor, Art Pira, Tony Lazzeri, and Charlie Low also shut out their opponents 3 to 0.

Thus far, Coach Ralph Hillsman has not determined whom he will take to the May 18 and 19 state finals accompanying George and Sartor.

The coveted trip to Monterey is a scramble among Lazzeri, Low, and Pira. Hillsman stated that the choice will be made on the basis of best seasonal averages.

Completion Of New Building In 1954 Marks First Signs Of Departure From West Campus

With construction of the new classroom and library building processing faster than expected, President Louis G. Conlan is presently of the opinion that the City College freshmen of today will probably be the first students of the college to occupy the modern structure.

In an interview last week, President Conlan stated that completion of the building would be the first step in vacating the west campus.

President Conlan said, "A parking lot will also be constructed on the east side, but cars will probably be permitted to park in the west campus until such a place is completed."

He also added that plans for the Student Union Building are completed, with construction scheduled to begin in August of this year and completed by the following August.

"The proposed athletic field," the President declared, "will have to wait until another bond issue, but City College athletic contests may be drawn nearer the campus if the college is able to utilize the soccer field the San Francisco Park and Recreation Department is constructing presently in Balboa Park."

College President

LOUIS G. CONLAN believes that returning Freshmen will be able to occupy the new Library and Classroom building in Fall 1954.

Commenting on the cleanliness of the campus, President Conlan acknowledged the fine efforts of the student government and stated that he had noted a considerable change in this difficult problem. He added, "However, we still need improvement if we wish to attain the cleanliness of an ideal campus."

On the subject of athletics, President Conlan saw a bright future for the college football team with the abandonment of the two platoon system. He said, "Our teams here at City College have never been strong in depth, so the return of the single-platoon system will improve our team and bring back better football." He also thought that the single-platoon would improve the game from the fans view point.

Reviewing the poor attendance of the college sports functions, President Conlan believes "Sports attendance has been the most disappointing thing on the campus. We have tried and are continually trying to find a solution for this problem, but have yet to come up with a sound long range answer."

Romance Film Featured During College Hour

Featured this Friday in the college hour film series in Room 136, TWA offers Flight to Romance, a 27 minute color film, Emmett Smith of the audio visual aids department, stated yesterday.

The film will be shown during these hours: 10:40 a.m. and 11:20 a.m., Smith indicated.

Flight to Romance is a TWA plane trip on the Road to Rome starting from Ireland and landing on the Emerald Isle.

It is a guiding flight to Vatican City, London, Paris, Britanny, Normandy, The French Riviera and the Eternal City, Smith said.

AS Card Sales Only $200 Away From Goal Set

Associated Student card Chairman Deno Gofas announced yesterday that the $6,000 monetary goal set early in the semester is only forty AS cards away, meaning that $5,800 now rests in the card collection coffers.

Gofas stated that his committee must sell at least forty more Associated Student cards before the close of the semester to balance the budget set at the beginning of the semester. A goal of $6,000, to be derived from the sale of cards, was made earlier. Gofas commented and at the present time the committee is only forty cards away from their goal.

Activities, such as Commencement and the Drama department's next stage production, are expected to increase the sale of cards Gofas asserted.

"The fifty-one per cent ruling," and "percentage of card holders in on-campus organizations," quoted Gofas, "have increased the sale of cards tremendously."

The rules set forth by council state that budgeted organizations are required to have 100 per cent Associated Student membership to receive full amount specified in the appropriated budget.

Gofas also announced that all discount privileges listed on the Associated Student card are still valid and offer the same percentage of discounts.

Radio-TV Department Schedules 'One-Nighter' For June; Program To Explain Purpose Of City College

Another television venture is being undertaken by the college's radio-television department, according to Henry Leff, producer. The new show, a "one-nighter," will describe City College by means of movies, visual aids, and live audio, he said.

Leff met last week with Edward Dolan, member of the Bay Area Educational Television Association's Staff, to confer on certain elements of the program. It is one in a series depicting the offerings and activities of Bay Area colleges.

An attempt will be made in the half hour program (to be seen in June over KRON-TV) to explain what a two year college does, and what is offered here in the way of courses, social activity, and sports. A representative group of people, consisting of a mother, a boy and girl, a businessman, a returning veteran, will probably be the principal characters in the short drama which makes up the bulk of the 30 minutes, Leff explained.

They will ask typical questions and will be answered by a spokesman of the college with the aid of movies, stills, and other visual material.

All plans made thus far are tentative, according to Leff, and complete details will be released at a future date.

Testing and Therapy in Personality was the theme of last week's showing of Know Yourself Better, the college's current educational television series.

Featured on the program was Mildred Barnard, counsellor, who assisted Instructor Phylis Haley.

Library Books Can Be Purchased At Student Request

Students wishing books other than those contained in the library at the present time should inform one of the librarians, and if it is deemed advisable by the library staff the books will be purchased, Clement Skrabak, of the library staff, said last week.

"Our main purpose in the library is to furnish the students and faculty of the college with the various books needed to fulfill the requirements for courses given here," Skrabak said.

Much preparation is made before books ever reach the point where they can be used in the library. First the books must be selected, then an order must be placed with the publisher, then after the library has received the books, the books must be processed; catalogued, given a number, a card and pocket, and a label. Then the books are put into circulation.

Members of the library staff are Eleanore Blinn, circulation desk; Irene Mensing, reference desk; Katharine Pedley, cataloguing; Betty Lundgren, assistant, circulation desk and cataloguing; and Clement Skrabak, business. Chairman of the library committee is Dean Edward E. Sandys.

Numerous Jobs Available For Summer Work

Available jobs are numerous for qualified people in San Francisco and out of town, Joseph Amori, placement director here, said late last week.

Locally, there are some openings in summer camps for counselors, either men or women. Some of the positions are for arts and crafts, dramatics, music, and athletic directors. There are also openings in Northern, Central, and Southern California for counselors in the following fields: arts and crafts, horseback riding, riflery, swimming, athletics, dramatics, music, nature study, photography, and many other things. The salary ranges depend on experience and training, with room, board and transportation included.

The U. S. Forestry Service offers jobs as fire fighters, trail crewmen, blister-rust control, and checkers.

There are office openings for typing, stenography, office machine operation. The speed for typing is 45 words-per-minute and up; and the speed for shorthand is 90 words-per-minute and up.

Department stores are hiring students with good appearance and sales personalities.

Food markets and grocery stores are hiring stock clerks. The males must be tall, neat appearing, strong physically, preferably with experience. They will consider hiring on a part time basis until college closes, with full time during the summer, Amori said.

Openings for machine operators are for either day or swing shifts, either in San Francisco or out of town.

Book Re-Purchase Set To Start On June 8

The Ramporium, City College book store, will re-purchase books up to the last day (today) for filing petitions for leave of absence if accompanied by official change-of-program forms or a pink official leave-of-absence form.

Books may be turned in for re-sale to other students from June 8 on. Manager Richard Main said yesterday.

Paper-bound books will be accepted if in excellent condition. Half of the original price will be given for all books, Main declared.

Heat Wave, Midterms Subside Concurrently; Activities Revived

By Shirley Murphy

Fortunately, the heat wave and midterms subsided at the same time, and activities of the organizations on campus were revived.

Diane Beerman, Sandra Pelzner, Lorie Menders, and Joe Drabkin attended the Intra-State Hillel Conference at Asilomar during the second week-end in May. Chester Zeff, Hillel Club director here, participated in supervising the conference workshop.

Members of Zeta Chi sorority honored their mothers at a tea held last Sunday in the Royal Suite of the Palace Hotel.

The Chinese Student's Club has initiated the practice of contributing the semi-monthly magazine, The Chinese News, to the college library.

The Newman Club basketball team finished second in the tourney, with the University of California emerging as champions. The club is trying to arrange a rematch with the U. C. team, which will be followed by a dance.

Alpha Lambda Chi held a joint meeting with Gamma Phi last night. Officers of Alpha Lambda Chi for this semester are President, Mildred Pinkus; Vice-President, Shirley Rathjens; Corresponding Secretary, Marlene Hague; Recording Secretary, Joanne Greene; Treasurer, Juanita Daly; Sergeant-at-Arms, Phyllis Hopkinson.

Pledges of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, were formally initiated at a formal ceremony held Sunday at the University of California. New A Phi O's here include Leo De Lapp, Ike Fuss, Ed Freeman, Anthony Frost, Ed Gride, Ed Harper, John Holberton, Al Howard, Ted Kast, Ralph Libby, Garth Monroe, Ken O'Benchain, Walt Pearce, John Sahlan, Bob Simon, Leonard Strickland, Art Tognazzine, Dick Trauner, John Treadgill, Paul Luz Von Boden, and Bob Watson.

"Holidaze," Final AS Dance, To Be Held This Friday

"Holidaze" the last Associated Student dance of this semester will take place Friday, May 29, from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, in Building 1, Sally Galvin, Associated Student vice-president, announced.

Displays representing each holiday will serve as the decorative theme for this affair, according to Miss Galvin.

Students on the decoration committee are Ron Atkinson, Bill Bixby, Dino Gofas, Julie Hanan, Norm Heise, Ed Hjerpe, John MacDonald, Pat Miller, Dick Pauson, Millie Pinkus, Harry Roebling, and Pat Simmons.

William Eckert, art instructor, and his art students are making the publicity posters for this dance, the vice-president declared, and Dick Saltzman and his band will provide the music for this affair.

Admission will be free to owners of Associated Student cards, Miss Galvin added, and 50 cents for others.

Miss Galvin urged students to support this last Associated Student affair.

Two Films Slated For College Hour

Two films are scheduled in this week's Friday college hour. The film series in Room 136 will have three different showing periods, Emmett Smith, of the audio visual aids department, announced yesterday.

The City, with a 30 minutes showing time, will be projected at 9:50 a.m. and again at 10:40 a.m.

The film has received many awards for its excellence, Smith said. Hymn Of The Nation will be shown at 12:20 p.m., and run 28 minutes. Featured will be Arturo Toscanini conducting the NBC symphony orchestra.

Included in the film are the Westminster Choir and Jan Peerce, tenor, singing a special presentation of Verdi's Hymn Of The Nations.

Vet Sign-Up Urged

Korean veterans here are urged to sign-up for their next subsistence check the week of June 1-5 in the Veterans Affairs Office, Betty Arnold announced last week.

Alumni To Serve At Grad Rehearsal

The City College Alumni Association will serve coffee and pastries prepared by the Hotel and Restaurant Division at the commencement rehearsal Friday, June 19 in the Riordan High School Auditorium, Charles Osborne, Alumni Association liaison officer, announced last week.

An invitation to join the Alumni Association was also extended by Osborne, who stated that the dues for the association are ten dollars for a charter-life membership; five dollars for a five year subscriber membership; three dollars for the active membership plan, which is the deferred payment on the life membership.

The initial fee is $3.00, and three annual payments of $3.00, making a total of $12.00 year-to-year. Annual membership is $2.00.

Thirty-three Candidates File Petitions

Election Rally Set For Friday College Hour

A traditional pre-election rally will be staged during college hour, 10:40 a.m., this Friday, May 29, in the west campus auditorium, Jim Brownfield, election commissioner, announced today.

Purpose of the rally is to introduce the candidates for Associated Student offices. Campaign speeches from the nominee representatives of the Inter-Fraternity Council, United Students Association, and some candidates with specific party affiliation, will high-light the proceedings. There are tentative plans being made for between-time entertainment, Brownfield said.

The rally is open to all AS card holders, Brownfield added.

Final petitions to run for Associated Student government offices were turned in last week. The two contending political parties also held their spring election conventions last week.

Forum Magazine

Ramporium To Be Center Of Distribution Starting Today

Distribution of Forum Magazine, containing the work of 19 students, to members of the Associated Students began this morning, Dorothy Mercer, adviser, announced.

The Ramporium is the only center for distribution. AS members may pick up their copies of the publication there today, tomorrow, and Friday, upon presentation of their student card.

Students not possessing Associated Students cards may purchase copies of the magazine from Forum salesmen or from the Ramporium for 50 cents, Miss Mercer stated.

The contributors to this issue are Harold W. Painter, Auguste H. Shields, Milton Papas, Louanne Hoppe, Roy G. Anderson, Ed H. Soules, Joan W. Moore, Jane Fairbanks, Gwen Thorton, Dorothy Fallon, Lorraine Blue, Velda Lucas, Isorage Robinson, Mary Monnion, Carl Nolte, Joseph Martinez, Al Smyth, Pat Hunt, and Barney Wan.

Humor is the outstanding characteristic of the magazine, which is composed of 32 pages, Miss Mercer observed. Regarding the content of the material, she mentioned that one story and one episode concern veterans returning from Korea.

Wan designed the cover of the magazine, which is an abstraction with a literary theme.

Members of the staff working on the production end of this issue of Forum are Joanne Tuohey, editor; Reina Martinez, art editor; Charles Osborne, business manager; and June Fairbanks, Harold Painter, Gene Soules, Carlos Nolte, Wray Jacobs, Lorraine Blue, Velda Lucas, Auguste H. Shields, and Robert Ryden.

X-Ray Drive Ends

More than 1,500 students and most faculty members have taken advantage of the mobile chest x-ray unit found at the college through last Friday, Charles Meehan, x-ray technician, disclosed recently.

Meehan said that all physical education students participated in the examination. It is hoped that examinations here may be given on an annual basis, Meehan added.

New Rental Library

A rental lending library containing 10 books has been initiated in the Ramporium, City College book store, according to Richard Main, manager.

Council Okeys Time Extension For Applicants

By Al Burgin

Thirty-three candidates, who are planning to compete in the Spring elections, filed their petitions to run for office last Tuesday with Election Commissioner Jim Brownfield. The elections will be conducted on campus June 3 and 4.

Additional names of candidates were being accepted under a deadline extension passed by council at Thursday's meeting. Stan Shaltt moved that the petition filing deadline be extended, and the council gave its stamp of approval.

Norm Heise, Associated Student president, stated that it would be necessary for the Amendment Committee, headed by Charles Osborne, to meet and draw-up the amendments to be voted on by the students during the coming election. Topping the amendments will be addition of two new cabinet positions, and up-grading of swimming.

Students filing by Tuesday's deadline were as follows:

George Effenberger, Julie Hanan, Bill Bixby, Dino Gofas, J. Robert Lewis, Barbara Campello, Joanne Hassman, Don Douglas, Keith Franks, Kent Lundgren, Richard Paulson, Alberta Cordini, Patty Mascarelli.

The amendments to be voted on are as follows: Yell Leader. To establish by appointment the office of Yell Leader as a member of the President's Cabinet. The Yell Leader shall have completed at least 15 units of work prior to taking office. The Yell Leader shall be appointed by the President of the Associated Students with the approval of the Student Council, and shall create and promote college spirit at all rallies and games. He shall appoint his assistant Yell Leaders with the approval of the Student Council, and shall work in close cooperation with the Rally Committee of which he shall be a member.

The winner will be announced at the Student Council banquet, Wednesday, June 10, at the California Hotel.

Former Guardsman Editor Honored With Scholarship

Bob Rezak Receives Delta Sigma Chi Award

A former Guardsman Editor, now a journalism major at Stanford University, further proved his capabilities last Thursday when he was awarded a $100 scholarship by the Northern California chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity.

Bob Rezak, President's Award Plaque winner and Editor of The Guardsman in the spring semester, 1952, was one of two men, representing Stanford and University of California respectively, to receive awards of $100 each at a dinner-meeting of the journalism fraternity at the San Francisco Press-Union League Club.

Rezak was one of three representing Stanford in the contest. Six men in all were considered for the scholarship, and all received certificates in recognition of outstanding ability and achievement. Three of the finalists are junior college graduates.

The other five contestants were Donald Leighton and Sam Matthews, also of Stanford; and Beaina Adams, Don Kedely, and Jim Paul, University of California. Paul received the other scholarship.

Rezak, a graduate of Mission High School and Editor there of The West Wing, came to City College in 1950, and enrolled in journalism.

During the next semesters he served as Publicity Committee Chairman, Student Manager of the Opera Workshop, and as Managing Editor of The Guardsman. Besides his college activities, Rezak worked in the display advertising department of The San Francisco Chronicle, until he transferred to Stanford last October.

Pictured at right, Rezak (leaning), and Al Viplani, chief Guardsman photographer in 1952, stand by to complete a picture of Dan Loudan, Manager of the St. Francis Hotel, taken during 1952 Operation-Hotel Day.

The two were in charge of the corps of City College newspaper and photography students who worked with the hotel publicity department when the hotel division students here "ran" the St. Francis for a day.

Conlan Predicts Soph-Prof Outcome

By Fred Fukuchi

Boldly stepping out on the limb, President Louis G. Conlan declared last week that he was favoring the Profs to defeat the Sophomores in the semi-annual Soph-Prof skirmish to be held on the college football field Friday, June 12, during a double college hour.

"I'll take the Profs in this contest," Conlan said; "besides, the sophomore class president can back up the sophs."

Conlan based his prediction on what he called "the natural superiority of personnel that the faculty possesses." He said, "Our faculty has a very well-rounded team which is capable of running up a prodigious score against the sophs."

President Conlan had words of praise for the Soph-Prof game.

"This game," he said, "is indicative of the fine relationship which exists between faculty and students here. It also proves that the instructors are human after all," he said.

Dean Dougherty First Woman Named Alumni Life Member

By Louanne Morford

Noah Webster's definition of a lady is not complete, according to Catherine Sheehan, Alumni board member.

Miss Sheehan voiced her criticism of Webster at the recent Alumni dinner, held in honor of Dean Margaret Dougherty, now in her 13th year as dean.

Miss Sheehan, who made the presentation of the first honorary life membership in City College of San Francisco's Alumni Association ever given to a woman, nicely excused Webster's inadequate definition during her presentation ceremony address by explaining, ". . . but, then of course, Webster never had the privilege of knowing Dean Dougherty, the perfect example of all the things he lists and much more."

Dean Dougherty, now one of three persons holding honorary life membership in the association, first came to San Francisco's young two year college in 1936 During her early association with the college, Dean Dougherty taught in the home economics department and worked with the Vice-president-Dean of Women. After one year she was given the official title of Adviser to Women. From 1937 to 1940, the former Girls' High School instructor both taught and filled her position as adviser. In 1940 Dean Dougherty was appointed to the newly created post of Dean of Women.

"It was wonderful of the Alumni Association to honor me," Dean Dougherty said, "and for everyone to say such nice things was very sweet. The only thing wrong was that such attention made me so embarrassed that when it came time to thank the assembly I was almost speechless."

An Alumni Association spokesman, commenting on the association's action, reiterated the opinion of the group—that no educator ever more highly deserved public recognition than Dean Dougherty—and said, "Her thank you address, one of the finest talks I have ever heard a woman make, is just added proof of her great capacities."

In Dean Dougherty's own words, an educator must be versatile, fair-minded, a good listener and, most important, have young ideas and want to understand how the youth of the nation think. Statements made by students with whom she has had contact make it plain that Dean Dougherty has surpassed her own set of standards.

The newest life member of the alumni admits to two accomplishments that prove she is keeping her ideas young.

"I have tried to attend every co-educational function during the past 13 years, and have missed one only very rarely; too, I can't even think of how many teas and Associated Women Student functions I have attended in these past years," Dean Dougherty commented thoughtfully during a recent interview. Second on the admitted accomplishments is her ability to name all the new tunes on the Hit Parade.

"It's a wonderful profession, teaching," stated Dean Dougherty who has been an educator for 37 years "Working with the girls has proved interesting, enjoyable and rewarding. Now, I am at that time in life when I often meet girls whose mothers I taught. Everywhere I go I meet women I knew years ago when they were students.

"When I was just starting my career, other instructors would speak of the many, many years that they had taught, and I would think, privately, 'how terribly long it will be before I can claim so many years of teaching experience.'

"Now, I have been a member of the profession for 37 years, and I just can't force myself to realize it, the time has gone so fast," the Dean mused reminiscently.

Miss Sheehan contended that Webster didn't list all the qualities of Dean Dougherty, "the epitome of a true lady." Well-informed sources feel that the existing concept of the perfect honorary life member of an Alumni Association will have to undergo some revamping now that Dean Dougherty, a perfectionist by nature, has become Number 1 Lady with the alumni as well as with City College proper.

A World Of Trouble!—Why? Where Do We Go From Here?

MAY 30, Memorial Day, marks the opening of the summer season, vacations and week end trips to the country. It also is the day set aside to honor war dead.

May 30 is the day when, amidst gaiety, a brooding remark may be voiced concerning wars to come and soldiers to be honored at a later date. Pessimism is a thing that is coming to be an accepted part of the American personality. The Draft situation does nothing to alleviate a defeatist attitude of "come what may" nothing can make things any worse.

IT'S THE FINALE FOR HOW LONG?

Semester spring, 1953, is just about to close; the remaining part may be counted in terms of days. Another semester, another school year is about to end.

June 19 will ring down the curtain on a good many things, a semester's college work being one of the more incidental. This summer a good many young men (men who are now students at this college will be included), will wave good-bye to their familes and terminate their civilian careers for the next few years. This summer the armed services will call hundreds and hundreds of men into uniform and send them up to the fighting line in Korea or to one of the NATO affiliates.

The United States Government will train them, feed them, clothe them, and prepare them mentally for the situations they may be called upon to face; and American youth will stare docile and unhappy.

WHERE IS THE OLD FIGHTING SPIRIT?

The truth of the matter is that American men are tending more to passive resignation. Today's 20 year old probably took little cognizance of the world until one Sunday in 1941 when his knowledge of the other nations began to increase rapidly with names like Salerno, Normandy, and Iwo Jimo for mile stones. From that time on military service has stared our men in the face almost as certainly as it faced the men of Sparta.

During the intervening 12 years, words like "patriotic" have slowly been sliding into disuse. Today's young man counts his grade points and the months he can be deferred, and finally he wonders, dejectedly, "Where do we go from here?" Army combat preparation can do nothing to change such a mental attitude.

The passively casual attitude is the accepted defense toward the draft; anyone who doesn't exhibit such an attitude is unusual, anyone who enlists is running away from something. Our nation is being forced to maturity early by a world mess that no one seems to be able to explain, and as our nation loses its youth, some of the exuberance is being removed from the young people of the nation.

The exuberance that is now being lost and the mainstay of the early Americans are one and the same. It was the inner spirit of exuberance that saw the pioneers, the revolutionist and the men and women of the civil war period through great stresses. We are now living in another great period of stress, but, we are now living without the buoyant spirit of our predecessors.

Knowing the importance of that spirit, and fully realizing the lack of it today, one stops to wonder, just where "can" we go from here? It's Memorial Day all right, but should it be a memorial for the war dead or a part of the American spirit which is dead?

Pulse of the Campus

• Appreciation

Editor, The Guardsman:

Much of the success of Alpha Gamma Sigma's Mardi Gras Booth was due directly to the cooperation of a group of instructors.

They literally "stuck their necks out" for us when they posed for photography at which students were to throw bean-bags.

If these instructors had not been greatly respected by students in general they would never have been approached on the matter. By the same token, if they have not gained even more popularity through their show of being "good sports," interested in the success of such student activities as the Mardi Gras, we of AGS have missed our guess.

The thanks of our entire membership goes to these people. I am sure I speak for all of us when I promise that anything the honor society or its members can do in return for their support will be done gladly.

The Student Vote

'Franchise Right Is A Privilege'

"Government of the students, by the students, and for the students." This idealistic type of democracy is possible here at City College, according to student leaders. Each Associated Student has the right of franchise and may vote for the candidate of his choice.

Both political parties have expressed their desire for a large turnout of voters this election.

Wray Jacobs, head of the USA, listed these reasons as a spur to student participation in government:

1. Your approval or dis-approval is expressed when you cast your ballot.

2. "A large turnout of voters insures a greater and broader cross-section of public opinion, which insures a truly representative type of student government.

3. A democratic spirit and an appreciation of American principles are shown by those students who take the time and effort to study the issues and to express their opinion in the American way.

The motives listed by Al Lithgow, IFC President, which should bring a great many to the polls come Election Day are:

1. Voting has always played a great part in the American heritage. Its purposes in our national government are to preserve the American Way and to procure for us the things we want and need. The same idea applies to City College—vote to help get the things you want and need in student government.

2. The vote is your voice in the student government of City College.

"To be blunt, voting is a privilege, take advantage of it," is the consensus of both party leaders.

Popular song "Your cheatin' heart", kicked a lot of air the other day in the west campus snack bar, stimulating some listeners with voracious appeal.

Witnessing from listener reaction, I perceived this music overshadowed that played in music appreciation course 27A.

At first the song bothered my conscience with strange ideas, for I was wondering who was cheating whom, but finally it dawned on me how nice to have the song around with the word "heart" instead of habit (which might be more appropriate).

It would be much more realistic and appropriate in this campus seeing that "cheating" in parking, in the misuse of Associated Student card does occur here.

Violation of "written and unwritten" law is a method of cheating and an act of immorality, according to some ethical-minded people.

Therefore on the basis of their principles, I am safe to say that cheating and dishonesty could be detected in many areas.

For instance, test the accuracy and validity of one's work, a student has to appear bright and intelligent, compare and contrast one another's class assignment and meet the approval of the instructor.

This could be condoned so far, if they are not carried too far.

In fact, the exchange of thoughts and ideas among students should be encouraged, but unfair exchange of classwork should be discouraged for it is a mild way of cheating.

During the exams, when the situation is take and give—that is, take the questions and give the answers—the unconscious eye movement is not so promising.

Habitually one has to glance dishonestly, but innocently, forward, backward, and sideways to make sure how the other fellows were doing.

This may not be cheating, only an unpleasant movement, but one feels cheated when he is uneasy and guesses too much in true, false, and mutiple choice exams, because what he knows does not come and what he does not know comes.

Your cheating heart must be purified and cleansed, in order to have others place their confidence in you and you place your confidence in them.

So the song "your cheatin' heart" is a good reminder to many of us to check our "habits."

Who Is Cheating Whom???? It May Be Time To Check Habits

(Editor's Note. This is the seventh in a series of articles by Mohi ud Din, student in journalism here. Dean, an East Indian by descent, a British subject by colonization, and a Fan Islander by geography, like most foreign students, has had difficulties in adjustment to life in the U. S. In this series he will recount many of these problems in the hope that, in some small way, they will ease the burden of other newcomers to this country by making the American citizen more understanding.)

A.A. Degrees, Honors, Speeches Are Commencement Traditions

By Dick Meister

"City College of San Francisco—Our Community College" is the theme for the eighteenth annual commencement exercises held Friday night, June 19, at Riordan High School auditorium.

This college has truly grown into "our community college" as this year's theme states.

Compare the "handful" of 47 graduates taking part in the college's first graduation in 1936, to the 400 expected to receive their A.A. Degrees at the 1953 exercises.

That first commencement was held on Friday, June 12, 1936, at the San Francisco War Memorial Opera House with Edwin A. Lee, then Superintendent of Schools in the city, as presiding officer and Paul Cadman, dean of Men at the University of California as the principal speaker.

Down through the years the graduation exercises have been held at the Veterans Memorial Building, George Washington High School and, during the war years, here at City College in addition to those at the Opera House.

At all of the college's commencements it has been traditional to recognize outstanding graduates by presenting them with special awards including scholarship and service awards.

The commencement traditionally begins with a procession of the graduating students, after which the presiding officer opens the exercises by calling on outstanding guest speakers. After the guest's speeches, the special awards are presented.

After the honors are given out speeches will be made by 4 graduating students representing college departments. William Culver, English instructor at the college, is in charge of the commencement speech committee this year.

When these speeches are completed the college A Cappella Choir will sing, followed by City College President Louis G. Conlan conferring the A.A. Degrees, with Lloyd D. Luckmann, Coordinator Division of Instructor, announcing the graduate's names.

The choir will then sing the College Hymn and the graduates will file out to begin their new life outside... "City College of San Francisco—Our Community College."

Memorial Day—Memory Or Perpetual Reality?

Memorial Day has lost its significance to the present generation! All it means to most is the opening of the holiday season or a crazy, mixed-up week end at "The River," Hoberg's, or Tahoe (depending upon the bank account).

People plan for weeks how they are going to spend their time, but they are completely heedless of the reason which occasions the holiday.

"Flander's Field" has become an obsolete term, and the meaning of the Buddy Poppy has been lost.

Perhaps if the citizenry took a little time out to analyze the true significance of May 30, the reason for it would become a memory instead of an ever-present reality.

Ram Nine Climaxes Year In Last Place; '54 Prospects Look Bright

This was a dismal year insofar as baseball at the college was concerned. The Rams, skippered by Bill Fischer, undertook a 12-game schedule for the 1953 season and then buoyantly set about attempting to surmount each obstacle on their way to the Big Seven Conference title.

After every outing, however, the visions of a championship grew dimmer and dimmer. To put it bluntly, the Fischer-men just did miss losing all the tilts on their slate. Only an all-out performance on their part in mid-season preserved a one-won eleven-loss record and a subsequent seventh place standing.

The reasons for the Rams' downfall are various and, many times, inaccurate. There is some solace, however, in the fact that most of the starting nine is comprised of freshmen. Coach Fischer could have been building with an eye to the future. The squad, on the whole, played interesting ball.

Fischer's minions were rudely treated by arch-rival San Mateo in the opening league double-bill by scores of 8-2 and 13-8.

Then Bob Amburg hurled a one-hit masterpiece for West Contra Costa earoute to a 5-0 whitewash over the locals. Another double dose of defeat was handed the Rams, 15-3 and 6-1, by the Santa Rosa Bearcubs.

This far into the campaign, Jerry Stack was the team hitting leader with a .450 average while Rudy Buffin's .333 earned him bridesmaid honors.

Finally, on April 25 to be exact, the Big Rec diamond in Golden Gate Park was the scene of the Rams' first, last, and only conquest. The Modesto Pirates fell prey to the locals' booming bats, 5-2, as Flores chalked up the win in the second game of the doubleheader.

The uneventful season was climaxed on a typical note with two more setbacks received from the Stockton Mustangs. By this time, the local nine had nothing to lose and everything to gain. They reverted to the former theory.

At any rate, as ehrlier pointed out on this page, the Rams can claim one outstanding distinction. They learned the valuable fundamentals of the game, as taught by Coach Fischer.

To quote an accepted sports' creed, "It isn't winning so much that counts, but participation."

Practice Continues As Sophomores Develop Devastating Secret Weapon

By Donald W. MacDougall

With everything but the kitchen sink in readiness for the annual Soph-Prof baseball skirmish to be held June 12, on the practice football field during double college hour, both sides are anticipating the fateful onslaught with marked uneasiness.

Relying upon all the fortitude and muscle he can muster, Soph President Don Moltini is preparing what the Prof underground has concluded to be one of the most devastating unmentionable weapons ever seen by man. Most of the Prof secret observers who have witnessed this sight have wound up in sick bay nursing what physicians have diagnosed as constant chilling and foaming at the mouth.

Many comments and remarks have been rendered about the traditional Soph-Prof athletic contests, but little has been said concerning the amount of work and diligent study both sides have constantly put forth in their ever annual battles. Yearly, the Soph President must put together from mere nothing, a smooth fielding, hard hitting ball club able to give their all for dear old "Alma Mammy." He is constantly in threat of life and limb and grade points from concerned and undoubtedly biased professors.

The released tentative Soph roster that will engage the Profs includes: Walt Rillict, Norm Heise, Joe Garbinino, Lou Sartor, Bob Bondanza, Ray Leister, Connie Webb, Dale Strickln, Moltini, Dino Gofas, George Effenberger, and Gary Holkins.

From the other side of the fence, Dean Jack Brady has not as yet released any statements concerning this season's clash.

Classy Crew Of 22 Pugs Ready For Big Battle

Tonight is the night!

Twenty-two enthusiasts of the fight game vie tonight for eleven weight division titles of the City College Boxing Tournament at 8 p.m. in the men's gymnasium.

This will be the fifth annual presentation for the boxing championship of the City College of San Francisco.

Weight divisions vary for tonight's show from 135 to heavyweights. In between these two extremes will be 145, 150, 155, 160, 165, 170, 175, 180, and 190 pounds.

Each bout will be three rounds of one minute and a half duration. Decisions will be rendered by three judges. The referee for the tournament will be a veteran from the last City College Championship, Bill Ninnis.

Roy Diederichsen, director of the tournament, announced that a new method of scoring the bouts will be experimented. "A point system will be used by the judges. At the end of each round, the judges will raise a score card, in full view of the audience, to show the progress of the fight," he said.

Award for the winner of each bout will be a gold belt buckle while the runner up will receive a silver medal. A permanent boxer trophy is also presented to the fighter who makes the best showing.

From this tournament has risen such City College boxing luminaries as Louis Gage, Jerry Stern, Roy Damas, and diamond belt winner in the Golden Gloves, Dick Ramsey.

Diederichsen emphasized that admission is free and added, "If it's action you want, it's going to be action you'll get."

RAMBLINGS

By Fred Fukuchi

IT IS often wondered whether the students of this college realize that City College participates in sports. Perhaps a few will read in this publication that we have teams that participate in a league, but that's probably the extent of the knowledge of the few. Taking a look at the rooting section at Ram athletic functions would prove that the students care little or nothing of their teams.

Attendance-wise the student body of the college evidently has had no interest whatsoever. Everything has been tried in years past to promote the spirit which no doubt exists in everyone.

City College of San Francisco carries on a full-scale athletic program as good or even better than any junior college in Northern California. The enrollment here ranks among the first five in the state, but talk about spirit, some of the smallest high schools even put City College to shame.

Doesn't it stand to reason that if you invest in something, you want to get something out of it? The City College student body supports its teams financially, so one would think that students would support their investment, but not here. The baseball team, all season, played before a handful of sea gulls or some other members of the feathered tribe. The football squad, which is usually the largest drawer of any school, suffered one of its worst seasons at the turnstiles.

Some of the large four-year universities and professional teams have been screaming about attendance figures lately. They have blamed bad weather, television, and high costs for their short comings, but here at City College, where there is no bother with television and games are free of charge, attendance figures are deplorable.

True, many of the students here

Parish Maintains Unbeaten String In Century With Victory At Modesto

By Al Palacio

Vandolph Parish proved to some 8,000 onlookers at the recent Modesto Relays his claim as Northern California's top two-year college dashman as he sped to a :10.1 victory in the 100-yard dash over a classy field.

The determined City College speedster aligned this triumph with his winning efforts at the Big Seven Conference meet and the Fresno Relays to completely disperse any doubts anent his superiority in this event among the area's best. Parish bolted from the starting blocks at the crack of the starter's gun and, although hampered somewhat by a slow track, loafed to a comparatively easy win.

This notable achievement provided a large share of the nine points accumulated by the Ram cindermen, enough for a fifth place behind Modesto's 16 markers.

Now that the track season is terminated for another year, it is interesting to note the palpable improvements shown by each and every member of the college's track squad.

In the 100-yard dash, Parish posted a 10.1 clocking in the second conference meet of the season against Santa Rosa. Then he annexed the league dash title in the championships with a :10 flat and finally he upset the applecart at Fresno with a sizzling :09.8 triumph.

Parish ran a 22.1 220-yard dash also in the Santa Rosa encounter and thereafter consistently hit :22 flat.

Best timing in the 440 was Al Carlson's 52.8 in the San Mateo curtain-raiser, but there were no quarter-milers entered from the college in the conference get-together.

Carlson eased to a 2:11.7 half-mile first spot in the opening meet and climaxed the season with a sterling 1:59.4 victory at Sacramento. This was by far the most noticeable improvement on the team.

Miler Les Andersen ran his specialty in 4:52.6 at the schedule's outset and cut that down to 4:39.5 in the league finale.

11:02.1 was an early-season two-mile clocking by Bob Cross, but that was pared to 10:43 in the capital city finals.

There was no sign of betterment in the 220-yard low hurdles as Parish always hovered about the 24.8 mark.

A seasonal 12' 6" was posted by pole-vaulter Roy Hutzler but that dropped four inches at the campaign's end.

Walt Rillict heaved the shot put 42' 6" versus Santa Rosa and improved 18 inches at Sacramento. He threw the discus 124' 9" in competition with Sacramento Junior College and upped that mark two inches in the conference affair.

The mile relay quartet of Cholly Smock, Bill Rumford, Andersen, and Carlson hit 3:30.1 against West Contra Costa and stopped the watches at 3:25.7 in the league championships.

Klemmer Releases Nine Game Ram Football Schedule

Six conference and three practice tilts constitute the 1953 City College football schedule as released last week by Head Coach Grover Klemmer.

The new schedule is similar to the 1952 slate except for one of the practice battles. Menlo Junior College and Los Angeles City College remain on the docket, but a revision in the conference schedule in Southern California has forced East Los Angeles Junior College to drop out as one of the Ram foes. East Contra Costa of Concord will replace the Huskies. The schedule is as follows:

DATE	OPPONENT	SITE
Sept. 19	Open date
Sept. 26	Menlo	Menlo
Oct. 2	Santa Rosa	Kezar
Oct. 9	W. Contra Costa	Richmond
Oct. 16	Los Angeles City	Kezar
Oct. 24	San Mateo	Redw'd City
Oct. 30	E. Contra Costa	Concord
Nov. 6	Sacramento	Sacramento
Nov. 13	Stockton	Kezar
Nov. 20	Modesto	Kezar

Coach Klemmer stated that the biggest change from last season would naturally be the switch from the double to the single-platoon system.

Commenting on the shift and how it would affect City College, Klemmer said that it no doubt would help the players tremendously. "It's going to help the players very much because, for the first time it will teach the men the value of playing both defense and offense," he added.

"With a small squad as we had last season," Klemmer declared, "the new ruling will help us in picking the best eleven men on the squad."

Former President Presents Awards To Four Students

Presentation of four scholarship was made at a regularly scheduled rally during college hour last Friday.

Carroll Pursell and Roberta Usher won the two $50 Cloud scholarships. These two scholarships were presented by Dr. A. J. Cloud, former president, in whose honor the scholarships were established. Contributions from the faculty made these awards possible.

Mary Baird and Robert Foehr won the two $50 Class of 1952 Scholarships. Dr. Cloud also presented these awards, to which the graduating class of last year contributed.

Eleven women and seventeen men applied for these scholarships, according to Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare. He stated that all the applications were outstanding and that it was "extremely difficult" for the scholarship committee, composed of Dean Edwin C. Browne, Dean Margaret Dougherty, and Dr. Marsh, to pick the winners.

Winners were judged on the basis of their applications, which were in letter form, and grades, according to Dr. Marsh.

Miss Usher is majoring in life-science, and she has an A average.

Pursell is preparing for a teaching career, and he has an A average also.

Miss Baird is majoring in economics, and she has a B average.

Foehr is majoring in predentistry and has a B average.

Jung, Thurlow And Chamberlain Receive Honors

Announcement of three more award winners and an admission innovation for the Friday, June 19, graduation exercises was made this week by Dean Edwin C. Browne, chairman of the commencement ceremonies.

Robert Jung was chosen last week as the Wall Street Journal Award honoree by a committee under the chairmanship of Edward Larson, business education instructor.

The award is presented annually to outstanding business major graduates throughout more than 250 two and four year colleges across the country. It consists of a year's subscription to the Wall Street Journal plus a silver medal.

Jung tentatively plans to further his business studies at Golden Gate College.

The winners of the Alice Eastwood Scholarship are Henry Thurlow and John Morris Chamberlain, Harry Nelson, floriculture instructor, announced. Each of the two floriculture majors will receive $100, which is donated annually by the San Francisco Garden Club. The contestants were judged according to interest in the field, satisfactory grades, and the student's potentiality in floriculture.

The award honors Alice Eastwood of the California Academy of Sciences, renowned horticulturist and botanist.

Thurlow is a graduate of Bates High School, while Chamberlain is an alumnus of Technical High School in Oakland. Both intend to graduate from the college, although not this year.

Limited seating capacity in the Riordan Auditorium has resulted in regulated admission to the commencement ceremonies.

Only ticket-holders will gain entrance to the building and, reminded Dean Browne, a single ticket admits but one person. Five announcements and three bids will be available per graduate at the student bank in the main building after June 1.

Rehearsal is scheduled June 19 at 2 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Prior to the rehearsal, the college Alumni Association is slated to serve coffee and refreshments in the Riordan cafeteria.

Associated Student member graduates are entitled to free caps, gowns, and invitations. Non-members are subject to a four dollar rental fee. Distribution of the caps and gowns follows the rehearsal at 7 p.m. in the cafeteria.

Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of public school, will present the awards at the exercises, assisted by Dr F. Grant Marsh, Coordinator, Division of Student Welfare here. Dr. Archibald J. Cloud, president emeritus of the college, will bestow the President's Award plaque, the winner of which is not to be revealed until that night.

The A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Flossita Badger, will sing at the beginning and close of the ceremonies, with their singing of the college Alma Mater terminating the program.

The following are previously announced award honorees, aside from the above mentioned; a possible tie for the Scholastic Cup between Kenneth Molino and Auguste Helene Shields, and Raymond Joseph Bissig and Arthur C. Adams, Harlan and Nuodex Awards winners.

Selected as student speakers were Louise Gerber, Patricia Simmons, Arthur P. Bray, Norm Heisl, Sally Galvin, and Molino.

work and their spare time, if any, is devoted to the books, but even token attendance at some of the athletic contests to show the players that they have rooters would have been a nice gesture. It is kind of late to be saying things about attendance and interest for the season is almost to the three-o mark, but there always is next season to look forward to and a new start.

It wouldn't take much to prove us wrong about no-interest in sports at Ramdom, because tonight the third annual City College Boxing Tournament is being presented.

We would like nothing better than to be proven wrong, at least not this time, by having a fine turnout to watch the college's pugilists.

Enrollment In Summer Session High; Students May Be Programmed For Selected Classes Until June 22

Students may enroll in the City College summer session until June 22, which is the first day of its classes; according to Alva McMillan, college counsellor in charge of the session's enrollment here.

When a student is programmed for his fall pre-registration, he should sign up for the summer session, if he plans to attend it, McMillan declared. Anyone who is not planning to attend the college in the Fall, but who wishes to go to the summer session, should see his counsellor concerning registration for it, McMillan added.

So far more students have enrolled in the Political Science 36 course than in any other class, with English 1A and Psychology 1A close behind in preference, McMillan commented.

"Counsellors are noting requests for classes not presently on the summer schedule, and if sufficient interest is shown by several students in certain non-listed classes, an effort will be made by the college division of instruction to make these classes available," McMillan said.

Therefore, students intending to enroll in summer classes should do so at their earliest convenience so that classes that they show an interest in and which are not yet scheduled, may possibly be included in the curriculum, he added. There is also a chance that, should enough early interest not be shown in a course already listed on the summer schedule, it will be dropped from the courses of study, McMillan declared.

McMillan said that approximately 500 students from the college have signed up for the summer session to date.

In regard to fall semester pre-registration, McMillan announced that interviews with counsellors will be given in Building 3 until the end of the present semester, but that the sooner a student is programmed the easier it will be for him at Fall registration in September.

Former AS Head To Lead ASUC

Ralph Vetterlein, Associated Student president here during the Spring semester, 1951, was elected student President of the University of California at recent elections on the UC campus, the ASUC office announced this week.

Three candidates ran in the first election, and a run-off was held between the two top contenders.

The total number of ballots cast in the run-off election was 3,349. Vetterlein received 1,792 votes and his opponent, Nat Huggins, was the recipient of 1,557 ballots.

Vetterlein's qualifications for the job, including experience gained here and at Polytechnic High School, where he was also student President.

Eight Students To Vie For King, Queen Honors

All petitions were due last Friday for the Sophomore King-Queen contest, highlighting Sophomore week, June 8-13, Don Moltini, Sophomore class president, announced recently.

At press time, Thursday, eight students had filed petitions, Moltini said. They are De De Cheveri, Kappa Phi; Julie Hanan, Delta Psi; Joe Garbarione, Beta Phi Beta; Gail Pighetti, Zeta Chi; and Roberta Usher, Alpha Gamma Chi.

Students may vote for the king and queen of their choice during sophomore week at the Silver Pole in the main building. Photographs of the candidates will soon be posted around the campus for the voter's benefit.

The winners will be crowned during the semi-annual Sophomore Ball, Saturday, June 13, at the St. Francis Yacht Club, Moltini said.

Bids are $2.50 per couple and may be purchased at the student store, the silver pole, or the student government office in Building 2. Further plans for the ball, which will be informal, are still indefinite, he said.

Webb, Speer Win King-Queen Honors

Winners of the Mardi Gras King and Queen contest were Connie Webb, member of Alpha Kappa Rho, and Sue Speer, who was sponsored by Delta Psi.

The Newman Club received a gold cup as the trophy for having the best float. The club won over close contestants from the Hotel and Restaurant Division, and Kappa Phi. A trophy for the most outstanding club participation was also awarded the Newmanites.

The booth trophy was awarded to the Women's Athletic Association for their dart throwing booth. Runners up were Zeta Chi and Delta Psi sororities.

The trophy for the best marching unit in the parade was presented to the Marines from Treasure Island.

Washington Council Releases Report

Better Educational Opportunities Cited

By Ken Molino

When the National Manpower Council met in Washington, D. C., recently, it released a report, which should awaken students here to the benefits they enjoy. It brought out in bold relief the need being met, the service being rendered, and the above-average opportunity offered by this college -- free to all, regardless of color, or race.

The report stated, "Today, less than half of those capable of acquiring a college degree enter college . . . Negroes are still handicapped by poor education in early life . . ." Fortunately the laffer is not the case in San Francisco's Public Schools where segregation is unheard of, nor is it the case at this college.

The council recommended certain steps to improve the nation's supply of professional and college-trained manpower. Among these was the following:

"1. Increase financial support for colleges and universities by state, and local governments, alumni, business, labor "and other interested groups."

(In the instance of increased governmental support, it is for the federal government to adopt the council's report and for the citizen to back it up to the hilt. Aid from alumni associations, business and labor is something left only to the conscience of the individual -especially the college graduate himself.)

2. Continued public support of "the present program of deferring qualified students in order to enable them to complete their education before they discharge their obligation to military service . . ."

(This recommendation probably stems from the success of recent deferment tests. Because those who would use college attendance as a device for draft-dodging are usually weeded out, this program of deferment examinations is deserving of public support, according to the council.)

3. A directive that the various armed forces "provide sufficient flexibility in their policies governing the calling to active duty of students enrolled in Reserve Officer Training Corps programs so that well-qualified students are permitted to pursue graduate work prior to their military service.

(Although not applicable here at the present time since no junior college in California features an ROTC program, it is felt that the directive might also be applicable to armed forces reserves not serving with a specific "ready" unit. However, no verification of this assumption is available at the present time.)

Doubtless there are many things which might deter a high school graduate in pursuit of a college education. However, barring certain of these which do not lend themselves to solution by outside influence, San Francisco's youth have a great advantage.

This college offers all of the scholastic and most of the other advantages of colleges requiring high tuition fees. The student with financial difficulties is aided by this college's job placement service which endeavors to find work by which the student may supplement his income.

When, and if, the council's recommendations are adopted, the student at City College of San Francisco will benefit proportionately with those of the rest of the nation -- but he should still be far ahead in the field of educational opportunity.

Resolution On ROTC Approved

California's Junior College Student Government Association last month passed a resolution calling for the establishment of "non-compulsory Reserve Officers' Training Corps units on junior college campuses."

At the present time it is "virtually impossible for the transfer student of junior college level to enroll in an ROTC program at a four year college or to receive deferment from military duty on such a basis," according to the association.

561 Sophs Receive Degrees June 19

Simmons, Bray, Molino, Gerber Set To Speak

Riordan High School Commencement Site

By Al Palacio

President Louis G. Conlan will confer Associate in Arts degrees to approximately 561 graduating sophomores at the eighteenth annual commencement ceremonies on Friday, June 19, at 8 p.m., in the Riordan Auditorium.

The commencement exercises, in charge of Dean Edwin C. Browne, are to be held at the site for the first time since the inception of the ceremonies. Last year's locale was the War Memorial Opera House.

Presiding at the ceremonies will be Norm Heise, Associated Student President, who will deliver the welcome speech following the playing of the National Anthem by the orchestra. Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator, Division of Instruction, will assist President Conlan.

Four student speakers, Patricia Simmons, Arthur P. Bray, Kenneth Molino, and Louise Gerber, each representing their major fields, are slated to speak. Their theme is Our Community College. Sally Galvin, AS vice-president, is also listed as a speaker.

Included in the program are speeches by Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of Public Schools; John Levison, president of the Board of Education; and President Conlan.

Dr. Clish, assisted by Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator, Division of Student Welfare, will present the scholarship honors and awards.

Recently named student award winners were the following: Raymond Joseph Bissig, Harlan; Arthur C. Adams, Nuodex; Robert Jung, Wall Street Journal; Henry Thurlow and John Chamberlain, Eastwood; and a tie presently exists between Molino and Auguste Helene Shields for the Scholastic Cup. Winners of the President's Award plaque, to be bestowed by Dr. Archibald J. Cloud, president emeritus of the college, will be announced at the ceremonies.

Permanent student honor members of the college honor society, Alpha Gamma Sigma, are among the graduates.

The musical portion of the program will feature the A Cappella Choir, directed by Flossita Badger, and the college orchestra under the direction of Meyer Cahn.

The choir will sing during the exercises and close the program with the college Alma Mater. Barbara Rolfe and graduating student Ronald Atkinson, both choir officers, will sing a duet.

CHOSEN RECENTLY as student commencement speakers were (l. to r.) Kenneth Molino, A. Philip Bray, Patricia Simmons and Louise Gerber. Topic of their talks is "City College of San Francisco, Our Community College." Although not chosen as department representatives the students come from four distinct departments of the college. Molino studied photography-journalism and leaves the college to take employment in that profession. Bray, an engineering student, will continue his education at the University of California as will Miss Simmons. The latter is a letters and science major. Miss Gerber majors in cooperative merchandising and as part of her program is employed by a local downtown store. Her future plans include a degree from San Jose or San Francisco State College.—Photo by Denevi.

Alumni To Serve Refreshments At Grad Rehearsal

Graduates participating in the commencement ceremonies are scheduled for a rehearsal and refreshments in Riordan High School Auditorium at 2 p.m., Friday, June 19, Dean Edwin C. Browne, in charge of the exercises, disclosed today.

The college Alumni Association will serve coffee and refreshments in the Riordan cafeteria just prior to rehearsal, Charles Osborne, liaison officer of the association, announced. The college hotel and restaurant division will make the preparations.

So as to set up proper seating accommodations in the auditorium, cards are being sent to all prospective graduates. These cards must be sent to the college by return mail, Dean Browne emphasized.

Distribution of caps and gowns is on commencement night at 7 p.m. in the Riordan cafeteria and, Dean Browne pointed out, Associated Student members can procure them free of charge while non-members must pay a four dollar rental fee. Either an AS membership card or a rental receipt must be presented by graduates at the distribution center.

Dean Browne added that five announcements and three tickets are now available per graduate at the student bank in the main building.

Forty Entered On Ballot; One Post Uncontested

Effenberger And Nolte Seek President's Post

By Al Burgin

With polls opening today and tomorrow at 9 a.m., two Inter-Fraternity Council candidates, George Effenberger and Julie Hanan, compete with two independent candidates, Carl Nolte and Ena Aguirre, for the top student governmental positions, president and vice-president, respectively.

In this election the Inter-Fraternity Council lists a full slate, with the exception of a candidate for Sophomore President, and the United Students Association's slate is missing candidates for President, Vice-President, and Sophomore President. Eight candidates entered the race listing no party affiliation. Forty candidates make up the complete ballot as released by Election Commissioner Jim Brownfield.

Last semester's election saw the top positions go to the Inter-Fraternity Council, with the United Students taking one top office, Associated Men Student president.

Voting rules, submitted to Council by Charles Osborne, will be effective in this election.

The rules are as follows:

Every voter shall be required to surrender his Associated Student card for punching, and to sign the register of the poll before he is allowed to cast his vote on the voting machines.

The name and number of the AS card shall be recorded on the register of the poll. The number of recorded votes on the voting machine shall equal the number of signatures on the register of the poll.

Voting machine total shall be checked against the register of the poll at the end of the first day's voting. While on duty, on the day of the election, all election committee members shall wear an identification tag furnished them by the committee.

Rules governing the counting of the votes provide that the totals on the voting machines shall be witnessed by the Election Commissioner, one representative of the IFC and USA, and one independent representative, the President of the Associated Students, and one or more faculty members.

A heated battle looms in the offices for the Associated Men Student and Associated Women Student Presidencies as candidates come from three factions. For AMS President it

AGS Honors Top Graduates With Dinner June 18

Superintendent of Schools Herbert C. Clish, President Louis G. Conlan, members of the administration and faculty, and past graduates of the college who enjoy life membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma will fete current honor graduates at a dinner on Thursday, June 18, according to honor society adviser Don Jensen.

This affair, to be held at Simpson's Fireside Room, 950 Clement Street, is an attempt at establishing a new AGS tradition, Jensen said. He has written all life members of the society for whom he has a current address and, together with this year's honor graduates, they will be asked to take a more active interest in the organization. Aside from making the honor dinner a regular event, Jensen said.

Students who expect to graduate with honors and those who have received Jensen's letter of invitation, should call on him in Building 3 at their earliest convenience regarding reservations.

Presently scheduled for graduation honors are Richard K. Adams, Josephine Ammirati, Georgia Boyce, Samuel Boyce, Arthur Philip Bray, Louise Gerber, Milton Hom, Bob Jung, John Robert Lewis, Beatrice Lundgren, John Madden, Mary Mannion, Lore Menders, Ken Molino, Hercules Morphopoulos, Bette Orton, Diane Perrine, Robert Schleeitz, Elsa Scott, Auguste Helene Shields, Winifred Walker, and Jacqueline Werner.

Chinese Scholarship Winners Announced

Florence Louie and Pauline Low were the recipients of a Sweetheart Ball Scholarship last week, according to Fred Loo, president of the college's Chinese Club.

A portion of the proceeds of the Sweetheart Ball went into these two awards of $35 each, Loo explained. Both winners had maintained a B average.

"I realize that this is not the largest scholarship given, but it is a token given for achievement to the deserving students by their fellow students," Loo said.

Two photographers from the college's photography class, Howard Blanco and Larry Tsagalakis, will be at the affair and are expected to take pictures upon request.

The pictures will be five inches by seven inches, they will cost $1.50 each, and Tsagalakis said, they can be picked up during finals week, June 15 to 19, in Building 9.

It Happened Here . . . The Semester In Review

"THIRTY," the traditional symbol denoting the end of a newspaper story, has been written to the last bit of Guardsman copy for the Spring Semester, 1953. The editorial staff have put away their blue pencils and stories which, for a few short hours, were "hot," which required staff members to burn the midnight oil or to run down their heels chasing a source, are now old stuff—no longer of any importance to anyone.

But, let's take a quick look back on this semester. Let's review the "Big Stories" of each issue and the smaller ones which have since grown into important events.

A new staff took over in February and, before they even knew each other's names, they found themselves putting out a "Registration Edition." Logically, the big story of this first issue concerned "orientation."

Norm Heise and Sally Galvin were pictured as winners of "Top AS Positions," and President Conlan stressed that new and returning students should prepare for effective citizenship "by attending classes regularly; by devoting a reasonable amount of time to preparation and study; and by participation in the wholesome well-rounded activity program of the college."

Issue Number 2 announced the launching of "Know Yourself Better." The college's fourth educational television endeavor featured adult psychology and Dr. Phyllis Haley, faculty member. Other major news of the week concerned the second annual Hotel Day at the St. Francis. Forty students participated, establishing the event as an annual affair, according to Dan London, Executive General Manager of the hotel.

Draft deferment tests, honor society membership acceptance and A Cappella Choir initiation were items of individual appeal in Issue Number 3. But the news story which was featured affected all students. It was the announcement of traditional Club Day. Thirty-five campus organizations feted new and returning students during college hour and a "Club Capers" dance climaxed the festivities.

In essence, Issue Number 4 was an entertainment edition. The drama season was launched with "Outward Bound," the freshman class chose the Fairmont as the site for their first dance of the semester, and the auditorium was chosen for the Variety Show. "Sammie," the redwood ram, received some well-deserved publicity when his spring paint job was done by unknown benefactors, later revealed to be the U. S. A.

Opening of the Spring Variety Show was given banner treatment in Issue Number 5. Other featured items included an announcement of final action on budgets by the Student Council, the AWS Tea, "Spring Fever," and the fact that over 200 students had qualified for membership in the honor society.

Public Schools Week, with open house at the college, a special dinner, music, drama, and various seminars, made the headlines in Number 6. Many visitors were expected, and Dr. Luckman referred to the event as the most successful yet in respect to public response.

The annual Spring Mardi Gras came into the spotlight in Issue Number 7 as participating clubs were urged to complete their booths. Bhorgan Auditorium was chosen for commencement exercises, and keeping in step with the progressive world of science, the college announced a new "space flight course."

"Tenderloin" was featured in Issue Number 8 and the college was cited as a "Logical Source For 'Honest cops.'" At the same time the Student Council investigation revealed parking permit violations and threatened a loss of privileges to offenders. Thirteen candidates were trying out for commencement speech spots.

Issue Number 9 arrived, displaying a queenly array of co-eds on page one. The Mardi Gras festivities were featured and the young ladies were Queen candidates. Also in the picture were some men. A foreign student, in his regular Guardsman column compared the college with a miniature state and told of his amazement in ". . . how much City College has to offer to the students not in its technical side alone but also in personality and social developments of the students." The editorial called for serious consideration by students of the payment of a debt owed the college.

Political Party Conventions, the ISC Dance, scholarship candidates, and commencement speakers shared the spotlight with Forum Magazine, deadline for course drops, and a feature story on the men's gymnasium custodian in Number 10.

Then came last week's issue. It had begun to reflect the coming of elections and pre-commencement fever a malady peculiar to graduating students. Dean Dougherty was pictured receiving her honorary life membership in the City College Alumni, and the better educational opportunities at City College were cited in connection with a news release by the National Manpower Council.

And this, Number 12, is the final final. Budget restrictions eliminated three issues in this 15 week semester, but there were no restrictions on the amount and, especially, the variety of news.

It is difficult to conclude an article such as this—because it can really have no conclusion. This was the news these were the stories which made The Guardsman. But they are no longer important. Next September another staff will take over. The general items will be similar but the details will vary. The Guardsman will continue without conclusion but with just a breather between semesters. So perhaps this item should be ended in the same way, as the staff, with a fond adieu, takes a "breather."

Will Complainers Cry Havoc —Or Take Time Out To Vote

THERE are really not enough printable words to give proper credit to the perpetually complaining citizen—the threat to campus unity. The person who is continually complaining that things aren't handled right and that political leaders all suffer from an occupational misfortune—lack of good sense.

The forementioned citizen always has the best ideas and the very highest of ideals; usually there is nothing he likes more than sitting with a group of cronies and solving all the ills he is intelligent enough to perceive in his political district. The only reason he does not run for office himself is that he doesn't know enough of the "right" people to get elected. If he ever did get elected everything would be straightened out in no time at all.

So says the complaining City College student as he sits drinking a cup of coffee. He expounds upon his favorite topic at length, and as often as not he sits and expounds so long that he forgets to take time out to vote. Thus he has his say with his friends, but he does nothing constructive toward righting all the wrongs that are so perturbing to him.

Today is the day for students with the privilege to vote to go to the polls and let all the college know just how they feel about the candidates and the amendments that less verbally windy but more active students have presented before them for approval or disapproval. From past evidence, however, most people believe that only a small number of those "interested" people will take advantage of their voting right.

No one has ever believed that there is a lack of interest on the part of the student body in general; a walk about the campus would easily dispel any such idea. The problem in the past has appeared to be more one of a lack of close relationship between the average unaffiliated student and the student organizations, specifically the Associated Students.

During the past months the social, political organizations and The Guardsman have conscientiously worked to draw students into a closer union with their governing body by way of a campaign designed to clarify and explain the Associated Students in relation to the student body.

Today is the day that the results of this campaign will be put to the acid test; If this week Student Association elections are well supported, every single person connected with this college can pat himself on the back, for it will prove that an integral bond does and has existed all along among the various divisions of student interest upon this campus. That it is a complete campus and not a heterogeneous mixture of unrelated interests and desires.

Vote, not only for a good student government but for a united college.

Heise And Galvin Speak At Commencement

Acting in his capacity as Associated Student President, Norman Heise (left), graphic arts major here, will host fellow graduates at the coming commencement exercises in Riordan High School Auditorium, June 19. Upon graduation he anticipates a two year navy hitch, after which he will attend San Jose State College in pursuit of a B.A. degree.

Also featured in commencement exercises is Sally Galvin, Associated Student vice-president and education major. A graduate of Oakland's Fremont High School, Miss Galvin has held positions as yell leader, Clean-up Committee Chairman, Social Committee Chairman, and official college hostess.

Four other student speakers will be heard, as will President Louis G. Conlan, Doctors Lloyd D. Luckmann, and F. Grant Marsh.

Editor's Note:

The Guardsman has always maintained a policy of strict impartiality in student government elections. Therefore, the following letter, though very timely and laudable in purpose, is published without signature. The reason for this stems from the fact that the writer is himself a candidate for political office. Although the letter cannot be construed as an attempt at publicity for himself, his name is withheld in order to avoid the slightest doubt as to this paper's adherence to its long-standing and necessary policy.

Editor, The Guardsman:

Elections are again coming to a hot point, which in this college is not unusual (since) they are very confused and a lot of ill feelings among the candidates (exist).

Let me congratulate the election commissioner and his co-chairman for so far handling the on-coming election fair and with dignity. There is only one thing our commissioner, Jim Brownfield, cannot do, that is vote for us. We all have to do that. It is our job and responsibility to come out and voice our opinion of the various delegates; let the best man win.

Inside City College With Mohi ud Dean

All Things, Good And Bad, End Even Student Enthusiasm, Apathy

(Editor's Note: This is the last in a series of articles by Mohi ud Dean, student in journalism here. Dean, an East Indian by descent, a British subject by colonization, and a Fiji Islander by geography, like most foreign students, has had difficulties of adjustment to life on the U. S. In this series he will recount many of these problems in the hope that, in some small way, they will ease the burden of other newcomers to this country by making the American Citizen more understanding.)

The scripture says, "All good things shall come to an end," but to this I'll say "all bad things too shall come to an end." Even this Spring semester shall come to an end, taking away all the good and bad things from this campus in a few weeks.

Many students will leave behind in the registrar's office, a duplicate of their personality picture and grades after completing a two year role in this college. Some records will be good and some bad.

Surely some students will stay, struggle, and strive here 'til their desired aim is fulfilled.

Those who have attained their educational objectives will find themselves in an acrimonious life, or negatively, meeting new faces, forgetting old ones, moving hither and thither to captivate the long planned career.

There will be lots of frustrations and disillusionments, together with the after-college study repercussions felt in the good and bad hours.

In those days don't forget to recall the President's message of welcome, "The principal aim of City College is training for effective vitizenship in our American democracy."

In summer vacation, however, many students will look into distant future in some factory or farm, while others will look into some distant pastures over on the cold High Sierra or in the dry Mexico.

The distant pastures, of course, look always green, but until you come to them . . . It's worth "to make hay while the sun shines."

Many college-leavers will discover that the "old order changeth yielding place to new" for they will undergo adjustment and readjustment periods in many areas of life.

The return-to-college students will find the old west campus being gradually replaced by the new building.

But the caretaker on going in and out of the shaggy rooms in the long vacated west campus buildings will probably smile to see the spiders webs, and the red, brown, yellow, black, and white insects crawling in nooks and corners reminding him of the students of similar descriptions and activities.

With the new semester, will come some new clubs and organizations with the old slogan of pride, promise and prosperity, while the old ones will become memories.

Once again the old apathy will diminish with the renewal of enthusiasm. Then another circle, will begin, bringing good and bad characteristics

"This, too, shall pass away."

Alumni Association

Life Memberships Offered Afford Activities, Mutual Aid

By Dick Meister

Every college has a "school tie" with its graduates in one form or another, and City College is no exception. Here at the college this "tie" takes the form of an active Alumni Association, which all graduates are eligible to join.

The purpose of the organization is mainly to assist in the placement of graduates, with the help of Joseph Amori, City College placement director, who sits on the association Board of Directors. Other work of the group is to assist in the continued growth of the college, to effect a liaison between the college, the students and the alumni, to assist in the continued education of alumni, and to help maintain and perpetuate the traditions of the college.

The association, organized in 1948, hopes to gain many new members from among this year's graduating students. Life membership in the group is growing, and will be open for a limited time at a special low rate of $10, so graduates who wish to become life members in the association should act promptly.

Meetings are held at the discretion of the association President, and one is being planned to take place prior to the June 19 commencement. There are many discussions of importance at the meetings. Some of the subjects covered are plans for new members and upcoming social affairs such as the annual Charter Day Dinner and holiday Christmas party, plus discussions on how to accomplish the purposes of the association.

It was organized through the work of Frank Ferguson, Fall '48 graduate and now a local insurance man, who headed the original Alumni Committee here.

In 1948 Ferguson directed each college club to inform its alumni of the college's official change of name (from San Francisco Junior College to the present name) and to invite THROWING the world into a waste basket isn't a hard job at all—the way the Saphs and Profs do things. This, no doubt will be one of the numerous things that will fill the air when the two adversaries get together Friday, June 12 on the college practice field. Leading the horde of Saphs will be (for left) President Don Moltini. Two of his henchmen are Ben Dito (second from left) and Wolt Rilliet, hurling the globe. The lone member of the Prof squad is Robin "Imo" Dunn. Secret information leaking out of both training fields indicate that a pool of ambulances will be needed to care for sick and wounded participants.—Photo by Pesek.

Zero Hour Approaches For Battle

Oxygen, Plasma, M.D. On Hand For Titanic Struggle; Campus Police To Protect Crowd

Risking what most observers hope is "their lives," the Profs and the Sophs will meet on the field of honor Friday, June 12 in a double college hour session, to decide once and for all (Spring, 1953) the reigning superior force on campus.

Based on a planned strategy intended to infect what many scouts claim are "immature Sophomore minds," the galloping Profs, headed by that master of the under-handed toss, Dean Robin Dunn, are getting set to dig in for an over-extended duration.

Anticipating a record-breaking thumbs-down and murderous crowd of some 5000, an unidentified group is reportedly constructing special stands on the practice field with built-in implements ready made for throwing.

The Sophomore President will definitely not be beheaded this year, despite all rumors to the contrary, an investigating board reported. Instead, after much deviation on the part of several special committees, the victor's trophy will be a year's supply of Lily White's Face Lotion, guaranteed to smooth the skin, layer after layer.

What will the final outcome be? Predictions, although somewhat premature, have been voiced intermittently by various members of the faculty and students alike.

Members of Moltini's Monsters, who have been officially "released" for the fray, are Walt "Noose-Nose" Rilliet, Ben "Agony" Dito, Norm "Lethal" Heise, Joe "Grabber" Garbarino, Lou "Axe-Arm" Sartor, Bob "Boobie" Bondanza, Ray "Hatchet Man" Leister, Connie "Spider" Webb, Dale "Dimple Dome" Stricklin, Don "Much, Much" Moltini, Dino "Nagasaki Nitric" Gofas, George "Gargantua" Effenberger, and Gary "Go Go" Holkins.

From Profmore headquarters, comes the tentative roster which includes Ed "Tarzan" Sandys, Louis "Casey" Batmale, Egbert "Cement" Brix, Mike "Pro" Cahn, Robin "Ima". Dunn, Lee "Bulldog" Eisan, Don "Zoe Ann" Jensen, Roy "Palooka" Burkhead, Roy "Dutch" Diederichsen, Joe "Hurling" Amori, Bill "No Hit" Fischer, Jack "Smiling" Gaddy, Alex "Choke" Schwarz, Ralph "Hot-Eye" Hillsman, and Grover "Galloping" Klemmer.

The fateful day is nearing and pulses are beating with eager rapidity. Classes are seemingly retaining a forgotten light in the minds of the players, but the fans, well, the big day is coming—and you can't afford to miss your throw.

Coach Fischer Picks 'Mythical' All-Time Ram Baseball Squad

By Dick Meister

Bill Fischer, City College's outstanding baseball coach, has just completed his seventh year at the helm of the Rams and we thought it would be interesting to note his choices for a mythical all-star team composed of the standout players he has coached and developed at the college since 1946.

Here is Fischer's "dream" team which would make any coach or manager throw away his aspirin tablets:

First Base . . . John McIntyre, now at the University of California.

Second Base . . . Ben Dito, who played for the Rams this year.

Third Base . . . Al Garmen, who played at Idaho Falls in the Pioneer League.

Short-Stop . . . Bob Nard, later a standout at the University of Santa Clara.

Left-Field . . . Dick Sabatini, once with Phoenix in the Southwestern International League.

Center-Field . . . Cas Munoz, presently starring with the University of California horsehiders.

Right-Field . . . Rudy Buffin, current City College star who led the conference in hitting this season.

Catcher . . . Bob McCarthy, also a sensation at San Francisco State.

Pitchers . . . Hal Flynn, whom the San Francisco Seals have signed and sent to their Class A Western International farm at Yakima, Washington. Jim Hughes, recently with the San Jose Red Sox in the Boston "chain."

For the biggest thrills of his City College coaching career, Fischer says that Zane Kaplan's 410 foot homer in the Modesto Reds Stadium, which decided the championship of the conference in 1948, and Les Grimes' sensational running one-handed catch in the final inning against Santa Rosa with the winning run on second base, just about top all his many exciting moments with the college's baseball squads.

Incidentally, two of Fischer's current stars and a pair of the best players in the conference this year, infielders Jerry Stack and Rudy Buffin, have signed contracts with La Grande, Oregon, in the fast semi-pro Tri-State League up North. Ditto for this reporter, who will also be playing at La Grande this season.

them to come to one of the college's February basketball contests.

Another helper in the original drive for the association's organization was Max Call, president of City College's Associated Students in Spring 1948. The college's various organizations sent a list of prospective members to Call, totaling over 200 graduates interested in forming an alumni association.

One step in organization was to call together all those who had shown interest in the group. This was accomplished by selling tickets to one of four sell-out performances of City College's production of the "Vagabond King," presented by the Opera Workshop students here in 1948, to graduates of the college who were to form the nucleus of the City College Alumni Association.

At an after-the-show reception for the cast, Dr. Richard Kelley, graduate and a local dentist surgeon, was introduced by Dean Edwin C. Browne, then personnel head of the San Francisco School Department.

Dr. Kelley was recognized as acting Alumni President by the student council, thus officially starting the association. Later Trev Burrow, graduate of 1947 and now Executive Secretary of the State Association of Insurance Agents and Managing Editor of the California Agency Bulletin (and incidentally Editor of The Guardsman for Spring 1947) was elected President by the association and remained at that post until 1952.

Ed Frediani, graduate and local attorney, was installed as the group's head in 1952 and is still filling that position.

The Association has a board of directors which currently is composed of 13 members who are:

President Frediani; Secretary-Treasurer Gloria Dunn, City College instructor now on a leave of absence; Vice-President Bob Weingardner, in the management of the California Book Company here and in Berkeley; Past President Burrow; Don Burger, now on active duty with the Marine Corps as a first lieutenant; Max Call, formerly on the Eureka City Council; Richard Simpers, on the City Desk of the Call-Bulletin; Carl Heifenberger, who is assistant to the manager of the Exploration Department of Standard Oil of California; George Mullany, City College instructor; Joseph Amori, placement director here; Don Jensen, college counsellor; Catherine Sheehan, a University of California student and AWS President here in Spring 1951, and Gordon Solman.

Charles Osborne, student here, is the liaison officer between the association and the college. Osborne's duties, first performed by student Herbert Levy in 1948, are to attend all the meetings of the group's board of directors, to invite the president of the Associated Students to important meetings, and to form a link of cooperation between the Alumni Association and the Associated Students of the college.

Applications for admission to the Association may be obtained from Osborne, Mullany, or Amori who will refer them to the group for admittance.

President Frediani urged that graduates not miss the opportunity to join this active group which will form that "school tie" and which is of such service to the college.

Ramblings

By Fred Fukuchi

THE ever pressing march of time has brought to a close another season of athletics to the campus of the City College of San Francisco.

With reasonable assurance, we can safely say that the 1953 season has been one of the more successful seasons in the annals of City College sports. Successful, not necessarily in terms of just conquering, but successful because all the teams displayed the all-important elements of sportsmanship and fortitude throughout the 1953 campaign.

Although no championships were won, City College's team finished above the average in almost every sport. Runner-up position seemed to be a dominant place for the five spring outfits.

For the greatest building job, we'll have to give the nod to the Ram track team. The old phrase, "From rags to riches," is an appropriate statement describing the local cinder men.

From the miserable looking preseason outlook to the conference meet at Sacramento, where the Rams rose to their greatest heights with a stunning second place, there was pleasing evidence of the hard work put forth by the whole squad and Coaches Roy Burkhead and Grover Klemmer.

In the finale, the state meet, individual performances—namely Van Parish — sparked City College into seventh place; better than any Big Seven Conference member.

Another runner-up spot was annexed in league standings when Roy Diederichsen's tennis team eased into second place behind the powerful Modesto Pirates.

Actually the Big Seven Conference in tennis was a lopsided two team affair. Although the Rams lost bitterly to Modesto, there was some consolation in the fact that the Pirates captured the California State Championship.

A third second place position was taken by the golf team. Coach Ralph Hillsman performed his usual fine job in building up the depleted squad into a title contender.

Arch-rival San Mateo wrecked the Rams' bid to a championship by downing the locals in every meeting.

For determination, we take off our hats to the City College swimming team. Handicapped by the lack of a swimming pool on the campus, the Roy Burkhead-led natators diligently worked out at Crystal Plunge in their efforts to carve out a respectable season.

Despite a late start, a good showing they did make, for the Rams placed third in the conference finals at Stockton. Although no visions of upsetting Stockton or Sacramento were seen, the Rams came through with a performance, if it is any indication of the future, that could mean an over-throw of the Stockton and Sacramento monopoly in the near future.

Last but not least is the Ram baseball squad. We have to describe Coach Bill Fischer's club as just a green team which lacked experience. The military draft stripped the mentor of his very few veterans and left the versatile coach with the tough task of building from what he had on hand —all first year men.

We won't go into detail on how the local nine fared in the standings, for it is quite obvious. Look for a good season next year; that is, if Uncle Sam is pretty lenient.

The end of another season has proved again that City College of San Francisco is one of California's great institutions athletically despite the absence of on-campus facilities. This is a fine tribute to the athletes of this college. We hope someday that they can say, the same for the student body for supporting the teams.

Fifty-Five Receive Blocks At Annual Spring Sports Banquet

Fifty-five baseball, basketball, tennis, golf, and track athletes were presented with blocks last week at the annual Block SF awards banquet in the college cafeteria.

Featured guest speaker was Clint Evans, veteran University of California baseball coach.

Six most-valuable player awards were presented to the outstanding athlete of each sport. They went to Bob Bondanza, basketball; William Wright, tennis; Rod Lundquist, swimming; Ron Lawrence, baseball; and Vandolph Parish, track.

The society trophy for meritorious service to the organization was awarded to Rilliet.

The complete list of block winners is as follows:

BASEBALL — Richard Cornfield, Jack Cunningham, Ben Dito, Fred Nyser, Ron Tawse, Ron Lawrence, Sherwood Slatt, Rudolph Buffin, Jim Boccaleoni, Lewis Flores, Jerry Stack, Ed Fernandez, James Kinsberger, Craig Kirkpatrick, Robert Word, and Manager Shelley White.

GOLF — Eugene George, Charles Lowe, Art Pira, and Lou Sartor.

BASKETBALL — Arthur Back, Warren Baxter, Robert Bondanza, Warren Hagberg, Kenneth Hansen, Frank Hess, Don Rolfsuss, Jerry Stack, William Welch, Tony Lazzeri, and Manager Robert Gilmore.

SWIMMING — Ronald Chapman, Noel Dietz, Ken Glazbrook, Weyland Lum, Rod Lundquist, David Murphy, George Rodas, John Stonum, Robert Wong, Ralph Yost, and Manager Dick Avila.

Thinclads 7th In State Meet; Van Parish Cops 100

In their final outing of the 1953 season, the City College track team placed seventh in the finals of the recent California State Junior College Championships held at Visalia's Mineral King Bowl.

The Rams scored 27 points, mainly on the strength of a brilliant 24-point performance by swift Vandolph Parish. Putting his unblemished record in the 100-yard dash on the line against California's fastest dashmen, Parish showed his heels to the opposition and breasted the tape with a winning time of :10.1.

In the 220, the bespectacled speedster settled for a third spot behind LA Harbor's Bill Nunez and millionaire Chuck Swinden of Santa Ana. Winning time in the furlong was :22.2. Parish also entered the 220 low hurdles and garnered a runner-up position behind Billy Gilbert of Mt. San Antonio, the latter covering the distance in :25.3.

City College's Al Carlson finished sixth in the half-mile as the victor, Tom Casper of Mt. San Antonio, posted a 1.55.3 clocking which established a new state record.

In the mile relay, the Ram foursome of Al Amador, Bill Rumford, Cholly Smock, and Carlson, earned a sixth place. Compton captured the four-lapper in 3:24.1, another new standard.

There was no local entry in the mile because Les Andersen bruised a foot prior to the meet and was unable to compete. Pole-vaulter Roy Hutzler also was scratched as he hadn't fully recovered from an illness.

Coach Roy Burkhead should have a bumper crop of cindermen to work with next year as Parish and Walt Rilliet are the lone sophomores.

Linksmen Fifth In State Golf Finals

Ringing down the curtain on what proved to be a successful season, City College's hard hitting golfers captured fifth place in the state finals held at Monterey last May 25.

Walking off with top honors were Santa Monica and Pasadena, who came in first and second respectively. Leading the Ram stickmen was Gene George who carded a sizzling 75 over an 18 hole course which was good enough for second place medal honors. Making the trip down the peninsula with George were Lou Sartor and Art Pira.

On the fairways on May 16, Coach Ralph Hillsman's charges took second place in the Big Seven Conference Medal Tournament at Stockton's Country Club Course.

The championship match was played off with divisions of first, second, third, fourth, and fifth men playing the league field respectively.

San Francisco's number one sticker, George suffered one of his few bad days with scores of 86 and 92, but was still able to nab second.

The Rams' number two man, Sartor, took a first against the five team field of number two players with scores of 82 and 83. Chuck Low's 93 and 90 put him in fifth place in third-men standings.

Candidates, Party Make Campaign Statements

CARL NOLTE, running for Associated Student President as an independent candidate, issued today the following campaign statement:

"Regular oil change means longer car life. What holds true for your car holds true for your student government. Regular change guarantees that your government represents the majority and not a minority clique.

"For the past seven semesters, the members of the Inter-Fraternity Council have dominated Student Government. Under IFC government, school spirit has steadily declined, school activities have been more sparsely attended, and City College now has the unhappy distinction of having the second lowest percentage of AS card holders (36 per cent).

"It's time for a change. And only the election of independent candidates, beholden to no minority pressure group, representative of the vast majority of INDEPENDENT students can improve this deplorable situation."

Independent Candidates

Associated Student President: Carl Nolte.
Associated Student Vice-President: Ena Aguirre.
Associated Men Student President: Bill Bixby.
Associated Women Student President: Barbara Campello.
Sophomore President: Keith Franks.
Freshman President: Kent Lundgren.
Freshman Council Members: Claudia Gossin, Diane Tolman.

Bank Bills Must Be Paid By June 12

Sponsors of student activities were warned last week by Dean Louis G. Batmale that the Associated Student bank will close its Spring semester books on Friday, June 12.

"Therefore," Batmale advised, "all bills must be filed for payment not later than June 10." No requests for purchase orders will be accepted after June 8, he said, and continued that all business should be arranged to conform to this schedule submitted by Roberta Fredricks, cashier, and Carl Anderson, bookkeeper.

"The past achievements of the United Students Association demonstrated to the voters that our primary objective is to serve all interests by providing a truly representative type of government.

"We have nominated qualified candidates who will continue to uphold the high principles we have maintained in the past.

Graduates Give '53 Scholarships

Collection for the Class of 1953 Scholarships will take place at the commencement exercises Friday, June 19, Maurice Power, member of the Student-Faculty Relations Committee, said this week.

The sum of $1 is suggested by Power as a reasonable contribution. However, students are urged to give whatever they feel they are able to contribute.

This fund was initiated by the Student-Faculty Relations Committee and has been in operation since 1951, Power said.

In 1951, enough money was collected to provide for three scholarships of $50 each. Last year the Class of 1952 provided the money for two $50 awards, he added.

Students applying for these scholarships must have been in attendance at the college for one semester and maintained a B average.

Fall Registration Dates Postponed

Postponement of fall registration has made all previously stamped pre-registration programs incorrect, F. Grant Marsh, Coordinator of Student Welfare, announced earlier this week.

Registration will be conducted on Monday, September 14 for former students and Tuesday, September 15 for entering students Marsh stated. Registration had previously been calendared for Thursday, September 10 and Friday, Sept. 11.

According to Marsh classes will commence on Wednesday, September 16.

The cooperation and spirit that has been displayed is enough to make any one in Student Government proud that he attends the City College of San Francisco. I only hope that it continues to magnify as it has so greatly in the past two semesters.

Mrs. Shields Goes To College

Top Student Busy Housewife

"Go right home . . . Your son just fell and impaled his leg on a spike."

This message was received in class recently by a student here. Fortunately, the wound was not too serious and, just as fortunately, not all the trials of this student are quite so serious. But, being a wife, mother of three sons, a home-maker and an honor student does have its tribulations.

What is most surprising in all this is that the student in question (one of two tied for the college scholastic cup) has carried a minimum of 16 units per semester and achieved a 2.97 grade point average.

According to Helene Shields, it was just a matter of hard work and long range planning. "I've been trying to attend college for a long time," she said recently, "but I had to wait until there were no more diapers to wash!"

Actually she has aimed at a college education since the age of 14 when, surprisingly, she graduated from high school. However, she found it necessary to go to work and postpone her entry into college.

When her chance came a second time Dan Cupid had raised his head and Clem Shields entered the picture. It was her husband's urging, that prompted Mrs. Shields to finally register here in 1951, she advised.

The two sons living at home, Joe and John, 8 and 11 respectively, help to make her schedule enough to frighten the most hearty. Her day begins at 5 a.m. everyday—and ends at 1 a.m.—everyday.

Her average class day is from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. and the afternoons are devoted to housework—washing, mending, more cooking, and cleaning. Mrs. Shields gives much of the credit for her fine scholastic record to modern appliances, without which, "I'd be lost—especially the dishwasher."

Bedtime for the youngsters is somewhere between 8 and 9 p.m. and then the study begins in earnest, lasting until 1 a.m. She does take time out on certain nights for wrestling or boxing via television.

Not content with this gargantuan schedule, Mrs. Shields is Vice-President of Alpha Gamma Sigma, a member of Forum Magazine's Editorial Staff, and a contributor to Forum.

The University of California is her next stop and, after that, she hopes to find a position in the teaching field—preferably on the college level.

And all this on four hours sleep a night!

Dunn Cites CAB Leadership

Board Plans Fall Elections, Forms Two New Permanent Committees

Club Activities Board members will choose their fall semester officers in an election slated for the regular board meeting time at 1 o'clock Tuesday, June 9, in Room 2A.

In making this announcement, Pat Miller, graduating president, urged each club to send a representative to the meeting. Full representation and "the cooperation among the representatives who comprise the board" are the major factors in the success of CAB's spring semester program, he said.

In discussing the activities of the semester, Miller mentioned Club Day and the dance following as CAB's largest undertaking. He noted that the dance, a very successful on-campus affair, featured the innovation of seating the band in the center of the dance floor.

Two new committees have been initiated by CAB this semester, Miller stated. The Advisory Committee, headed by John Walker, which will help clubs to promote dances that are open to the Associated Students, is divided into two sections. Barbara Davis and Molly Inzunza are co-chairmen in charge of ticket sales; Ernie Jaurequi and Jan Terry head the publicity section.

The Membership Committee, a standing committee of the group, reviews the constitutions of organizations wishing to come on campus before they are submitted to CAB. This committee is headed by the Vice-President.

Regarding the activities of the group this semester, Robin Dunn, advisor stated: "Through able student leadership and club participation, CAB this semester has been most successful in accomplishing its basic purposes — those of promoting and encouraging student activities. It is hoped that a group of equal interest will carry on next semester's CAB program."

CAB is composed of one representative from each organization on campus. Meetings are open to all interested students.

Other officers who have assisted Miller are Vice President, Gayle Pighetti; Recording Secretary, Mildred Stoll; Corresponding Secretary, Peggy Chase.

AS Card Sales Drive Breaks Record; 1500 Cards Sold During First Week

Semester Goal Set At 100 Per Cent; AMS, AWS Contest In Progress

Sales of Associated Student cards broke previous first week records here, setting the new high at fifteen hundred membership cards sold in the first week, Stan Shalit, Associated Student card sales chairman, announced last week.

This record surpasses the total number of cards sold during the entire semester last fall. Shalit attributes much of this to the enthusiasm of the sales committee and the spirit of City College students.

The sales committee has set this semester's goal at one hundred per cent or 3500 cards. Shalit pointed out that the Associated Student members are entitled to attend free of charge all dances, rallies, plays and sporting events sponsored by the association. The card also allows them discounts and on campus parking.

Vice-chairman Wray Jacobs cautioned all students to sign their AS cards and said that any one found borrowing or lending the cards will be dealt with accordingly.

Joanne Hassman, Associated Women Student president, and Dino Gofas, Associated Men Student president, announced a contest between the two organizations. The organization selling the most Associated Student cards will be the first to receive a new perpetual trophy.

"It is a source of gratification to me to realize that the students of City College of San Francisco have given so much support to their college. This is exemplified by the large number of Associated Student cards sold, and by students who have come to me and other student officers to volunteer to render aid to the college. This support looks good for the future of our institution, and it will benefit our activity program during the remainder of the semester."

Parking Permits Now In Effect

Parking permits [illegible] available to members of the Associated Students at the office of Dean Edwin C. Browne, went into effect last Monday, and any student parking on the west campus without one will be given an official parking ticket, according to Browne.

The parking fines, given by the campus police, the Dean warned, are payable to the City of San Francisco, and must not be ignored.

Permits still may be obtained by presentation of an Associated Student card and an operator's license at Dean Browne's office.

Traffic regulations specify that parking back of the main building is permissible, except in red, yellow, or white zones.

Student Association Important Phase Of City College Training

ANOTHER semester is begun with its students, new and old alike, who should be eager to participate in City College's many activities, social as well as academic.

We all know that classes and study compose only one phase of collegiate life. This phase develops the intellectual capacities of the student, but what of his social being?

Needless to point out, it's of the utmost importance for us to pursue our classroom studies, but in the ever-shrinking world of today we are constantly in contact with many persons, and social development is a prime educational necessity. In fact, it is a necessity on a plane with technical knowledge in making "well-rounded" persons of all of us. To become "well-rounded" individuals, students must have experience and training among their fellow classmates outside of the usual classroom atmosphere.

There are many so-called intellectuals who, while being tops in their special field, receive far from a genius rating in their everyday social contacts with their fellow man.

Why?

Simply because they devote so much unnecessary time to their professional work that they neglect any outside social activities. The "professional work" of students is, of course, studying. We, as college students with our minds still being moulded, can and must avoid the mistake of these "intellectuals" by not neglecting outside social activities in favor of burying ourselves in our "professional work."

Diligence in studies naturally is the student's main college objective, but a balance should be struck between his studies and his social life if the student wishes to become a truly successful person after graduation.

What better way to strike this balance than to become an active member of the Associated Students of City College, where all can learn, plan, and enjoy themselves together. We are attending one of the finest two year institutions in the nation and our student association should reflect this fact.

Only with the whole-hearted support of the students here can the association's reputation match the fine reputation of the college itself.

Clubs Meet New Students Oct. 9

Students of the college will have a chance to join the various clubs here, as Club Day, sponsored by the Club Activities Board, gets under way during college hour, Friday, October 9, in the Student Lounge.

Club Day is being held mainly to stimulate interest among the students in the CAB and in the other organizations in the college, and to increase their membership, Dave Raphael, president of the CAB, said recently.

Representatives of every club in the college will attend the tables in the student lounge during college hour, where interested students may sign up to join the clubs of their choice.

Raphael, and the other CAB officers, Gayle Southard, vice-president; Mildred Pinkus, corresponding secretary; and Barbara Campello, recording secretary, plan to hold a dance in the college auditorium to end this semester's Club Day activities.

According to Raphael, each club will have a hand in presenting the dance.

Total Fall Income Should Hit $18,000

Associated Student income for the fall semester 1953 should total $18,000, according to Wray Jacobs, Finance Committee chairman.

The sale of Associated Students cards is the main source of income, Jacobs said, and the goal set for this semester is $17,000.

The Finance Committee also expects income from the management of the student store, the Ramporium, and from college dances and football games, Chairman Jacobs declared.

A few of the activities to which financial support is given are dances, all sports, the campus police, college publications, etc.

Other members of the finance committee are AS President George Effenberger, Larry Elizarde and Ron Byrne.

The distance across the state of Texas at its widest part is greater than the distance from New York to Chicago.

Board Approves Press Schedule

A publication schedule for The Guardsman was drawn up last week by the Publications Board, Dick Meister, new board chairman, announced last week.

Twelve issues of the paper are slated to appear this semester, pending Finance Committee and Council approval.

With the exception of holidays such as Thanksgiving and Christmas, The Guardsman is scheduled to be published each Wednesday. The dates are October 7, October 14, October 21, October 28, November 4, November 18, November 25, December 9, January 6, January 13, and January 20.

Issues of the paper will be distributed by members of the Rally Committee, Meister said. Permanent distribution centers are the silver pole, the cafeteria, and the ramp in front of the fountain.

The Publications Board, as appointed by Chairman Meister, includes George Effenberger, Associated Student president; Julie Hanan, Associated Student vice-president; Wray Jacobs, Finance Committee chairman; and Shirley Murphy, Managing Editor of The Guardsman. Film Series To Start Next Friday

First in the series of Friday college hour series films, in Room 136, main building, will commence this Friday at four different periods, Madison Delvin of the audio visual aids department, announced recently.

Featured this week is American Airlines offers Seal Island, a 27 minute Walt Disney color production, depicting the natural drama of the fur seal on the remote reefs in the Bering Sea, together with the life cycle story, through the melee of courtship, battle, family life, birth and death, Delvin indicated.

The four periods in which the film will be shown are as follows: 9:50 a.m., 10:40 a.m., 11:30 a.m., and 12:20 p.m.

Delvin asked that students seeking part time employment who have had experience running motion picture projectors apply to him in Room 155 for work during their free hours between classes.

Experience is desirable, he added, but not absolutely necessary, and students must be American citizens and residents of San Francisco.

Club Day Highlights Week's Events

Club Carnival Dance To Be Held Friday Night

Club Carnival, the dance climaxing the activities of Club Day, will be held Friday night, October 9, in the college auditorium, Dave Raphael, CAB chairman, announced at the September 29 meeting of the board.

The dance, a sport affair, will last from 9 p.m. to 12. Walt Tolleson's Orchestra will supply the music.

Members of the Associated Students will be admitted to the dance free. Admission to students who do not own AS cards will be 50 cents.

Gayle Southard, CAB vice president, is chairman of the dance committee and in charge of refreshments. Responsibility for the various phases of preparation for the dance has been delegated to other CAB members. Kay Owen is head of the decorations committee; Ted Kast, publicity; and Barbara Campello, music.

Ruth Wolff, Ed Hjerpe, Ron Orsalini, Miss Southard, Kast, and Raphael are working on decorations.

The refreshment committee is comprised of Mildred Stoll, Jan Michel, Alice St. Louis, Miss Wolff, and Miss Campello.

Raphael and Wray Jacobs are aiding Kast on publicity.

Soft drinks will be sold by Miss Southard, Miss Wolff, and Jim Vickers.

The dance was inaugurated as part of Club Day last semester. Because of the success of the affair, which featured the innovation of situating the band in the middle of the dance floor, CAB is sponsoring a dance again this semester, Raphael commented.

Council Approves Yell Leader Appointments; Vacancies Filled

At the weekly meetings of the Associated Students Council, held in Building 2, last week, several decisions of interest and importance to the Associated Students were made.

Head Yell Leader for City College this semester will be Bill Bixby, who gave evidence of his cheer leading ability at the Menlo-City College game.

Other positions were approved by council. They were Harry Roebling, Alumni Liaison Officer; Larry Elizarde, Election Commissioner, and Gary Halkens, Men's Athletic Commissioner.

In addition to the above appointments, two council positions were filled; Ed Hjerpe and Connie Marvellas were elected to take the jobs vacated by Bill Svabek and Don Douglas.

Wray Jacobs, Finance Chairman, presented a financial statement sheet, and then went over the budget for the Fall semester. To date those receiving all or part of the total sum requested are A Cappella Choir, Alpha Gamma Sigma, Drama, Band and Orchestra, Rally Committee, Social Committee, Freshman Class, Campus Police, Phi Rho Pi, The Guardsman, and Club Activities Board, which will hold its dance Friday in the campus auditorium, dancing to start at 9 p.m.

Congratulations went out to Stan Shalit and his committee for the fine way in which they handled the Associated Students cards. It was pointed out that $8,600 worth of cards were sold in the first two weeks of registration.

A point of information was made. For all clubs concerned the Club Advisory Board announced that the blue registration cards, filled out by each student, are on file in Building 2 and may be used by anyone authorized to do so.

AS President George Effenberger pointed out that meetings of the Council are open to all Association members.

AMS Extends Deadline For Queen Petitions

Deadline for submitting petitions for queen of the Homecoming week has been extended from last Monday to tomorrow at 2 p.m., according to Dino Gofas, AMS president.

Home-coming week will be October 13-16.

Gofas stated that the first activity will be a rally at 8 p.m., Thursday, October 15. The rally will be immediately followed by a Homecoming dance which will last from 9 to 12. Admission to the dance will be free to all members of the Associated Students, but will be 50 cents to all others.

The feature attraction at the dance will be the crowning of the Homecoming queen. She will be chosen by a ballot vote of Associated Student members. Ballot boxes will be placed in the Ramporium, the silver pole in the main building, and in front of The Guardsman office in Building 4.

The festivities will reach their peak Friday night, October 16, when the college meets Los Angeles City College in Kezar Stadium at 8 p.m.

AWS Ahead 20 Sales In Contest With AMS

The Associated Women Students lead the Associated Men Students by 20 sales in the AWS-AMS card selling contest, Dino Gofas, AMS president, announced last week.

During registration week, "members of both organizations did an excellent job," he said, but no records were kept since the contest did not begin until the second week of the semester.

Concerning the progress of the contest, Gofas said "the women were not out in front because of superior salesmanship, but because of that ancient thing called sex appeal."

413 Korean Vets Attending College

Korean War veterans, attending the college this semester under the GI bill, which renders educational benefits to veterans of the Korean War, have exceeded the number of last semester's attendance, Robin Dunn, assistant to the coordinator of Student Welfare, announced recently.

The enrollment figure of veterans taking advantage of the bill up to this date is 413, but the estimated figure is expected to be somewhere in the neighborhood of 500, Dunn said.

Under the State of California Bill, which is an extension of the Federal Bill—maximum three years—five students are studying here, Dunn noted.

Every veteran, Dunn urged, must report to the Veterans Administration Office, in Building 3 on the west campus, to sign a monthly report of certification.

Usually the reception of veterans commences at the end of each month and terminates on the second day of the following month, except in the case of late arrivals, when an extra day may be added.

AWS Schedules Tea For Incoming Women

The traditional Associated Women Student tea and fashion show for women students of Bay area high schools is scheduled for Thursday, November 19 at 2 o'clock, according to AWS president, Joanne Hassman.

Details for the event, which is held each semester to honor those women interested in City College, are being completed by Miss Hassman and the other AWS officers, vice-president Dottie Cutler, and Secretary Jan Sewell.

Other committee members include Millie Pinkus, Barbara Campello, Gayle Southard, Loretta Warchot, Sue Suomela and Emily Hardy. A place to hold the event will be decided upon later, officers said.

Organizations Set To Meet New Students In Lounge During College Hour Friday; 2000 Students Due

By Gail Moss

Club Day, coming up this Friday, promises to be one of the top events of the semester, according to Dave Raphael, president of the Club Activities Board, which sponsors the festivities.

Booths and exhibits, to acquaint the students with the various clubs, fraternities, sororities, and other organizations of the college, will be set up in the student lounge, and officers and representatives of the different Clubs will be present to answer any questions about the activities of their respective organizations.

The day's events will begin during college hour, 10:40 a.m., and continue throughout the day, terminating in a dance in the auditorium from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Club Day is presented by the CAB to give every student a chance to know and participate in one or more of the variety of activities on the campus, Raphael stated that the CAB expects more than 2000 students to visit the booths, and they hope that most of them will find at least one group that is of special interest.

Those interested in the general college groups may visit one of these:

The Associated Men Students, led by President Dino Gofas and faculty advisers Thomas D. Nesbitt and Tom Wilson, an organization composed of all men who are members of the Associated Students; the Associated Women Students, headed by President Joanne Hassman and faculty adviser Mary Golding, Dean of Women, the organization for the women members of the Associated Students; the Rally Committee, led by President Marilee Scholl and faculty adviser Louis Batmale, the group in charge of all rallies and programs; and the freshman and sophomore classes, under Charles Smock and Keith Franks, respectively.

Those athletically inclined students will be interested in the Block SF, composed of athletes who have won letters in the college's athletic fields, or the Women's Athletic Association, guided by Colleen Walker, president, and Vivian Bernard, faculty adviser.

Special interest groups include the Canterbury Club, an organization of students of the Episcopal faith led by President Jane Peterson and Chester E. Crowell, faculty adviser; Collegiate Christian Fellowship, headed by Christina Hansen, president, and W. Howard Schoon, faculty adviser; the Hillel Foundation, a Jewish religious group, and the Newman Club, serving Catholic and other interested students. Mike Aggeler is president of the latter group, and John M. Selig is the adviser.

Also in this religious group is the Lutheran Club, a discussion group founded for Lutheran students.

There are many other clubs of special interest. Some of them are the Globe and Anchor, composed of former Marines and active Marine reservists, the Horticulture Society, and the Latin-American Club.

The honor societies are Alpha Gamma Sigma, under President Marty Bragen and adviser Don Jensen, whose only requirement is scholarship, and Alpha Phi Omega, a fraternity composed of men with previous training in scouting. The president of the latter is Ernest Jaurequi, and the faculty adviser is Donald Shaw.

Among the professional groups may be found the Forum Club, a discussion group on literary and social topics; Phi Rho Pi, the honorary debate society; and the Pick and Hammer Society, for students interested in geology.

There are nine recognized fraternities and six recognized sororities on the campus.

The fraternities include Alpha Sigma Delta, under President Joe Vilardi and adviser Russell Posnery Beta Phi Beta, led by Del Alonzo, president and Michael Joseph, faculty adviser; Beta Tau, headed by President Dave Hanak and adviser George Stewart; Kappa Rho, guided by Bill Bixby, president, and Wilber McKenzie, the sponsor; Lambda Phi, whose president is Chuck Carlston and adviser is Robin Dunn; Phi Beta Delta, headed by President Ron Blessing and sponsor Elmer Patterson; and Tau Chi Sigma, presided over by President Ralph Hnessler and directed by Merritt Beckerman.

Some of the sororities are Alpha Lambda Chi, headed by President Millie Pinkus and sponsor Carolyn Riedeman; Delta Psi, under President Marilee Scholl and directed by Martha Scott; Kappa Phi, led by Jane Zelinsky, president, and adviser Valerie Phillips; Phi Beta Rho, guided by President Barbara Harris and sponsor Evelyn Kerkhof; Theta Tau, under Alberta Cordini, president, and Gertrude Norgard, adviser; and Zeta Chi, led by President Connie Coleman and sponsor Catherine Shorb.

These fraternities and sororities aim for a fully rounded campus life and service to the college.

This is a list of some of the organizations around the campus. The CAB officers—Raphael, Vice-President Gayle Southard, Corresponding Secretary Millie Pinkus, and Recording Secretary Barbara Campello, have all worked, along with the other members of the board, to make Club Day a success.

Choir Officers Plan Activities

Numerous activities and civic functions are being planned for the college A Cappella Choir this semester.

Manager Glenn Wescott, and his assistants, Joyce Cody and Virginia Llanes, are officers in charge of the activities. So far the dates have not been posted, but the plans are based upon civic functions, the annual Christmas program, and a college recital featuring the choir and the Men's Glee Club.

A trip to the peninsula is also scheduled, officers said, along with the traditional award dinner where members will receive pins.

As of last week, Richard Vine, choir director this year, stated that the choir is composed of 60 members. In order to have a successful year, at least 20 more voices are needed, especially basses, he said.

AGS To Advise Of Eligibility Friday

Alpha Gamma Sigma will be represented during college hour, Friday, October 9, to help students find out if they are eligible for membership.

Eligibility for lifetime membership is achieved by a 2.3 grade point average for three out of four semesters. For temporary membership in the honor society a student must maintain a 2.0 grade point average with at least 30 grade points in the previous semester. High school graduates who are Gold Seal Bearers become associate members during their first semester at the college.

Interested students should call on Don Jensen, faculty adviser of the AGS, as soon as possible, regarding details for membership. Jensen is located in Building 3.

Denman Award Availabte Again

The Denman Scholarship will again be awarded this year to two women students who fulfill its requirements, Mary Golding, dean of women, announced yesterday.

Women students who are graduates of San Francisco Public High Schools and have completed 30 units of work at the college with a "B" average or better are eligible for the $125 scholarship. Those interested must submit their application to Dean Golding in Building 2 not later than Monday, October 19, 1953.

Another scholarship available this year, Dean Golding said, is the Florence Louis Scholarship of $25 and an Associated Student card to be awarded to a woman student who has completed 30 units of work at the college with a good average.

Various other scholarships are also awarded to qualifying students.

Traditional Club Day Helps Students Reach College Goal

ANY major aspect of college event and activity is composed of individuals who, while functioning as an organized group moving toward a common goal, have varying ways of reaching that goal.

The students of City College really mean what they are active in their free support of the Associated Student organization whose goal is to give a varied and well-rounded life for those at the college. As a result, while most of us belong to one or more clubs together the same goal, under-lying some different methods of reaching that goal, and purposes.

Some are interested in fraternities, some in sororities, some in religious groups, some in clubs dealing with their major study field, and some in other campus organizations.

We feel, in the opinion of many students here, may be there is a [illegible] of [illegible] to [illegible] to [illegible] "collegiate happiness and well-roundedness."

Realization of [illegible] interests are of the many clubs here to [illegible] to [illegible] to the understanding of City College's [illegible] Club Day, a function which has benefited [illegible] many of the college's students past and present.

Elsewhere in this issue of The Guardsman can be found a list of the many clubs immediately all are offered membership. We're certain that this "offer" won't be ignored by this semester's spirited group, but we do urge everyone, whatever their "outside-of-class" wants may be to look over the list and to choose an organization whose activity is appealing to them.

On Club Day, during college hour, Friday, all the College Lounge are "jammed" with interest with the representatives of their clubs at the [illegible]. If those are those who are interested [illegible] and [illegible] to go into the lounge and to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the club representatives themselves, and quite willing and eager to help students find an outlet for their [illegible] need, that common thought [illegible] a particular field of extra-curricular activity.

Support Will Put Ram Team On Map

THE sports page is the usual space for mention of football and such things, but since it is the fall semester when football is the college student's main extra-curricular activity, we have a comment or two concerning the sport.

City College is far from being a big time football "power," but are we so sophisticated that we can't go for the hard fought smaller college games such as are played by our team?

Naturally not.

All that will put smaller football teams on the map is support from your support.

Go out and see the Rams play. Yell for 'em: you'll get more enjoyment from the experience than you can image and you'll benefit not only yourself, but your team and your college as well.

See you at the game!

Models are needed to pose for the portrait and advertising photography classes according to Charles Lamp, head of City College's photography department. Positions are open on Tuesdays and Thursdays during the hours of 8 and 12 and 1 to 5.

Lamp stated that grade units can not be received from the course since it is not officially listed in the college's catalog, but valuable experience can be acquired in their place.

As an example, he named Mrs. Paula Desmond, formerly Sue Speer, as one of the successful professional models produced by the course. Mrs. Desmond who was attending the college until June 1953, was recently chosen model of the month at the House of Charm and presently is posing for many San Francisco stores, including Macy's.

During her stay at the college Mrs. Desmond was very much a part of student activities, serving on the rally committee, participating actively in the Delta Psi sorority, posing for the display of the photography and portrait classes put on during Education Week, and reigning as queen of the 1953 Mardi Gras.

To sign up for course applicants should apply to Charles Lamp in Building 9. Any and all volunteers will be given consideration.

WAA In First Playday Today

Latest news from the Women's Athletic Association is the schedule for high school playdays. The WAA sponsors these playdays in order to acquaint high school girls, interested in City College, with the physical education and WAA program.

The first playday, according to the schedule adopted last Friday, is today, with Mission and Balboa, the guest schools, playing volleyball. Both tennis and volleyball will be enjoyed by Lowell, Washington and Lincoln on October 28. Volleyball again is the main interest on November 18 with Polytechnic and Lowell. And finally a badminton playday with Washington on December 9.

Plans were drawn up for junior college playdays last Friday when President Colleen Walker attended a conference at San Mateo Jr. College.

Drama Club Sets First Play Date

Made Animal, the first play to be presented by college drama section, will be held Friday and Saturday, October 23 and 24, according to Michael Griffin, director.

The play was written by Elliott Nugent and James Thurber and is the first in a series of three to be presented this semester.

In addition several one act plays are being prepared for college hour production, Griffin said, adding that later in the semester Kind Lady, adapted from a story by Hugh Walpole, and The Glass Menagerie, by Tennessee Williams, will be produced.

Among the students performing in and assisting on production of these shows will be Lee Ann Meriewether, Kay Owen, Oscar Anderson, Richard Romich, Jean Slater, Myrl Britton, Bernyce Herzberg, Don Pitts, Joan Hays, Wilfred Bixby, Ed Freeman, Ron Glasson, Bobbie Wallace, Stan Cartwright, Agnes Dietrich, Bruce Gomer, Joe Campten, Herb Smith, Anne Monega, Joyce Cody, Lois Storms, Dino Gofas, M. H. Friedrichsen and Sonia Seeboln.

Successful 'Parking' Plan In Operation

'Shuttle Bus Service' For Students?

With the mixed up parking problem at the beginning of this semester, it looked for awhile as if the college needed a student bus, comparable to the downtown "Shoppers' Shuttle Service," to bring students from fringe parking areas on to the campus.

Dean Edwin C. Browne and his able assistant "Butt," who, by the way, is a golden cocker spaniel, have been exerting their efforts for the last two weeks in solving this problem.

The double row of parking in front of Building 2 is evidence of a carefully worked out plan.

After a student parks his car, he goes to the Dean's office on the second floor where he presents his Associated Student card and car registration card. There he is given a yellow permit card on which he gives data about his car. In the upper right hand corner of this card is a permit number which corresponds to the number on the sticker Dean Browne places on his windshield.

BUFF HELPS SOLVE PARKING PROBLEM

In the past, the students themselves have taken care of applying the parking stickers. However, this semester the Dean, with the aid of a group of men students, has done the job himself.

Terry Rothwell, Henry Schaeffer, Harold Jackson, Donald Braud, Paul Moreau, and Allen Chalmers have given of their services.

These men were handy with a pitcher of water to soak the little red stickers in preparation for the Dean's application. When things were busy, both downstairs, where the cars were parked, and upstairs in the Dean's office, the men had plenty to do.

The Dean found it necessary sometimes to remain in his office. Then he would drop the stickers from the window to his helpers below who stuck them on the windshields.

With the exception of a few windy days which were hazardous to this window operation, the assembly line went on quite smoothly.

"Buff," the accomplice mentioned earlier, did a man's job as he ran back to the Dean's office with the yellow permits for Dean Browne's secretary to file.

As Dean Browne and his crew put away their buckets and stickers they know that in another six months, after registration, they will have similar problems to remedy.

Five Returning Veterans Bolster Phi Rho Pi Debaters For First Meet

With the return of five veterans, Phi Rho Pi debaters enter their first meet on Tuesday, October 13, with University of San Francisco and San Francisco State, at the State campus.

The five returning veterans are George Effenberger, newly elected AS president, George Lippi, John Walker, Noel Marsh and Ken Feldin. The transfer from S. F. State of Carmel Todare, and Grant Barns, both of whom have won championships in the field of speech, add to the list of veterans. The debate society is well prepared for any opposition facing them in their National program, according to Thomas Dutcher, society adviser.

Effenberger will represent the college in a radio broadcast debate at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow. The topic of this debate is, The College Student's Outlook at Universal Training and the Draft, and will be broadcast over station KCBS.

Phi Rho Pi is a member of the Northern California Forensic Society. This is an organization consisting of the 10 major Colleges and Universities in Northern California. Participation is done in such fields as Radio, Panel and Round Table Discussion throughout the State.

Students who are owners of Associated Student cards, and are interested in joining Phi Rho Pi may do so by getting in touch with the adviser in Building 4, Room X.

Last year's debating team won such honors as tying for sweepstakes at the Stanford debate and winning merit awards at the Student Congress conducted at St. Mary's College.

Deferment Test Blanks Available

Applications for the November 19, 1953 and the April 22, 1954 college qualification tests are now reported available by the Educational Testing Service at Selective Service System local boards throughout the country.

Eligible students, those who have at least a 15 unit program and passing grades, should fill out the application immediately in the envelope provided and send to Selective Service Examining Section, Educational Testing Service, P. O. Box 586, Princeton, New Jersey.

It is important that applications for the November 19 test be postmarked no later than midnight, November 2, 1953, regulations state.

According to the Educational Testing Service, it will be to the student's advantage to file his application at once, regardless of the testing date he selects.

The results of the test will be reported to the student's Selective Service local board of jurisdiction for use in considering his deferment as a student.

The National Park system of the United States, administered by the National Park service, a bureau of the Department of Interior, embraces a total of 173 areas, containing approximately 21,820,000 acres in federal ownership.

President Predicts Closer Unity When New Building Completed

By Joan Anderson

With the completion of the new library classroom building, progressing as scheduled to be ready for classes in the Spring, and the new student union building next Fall, President Louis G. Conlan expressed the opinion in a recent interview that students will become closer to the college and its activities.

The new building which will contain class rooms and library and completion of two units is expected to mark the end of the use of the west campus.

President Conlan paid tribute to the returning students for their friendliness and to the Associated Women Students for their assistance during registration. "The educational program, with the cooperation of the faculty, swept into action without delay after only two registration days," he said.

"Because of increased enrollment and a larger percentage of students from San Francisco we are looking forward to a most successful semester and the faculty will do everything possible to assist the students," he added.

President Louis G. Conlan is pleased with student spirit this semester.

College Offers Course For Dental Aides

A two-year course for dental assistants, giving practical experience at the California College of Dentistry, has been started this semester, Dr. Lloyd C. Luckmann, director of curriculum, announced last week.

The program which is limited to an enrollment of 15, consists of courses in Dental assisting, chemistry, business, hygiene, physical education, physiology-anatomy, bacteriology, political science, home economics, and three units of electives making a total of 66 units for two years.

Conchita Bondoc Named Band Head

For the first time in its history City College has as its band manager a woman student, Conchita Bondoc.

Meyer Cahn, band director, of the music department stated that Miss Bondoc is doing "the most terrific job that any band manager has ever done."

Other officers of the band include Henry Boyce, student band director; Kent Lundgren, assistant director; and Zoraida Lopez, librarian.

Cahn also announced that 25 students have enrolled in the band for credit this year.

They are: Martin Banks, trumpet; Conchita Bondoc, saxophone; Henry Boyce, trumpet; Ed Coleman, French horn; Charles Howell, clarinet; Patricia Ford, clarinet; Richard Kucick, trombone; Zoraida Lopez, clarinet; Admiral Luke, clarinet; Kent Lundgren, trumpet; Jas. Eliston, clarinet; Donald MacDougall, glockenspiel and piano; Michael McClelland, trumpet; Ramon Melendez, saxophone; Jim Niven, trumpet; Cecil Solomon, trombone; Raymond Tankersley, clarinet; Medford Todd, trombone; Richard Totaro, trumpet; Wilton Wong, clarinet; Gerd Wreschner, bass; Johnny Robinson, trumpet; James Eliston, clarinet; Thomas James, tenor saxophone.

Plans for the coming semester include a football trip with the team to Sacramento on Friday, November 6, and playing for all home football games.

Students Benefit By New Rule

Alteration in the scholarship requirement regulations here concerning make-up of an "incomplete" grade, went into effect at the beginning of the Fall semester of 1953, according to Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator, division of student welfare at the college.

Prior to this semester an "incomplete" mark had to be removed within the first calendar month of the following semester with a grade of "D" given if the mark was removed later in the semester and an "F" if not removed at all during the next semester.

The difference now is that removal of the "incomplete" within the next two semesters of attendance entitles the student to receive the grade which would have been assigned had the work not been delayed.

An "incomplete" not so removed remains as a permanent deficiency on the student's record, but is not recorded as a failure, Marsh said.

It is important to note that a grade of "incomplete" will be assigned by an instructor only in case illness or other unavoidable circumstances keep the student from taking the final examination or meeting other requirements of the course, Marsh added.

The jack rabbit received its name from the fact that its long, large ears were thought to resemble those of a jackass.

AWS Wins Card Contest

The Associated Women Students won the Associated Student card sales contest last week, by selling 22 more cards than the Associated Men Students.

Date for the presentation of a new perpetual plaque has been tentatively set for the night of the homecoming dance, according to Stan Shalit, Associated Student card sales chairman.

Emily Hardy will receive the trophy as the individual selling the most cards during the AMS-AWS contest. She will receive her trophy the same night, Shalit further stated.

Other students who were active in the card sales contest are Dino Gofas, Joanne Hassman, Dave Hanak, Frances Ainsworth, Gary Haikens, Hal Jackson, Silvia Alexis, Barbara Campello, Carmel Todaro, Bob Moore, Bobby Jean Wallace and Mike Hurly.

Vice-chairman Ron Byrne has been working on new discounts according to Shalit. Among the new discounts Shalit listed are Orpheum Theater, United Artist Theater and Whitney's Sutros at the Beach where Associated Student card holders can now get 25 per cent discounts.

Other new discounts are The San Francisco Radio Store, 1282 Market Street, 40 per cent off on parts and 20 per cent off on varied merchandise; Ilene Carroll Dress Shop, 1552 Ocean Avenue, 10 per cent off; and The Firestone Company, 2800 Geary Boulevard, 2 cents off per gallon on gas and 10 per cent off on tires.

Shalit also announced last week that the goal of selling 2,000 cards is nearing, in that 1,811 have been sold. He also pointed out that Associated Student cards are still on sale in the Associated Student office in Building 2, in the Ramporium book store on the west campus, and in the student bank on the first floor of the main building.

AMS Homecoming Rally-Dance Starts Here At 8 Tomorrow Night

Gofas Outlines Plans For Big Pre-Game Events

A rally and dance tomorrow night, October 15, followed by a football game on Friday night, will mark the climax of Homecoming Week, sponsored by the Associated Men Students, it was announced last week by Dino Gofas, president of the AMS.

This is an annual AMS event of the fall semester timed to coincide either with the Los Angeles or San Mateo football game.

The rally, to be held in the west campus auditorium, will start at 8 p.m., and will be highlighted by the coronation of the Homecoming Queen. The Queen will be crowned and other contestants will be introduced, Gofas stated.

The dance will begin at about 9 o'clock, immediately following the rally, Gofas added. He would not reveal just what the entertainment for the rally would be, saying he preferred to keep the students "in the dark," but promised that it would be good, and he announced that the band of Manuel Maniates would play at the dance.

Friday night's football game, to start at 8 o'clock, will pit the Rams against Los Angeles City College, a series that is fast growing into a red-hot rivalry. Los Angeles will be out to avenge last year's loss to the Rams, and this should provide a thrilling finish to Homecoming Week.

The committee that has worked to make the Homecoming Week activities successful consists of Gofas, Associated Student Vice - President Julie Hanan, Jane Lyle, Marilee Schell, Gary Halkins, Joe Garbarino, and Annie Monego.

Gofas hopes that all the students will attend the rally, the dance, and the game. He urged all students who have not purchased Associated Students cards to do so immediately, since admission to the rally and dance will be by one AS card per couple.

Associated Student leaders further pointed out that the Homecoming rally and dance provide one of the major benefits attained through AS membership.

Club Meetings Slated During College Hour

Club meetings of all campus organizations are scheduled for college hour this Friday, October 16, Louis F. Batmale, dean of student activities, said this week.

Because of the Homecoming rally and dance which will be held tomorrow night, the sports rally previously scheduled for this Friday has been postponed, Batmale said.

The college hour schedule for the remainder of this semester is as follows:

First Midterm, October 23; Club Meetings, October 30; Institute (Holiday), November 6; Student-Faculty Coffee Hour, November 13; Club Meetings, November 20; Thanks-Meetings, December 11; Basketball and Election Rally, January 8; Club Meetings, January 15; Soph-Faculty Basketball Game, January 22; Finals, January 29.

Rams Mentioned In Current 'Sport'

City College rates mention in an article dealing with the new prominence of junior college football which appears in the November issue of Sport, leading national magazine.

The story, written by famous Al Stump, tells in part how the Little Rose Bowl Game selection committee overlooked the college's 1948 championship eleven in its pickings for the annual festival that season.

The 1948 team, one of the nation's best, was led by All-Americans Burl Toler and Ollie Matson, who that year set a national junior college yardage-gained record. San Franciscans held an "on-to-the-Little-Rose-Bowl" rally for the unbeaten club, but nevertheless they were ignored by the committee.

Stump says in his article that, "at the moment, a heated North-South feud is brewing among California Jaycees."

This is in reference to not only the slighting of the Rams in 1948, but also to a similar ignoring of Santa Rosa Junior College's unbeaten and untied 1950 team in favor of a southern entry, Long Beach City College.

AS Members Eligible To Vote For Campus Queen

The Homecoming Queen, to be chosen this week by the Associated Students from competing candidates, will be crowned at the Homecoming rally on Thursday evening, according to Dino Gofas, president of the Associated Men Students.

Candidates who filed applications with Gofas, and their sponsoring organizations, include Lois Ferrero, Kappa Phi; Myrna Taylor, Newman Club; Barbara Oliveco, Phi Beta Rho; Alice St. Louis, Zeta Chi; Susan White, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Roberta Usher, Patty Moran, and Juanita Daly, Alpha Lambda Chi; and Joanne Hassman, Delta Psi.

Any member of the Associated Students is eligible to vote for his favorite contestant.

Gofas stated that ballot boxes will be located at the Silver Pole in the first floor foyer of the main building and in front of the fountain.

He cautioned all those voting to be sure to mark the ballots with their Associated Student card numbers, as any ballot lacking this number will be discounted.

The Queen will receive a trophy from the AMS and a royal bouquet of two-dozen roses, Gofas announced.

Parking Permits Still Available

Parking permits are still available to members of the Associated Students, as no deadline has been set to date, Dean Edwin C. Browne said last week.

With an increase of some 100 more permits this semester, a larger number of cars is parked on the west campus. The area bordering Phelan Avenue by Building 13 is available for legal parking because of the increase in parking permits, Dean Browne said.

"It should be noted," the Dean warned, "that parking permits are not licensed to permit illegal parking, and permits are good only on the west campus."

Parking citations have been mainly issued for the violators of parking off the road ways and on the lawns and grounds.

"During the rush hours," Dean Browne said, "a little patience and courtesy would solve the hurrying problem. Special respect should be given to all signs, especially one-way exits."

Enrollment Hits 5039

Total enrollment for the Fall, 1953, semester reached 5039, according to figures released yesterday by Gertrude Somerville, acting registrar.

Miss Somerville pointed out that some registrations are still being accepted, which will increase the total. She also warned students that petitions to graduate at the end of this semester are due no later than Friday, October 16.

Council Approves Finance Committee's Recommended Budget; Chairman Warns Of Hundred Per Cent Rule Enforcement

After three weeks of hard work and sleepless nights, on the part of Finance Chairman Wray Jacobs, and the Finance Committee, the Fall budget of $17,870.19 was approved and passed by Student Council members last week.

The current semester budget is more evenly distributed than it has been in the past several years, Jacobs pointed out.

The entire budget is expected to reach $18,200.00 but because of the absence of an itemized requisition sheet from the sophomore class, no funds have been granted for the prospective graduates.

Jacobs claimed that this semester, as well as in past semesters, the "One Hundred Percent Rule" will be in practice, but now it is to be more rigidly enforced.

This also applies to the athletic teams, he said, and next week action will be taken by refusing to issue uniforms to players who are not members of the Associated Students.

The ruling assures the Associated Students that no one who is not a member of the association will participate in association-financed activities. Clubs on the campus must have 51 per cent Associated Student membership to retain their charters.

At present a committee has been set up to look into the possibilities of finding a live "ram" to serve as mascot for the college.

A motion was made to purchase a perpetual award in the form of a plaque, to be presented to the team that sells the highest number of Associated Student cards after registration has ceased.

(For complete budget, see page 4.)

Phi Rho Pi Preps For Menlo Debate

Phi Rho Pi, the college's honorary debate society, is preparing for a discussion at Menlo Junior College this Thursday on the subject, What are the present procedures and practices of Congressional Investigation Committees.

"The discussion relates to rights and duties of citizens who appear before Congressional Committees and brings into sharp focus actions of certain Congressmen," Thomas Dutcher, society adviser, said.

Those who will represent the college will be George Lippi, president, Vice-President Carmel Todaro, Secretary Diane Slater, Treasurer Don Warto, CAB Representative Ken Reaves, John Walker, John McDonald, Noel Marsh, Julie Hanan, Grant Barnes, and Stan Lee, society members.

Eligible Korean War Veterans File For Subsistence Pay In Building 3

In order to draw their subsistence allowance, Korean War veterans who are eligible must submit their form of "Certificate for Education and Training" to the Veterans Administration office, Building 3, west campus, Betty Arnold, secretary for the veterans affairs, announced yesterday.

The subsistence allowances, evaluated on the basis of a veteran's number of college units, are as follows:

Single men carrying a full 14 units receive $110 per month; 10 to 13 units, $80; 7 to 9 units, $50.

Men with one dependent and carrying 14 units receive $135; 10 to 13 units, $100; 7 to 9 units, $60.

Those with two dependents and carrying 14 units receive $160; 10 to 13 units, $120; 7 to 9 units, $80.

This subsistence allowance is effective under the Korean Bill, Public Law No. 550, Miss Arnold said.

There are still a few veterans, Miss Arnold noted, who have not made their monthly report in the veterans office, and she emphasized that those studying under provisions of the bill must report at the beginning of each month.

Korean veterans attending the college are in the proximity of 500 in number, according to Miss Arnold.

Applications For Denman Award Due October 19

Applications for this year's Denman Scholarship are due Monday, October 19, at the office of the dean of women in Building 2, Dean Mary Golding stated last week.

Scholarships will be awarded to two qualified women students. Eligible for the $125 award are those women who are graduates of San Francisco Public High Schools and have completed 30 units of work at the college with a B average or better, Dean Golding said.

Further stipulations provide that candidates intend to graduate from City College and that their scholastic records in high school be of high quality. All qualifications should be stated in the letters of application, Dean Golding commented.

The awards are offered by Judge William Denman and his sister, Mrs. Mary Cheatham, as a memorial to their father, James Denman, former San Francisco Superintendent of Schools, and President of the Board of Education.

First presentation of the scholarship was in 1939 and it has been awarded each year since that time.

Sorority To Receive Dougherty Trophy

A trophy in honor of Margaret Dougherty, former dean of women here, will be awarded after the second midterm period to the sorority with the highest grade-point average, Mary Golding, dean of women, said in an interview recently.

The Inter-Sorority Council, consisting of the presidents of the six campus sororities, Alpha Lambda Chi, Delta Psi, Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Rho, Theta Tau, and Zeta Chi, voted on this measure at their meeting on Tuesday. The proposal has since been confirmed and approved by Dean Golding.

Lesson Of Teamwork Can Be Learned From Yankee Victory

ATHLETICS form an important part of contemporary American life and a valuable lesson can be learned from them by all of us, athletes or not. What is more essential to a successful athletic team than teamwork?

And what is more essential to a successful life than teamwork?

Everyone from the "man in the street" to the college professor showed more than a little interest in baseball's recently completed World Series, in which, of course, the New York Yankees were victorious. Why did the Yankees win their fifth consecutive World Championship?

Better players, you say. No, almost any baseball analyst will tell you that man for man the National League entry from Brooklyn had a far better team.

Management, you say. Yes, Yankee Manager Casey Stengel has no equal in handling men.

However, another and more important factor enters into the Yankee success story, namely — teamwork.

Here at City College we have, like the Brooklyn Dodgers, a far better "team" of students than most colleges, but, unlike Brooklyn, and like New York, we have the best "management." Our Associated Student President George Effenberger has few equals in any student association that we know of in "handling" his "men," that is; the men and women of City College.

But, do we have that third and most important necessity for success, teamwork?

Look around you and answer that question for yourself. You'll see, like us, too many students with no apparent interest in their "team," the Associated Students.

We are not about to urge support again for the Association, support which means not only buying a student card but also using it. Our case on this matter has been stated often enough; you know the advantages of support, so it's up to you to use them and contribute to City College teamwork.

If the New York Yankees can win five World's Championships in the most competitive game in the world with teamwork and superior management only, then think what we can do with our better "team" plus those two factors—the indispensable one being—TEAMWORK!

Women In Student Government?

IN THE Letters to the Editor column this week can be found a contribution concerning the writer's views on women in student government. You may or may not agree with his ideas, but our feelings are — women, we love 'em! What do you think?

The column on this page was made to order for just such comment. We are not attempting to start a "male-female" controversy, but we are almost certain that some of the students on campus agree whole-heartedly with the opinions expressed this week, while there must be those who disagree just as whole-heartedly. We hope to hear from both sides. Are women "bad" for student government?

Indian Girl Enrolled Here

By Mohi ud Dean

The first East Indian girl to attend the college, in preparation for a higher education, is Doulat Billawala, a Moslem of Bombay, India, who is breaking the traditional belief of "pardah"—seclusion in home—and unequal status with men.

Although in the West Doulat modestly wears her conspicuous Indian costume consisting of a saree (a single colorful piece of cloth embedded with floral designs securely tied around her waist and which hangs on her left shoulder), a blouse, ear rings, and bangles in the left hand.

She also wears a distinct dotted mark in the center of her forehead which is neither a tribal nor a caste symbol but merely for ornamental purpose.

Sponsored by her two brothers, studying at the University of California, Doulat's major is radiology which she thinks will facilitate her getting a job with her uncle who is in the radiology business.

Having attained two years of education at St. Xavier high school in Bombay, she came to the United States seven months ago and already has developed such favorable impressions as "interesting and fascinating" about this country.

She likes attending City College and after graduation expects to continue her studies at Stanford University.

In addition to Doulat, there are other Indian women who are pursuing higher education in the United States, while others, who, in a country like India, where women have been suppressed to obtain education, are playing major roles both in the national and international scene.

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman office building 4-D. Deadlines are noon each Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld, but the identity of the author must be known to the editor.)

• Inefficient?

Editor, The Guardsman:

It is the considered opinion of this writer, and one that is shared by many student on campus, that the inefficiency of the present student government is directly due to the fact that there are so many women in positions that call for wise leadership and ability.

Women should not be allowed to take part in political organizations because of the following reasons:

1. Women are by nature incompetent.
2. Grossly ignorant of proper procedure.
3. Flighty and illogical.
4. Extremely dense when it comes to reasoning ability.
5. Indifferent to all the higher goals that characterize the efforts of our male leadership.
6. The only accomplishment that the women students can boast of this semester is winning the card sales contest but that can be credited to their special God-given gift and not to any extra efforts on their part.
7. It is a proven fact that women cannot cope with the male mind and as a result they are not to be counted as an important factor when it comes to the establishment of a successful student government.

In closing, I would like to say that women should keep to their station in life and stop trying to dabble in politics which is strictly a man's world.

The Robe: A Call To Christians And Sensitive Heathens Alike

By Harold Painter

CITY COLLEGE drama students need not fear that their curriculum is being out-moded. Cinemascope will not revolutionize the drama industry.

Paint a very thin face on the inward side of a balloon; paint a group of very thin people looking at the face. Pull the balloon over your head and inflate it; then, say something. Essentially, that is cinemascope.

Stereophonic sound shows promise of becoming a major dramatic device. Few sound reproduction systems less than Hi-Fi can equal its tone quality or ability to penetrate and permeate the audience. We are looking forward to seeing Wagner presented on the screen and in stereophonic sound.

Cinemascope sacrifices depth of character for depth of image. Colorful architechtonics and pompous processions distract from or replace quieter movement of well developed drama. And good drama draws upon the flux of circumstance, character contact and revelation, and ideals in context; it need not occupy a space larger than that needed for the narrator to do an about face.

The producers of The Robe did not attempt the sensationalism prevalent in the current run of third dimensional movies. The audience was not thrust at by spears, and wild animals did not rip themselves from the screen.

No small part of the audience was sustained in awe, since much of the film contained a very pious and imaginative subject; and no small part of the drama might have been gotten without the cameraman having tiptoed to the site of the crucifixion. And the script writers installed a Gregorian procession of Christian and humanitarian values.

The Robe provided universal appeal in that there were some blinding moments of music and imagery in dramatic unity.

Caligula was a fine job of life-getting, and Richard Burton's acting implies that he has the power and passion that lend themselves to roles which have great spiritual dimensions. Burton made his first success in The Lady's Not for Burning, by Christopher Fry; he emerged from an authoritative proving ground with a blessing.

Someone remarked that he was tired of seeing Victor Mature running about in a loin cloth. The crucifixion scene required a face capable of intense emotional expression; Mature filled the bill.

The apostle, Paul, had the look of a maniac about him. He surveyed his gathering with an expression betwixt a smirk and benevelent complacency. However, his acting relieved the situation.

New Building To House Spacious And Modern Library

Over-crowded conditions will be a thing of the past when a more spacious and modern City College library is established in the new building now being erected, according to Clement Skrabak, library staff member.

The college library has had three separate homes: At the University of California extension, the west campus, and now the main building.

A basic collection of books marked the birth of a now well-filled and up-to-date library, containing a variety of literature ranging from fiction to education, medicine, home economics, fine arts, and many others.

Valuable seating space has been taken for the purpose of installing new shelves and books, according to Skrabak, who feels that the new library is extremely necessary not only for this reason, but because it will offer more comfortable surroundings for students.

Ollie Matson Views Ram Eleven At Santa Rosa Game

By Shirley Murphy

THE gentleman who received the ovation from the stands at the Santa Rosa game was Ollie Matson, former football All-American who played for the Rams in 1948 and is now using his talents with the Fort Ord Warriors.

Matson stated: "The Rams are looking better all the time. I like the way the line charges."

Indian Summer

A good Chamber of Commerce angle concerning last week's weather was the paddleboard held up by four City College surfers and propelled by a Chevy convertible en route to the beach.

The progressive sounds barely emanating from the sound proof recording studio in the main building last Friday were made by the Highlanders, City College combo, getting a little practical experience.

We Goofed

On the list of faculty members currently on Sabbatical published in the first issue of this paper, we carelessly omitted the name of Mrs. Grace Brown of the English Department, who is now doing research work at Stanford.

Edison Comes to City

Among the new students registered this semester is one Thomas Alva Edison. His name is not the only newsworthy item about Mr. Edison. So fired was he with ambition that he cycled here from Berkeley to register and for the first few days of the semester until he moved to the City.

Etchings, Anyone?

The silk screen prints displayed in the show cases on the first floor of the main building last week are being handled by the Richard Stevens Agency and can be purchased at the studio. Charles Mattox and Jane Gilbert are the artists responsible for these unusual pieces of work.

Bill Boldenweck, chairman of the publicity committee, was really living up to his public relations role by donning a tux for the Santa Rosa game.

Famed HR Dep't Draws Students From Far Places

"Far away places with strange sounding names" might well be the theme of hotel division classes here, for this semester students from every corner of the globe, in addition to many local students, are enrolled in the college's world-famous hotel and restaurant course.

The homes of these students range from far-away Bangkok, Thailand (Siam), native land of Hermann Seiler, to near-by San Rafael, habitation of Harry Merla.

From romantic Istanbul, Turkey, came Orhan Saracoglu. Rotterdam, Holland, is the home of Frauk Wefel, and from Germany by way of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, is Norbert Nizze. Another native German is Peter Liebman, while Karl Weber calls Austria home.

Neighboring Canada is represented by three students from British Columbia, Tevie Smith of Vancouver, Peter Garrett of New Westminster and Robert Fedderson. From the Hawaiian Islands are Juliette Furtado of Hilo, George Lum of Honolulu and Juan Mahor.

Sections of the United States listed as "home addresses" by hotel and restaurant students include Nebraska from which Dean Vance came, Tacoma, Washington, the "stamping ground" of Paul Burton and Joseph Herley, and Seattle, Washington, home of John Dinkelspiel and Dean Woods.

Ensenada, California, is the home of student Tony Novelo, JF.

Across the Pacific Ocean came Isao Motomura, Tadayasu Tani, and Jiro Inumaru from Tokyo, Japan.

Inumaru's father owns a chain of hotels in his native country which includes the renowned Imperial Hotel in Tokyo.

As Inumaru so aptly put it, "City College's hotel and restaurant curriculum offers the World's best instruction in that field and so draws many students from 'far away places with strange sounding names'."

Browne's Red Truck Aids Distributions Of Red Parking Stickers

A bright red pickup truck, the property of Dean Edwin C. Browne, came in very handy recently, when the Dean undertook the problem of issuing parking permits to students on the campus.

This vehicle served the purpose of carrying the buckets of water which were used to soak the little red stickers before their application on the car windshields.

The aid of the truck, along with the able-bodied assistance of many students who volunteered their help, brought about the success of this permit distribution.

Rams Meet LA City College Friday

Cubs, Under Coach Ken Griffin, Attempt To Even Series In Annual Inter-League Encounter

Once again the much-used turf of Kezar Stadium will provide the playing site for the sixteenth renewal of a highly contested rivalry as the Los Angeles City College eleven comes to town Friday to do battle aaginst a charged-up crew of Ram footballers.

Of the previous meetings between the two institutions, the local favorites hold the edge recording 8 victories as against 7 setbacks.

The Cubs, under their new coach, Ken Griffin, who recently took over the reins from Don Newmeyer, who retired, will bring up a frosh-laden, single-wing style of attack to throw against the Klemmermen.

Spearheading the Southern machine will be hard-charging Jim Barry, fullback, and rock-ribbed Luther Robinson, 210-pound tackle.

Coach Griffin's players will be out to win this one, and will pull out all the stops if necessary in order to gain revenge on the Rams, who last year trounced them to the tune of 20 to 6.

On the other hand, the Rams will be out to make it two in a row over the visitors and thus gain a decisive hold in their annual series.

This year will mark the first time since 1941 that the L.A. squad will play a full home schedule on their home grounds, Synder Field.

Because of the absence of press releases from the Southern college, pregame lineups are not available. Kick-off time for the affair is slated at 8 o'clock.

Following is the complete schedule of games remaining for the Rams this season: October 24 finds the home towners vying against the San Mateo Bulldogs in what may be called the little-big game of Northern California since ill-fated Santa Clara and Saint Mary's no longer take part in the sport.

The winner of the highly important contest will take home with them the coveted Tom-Tom trophy, now held by the Rams.

East Contra Costa is then the next in line, meeting the Rams October 31, followed by Sacramento, November 6; Stockton, November 13, and Modesto, November 20.

Contra Costans' Second Half Rally Sinks Rams 39-13

By Al Palacio

West Contra Costa's undefeated Comets, held to a 7 to 0 lead at halftime, exploded for 26 points in the third quarter and six more in the final period to overwhelm the City College Rams 39 to 13 last Saturday night before 2,000 spectators at Richmond High School stadium.

The game provided the East Bay squad with its fourth straight win of the season while the Rams suffered their second setback.

Doug Peters, the Contra Costan's all-Big Seven Conference fullback, chalked up the first touchdown in the second stanza when he crashed left tackle and ran 17 yards for the six-pointer. Charley Green kicked the conversion point.

The third quarter proved disastrous for the Rams as the Comets went on a wild scoring spree to lee the contest.

Here is the way the scoring went in that period:

Halfback Credell Green opened the second half proceedings for the Comets with a 52-yard gallop around right end for the score. Charley Green's PAT try was wide.

A few moments later, West Contra Costa halfback Wilbur Gary found a hole at right tackle and rambled 57 yards for the touchdown. Green again booted the extra point.

The Comets' next tally came as a result of a fumble by City College fullback Pete Hontalas which was recovered by West Contra Costa's center Benny Hammond on the Rams' 38. Peters, on third down, bolted around the left side and wasn't stopped until he had reached the end zone. Green's conversion split the uprights.

In the closing minutes of the quarter, City College's scoring opportunity presented itself when Peters was trapped from punt formation by end Richard Oliver and was hauled down on the Comet 10. Halfback Ashford Jones culminated the three-play drive by smashing over from one yard out. Quarterback Al DeLaTorre's extra point attempt failed.

With four seconds left in the high-scoring stanza, the Contra Costans tallied again. This time halfback Riley Jenkins hit left tackle, found daylight, and sped 64 yards to paydirt. Jenkins conversion kiek was blocked and the Comets led 33 to 6.

Both teams scored in the final quarter on pass plays. Comet quarterback Kent McDonald threw a 65-yarder to end Oscar Mathews and, with 7 minutes and 21 seconds left in the tilt, City College's quarterback DeLaTorre heaved a 57-yarder to end Don Brand. James booted the extra point.

Mission And Poly Lead Parade Of Prep Athletes Enrolled This Year

Mission and Polytechnic High Schools lead the parade of prep athletes enrolled at City College this semester, according to Coaches Bill Fischer and Roy Diederichsen.

Mission is represented on the football team by Rudy Delphia, Richard Oliver, and Jerry Dillard. Ex-Missionites on the soccer team are Guadolupe Gutierrez, Jaime Martinez, and Don Daniels.

Ex-Polytechnic athletes who are out for football are Edward Tripp, Ken Orsell, Don Brown, Don Brand and Jerald James; also from Polytechnic is Gomer Thomas, who is out for soccer.

From Balboa, City College has Al DeLa Torre, Jim Frank, Gus Bagatelos, and Jerry Landi on the football team, and Paul Micheli on the soccer team.

Washington is also well represented with Earl Smith, John Gordon, and Gary Jones out for the City College eleven and Gabriel Barras and Said Dudum out for soccer.

Other high school enrollees out for football are Ron, Killon, Lincoln; James Coleman, Armstrong (Richmond, Virginia); Frank Ravetti, St. Ignatius; Raymond Arata, Riordan; Bob Vesalga, Central (Scranton, Pennsylvania); Ken Lopolito, Long Beach; Dave Smith, Fremont (Oakland); Burnette Forte, El Cerrito; Sylvester Grattan, Parker (Birmingham, Alabama); Don Bargni, Sacred Heart. There are also two prep men from Texas who are out for football. They are Ernest Benard, and Rudy Buffin.

Other soccer men up from the preps are Ralph Sanchez, Galileo, and Tony Critelli from New York State.

WAA Activities Now Underway

Activities of the Women's Athletic Association are now getting underway, according to Colleen Walker, association president.

This seinester's sports were decided at the first meeting on October 3 during college hour. The new members were introduced and learned the purpose of the organization as stated by Miss Walker.

The new vice-president, Mary Ann Rudomelkin, and secretary-treasurer, Sally DeFries, also helped keep the meeting rolling. Refreshments were served after the affair.

Sports with definite times decided upon are badminton and tennis on Friday during college hour, volleyball at 3 o'clock on Monday, folk dancing from 12 to 1 and 1 to 2 on Tuesday and Thursday and swimming on Thursday from 2 until 3:30, held at the Y.W.C.A. Times for other sports have not yet been decided.

WAA meetings will be held every Friday during college hour in the women's gymnasium.

RAMBLINGS

By Al Palacio

WE HOPE Roy Diederichsen hasn't felt neglected because we haven't mentioned his soccer team herein until now. But no offense was meant, since the Ram booters didn't play their first contest until October 1, that one against the always-powerful University of San Francisco Dons.

To get started off in the proper direction, it must be noted first and foremost that the City College soccer squad competes in an extremely fast league, namely the Northern California Inter-Collegiate Conference.

Represented in this circuit are clubs from USF, University of California, San Francisco State College, Stanford University, and Santa Clara University. That caliber of competition is rough from any viewpoint.

Local soccer critics should keep the foregoing in mind at all times before passing any judgments along on the accomplishments of the team. In the past, when fans were informed that the team lost a few games during a campaign, they would immediately let out with remarks of disapproval.

In comparison with the soccer squad, the other competitive athletic teams fielded by the college have an easy go of it. The latter are most fortunate in that they are confined to Big Seven Conference play in which only junior colleges participate.

PROBLEMS FACED

As previously noted, the NCICC is composed mainly, or rather exclusively, with the exception of CCSF, of four-year institutions whose coaches have four seasons in which to mold a smooth-working outfit. Diederichsen, on the other hand, is somewhat handicapped in that his charges are present for a maximum of two seasons, most of them taking advantage of only one before moving on to a larger college or university.

Under Diederichsen's capable guidance, the Rams have never finished up in last place. In 1952, his booters, paced by All-American goalie Joe Hare, placed third. The team's perennial high-ranking is a tribute in itself to the splendid job being turned in by the good-natured mentor.

City College's 1953 soccer edition includes athletes from many foreign countries, among which are Peru, Malta, and El Salvador. This isn't an oddity when one considers the heavy enrollment here from various sections of the map.

Forming the nucleus of the starting eleven are the veterans Ernie Smith, Larry and Joe Agins, Julio Conrado, and Bob Davila. Highly-touted frosh include Mission High's all-city center forward Jamie Martinez, and fullback Ralph Sanchez.

LANDI INCIDENT

Seems there was quite a controversy raging over Jerry Landi's ejection from the game in the Rams' grid conference opener recently against Santa Rosa at Kezar Stadium. The official who gave Landi the thumb confirmed the action by stating that the rugged tackle was guilty of slugging.

But then we heard the other side of the story from end tutor Alex Schwartz. According to the latter, Landi, on defense, charged the opposing Santa Rosan, unidentified, with such force that he was rocked back about three yards. The Bearcub, apparently disapproving of the retreat forced upon him, began to elbow his tormentor in hopes of shaking him off.

When Landi attempted to defend himself, the official stepped in and told the ex-Balboan to take an early shower.

OUTSTANDING PLAYERS

Quarterback Ray Arata and end Don Barroni got our vote as the players who performed outstandingly for the locals in the Santa Rosa fracas. They both turned in brilliant defensive work.

Sheldon Lejeune, in Cincinnati, Ohio, October 12, 1910, threw a baseball 426 feet 9½ inches. Later records do not mention that this throw has been eclipsed.

James, Landi In Co-Captain Spotlight

A pair of talented former All-City high school stars were nominated co-captains for the Santa Rosa game two weeks ago (in which the Rams were held to a 13-13 standoff).

The two were Jerald James, at left in photo, 205-pound, six-foot-one tackle out of Polytechnic High School, and Jerry Landi, six-foot-three, 225 pounds, also a tackle, hailing from Balboa.

James entered City College with quite a reputation. So much in fact that he was easily the outstanding prep to turn out for this year's eleven. At the conclusion of his senior grid season, the husky lineman was the recipient of second-string All-City honors.

Outside scouts and mentors agree that James had been done a great injustice by not being named to the first club, because he played such an important part in spearheading an aggressive Parrot squad which ran the entire campaign undefeated and untied. They backed up their judgments by selecting him to participate in the second annual Shrine-Hi All-Star football game in Los Angeles.

Landi wasn't quite as fortunate as his fellow mate, but he did all right by himself. The tall, merry-making athlete cavorted with seemingly reckless abandon throughout his senior year and eventually gained his just due, that of being chosen on the mythical All-City team.

City College Soccer Team Ties USF; Santa Clara Opposes Locals Saturday

Inspired by their overtime tie with the University of San Francisco at the Dons' home field last week the City College soccer team plays host to Santa Clara in a California Inter-Collegiate conference game scheduled this Saturday, October 17, at 11 o'clock. Location of the game will be announced later.

The locals achieved a feat few teams can boast of accomplishing when they held USF to a draw after falling behind in the scoring. Final score was 1-1.

Santa Clara brings to town an unknown outfit which could pull a surprise on Diederichsen's hooters. The Rams, however, will enter the fray as favorites by virtue of their great showing against the Dons.

Last week's game saw City College surrender a disputed goal with only 40 seconds before the end of the first quarter. Joe Ignoffo, inside-left, tallied for the Hilltoppers.

The second quarter saw some terrific soccer being played as both squads attempted to score. The first half ended in a 1-0 USF lead.

Midway through the third quarter inside-left Francisco Perez, Nicaragua's gift to the college, took a pass from Hector Lamas and proceeded to ram the ball against the net for the equalizer.

Both teams were unable to score in the last quarter so a ten-minute overtime was played with neither side scoring.

Coach Diederichsen's squad showed tremendous improvement as both the frontline and the defensive unit literally played their hearts out.

Outstanding for the college were goalie Bob Daniels, Jorge Del Rosario, Guillermo Del Gadillo, Ralph Sanchez and a host of others who had a part in the big upset.

Newcomer Tony Cartrelli showed signs of becoming a valuable addition to the team.

But for USF goalie George Durschlag, the score would probably have been greater. He made several saves which deprived the Rams of goal-scoring shots.

This year's City College soccer club appears now to be on its way and could very well bring home a championship.

The Rams have been considerably bolstered by the come-through performances of fullbacks Ralph Sanchez and Ernie Smith.

The Broncos can expect a fired-up ball club for their Saturday tilt.

Lack of attendance by fans has led to a situation wherein players outnumber the spectators. Only a handful of rooters witnessed the USF upset. It is hoped that this situation will be corrected in the future, Coach Diederichsen commented, expressing the sentiment of the team.

Intra Program Now Held During Regular Classes

This year, for the first time, the intra-mural sports program will be held during the physical education periods, rather than after classes, Ralph Hillsman, in charge of the intra-mural program, has announced.

Previously, according to Hillsman, the program has been aimed at those men students who didn't take physical education. Since all men are now required to take some sort of physical activity, the program has been changed.

"We have two aims in making this change," said Hillsman. "The first is to stimulate competition in the classes. The other is to place a premium on winning by offering awards to the winners in each class."

The awards to be given for the first place teams are belt buckles, with medals going to the members of the second place teams. Hillsman added that anyone may participate in the program, but awards will be presented only to those having Associated Student cards.

"As in the past, a variety of sports will be offered this year. Included in the list are touch-football, basketball, softball, track, tennis, golf, swimming, bowling, badminton, and ping-pong.

The winners in the individual classes will meet each other in an elimination tournament, Hillsman stated. If possible, he said, the competition will end on a certain day, so that the awards may be given out simultaneously.

Aubrey Springer filled his 1950 big game quota in a half hour near Craig, Colorado, October 15, when he consecutively shot a 600-pound bear, a 700-pound elk which came in sight while he was skinning the bear, and finally a seven-point buck deer.

Eligibles May Obtain Deferment Test Blanks

Selective Service College Qualification Test application blanks are now available at Selective Service System local boards to all male students of draft age who have at least a 15-unit course and satisfactory grades.

The San Francisco Selective Service System local boards are located at 180 New Montgomery for locals 36, 43, 44, and 45, and 551 Taraval for locals 38, 40, and 42.

In the East Bay Area the Oakland board is located at 1509 Clay Street for locals 49, 50, 51, and 52. The Berkeley board for locals 46, 47, and 48 is located at 2199 Bancroft Way.

Honor Society Head Urges Members To Join Activities

Carroll Pursell, president of the Omega chapter of Alpha Gamma Sigma, yesterday invited all those students eligible for membership through their scholastic achievement, to participate in the activities of the society.

Alpha Gamma Sigma is a statewide two-year college honor society, Pursell explained, which offers to its members a wide variety of benefits. Those belonging to the City College chapter automatically receive low registration numbers, an advantage in that it allows the student to register for next semester before the classes are filled. Also, members' names are placed in the permanent files of the society, which are available to employers and other colleges and universities.

An important event of the society is the bi-annual initiation dinner at which pins are awarded to those who have been members for two semesters.

Currently under discussion is the calendar of events for this semester.

"We want to point out, however, that it is not the policy of the honor society to monopolize so much of its members' time that they are unable to maintain their high grades," Pursell stated.

He also stressed that participation in the society's activities is voluntary. Further information may be obtained from Don Jensen, sponsor of the society. Jensen's office is located in Bldg. 3.

The other officer of the chapter is Marty Bragen, who is vice-president of the society and not president as was erroneously stated in The Guardsman last week.

Concert Season Ticket Sales End Friday

Sale of season tickets for the student series of the regular San Francisco Symphony season ends this Friday, according to Meyer M. Cahn, music instructor here.

Tickets are being sold at the student bank in the main building with orchestra and dress circle seats selling for $22.50 and those for the balcony priced at $17, he added. Individual tickets are available for $1 per concert.

The concerts, running for 18 weeks, from November 12 until April 25, are held at the War Memorial Opera House on Thursday nights. They are open only to university and college students.

This is the seventh year that the college has participated in the symphony season, Cahn stated. The Symphony Forum is composed of three students from each college in the Bay Area. Students from this college are Raymond Conlan, Barbara Warner, and Ena Aguirre.

Choir Sets Date For Annual Concert

The college's nineteenth annual Christmas program is scheduled for presentation on December 10, in the college auditorium, and will include both the A Cappella Choir and Men's Glee Club, according to Richard Vine, choir director.

Although all plans are as yet tentative, the traditional flashlight processional is planned, along with a musical presentation given by the choir and Men's Glee Club, featuring soloists Charlotte McLaughlin, soprano; Ilma Baker, contralto; Bill Parker and Raymond Murillo, baritones, and Dorothy Larew.

The drama department will probably join in the presentation, with tableau versions of the Christmas story and its meaning.

Silent Night, traditional hymn, will climax the program, with the audience joining in the singing of it, according to Vine.

Hotel Convention Due

Three students of the Hotel and Restaurant Division will be chosen by fellow classmates and instructors to represent the college at California's State Hotel and Restaurant Convention, November 1 to 3, at Palm Springs, according to Hilda Watson, division head.

The purpose of the convention is to exchange ideas on hotel and restaurant problems, meet each other personally, and discuss phases of resort and hotel operation.

Press Awards

ACP Lists Spring '53 Guardsman First Class In Nation-Wide Rating

By 35 points, The Guardsman missed an All-American rating for its Spring, 1953, volume, in semi-annual, nationwide judging completed last week by the Association Collegiate Press, which gave The Guardsman First Class rating.

Judging is based on a point system and is made by members of the profession at ACP headquarters at the University of Minnesota.

Minimum points total for All-American rating was 1050, and The Guardsman's total was 1015.

In 24 semesters of membership in the association, The Guardsman has received a rating of All-American 19 times and the rating of First Class five times. Other honor ratings awarded by the association are Second Class, Third Class, and Fourth Class. The All-American award is the highest honor given.

Grading is done on the following basis: News value and source coverage, balance, vitality, creativeness, treatment, newswriting and editing, content, organization, style and leads, features, copyreading, proofreading, headlines, typography, front page makeup, inside page news, page makeup, printing, editorials, columns, sports writing and display.

To make competition as fair as possible, newspapers are classified according to method of publication, type of college, enrollment of college, and frequency of publication.

Editor-in-chief of last semester's volume was Louanne Morford.

Staff members were Al Burgin, Ken Molino, Fred Fukuchi, and Garry Wormser, editorial board members, and reporters were Dorothy Fallon, Patty Moran, Al Palacio, Ann Sinclair, Dick Meister, Shirley Murphy, Mohi ud Dean, Janet Klieman, Natalie Pasderin, Tony Campolongo, Earl Erickson, and Marlene Hoffman.

Organized Marine Platoon Offers Many Benefits To College Women

Announcement of an Organized Women's Platoon of the United States Marine Corps Reserve was made last week by Sergeant Eleanor Mahone, member of the platoon and a former student of the college.

Sergeant Mahone, a music major, who attended classes here in 1949 and again in 1953, following a year and a half in the service, extended an invitation to the women of the college to join this organization.

Meetings are held in San Bruno on Thursday evenings from 8 to 10 o'clock, and the women receive $2.50 for every two-hour meeting they attend.

Membership in this organized platoon offers all sorts of personal benefits including a uniform issued free, a chance to meet new friends, excellent training that will help on the job or in college, and an opportunity to help this country while living at home, Sergeant Mahone pointed out.

Each platoon of the reserve is limited to a membership of 50. Candidates must be between 18 and 36 years of age; must be high school graduates or capable of passing an equivalent examination; must be without dependents, although members may be married; must be in good physical condition; must be of good moral character; and must be citizens of the United States or its possessions.

Women who are interested can obtain additional information by writing to the Women Marine Supply Platoon, 7th Infantry Battalion, U.S. Marine Corps Reserve, San Bruno, California, or by calling Juno 3-1640 and asking for First Lieutenant Barbara Decker.

The San Bruno Platoon has been in existence since the beginning of this year. Plans are now being made to move it to Treasure Island.

Goodwill Mission Takes Luckmann To Europe In Summer

A mission of peace and goodwill took Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction here, on a tour of Europe this summer.

Dr. Luckmann, a trustee for the Church Peace Union, an Andrew Carnegie Foundation, was chosen for his position during the foundation's semi-annual meeting at Atlantic City in June of this year to represent CPU abroad.

As representative, Dr. Luckmann advanced the ideas of the CPU in Rome through the Pax Romana and in Paris and The Hague through the Alliance Universelle. He also attended the meeting of the technical assistance division of the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) in Paris.

The main purposes of this worthy movement, Dr. Luckmann says, are the promotion of international friendship through religious bodies and greater support for the United Nations and UNESCO.

LLOYD D. LUCKMANN

On November 6, 7 and 8 Dr. Luckmann will speak on the topic, Racism in World Affairs, at the California Conference on Civic Unity at Asilomar, California.

Also, at the Conference of Christians and Jews on Monday, October 26, at the Women's City Club of San Francisco, Dr. Luckmann, Dean Mary Golding, and Dr. Frances Todd will discuss Intergroup Co-operation Abroad.

Nursery School Curriculum Now Offered Here

A new program under the general college curricula is that for training of Nursery School assistants, Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, director of curriculum here, announced last week.

Women who complete the two-year program will be able to assist in child care centers and should be qualified to teach in private or co-operative nursery schools.

This program is described as of great value for women who like small children; get along well with them, and enjoy working with children of preschool age.

The two-year program consists of courses in physical education, hygiene, communications, recreational leadership, home economics, psychology, business, music, biological science, sociology, speech, and humanities.

These courses include personal hygiene, first aid, English, dramatic production techniques for camp and recreational groups, games of low organization, arts and crafts, growth and development of children, nutrition, child psychology, arithmetic, and leadership for recreational music.

Also included are courses in natural science, life science, current social problems and directed practice in community recreation.

Large Assortment Of Tests Offered

The testing service of the college provides more than 100 tests for students who feel the need for them, according to Thomas D. Nesbitt, counsellor and head of the testing service.

These tests include intelligence, general scholastic ability, aptitude, interests, achievement, and personality, plus many specific field tests. The tests are helpful in job positions, positions of success in the student's field, and to substantiate the express desire for a particular field, Nesbitt said.

Anderson Stresses Need For Clean Campus

With the slogan, "This is your campus and mine, let's keep it clean," Dr. Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of educational management, in a recent interview stressed the need for cleanliness throughout the extensive campus.

Dr. Anderson pointed out that there were many receptacles placed about the campus and that with only a small amount of effort on the part of the students they can help keep the grounds looking clean and well cared for.

Dr. Anderson also stressed the smoking regulations. Students who smoke not only can clutter up the area with cigarette butts, but can also present a fire hazard problem. Smoking in any of the wooden buildings on the west campus and in the halls of the main building is prohibited. Students may smoke outside the buildings on the west campus and in the basement of the main building, he said.

Many students are confused by what indicates a fire drill or an air raid drill, and what to do in either case. In case of an air raid drill, five long rings on the class bell will sound, whereas the fire drill signal is the ringing of a different sounding gong. Students should acquaint themselves with the set of instructions posted on the walls of every class room on the campus, as the instructions for each room are different. Dr. Anderson simplified the whole procedure by saying, "In a fire drill get out of the building, and in an air raid drill get into the building and away from glass."

One other temporary regulation that Dr. Anderson stressed was to stay out of the new building until its dedication. The dedication will be sometime after Christmas and students will be allowed to enter the finished parts of the building at this time.

Who's Got The Ram-Bulldog Tom-Tom Drum Trophy?

Who's got the Tom-tom?

Rightfully, it is City College's, at least until next Saturday night when the Ram eleven faces the San Mateo Bulldog with the Tom-tom trophy the winner's prize.

Whether the Tom-tom is actually in the possession of City College is anybody's guess, because of hokus-pokus before and after the Ram-Bulldog game of last year.

At least one thing is sure. The Tom-tom has not been on display in San Francisco thus far this year.

The local counterpart of the famous Stanford Axe, symbol of rivalry between Stanford and the University of California, became a City College versus San Mateo symbol on October 25, 1946. That day, Sonny Lewis assistant yell leader at San Mateo, offered the Chinese Tom-tom as a trophy to the winner of the annual football game between the two colleges.

The Tom-tom itself resembles a drum and is painted red and white, and blue and white, the colors of the two colleges.

Its first appearance followed a second seasonal Ram-Bulldog game which was won by the Rams.

(In 1946, and until the Big Seven Conference was organized, City College played in what was called the Northern California Junior College Conference, meeting such college teams as Sacramento, Marin, San Mateo, Modesto, Salinas, Vallejo, and Menlo, and usually meeting a selection of these teams twice each year.)

In 1946 the Rams and the Bulldogs had each won three games, but the Rams took two that year—and the trophy.

City College made it six-three in 1947, seven-three in 1948, lost to San Mateo in 1949, saw the status quo holding through 1950 when heavy rains cancelled a Kezar encounter, won again and had the Tom-tom trophy in its possession in 1951 and until about one week preceding the traditional game in 1952.

Not too long before last year's game, several stalwart gentlemen were reportedly seen on this campus—gentlemen with a decidedly down-the-peninsula appearance.

Shortly after their departure, there was a rally at San Mateo, and displayed as a great prize was none other than the six-year old symbol of San Francisco-San Mateo rivalry, the Tom-tom.

Came game night and the Tom-tom (won by City College in 1951) was seen in the San Mateo rooting section. After the game, which the Rams won 33-12, reports vary as to the fate of the Tom-tom.

Some claim to have seen it spirited away between halves, from the San Mateo rooting section by City College students. Others claim that incident was a "plant" by San Mateo students.

With no college hour scheduled Friday, October 23 (because of mid-terms), the prospect of a rally on the City College campus is dimmed, and with it the prospect of discovering whether City College — rightful possessor of the trophy—really has it.

Game time is expected to tell the story. The Tom-tom will turn up either in the City College rooting section or in the San Mateo rooting section. End of the game is supposed to determine which college has it until 1954.

Like the Stanford Axe (missing from its Berkeley guardians since last spring) the question remains: Who's got the Tom-tom?

Foreign Students Meet To Plan New Organization

By Mohi ud Dean

In order to organize a foreign students' club on the college campus, students from different parts of the world gathered in Building 2, Room A during college hour October 9, to discuss the matter, according to Joseph Jacobsen, foreign student counsellor here.

A committee was named to write letters to all foreign students to find out how they feel about such a club and what problems are to be resolved, Jacobsen stated.

Purpose of this club, he declared, is to promote understanding between American and foreign students, make possible closer social association than in class, and to assist students during registration and during the making of student programs.

Acting in the capacity of spokesman for the club, Rebizzo Remo, said yesterday that no particular qualification is needed to join this club as long as the student is registered in the college.

He also stated that he will urge the members of the club to purchase Associated Student cards so that social activities will be made possible.

The club will also include women students who may play their part in the functioning of the club and participate in giving talks, opinions, and suggestions, Rebizzo said.

The number of foreign students attending the college this semester is 225 with Iranian students most numerous, according to Jacobsen.

Only 53 students, under student visa, have enrolled in the college this fall, Jacobsen noted.

However, Jacobsen pointed out that he has little trouble conversing with the foreign students in the English language, for apparently, most of them speak it fairly well.

No College Hour Friday

Since mid-term tests are scheduled this week through 23, there will be no college hour Friday, October 23, Louis F. Batmale, dean of student activities, announced last week.

AS Card Sales Approaching Goal

The sale of Associated Student cards is nearing the goal set by the card sales committee, as a total of 1835 cards is now reported sold, according to Stan Shalit, card sales chairman.

Shalit again warned that the committee will take steps to prosecute all persons found transferring or borrowing Associated Student cards.

"We are still working to get more discounts and privileges for the members of the Associated Students," Shalit said.

Fourteen Men Named To Campus Police Force

Fourteen men comprise the Campus Police force this semester, according to Fred Fitzgerald, law enforcement instructor here.

Their duties include directing traffic, watching for any disorder on campus, citing motorists who have broken the law, giving directions to any visitors or new students, and keeping order at all Associated Student activities.

Although the Campus Police are students enrolled in the Law Enforcement program, they have been deputized by the Chief of Police of the City of San Francisco and have the same authority on the campus as the municipal police, Fitzgerald noted.

Any citations for traffic or similar violations are not payable to the college, he said, but must be handled through the City Hall.

J. Robert Lewis, chief of the Campus Police, has two assistants; Gordon Richardson, in charge of the squads, and Fred Ochler, handling the administration.

Patrolmen are Don Baker, Arthur Clarkson, William Chapman, Patrick Davoren, Al Ghiorzi, Frank Kindregan, Renzo Panelli, William Scott, David Henderson, George Plese, and Leo Hertoghe.

Phi Beta Delta Holds Traditional Dance This Friday

With a salty atmosphere of high-seas adventure, the members of Phi Beta Delta have placed the finishing touches to the college auditorium for their seventh Shipwreck Dance, this Friday, October 23, from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, according to Ron Blessing, fraternity president.

Bids, which cost $1.50 per couple, are being sold at the student bank, by fraternity members, or at the auditorium entrance, said Blessing, and since it is a costume affair, something appropriate to shipboard is recommended.

The Shipwreck Dance, which was first held in Fall of 1947, has become a tradition with Phi Beta Delta and is held each semester.

Don MacDougall and his combo will furnish the "seafaring" music.

Sweeping fishnets and a large boat will add to the nautical feeling of the night, Blessing commented.

Committee members responsible for this seagoing activity are Blessing, Ray Hoskins, Carl Christiansen, Jack Copeland, and Frank Orrell.

College Sends Four Representatives To AWS Convention

Dean of Women Mary Golding, Joanne Hassman, president of the Associated Women Students, Dottie Cutler, vice-president, and Jan Sewell, secretary, will attend the AWS convention at Stanford to be held this Saturday, October 24.

All four year colleges, including the University of Nevada, and those north of Fresno are invited to send representatives, Miss Hassman said yesterday.

The affair starts with registration at 8 o'clock on Saturday morning with the conference beginning at 9 o'clock. The meeting place will be Stanford University's new Bowman Alumnae House.

Drama Society To Present First Production Of Semester Friday And Saturday Nights

Two performances of The Male Animal, the first play of the semester here, are scheduled for presentation on Friday, October 23, and Saturday, October 24, in the College Little Theater, Room 28, main building, Michael Griffin, director, announced yesterday. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m., he said, and the play is by Elliott Nugent and James Thurber.

Tickets are now available in the Rampolum and at the bank in the main building. Admission is by presentation of the college Associated Student cards; for those without cards, the price is $1.00, Griffin said.

The characters and their players, respectively, are Cleota—Bobbie Wallace; Ellen—Lee Meriwether; Professor Thomas Turner—Dino Gofas; Dr. Damon — Bruce Comer; Patricia — Myrl Britton; Wally—Oscar Anderson; Joe Ferguson — Jim Glasson; Mrs. Damon—Diane Herschberg; Ed Keller—M. H. Friedrichsen; Nutsy—Joyce Cody, and a reporter is portrayed by Frank Syr.

The play is an amusing comedy, says Griffin and revolves around Professor Tommie Turner, his wife, Ellen, and a college fullback, Ferguson, who 10 years before was engaged to Ellen.

Ferguson, meanwhile, had gotten a divorce from his wife and persuades Ellen to run away with him. The professor has a difficult time searching for an idea to convince Ferguson not to take his wife from him.

Faculty-Student Coffee Hour Set For November 13

The bi-annual Faculty-Student Coffee Hour here is slated for Friday, November 13 in Building 2 during college hour, George A. Baffico, Faculty Association president, announced last week.

The purpose of the event, Baffico said, is to give both faculty and students an opportunity to become better acquainted in a friendly and informal atmosphere.

Members of the association in charge of coffee hour are Louis F. Batmale, dean of Student Activities, and the Student-Faculty Relations Committee composed of Cathy Shorb, chairman, Maurice Powers, Mildred Barnard, Doug Soule, Merritt Beckerman, and Anka Perisich.

Other Faculty Association officers are Vice-President Ed Larson, Secretary Barbara Brackett, Treasurer George Stewart, Social Committee Chairman James Schon, and members-at-large, John French, Clement Skrabak, and Tom Dutcher.

Among Faculty Association projects is the Cloud Scholarship, which awarded two fifty dollar scholarships to students last year. This year they hope to offer four such scholarships, Baffico commented.

The Public Relations Committee of the association handled arrangements for the PTA Convention last year when the college was the convention site of the local PTA Associations.

Another function of this committee is to send speakers to the high schools of the area to explain the function and activities of the college. Slides of the campus are shown, illustrating the talks.

Baffico pointed out that every faculty member has office hours, and students are invited to see faculty members at these times in order to discuss their problems, as well as seeing them during the coffee hour.

Parking Permit Deadline Set For Tomorrow

Parking permit deadline has been set for tomorrow, October 22, Dean Edwin C. Browne stated last week.

Students who have not yet registered their cars for parking on the west campus are asked to do so by the deadline, the Dean warned.

Registration can be done by showing the owner's Associated Student card, and his car registration slip at the dean's office, where a parking permit will be issued.

The area bordering Phelan Avenue by Building 13 is available for legal parking because of the increase in parking permits this Fall, the Dean added.

Tribute Paid Helena Mayer

President Louis G. Conlan paid tribute last week to fencing champion Helena Mayer, City College faculty member on leave, when news of her death in Germany reached the campus.

"Miss Mayer was a valuable member of our faculty and had a genuine interest in the welfare of our students. She was not only a champion as a fencer, but also as a person and an instructor," Conlan said.

Miss Mayer was World Fencing Champion nine times and her titles include one in the 1928 Olympics at Amsterdam. She successfully defended her title at the 1932 Olympiad in Los Angeles and placed second in the 1932 games in Germany.

On leave since the Fall of 1951, Miss Mayer taught languages and specialized in Political Science 36, the American Institutions course required for graduation.

A native of Germany, she obtained her American citizenship in 1941. Miss Mayer attended Mills College in 1933 and later taught there until 1947 when she joined the faculty of this college.

'Where 'Em Tom-Tom Trophy? Find 'Em And Guard 'Em'

THE annual Big Game in Northern California junior college football takes place between the Rams and the San Mateo Bulldogs Saturday night at the Bulldogs' home.

Like the Big Game in local university football, between California and Stanford, this junior college game has a trophy which goes to the winner. California and Stanford have the Axe and City College and San Mateo have the Tom-Tom Trophy.

But . . . "Where 'em Tom-Tom?"

Does the San Mateo student body have the trophy in its possession? The Bulldogs may not have it, but since the Tom-Tom has not been seen on-campus, where is it?

Are we to sit back and let the "toy Bulldogs" from San Mateo keep the trophy? A trophy which rightfully belongs to us because of our victory in last year's game?

We know the answer to that question; no self-respecting Ram would let any Bulldog take away his fiercely fought for and rightfully won award.

The natural thing to do now is—Get back the Tom-Tom, no matter where it may be.

We suggest that a "vigilantes" committee be formed to locate the trophy, to get it back on-campus, and to protect it from any "raiders" who may attempt to "lift" it before Saturday's game or anytime thereafter.

Here is your first "vigilante," so come and join a crusade to return one of the greatest symbols of City College's prestige.

Let our "battle cry" be —
"Find 'em Tom-Tom!"
Ugh.

Monsarrat's 'Cruel Sea' Depicts Man's Inhumanity To Man

By Harold Painter

'THE Cruel Sea' is not an apt title for Monsarrat's book. The sea is cruel, it's diabolically whimsical, but it was not that which altered men's lives. 'Cruel Men;' that's a better title. Man's inhumanity to man. That's what makes the sea more than passage of commerce and pleasure.

The sea is beaten by winds, and man is beaten by man. The sea is the incompatible agent of the elements; man is incompatible to himself. That's what Monsarrat has tried to tell us.

1939: England is at war with Germany. The war is new to the men who are about to engage in it; the Compass Rose is rebuilt and uncertain.

The war is a volume of discordant words and strange sonnds. There are banners and passions and helmets.

Lockhart boarded the Compass Rose with a pungent recollection of a woman and a world on shore. He stepped unto the setting of an uncertain world of water, men, steel, and ideals. He began the great reality.

The circumstances of war assembled a random group to serve the Compass Rose. And the circumstances of war bound the men in a common union that remained distressingly dormant, like a cold fog over another continent, in the mind. They moved about in dream likeness, a harrowing, elegiac enigma, too dark to recall, too intense to fade.

The war brought new loves, intensified loves, forced loves; and it brought death and allowed companions to drop into the sea. Land was in the cold distance; the family plot, and the family living was removed into a world of dreams.

Monsarrat reminds that peace is an interlude, that war is an undying truth enshrouding the history of man, that war is as human as love, that coalescence of ideals expresses itself in the clanking thrust of weapons when it encounters the armed ideals of alien entity.

When the men who survived the Compass Rose returned homesin 1945, they left their weapons to hang on the great wall of state; they loved their wives and watched their children tan in the sky swept clean of the wings of warcraft; but they loved and they waited; they are uneasy and nostalgic for the big reality never ended, only the dream, and the sea waits and wonders.

The Cruel Sea is a war classic. See the film and read the book.

Ram's Horn . . .
Letters to the Editor

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman office building 4-D. Deadlines are noon each Wednesday. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but his identity must be known to the editor.)

• Fraternities, Sororities Active?
Editor, The Guardsman:

In your recent editorials you mentioned such things as active organizations. Just what in your opinion is an active organization? Certainly not the fraternities and sororities on campus that you included in your list of clubs to join. Do you consider parties, parties, and parties the criterion of an active organization? According to the high sounding words in the college handbook these organizations have high ideals, higher than parties as a main objective. Ha! Parties are wonderful, but just how, no matter how far the imagination is stretched, do these constant affairs, "joints," and the like further the objectives which are so wonderfully worded in the handbook? If the fraternities and sororities want to plainly state their objective as "party time" that's fine and good, but why try and fool the student body and say that much more important things are their objectives?

College News Roundup

Students Uncover Missing Jet; Dormitory Ruling Aids Co-Eds

The Texas state senate threw Texas A. and M. into an uproar when it passed a resolution to make the college co-educational. It's been all-male for 75 years.

• A MISSING JET: The FBI took a dim view of pranksters on the campus of California Institute of Technology and threatened federal court action when a wingless F-84 jet plane used for study disappeared from the school.

School officials persuaded the FBI and air force to let students conduct their own investigation, which uncovered the plane. Damages amounted to more than $1,000.

• BRIGHT STUDENT: A student who catches on quickly returned three books to the Michigan State College Library recently. Their titles were "Stop Forgetting," "Use Your Head," and "How To Remember."

The books were a week overdue.

• DIGNITY: Co-eds at Utah State College have been asked to refrain from wearing jeans in the classroom. College officials say the women should wear jeans only when milking cows.

• FIVE YEARS: The University of Chicago students who turned counterfeiters in order "to make money to go through school," were sentenced to five years a piece in federal prison. They have another week to appeal the sentence.

• A MATTER OF TIME: Women at Midleford college, Nebraska, got a break when new dormitory rulings went into effect this year. From now on they'll have 30 minutes to get in after campus dances and games are over. They used to have to come home in 15 minutes.

• INCIDENTAL STATISTICS: At the last count made by the Committee for Free Asia, about 7,400 Asian students were registered in American colleges and universities.

Most of these students come from China, India, and the Philippines.

• JAPAN: They are holding spelling bees in Tokyo these days—and in the English language. A total of 32 Japanese students from 19 colleges and universities participated in the first one, and Harujuki Kariyama of Tokyo University took first place by correctly spelling "hypocrisy."

• ICELAND: Iceland university students have collected three tons of concentrated cod liver oil for the students in famine-stricken Andhara, India.

• FINLAND: Assistants in the science department at Helsinki university are striking for higher wages and endangering the studies of hundreds of students. A special delegation has lodged a complaint to Parliament.

• NICE: This comes from The Cavalier Daily, University of Virginia:

The nice thing about a college education is that it enables us to worry about things all over the world.

Perennially Late Co-Eds Receive Salute From Instructor And Class

By Shirley Murphy

THE friendly spirit for which the college is noted was demonstrated again in Instructor John Hare's biological terminology class. As two perennially late co-eds made their entrance at 12:20 p.m., the entire class saluted them with a harmonious, "Good Afternoon." It is small details like this that make the student feel at home.

Airy Tale

During the football skirmish between the Garbarino Raiders and the Effenberger Warriors, sound effects were supplied by the splintering of glass. It seems that there should be an easier method to ventilate Building 2 than brute force.

Dr. Selig, We Presume

John Selig, political science instructor at the college, recently received his Ph.D. from the University of California. Congratulations, Doc!

Live Mascot

There is a shortage of salable rams in California. Wray Jacobs, Finance Committee chairman, reports that Polly's Shopping Service has finally located two of the elusive animals in Colorado. As soon as the sale is completed, and the beast is exported, the college will have its own live mascot, romping around the field, and spurring the team on to victory.

All Americans

Coaches Bill Fischer and Grover Klemmer were guests at the recent premiere of All-American. They spoke a few words prior to the showing of the Curtis epic.

They Shall Return

Visitors noted on campus within recent weeks include Lou Fabri, Al Lithgow, Walt Winter, Ron Zimmerman, and Carole Schuldt. Lithfow and Fabri are now in the service. Winter is studying law at Golden Gate College, Zimmerman is a vacuum vender, and Schuldt is currently between jobs.

Spirit Personified

The spirit demonstrated by the frigid fans at the West Contra Costa game was phenomenal in spite of the temperature. The climc wasn't actually arctic, but Tsagalakis' camera doesn't freeze during the last half of every game.

Sight of the Week

The chlorophyll-complected students escaping from the chem lab following an unsuccessful experiment.

Success Story

Financially, as well as socially, the Club Day dance was highly successful. The budget allotted $160 for the affair; the door receipts totaled $159.10 plus the sale of one Associated Student eard.

Call to Colors

Friday, October 9, was Color Day at West Contra Costa Junior College. Any student found not wearing the official colors, blue and gray, or spotted attire in the red and white of City College on the day preceding their game with the Rams was fined 10 cents by a Kangaroo Court. Those who refused to pay the fine were listed in the college paper, Dragnet, as "cheapskates." The culprits who paid their debt received arm bands so that they would not be fined again. Might be an idea here.

Midterm Week Starts Campus Excitement Rolling

The actions of the students around the campus clearly signify that midterm week (October 19 through 23) is now in progress.

In parked cars, the student lounge and the library, the suddenly industrious student body can be seen trying to absorb five weeks' work in a few short hours.

Midterm week is especially gratifying to the Instructors, so it has been said, because their students listen to their lectures attentively, hoping to pick up some bits of information concerning the tests' general contents. The Instructors find little pleasure in the weeks following though, when the tests have to be corrected.

In keeping with the mood of midterm week, College Hour is not scheduled this Friday.

Ramporium Provides Solution To Students' Book Problems

BUSINESS STILL BOOMING—The Associated Student bookstore opened three years ago last month, and Dick Main, right inset, smiled as sales boomed. Meanwhile, Controller Oscor E. Anderson was the picture of complete concentration as he rang up a sale on the cash register. Bill Coffey, student employee, checked the stack of brushes for a customer.

Profits From Book Store Help Finance Associated Student Activities

A problem that faces every student of the college during a semester is, "Where do I get my books, how much must I pay for them, and how much of a loss must I take when I am ready to sell them?"

The Associated Student book store, the Ramporium, located in Building 12, provides the solution.

As was witnessed earlier this semester, students were able to purchase books at the Ramporium with a minimum of trouble and effort by simply giving their subject and course numbers.

According to Dick Main, manager of the Ramporium, an efficient method of cataloging makes such a time-saving service possible. All texts and pamphlets required for a course are shelved under their proper subject and number. The subjects are in turn arranged alphabetically.

The Ramporium charges standard prices for all new books sold. Used books are redeemed at half price unless they are in exceptionally poor condition. Badly defaced books may not be accepted.

All profits made by the Associated Student book store are given to the college to help finance activities, said Main, adding that the Ramporium "belongs to the students and deserves their patronage and support."

During rush week at the beginning of each semester, students are needed to work at the Ramporium. Those interested should see Main in order to be considered for the first positions. The salary is 75 cents per hour.

The Ramporium was first opened September 5, 1950 under the managership of Richard Main. The name was chosen by contest opened to all students and the name Ramporium was chosen by a special committee.

The realization of an on-campus book store came about after much planning and study by college officials. It was started at a cost of approximately $35,000.

'Big Game' Pits Rams Against Bulldogs

Brand Sparks 19 To 19 Deadlock With LACC Cubs

By Al Palacio

Don Brand, a converted end playing his first game in the fullback position, scored two touchdowns and helped set up the other at Kezar Stadium last Friday night as he led the City College Rams to a comeback 19 to 19 tie with the Los Angeles City College Cubs before 1500 fans.

Both teams were gunning for their first win of the season. For Coach Grover Klemmer's Rams, it was their second draw in four outings.

The Cubs tallied first with six minutes to go in the initial period.

The locals fought back to knot the count and then forge ahead 7 to 6 with 45 seconds left in the first half. Quarterback Ray Arata passed from his own 32 into the right flat where Brand hauled the ball in on the Los Angeles 48 and outdistanced defensive halfback Ulysses Carter to the goal line. Jerry James kicked the conversion.

With two minutes gone in the third stanza, Oscar Paloutzain, Cubs' guard, rushed hard and blocked Ernie Bernard's fourth-down punt attempt on City College's 36-yard line. End Ray McKinney picked up the loose ball and dashed 22 yards for the visitors' second score. Irvin Hunt's conversion was good.

Midway into the third quarter, Gerald Holland, Los Angeles fullback, turned in the longest run from scrimmage of the tilt as he took a pitch-out and sped 72 yards down the north sideline for the six-pointer. Bob Basham's extra point attempt failed but the Cubs still held a commanding 19 to 7 lead.

On the first play of the final period, Brand took a pitch-out on the left side of the line and streaked 13 yards to the score. James' conversion try was wide and the Rams then trailed by six points, 19 to 13.

The tieing touchdown came with eight minutes and thirty seconds left in the hard-fought contest. DeLaTorre, from the Los Angeles 28-yard line, flipped a pass to Brand, who reached up for the pigskin but had it deflected from his fingertips by the defending halfback. The rebound was grabbed on the 10-yard line by alert halfback Pat Fracisco and he rambled into the end zone standing up.

James' all-important extra point attempt was blocked and the scoring for both sides was over.

Flankers Co-Captains For WCC Game

Another pair of former All-City high school stars were nominated co-captains for the West Contra Costa game two weeks ago (from which the Rams emerged on the short end of a 39-13 score).

Baroni, who entered the college during this semester, was an all-purpose footballer at Sacred Heart and led many an Irish team to many victories. The husky blond end weighs in at 199 pounds, that being equally distributed on a six foot-one inch frame.

Brand, who is two inches shorter and four pounds lighter than his opposite flankman, was a standout performer at Polytechnic High.

Stanford Defeats Ram Booters 2-0; SF State 'Gators Meet Locals Next In Annual Cross-Town Soccer Rivalry

Although defeated in their last road-trip 2-0 by Stanford, the City College soccer team hopes to turn the tables on their cross-town rivals from San Francisco State when the two squads square off in a game set for Saturday, October 24, at the Gator's home base. Starting time is 10 o'clock.

Coach Roy Diederichsen expects his outfit to return to the form which gained for it a 1-1 draw with U.S.F. in the season's opener.

State boasts an imposing array of soccermen, but the Rams are beginning to play as a unit and should enter the fray as favorites.

In the Stanford game a heavy downpour turned the field into a quagmire and consequently seemed to benefit the Indians who showed themselves to be better mudders.

The Indians started the contest as if they were going to make a runaway out of it as half-back Peter Mack tallied for the tribe with scarcely three minutes into the first quarter. Both outfits settled down to play a defensive battle the rest of the first half.

It became evident that the breaks were going to decide the issue as the teams returned to the field from the intermission to do battle.

Continuing the pattern seen in the opening period, neither team seemed to be able to take control of the ball game until Stanford's inside-left, Sam Suarez, kicked the ball past goalie Bob Daniels for the Cards, second goal midway through the last quarter.

The Indian defense held, and the game ended in a 2-0 Stanford victory.

In the preliminary, the City College junior varsity defeated the Stanford papooses by a 1-0 count. Outside right Ricardo Monge scored for the winners one minute before the end of the game on a penalty shot.

Six Playdays Set For College Year

Dates for two-year college playdays were set last week, according to Colleen Walker, president of the Women's Athletic Association, and six playdays cover the college year of 1953-1954.

November 14 is the opener and will be hosted by East and West Contra Costa, with swimming and bowling the sports. San Mateo Junior College will be host on December 5. Badminton will be the main objective at Marin on January 9.

Starting off the spring semester is the playday at Santa Rosa on March 6, with basketball the sport to be played. The scene of the April 24 playday is at City College and the sports are badminton and tennis. The final sportsday will be at Napa on May 22 featuring swimming.

Next Wednesday the WAA will sponsor another high school playday here for Lowell, George Washington, and Abraham Lincoln. Tennis, volleyball, and refreshments top the program, President Walker added.

Traditional Trophy Battle Between Rams And Bulldogs Scheduled For Friday Night

Although the collegiate sports year at the college has already produced many exciting football games, the "frosting on the cake" will be the up and coming traditional big game rivalry between Coach Grover Klemmer's Rams and the ever-dangerous Bulldogs from San Mateo.

Kickoff time for this annual thriller will be 8 p.m. this Friday, October 23, at Sequoia High School field in Redwood City. Tickets for the tilt will be 50 cents for members of the Associated Students, and one dollar for non-members.

In this titanic, all pre-game odds and statistics can be literally thrown out the window, as former records have had little to do with the outcome.

The Matcans have a season record to date of one win and two losses. Hartnell has defeated them 25 to 0, and Orange Coast eked out a 13-6 victory over the peninsula squad. The Bulldog's lone win was over Menlo 13-6.

This contest will mark the seventh time since 1946 that the Rams and Bulldogs have battled for the coveted Tom-Tom Trophy which is awarded to the winner between the two colleges.

Last year's meeting of the teams saw the local favorites take home all the marbles as they trounced a hapless San Mateo eleven 33-12. This season Coach Duane Whitehead's Bulldogs are determined to take home the trophy and thus gain revenge on last year's poor showing.

On the other hand, Coach Klemmer's charges are just as fired up about winning as are the rival crew and just as determined to keep the trophy and thus save the college money, trouble, and effort transporting it down the peninsula.

Men's Intramural Athletic Program Now Under Way

The intramural athletic program for this semester got under way last week with the beginning of competition in five sports.

Roy Hillsman, co-ordinator of the intra-mural program, has announced the beginning of competition in basketball, touch-football, tennis, badminton, and bowling, and he added that boxing is due to start in the very near future.

Hillsman said that the instructors of the various classes have chosen captains, who in turn have chosen their teams, and the elimination play has begun. The personnel of the teams will remain the same throughout each activity, and new captains and teams will be chosen for future activities.

Hillsman stated two purposes in choosing the teams this way—one, to give the physical education students a chance to compete against one another; the other, to give the players a chance to know each other and to work together.

Block SF To Give Friday 13 Dance

Preparations are now under way for the Fall semester Block SF dance, newly elected President Chuck White announced last week. The dance is to be held Friday, November 13.

The Block SF dance committee, comprised of all the organization's members, met last Friday, under the leadership of the President and his new Fall officers, Vice-President Al Nyser, Secretary Bob Ward, Treasurer Craig Kirkpatrick, and Sergeant-at-Arms Rudy Buffin, to diseuss the plans for their traditional dance.

The Society is sponsoring a motion picture of the San Francisco 49er's-Cleveland Brown game of 1949, on Friday, October 30, and all athletes were invited to attend, by President White. Further information concerning the film is expected soon.

The most decisive game in major league history took place in Boston on June 8, 1950 when the Boston Red-sox defeated the St. Louis Browns by a score of 29 to 4. Four major league records were blasted in the massacre.

Ramblings
One-Platoon System Helps Players, Fans

By Al Palacio

HERE it is the middle of the football season and no one has asked us to comment on the abolition of the two-platoon system. Nevertheless we'll go right ahead anyway and have our say on the advent of the "iron-man" era.

As far as the players themselves are concerned, there isn't a trace of a doubt that they are the ones benefitting the most from the new ruling. In previous years, colleges the nation over were producing half-way gridders. There were specialists for offense and defense and the various phases of play included therein.

Now a footballer who can zig and zag on attack but doesn't have the intestinal fortitude to take the beating on the defense just doesn't rate. And that's as it should be.

From the spectators' standpoint, nothing better could have happened to the Fall sport. It was getting so that every time one took in a game, split vision was necessary to keep track of who was participating and who wasn't.

Personally, we have never enjoyed "covering" anything so much as City College's contests thus far this year. No longer did we need a flock of aides to keep track of the conversion kicker, the field-goal specialist, the punt returner, the glue-fingered end, the vicious defensive tackle, and so on into the night.

It was something to behold when Ernie Bernard, for instance, after a sensational run, would stick around to get in his licks on defense.

All in all, the National Collegiate Athletic Association made a timely and much-needed changeover which once again permits the game of football to be played as it should be.

COMET-RAM GAME

The Rams probably won't participate in as high-scoring a contest for the rest of the current campaign as that game recently with West Contra Costa's Comets at Richmond. We'll remember that one for a long time to come and refer to it as the game which produced more points in one quarter—the third—than most contests produce in an entire 60 minutes. Coach Grover Klemmer we're sure would like to forget every bit of it, too.

Hard-pressed to garner a single touchdown in the second period, the Comets unleashed a terrific breakaway attack, featured by three runs of over 50 yards, in the second half to eventually end up with a 39 to 13 decision. Those East Bay hacks hit the center of the line, skirted the ends, sliced off tackle, and virtually buried the game Rams under in the best display of hard, swift running we have witnessed in a long time.

Particularly outstanding in the Contra Costa offensive were Doug Peters, a bruising line-smasher who lived up to his all-conference rating, and Wilbur Gary, the scatback who seemingly eyed the goal line every time he lugged the pigskin.

The first night baseball game in the United States was played on June 2, 1896 in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Laverne Lindecker Gains National Aqua Fame

By Gail Moss

A swimming champion who didn't learn to swim until she was 12 years old is unusual. One who retires at 19 is unique. This combination puts City College's LaVerne Lindecker in a class by herself.

Miss Lindecker, a personable five foot six blond, was modest about her achievements, but with a little coaxing she perched on the edge of a desk and rattled off some of her many accomplishments.

Not the least of these was the winning of the first race in which she ever competed.

She was, as previously mentioned, 12 years old at the time, and had only been swimming for two months. But the two months had been spent at Crystal Plunge, under the guidance of Charlie Sava, world famous swimming coach, to whom Miss Lindecker attributes her swimming success. As a 13 year old girl, she competed in the National Senior Women's Championships, and was good enough to place third in the mile.

In the following years she continued to swim in championship meets all over the country, always under the banner of Crystal Plunge.

Along the way, she garnered 17 Pacific Association Championships and various other awards. She was a member of the Junior National Champion 800 meter relay team which broke the American record in 1951, and of the 800 meter relay team which placed second in the National Championships at Portland, Oregon, in August of this year. On this performance, she retired. Perhaps she had no more room for awards, for her walls are adorned with some 150 medals, of which at least one-third are for first place.

When the stock question of "What was your greatest thrill?" was put to Miss Lindecker, she didn't hesitate in answering.

"My greatest thrill," she said, "was in 1951 when I almost beat Greta Anderson, the world's champion at 100 meters, in the Fleishhacker Pool. Toward the end of the race, I looked up, expecting to see Miss Anderson way ahead of me, and she was only inches in front."

Miss Lindecker's time for that one was one minute and twenty-eight seconds, one of her best.

If the reader now pictures Miss Lindecker as half fish and half machine, he can hardly be blamed. But to do the young lady full justice, she doesn't look like either one.

Miss Lindecker, a graduate of Polytechnic High School, is an attractive blond, charming and poised, yet friendly and full of life.

Despite the pressure of keeping in training for competition, she still was able to make Alpha Gamma Sigma, the honor society, in her first semester at the college. At the present time, she is the treasurer of Delta Psi sorority.

Her ambition to be a swimming teacher caused her to retire from competition last August, so that she might study under Sava. Her avocation is training dogs, and she finds time to attend a class once a week. At present, she is training a German Shepherd to perform in obedience trials.

While Miss Lindecker found that competitive swimming ruled out any social activities, she enjoyed the traveling and the chance to meet people. She considers swimming a wonderful sport, good exercise, and something that everyone should know. With her for a teacher, the people should flock to her for lessons.

Midterm Grades Known Next Week

Grades for the first midterm period of the semester, which ends this Friday, October 23, will be available from counsellors before November 1, it was announced last week by acting registrar Gertrude Somerville. They may also be obtained from individual instructors, probably at an earlier date, she said.

Miss Somerville, substituting as registrar for Mary Jane Learnard, who is on a Sabbatical leave, stated that the mid-term examinations, being given throughout this week are used to keep a check on the students' progress in the different classes.

She added that petitions for graduation for this semester may still be filed, although the deadline was last Friday. However, the registration office has already started checking the petitions, and any that are turned in late will be placed last in order and run the risk of being returned to the student at a late date because of errors.

Miss Somerville urged anyone who plans to graduate this semester and who has not turned in a petition to do so immediately.

Band Due To Play At Sacramento Game

Halftime activities at the Sacramento-City College football game, to take place at Sacramento, Friday, November 6, will be highlighted by the marching of the college band and the special attraction of a majorette drill led by eight-year old Joanne Vine, daughter of Richard Vine, music instructor here, band Director Meyer Cahn recently announced.

Now rehearsing is a special dance band, and a special rally dance is being planned under the direction of Cahn.

Cahn says that he is very prond of the way the band is performing this semester.

Debate Society In Meet With COP, St. Mary's

Phi Rho Pi, college honorary debate society, competed in a triangular meet with the teams of College of Pacific and Saint Mary's College at Stockton last night. The discussion topic was, Resolved: That the United States should adopt a policy of free trade.

George Lippi, Phi Rho Pi president, John Walker, Carmel Todaro, Grant Barnes, Stan Lee, and Don Warto represented this college.

Although this is the first real competition of the semester for the honorary debate society, Thomas Dutcher, adviser, stated: "If the performance of the team in its initial meeting with San Francisco State College and the University of San Francisco is any criterion, it should have a very successful semester."

Facts On Draft Deferment Tests Sought For By Confused Students

By John Murray

"College deferment examinations will be held November 19, 1953 and March 22, 1954.

"Yeh, that's swell! That reporter may know all about it, but I would sure like to know a few more facts than what he states, such as where do I go to get an application for this test, what do I do with it, and where in the heck do I go to take the examination!"

That was the statement of one highly confused student as he glanced at an article on draft deferment in the college newspaper last week, trying vainly to understand this subject that is very important to all students of draft age who wish to continue their attendance at college.

(Editor's note: The questions of the student will be clearly answered in the following paragraphs.)

Concerning applications for the examinations, the student should visit his local draft board where he can obtain an application. The student must clearly state on the application which examination he desires to take, the one in November, or the one in March.

After filling out the form, he must then mail it to Selective Service Examining Section, Educational Testing Service, P. O. Box 586, Princeton, New Jersey.

After accepting his application, the SSES will mail to the applicant, certain information concerning the contents of the examination and a card that is his sole passport into the examining room. That in full covers the point of applications.

On the examining day, the applicant must take the card he received in the mail with him and go to the place of examination. The location of the examining room can easily be acquired from his local draft board, the same day he obtains his application.

Campus Organization Members To Concentrate On Midterms

By Patty Moran

MEMBERS of campus organizations are turning this week away from busy social calendars to deep concentration on midterms.

Delta Psi held its first affair Sunday, October 11, at the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

Last Sunday was also the date of Alpha Sigma Delta's first affair, held at the home of Bill Boldenweek, vice-president of the fraternity. Other officers of the group, which plans its second affair on Saturday, October 24, are President, Joe Vilardi; Treasurer, Ken Felldin; Secretary, Miles Chapuis.

Louann Hoppe is the new historian of Alpha Lambda Chi. The sorority met jointly with Gamma Phi on October 14. Their next joint meeting will be with Lambda Phi on October 28.

The home of Marty Hersh was the locale for the recent affair of Lambda Phi. The fraternity will hold a business meeting on October 30 during college hour. Robin Dunn is the group's sponsor.

Canterbury Club is making further plans for a dinner dance to be held on Tuesday evening, November 10, at St. Francis Church, Ocean and San Fernando Way. Charlene Petersen is the newly elected treasurer of the club.

The Chinese Student Club is making plans for its annual Sweetheart Ball to be held in February. The organization is seeking candidates for Queen of the hig event. Any Chinese woman student interested in running may submit her name to the club.

Other coming activities include a basketball game with Cal's C.S.C. on this Friday, October 23, at the Chinese Recreation Center, and a skating party to be held on November 6 in Oakland.

Beta Phi Beta is making plans to have its first affair on a yacht. A dance to be held later in the semester at the San Francisco Athletic Club is also on the fraternity's social calendar. An attempt is being made by the members of the group to revive the tug-of-war contest with Beta Tau, which, in the past, was held during hell week.

AMS Presents Queen Trophy At Homecoming

Roberta Usher, elected Homecoming Queen last week, was awarded a trophy by Dino Gofas, Associated Men Student president, at the Rally-dance, last Thursday night in the auditorium.

Of the 322 ballots cast, Miss Usher received 62. Her sponsor was Alpha Lambda Chi.

In addition to the trophy Miss Usher was presented with three dozen roses and a $50 formal which was donated by the Ilene Carroll Dress Shop at 1552 Ocean Avenue.

Sue Speer, former student at the college, modeled the gown at the rally.

Other who vied for queen honors and their sponsors were: Frances Ainsworth, United Students Association; Juanita Daly, Alpha Lambda Chi; Lois Ferrero, Kappa Phi; Emily Hardy, United Students Association; Joanne Hassman, Delta Psi; Patty Moran, Alpha Lambda Chi; Barbara Olocco, Phi Beta Rho; Alice St. Louis, Zeta Chi; Jan Sewall, Theta Tau; Myrna Taylor, Newman Club; and Susan White, Gamma Phi Ypsilon.

All contestants participated in a parade on Market Street prior to the game with Los Angeles City College.

College Library Well Stocked With Fiction Reading

Well-filled stacks and a comfortable silence prevailed in City College's library, last week, as Clement Skraback and the library staff got in full swing for the fall semester.

A continuous traffic of students, borrowing or returning books, prove the fact that the college library is well supplied to serve any purpose from research to enjoyment reading, Skraback commented.

Among the fiction stacks might be found such books as: The Harder They Fall, by Budd Schulberg, a sports story about a young boxer and his career; The Abandoned, a novel written by Paul Gallico; Hemingway: The Writer As Artist, and How He Became a Great Novelist—the book written by Carlos Baker.

Joy Street, well known throughout the country, can also be found on the stacks. It is written by Frances Parkinson Keyes.

Drama On the Air, by David R. Mackey, is a book that discusses the why's and how's of radio broadcasting, and how to succeed in that particular career. The Fountain Head, written by Ayn Rand, also a widely read novel, can be found in the library.

Eligible Members Of AGS Notified

Alpha Gamma Sigma recently appointed its vice-president for this semester. Marty Bragen now holds the office, according to Don Jensen, the honor society adviser.

Carroll Purcell, the AGS president, and Bragen will be sending letters to those who are eligible for membership according to final grades last semester, Jensen said.

Classes To Meet November 6 In Calendar Change

A major change in the college official calendar, made last week, adds one day of classes on Friday, November 6, according to an announcement from President Louis G. Conlan.

The day was originally listed as Business-Education day, when students would have a holiday and faculty members would visit business firms in San Francisco.

Because of a conflict in scheduling, the college faculty's participation in Business-Education day is cancelled for this year, and an institute day added, Monday, December 14. This will be the start of Christmas vacation for students, President Conlan said.

The college will participate in the Education-Business day in the spring semester, he added, when city business representatives visit the San Francisco Public Schools.

Finance Head Warns Of Card Misuse

Members of the Associated Students were warned at council last week that effective today, cardholders who lend their cards to fellow students will have them confiscated.

At past functions, cards have been taken away from those abusing the privilege of AS cards, but they will be returned to their rightful owners, and the individuals will be put on 30 day probation, Wray Jacobs, Finance chairman, said, but those breaking the rule in the future will automatically lose membership in the AS.

It was decided that the Sophomore Class Dance will be held on January 23 in the Terrace Room of the Fairmont Hotel.

Ron Byrne announced that the public address system in the Associated Student office is available to any member of the Associated Students for official business.

UN Exhibit Shown On Campus This Week

The United Nations will be the theme featured in the main building display case this week. Walter Spitit, chairman of the Display Committee, has pointed ont that the U. N. theme will be particularly timely since October 19 marks the beginning of the national United Nations Weeks.

Horticulture Dep't Outlines Activities

As an experiment to determine the relative merits of different types of grass, the area between the men's and women's gymnasium is to be planted with patches of 26 varieties of grass, Harry Nelson, head of the college's horticulture department, declared yesterday.

Among the other projects planned, he added, is an entry to be made in the Oakland Flower Show.

The Horticulture Society of the college, made up of floriculture students, plan a paper drive to finance their social projects, Nelson said. The first planned event is a Halloween party on October 30.

Student Politics Are Integral Part Of Campus Activities

Politics is perhaps the most complex subject in the World on its surface, but once analyzed and broken down into its components it is an amazingly simple business.

Student politics are an important function of campus life here and the students should have a complete view of the organization which "governs" their out-class campus activities. This organization is the Associated Students, which, like all political organizations, seems complicated to the uninitiated. Here is a picture of City College student government, which should serve to "initiate" the student.

The political parties on campus nominate, in convention, candidates for the AS elective positions. Non-affiliated students may run as independents, providing they do as all others running for election and file a petition with the AS election committee, composed of the Election Commissioner and assistants appointed hy him and the AS President with Student Council approval.

A simple majority vote is necessary to elect all candidates, who are elected at-large by all AS members. No one may run for two offices in the same election.

The two political parties currently on campus are the Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC), composed of representatives from each campus fraternity and sorority, and the United Student Associated (USA), composed of non-fraternity or sorority people interested in student government.

Elective officers of the Associated Students include its leader, the president, who presides at all meetings and is chairman of the Student Council and the cabinet and is an ex-officio member of all other committees and councils. The AS Vice-President is chairman of the Social Committee, a member of the cabinet, and a voting member of the Student Council.

Other elective officers of the Association are the sophomore and freshman class presidents, who are members of the cabinet and social committee.

The Associated Men Students (AMS) and Associated Women Students (AWS), composed of AS men and women, respectively, are headed by presidents, also elected at-large, who are members of the cabinet and the social committee.

Appointive positions in AS government are the secretary, rally commissioner, yell leader, parliamentarian, alumni liaison officer, student card sales chairman, information service chairman and corresponding secretary.

These officers are appointed by the AS president with approval of council. Appointive officers who head committees are the Publications Board chairman; the Men's Athletic Commissioner, head of all athletic awards; Club Activities Board chairman, the board being composed of representatives from all on-campus clubs who keep their own groups interests in the eyes of student government leaders (City College's "lobbyists"); Finance Committee Chairman; and the Publicity Committee Chairman.

The officers listed belong to the organization's official groups which are:

The President's Cabinet, in which all present their respective departments' business; the Men's Athletic Council, which includes the AS President, the Men's Athletic commissioner, and two faculty advisers appointed by the college president; the Social Committee with the Sophomore and Freshman Presidents, the AS President and Vice-President, and the AWS President; the Rally Committee, composed of the commissioner, the yell leader, his assistants, and members-at-large appointed by the commissioner with council approval; and the Women's Athletic Association.

The backbone of the association is the Student Council, which is the legislative body and is composed of seven sophomores and seven freshmen elected at-large by AS members.

Therefore, the executive body of City College student government is composed of the AS President and his officers, and the legislative body is, of course, the Student Council. Official voice of the organization is The Guardsman.

Basis for all AS activity is the association's constitution, found in complete form in the college handbook. The constitution may be amended and carries the right of referendum.

Athletic awards are given by the association to any teams recognized by the college's athletic department.

Succession falls to the cabinet members and final jurisdiction over interpretation of the constitution is in the hands of the faculty adviser of the Student Council, who is, in reality, the judicial branch of the government.

As with all political organizations, money is the necessary evil and its expenditure is set up hy the council in the form of an official budget.

Any student with questions concerning student government can refer to the handbook, ask any student leader, or ask at The Guardsman office. Knowledge of student government is the key to more activity, and learning City College's political set-up will give a student that knowledge.—by D. M.

Ram Mascot Comes To College

"Mary had a little lamb," and "City College has a little ram."

The college now has its own live mascot, a year old Merino Ram, who was brought onto campus the morning of Tuesday, October 20 and officially greeted on the lawn near Building Two.

Credit for the animal's presence here is given to the "cattle-pnneking" of five "City College cowpokes" and to Vic Martin and Frank Sherman of S & M Motors, 200 Taraval Street, San Francisco. Also helping in obtaining the mascot was Jack Early, manager of the Grant Advertising Agency of this city.

Martin and Sherman, whose S & M Motor Company sells Dodge products, donated one of their pick-up trucks, appropriately adorned with the Dodge symbol, a ram, in which to pick up the mascot and to furnish him transportation to and from games or to wherever he should wish to stray.

The auto dealers designated Block SF President Chuck White as the ram's official chauffeur.

The center of attraction and most publicized figure of the campus is the yet unnamed mascot of the college, a yearling and apparently blasé Ram. Standing with the animal are his "captors" (left to right) Joe Garbarino, Gary Halkens, and kneeling, Chuck White, the ram, and Stan Shalit.—Photo by Tsagalakis.

Since the name of the new Dodge's motor is the "Red Ram," whether the ram or the motor came first is a mute question.

The afternoon of Monday, October 19 found the "City College cowpokes," composed of Wray Jacobs, Stan Shalit, Joe Garbarino, Gary Halkens, and White driving 108 miles to Pope Valley, near Napa and in true "Cowboy" fashion herding in the ram off a sheep-range. He is now not only the "ram with a college education," but also the only pure-bred Merino Ram in the Bay Area, according to the aforementioned "cowpokes."

A Merino Ram will yield 12 to 15 pounds of the finest wool yearly, so if need be, the mascot can "earn his board and keep."

Not only did S & M Motors donate the use of a truck for the mascot's initial and future transportation, but according to Sherman, "We (S & M Motors) are thinking of buying a blanket done in red and white colors for the Ram."

Martin, the other half of the S & M duo, left the college in 1940 before attending the University of Oregon and is, "Returning some of the help the college and Dean Browne, especially, gave him when he was an undergraduate here."

The project to obtain the college's new mascot was sponsored jointly by the Block SF, the United Student Association, Beta Phi Beta, and Alpha Sigma Delta, under the auspices of the Associated Students.

At present the ram is being kept at Garbarino's home where he was sheltered the night of his "homecoming." The Student Council has set up a volunteer committee to find a home and a proper feeding schedule for the animal. Council also passed a budget allowance for the cost of the trip to get the mascot, and for his purchase price, total which was forty dollars.

The animal was given a warm welcome to the college; he was bathed by Garbarino and Halkens, and all through his formal picture-taking he was fondly petted by "loving co-eds," including his "picture-partners" Julie Hanan, AS Vice-President, and Katie Owens, CAB member.

The ram is the quiet, dignified, type and upon being questioned could only be induced to mutter "baa," which was undoubtedly his opinion of the opponent's chances of beating the college now that he is on the scene.

"Everywhere that Mary went the lamb was sure to go," and "everywhere the Rams will go, the mascot is sure to go." He'll be seeing you at the next game.

(At present plans are pending for a contest to name the mascot, according to AS President George Effenberger.)

Variety Tryouts Scheduled Tonight in Auditorium

Tryouts for the Fall Semester Variety Show will be held tonight and tomorrow night from 6:30 to 9:30 in the auditorium, according to Jim Glasson, show director.

The show is written, directed, produced and presented by students. It is an opportunity for those interested in any phase of the theater to acquire practical experience, Glasson commented.

All talented students — singers, dancers, actors, comedians, specialty actors, musicians, composers, script writers—are urged by the director to attend the auditions. Previous theatrical experience is not essential but would be an asset.

There are also openings for people interested in the technical side of show business. Behind-the-scenes activities for which volunteers may sign up include properties, stage crew, make up, costumes, and lighting and sound. Following tryouts a department head will be appointed in each division.

Assisting Glasson with the production are Lee Meriwether, assistant director; Julie Hanan, producer; Deane Cyr, assistant producer.

Michael Griffin, head of the college drama department, is technical advisor of the Varieties and Meyer Cahn, head of the music department, will be musical advisor.

The show is scheduled to be staged sometime in January."

"Skeleton Shuffle" Theme of Newman Dance Friday Nite

With Skeleton Shuffle as the theme, the college Newman Club will present its first Associated Student dance for the semester this Friday, October 30 from 8:30 p.m. to 12 midnight at St. Emydius Hall, Mike Aggeler, club president, said last week.

Admission to the dance is $1 per couple and 75 cents stag. Tickets may he purchased from club members this week at the Silver Pole or at the bank in the main building from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Members of the Newman Club preparing for the affair are Dave Raphael, publicity chairman and committee members Mike Aggeler, Ted Kast, Bob Floer, and Mike Hurley; Jim McKenzie, ticket sales chairman, and members Mildred Stoll, Janice Michel, Loretta Warchot, George Berthold, and Ed Keith, and Ed Hjerpe, floor chairman.

Working on decorations are Joe Congi and committee members Nancy McNamara, Janice Hoffer, Pat O'Donnell, Monica McTigue, Loretta La Fata, Lou Mantel, Betty Peterson, Joanne Castellucci, Liz Ash, Lydia Farina, Sue Metaxas, Donna Thompson, Karen James, Marilyn Jacobs, Sharon Ford, Janet Yurosh, Margie Walker, Myrna Taylor, Sandy Yudnick, Diane Di Lelis, Althea Roberts, Betty Poncetta, Betty Keegan, Janet Cohwhooley, Mary Ann Reardon, Sue Smith, Victor Bacigalupi, Jim Dowd, Mike Dowd, and Mike Cucco.

St. Emydius Hall is located on Jules and De Montford Streets, one block south of the El Rey Theater.

Korean Vets Still To Turn In Forms

Thirteen Korean War Veterans applying for subsistence allowance have not yet submitted their certificate of eligibility, reported Betty Arnold, Secretary for the veterans affairs, recently.

Miss Arnold asked that "all Korean Vets who have been issued a Certificate for Education and Training from the VA, please bring them to the veterans affairs office in Building Three immediately, so that they can begin receiving their allowance."

According to the secretary, at least 13 men applying for subsistence allowance under Public Law 550, (Korean War) have not brought in their certificates. Unless these certificates are presented to the veterans affairs office, subsistence allowance can not begin.

She also wished to remind all the veterans now drawing their allowance under P. L. 550 to be sure and sign their monthly report on November 2.

900 Permits Issued For Campus Parking

Approximately 900 student parking permits have been issued this Fall, an increase of some 100 permits over last semester, Dean Edwin C. Browne said last week.

Campus citations fall generally under vehicle code 603-A. This code gives the local public agency the right to regulate its own parking rules. Citations have been issued to violators of parking improperly, too close to fire hydrants, parking in yellow, green, and white zones, and parking off of the paved area and on the lawns surrounding the Campus, the Dean commented.

With the student increase there has been an accompanying demand for parking permits. Students in possession of permits who lose them or have a need for a duplicate may apply and receive one in the Dean's office.

Orders have already been issued for parking space between Building 13 and Phelan Avenue. When the space is clean and proper entrance and exits have been acquired, the ban on parking permits will probably be lifted, the Dean added.

The success of the Associated Student Card Sales shows that the students are aware of the many advantages their cards hold, one of which is the privilege of parking on the West Campus, stated the Dean.

Students who feel they are deprived of parking close to their daily classes, should see a few of the parking problems facing some of the larger Universities and Colleges in the Bay Area, where students walk large distances to attend their classes, according to Browne.

40 Students Sign Up With AGS

Alpha Gamma Sigma, honor society of the college, has had 40 students sign up for membership with Don Jensen, faculty adviser of the society.

More students are expected to join, according to Jensen, and the list now includes:

Joann Adolph, Ena Aquino; Joan Anderson, Marilyn Angel, Chas. W. Aver, Mary Baird, Roby Blessing, Martin Bragen, Barbara Bratton, Wendall Collett, Powell Coons, Rose Cossins, Maurice Davis, Joseph Dubinsky, George Effenberger, Ruth Gomberg, Emily Hardy, Norma Healy, Neva Holmes, Lou Ann Hoppe, Miriam Kyssler, Elizabeth Kergan, Dick Landucci, Lennie Lee, Elizabeth Peterson, Elizabeth Poncetta, Hal Powers, Carroll Pursell, Beatrice Sanchez, Margaret Shonr, Rosemary Stewart, Peter Stone, Raymond Tankersby, Roberta Usher, George Voronoff, Ronald Weiss, Shelly White, Janet Whooley, Herman Zeites and Andrew Tang.

Jensen urges eligible students, who have not done so, to sign up with him as soon as possible. He is located in Building 3.

17 Associated Student Leaders Attend Northern California Junior College Conference At Sacramento

By Gail Moss

Resolutions were passed and possible new legislation was discussed at the Northern California Junior College Student Government Conference, held at Sacramento last Thursday, October 22, and attended by 17 student representatives from City College of San Francisco.

Representing the college were George Effenberger, Associated Student President; Julie Hanan, AS Vice-President; Alberta Cordini, Gary Halkins, Walter Vukonieff, JoAnne Hassman, Wray Jacobs, Dave Raphael, Harry Roebling, Joe Vilardi, Marliee Scholl, Stan Shalit, Dave Hanak, Bill Boldenweek, Joe Garbarino, Larry Elizarde, and Ron Byrne.

The Sacramento conference is held each fall to discuss matters of general interest to all junior colleges in Northern California. Such mutual problems as the school budgets, college newspapers, price of student Association cards, the number of dances to be held in a semester, and many other common topics are discussed.

The Northern California Conference is held as a preliminary to the California State Junior College Conference, held in Asilomar at Pacific Grove, in the Spring of 1954. At this conference, representatives from junior colleges will meet to pool their ideas and complaints and from this discussion a uniform policy will be adopted for the State's two-year institutions. Legislation will also be made to present to the California State Legislature for their action upon it.

Election Dates Set By AS Commissioner

Tuesday and Wednesday, January 12 and 13, have been set aside as Election Days for the 1954 spring semester, stated Larry Elizardi, Election Commissioner of the Associated Students at Student Council last week. "Rally Day" will fall on January 8th and Petition Day is expected to be in the latter part of December, pending Council's approval.

Wray Jacobs, Publicity Director for the United Students Association, announced that the USA Convention will be held on December 11th, and the Convention for the Inter-Fraternity Council will be held on December 10.

Clubs Meet During College Hour

All campus organizations will hold club meetings during college hour, this Friday, October 30, according to Louis F. Batmale, dean of student activities.

Block SF Society is sponsoring a motion picture of the San Francisco 49er's-Cleveland Brown game of 1949, to be shown at this time in Building Nine, Batmale added. All athletes are invited to attend.

The college hour schedule for the remaining Fridays of this semester is as follows:

Student-Faculty Coffee Hour, November 13; Club Meetings, November 20; Club Meetings, December 11; Basketball and Election Rally, January 8; Club Meetings, January 15; Soph-Faculty Basketball Game, January 22; Finals, January 29.

The holiday previously scheduled for Friday, November 6, in honor of Business-Education Day, has been cancelled and set for December 14. Because of this change the college hour schedule for that day is as yet unknown.

Dental Assisting Course Offered

The Dental Assisting curriculum offered here at City College is accredited by the State Association of Dental Assistants, according to Lloyd Luckmann, director of curriculum here.

According to Luckmann, the question has been asked why take a two-year course here when a downtown office offers a four-month course? This downtown office is actually nothing more than a dental assistant placement office and what is learned in the four months does not fully qualify a woman for employment, says Luckmann.

After completing the two-year program offered here a woman is fully qualified and accredited to become employed as a dental assistant. The eight women enrolled in the program this semester are: Barbara Baldwin, Frances Gotfrid, Sharlene Johnson, Adelle Mayer, Barbara Ness, Dorothy Oda, Carole Ortiz and Marian Spiezka, according to department heads.

Dr. Joe Sweet and Mrs. Ruth Inskipp head the department.

Eisenhower Points Out Value Of Two-Year College Education

PRESIDENT Dwight Eisenhower said in a recent speech at Defiance College, Ohio that he, "Firmly believed that more extensive education than that obtainable in high schools must be brought to every locality in such a way that every young person regardless of his means . . . can go to school for a minimum of two additional years."

It was with this very thought in mind that San Francisco's city fathers established the college in 1935. City College was founded for the benefit of the youth of this city, who include the students, past, present, and future.

Some could never afford "a minimum of two additional years of education," a must, if it weren't for the presence of this institution. Here we have some of the finest instruction offered anywhere in the nation, instruction which would be unobtainable to many at high-tuition colleges or universities.

At a tuition free two year college such as ours, all have the opportunity to study under this fine instruction without the expense that such training would involve elsewhere.

We should all be thankful for the beneficial thoughtfulness of the college's "founding fathers," who like President Eisenhower, believed "That at least two additional years of education after high school should be received by every American boy and girl, regardless of means or lack of means."

And in our locale the obvious place for them to get that education is at the City College of San Francisco, a college which gives its educational benefits to anyone, "regardless of means or lack of means."

Welcome To Ram Mascot

WE know that we speak for the college as a whole in welcoming the ram to City College. He will be happy here and add more to the college's spirit and tradition than anything to "come down the pike" in years.

A warm and sincere "Thank you" is given to S & M Motors, Grant Advertising, Inc., and the City College students, through whose generosity and hard work we were able to realize the ownership of our own live mascot.

Orson Welles Presents King Lear In Omnibus' Gratifying Nutshell

By Harold Painter

TV AGAIN has presented classical drama to the general public. The first presentation, a rendition of Hamlet, would have enhanced its general appeal had the performers appeared on stilts or juggled between acts, and the master of ceremonies might have been a carnival barker, all without interfering with the willful suspension of disbelief.

The current presentation, King Lear, was a modification rather than a rendition, and did a great deal to advance the appeal of Shakespeare to those acquainted with his capacity as a closet dramatist.

It is not improbable that the Omnibus presentation of King Lear engendered no Shakespeare enthusiasts. Too many loose ends in the plot remained untied. Without previous reading Gloucester's loss of sight was an act of demonic inspiration rather than the venting of wrath upon an upright Earl, who would preserve the King and subjects from usurpation. Again, the transitions in administrative affairs and the political flux of high state were absent so that the persons and institutions experiencing the changes appeared they were startlingly out of context.

The Omnibus presentation excluded the subplot, Gloucester's tragic misfortune, leaving Shakespeare's message without the force or leitmotiv that identifies and deepens the tragedy. Lear was projected an unhappy King whose dramatic appeal was sufficient within the sphere of his actions, having no truck with anything more than the microcosm; the universality that has preserved the play to posterity was left to the hearth. However, the time limit imposed upon the production allowed some good usage, and Orson Welles drew deep from within his sympathy to give Lear sheer dramatic appeal this capricious and profound man is capable of.

In its display of pure passion, King Lear is Wagnerian-like. The storm scene is notable for its flow of imagery; here Shakespeare recalls for us the primitive awe inspired by the play of elements; he sounds deep into our consciousness for an enthralling homage to nature in its most overt movements.

King Lear achieves a rare blending of pessimism and beauty, that wondrous hybrid whose topmost branches heseech heaven while the roots find life-warmth in hell.

King Lear does not steep in blackness, he stands in the shadow of beauty. Lear ever stands on the verge of hazardous reincarnations; he seeks madness to escape sanity; his madness is an uncertain move toward the truth he has envisioned, but the movement of the micro-world about and within him negate the possibility of achievement. In this, Shakespeare has made the supreme self-identification with his medium; we are astounded at the intensity of the conflict.

Letters to the Editor

Spectator Column Praise

Editor, The Guardsman:

Haroid Painter certainly deserves favorable comment for his brief but lively account of the circus from Sulla's day to our own peanut-crunching era, which appeared in his column, The Spectator, in the September 30 issue of The Guardsman. He uses the tools of the writer's craft well indeed in his very realistic thumb-nail sketch of the clowns.

In this reporter I believe The Guardsman has acquired a well-equipped writer who has the sensibility to perceive and portray a clear, true picture. I am looking forward to reading more of Harold Painter's work in The Guardsman.

Sororities, Fraternities Upheld

Editor, The Guardsman:

In your recent Letter to the Editor an article was printed describing fraternities and sororities as plainly "Party Time Organizations." To deny that parties ("joints" between fraternities and sororities) are part of the activities of these groups would be silly; to say that parties are the only activities of these two groups is ridiculous.

Organized clubs, sororities and fraternities are the main support of your school functions. The majority of students at rallies, football, basketball games, and other social activities of the campus are representatives of these organizations.

You do not have to belong to one of these so-called party groups to be part of City College. Their members, however, are encouraged by the groups to take an active interest in our school.

Fraternities and sororities at City College are not the typical Hollywood movie production of snobs. Fraternities this semester held a smoker for all male students, giving them the opportunity to choose their own groups. The college supports fraternities and sororities, and in return they attempt to pay back their debt by being interested in our school.

Scholastics also play a part in these two organizations. Group studying, the loaning of notes or books, and even individual help is not uncommon among members. They only ask you to assist others in their courses.

This is only a two year school, but why wait until a four year college to start your campus activities? Look at the record of City College of San Francisco's officers at California!

These organizations prepare the student scholastically and socially to face a social and academic world.

Students Beware

Halloween, this Friday, is the time of the year when witches mount their '53 model brooms and fly over the unsuspecting houses of City College students to haunt and maybe taunt them with a warm toothless smile into doing what "does not come naturally" —studying for mid-terms.

Ghosts and Goblins may, if not too busy searing the daylights out of faculty members of the college into correcting these boring tests, with a little coaxing, help with the up-hill battle against the students.

Busy Bee Of Campus

Publicity Head Has Many Jobs

BILL BOLDENWECK

Chairman of the Publicity Committee happens to be just one of Bill Boldenweck's many jobs around the campus. He is also president of the Inter Fraternity Council and Vice President of Alpha Sigma Delta.

As chairman of the Publicity Committee, Boldenweck supervises the handling of any internal or external publicity for the Associated Students. News that is worthy of the public's eye is collected by this committee and submitted to the downtown newspapers for publication. Publicity of any coming Associated Student events are handled by the posting of signs or posters around the campus. This committee also is in charge of getting out the College Handbook each semester.

One of the main difficulties constantly confronting the committee is securing information. Boldenweck said "Students who know about certain events or happenings will oftimes keep it to themselves instead of letting us know so that we can get a little publicity for the college." He went on to say, "If anyone has anything of interest in the way of coming events or happenings, please let us know."

Boldenweck, who served with the Marine Corps in Korea, is in his third semester at City College. A graduate of Bates High School in San Francisco and a Public Relations major, he enjoys his job as chairman of the Publicity Committee and plans to go on with this kind of work after college.

Students From South Impressed With San Francisco Hospitality

By Shirley Murphy

FORTY-ONE spirited rooters trekked to San Francisco to view the contest between the Rams and Cubs. The enterprising Southerners staged a rally at Union Square, complete with brass band.

Unofficial good will ambassadors Jim Brownfield, Harry Roebling, Walt Yakovleff, and Bill Zarubin guided some of the visitors on a tour of the local spots of interest. The tourists feted included Bill Weiss, associated student president; Kent Kinney, associated student vice-president; Janie Sieger, president of the associated women students and Loretta Zelinka, president of the nursing society.

As spokesman for the group Weiss commented that the hospitality accorded him by the students of City College is unsurpassed in all his experience.

And they call it Southern hospitality!

A Hero

A shivering City College student was rescued from the waters of the Bay last week by two amphibious gendarmes. Charles Bardini was not a victim of midterm delerium—he was merely trying to salvage the chapeau of Marc Schmoker, which had been blown into the waters by a mischievous gust of wind. He succeeded in catching a cold, but the hat eluded him.

Ram of Distinction

The woolly creature seen happily munching grass outside Building 2 recently was not an optical illusion. It was the new college mascot. The butting terror hails from Pope Valley. The ram did not come to the college empty handed. He brought papers describing his forefathers. Ours is not an ordinary ram; he is a pure bred, "pedigreed" ram.

Green and Gold

And then they were Dons — five former City College students now busily engaged in activities on the USF campus are Leon Smith, Alexander Gross, Clarence Miller, Bill McCormick, and Emil King.

Man's Best Friend

Chuck White was the samaritan who removed the wandering canine from the field during the game with L.A.C.C. The boxer was reunited with his owner and all lived happily ever after.

Sight of the Week

The intricate footwork executed by the agile student as he slid to the ground and landed sitting buddha-like in the center of a large puddle.

Volunteers

A call for volunteers has been sounded by Raymond Conlan, who is in charge of all election publicity for the west campus. Conlan was appointed last week by Larry Elizarde, election commissioner. He urged all civic minded students to sign up in the Dean of Men's office. The deadline for joining this committee has been set at November 30.

Straw Hat Rates

Students who own Associated Student cards may purchase tickets for "Dance, Anyone?" the Straw Hat production currently at the Marines Memorial Theater for half price. This rate includes seats at all prices. The review will run for the next four weeks. Performances are nightly, except Monday and Tuesday.

Beverly Axelrod, former student at the college who appeared in last semester's Varieties, has a featured spot in the show.

Four Hundred

Fifteen police cars answered a "major riot" call when more than 400 University of Southern California students raced through the streets tossing furniture into bonfires.

The students almost overturned the first squad car on the scene, let the air out of tires of other cars and kept firemen busy by starting new blazes as fast as the old ones were being put out.

Shouted one student: "We're crazy with the heat."

FILMS: Brown University students go to the movies free during final exam week. The student board of governors schedules cartoons and short motion pictures to relieve the pressure of studying for examinations.

THREE LEMONS: Life at a North Carolina State College fraternity house changed abruptly from cherries to three straight lemons recently when police confiscated a nickel slot machine in the basement.

A student operating the machine was convicted and made to pay court costs. The alumni group which owns the fraternity house was charged $50. Everyone else was acquitted, except the slot machine, which was junked by court order.

USC Students

ALL-AMERICAN: An American history professor asked his class for a list of the eleven greatest Americans, reports the Postscript of Richmond Professional Institute, Va. While the students wrote, the teacher strolled around the room. Finally he paused at one desk and asked the youth if he had finished his list.

"Not yet," said the student, "I can't decide on the fullback."

HIGH STANDARDS: You have to know how to write if you want to graduate from Michigan State college. A new ruling there states that seniors can't graduate until their "writing technique is improved to a point where they can write legibly."

418 students were enrolled in a non-credit writing course, designed to improve literacy among future degree holders. MSC officials have said nothing thus far about any reading requirements.

GERMANY: Under the title "The Baby Shoes of Democracy," the Colloquium, Berlin Student magazine, awards a pair of baby shoes to the member of the German parliament judged to be responsible for the year's worst oratory.

This year the contest was a two-way draw, and a shoe apiece was sent to the winners. Winners were Federal Minister of Justice Dr. Dehler (right shoe) and Bundestag representative Dr. Greve (left shoe).

Dr. Dehler sent his shoe back to the magazine, but Dr. Greve wanted to know how he could earn the entire pair.

ENGLAND: Two students walked 60 miles in 12 hours, from London to Cambridge, and arrived just in time to keep a date with a girl from Girton College.

FRANCE: Two professors at the Sorbonne have started holding their classes up in the sky, and teaching method has been so successful that beginning this semester the "flying seminar" will be a required course in the natural science department.

RAMBLINGS

By Al Palacio

PERHAPS the City College soccer team should follow the example set recently by both the University of California and Stanford University in that the latter, in an all-out effort to popularize the sport, staged soccer preliminaries prior to the main football event.

According to all reports, the innovation proved a success and both institutions are planning more of the same. The usual set-up in the past was to contest the junior varsity gridders in the curtain-raising affair.

The move to stage a soccer tilt instead has been met with nods of approval from both players and spectators as well. During the course of both games, the booters, fully aware they were performing before a large assembled gallery, seemed to put out just a bit more than usual.

This plan hasn't as yet been suggested to Coach Roy Diederichsen, but he undoubtedly would be in favor of it. Heretofore, the local soccer aggregation has had mainly morning (10 o'clock) game dates on Saturdays or Wednesday evening settos.

Of course, it seems a trite late to mention this proposed plan now with the football campaign so far advanced. The groundwork, however, could be laid at the present and continued through the following seasons.

The Ram footballers still have a couple of home dates at Kezar Stadium to keep.

COACHES SPOTLIGHTED

The management of a downtown theater asked several football mentors to attend the opening night performance recently of a film titled "The All-American" and take part in a small stage show.

Three prominent City College representatives were on hand, each present in a different capacity. Grover Klemmer was introduced as head coach, naturally; Bill Fischer represented the officiating group; and Jack Gaddy took in the proceedings in his role of director of the men's physical education department.

FOOTBALL TIDBIT

The Rams' recent contest with the Los Angeles City College Cubs was highly productive insofar as the "birth" of a pair of stars was concerned. By that, we mean the fine offensive and defensive performances turned in by Don "Whitey" Brand and Earl Smith.

Fullback Brand, whose playing had been confined, up until then, to the end position, slashed and blitzed for yardage every time he carried the ball. He almost tallied all three touchdowns himself, failing on the last try when a pass intended for him was knocked into the hands of Pat Francisco. The latter, incidentally, also played a heads-up defensive game as his three interceptions will attest to.

Smith, an unheralded center, was literally all over the field making tackles and, in general, knocking down anybody standing in his path to the ball carrier.

Arata And Frank Chosen Co-Captains

Two freshmen performers were chosen co-captains for the L. A. City College game two weeks ago (in a contest that was marked by sudden surge of power on the part of the Rams in the closing stanza, to tie the game at 19 all).

The two named were quarterback Ray Arata (above) and halfback Jim Franks, who was absent on camera day.

Arata, ex-Riordan High School star and now capable pass thrower for the Rams, weighs in at 165 pounds distributed evenly on a six foot frame.

Franks, who is 5 feet 11 inches and tips the scales at 160 pounds, formerly attended Balboa High School where he had many standout moments.—Photo by Tsagalakis.

Basketball Signup Scheduled Monday

Sign-up for varsity basketball tryouts will be conducted on Monday, November 2 at 3 o'clock in Room 107 of the Men's Gymnasium, Ralph Hillsman, head coach, announced last week.

Hillsman expects many outstanding ex-preps to attend along with a few returning veterans. Lettermen include Jerry Stack and Warren Baxter, guards, and center Bill Gregg.

The list of former high school stars is headed by Jim Stevens and Jack Ashman from St. Ignatius; Jack Diggins from Sacred Heart; Lowell's Mike Leaskou and Al Holder; and Theopolis Dunn from Galileo.

In 1952-3, the Rams finished third in the Big Seven Conference and Hillsman indicated that the squad may step up a notch or two in this year's standings.

Among the pre-season foes the college casabans meet, according to Hillsman, are the University of San Francisco, Y.M.I., and the Olympic Club.

WAA To Hold Second Playday Today At 3

Today, at 3 o'clock in the women's gymnasium, the second high school playday will be held. The guest schools are Lowell, George Washington, and Abraham Lincoln and the sports are tennis and volleyball. President of the Women's Athletic Association, Colleen Walker, announces that refreshments will also be served to the players.

The list of WAA sports is now complete. Volleyball is held on Monday at 3 o'clock under Vivian Bernard's direction. Experienced archery with Nancy Sparks on Tuesday from 10 to 11 o'clock. Swimming on Tuesday and Thursday from 2 until 3 o'clock with Mrs. Desmond at the YWCA. Also on Tuesday and Thursday is folk dancing with Laurine Bergin from 12 to 1 o'clock and 1 until 2 o'clock. Badminton is on Monday at 3 o'clock and Friday during college hour with Miss Sparks, according to Miss Bernard, WAA adviser.

John L. Sullivan lost his title to Jim Corbett in 1892 and got nothing, as the fight was on a winner-take-all basis.

Rams, Vikings Vie Saturday Night At ECC

The City College Rams will attempt to continue their winning ways against the East Contra Costa Vikings this Saturday night. The game, a night contest, starts at 8 o'clock on the opponents' home field and marks the second appearance of the new "high-scoring Ram machine" which rolled over San Mateo last Saturday.

This contest will mark the first time the two institutions have met on the gridiron, since East Contra Costa has only been in operation three years. The college was opened in the Fall of 1950.

The undefeated and untied Vikings will throw their heavy guns against the local favorites with hopes of maintaining their five game winning streak. On the other hand the ever hustling Rams will be trying to maintain a streak of their own after winning the traditional big game with the San Mateo Bulldogs, results of which are in this issue.

The Vikings under the steady hand of coach Hal Bucca are led by halfback L. C. Joyner who in past games has racked up a total of 481 yards in 38 ball-carrying assignments. Other outstanding stars for the northern California squad are Sonny Dunham, halfback, Ray Vallejo, quarterback, and Frank Aiello, end.

The switch of Don Brand, 195 pound end to fullback, has helped the Rams immensely and will again be an important factor in the outcome of the game.

The ex-Poly performer stepped into a backfield role like an experienced hand, and with his steady improvement at the position along with stalwart defensive play by end Don Baroni the red and white just should give the Vikings a rough night.

18 Junior Colleges Play In 3 Northern California Leagues

There are three junior college conferences in northern California with eighteen teams competing for athletic laurels. The leagues are the Big Seven Conference, Golden Valley, and Coast Conference.

The Big Seven Conference is comprised of West Contra Costa, San Mateo, Santa Rosa, Stockton, Sacramento, Modesto, and City College.

Member colleges of the Coast Conference are East Contra Costa, Menlo, Hartnell, Marin, and Monterey.

In the Golden Valley league are Yuba, Grant Tech, Vallejo, Sierra, Shasta, and Napa.

Currently leading the Big Seven Conference are West Contra Costa's Comets, with three victories and no defeats. City College has a win and a tie thus far in league play.

The Vikings of East Contra Costa, whom the Rams meet this week, are undefeated in their loop while the Yuba 49ers are kingpins of the Golden Valley with no losses to date.

Intra Activities In Full Swing; Boxing Added

Boxing has been added to the list of intra-mural activities now in progress, and the class competition is in full swing, it was announced last week by Ralph Hillsman, director of the intra-mural program.

The addition of boxing to the schedule brings the total number of sports already under way to six. Play in touch-football, basketball, tennis, bowling, and badminton began several weeks ago.

Hillsman said that unlike the team sports, where round-robin competition is scheduled, the boxing winners will be decided by an elimination tournament, with the winners of the preliminary bouts meeting each other until the contenders are narrowed to two. These two will meet for the class championship. The class champions will meet to decide the inter-class championship, he added.

Rams Win Big Game

City College Retains Tom-Tom Trophy By Winning Traditional; Brand Scores Three Touchdowns

By Al Palacio

An alert defense and a three-touchdown output by fullback Don Brand last Saturday night at Sequoia High School stadium combined to help earn the City College Rams their first win of the season, 32 to 13, over the San Mateo Junior College Bulldogs.

As a result of the victory in the traditional rivalry Big Seven Conference contest, City College retains possession of the coveted Tom-Tom trophy. Also the Rams rise out of the league cellar and San Mateo now occupies the seventh rung.

Coach Grover Klemmer's eleven wasted little time in showing its supremacy as the Rams rolled up 13 points in the opening quarter which were set up by the opponents' miscues.

A fumble by San Mateo quarterback Bob Innes was recovered on the Bulldogs' 4-yard line by City College and three plays later halfback Jim Frank punched over the goal from the one. Jerry James' point-after-touchdown try was blocked.

James kicked off to the peninsulans' 35-yard line and on the first play of the series from scrimmage, Innes bobbled the ball again. This time end Don Baroni recovered for the Rams on the 27. It took six plays for City College to cash in on the opportunity, with Brand touring right end for six yards and the score. James booted the conversion out of quarterback Ray Arata's placement.

Brand chalked up his second touchdown in the second period as he culminated an eight-play drive by skirting left end for 9 yards and the tally. James' extra point attempt was wide and the Rams stretched their lead to 19 to 0.

The Bulldogs struck back late in the second stanza for their initial score. Quarterback Bob Innes shot a pass to end Darrell Bullard, who grabbed the toss on the City College 45-yard line and rambled into the end zone standing up. Bullard's conversion was good and the half-time score showed the Rams on the long end of a 19 to 7 count.

Early in the final period, City College tacked up two rapid-fire touchdowns to place the score completely out of the Bulldogs' reach.

After a San Mateo offensive thrust had been repelled by the aroused Rams' forward wall, City College took over on downs on their own 19. Four plays later, Brand hit left tackle from his own 29, seemed to be stalled momentarily, then burst out into the open and sped all the way to the goal line. James' extra point kiek was wide to the left.

On the first play of the Bulldogs' next play series, an Innes aerial was intercepted by Arata and returned to the San Matean's 43. Arata passed to Baroni on the 27 for the first down then to end Don Brown on the 19. The Rams' signal-caller capped the drive by hitting Baroni with a pass in the end zone for the six-pointer. Brown's extra point boot split the uprights.

San Mateo's last tally came with three and one-half minutes left in the ball game. Innes faded back to pass from the Rams' 35-yard line, was trapped, ran to his right, then cut to the opposite sideline and traveled the remaining distance for the touchdown. Bullard's conversion try was low.

Booters To Do Battle Against Bears Today

With a previous victory over Santa Clara by a 3-2 score, the City College soccer team today tackles an ever dangerous University of California outfit in a league game to be played at the Rams home field. The contest is set for 3 p.m.

Coach Roy Diederichsen's boys, a vastly improved aggregation, found Santa Clara a tough team to outscore and consequently had to go all out for the victory.

The Broncos opened the scoring half way through the first quarter when inside right Rodrigo Jimenez took a pass from his wing and calmly proceeded to head the ball into the goal.

Undismayed, the Rams continued to apply the pressure and with only 40 seconds to go in the quarter, Joe Muscat, a newcomer to the team, deadlocked the issue with a tremendous shot which all but took the goal keeper along with it.

The second quarter saw a see-saw battle being waged until Jaime Martinez, the Rams center-forward, broke the tie with a goal 11 minutes before the end of the quarter.

There was no more scoring in the half so the two teams went into the rest period with the red and white ahead 2-1.

Santa Clara came back strong in the second half and it took the Broncos exactly eight minutes to draw even again as Alonso Noriegi, Bronco center-forward, scored the goal.

Coach Diederichsen, who earlier had been using a one fullback system with the extra man right behind the forward line, went back to orthodox soccer and strengthened the defense by using two fullbacks.

This move paid off as the Rams stopped Santa Clara cold partly thanks to Don Revere's play at center-half.

The regulation game ended in a 2-2 tie so a ten minute overtime was played.

With only four minutes gone in the extra period, Martinez pulled the Bronco defense out of position and sent the ball to rest against the net to catapault City College into the lead.

The referee's whistle announced the end of hostilities with a final score of 3-2 in the Rams favor.

Today's game is a toss up between a tough, experienced Golden Bear squad and a hustling, never-say-die gang of City College soccermen.

Lee Eisan Continues His Colorful Football Career

Many legends have arisen around Lee Eisan, member of Andy Smith's famed California "Wonder Teams," successful coach, official, and now instructor at the college.

One legend, and one that can be easily proved, is that Eisan (pictured at right) seldom has a losing team. As a prep at Polytechnic High School in 1923, he led his team to the first of their many championships. From there, he joined the fabulous Olympic Club football team for two years.

In 1926, Eisan matriculated at the University of California, and his exploits as a player are history. He held the quarterback job from 1927 through 1929, when the quarterback had to be a crunching blocker as well as an adept signal-caller. One look at the man's stocky, powerful build is testament to the fact that he could do his job.

Upon graduation, he coached for five years at LaVerne College in Southern California. In 1936, Eisan came to what is now City College of San Francisco, and three years later took over as head football coach. When he retired in 1946 to teach hygiene and real estate, it was again with a winner, for the Rams were Big Seven champions that year.

Free of that responsibility, the iron-haired Eisan devoted more time to his job as a Pacific Coast Conference official. Genial off the field, his fiery, "I'm-the-boss" attitude on the grid has gained him the respect of coaches and players, and has earned him whistle-tooting assignments in several Shrine East-West games and in the Rose Bowl game of 1942.

Eisan has been in football for some thirty years now, but his appearance makes this hard to believe. Aside from the silver streaks in his hair, one would think that in 1923 he was knocking the slats out of his cradle rather than knocking the ambition out of rival tacklers. But he has spent thirty years as a player, a coach, and an official. If he keeps up his winning ways, he may be in football for thirty years more.

The National Press Photographers Association, working with the college and the Institute of Journalistic Studies of Stanford University is offering a short course in photo-journalism to be held Wednesday and Thursday, November 11 and 12, at the Press and Union League Club in San Francisco, George Mullany, journalism and graphic arts instructor, said here recently.

This two-day review of the latest technical and editorial developments in press photography is one in a series of three to be given on the Pacific Coast. The other two are in Los Angeles and Seattle.

The purpose of the short courses is to improve the technique and standards of press photographers, Mullany commented.

Foreign Student Office Rushed

The foreign students office, in the lower floor of Building 3 west campus, under the direction of Joseph Jacobsen, is at present in a rushed state, owing to the annual census of students.

Each student is being interviewed to straighten out his immigration status so that his papers may be filed, Jacobsen said.

Students who have failed to make appointments are requested by Jacobsen to do so immediately. An appointment date may be obtained from the counselling office in Building 3.

Under the new McCarran act the original student visa 4(e) has been replaced by 4(f) which does not allow students to take employment in the United States, also the new status is not a visitors permit and so students should accommodate themselves with enough money to last them at least a year, Jacobsen said.

In regards to student support in this country, arrangements will be made by the bank of the country a foreign student represents so that his financial burden may be relieved, the counselor stated.

Those students who wish to take up part time employment must file application both in the college and at the immigration department where a board has been set to determine the case of the student in question, Jacobsen stated.

Permission will only be granted after the case has been determined, and those who are taking less than 12½ minimum units course, may not report to the immigration department for such cases are taken care of in the college office.

A Cappella Choir Plans Christmas Concert Recitals

Christmas hymns and sacred music selections will be featured by the City College A Cappella choir at high school concert recitals sometime in the near future, according to Richard Vine, choir director.

Plans are still tentative, but the concert recitals are to be held in various high schools throughout the city, around December.

A program of well-known Christmas hymns, and sacred music, similar to or the same as the numbers which will be used in the college Christmas recital are being rehearsed.

A number of soloists partiicpating in the program are: Charlotte Mcgaughn, Ilma Baker, Dorothy Larew, Bill Parker, Raymond Murillo, Jesse Daggs, Fleman Hardy, Susane Palmer, Tony Watts, and John Wescott, according to Vine.

Among the selections named by Vine to be presented are: Oh Holy Night, by Adams, The Fred Waring arrangement of The Night Before Christmas, Beautiful Savior, a traditional Crusader hymn, Come Unto Him, by Handel, Messiah selections, and many other traditional Christmas Carols.

According to Vine, much planning, preparation, and rehearsal is in store for the choir, in order to make the forthcoming productions successful.

Tryouts For Play To Be Held Today And Tomorrow

Tryouts for the second drama production of the semester will take place on Wednesday, October 28 and Thursday, October 29 in the Little Theater, Room 28, in the main building from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., Michael Griffin, drama coach, announced recently.

The play, which will be presented sometime in December, has not been chosen yet. Among the selections being considered are "Kind Lady" and "The Glass Menagerie."

Casting is open to all associated student members. Those without AS cards will not be considered for a role, Griffin commented.

The first play of the semester, "The Male Animal," was staged by the drama department last Friday and Saturday nights. Thesplians who performed were: Bobbie Wallace, Lee Meriwether, Dino Gofas, Bruce Comer, Myrl Britton, Oscar Anderson, Jim Glasson, Diane Herschberg, M. H. Friedrichsen, Joyce Cody and Deane Cyr. Elliott Nugent and James Thurber authored the comedy.

No, this isn't trick photography, but the college's shortest student, Roso Cutinfo, and 6 foot, 4 inch Chuck Paine, on education major. Miss Cutinfo measures a dollike 4 feet 3½ inches.

This is Miss Cutinfo's first semester here while Paine has been attending City College for 5 semesters. It looks as if David and Goliath had nothing on Paine and Miss Cutinfo. The height (or lack of it) has not bothered Miss Cutinfo one bit, since she is an active student. Paine was a member of the basketball team.—Photo by Tsogolokis.

All Students Invited To Join In Discussions On Foreign Relations

A new organization is being formed for all students of the college who desire to discuss and be exposed to an atmosphere of friendly international relations, Dr. Jacobsen, foreign students adviser announced last week.

This group will hold its first meeting during college hour Friday, in Room 9K, west campus.

All foreign and American students who are interested in international relations are invited to attend, he said.

In addition to the goal of attaining international fellowship this organization has the following purposes, as stated by Jacobsen:

1. Afford an opportunity to students from different parts of the world to form acquaintances, associate more freely, and exchange ideas.

2. Make foreign students aware of the social and cultural aspects of American people and assist them in adjusting to their new environment.

3. Familiarize American students with the value and beauties of cultures foreign to this country.

4. Lend a helping hand to students who, as newcomers to this college, find difficulties in following the registration procedures.

5. Assist students whose study programs present difficulties during the first semester.

6. Provide proper guidance in relations to the U. S. immigration services and foreign consuls.

Under the sponsorship of Dr. Luckmann, Coordinator Division of Instruction, and Dr. Jacobsen, it is expected that social functions as well as mutual assistance will be the slogan of this International Relations Organization.

Participating in the Planning Board meeting, on October 14 in Room A, for the above organization, were the following students representing their countries:

Z. K. Mazur, Poland; L. R. Thorsnes, Norway; H. Dizon, Philippines; H. G. de Leon, Guatemala; J. M. Akbar, Fiji Islands; K. S. Birdi, India; S. T. Yuen, China, and C. Garcia, Nicaragua.

Deadline For Denman Award Blanks Extended

The deadline for applications for this year's Denman Scholarship has been extended from October 19 to October 30, according to Mary Golding, dean of women. The reason for the extension, Dean Golding stated, was the fact that midterms had been occupying most of students time last week.

Two scholarships will be awarded this year to those women students qualifying. Students must have graduated from San Francisco public high schools and have completed 30 units with at least a "B" average, Dean Golding said. All qualifications should be stated in letters of application and presented at the office of the Dean of Women in Building 2.

Soph King-Queen Election Slated On January 23

The sophomore ball on Saturday night, January 23 in the Terrace Room of the Fairmont Hotel with Dick Saltzman and his orchestra supplying the music, highlights the upcoming activities of the sophomore class, Keith Franks, sophomore president, announced recently.

A feature of the dance will be the election of a sophomore king and queen. Petitions may be obtained two weeks in advance of the ball from the President. Trophies will be awarded to the winning contestants during the evening.

Another highlight of sophomore week will be the soph-prof game, as the sophomores challenge their instructors in a game of basketball. A rally is also tentatively planned for this week, added Franks.

In charge of sophomore affairs are Franks, Warren Kennedy, vice-president; and Dolores Moscone, secretary of the class.

Hayloft Hop Climaxes Men's Hell Week

Hayloft Hop is the theme for the traditional Inter-Fraternity Council dance scheduled for Saturday night, November 7, in the college auditorium. Bill Boldenweck, president of the IFC announced last week.

Climaxing the events of men's hell week, the dance will last from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight with music provided by the six piece orchestra of Charley Stern.

Admission price is $1 per couple with or without an Associated Student card.

Highlighting the dance, said Boldenweck, will be the election of a Sweetheart of the IFC. Ballots will be cast at the dance.

Boldenweck suggested that students wear western dress complete with levis or a peasant skirt.

Other IFC officers preparing for the dance are Dave Hanak, vice-president; Frank Orell, secretary; and Harry Roebling, treasurer.

Debaters Discuss Communism Topic

"How can we best combat the threat of Communism?"

Discussion on this subject will be the topic of Phi Rho Pi, the college honorary debate society, in their second roundtable discussion to be held December 5, at the College of the Pacific in Stockton, said Thomas Dutcher, society adviser.

Dutcher stated that last week's debate competition between COP and St. Mary's College was very impressive and that he planned to spend as much time as possible training the debate society to build them up for the coming competitions.

Those on the panel will concern themselves with the problem of suggesting specific improvements in procedures and practices of Congressional Investigating Committees.

The members of debate are preparing for the forthcoming National Northern California Forensic Debate Tournament and the Western Association of Speech Tournament at which time the college squad will compete against speakers from the entire western half of the United States.

Students Cooperate In Parking Ruling

Dr. Oscar E. Anderson, Coordinator of Education, commended the students this week for their cooperation by not parking around the main building until the new lawns have been planted but criticized them for the condition of the study hall in the basement of the main building.

The area between building 13 and Phelan Avenue has been cleared of all broken glass and refuse to accommodate those students who normally park near the main building. Dr. Anderson said that this disruption in parking will last for one or two weeks and extended his thanks to the students for their cooperation so far.

Dr. Anderson said, "The students are leaving entirely too much trash lying about the study hall in the main building and unless they put this trash where it belongs we will be forced to close the study hall." He stated that they received permission from the Board of Education to put vending machines in the study hall on the condition that it would be kept clean.

Film On Mexico To Be Shown Friday

Viva Mexico, a film depicting Mexico as it is today, is set for Friday, October 30, at 10:40, 11:30, and 12:20 in Room 136, according to Madison Devlin, of the Audio-Visual Aid department.

The film, presented through the courtesy of American Airlines, will deal with Mexican industry as it is being developed at the present time, Devlin said. It will also show many of the famous and picturesque localities of Mexico, such as the Gardens of Xochimilco, Acapulco, Taxco, and Oaxaca.

All faculty and students are invited to be present at one of the showings, Devlin added.

Deferment Blanks Due November 2

"It will be greatly to the student's advantage to file his application for deferment at once," said J. E. Terral, Director of Test Administration here.

The above is but a reminder to all college students who have reached the drafting age and wish to continue their uninterrupted education that they must have their application in no later than midnight, November 2, 1953, if they plan to take the examination on November 19.

It must also be remembered that the student must pass certain qualifications. He must have a fifteen unit course with a "C" or better in all his subjects. But above all else, he must have his application in on time, added Terral.

The dollar sign ($) originated as a modification of the abbreviation Ps, for the Mexican "Pesos," the "s" being written over the "P," and the "P" later becoming one or two vertical lines.

Nominations Open Tomorrow For Council Vacancies

Nominations will be opened to fill the two Student Council seats vacated by the resignations of Dick Paulson and Annie Monego, members of Freshman and Sophomore Council respectively, at the council meeting Tuesday at 12 noon in Room 2A.

Qualified candidates may be nominated Tuesday, November 10, and Thursday, November 12 at the council meetings by any member of the Associated Students. Council members will elect the two to fill the vacancies following the close of nominations on Thursday, November 12.

To be eligible for Freshman Council students must have completed no less than 12 units and no more than 30 with a "C" average. Sophomore Council candidates must have at least 30 units with a "C" average to their credit.

Council approved a $2,000 expenditure to buy new uniforms for the football team. Forty uniforms and twenty helmets have been ordered for the varsity.

The action was taken when profits from the Ramporium, student book store, exceeded the estimated $4,000 by $2,000. Wray Jacobs, chairman of the Finance Committee, had figured a $4,000 profit into the budget; and the budget has been increased from $18,200 to $20,200 accordingly.

The uniforms, which may arrive in time to be used during one game this season, will consist of cardinal jerseys, with white numerals and arm stripes, cardinal pants made of combat nylon and red helmets with simulated white horns.

A collection to feed the ram was taken up and student government members contributed a sum of $12.00 towards the cause. A discussion followed concerning ways and means by which money could be raised to feed the ram, and the problem turned over to a committee.

A report was given by Larry Elizarde, election commissioner, concerning the 1954 spring semester elections. Petitions will be given out on Monday, November 30. Applicants must have them signed by members of the Associated Students and bring them to the Political Conventions of their chosen party.

Voting days are Tuesday, January 12 and Wednesday, January 13.

Honor Society Sets Dinner Date

Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, has scheduled its installation dinner for Wednesday, November 18, in the faculty dining room, according to Don Jensen, society adviser.

Invitations to the dinner will be sent to all members of the society who have signed up with Jensen. Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction here, will be guest speaker. It is hoped that Dr. Luckmann will speak about his recent European trip, Jensen announced last week.

Members of the organization may receive low registration numbers if they see Jensen as soon as possible in Building 3. Those who are eligible and have not yet signed up with Jensen are urged to do so immediately, so they may take advantage of the low registration numbers, Jensen said.

KCBS Representatives To Give Address Here

Two experts in Public Relations, William Nietfeld and William Cullenward, will address the Journalism 36 (Public Relations) class here on Tuesday, November 10, at 10 a.m., George Mullany, instructor of the course, announced last week. The class will meet that day in The Guardsman office, 4D.

Both men are associated with radio station KCBS. Nietfeld is news director of the network, and Cullenward heads the public relations department.

All students and faculty members are invited to hear these men speak, Mullany added.

Holiday Off Friday, On Next Wednesday

Classes will be held as usual this Friday, November 6, according to Louis G. Conlan, president of the college.

The student holiday previously scheduled for this Friday, for faculty Business-Education day, was changed recently to Monday, December 14, President Conlan said.

He also announced that next Wednesday, November 11, Armistice Day, will be a holiday.

Because of this holiday, The Guardsman will not be published. However, publication will be resumed on the following Wednesday, November 18.

Rally Scheduled Friday Before Sac'to Game

A football rally, preceding the game with Sacramento, will be staged this Friday, November 6, during College Hour in the auditorium here, Marilee School, rally commissioner, announced recently.

Participating in the third rally of the semester will be some of the entertainers who tried out for the forthcoming Variety Show last week.

Co-captains for the football game that night with Sacramento will be introduced, and Sid Chapman, comedian, is tentatively scheduled to appear, Miss School added.

Members of the rally committee who are assisting Miss School with preparations are Ena Aguirre, Dottie Cutler, Dave Hanak, Joe Garbarino, Felicia Zeiger, Jean Sabel, Alberta Cordini, Bill Bixby, Frank Silva, Janc Lyle, Ron Orselini, and Bob Lalande.

Pre-Registration To Begin Next Monday

Counsellors will begin interviewing students in the campus counselling building next Monday, November 9, to plan programs for the spring semester, 1954.

The interview appointments are obtainable in the counselling office located in Building 3, west campus, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, said.

Although the interviews are set to start November 9, Marsh advised students to make their appointments as soon as possible, since priority in registration is established by the pre-registration number stamped on the program.

Two Winners Of Annual Denman Scholarships To Be Named Soon

Applications for the Denman Scholarship are now being considered and names of winners are to be announced within two or three weeks, Mary Golding, dean of women, stated last week.

City College offers many scholarships and aids to those students qualifying, Dean Golding said.

Among the scholarships are the aforementioned Denman Scholarship, which is awarded annually to two women students who are graduates of San Francisco Public High Schools, and the Florence Louis Scholarship, which is awarded to one woman student annually on the basis of scholarship and interest in the college as a whole.

Other scholarships are the Alice Eastwood, awarded in honor of Miss Alice Eastwood, renowned botanist and horticulturist, to the outstanding students who major in floriculture; the Harvey H. Toy Scholarship, awarded each semester to two students of the hotel and restaurant division; the Dr. A. J. Cloud Scholarship, established by the faculty of the college in honor of Dr. Cloud, President Emeritus of City College, and which is awarded to one man and one woman student each year; and the Academy of Advertising Scholarship, which offers a summer art course to one student majoring in Advertising and Commercial Art at the college.

Other financial aids offered to students of the college are the loan funds including the Joseph Pomeroy Nourse Student Loan Fund, which was established by the faculty of City College in honor of Joseph P. Nourse, former Superintendent of Schools; the American Legion loan fund, established by the Parkside Post 505; and the Lions Club loan fund, instituted by the Lions Club of 101 Post street.

Applications should be addressed to the Dean of Men or to the Dean of Women.

READY TO DEPART for California's State Hotel and Restaurant Convention in Palm Springs are three of the college's hotel division students, accompanied by their instructors. Left to right are Byron Bair, Hal Powers, Hildo Watson (in car), division head; Wendell Muntz, assistant division head; and Al Hoaning. The troupe left for the southern resort last Sunday and are due back on campus tomorrow. Students making the trip were chosen by fellow classmates and instructors. The purpose of the convention is to exchange ideas on hotel and restaurant problems.—Photo by Tsogolokis.

Coffee Hour Scheduled November 13 As Faculty, Students Get Together

A coffee hour, in which both students and faculty members will gather and get acquainted, has been scheduled Friday, November 13, in the student lounge, Building 2, George Baffico, president of the college's Faculty Association, announced this week.

The meeting, a bi-annual affair, begins at 10:30 a.m. and terminates at 11:20 a.m., Baffico stated, and all are invited to attend.

Friday's gathering is the fifth of a series since its innovation which affords students an opportunity to talk and meet all members of the faculty and thus create better relations, Baffico said.

Baffico added that free coffee, prepared by the hotel division, will be served.

Working with the Faculty Association committee, which is in charge of the coffee hour, is Louis F. Batmale, dean of Student Activities. Comprising the Student-Faculty Relations Committee are Cathy Shorb, chairman; Maurice Powers, Mildred Barnard, Doug Soule, Merritt Beckerman, and Anka Perisich.

Other officers in the Faculty Association are Ed Larson, vice-president; Barbara Brackett, secretary; George Stewart, treasurer; James Schon, Social committee chairman; and John French, Clement Skrabak, and Tom Dutcher, members-at-large.

The association offers sponsorship to various projects, Baffico said, among which is the Cloud Scholarship. This is a pair of fifty dollar scholarships which are awarded to qualifying students, and this year, the Faculty Association head commented, they hope to offer two additional scholarships.

Among the functions of the Public Relations Committee is nomination of speakers who tour various high schools of the area for the purpose of explaining different phases of the college.

Election Group Asks Volunteers

City College needs people who are experienced in student government, and a purpose of the Election Committee is to put these people to work for student government, Larry Elizarde, election commissioner here, declared last week.

According to Elizarde, the election board was originally established for the purpose of conducting more complete and successful elections. The goal that is hoped to be attained this semester, by the committee and the 18 sub-committees under it, are good working elections, enough eligible candidates, and a well publicized election.

"We hope to bring more people into student government," Elizarde said, "in order to give new students a chance to participate and gain experience."

Those interested, he added, especially first and second semester students, may sign up in Building 2, at the Dean of Men's office, before November 30, and all applicants will be considered.

Associated Student Card Sales High

More students have purchased Associated Student cards here percentage-wise than any other two-year college in Northern California, Stan Shalit, Associated Student card sales chairman, said last week.

This information came from a recent regional student government conference at Sacramento.

The sales of Associated Student cards topped the original goal of $7,500, set by the Finance Committee during the first of sales, and has now passed the second goal of $9,000 by $405. This brings the total number of cards sold to 1,881, Shalit pointed out.

Western Garb For IFC Hayloft Hop Saturday Night

Western dress will be the order of the night this Saturday, November 7, for the Hayloft Hop, traditional Inter-Fraternity Council dance, Bill Boldenweck, president of the IFC, announced yesterday.

The affair will start at 9 p.m., and is being held in the west campus auditorium.

Boldenweck suggested that the men come in levis and the women in peasant skirts and blouses. The decorations will be in keeping with the theme.

The admission price for the dance, which will climax men's hell week, is $1.25 per couple, rather than $1, as previously announced. Door prizes will be given, and students will dance to the music of Charley Stern's six-piece orchestra, according to Boldenweck.

The highlight of the evening will be the selection of a Sweetheart of the IFC, Boldenweck added. Ballots will be given to each male guest at the door, and will be tabulated during the dance. Winner of the contest will be announced at the close of the dance.

This IFC affair is a semi-annual event. Officers of the IFC who are assisting Boldenweek are Dave Hanak, vice president; Frank Orell, secretary; and Harry Roebling, treasurer.

Block SF Dance Has Grid Theme

The annual Block SF dance, to be held Friday, November 13, will be co-sponsored this year by the college Band Association and the Block SF Society, Block SF President Chuck White said yesterday.

The theme of the dance will be football, he added, and admission will be 50 cents to Associated Student members, and 75 cents for non-members.

Music will be supplied by a 22 piece orchestra, members of the college Band Association, White said. The dance will be held in the college's auditorium, west campus, Building 1.

At a special meeting, White added, the Block SF voted to allow associate membership to all athletes who have participated in enough conference games to be eligible for a block.

A Block SF meeting will be held on Friday, November 6, during college hour in Building 10, Room D.

Fred Nyser, the organization's vice-president, has resigned his office because of the pressure of studies, White said. A new vice-president will be elected at the coming meeting.

The dance band, student directed by Henry Boice and with its 22 members taken from the marching band, promises to be a success, Meyer Cahn, band director said.

Arrangements are complete in every respect, but the need for a vocalist was voiced by Cahn. Anyone interested may see Boice, the student band director.

Romance Film Feature Of College Hour

Sunshine Cruise, a film of life on the romantic islands of the Caribbean Sea, will be shown Friday, November 6, during college hour, 10:40 a.m., in Room 126, according to Madison Delvin, audio visual aids director.

In technicolor, the film, shown through the courtesy of the Bernard Steamship Lines, takes the viewer on a typical trip by luxury liner from New York through Cuba and Puerto Rico. It also shows the entertainment aboard the liner. The film will be shown at 10:40 and 11:20 a.m., and 12:10 p.m.

Faculty and students are welcome to attend all films which will be shown each week throughout the semester with the exception of midterm, and final week. The admission is free, Delvin commented.

'Glorified High School?' No! One Of Nation's Best Colleges

IT should be obvious to all students that City College of San Francisco is just that—a college.

According to Noah Webster, a college is, "a school for advanced learning." To which we'll add, "advanced learning for mature students."

Note the words "advanced" and "mature." The "loose-talk" and "blindness" of a minority of City College students totally contradict this true concept of a college.

Wake up! Frankly, we're "fed-up" with such occasionally voiced sentiments as "a glorified high school," in reference to the college.

"A glorified high school" Is it?

Anyone with even the smallest power of observation will find such talk not only ridiculous and unfair, but mere blind and uninformed prattle.

The list of administration and faculty members who are prominent in national and local educational circles is much too extensive to present here.

The list of prominent alumni who began their successful careers here is also too extensive to carry at this time.

And the student association—nowhere in the United States can be found a student group with so free a hand in student affairs and with more active backing.

Students here are given this in their own organization because of recognition of maturity. Maturity doesn't mean the false sophistication that the "loosetalkers" seem to possess. Adolescents are expected to have this "know-it-all" attitude; it's part of growing up, but mature college students are too intelligent to act in this manner.

If those few dissenters will open their eyes and use mature reasoning powers, they will readily see the falseness of their present view.

No, we're not attending a "glorified high school" but one of the finest colleges where anyone will ever study.

United Crusade Needs Student Support

NO college student—in the true meaning of the term—can have failed to grasp the importance of the Current United Crusade Campaign.

We can only add our voice to those throughout the land in urging support to this worthiest of causes.

Shots At Ramdom

The Marines Land On Campus; Promote Platoon Leader's Class

By Shirley Murphy

THE two Marines stationed in front of the Ramporium, patiently answering the queries of curious students last week, were Captain W. J. Skvaril and Sergeant J. B. Snyder.

Their mission at the college was to promote the Platoon Leaders' Class—a program which consists of two summer training periods of six weeks each and makes the student eligible, after graduation from college, to be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant.

Twenty-five men questioned the officers on the first day, influenced no doubt, by the thought of a vacation in Virginia.

More Dignitaries

Two more names have been added to the list of celebrities attending the college — Ronald Coleman and Jessie James. Ronnie is enrolled in the evening division. Jessie appears to have given up her looting ways for she is now a nursing major.

Sight of the Week

The machine-like precision of the campus cops as they drilled in the dawning hours last Monday morn.

Yosemite Sojourn

Among the missing last week were President Louis G. Conlan, Dr. Oscar E. Anderson, Dean John J. Brady, and Dean Edward E. Sandys. They attended the Fall meeting of the California Junior College Association at the Ahwahnee Hotel in Yosemite National Park.

Ruff, Ruff

Two blond cockers answering to the name of Buff may be observed on campus. One is owned by Dean Edwin C. Browne and has been mentioned in The Guardsman previously for the services she rendered when parking permits were being issued.

The male animal belongs to Betty Arnold, secretary in the Veterans Affairs office.

Standing Room Only

The first drama production of the semester was well received by the Associated Students. On opening night 135 enthusiasts filled the Little Theater, which seats 100.

The Shadow

Our little Merino mascot has made his choice. Wray Jacobs is the object of his affection. Whenever the little one has the opportunity he tags along after Jacobs and smiles benignly at all passers-by.

Letters To The Editor

Get In Your 'Two Cents' Worth'; Students Express Views In Letters

• Student Interest

Editor, The Guardsman:

It is time that someone expressed his views on the matter of lack of participation in many of the activities at City College. The program that is maintained by the Associated Students is of the students, by the students, and especially for the students.

Granted, this semester we have had exceptional turnouts at many functions in comparison to past years. This is far from enough. I feel that at least 1300 students should attend all functions, especially those that are free with their Associated Student card.

Where else in San Francisco is it possible to have a date that costs almost nothing and have a grand time? For instance, on October 23 and 24 the Associated Students held a free drama production. I am of the firm conviction that everyone that attended had a good, yet inexpensive time.

This play played to standing house only for two nights but the turnout should be so good as to necessitate the use of our auditorium for future productions.

As an active member of student government perhaps I cannot understand the other students' lack of interest. Possibly, there is something lacking in our present program.

Many persons on campus surely feel that something is lacking. If that is the case, then what is it? A solution will never be reached unless the average student airs his opinions and suggestions.

Is it that we do not provide ample openings to air public expression? I might point out that if anyone has a suggestion they should either voice it in this column or if he does not wish to express himself publicly, then take the matter to a student officer.

I for one am always open to suggestions and will be quite willing, if not eager to listen to any suggestions.

Many people have ideas for improvement but they feel that these ideas are too absurd. Down through history we find that men have suggested what seemed like crackpot schemes, yet, when aired and put to use we find that they were not too foolish at all. Columbus was supposedly crazy, the first automobile was an impossibility, public education could not possibly work.

Time and effort have changed the latter. Why not something in which you believe?

Let me again stress that if you have an idea, express it. Someone will always listen.

I'll always be glad to listen to what seems to be the craziest schemes day in and day out for I have seen, and I know, the value of listening to the other person's side of the picture.

Stan Shalit.
City College Student

P.S. I do not believe in withholding a name for publication for any reason and I will be glad if you do print my name. I do not take any letter that is written anonymously seriously.

• Sororities Answer

Editor, The Guardsman:

We are members of two different sororities and we are writing this letter in response to the question of "active" sororities and fraternities. It is true that the sororities and fraternities do have joints and parties, but you will find that true of any club or organization.

Our sororities have several service projects which not only benefit the school, but also people less fortunate than ourselves.

We are limited in the amount of social work that we can do, due to the fact that none of us have much money (what student has?). But we are always willing to donate our services to any group needing or requesting them.

The sororities and fraternities are groups which are always counted on by the Deans. They help at registration, at the A.W.S. tea, at dances, and on numerous committees. They share the only "apparent" interest in the elections. U.S.A., the other political party on campus, has received little support from those persons who complain about I.F.C. policies.

The only right way to criticize the "activity" of a sorority or fraternity is to become a member and see how the organizations are run. Then if you still don't respond, there is just no hope left for you.

The Spectator

A Sunday Of Happiness: Culture And Simplicity Come To Town

By Harold Painter

THE American Society of Western Artists is showing contemporary American works at the De Young Museum. Among the collection is an outstanding group of water colors. The prizes will undoubtedly be given to the painters of this group of outstanding work.

Herman Struck has assimilated his colors into a technical tone poem aptly called Bus Stop. A linear group of motley people is waiting for an evening bus delayed by the hazards and the unexpected introduced by a light rainfall. A windowed building, in the process of blending into the rapidly descending night, shows three or four warm yellow lights from uplifted shades. The streets are ringing with wetness and the light dropping of rain. The umbrellas are slightly bent into the wind, and the people are cold and wet.

Next to Bus Stop hangs an outstanding watercolor, entitled Early Morning, by Oliver Parson, a pastoral arrangement of tones cleverly designed to sweep the spectator from the warm hollow of a meadow to the darkened heights of an early morning mountain. The spectator feels the overture of the morning on his back; later, the sun fills the meadow and flows up the mountain side.

The Society's selection of work was less demoerratic than showings by other groups in the past, but was a mature selection; with the exception of some few sculptured pieces looking as though they might have been chiseled by a palsied brick layer, the work was of a well executed sort depicting natural forms via one mood or another.

A short walk from the museum, the Morrison Planetarium presents an excellent view of the constellations.

Here the Atomic Age realizes its optimum: just lean back and watch the universe do as it's bid. The sun will complete a day's journey in a fraction of the normal time, the moon will remain suspended over any romance, and the stars will wink and blink and change to such mythical personages as Andromeda, Cassiopeia, or Perseus. The cost of 70 cents is slight to see the world's oldest actors in Morrison's production of the Universe.

Another production having a theme as universal as the seasons is playing a short bus ride from the Morrison Planetarium: One Summer of Happiness, one of the healthiest and sincerest of foreign films to be shown in San Francisco. In no uncertain terms, bigotry was shown the door, while the hidden muse who keeps the world in chaos was entreated to stay and dance to the most bucolic of tunes: a most encouraging film gesture.

The northern part of the Lake of the Woods County in Minnesota is nearer to the North Pole than any place in any other state in the Union.

Hawaiians In H&R

Three Islanders Here To Learn Mainland Ways

From the United States Territory of Hawaii, the land of sandy beaches, palm trees and blue skies—15 students have come to the college, four of whom are majoring in hotel division courses.

George Lum, Juan Mahor, Julie Furtado, and Betsy Joyce Porter are learning the mainland method of cooking in and running a restaurant.

Speaking on behalf of the four, Miss Porter, who comes from the city of Honolulu on the island of Oahu, said that she loves the variety of dishes here, which is not found in the Islands. She likes Italian food best because it is spicy.

During the 15 hours a week she spends in hotel courses, Miss Porter learns how to purchase food, determine its quantity and quality, and speak before a group.

Here she learns to make pies; back home she learned to make "poi," a dish that is made from taro, a tropical root plant.

Unlike pie, poi resembles mashed potatoes but is sticky and is eaten with 'lau-lau,' a food made of salmon and greens, not necessarily spinach.

After graduation from City College, Miss Porter hopes to return to Honolulu to find work in her major field, preferably for the Matson Lines.

One Extra Skirt Causes Dilemma On UC Campus

ONE LEFT OVER: . . . At the University of California, a student model left style show manager Kathy Crawford in a provocative dilemma.

After the show the models changed from their display clothes to their own apparel, leaving the display outfits behind. But when Miss Crawford cleaned up she found one extra skirt remaining.

"We'd like to find the girl before she gets too embarrassed," Miss Crawford told the Daily Californian.

SERIOUS: Readers of the University of Cincinnati Record got a shock recently from the headline, "Dr. Altemeier Gets Chair." It turned out to be the Christian R. Holmes Chair of Surgery at UC.

IT CAN'T HAPPEN: The Michigan Daily, University of Michigan, reprinted a letter received by a student at Michigan Normal College. The student missed a meeting called by college authorities to discuss scholastic standing and behavior of residents in the men's dorms. Here's the letter:

"I am very sorry that you failed to meet your 10 a.m. appointment on Tuesday morning, March 17, 1953. However, because you did miss the meeting you are required to write a 1,000 word theme on the subject, Ways of Improving the Men's Residence Halls. This theme must be in President Elliott's office by Friday noon, April 3, 1943, or you will have to be dismissed from school."

Said the Michigan Daily, "Fortunately . . . it can't happen here—or can it?"

BENCHLEY'S ROCK: From the late Robert Benchley's essay, What College Did To Me:

"My college education was no haphazard affair. My courses were all selected with a very definite aim in view, with a serious purpose in mind—no classes before 11 in the morning or after 2:30 in the afternoon, and nothing on Saturday at all. That was my slogan. On that rock was my education built." — Compiled from ACP releases.

Ram Soccermen To Host Both Stanford And USF On Weekends

Fresh from a 4-2 victory over San Francisco State, the college soccer team plays host to two outstanding clubs in Stanford and University of San Francisco, as it meets both of the rivals in successive games Saturday November 7, and Saturday, November 14, with each kick-off set for 10 o'clock.

The Indians previously defeated Coach Roy Diederichsen's squad by a score of 2-0, while the Dons were tied by the Red and White, 1-1 in the season's opener.

In their last contest with State, City College got off to an early lead, as Joe Muscat shot the ball past the Gater goalie early in the first quarter.

State tallied a few minutes later as Herb Andersen headed the ball past goalie Don Daniels to deadlock the issue.

Then with only five minutes left before the half, Jaime Martinez, sterling Ram center-forward, blasted a drive into the goalmouth for 2-1 and a lead.

As play was resumed, defensive work on the part of Ernie Smith, Don Daniels, and Ralph Sanchez kept the Golden Gaters from scoring.

With time running out in the quarter, Tony Critelli headed the ball to Martincz, and the Nicaraguan broke through the State defense to score an insurance goal.

The last quarter found the Gaters pressing to eut City College's lead down, and they accomplished this when Herb Andersen connected for a goal making it a 3-2 deficit.

Museat ended the scoring for the Rams a minute before the end of the game by slamming the ball past goalie Ron Rosenberg.

Soccer Coach Aided By All-American

Ike Ozigbu Was On USF National Champ Team In '50; Coached At Santa Clara

By Humberto Fischnaler

All-American soccer player as a member of the University of San Francisco's 1950 championship team, head coach at Santa Clara last year, now unofficial assistant coach under Roy Diederichsen at City College, a big favorite as a Sunday league kickball star, and a perfect gentleman. That's Ike Ozigbu.

Born in Abba, Nigeria, 23 years ago, he came to this country in 1949 but plans to return to his homeland as soon as finishes his studies here.

He holds a Bachelor of Seience Degree, conferred by USF, and he is now working in the electrical and civil engineering field at the college.

Soccer, he explains, is played barefooted in his country, but the transition to shoes didn't bother him any.

The son of a wealthy businessman, Ozigbu took engineering because, as he put it, "There is opportunity in that field in Nigeria."

Ozighu, who is also a talented ping-pong player, has retired from the soccer wars because of an injured leg but now helps Coach Diederichsen train the Rams.

Ike Ozighu, representative from far away Nigeria, adds to the cosmopolitan atmosphere of City College.

Vikings Down Rams; Next League Game Friday

Fourth Quarter Surge Gives East Bay Team Win

Four touchdowns in the last ten minutes of play provided the victory margin last Saturday night at Alhambra High School stadium as the heavily-favored East Contra Costa Vikings rallied to overtake the City College Rams, 30 to 13.

The contest, played before 3,000 fans, was an inter-league affair, East Contra Costa is a member of the Coast Conference.

City College built up a six-point lead at the half, as the red-shirts scored the third time they had possession of the ball.

From the Vikings' 48, the Rams traveled 52 yards in ten plays with the drive being culminated by Halfback Jim Frank's right tackle slant for the clincher. The play was featured by a fake pitchout to Fullback Don Brand and a huge hole opened by the right side of the line. Jerry James' conversion was wide to the left.

In the third period, Tackle Jerry Landi blocked Bob Borghesani's punt and Guard Pete Hontalas recovered on the East Contra Costa 1-yard line. Frank again dived over for the touchdown, and James' conversion was good to give the Rams a 13 to 0 lead.

Then the Vikings' scoring machine began to roll in high gear. The comeback was ignited by a spectacular 91-yard kick-off return for a touchdown by Fullback L. C. Joyner. It came with seventeen seconds left in the third period and set the stage for the final stanza assault.

Early in the fourth quarter, East Contra Costa Quarterback Ray Vallejo passed down the right sideline where Halfback Jim Briggs took the rebound from three defenders for the catch on the City College 45 and dashed all the way to paydirt. Hal Dunham's conversion was blocked by Center Earl Smith and the Vikings were still trailing 13 to 12.

Minutes later, Briggs slid off tackle for four yards and another Viking score. Dunham's extra point kick was no good but East Contra Costa now led for the first time, 18 to 13.

East Contra Costa's next tally was a "gift." With the Rams on their own 15-yard line, Quarterback Ray Arata attempted a pitchout to Frank, who was ready to accept down the left side. Instead, the ball was intercepted in mid-flight by Ray Vallejo on the 10 and he eased in for the six-pointer.

Joyner's point-after-touchdown attempt was blocked by Smith.

In the last 10 seconds of the game Viking Quarterback Doug Stovall, from the City College 35, fired a pass to End Bob Borghesani for the final touchdown. Joyner's kick again was no good.

We 'Got-Em' Tom-Tom Trophy Now

We got the Tom-tom!

It is not in the hands of the Bulldogs from San Mateo. That was made clear by Wray Jacobs, Finance Chairman here, and furthermore it is under protective custody in a secret place somewhere on the City College campus.

Armed with a Geiger counter, investigators set out to discover the exact location of the Tom-tom, but all they got for their troubles was the appearance of an angry gopher who indignantly told them to keep away from his domain, as the committee tried to excavate the football field.

This situation has now developed into an affaire celebre with charges and counter-charges of dark and evil deeds being perpetrated upon the Tom-tom.

San Mateo lost a chance to take it away from the college when their football team was defeated by the Rams.

For those who didn't know, the Tom-tom is supposed to go to the winner of the annual clash between City College and San Mateo.

The Rams have had it in their possession the last three years in a row.

This piece of information should allay the fears of the anxious students who have flooded the "City Desk" with questions about the whereabouts of the Tom-tom.

It is still at City College.

Brown, Blackburn And Smith Gain Co-Captain Honors

A trio of hustling footballers were chosen co-captains for the traditional battle against San Mateo two weeks ago (in a contest that marked the first time the local favorites had their hand raised in victory this season, score 32-13).

Sharing the spotlight for coveted Tom-Tom trophy performance were Don Brown, Earl Smith, and Frank Blackburn.

Brown, an able performer for the Rams this season at his end position, is a first year man at the college, and is a product of Polytechnic High School in San Francisco, where he earned all-city honors.

Smith, a common name but an uncommonly good defensive center, is also a freshman here on the local scene. The ex-Washington High School star has been playing creditable ball for the red and white this season and rose to the heights in the Los Angeles-City College affair.

Blackburn, who holds down one of the guard spots, has been under the guidance of Coach Grover Klemmer for one season, he being one of the few returning veterans the mentor has on hand.

He started this season as a second line performer, but through hard work and sheer determination lifted himself up to a starting berth and captaincy in the San Mateo game.

It is feared by the coaching staff, that Blackburn is through for the season, because of a severe knee injury which occurred in the trophy battle.

The hurt comes at an unopportune time, since it has been heard from Assistant Coach Roy Burkhead that he had reached his peak as a lineman.

Brown weighs in at 185 pounds and stands six feet even. Smith carries 190 pounds on his 6 foot 1 inch frame, and Blackburn's 190 pounds are well distributed over his 5 foot 11 inches.

RAMBLINGS

By Al Palacio

IT is interesting to note that there are several former football players from City College currently cavorting on the gridiron for various Pacific Coast universities, and they are doing right well for themselves, too.

San Francisco State claims quarterback Sam Hiona and halfback Walter Bremond. The former is understudying little All-American nominee Maury Duncan, while the latter is alternating at the halfback post with Rudy Smith, a three year veteran and also an ex-Ram.

At the College of the Pacific is quarterback Dave Tivio, who has blossomed out into a baseball star as well. He is competing with Roy Ottoson and Bill Jacobs as signal-caller.

Latest reports state that Marvin Ussery and Wally Jackson, halfback and fullback respectively, are in their second season at Oregon State. Last year, both athletes saw a goodly amount of action on a losing Beaver eleven.

Center Harry Lee is at San Jose State and Spartan Coach Bob Bronzan is grooming him for the 1954 campaign.

FOOTBALL STATISTICS

Last week we took the initiative and compiled the statistics for Coach Grover Klemmer's gridders in the five games they had played up until then. The results proved to bear out the fact that a losing team doesn't necessarily have to be yard-shy, statistically speaking.

Fullback Don Brand led the individual rushing with 157 yards gained in 24 carries for a 6.5 average. This is most amazing when one stops to consider that Brand, nicknamed "Whitey," has been in the power slot for only two games. He also is tops in scoring with seven touchdowns.

Next in line is Jim Frank, hard-running halfback, who carried the ball 34 times, gained 109 yards while he earns him a 3.2 average. Halfback Ashford Jones claims a 3.6 average, but he has toted the pigskin 15 times for 54 yards.

The rest of the backfield average is as follows:

Bob Vasalga has carried twice, picked up nine yards for a 4.5; Ernie Bernard, 27 cracks, 87 yards, 3.2; Jerry Dillard, 11 opportunities, 38 yards, 3.4; Pete Hontalas, 22 chances, 58 yards, 2.6; and Pat Fraeisco, 21 carries for 46 yards, a 2.1 average.

In the passing department, riffling Ray Arata, steady quarterback, has rolled up 480 yards. He completed 30 tosses out of an attempted 69 for a sound .434 percentage.

Arata's understudy, Al DeLaTorre, has attempted 15 passes, completed five, amassed 139 yards which gives him a .333 percentage.

In team rushing, the Rams accumulated 558 yards. An additional 619 yards have been garnered via the aerial route.

WAA Holds Playday

After cancelling last week's playday, President Colleen Walker of the Women's Athletic Association announced that there will be a volleyball playday tomorrow afternoon, with George Washington and Mission High Schools. Refreshments will be served.

Sacramento And Stockton Next On Ram Schedule

The Rams of City College venture to the state capitol this coming Saturday, to encounter a fighting Panther from Sacramento College in a Big Seven Conference clash at 8 p.m. on the opponent's home field.

The following week finds the Rams returning to their home field, Kezar Stadium, after a three week road schedule, to face a determined crew of Stockton footballers.

Kick off time for the affair will be Friday, November 13, at 2 p.m.

In their last meeting in 1952 the Grover Klemmer-coached squad took the measure of the up-state Panther aggregation 20-7 on the home turf of Kezar Stadium. This season finds the Sacramento team with an even won-loss record and the incentive of improving it against the local favorites.

The game against the Stockton Mustangs should prove to be a rough contest, as they will bring into town a rugged line and a fast, and hard driving backfield. They will be out to retain some of their lost glitter that was shown last season when they captured the coveted Big Seven Championship.

The over all improvement shown by the Rams in the San Mateo encounter should provide both the Panthers and Mustangs with ample competition.

The Sacramento game is the fourth conference contest for the college. Thus far the locals have tied Santa Rosa, 13 to 13, lost to West Contra Costa, 39 to 13, and measured traditional rival San Mateo, 32 to 13.

The Rams have been hard hit by injuries which have sidelined two first-stringers for the remainder of the season. Center Sven Lopolito is recovering from a head injury suffered two weeks ago, and Guard Frank Blackburn tore knee ligaments in the first quarter of the San Mateo game.

Halfback Pat Fraeisco also missed the Ram-Bulldog tilt because of a bad leg. He is expected to be in playing condition, however, for this week's encounter.

Babe Ruth hit 125 home runs in one hour in an exhibition at Wrigley Field, Los Angeles, February, 1927.

Intra Title Play Slated This Week

The present intra-mural athletics wind up this week with the final games of the round-robin schedule, Ralph Hillsman, director of the intramural program, announced last week.

When the champions have been decided, the classes will change places. The groups which have been playing touch-football and other outdoor sports will move into the men's gymnasium, and the classes that have been competing in the various indoor sports will take over the outdoor facilities, Hillsman stated.

"We hope to start the playoffs of the various athletic events in the week of December 1," Hillsman said, and he added that the finals of all sports completed will be held sometime soon after the Christmas holidays.

Busy Ram Spends Week Getting Acquainted

Mascot Undertakes Heavy Social Schedule

By Gail Moss

Little ram, you've had a busy week.

That, with all due apologies to Tin-Pan Alley, is certainly true of City College's new mascot. The ram has seen the campus, helped to cheer the football team to its first win of the season, and attended the beauty parlor, among other things.

The animal, tentatively called Sammy until another name can be found, spent his first week on the campus just as any new student would: getting acquainted. He met the faculty and the students and got along quite well with everyone. He even met photographers from the San Francisco News and The Guardsman, and lo and behold—Sam had his picture in the papers.

At the end of the week, he was ready to participate in his first social function. With a private truck and personal chauffeur at his command, Sammy attended the traditional Tom-tom trophy football game between City College and San Mateo College, held in Redwood City on October 24.

With their newly-acquired mascot viewing his first game, the Ram gridders didn't dare lose, and they romped to a 32-13 victory over their rivals. And is it just coincidence that both San Mateo touchdowns were scored while the little Ram was off the field?

After that strenuous week, the lad fully deserved a rest in his new home at the Ingleside police station, but now a trip to the beauty parlor was in order. The little one had a much needed bath, but the rumor that he would sport a permanent wave at the end of the session can be discounted.

For a young man not quite a year old, it had been a long and tiring week. The worst seems to be over now. Sammy has captured the hearts of the men and women of the college, and he is now in the lap of luxury with a special diet prepared to fatten him up.

This is for health purposes, it should be made clear, and ram chops are not on the menu, at least not in the near future.

Future activities on the agenda of the ram are athletic events, numerous other college functions, and perhaps even the livestock show in the spring. But for the present, the youngster can relax, and he certainly will welcome it.

Little ram, it seems you've had a very busy week.

WEARING THE SPANGLES of City College in a highly educated manner (red and white crepe-papered horns) the college's yet unnamed mascot made his initial debut at the traditional game with the San Mateo Bulldogs. Left to right are Chuck White, Bobbie Wallace, song leader; Sammie the Ram, and the mascot. It seems as though the little ram has taken quite a liking to Sammie, and is showing his love in a manner that comes naturally. Dorothy Collins Wins Scholarship

This year's Florence Louis Scholarship was awarded last week to Dorothy Lorew Collins, a member of Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society, according to Mary Golding, dean of women.

Mrs. Collins, who won on the basis of scholarship and interest in the college as a whole, is majoring in music and plans to become a music teacher.

The scholarship, which consists of $25 and an Associated Student card, was instituted by Florence Louis, a graduate of the college, who appreciated her study here and wished to help others enjoy the same advantages, Dean Golding said.

Rooters' Bus To Capital Friday

A rooter's special bus, sponsored by the Associated Student Rally Committee, will leave the college at 5:30 Friday and travel direct to the Ram-Sacramento football game at the Capital City.

The proposed trip, administration approved, will cost $1.85 round trip and will return here at 11:30 p.m. Friday night, according to Stan Shalit, Associated Student card sales chairman.

Tickets for the excursion can be purchased anytime between now and Friday in the AS office, Building 2.

All arrangements for the Sacramento trip were made by the Rally Committee, Shalit commented.

Vet Deadline Tomorrow

All Korean War veterans now collecting subsistence allowance under Public Law 550 were reminded last week by Betty Arnold, secretary for veteran affairs, that the deadline for signing the monthly report is noon tomorrow.

The report may be signed in the Veteran Affairs office, second floor of Building 3, the secretary said, and failure to do so will result in a mailing delay of future checks.

Models To Be Named For AWS Tea

Models for the traditional Associated Women Student tea and fashion show will be named this week, Joanne Hassmann, AWS president, stated yesterday.

The tea, honoring senior women students from all public high schools in San Francisco who are planning to attend the college, is set for Thursday, November 19, at 2 o'clock, Miss Hassmann said.

Those invited, aside from high school seniors, are 50 faculty members of City College and members of the AWS. All women students who are members of the Associated Students are also members of the AWS.

Two members of the faculty, chosen by Miss Hassmann, will pour for the tea. Pledges from all City College sororities are to serve.

Talent for the event have been chosen from variety show try-outs by Miss Hassmann and other AWS officers, including Dottie Cutler, vice-president, and Jan Sewell, secretary.

Fashions for the show will be provided by the Riviera Shop on Ocean Avenue, Miss Hassmann added.

In the United States rainfall varies from less than two inches in parts of Arizona to more than 100 inches along the coast of Washington. The rainfall in most states is between 15 and 45 inches annually.

'Luck Of The Ram' Spurs Teams To Win

"Oh, the luck of the Ram!"

Ever since the Associated Students surprised the entire college by purchasing a live mascot, the athletic teams can't lose for winning.

First of all, the football team hadn't won a game all season; that is, up until the "good luck charm" appeared on the scene of the traditional San Mateo contest two weeks ago. The final score of that one was 32 to 13 in favor of the Rams!

Last week, the soccer squad met the University of California at the college field and were behind 2 to 1 midway into the second half. Enter the mascot; exit the visitor's winning margin. In the last moments of play, two quick goals by City College won the game!

Band Travels To Sacramento

City College band, under the direction of Meyer Cahn, plans its third trip to Sacramento this Friday night, November 6, along with four lively-stepping majorettes, for a marching and stunt demonstration, in Edwards Field, at the Ram-Sacramento College game.

According to Cahn, a chartered bus, hired by the band members, will leave the college campus at 3:30 p.m. November 6, and will arrive in Sacramento that evening at 6 p.m.

Brass calls, especially arranged by Henry Boice, student director, will be used in the marching demonstrations to spur on the team and rouse the spectators.

Three Art Students Receive Awards

Three students from the Advertising and commercial art course have received scholarships this fall to the San Francisco Academy of Advertising Art, William Eckert, art instructor, announced recently.

Barney Wan, the artist who designed the cover for last semester's Forum Magazine, was awarded a scholarship and an appointment as part time instructor in fashion illustration.

Antonio Roque's award was for advertising art. Wendie Cook was the recipient of a scholarship for figure illustration.

Hurley Village Helps Solve Home Problem For Veterans At College

By Bev Swope

Death, a soldier, and World War II combined to help solve the housing problem of ambitious veterans desiring to complete a college education.

Major John J. Hurley of the United States Army, a former physical education instructor here, was killed in Italy during World War II. In October of 1946, Hurley Village on the college campus was completed and dedicated to his memory.

The school department purchased for college use the 18 acres of land, on which 42 quonset huts were built in May of 1946, from the San Francisco City Park Commission. Including 167 units in Balboa Park, the number of families now housed totals 209.

The purpose for which the village was established, Dean Edwin C. Browne said recently, was to provide low-cost housing for veterans in order to enable them to obtain a college education.

Dean Browne approves all applications for Hurley Village homes. In order to be eligible, veterans must be either students or faculty members of a San Francisco college. Those affiliated with City College are given first preference. All applicants must have families.

Quonset huts in Hurley Village contain two bedrooms, a bath, a living room, and a kitchenette. They may be rented furnished or unfurnished according to the wish of the occupants.

In unfurnished units the monthly rent totals $37.50. Six dollars more is charged if the quonset is furnished. Utilities such as gas, lights, are included in the rent. Telephone service must be arranged for personally.

At the present time one unit is vacant. Any interested veteran with a family should contact Dean Browne in Building 2 on the west campus and Theresa Blake, manager of Hurley Village, at her office at 350 Marston Avenue in the village.

Two Discounts Added To AS Cards

Two new discounts have been added to the Associated Student cards, Stan Shalit, Associated Student card sales chairman, announced here last week.

The new discounts are Robin Hoods Fountain and Confectionery, at 1962 Ocean Avenue, where Associated Student card holders may obtain a 50 per cent reduction on a hamburger and milkshake as an introductory offer and one half off on coffee at all times.

The second discount is at Air-Way Branches Inc., 717 Market Street, where card holders may obtain a 25 per cent discount on vacuum cleaners, Shalit stated.

Shalit also said he would like to thank all students who participated in the sale of cards during this record drive. He added that card sales this semester surpassed the goal set by the Finance Committee by $200, and $3,000 beyond the goal set last semester.

Six Police Sworn In

Six of the present 14 Campus Police were sworn in last week by the Chief of Police of San Francisco, thereby giving them full authority while on duty at the college, J. Robert Lewis, student chief, said.

The six are Donald R. Baker, William R. Chapman, Donald C. Henderson, Frank M. Kindregan, Patriek J. Davoren and George V. Plese.

PICTURED ABOVE is the first quonset hut as it was being installed in 1946 in Hurley Village, the housing development on the north campus. These buildings house veterans who are attending City College of San Francisco and their families. The village was named for Major John J. Hurley, former college athletic instructor, who was killed in action during World War II.

Preview Of Spring Fashions, Entertainment From Varieties Highlight AWS Tea Tomorrow

By Diana Phillips

The semi-annual Associated Women Student tea and fashion show for prospective women students from San Francisco high schools will start tomorrow at 2 o'clock at the college, according to Joanne Hassmann, AWS president.

The event will take place in the student lounge in Building 2, Miss Hassmann said last week.

The purpose of the tea, as outlined by Mary Golding, dean of women, is to honor high school senior women planning to attend the college. Women from all public high schools of San Francisco have been invited. Thirty girls from each high senior class, and three faculty members from each school will attend.

All members of the AWS (all women students holding membership in the Associated Students), are invited to attend the affair, along with 50 members of the faculty, Miss Hassmann emphasized.

Fashions are provided through the courtesy of John Palmer, owner of the Riviera Shop, formerly Ilene Carroll's, at 1552 Ocean Avenue. All women students at the college will receive a ten per cent discount at the shop upon presentation of their AS card, Palmer stated last week.

Commentary will be done by Lucille Williams of the Riviera Shop. Mrs. Williams, who also co-ordinated all the fashions, declared that 50 to 60 garments are to be shown. The very newest Spring styles will be presented, some of which are not even in stock yet, according to Mrs. Williams.

"We are showing the outstanding names in merchandise," Mrs. Williams said, "among them Jerry Gilden, Georgette Jr's., Alex Coleman, Koret, Emma Domb, and Lorrie Deb."

These fashions have appeared in fashion magazines such as Vogue, Harpers, Seventeen, and Mademoiselle. The Riviera Shop, Mrs. Williams added, has given fashion shows for many high schools and colleges of the Bay Area.

In charge of completing details for the tea, along with Miss Hassmann, are Vice-President Dottie Cutler, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Secretary Jan Sewall, chairman of the serving committee. Other committee heads are Loretta Warchot, publicity chairman; Felicia Ziegler and Mikie Wrenn, decorations; Millie Pinkus, set up; Barbara Campello, food; Colleen Walker, badges and hosting; and Ruth Wolfe, clothes.

Models for the event, which will present fashions ranging from campus clothes and suits to cocktail dresses and formals, are Alberta Condini, Audrey Peters, Connie Coleman, Joan Whitefield, Roberta Usher, Lois Ferrero, Jessie Oliver, Judy Wong, Myrna Taylor, Francine Catania, Suzie Metaxos, Jane Burkhart, Dorothy Tello, and twins Beth and Pat McCormick.

Pouring for the tea are faculty members Gertrude Somerville and Mildred Barnard. Pledges from all campus sororities, including Alpha Lambda Chi, Delta Psi, Delta Sigma Tau, Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Rho, Theta Tau, and Zeta Chi, will do the serving.

Entertainment to be presented at the affair has been selected from variety show try-outs, Miss Hassmann announced. Featured talent includes Nadine Williams, singer; Anita Paresi, ballet dancer; Tony Young, Spanish dancer; and the three Paris Sisters, singers.

Dean Golding expressed special thanks to William Eckert and the college's advertising art class, who made posters for the event, and to George Mullany, graphic arts instructor, who is supplying the badges worn by the hostesses.

Statewide Student Government Meet Starts Tomorrow In Asilomar; Six AS Officers Scheduled To Attend

Student government leaders from two-year colleges all over California will discuss mutual problems at the semi-annual California Junior College Student Government Association Conference, to be held at Asilomar, California, starting tomorrow, November 19, and lasting through Saturday, Dave Hanak, State Information Service chairman and a student at the college, announced yesterday.

City College of San Francisco will be represented by six student officers. Besides Hanak, the college will send George Effenberger, president of the Associated Students; Julie Hanan, AS vice-president; Marilee Scholl, rally commissioner; Wray Jacobs, finance chairman; and Stan Shalit, chairman of the AS card sales committee. The group will be accompanied by Lonis Batmale, dean of student activities.

This meeting has three main functions as stated by the conference constitution, Hanak declared.

They are: (1) to provide a means for discussing problems of the member colleges pertaining to student government and activities; (2) to promote better relations between the junior colleges of the State; and (3) to establish a statewide student organization to promote the best interests of the students.

At the gathering, the problems and ideas discussed at the Northern and Southern California sectional conferences will be considered, and possible legislation will be proposed, to be sent to the California State Legislature for action, Hanak said.

Napa College and Vallejo College are the co-hosts of the conference, he added, and all of the two-year institutions in California are expected to be represented.

Draft Deferment Tests Tomorrow

College draft deferment examinations are scheduled for tomorrow, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare here, announced today.

Campus participants must be present at the test location they chose when they filed their applications no later than 8 a.m., Thursday, November 19. Dr. Marsh further stated that tardiness will not be allowed so it will be the student's responsibility to be on time.

The only supplies necessary for a student to have with him when he enters the testing room is the identification card he received with his application.

It is most important that he have this card with him, Dr. Marsh said, since it will be his only means of admission to the testing room. Pencils, pens, and such will not be needed, since the examination will be a machine-recorded test written with a special type of pencil.

CAB Defeats 75 Per Cent Rule

A 75 per cent rule, which would have made it compulsory that three-fourths of the members of each club and organization on campus belong to the Associated Students, was defeated in favor of the present majority membership rule at a recent meeting of the Club Activities Board in Building 2.

As interpreted by the Club Activities Board, the majority rule means that as many club members as possible should be Associated Student card holders, Dave Raphael, CAB president, stated.

The general consensus of the clubs was that while it was necessary to have as many students as possible holding AS cards, for a successful semester, the compulsory 75 per cent ruling, as stated, would disqualify many clubs now active. Realizing the need of keeping active as many clubs as possible to insure a wide variety of interests in which the students may take part, the CAB decided to keep the present ruling.

Raphael said that at least a simple majority, 51 per cent, of each organization's members must have AS cards to retain on-campus status and privileges.

Clubs Hold Meetings During College Hour

College hour, Friday, November 20, will be confined solely to club meetings, Louis F. Batmale, dean of student activities, announced last week.

He added that the meeting place of the Foreign Students Club will be changed to Room 9K for their gathering this Friday, and The Chinese Club's meeting site may also be changed.

No college hour will be held Friday, November 27, as Thanksgiving vacation falls on that date.

Lewis Resigns; Chief Post Goes To Richardson

By Don Osborne

A change in command took place here last week, when J. Robert Lewis turned over his job as Chief of Campus Police to Gordon N. Richardson, former assistant chief of staff. The new appointment was made by Fred Fitzgerald, instructor in the college law enforcement division.

Richardson will also succeed to the Associated Student Cabinet position of Campus Police Liaison Officer, which is an appointive office, usually delegated to the campus police chief.

This post was established last semester when an amendment to the constitution was approved by a 279 to 113 vote of the Associated Students.

Richardson has not yet been officially appointed to the cabinet by George Effenberger, AS president, nor has his appointment been confirmed by the Student Council.

The new chief is a former sergeant in the Air Police and has had past experience as a deputy sheriff for Washoe, Nevada, and Placer Counties, California. In his third semester at the college, he plans to go on with his education at San Jose State College in hopes of eventually working for the government as a Federal Investigator.

Now holding Richardson's former position as assistant chief of staff is Leo C. Hertoghe, a former Staff Sergeant in the Air Police who also was a deputy sheriff for Washoe, Nevada, and Placer Counties. Hertoghe is also in his third semester at the college.

The Administrative Assistant Chief of Staff position is still being held by Charles F. Oehler. Oehler is in his third semester at the college and is a veteran Staff Sergeant in the Air Police.

Two-Week Contest Starts For Naming Of Ram Mascot

A contest, to be held this week and next to find a name for the college's merino ram mascot, was announced here yesterday by Ken Feldin, chairman of a committee appointed by AS President George Effenberger to name the animal.

The contest will be divided into two parts, Feldin said. First, all students are invited to submit names on the ballots found on this page of The Guardsman. From these names, several of the best will be chosen.

The names chosen will then be placed on containers, Feldin declared, and the containers will be placed in strategic spots around the campus. Any student wishing to vote may do so by placing 1 cent in the container bearing the name he chooses. The name on the container which holds the most money at the end of the contest will become the name of the mascot. Feldin added that there is no limit to the number of times a student may vote.

Ballots with suggested names may be deposited at the Associated Student office, Building 2, or with the telephone operator on the first floor of the main building, according to Feldin, and must be in by this Friday, November 20, at 2 p.m.

Voting will take place next week, with containers at the Silver Pole, the fountain, and in Building 2 from 8 a.m. Monday, until 5 p.m. Wednesday.

The money collected will go toward the care and feeding of the mascot, Feldin added, and he urged everyone to submit a name and then to vote next week.

The ram, a pure-bred of the merino variety, first came to City College Tuesday, October 20. His arrival was due largely to the efforts of Joe Garbarino, Chuck White, Wray Jacobs, Stan Shalit and Gary Halkens, and the animal immediately adopted Jacobs for his very own. Since that first day in his new home, the ram's appearance has been improved considerably, but he still doesn't have a permanent name.

Name The Ram

USA Presents First Dance This Friday

Frisco Frolics, first dance ever presented by the United Students Association, will be held here this Friday, November 20, in the student lounge on the west campus, from 9 p.m. to midnight, Stan Shalit, USA member, said last week.

Admission price is 25 cents to Associated Student card holders and one dollar per person to non-card holders. Tickets may be purchased this week at the bank in the main building or from members of the USA.

The dance will be a sport affair, and decorations will consist of popular San Francisco scenes. Outside entertainment may also be featured, Shalit added.

Working on the dance committee are Ed Hjerpe, president of the Association, and USA members Dave Raphael, Wray Jacobs, Emily Hardy, Wayne Easley, Sonia Seebohn, Nolan Wilson and Shalit.

The purpose of the dance, as described by Jacobs, college finance chairman, is to provide entertainment at a nominal cost and to raise funds for the election campaign in January.

The United Students Association, a campus organization devoted to the promotion of social and scholastic activities at the college, yesterday invited students to participate in its activities. USA meets every Friday during college hour in 5L.

Fall Elections Must Have Full Support From All Groups

ALTHOUGH Fall elections are somewhat in the future, it's not too soon for some serious contemplation concerning support of them.

We hope the elections will be backed by all interest groups on the campus, not by just one group, as in recent campaigns. This group is, of course, the fraternity and sorority members who constantly support their party, the Inter-Fraternity Council.

It's true that the college has had a "one-party" government for some time. This dominant group, the IFC, has done a fine job of representing not only its own members, but students outside of its special interest sphere as well.

However, it's not fair to the IFC nor to the other campus interests to expect leaders from one party to direct a government whose representatives include few students from other walks of campus life.

Various political parties have been organized, but they seem to forget one of the axioms of politics, "get out the vote." These organizations have sound programs, worthy of student support, but they don't get that support.

The IFC draws most of its votes from among its own members, naturally. Since there has invariably been a small voter turnout in recent elections, and since most of the voters were fraternity and sorority members, there has been an almost total IFC victory on each occasion.

The obvious thing for the other political groups to do is to drum up interest within their own organizations and get their members to the polls.

How to drum-up that interest? Take a page from the IFC "book"; sound planning, sound ideas, and sound candidates.

We're certainly not politicians, but it's a surety that a one-party government can stagnate, and the only thing that will keep it from stagnation is active competition with the "one party."

The time to plan that competition is today. The able independent leaders on campus have some sound ideas for government. Let them present those ideas to the independent students and plan now for a competitive campaign.

We never take sides in any election and sincerely hope that all parties win some representation, but one interest group cannot properly operate any government without the aid of representatives from the other interest groups.

RAM'S HORN

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman office building 4-D. Deadlines are noon each Wednesday. It so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but his identity must be known to the editor.)

• Social Activities

Editor, The Guardsman:

City College offers to the student an extensive social program. Many students enjoy going to the various social events presented by the Associated Students. There are students who would like to help plan and participate in these activities, but don't know how they can be of assistance.

The Associated Students need help in many different capacities. The Election Committee needs help in planning the important elections that will be coming soon. The Rally Committee needs assistance in planning rallies and promoting spirit at games. The variety show committee needs students to help with the many jobs necessary to produce a successful variety show. The Social Committee appreciates suggestions offered by all students concerning all the activities in general. These are only a few of the committees that plan your social events.

If you would like to find out more about these activities, or any of the clubs or organizations on campus, you are invited to come to any of the meetings of the Club Activities Board which meets in Building 2, Room A, on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 o'clock. All the clubs and organizations are represented at these meetings, and information concerning them may be obtained at that time."

• Drama Coverage

Editor, The Guardsman:

The last edition of The Guardsman (October 28) included a cut and dried listing of those cast members in the first play of this semester "The Male Animal." This notice was printed on the last page.

The players, along with their director Mr. M. Griffin, had spent many night hours, week ends and holidays rehearsing for a presentation that caused an S.R.O. (Standing Room Only) sign to be raised on opening night. The general student's interest in the play was apparent but where was the interest of this paper? No review, no comment, no nothin', only that cold listing of the participating students.

It appears to this writer that If The Guardsman can see fit to devote a full page to sports, commenting on athletics who also put in many long hours in practice, then why can't enough space be spared for just a paragraph in reviewing a Drama Society production?

If our own school publication lacks enthusiasm towards such events how can its readers be expected to follow through in any C.C.S.F. functions?

M. H. Friedrichsen

(Editor's Note: Because of limited space and deadlines, the policy of The Guardsman restricts coverage of past events to straight news reporting where there is a newsworthy development.

(If Mr. Friedrichsen will note page 1 of the October 21 issue of The Guardsman, he will see complete coverage informing the campus of the production of The Male Animal.

(Could it be, Mr. Friedrichsen, that this story, complete with picture, in some way contributed to the S.R.O. sign opening night?)

• Mascot Whammy

Editor, The Guardsman:

A photograph in The Guardsman showed "Sammy the Ram" with "the college's yet unnamed mascot." An adjacent column reported that the ram has been putting the whammy on City College's opponents.

Isn't the conclusion obvious that the critter should be christened "Whammy the Ram"?

Terror Of Nazi Regime During Second World War Told By Foreign Student Here

By Mohi ud Dean

Margot Cohen, foreign student here, who was born in Goch, Germany, relates an amazing record of experiences which occurred when she lived in Nazi-terrorized Europe.

The first six years of her life were spent in her Rhineland home, but when the figure of Hitler loomed too prominently on the German horizon, she fled to Holland. Boarding a special train for children, she arrived at Amsterdam, Holland.

She and the other children were placed under the protection of members of the underground.

In 1943, at the age of 11, Miss Cohen (pictured at right) was interned in a Dutch concentration camp. Released through the underground after two years, she spent the next two years in hiding.

Her entire family was killed in concentration camps; her brother remained safe until three months before the end of the war, when he was reported by a German espionage agent. Miss Cohen now lives in Oakland with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ermann, her only living relatives.

She visited the East Indies and in 1950 journeyed to the West Indies to meet Mr. and Mrs. Ermann, who, after escaping from Germany, made their home there for 11 years.

Miss Cohen's education met with a series of disruptions. She received only 18 months formal education in Holland, barely enough time to learn the "three r's." In Haiti, she spent two and one-half years completing her grammar school training. Skipping the ninth grade, she finished high school at Oakland Technical in two and one-half years.

Speaking five different languages fluently — English, German, French, Dutch, and Creole — Miss Cohen's major is social welfare. To make use of her multi-lingual talents, she is minoring in languages, with an eye to obtaining a job with the United Nations in the foreign aid department.

Through her experiences she developed a great respect for freedom and the American way of life. Miss Cohen spoke on a program sponsored by UNESCO last Sunday on KNBC, expressing her views and relating some of her experiences.

The only advantage gained from the ordeals suffered, she noted, is that she is now able to orientate herself easily and can adapt herself to the culture and mores of any nation. Miss Cohen would like to visit Europe as a tourist, but she plans to make her home here. (Photo by Saba.)

Panhandling Pays Expenses Of NYU Student

HIS BUSINESS: A student at New York University has discovered a new way to work his way through school. Standing about in Washington Square, he realized he was averaging 80 cents an hour—panhandling.

DRESS FOR DINNER: The dean of Princeton University's graduate school of liberal arts has ruled that all his students must wear academic gowns to dinner.

Students held a meeting and voted to have the order rescinded, but Dean Hugh Taylor said, "There are certain things that votes do not decide."

DO THEY MIND?: For the first time at the University of Oregon, there's a housemother in a men's dormitory. Mrs. Katherine DePue, who was formerly a fraternity housemother in Maryland, says it's too early to tell if the men resent her presence in the dorm.

BERIA GETS AROUND: A student at North Texas State Teachers College — faced with signing the eighth statement in his college career that he is not a Communist — signed the name of Lavrenty Beria, deposed Russian police boss, the other day.

A notary public in the college administration building let it pass without question. The student said he would put the pledge in his scrapbook.

FRONT PAGES: To celebrate national newspaper week, the Syracuse Daily Orange put out two front pages —and ran them both inside the paper.

One was a typical American page, with headlines like "Plows Work Stressed" and "Magazine Prints Student's Article." The other was an example of what the same page might look like if the Orange were printed in a totalitarian country. The headlines were changed to "Subversive Arrested" and "State Cites Alvin for 'Basis' Story." Only the temperature in the weather report remained uncensored.

LAPLAND: Forty German and 20 Danish students are busy digging gold in Lapland to raise money for their national student unions. They had no small difficulty finding a profitable spot to dig that had not been previously claimed.

RUSSIA: Students at Tomsk Polytechnical Institute in Siberia are producing their own television programs on a transmitter they built themselves. It took 50 students 18 months to do the job. Now they are putting on regular news, documentary, and variety shows.

NORWAY: There's a Russian student studying at Oslo University this semester. The Norwegian students association brought him to their country from Moscow University to promote international friendship.

ELECTIONS AGAIN: (From the Daily Reveille, Louisiana State University)

The girls all smiled at me,
And I began to gloat.
Then I realized
That I was just a vote.

SF Cinema Guild: Cocteau Appeals In Beauty And The Beast

By Harold Painter

IF ONE has a reliable street map and patience, he can enjoy some of the discriminate motion picture selections shown by the San Francisco Cinema Guild at Collingwood Hall, 97 Collingwood Street, here in the city. Just presented was a Charlie Chaplin film festival, and now being shown is W. C. Fields in The Bank Dick.

The Guild is anxious to appeal to the sense of humor as well as to the sense of drama. Chaplin is balanced by such producers as Eisenstein; Fields, by Steinbeck; and the extremes are balanced by lighter comedies and dramas. Carnival in Flanders, Moby Dick, Treasure of the Sierra Madre.

Occasionally the Guild presents the unique, films and producers that are above contrast: Cocteau, the child, the seer, the magician, the rabbit, the actor, the audience, an endless source of ideowonders in one.

Perhaps the reader is acquainted with Cocteau's Strange Ones; he'll want to see Beauty and the Beast.

Cocteau asks to appeal to the child in the audience. He asks it to relax and participate in fantasy with him; he wants it to believe that the hands of a beast will turn to smoke. The audience sees that the key to Cocteau is child-like simplicity; it must understand without thinking.

What is a more natural fantasy than a statue coming to life, water becoming smoke, a beast becoming a prince of attainment?

The story is a very simple one: a rose is stolen; the thief must be punished; to save her father, Beauty will live with the Beast; Beauty and the Beast become lovers; Love destroys the Beast; the Beast, magically transformed into a handsome young man, rises in smoke with Beauty.

Beauty and the Beast is rich in symbolism if the audience wants to trouble itself with symbols. What often appears to be a symbol in some of Cocteau's films frequently turns out to be a 'gesture of the fantastic,' and the spectator's mind will turn to smoke if he tries deciphering.

Symbolically, Beauty and the Beast follows something like this: the Beast becomes the poet; Beauty, the poet's ultimatum. The poet's ultimatum is the experiencing of the miracle. The poet in attempting to realize himself, destroys. Realized, the poet is destroyed by the thing he creates; the poet undergoes transformation and identifies himself with his end.

But Cocteau does not keep all his rabbits in one hat; themes remotely allied to the text appear and reappear in phantasmagoria. If the spectator is not versed in surrealist doctrine, the work of Cocteau is twice fantastic.

Understood or not, Cocteau's symbols weave a likeable tale of fantasy. Cocteau wants his audience to be the child and to join him in the fantastic.

IFC Sweetheart Chosen At Dance

By Shirley Murphy

HIGHLIGHT of the Hayloft Hop, sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council, was the naming of Connie Maravellias, representing Delta Psi as IFC Sweetheart. The reigning beauty received 42 red roses and a crimson satin rhinestone-studded evening bag.

The surrey, compliments of Horsetrader Ed, which graced the dance-floor and helped lend the proper western atmosphere to the soiree, left the campus unceremoniously piloted by a garbage truck.

Main Banquet

The Associated Students' honored Dick Main, manager of the Rampo-rium, for his efforts on behalf of the book store at a luncheon last Thursday in the faculty dining room.

In addition to representatives of student government and members of the faculty, prominent educators present included Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools; Dr. John F. Brady, associate superintendent of schools; Dr. A. J. Cloud, president emeritus of this college; John G. Levinson, vice-president of the Board of Education; Irving G. Breyer, legal adviser to the Board of Education; and Thomas K. Hounsley, Joseph P. McElligott, and Joseph Fogarty, school department staff members.

Humility

The Guardsman has refrained from mentioning Julius and his friend until now. Feeling that this omission on our part is unique among the papers of the nation, we now mention the matter so as not to be regarded unconscious of national sentiment.

The Godfrey affair was thrashed out when two representatives of KCBS, William Cullenward, head of the public relations department, and William Nietfield, network news director, spoke to the public relations class last Tuesday and answered questions of students regarding the feud and other matters relating to the radio field.

'Training, Hard Work Pay Off'

Champion Georgia Baldassari Is Junior Olympic Titleist

By Gail Moss

San Francisco's Crystal Plunge seems to produce little else but swimming and diving champions, and City College's Georgia Baldassari is no exception.

Demure and brown-haired, she dives for Crystal, and apparently does it well, for she's won a fistful of prizes for her prowess on the springboard. In the 1952 Junior Olympics, Miss Baldassari won the one meter and three meter springboard diving championships, and this year she repeated in the one meter and took second in the three meter, no mean feat. Add to this the one meter championship in the Far Western Outdoor A.A.U. competition for girls 17 and under, and you have an idea of what Miss Baldassari can do. That last title, incidentally, was won this August, just two days before she turned 18.

Miss Baldassari, a freshman here, is an attractive, rather quiet, young lady, quick to smile, who, were it not for her deep tan, could easily be mistaken for just an average college girl. As her records testify, she is far from just average athletically.

Diving takes lots of intestinal fortitude, she says, and she attributes her success to Jimmy Hughes, diving coach at Crystal Plunge. Since she started diving two years ago, while still attending Lowell High School, Hughes' training and her own hard work have paid off.

Miss Baldassari was a competitive swimmer before she started diving, and numbers among her accomplishments in that field the winning of a 1000 yard rough water swim at Santa Cruz.

Having competed in both swimming and diving, she thinks diving both harder and more fun. "I like all sports," she guesses, "but diving is my first love. It takes longer to learn to be a good diver than it does to be a good swimmer."

As she says, diving takes lots of form and lots of courage. And she certainly should know.

Ram Conversions Beat Sacramento And Stockton To Catapult Team Into Third Place In Big Seven Conference

By Al Palacio

With a conversion supplying the victory in each game, the City College Rams slid past both the Sacramento Panthers, 19 to 18, on November 6 at the capital city, and the Stockton Mustangs, 14 to 13, last Friday at Kezar Stadium, to jump into third place in the Big Seven Conference.

In the Sacramento tilt, the 5,000 spectators on hand at Hughes Stadium were electrified by an 85-yard punt return to a last period touchdown by City College's top-rushing Fullback Don Brand. This run-back catapulted the Rams into a solid 19 to 12 lead.

The Panthers tallied first early in the initial quarter when Fullback Silas Anderson plowed over from the one yard line. The extra point attempt failed.

A few minutes later, however, Ram Halfback Pat Fracisco dived into the end zone from two yards out and this, coupled with Tackle Jerry James' successful conversion, put City College out in front at the half, 7 to 6.

Halfback Jim Frank jacked that margin up to 13 to 6 in the third stanza when he plunged over right guard for the score from the one. James' try for point was wide to the left.

Sacramento countered late in the period when Halfback Ward Gardner smashed over guard for five yards into paydirt. The point-after-touchdown attempt again was no good.

Following Brand's long scamper, the Panthers rallied to tighten the score. The pay-off came when Quarterback John Syftested charged over tackle on the first play for the six-pointer.

The Stockton contest, played in a steady drizzle which converted the turf into a sleek, muddened field, was featured by a stubborn Ram line and a brilliant aerial show by Quarterback Ray Arata.

With City College holding a 14 to 7 lead and the stadium clock showing but 45 seconds left to play, Mustang Quarterback Junior Reynosa tossed a scoring pass to End Darrell Haynes which covered 60 yards. On the all-important extra point try, Reynosa handed off to Halfback Jim Holt on a cross-buck, but the right side of the Ram forward wall stopped him one yard shy of the goal.

Despite a water-logged ball, Arata completed 14 of 18 passes for 208 yards. He also scored the Rams' first touchdown in the second stanza on a quarterback sneak from one yard out.

Block SF Holds Meeting This Friday

Next meeting of the Block SF Society will be held this Friday, November 20, in 10D during college hour, Chuck White, president of the group, announced yesterday when he issued a plea to members for assistance in the organization's functions.

Sponsor of the society, Bill Fischer, added that anyone who has won a letter in one or more of the college's many athletic fields is eligible to join the Block SF. The only fee is $1 per semester, he said, and eligible athletes are invited to see him in the men's gymnasium for further information.

WAA Lists Two High School Playdays Today

The Women's Athletic Association has a full program this semester, and President Colleen Walker announced yesterday that there are many playdays to look forward to this semester.

Two high school playdays are listed, one today with Polytechnic and Lowell, and the other with Washington on December 9. High school playdays already held were those with Mission, Balboa, and George Washington.

The opener of the two year college playdays was held last Saturday, November 14, given by East and West Contra Costa. San Mateo, on December 5, and Marin, on January 9, close out the fall semester.

The scene of the opener of the spring semester will be at Santa Rosa on March 6. The April 24 playday will be held here at City College. The closing sportsday will be at Napa on May 22.

The meeting deciding these dates was held at San Mateo, October 3.

Rams Have Bumper Crop Of Frosh Cagers

A bumper crop of frosh basketballers along with two returning veterans could easily turn this season's team into a Big Seven Conference title threat, according to observers of recent practice.

The lettermen are Jerry Stack and Warren Baxter.

Basketball Coach Ralph Hillsman singled out center Theopolis Dunn and guard Jim Stephens for their good play in intra-squad scrimmage and practices. He stated that Mike Leaskou, former San Francisco high school great, has also shown brightly in spots and is slowly rounding into playing shape after having trouble with an injured foot.

The mentor added that 52 players answered the first call to the hardwood November 2. That number was reduced to 23 after player cuts and will eventually be down to 16 before the season's start.

The USF yearlings will provide the first hurdle for the Red and White Tuesday, December 1, at 6 p.m., starting off the 19 game 2 tournament schedule.

The schedule released by Hillsman, is as follows:

Grid Captains For Viking, Sacramento Games Are Featured

Ram football players were elected before the East Contra Costa and Sacramento games for co-captain honors.

Chosen to lead the way in the East Contra Costa game were Gus Bagatelos, center, and halfback Jerry Dillard.

The former has seen little action, but according to Coach Grover Klemmer he has been "coming around" of late.

Dillard has gained 38 yards in 11 carries for a 3.4 percentage. He has been sharing his backfield position with Pat Fracisco and Ashford Jones.

Co-captains for the Sacramento game last week were Guard John Roy, End Rich Oliver, and End Don Brown.

Roy, a stocky performer has been playing steady ball for the Rams this season. Klemmer stated that the veteran turned in his best job of the season against the capital city eleven.

Oliver, lanky six foot-two performer, has also shown well in spots this season.

First Division Battle On Friday As Rams Face Modesto Pirates In Big Seven Conference Tilt

Still battling to stay in the first division of the Big Seven Conference, City College hosts a heavily favored Modesto eleven this Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Kezar Stadium in the final game of the season.

The Rams have improved greatly since the season began. Stocked with freshmen, Head Coach Grover Klemmer's squad started the year dismally, but with the added experience gained in some close defeats, they have finally found the winning track and should provide Modesto with some spirited competition.

The Pirates of Coach Stan Payko will be out to preserve their second-place position. The Modestans have convincing wins over several interleague foes, an upset win over Stockton, and have lost only to mighty West Contra Costa. At that, the Richmond Comets were forced to score in the final seconds to defeat the Buccaneers, 14-13.

The contest Friday shapes up as a battle of lines. The Pirates have given up fewer points than any team in the conference, with the exception of undefeated West Contra Costa. Only Stockton has produced more than 20 points against Modesto, and, as previously mentioned, West Contra Costa was hard-pressed to score twice against the Pirates.

The Rams have what line coach Roy Burkhead calls the best balanced line he has ever worked with at City College. The front rank has been strengthened by the return of stocky Pete Hontalas to guard after a short spell at fullback.

Gridders Hard Hit By Many Injuries

A year-long plague of injuries has made for a most unusual football season at City College, according to head coach, Grover Klemmer.

Center Ken Lopolito suffered a concussion in the Los Angeles game, and although out of the hospital and back attending classes, he will be out of uniform for the remainder of the season.

Knee injuries have taken their toll of players, especially linemen. Both guard Frank Blackburn and tackle Ken Orzell have been lost to the team because of bad knees, and Blackburn is definitely out for the season.

The injury to Blackburn and the loss of guard Dave Smith, who left college because of a death in his family, have caused Klemmer to move Pete Hontalas back to his original guard slot after starting the season at fullback.

Booters Encounter Broncos At Santa Clara Saturday

The college soccer team's two game home stand against California and Stanford produced a 3-2 victory over the Bears and a 1-1 tie with the Indians. Santa Clara provides the opposition for the Rams in a game scheduled to be played at the Broncos' home field Saturday, November 21, with the kick-off due at 11 a.m.

In the California game, City College scored first against the Bears as Larry Agius booted home the ball midway through the second quarter.

A second half Bear come-back saw two quick tallies by Joe Dajani from his center-forward spot.

Jaime Martinez put the Rams back in the ball game with a goal 10 minutes before the end of the game.

Then Joe Muscat dribbled past the California defense to deposit the ball against the net for a 3-2 Ram lead.

A minute later the game ended.

Against Stanford, a team which had handed the college its only setback, the Ram forward line was unable to score during the first half.

Meanwhile, Fred Vundig headed the ball through the uprights for an Indian lead.

The local Red and White applied the pressure in the second half and was able to deadlock Stanford as Martinez tallied with only eight minutes left in the game. A ten-minute overtime was played with neither team scoring.

Santa Clara, which dropped a 3-2 decision to the college in their previous meeting, will attempt to pull out of their cellar position with a victory over the Rams in the Saturday game.

Klemmer Praises Tackles Landi, James

COACH Grover Klemmer had the floor in a talk session the other day at the men's gymnasium, and what he had to offer was quite startling, to say the least.

"Quote me as saying," began the slim mentor as he eased back in his chair, "that Jerry James and Jerry Landi are the best tackle combination I have ever had the pleasure and distinction of working with in all my coaching years at City College."

That was as powerful a statement as we had heard hereabouts in a long while, so we then decided to toss a few questions his way with the possibility in mind that maybe he would alter it or, at best, change the wording around to add a new meaning.

Approaching the issue cautiously, we began to enumerate the names of many great tackles who have played for Klemmer during his eight-year tutoring tenure here. But all this on our part was to no avail, for he refused to back down.

Instead, he began to elaborate on the reasons for his sudden utterance and they were both sane and sound. They weren't mere hot air spat out in lieu of covering up some absurd declaration.

Klemmer continued to dole out the accolades thusly. "Those boys possess a terrific offensive and defensive charge the likes of which I have seldom seen in junior college ball. I believe one would have to go a long way to find their superiors in the Big Seven Conference or any other two-year college league."

Line Coach Roy Burkhead, who took the head coaching position in 1951 when Klemmer was summoned away on a special assignment and guided the Rams to the championship, had this to say about the pair, "They are tall, heavy, and fast. Those are the three basic essentials of any great tackles."

Burkhead was quick, however, in pointing out the outstanding play of the entire line this season. "Landi and James have been helped no end by the sterling performances of Center Earl Smith and Guards John Roy and Pete Hontalas," he said, "and, as in any team sport, one man helps the other along."

CAB Personality Cards Show Varied Interests

The Club Activities Board recently completed the sorting and arranging of the blue "Interest Personality Cards," which were filled out by registering students earlier this semester.

The cards serve as an individual census of all students, and are kept in Dean Louis Batmale's office, second floor of Building 2, in alphabetical order.

(Interest Personality Cards are the blue forms which registering students filled out in September.)

The cards pertain to such questions as athletic interests, religious preference, club activities, as well as the person's name, age, address, and telephone number.

According to the survey, the 3,000 students who completed these cards showed interests as follows:

68.5 per cent intended to buy Associated Student membership.

49 per cent are interested in varied college activities, student government, or a service to the college.

39 per cent showed intentions of joining a religious club.

33 per cent have sorority or fraternity interest.

29 per cent regarded participating in athletics supreme.

29 per cent wish to join any club activity.

Dave Raphael, CAB chairman, stated that this semester is the first time there has been a record of all the student's interests on one card. In past years, individual clubs asked their members to fill out similar forms for every activity they joined—thus requiring extra paper work.

To date, the groups having made use of the cards include Newman Club, Hillel Foundation, Collegiate Christian Fellowship, Canterbury Club, Block SF, Variety Show producers, Masonic Club, and Globe and Anchor Society.

The purpose of CAB is to coordinate the activities of the various organizations, and perform the other duties allocated to it by the Student Council. These duties are made easier when the wishes and interests of the students are made known to CAB, Raphael pointed out.

Students working on the interest personality card committee were Chairman Mildred Stoll and Jan Michel, Shirley Rathjens, Loretta Warchot, Katie Owens, Sonia Seeboiin, Ted Kast, Bob Florer, Christina Hansen, and Mike Aggeler.

Campus Police Hand Out Average Of 20 Traffic Citations Per Day; Students Here Pay $1500 To City

Since the beginning of this semester, the Campus Police have been kept busy handing out an average of 20 traffic citations per day to students who have violated regulations while around the college, Leo C. Hertoghe, assistant chief of staff, Campus Police, said here today.

Last semester, from February 11 to June 11, 1953, students from the college alone paid to the city of San Francisco $1,500 for their carelessness, Hertoghe said.

The majority of these citations, he said, were given for parking in prohibited areas and for parking on the west campus without a permit.

Hertoghe reminded all motorists that many of the citations are given to students parking in the loading area behind the college bookstore and for parking in any of the narrow streets on the campus.

Also, parking is prohibited on lawns on the west campus, if the grass is green and definitely growing. Students are allowed to park on dirt areas such as that between Building 13 and Phelan Avenue where the grass is no longer growing.

Another serious offense for which many students are cited is failing to turn the wheels of their car into the curb while parked on a hill. Hertoghe stated that in San Francisco last year, 662 cars ran away because motorists were careless and forgot to block their wheels against the curb while parked on a hill.

Speeding is another serious problem confronting the Campus Police, Hertoghe said. The speed limit anywhere on campus is 15 miles per hour. The speed limit on Phelan Avenue while classes are in session is 25 miles per hour, but while classes are changing the limit is 15 miles per hour.

Hertoghe also warned students that the Campus Police, while on duty around the campus, have the same authority as a regular officer of the law. He also stressed to everyone the importance of the job and the importance of student cooperation in lessening the traffic hazard.

BEING TAGGED for illegal parking on the lawn behind building 12 in the west campus is some unsuspecting City College student. Administering the citation is Chief Gordon Richardson, left, with pad and pencil in hand and Arthur Clarkson, right, looking on patiently. "A word to the wise" has been given by campus police, "watch carefully where parking the heap." All parking tags are two dollars and must be paid by a certain allotted time. Campus police possess the same authority as any state or city policeman while on duty on campus. This authority was bestowed upon them by the San Francisco Police Department.—Photo by Tsagalakis.

Rally Committee Is Active At Many Campus Functions

By Bev Swope

Found bobbing busily beneath a red and white cap at every rally, game, or other social event is a member of the Associated Student Rally Committee, but according to Marilee Scholl, rally commissioner, more of these energetic individuals are needed to keep up the college spirit.

Becoming a Rally Committee member is not difficult, Miss Scholl said. Those interested in joining the committee, or those who feel they have some talent to offer and would like to entertain at the rallies, should inform Miss Scholl or come to the rally meetings.

The committee meets every Monday and Wednesday at 12 noon in 2B. One unit of credit may be received for participation.

The purpose of the committee, Miss Scholl said, is to stimulate the spirit of the students for the college. Even the capturing and transporting of a live ram from Napa for a team mascot is not beyond the call of duty for a rally committeeman. Usually, however, tamer jobs such as soliciting good rally entertainment, planning half-time activities and decorating the stands at the games fall to the rally committee.

Rally committee secretary is Ena Aguirre.

The recent event planned by the committee was a football rally featuring outside entertainment, before the Sacramento game.

As a matter of interest, Miss Scholl added, the red and white caps worn by committeemen are issued to them for the semester and must be returned.

Varieties Set For January

The varieties for this year will be held on Thursday and Friday evenings, January 14 and 15, in the college's west campus auditorium, Jim Glasson, director of the show, and Julie Hanan, producer, announced last week, and they added that preparation for the production are progressing very well.

Miss Hanan reminded students that this is primarily a student show, and she announced that there are still openings for anyone who is interested in the technical side of a production such as this.

She added that a large number of acts have already auditioned, and there will be no more try-outs.

Duke Leonard, an experienced makeup man who has done considerable professional work, including makeup for the San Francisco Opera Company in the past few seasons, will work with the varieties in a similar capacity, according to director Glasson. Leonard is currently enrolled in the college's Hotel and Restaurant division.

The theme of the show is undecided and the cast is yet to be completed, Glasson and Miss Hanan stated, but they declared that the varieties will be one of the entertainment highlights of the college year.

Publication Board Discusses Posters

Posters were the main topic of discussion at the last Publications Board meeting on October 30, according to Dick Meister, board chairman.

All those wishing to display posters for dances, games, and rallies on any part of the west campus must see Meister in The Guardsman office, 4D, any day after noon, for approval, he stated.

Larry Ellzarde, election commissioner, must be contacted for approval for any election posters to be posted on the west campus. He may be located every day at 2 p.m. in Building 2.

In charge of all posters to be displayed in the main building is William Eckert, advertising instructor, who may be found in Room 349 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon daily.

Meister added that posters in both gymnasiums are approved by the physical education department.

Students Here To Be Briefed On AF Cadet Program

Aviation Cadet Selection Team 101, from Parks Air Force Base, will be on campus tomorrow and Friday to give particulars concerning the cadet program to interested students, Major D. B. O'Hara, team president, announced last week.

In order to qualify for cadet training, O'Hara stated, one must be a single, male citizen of the United States between the ages of 19 and 26½.

Educational requirements have been lowered recently so that high school graduates may qualify. A high school diploma is necessary, O'Hara added. This is the first time since World War II that both pilot and observer training has been open to high school graduates.

Major O'Hara pointed out that the observer training is just as important as the pilot training, although not many persons are aware of what constitutes the observer's job. He said that the observers are rated, flying officers, who have the same opportunity for promotion and advancement as the pilots.

The team on campus will consist of O'Hara, Captain D. F. Hornbuckle, Jr., T/Sgt. George Hydrick, and T/Sgt. Loyd Mayo. The Air Force display will be located in front of the campus store from 9:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. on both days.

Up to date literature, fact sheets, and pamphlets will be available at no charge and any questions will be answered by members of the team, O'Hara said.

Stewardess Present At Friday's Film

A stewardess from the American Airlines will accompany the showing of the film, New York, to answer questions for women students of the college Friday, November 20, during college hour, Madison Delvin, Audio Visual Aid instructor here, said yesterday.

The film, shown through the courtesy of the American Airlines, is brand new and is to be shown for the first time on the West Coast at the college in Room 136 at 10:40 and 11:30 a.m. and at 12:20 p.m. The viewer will be shown Rockefeller Plaza, the Empire State Building, Radio City, Times Square at night and many other sights of New York, Delvin said.

Theme of the botany exhibit now on display in the cases of the main building here is that all foods present on the banquet table originate with the green plant. Both the raw material and the finished products, such as sugar, spice, and avacado are shown.

The exhibit was arranged by the committee in charge of the display cases, headed by Walter Splitt, student at the college, and George Gould, science instructor here.

Tickets On Sale For The Torch-Bearers To Be Presented Here December 3, 4, 5

12 Students Cast In Satirical Comedy By Kelly

The Torch-Bearers, George Kelly's satirical comedy, will be presented by the college drama society Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, December 3, 4 and 5, in the Little Theater of the main building at 8:30 p.m., Michael Griffin, drama coach here, announced recently.

Tickets for the second drama production of the semester are now on sale at the student bank in the main building. They will also be sold at the door.

Associated Student card holders will be admitted free. The general admission price is $1 and student card holders from other schools will be charged 50 cents.

The Torch-Bearers is a three act drama and is a "play within a play." It is a satire on the theater itself. This play will be of special interest to anyone who has ever been connected with a little theater group, Griffin commented.

The characters in the play include those typical of such a group — the ham actor, the temperamental actress, the harassed stage manager and the excitable director-producer, he noted.

The play has a cast of 12. Dean Cyr portrays Frederick Ritter; M. H. Friedrichsen, Huxley Hosse Fosse; John Holbertson, Spindler; Bill Bixby, Ralph Twiller; Ed Freeman, the stage-manager; Lee Meriwether, Mrs. Paula Ritter; Joyce Cody, Mrs. J. Dure Pampanelli; Joan Hays, Mrs. Nellie Fell; Bernice Herzberg, Florence McCriket; Loretta Warchot, Mrs. Clara Shepard; Irena Morozoff, Jenny; Duke Leonard, Teddy Spearing.

Holbertson is the stage manager for the play.

Activities of the drama society, this semester, Griffin stated, will include the presentation of three one-act plays. The date and time of the dramas has not yet been scheduled. He mentioned the works of William Saroyan, Tennessee Williams, and Eugene O'Neil as possible vehicles for the society.

Drama productions next semester will be extended to six or possibly nine performances if audience response warrants it, he added.

Council Elects Three New Members To Fill Vacancies

Three vacant Student Council seats were filled last week when members of the council voted Barbara Campello to the Sophomore Council and chose Jean Sabel and Lawrence Lowe to represent the freshmen.

The new members of the student government organization will replace Carl Pederson and Dick Paulson, who resigned from the Freshmnn Council because of other commitments, and Annie Monego, Sophomore Council member, who left college.

Nominations were open to all members of the Associated Students, although the actual voting was done by the council itself. Those nominated were Miss Campello and Hal Jackson for Sophomore Council, and Miss Sabel, Lowe, Don Pace, Joe Bavaresco, Frank Monson and Halsey Chenoweth for Freshman Council.

The Student Council consists of 15 voting members and the President of the Associated Students, as provided by the college's constitution. One of the voting members is the AS Vice-President, and the others are elected by the Associated Students at the same time as other officers.

To be eligible for council, a student must have at least a "C" average. The seven members of the Freshman Council must have completed no less than 12 units and no more than 30, and the seven representatives of the sophomore class must have at least 30 units to their credit.

Miss Campello, Miss Sabel, and Lowe, as previously mentioned, were voted onto the council by the other members of the group, as stipulated by the constitution. Selection of the winning candidates was on a majority basis. Had there been a deadlock among candidates, the nominee receiving the least number of votes would have been ruled out and another vote would have been taken.

The Student Council is the governing body of the college. It has the final authority in the supervision of affairs, policies, and property of the Associated Students, and it grants funds to the various organizations and departments on campus.

Meetings of the Student Council are held on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 12 o'clock noon in Building 2.

It's That Time Again—Midterms

Asylums for the mentally unbalanced will throw open their doors to some 5,000 City College of San Francisco students next week, November 30 through December 4, as the poor souls are forced to go through the horrors of midterm examinations for the second time this semester.

To those who make it without cracking up, heartiest congratulations and best wishes. But, they must go through it again before released. To those who don't make it, condolences are offered.

Korean Veterans Submit Reports For Payments

Korean Veterans attending the college under Public Law 550 must sign their monthly reports between November 30 and December 4 on the second floor of Building 3 here, Betty Arnold, secretary for veteran affairs, has announced.

These monthly reports, Miss Arnold said, are actually a verification that the student is still attending college and that his grades are above the minimum requirements. Until the verification is made the Veterans Administration will not send the veteran his allowance.

The report is also a verification of the number of dependents being supported by the veteran. A single student carrying 14 units receives $110 per month, a student with one dependent $135 and a student with two or more dependents receives $160 per month, Miss Arnold said.

The amount of units being carried by a student also effects the allowance, she explained.

A single student carrying seven to nine units receives $50 per month, a student with one dependent receives $60 and a student with two or more dependents receives $80. A single student carrying 10 to 13 units receives $80, a student with one dependent $100 and a student with two or more receives $120.

KQED To Operate Soon

The Radio-Television department at the college has been working with the new educational television station KQED, which is due to start operation in the Bay Area after the first of next year according to Henry S. Leff, radio-television instructor here.

This department has been developing programs for possible future use on this station, Leff added.

Holiday Vacation Starts Tomorrow

Students here are due for a long week-end, according to the college calendar. The holidays start and Thanksgiving vacation is scheduled for tomorrow and Friday, November 26 and 27.

The vacation should give students time enough to get over the effects of a hearty Thanksgiving Day dinner so they will be bright and alert when classes resume Monday, November 30.

Because of the holiday there will be no publication of The Guardsman on Wednesday, December 2. The next issue of the paper will be distributed by members of the rally committee on Wednesday, December 9. That issue will be the last published before the Christmas holidays.

Debate Society Participates In UC Discussion

Phi Rho Pi, the college honorary debate society, participated in a recent discussion at the University of California, Thomas Dutcher, society adviser, said last week.

Grant Barnes and Guy Dutchman represented this college, and John Walker, Ken Felton, and Jim Glasson were extempore readers, Dutcher said.

The society attended the four day Western Association Speech Tourney in Fresno on November 23. Competition was strong, Dutcher explained, and the tourney was comprised of debate teams from all over the Western United States.

A triangular debate with Stanford, University of San Francisco, and this college is scheduled for next Tuesday, December 1, at Stanford.

Following this debate, the society will hold its third roundtable discussion two days later when they will bring to a conclusion the topics on How Can We Best Combat The Threat Of Communism, and the problem of suggesting specific improvements in procedures and practices of Congressional Investigating Committees.

Among those who received Certificates of Merit last semester three are present members of the debate society: George Effenberger, Julie Hanan, and John Walker.

So far society members have been performing well, Dutcher pointed out, and is aiming its goal at a repeat or better performance than last semester when they won many honors.

Last semester the debaters tied for first place in the sweepstakes award in the lower division competition with a University of California at the Stanford Spring Roundtable Discussion in April.

Applications For Election Group Due November 30

Sign-up deadline for the election committee is Monday, November 30, Larry Elizarde, election commissioner here, announced last week.

New and old students alike will have an opportunity to participate in the many activities of the committee, Elizarde declared, and will not only be assisting in conducting better and more successful elections, but gain experience in student government as well.

Eighteen sub-committees offer a variety of opportunities for those interested, he noted. Sign up for the committee is in Building 2, at the Dean of Men's office.

The election committee reviews all petitions of candidates for elective offices and reports on them to the Student Council, and runs and maintains all Associated Student elections on an impartial basis.

Deadline for submitting election petitions has been set at Tuesday, December 29. Students planning to run for an office may pick up their petitions in the Associated Student office from members of the election committee. Prospective candidates should check the qualifications for office carefully, Ellzarde added.

An election rally has been scheduled Friday, January 8 during college hour.

Election dates this semester are Thursday and Friday, January 14, 15.

AGS Society Sets Back Dinner Date

Alpha Gamma Sigma, honor society here, has postponed its installation dinner indefinitely. Unexpected difficulties in arrangements for the dinner, originally scheduled for November 18 here, have caused the delay, Don Jensen, society adviser stated last week.

Members of the society will receive invitations giving the new date as soon as possible. Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction here, will still be guest speaker if it can be arranged, according to Jensen.

The honor society has had 16 new members added, they are as follows:

Alexis Kaznoff, Florence Louie, Shirley Murphy, Charles Aver, Robert Ash, Frances Bellas, Albert Camps, K. M. Morgan, Nancy Walsh, Dorothy Fallon, Kenneth Foley, James Koch, Darrell Lewis, Jo Ann Naecarini, Gary Nachmman and Ardith Ealon.

Students may still become members of the society this semester, if they have a 2.0 grade point average with at least 30 grade points in the previous semester. Eligible students are expected to ask Jensen for complete information concerning the organization. Jensen's office is located in Building 3.

Christmas Work Available At Personnel Placement Office

Applications for Christmas work may be obtained by applying at the personnel placement office, Building 2, west campus, immediately, Joseph Amori, job placement director, announced last week.

He said that since the college closes on December 11, students desiring Christmas work are in a favorable position to receive it because of the fact that other colleges and high schools remain open another week.

Department stores have hired many sales persons, particularly women, for the coming holiday season, Amori commented. Working hours are 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Monday and all day Saturday until December 11, when work is full time until Christmas eve. Pay ranges from $1.17 to $1.38 per hour.

United Parcel company has hired many men for stock, clerking, driving and routing. Pay ranges from $1.38 to $1.75. Veterans are being hired by the Postal Transportation Service, and veterans living in the East Bay are, particularly desired. The pay is between $1.56 and $1.86, depending on the shift.

All veterans registered at the college who wished to work at the San Francisco Post Office have been hired for Christmas duty, he declared. A few non-veterans were hired also. Post Office pay ranges from $1.56 to $1.86.

The director claimed that several drama students have been hired as Santa Clauses at $75.00 per week.

He commented that the entire Christmas market is marked by "under-hiring" as compared to 1952. Those who are hired must work for their money. Of the veterans hired by the San Francisco Post Office last year, this year only one-half the number has been hired; 3,000, as compared to 6,000 in 1952.

New Yell Leader Named

Student Council here last week appointed Joe Bavaresco as the new Head Yell Leader. He will replace Bill Bixby, who resigned from the job last week because of other commitments.

Bavaresco, a freshman, will lead the Ram rooting section throughout the basketball season. He will hold the office until January elections, at which time the Associated Students will elect a candidate to the job for the Spring semester.

Proper Use Of 'Thanks' Forgotten In Today's 'Sophisticated' World

"THANKS." Here is a word whose proper use sometimes is forgotten in today's world.

True, "thanks" is uttered a thousand times daily but not often enough is it used properly, with honest sincerity.

It's a sad realization, but striving for worldliness has become so intense that the word is often spoken automatically. It is said, but it isn't felt.

One common attitude is that to express sincere appreciation to another is to lower the self-esteem of the person saying "thanks." This attitude contends that we're so worldly that to admit true thankfulness to someone else is to admit weakness and a lack of that undefinable thing which all seek—sophistication.

Further, it makes it "corny" to be honestly thankful to anyone.

Almost all are guilty of this feeling, but as "corny" as it may seem we believe honest "thanks" are due to many persons. It especially should be given to those around us, who are the ones we commonly overlook in expressions of true appreciation.

It's a fact that we are guilty of the same feelings of self-consciousness in expressing such thanks as the attitude points up. The wording in the "thanks" is trite and "hackneyed," but the feeling expressed is sincere and honest.

So, dig down into those modern sophisticated hearts with us and give:—

Thanks to our parents for the opportunity to attend college.

Thanks to our instructors for helping us on the road to knowledge.

Thanks to all the members of the administration and faculty who guide us in the Associated Students and who give us such a free hand in governing ourselves.

And the most "corny" of all, since "flag-waving" has long gone out of style—

Thanks to the founders of our nation and their successors for the freedom which we possess.

Yes, it's Thanksgiving again, and when we give that "thanks" let's make it a sincere one.

It's there, deep in the heart. Just look for it.

Reaching For New Vantages Of Understanding And Appreciation

By Harold Painter

IT IS possible that the first purpose of the critic is to introduce his readers to quality in the field he undertakes to evaluate.

Foremost in his mind should be the discovery and revelation of the new and the old, developing in his readers a desire, an anticipation, and a capacity to appreciate. Here, the critic, in enjoying a certain desire and anticipation comingled with prophesy, hopes to invest his readers with similar enjoyments, at the same time, developing the need and ability to appreciate.

With this in mind, the critic has selected a relatively unknown creator and a frequently unappreciated creation: Dylan Thomas and Beethovens ninth symphony.

Dylan Thomas, poet-writer, recently died in New York after thirty-nine years in mystical earth and heaven. The virile innovationist, lyrical Welchman, blooming with energetic imagery and prophecy, wrote enough to keep the English speaking world in thinking material and emotional impetus for a long while to come.

Dead, he might now incite the appreciation and fame due him. Little has been said about the man but little need be; the man and his work are inseparable, yet, have an existence apart. Thomas' genius found itself in surrealism and conveys itself in ringing clarity, a clarity of style and purpose that leaves imitators and masters of prosaic chit-chat in pulp and ashes.

Thomas will undoubtedly gain hold as one of the great and sincere modernists and maintain the position until he develops and offsprings.

It's time San Francisco heard an unadulterated performance of the ninth (choral) symphony. After listening to edited versions (probably designed for the dilletante who rents his tuxedo by the hour) listeners have developed neither the patience nor the understanding necessary to sitting through its entirety. The ninth is an experience and evening in one: the first and third movements build an emotional pressure climaxed and purged in the choral movement.

The choral without the emotional development that makes it possible is a violent, fire-bursting bombardment of the ear drums. That Beethoven reached a depth of profundity is evident in the introductory movements and the terrible exhaltation in the choral, almost beyond music, the voice of a deaf innerself.

And on his deathbed he raised himself, shook his fist at the sky, and died. It won't be appreciated until presented without the detriment of economic programming.

Ceramics Workshop Trains Artisans In Ancient Crafts

By Natalie Fleisher

Hidden away on a far corner of the west campus are 100 students, busily spinning and fashioning beautiful forms of clay, and practicing ancient, and romantic crafts. Here, in the ceramics workshop, under the supervision of ceramics instructor, Roy Walker, (pictured here at work) they explore the wonders of geology and nature in the chemical composition of clays and glazes.

Ceramics is one of the five important industries of the United States, which deals with clay and glass products; pottery is related to industry in the home, declared Walker, and it is made by casting in clay. This mass of clay is then "slip-thrown" on a spinning wheel after which the form is dried. To assure firmness, the object which has been dried is placed in the kiln, a large oven, where it is fired for 12 hours; glazed, and refired again at 2100° Fahrenheit.

Glazes, Walker explained, are made and calculated from flint and are melted with fluxing material.

Walker has been commended for his porcelain at the Los Angeles County Fair. Eight of the current ceramics students here passed the jury of the Pacific Coast Show at the City of Paris last Spring.

He defined ceramics as, "an art where one obtains results in the beginning and at the end of a lifetime, yet he feels as though he has only scratched the surface."

• ONE PARTY?

Editor, The Guardsman:

In regards to your editorial on elections, you said and I quote ". . . college has had a one-party government for some time." The United Students Association was organized in Fall 1952. Before this, the elections were one sided affairs. However, since the U.S.A. was organized the elections have been anything but one sided. In our first attempt at elections, which was for the Spring 1952 offices, we had five members elected to council. I was elected Associated Men Student President and one member was appointed to a cabinet position. Does this sound one sided? Last semester in the elections, we fumbled the ball, which can happen even to championship teams, which I assure you won't happen again. However three of our members were held in such regard that they were appointed to cabinet posts. This semester as a result of vacancies I was elected to council and one additional member was appointed a cabinet post. Still one-sided? Our organization, until this semester, has been small and thus we were not able to really get out the vote. However this semester we do have the people and the organization. With the support of the students in the January elections, the U.S.A. will return representative government to City College.

Edward Hjerpe,
President, U.S.A.

Thanksgiving Bids To Foreign Students Show Holiday Spirit

Since foreign students here are not very well acquainted with American customs such as Thanksgiving and Christmas, Joseph Jacobsen, foreign students adviser, today urged students to invite them to their holiday table.

The Pilgrim Fathers set the day aside to count their blessing and to feast. In the past few decades Thanksgiving has lost much of its original meaning to the average person.

To almost everyone, Thanksgiving is synonymous with turkey, dressing, mince pie, and all the trimmings, and most young people refer to the occasion as Turkey Day.

Extending an invitation to those from foreign countries, welcoming them to share this day is one step toward reviving this tradition.

Any faculty members or any students who could invite one or two for an old-fashioned holiday dinner, should notify Jacobsen in Building 3, west campus.

Poly Sci Classes Get Reprints Of Sac'to Story

By Shirley Murphy

SIX hundred copies of The Sacramento Story, a very readable account of state government in action, explaining the process of law making as simply as possible were recently made available to the political science department here through the courtesy of The San Francisco Chronicle. The article was written by Earl C. Behrens, dean of political reporters on all levels of government and currently political editor of the Chronicle.

The timeliness and style of the document should enliven student interest in the affairs of state.

Return to Paradise

Noted among the students enjoying the catering of faculty members at the coffee hour last week was Annie Moncey, former student at the college, now under contract to M-G-M Studios. Her first film, Teen-Age Menace, will be released in January. She is known in the South as Gloria Stern.

Female of the Species

Rams, rams, rams — it's time we heard a few words on the distaff side. Viewing matters on a world wide level through the eyes of the United Nations, the ewe holds sway.

One of the most trying problems facing the General Assemhly for the past six years has been the ewe question. Between 700,000 and 800,000 Ewes live in Africa. Part of the territory inhabited by the tribes is administered by the French, part by the English. The Ewes themselves want to create the independent state of Togoland. Despite efforts at settlement, the basic problem still remains.

Any developments in the matter will appear in this column in the interest of world affairs and the female ego.

Devotion to Duty

At the recent photo-journalism course, sponsored by the National Press Photographers Association, working with this college and the Institute of Journalistic Studies of Stanford University and held at the Press and Union League Club, one session of the shuttermen adjourned after 18 hours. And we complain about a mere 2 or 3 hours spent in the lab!

Maltese Imports

Tying in (a little loosely, we admit) with the United Crusade drive now in progress is the fact that the three Agius brothers, John, Joe, and Frank, natives of the island of Malta, are now enrolled at the college. Malta was a vital spot during the era of the Crusades in pursuit of the Holy Grail.

Success at Last

On the program for the Sacramento Junior College game this college was erroneously referred to as San Francisco Junior College and San Francisco City College in two spots. We salute Dr. J. Paul Mohr, president of Sacramento Junior College and former vice-president here, who correctly termed us City College of San Francisco in his message.

The Desserts Of The H&R: Lovely To Look At, Delightful To Sniff And Heaven To Devour

Sugar and spice and everything nice —that's what the pastries and desserts of the college's hotel and restaurant division are made of.

Hilda Watson, hotel division director, stated recently that the baking department not only furnishes all the desserts in both the cafeteria and the fountain, but also caters to the sororities and fraternities on campus at their social functions.

Soon the baking department plans to make its own bread which it will use for sandwiches in the cafeteria and fountain.

Upon entering the baking room tantalizing smells assail the nostrils. Rows of cakes sit appetizingly on a table just waiting to be frosted and devoured. The buttercream frosting cooking in a large open vat looks good enough to dive into head first with mouth open.

The baking department of the restaurant division excels in the output of the most delicious and beautiful-looking desserts ever to grace a dinner table.

The advanced baking class under George K. Muller does the retail baking and catering, while Edward S. Nylund's class prepares the desserts for the college cafeteria and fountain.

THIS REPLICA OF THE MAIN BUILDING, is a sugar sculpture made by Edward Nylund of the Hotel and Restaurant division. Although this sample isn't to be eaten, students of the division do prepare other tasty desserts for the campus cafeteria and fountain.

Pies, cakes, hotbreads, cake decorating, pastries, and dinner desserts are separate baking projects done by different groups of students in the division.

Ceramics Exhibit In Main Building

In the main building trophy case this week is a new exhibit of ceramics instructor Roy Walker's jewelry and ceramics, replacing the botany exhibit, Walter Splitt, chairman of the display case committee, announced today.

Appointed by William Eckert, advertising art department instructor, Splitt and four other students are in charge of the display case exhibits throughout the main building.

All departments and clubs are invited to have an exhibit. Those interested should apply to Eckert or Splitt, Room 349, main building, and need only supply the necessary materials for the exhibit.

City College Ends Grid Season In Second Place

Modesto Comeback Falls Short As Rams Win, 24-21

By Al Palacio

City College climaxed a season-long uphill drive last Friday at Kezar Stadium by knocking off the Modesto Junior College Pirates, 24 to 21, to clinch second place in final Big Seven Conference standings.

Coach Grover Klemmer's Rams finished the season with four wins, a loss, and a tie, to finish one notch back of undefeated West Contra Costa.

After rolling up an unexpected 24 to 0 lead in the first two quarters, the Rams eased up and went scoreless in the last half while the favored Modestans were chalking up three touchdowns and just fell short of pulling the game out of the fire. The vaunted Pirate offensive was held to a minus five yards gained on the ground in the first half by the Ram line.

End Rudy Buffin, the all-conference baseball star who had been shelved most of the football season with a gimpy knee, tallied City College's first two touchdowns. Both scores came in the first period and resulted from passes.

Buffin Scores

Twelve minutes into the quarter, Quarterback Ray Arata dropped back from the 50-yard line and fired a pass to Buffin, who made the catch in front of the City College rooting section on the 20 and, after losing his helmet on the 10, powered into the end zone with a Modestan hanging on. Tackle Jerry James missed the conversion.

James then kicked-off to the Modesto 16 where Pirate halfback Arlo Wendstrand let the free ball go and Center Earl Smith pounced on the pigskin for a City College recovery. Halfback Jim Frank and Fullback Don Brand then picked up a couple of yards, followed by an Arata incomplete pass.

Arata Hits for TD

On fourth down, Arata spotted Buffin free in the right hand corner and tossed the distance for the touchdown. James' point-after-touchdown attempt was wide to the left, but the redshirts were on the long end of a 12 to 0 score.

At the outset of the second quarter, Earl Smith intercepted a Modesto aerial thrown by Quarterback Ray Dellavecchia on the Pirates' 34 and scampered all the way to paydirt. James once again kicked wide to the left on the conversion try, but the gap widened, 18 to 0.

The final City College tally came when End Rich Oliver stole the ball from Dellavecchia, who was back to pass, and sped 31 yards to score. Pat Francisco missed the extra point try and City College trotted off the field at half-time with a 24 to 0 lead.

Modesto then got unwound in the second half. Dellavecchia passed to Don Malenoff for the first Pirate touchdown, then to Arlo Wendstrand in a pass play which covered 24 yards to narrow City College's margin to 24-14.

Pirate Runs 83 Yards

With three and a quarter minutes left in the contest, Fullback Gene Peterson banged right tackle, found an opening, and didn't stop until he had traveled 83 yards for the touchdown. He converted after each score.

Soccer Team Faces San Francisco State 'Gators Today After Losing 2 To 0 Contest To Powerful USF

After losing a 2-0 game at the hands of U.S.F., the college soccer team faces San Francisco State today in a game set for the Ram field. Starting time is at 3 p.m.

The Golden Gaters feature a tough defensive unit headed by center-half Herb Andersen, a veritable "Jack of all trades" who can play almost any position equally well.

In their previous game with State, the Rams had to go all out to gain a 4-2 decision at the Gater's home base.

The University of San Francisco Dons practically clinched the California Inter-Collegiate Conference Soccer Championship with their hard-fought 2-0 victory over the Rams at the latter's home grounds in a game played November 12.

Maurice Beatty opened the scoring for the Dons with only a few minutes gone into the game when his shot eluded goal-tender Don Daniels.

Diederichsen's booters held U.S.F. at bay during the rest of the first half as the muddy field played havoc with both teams' offensive work.

As play was resumed after the intermission it became evident the breaks were going to decide the game, because of the field's condition.

A free-kick gave the Dons their second tally late in the game. Armando Molina took the penalty and made it good with a tricky shot which the college defense was unable to stop.

Coach Diederichsen cleared the bench in the waning minutes of the game in a desparate attempt to win the all-important game but his efforts were of no avail as U.S.F. refused to give ground.

Dates Set For Intra Sports Title Playoffs

Definite dates have been set by the athletic department for the playoffs of the various intra-mural sports, Ralph Hillsman, director of the program, announced last week.

Hillsman said that class champions have been decided in football and basketball, and the classes have changed sports, with the football teams going inside for basketball and the indoor classes taking to the football field.

By next Tuesday, December 1, he added, class champions will be decided in both sports, and from that date until December 12 the different classes that meet at the same hours will play-off until a champion for that hour is decided. Then, sometime in mid-January, either on the 13 or the 20, Hillsman said, inter-class playoffs will be held until a school champion is decided.

Greatest Thrill Is First Win

The question: What is the greatest thrill for a young man who once scored 41 points in a single high school game, and followed that with a 30 plus point outburst as a college freshman?

The rather unusual answer: The first baseball game that the young man pitched, and won.

The young man: Darol Smith, a physical education major at the college who last year made his grades and played his basketball at the University of San Francisco.

The amiable young athlete was at first reluctant to discuss his athletic feats, but when he was finally coaxed into it, he had plenty of feats to discuss.

The 6-2, 160 pound, Smith first became well-known to the general public in 1951, when, playing for the Lincoln High School 130 pound team, he poured through 41 points in one game. His amazing scoring performance earned him the league scoring title and a place on the All-City team.

That would seem like thrill enough for anyone, but, as previously mentioned, Smith's top moment came as a horsehider.

"Lincoln hadn't beaten Mission in 12 years," the rangy blond explains, "and in the first game I ever pitched, I was lucky enough to beat them."

From Lincoln, Smith went on to U.S.F. He won a starting role with the Don cagers and was consistently dangerous all year. Unhappily for City College, that one year at U.S.F. makes him ineligible for the Ram squad this year.

After completing college, he plans to make a career of coaching, and he should be a success at it if past performances mean anything.

Gridders Nominate Season Co-Captains

Halfback Pat Fracisco and Guard John Roy, two of the three lettermen on the football team, were elected by a vote of the entire squad as the seasonal co-captains.

After having picked a different set of co-captains for seven contests, the players voted unanimously to let the veteran pair lead the remaining and final two games.

Cagers Encounter Marines, USF In Season Openers

By Gail Moss

A freshman-laden City College basketball team opens a slightly confused schedule next week when they meet the San Francisco Marines on Tuesday, December 1, and the University of San Francisco fresh team on Friday, the 4th, both games to be held in the men's gymnasium of the college at 3:30 p.m.

The schedule originally called for the Rams to meet USF on December 1 and East Contra Costa College on December 4, but the withdrawal of East Contra Costa from the schedule and a prior game commitment by USF forced the change of dates.

The Ram cagers, boasting only two returnees from last year's first division team, but a host of San Francisco high school All-City talent, could prove to be strong in the Big Seven Conference this year. Warren Baxter and Jerry Stack, the veterans, and freshmen Mike Leaskon, All Northern California guard from Lowell High School; center Theopolis Dunn, guard Jim Stephens; guard Jack Diggins, and several other top-notch candidates will make the City College hoopsters a threat to any club.

Coach Ralph Hillsman is well satisfied with the squad as a whole, despite a lack of height, and although he has not seen the other teams in the league, he is optimistic about his team's chances.

"We have a fast club this year," Hillsman said, "and we hope to offset that lack of height with speed. If the squad jells, we might finish up there in the first division."

In the San Francisco Marines, their first opponent, the Rams will face a well-balanced club stocked with several outstanding ex-high school players and a few with college experience. The Leathernecks play a rugged schedule that includes service teams and the San Francisco YMI and Olympic Club, and they should provide the home team with stiff competition.

U.S.F.'s Little Dons, under the guidance of Coach Ross Guidice, should also put the City College quintet to a real test. The outstanding Don yearlings of last season, including highly-touted center Bill Russell, are of course gone, but this year's version, sparked by All-City guard Eugene Brown, Bob Brachetta and Leo LaRocca, could prove just as potent.

RAMBLINGS

Three Rams Picked For All-Conference

By Al Palacio

AT the request of readers and players alike, we decided to pick an all-Big Seven Conference team which would meet with almost everyone's approval.

We say "almost" because it is impossible to please every individual; especially those who pretend to be unerring prognosticators, anyway. In our opinion, there is no one person qualified to pick an all-star team of any kind and do a justifiable job. But they are kind of fun to toy around with and the players themselves always look forward to it at season's end.

For what it is worth, here is our unofficial selection for the 1953 all-conference eleven:

End, Charley Green, West Contra Costa.

End, George Slender, Santa Rosa.

Tackle, Jerry Landi, San Francisco.

Tackle, Dick Ralph, Modesto.

Guard, John Roy, San Francisco.

Guard, William Leaher, Sacramento.

Center, Jim Evans, Stockton.

Quarterback, Ray Arata, San Francisco.

Halfback, Stan Beasley, Modesto.

Halfback, Wilhur Gary, West Contra Costa.

Fullback, Doug Peters, West Contra Costa.

Don't be alarmed because City College nailed down three berths. If it was up to Line Coach Roy Burkhead, the entire front wall would be made up of Rams. Listen to his argument:

"Center Earl Smith is easily the best pivotman in the circuit and Roy and Pete Hontalas can't be beat at their guard slots. Also, Landi and Jerry James form a terrific combination at the tackles. I just refuse to sell any of these kids short."

Someone, we're sure, is going to inquire as to why Fullback Don Brand didn't get nominated. Well, the answer is simply that the Rams' top ground gainer had the misfortune of bucking Peters. That was a tough break, but Brand did get our vote for the second team starting backfield.

To get back to our selections, those nominees have the makings of about as good an all-star team as can be put together in our opinion, of course.

PLAYERS' QUALITIES

Both ends are equally adept on offense and defense, with their pass-snagging ability being exceptional. Green is also a fine point-after-touchdown kicker.

Landi and Ralph are big, fast, and rugged. Defensively, the talented pair has displayed a touch brand of play.

Speed and mobility keynote outstanding guards and that's exactly what Roy and Leaher have plenty of. Roy especially is a hard worker.

Evans was almost nosed out by Earl Smith at center, but we felt that the Stocktonite had the nod on the offense. This was the only choice on which we reconsidered as both candidates are so evenly matched.

The backfield has speed and more speed with Gary and Beasley at the halves while the power is supplied by Peters. Quarterback Arata, in our estimation, has improved ninety-nine per cent from the opening game with Menlo and that influenced us considerably.

Choir Completes Plans For Annual Christmas Concert

Plans for the college's nineteenth annual Christmas concert neared completion last week, when Richard Vine, choir director, announced the names of committees, the general program outline, and a preliminary off-campus program.

The concert will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, December 10, in the campus auditorium.

Officers of the choir are heading committees, Vine said, with Glenn Wescott, choir manager, acting as general coordinator; Joyce Cody in charge of decorations, Virginia Llanes directing invitations, Fleman Hardy assisting her.

The program includes the traditional processional by the choir, a brass ensemble, selections by the Men's Glee Club, and tableaux by students in the drama department.

The program is to close with the choir, glee club, and audience singing Silent Night.

The choir will give a brief version of the program at the Portalhurst Church Wednesday, December 2, Vine added, and the group has scheduled a Christmas party at the Sigmund Stern club house Wednesday, December 9, with Patricia Quick, choir member, in charge of the event.

Horticulturists In Flower Show

The college horticulture department is currently preparing for participation in the annual Oakland Flower Show, John Chamberlien, student chairman of the exhibit committee, announced yesterday.

Aiding Chamberlin in the preparation of the outdoor garden exhibit are Don McMichael and horticulture students.

Last year City College took a first prize at the show, sustaining a record established in 1948.

Also on the fall program for the horticulture department is a Christmas party made possible by the success of the paper drive. Students McMichael and Bob Anderson donated their time and trucks to pick up the two tons of paper that were collected.

Further contributing to this department's social fund, Chamberlien said, is the sale of the Horticulture Illustrated Pronouncing Dictionary which sells for 25 cents and can be purchased by those interested at the Horticulture building.

Advanced H&R Students Form Catering Team

Four advanced students in the Hotel and Restaurant Society here have joined together this semester to form a catering team, M. H. Friedrichsen, society president, announced last week.

The catering service is available to all campus clubs, organizations, and gatherings, but is limited to groups numbering twenty or more. Dinners and banquets can be arranged with sufficient advanced notice, Friedrichsen added.

The team is composed of Don Darling, manager; Frank Wefel, accountant; Julian Amador, secretary and purchaser; M. H. Friedrichsen, contact and publicity.

Groups wishing detailed information should contact Don Darling at the Hotel and Restaurant Department office.

Cloud Hall, New College Building, Opens Next March

By Diana Phillips

Cloud Hall, the new edifice behind the main building here at the college, is scheduled to open for classes sometime next March, President Louis G. Conlan announced last week.

The new building, which was designed by architect Milton Pfluger and is being constructed by Cahill Brothers, will be the new site of the Business department and engineering, drafting, and architectural departments, along with thirty classrooms. The special police training laboratory will also be located there, President Conlan stated.

The top floor of the building is to house the college library. Ample storage space has been provided, he added, and when Cloud Hall takes over much of the burden of the main building, storage space will be provided there also.

Buildings 1 and 2 on the west campus are to be used after the new building is completed until student activities can be housed in the proposed Student Union building, President Conlan said.

Located in the Student Union building will be the fountain, cafeteria, hotel and restaurant department, and the Ramporium, the student bookstore.

The parking lot will be continued to be used until the city takes over the west campus, President Conlan said. After that, he added, the parking problem remains to be solved.

It was the proposed idea to utilize the space north of the main building, the site of the present housing project, Hurley Village, but this was deemed impractical, he declared.

Dedicatory ceremonies for the building, which was named in honor of Dr. A. J. Cloud, President Emeritus of the college, are tentatively set for sometime in March, around the time that classes are begun, the president said. He added that the college hoped to receive favorable publicity through the ceremonies.

Landscaping that is now going ahead will be completed by the time classes are open, President Conlan emphasized, and the space between the main building and Cloud Hall is to be a place of relaxation for students. Benches are to be provided here.

Activities Of The Alumni Ass'n Are Now In Sixth Year

The Alumni Association was inaugurated five years ago under the auspices of Joseph Amori, Trev Burrow, Edward Frediani, and Donald Jensen, according to Harry Roebling, alumni liaison officer at the college.

Membership in the association is open to anyone who has attended the college for one or more semesters, and who left in good standing, with not less than 15 units of credit.

The association offers many advantages to new members, Roebling noted, among them placement service, assistance and counsel, contacts and activities. Lifetime membership is $10. Other memberships in the association are active, $3 dues and subscriber, $5 dues.

Activities within the association are headed by the Executive Committee, of which Frediani is chairman, and Gloria Dunn, secretary. Contact between the association and the Student Council is maintained by liaison officer, Roebling, to whom applications for alumni membership should be sent at the college placement office.

A meeting of the association was held on Thursday, November 19, in the offices of Chairman Frediani, at 608 Post Street, for the purpose of discussing the future plans of the organization.

Foreign Students Organize New Campus Society

Foreign students from 43 different countries, plus American students recently formed an organized group called the International Relations Organization, whose co-sponsors are Joseph Jacobsen, foreign student adviser, and Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator, division of instruction here.

This organization now existing on the college campus is open to every interested student without any restrictions and has no barriers preventing students from membership.

Unlike any other campus organization, the International Relations Organization has a dual purpose. First, to afford an opportunity to students from different parts of the world to form acquaintances, associate more freely and exchange ideas. Second, to assist them in adjusting to their new environment, which in this case is the college.

To carry out the first function, students from different countries, who are willing, will be requested to describe their homeland culture.

In regard to the second function, adjustment to the new environment, students will be assisted during college registration, and helped with immigration affairs.

The number of students and the countries from which they have come, are as follows:

Argentina, 1; Bolivia, 1; Bulgaria, 1; Canada, 6; China, 12; Colombia, 2; Cyprus, 1; Dutch Guiana, 1; Egypt, 1; San Salvador, 19; England, 2; Fiji Islands, 3; Germany, 6; Greece, 6; Guatemala, 7; Hong Kong, 7; Iceland, 1; India, 2; Iran, 29; Iraq, 1; Israel, 1; Italy, 2; Japan, 12; Jordan, 2; Korea, 2; Malta, 3; Mexico, 6; Nicaragua, 22; Nigeria, 2; Norway, 2; Pakistan, 2; Panama, 7; Peru, 8; Philippines, 33; Poland, 1; Portugal, 1; South Africa, 1; Durban, 3; United Kingdom, 2; Venezuela, 2; Yugoslavia, 1; stateless, 12.

Actions Louder Than Words— Mascot Benched

By Gail Moss

Despite wide-spread speculation that he would be in the starting backfield last Friday when City College met Modesto, the college's new masco', a merino ram tentatively called Sammy, saw no action against the Pirates.

The rumor that he would play apparently started after someone saw Sam's special trainer, Wray Jacobs, sneaking the animal into a sporting goods company to be fitted with a new uniform. This, plus the fact that the ram has gained ten pounds, led observers to believe that the hard-hitting freshman might see action in the final game of the season.

Although Coach Grover Klemmer and his assistants refuse to comment, rival coaches and scouts have noted that Sammy has been at all of the college's games since he first arrived on campus, probably in order to acquaint himself with the City College system of play.

Too, Jacobs has been working feverishly to get the ram-paging back into shape. The output of $3 a week for a special diet has brought results, for after a summer of easy living, the ram is finally beginning to round into condition.

Gridiron experts believe that the ram was kept out this season for several reasons. By not participating this year, Sam has saved his eligibility for 1954. Too, the holding out of the dangerous backfield man will keep rival coaches in the dark as to his ability.

As it is, the mentors of other Big Seven Conference teams have been wracking their brains and getting new ulcers trying to figure out a defense against Sam. No one yet knows, however, whether Sammy will confine his duties to ball-carrying. He is known as a triple-threat, and it is generally believed that he will pass and kick in addition to running.

Sam's most valuable contribution to the club this season has been his team leadership. Although he didn't suit up, his mere presence on the bench rallied the team to a successful finish of an originally dismal season. Next year, in uniform, Sam should be a definite threat to any club, and he is almost a cinch for all-conference.

Card Sales Pass Goal

Associated Student card sales have now surpassed the second goal of $9,000 set by the finance committee by $500, according to Stan Shalit, sales chairman. He also urged all card holders to use their Associated Student card discounts to the fullest advantage.

Associated Student members are reminded by Shalit that they will be allowed admission without cost to the City College basketball games.

Probation Status Rule Given On Attendance

Probation status is put on all students who have been absent from any class as many times as the class has met during a week, Gertrude Somerville, acting registrar, stated last week.

Regular attendance is required in all classes, she pointed out, and according to college regulations, they do not have to be consecutive.

While on probation, the regulations provide, if one more absence is recorded a student is disqualified and a final grade of "F" is given for the course, unless appeal is made and approved by the Dean of Men.

Graduates Find It Is A Small World At Recent Reunion

Photo, Journalism, Hotel Alumni Meet On Jobs

The small world cliche was quite opropos recently when members of the college alumni held an informal reunion in Marin County. Three departments of the college—photography, hotel and restaurant, journalism, were represented. Herb Levy, managing editor of the Mill Valley Record, assigned reporter-photographer Ken Molino to cover a Marin lawn party. Arriving at the affair, armed with his trusty brownie, Molino found Luke Guzic catering.

Levy was Editor of The Guardsmon in 1948 and Molino was Assistant Managing Editor last semester. While attending the college in 1952, Guzic spent many hours in the hotel and restaurant division. All three were caught performing in the line of duty. Molino (far left) and Levy are shown at work in the office of the Record. The shot of Guzic in action was taken by Molino as he served guests at the gathering across the Bay.—(Mill Valley Record photos.)

Campus Political Parties Meet This Week To Nominate Their Candidates For Spring Elections

Two political parties on campus, the IFC-ISC and the USA, will hold conventions this week to nominate candidates for the Spring elections, according to the respective presidents of the organizations, Bill Boldenweck and Ed Hjerpe.

Members of the IFC-ISC party will convene tomorrow in the student lounge here at 3 p.m. The convention will follow the same procedure observed by the national political parties, Boldenweck noted. Jim Brownfield and George Effenberger have been appointed parliamentarians. The convention will be jointly presided over by Boldenweck and Millie Pinkus, ISC president.

The IFC-ISC Party represents all the fraternities and sororities on campus. Each organization will send five delegates to the convention, three of whom will have the right of franchise. Nominations will be made by these delegates. No limit has been placed on the number of candidates who may run for each office, Boldenweck added.

Following the close of nominations for each office, each candidate will make a speech stating his qualifications. The delegates then vote.

The auditorium will be the site for the USA convention on Friday, December 11, at 3:30 p.m., Hjerpe stated. Following the custom of the organization, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, will be guest speaker.

Assisting Hjerpe, who is to preside over the meeting, will be the other USA officers, Bob Moore, vice-president; Hal Jackson, secretary-treasurer; and two of the earliest members of the organization which was founded in Fall '51, Wray Jacobs and Stan Shalit.

All students interested in student government are urged by Hjerpe to attend the convention. Nominations may be made from the floor by any student.

Election Petitions Due December 29

Deadline for petitions and registration fees for candidates for Associated Student offices was set recently for Tuesday, December 29, by the college AS election committee, according to Larry Elizarde, election commissioner.

Candidates may turn their petitions, together with the registration fee of $1.50, into the bank, Room 188, main building, first floor; or to Ramporium, West Campus, Building 12, Elizarde said.

Candidates must have 30 students acting as sponsors, sign these petitions. Sponsors must write in their AS card number after their signature, and they may sign more than one candidate's petition.

Petitions must be approved by the Registrar, the candidates's counselor, Dean of Men or Women, Assistant Dean of Student Activities and the Associated Student Election Commissioner.

Conlan Wishes All Happy Holiday

Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, today extended to faculty and students here his best wishes for an enjoyable Christmas vacation and wished all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

In extending the seasonal greetings Conlan added that he is looking forward to a most successful college year in 1954.

Conlan expressed belief that the new year would bring with it success at City College of San Francisco from the point of view of academic achievement and development of student activities.

"I am looking forward to seeing our next building under construction during the coming year and also to moving into the building which is now nearing completion," Conlan commented.

Panorama Of Holiday Spirit Shown Friday

Holiday Assignment, college hour film for this Friday, in Room 136 of the main building, is a panorama of western holiday spirit.

Scenes from Yosemite, Bryce and Grand Canyon National Parks, topped off by the colorful Rosebowl procession, are but a few of the outstanding features in the candid tour, according to Madison Delvin, Audio Visual-Aid instructor here.

The film will be shown at 10:40 and 11:30 a.m., and at 12:20 p.m.

Club meetings will also be held during college hour Friday.

Mistletoe Mingle Slated This Friday At Mark Hopkins

Mistletoe Mingle, traditional holiday dance presented annually by Beta Tau Fraternity, highlights the Christmas season this Friday, December 11, from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight in the Golden Empire Room of the Hotel Mark Hopkins, Dave Hanak, fraternity president, said recently.

The semi-formal dance will feature the music of Charley Stern and his orchestra. Admission price is $3 per couple, and tickets may be purchased this week at the bank in the main building, in the Associated Student office, or from any Beta Tau Fraternity member.

Preparing for the social event are Beta Tau officers, Hanak, Ron Frazier, vice-president; Lou Sartor, treasurer. In charge of publicity are Jim Glasson, Charles Smock, Dave Moss and Deane Cyr.

Social committee members working on posters are Flint Morrison, Earl Cross, Oscar Vogel, Dave Ridenour, Brad Owens and Emile Bourdet. Others managing ticket sales are Phil Gaal, Bob Arago, Rich Martinez, Chuck Risby, Bill Mullen, Al Camps and Mark Leibovitch.

As an added attraction at the dance, Hanak stated, mistletoe will be scattered about the room.

He added that tickets for the dance should be purchased early in order to insure an evening of fun and frolic for everyone who plans to attend.

Dougherty Award Winner Named Here Next Week

The name of the sorority winning the Margaret Dougherty Award for scholarship will be announced here next week, according to Mary Golding, dean of women.

Purpose of the award, Miss Golding explained, is to encourage good scholarship among sorority members. The award, given this semester for the first time, was named in honor of Margaret Dougherty, formerly dean of women at City College for 15 years. Miss Dougherty retired last year.

It consists of a plaque and a cup, and was originated by the Intersorority Council in an effort to promote scholarships. Dean Golding said. The council is made up of the presidents of all campus sororities. They include Millie Pineus, Alpha Lambda Chi; Marilee Scholl, Delta Psi; Jane Zelinsky, Kappa Phi; Barbara Harris, Phi Beta Rho; Alberta Cordini, Theta Tau and Connie Coleman, Zeta Chi.

Money to finance the trophies was obtained by the sororities, whose members assessed themselves up to four dollars each. The cup, which is a permanent award, will be purchased each semester.

Christmas Vacation December 14-28

Christmas vacation will begin here Monday, December 14 and continue until instruction is resumed on Monday, December 28.

December 14 was originally scheduled in the college catalog as an instruction day but, because faculty Business-Education Day (a student holiday), slated for November 6, was cancelled, an extra day was added to the vacation.

The holidays will interrupt publication of The Guardsman until January 6, 1954, when the next issue will be distributed.

Final publication dates for the paper in the Fall semester are January 15 and January 20.

Four Groups Combine Talents In Nineteenth Annual Program; Curtain Time At 8 In Auditorium

By Yvonne Felbelman

A nineteen-year old college tradition will be continued tonight at 8 p.m., in the college auditorium, when approximately 100 students combine their efforts and talents in presenting the annual Christmas concert.

Soloists featured in the production are William Parker, Jesse Daggs, Barbara Senegal, Charlotte Mclaughlin, Emma Hilliard, Flemen Hardy, Raymond Murillo, Loretta Warehot, Ilona Baker and Dorothy Collins, who will also portray Mary in the tableaux.

Vacation Work Trend In Hiring Shows Decrease

Trends in hiring for Christmas work this year have disappointingly decreased, Joseph Amori, job placement director here, declared last week.

The reason for this, he pointed out, is that employers are expecting more work from their employees; they offer more supervision and attempt to hire the best selection of workers. This year, employers are doing more firing for infractions of rules and regulations.

In addition to this, Amori continued, workers will be dismissed as soon as the buying decreases in the stores. Last year, workers were "carried along" until December 24, but that will not be so this year. With these reasons, more persons are registered at the college Personnel Placement Service this year as jobs are difficult to obtain.

Requests for Christmas workers will continue to come in throughout the entire vacation period, so students who have not already been placed should register at the Placement Office, Building 2, with Director Amori.

Railroads, Railway Express agencies, specialty shops, nurseries, floral shops and confectionery firms have not commenced hiring as yet; they hire as they need workers, which means as late as December 15 to December 20, Amori said.

However, he added that the placement office will be open here throughout the vacation to help students desiring work.

'Sincere Best Wishes'—Effenberger

The following is Associated Student President George Effenberger's holiday greeting voiced here recently. Effenberger said:

"I wish to extend to all the students and faculty of City College of San Francisco, my warmest and most sincere best wishes for the Holiday Season.

"The social events planned for you are especially worthy of your attention and participation. These activities, I am sure, you will enjoy in keeping with the spirit and festivities which are part of the holiday atmosphere.

"The season being one of thanksgiving and good-fellowship, as well as rejoicing and celebrating, I would like to take this opportunity to personally thank the members of the Associated Students for their wonderful cooperation to date this semester."

Christmas Spirit In The Air— What Should The Student Give?

CHRISTMAS is once more in the air and its spirit of giving and receiving, exchanging gifts, is steadily advancing into the uppermost chambers of thought.

Just what do students, as students, give and receive, just what presents do they exchange?

A student receives an education, the combined learning of millions of men and women who, for thousands of years have striven to gain knowledge and, gaining that knowledge, have put it down in black and white to give each generation of students greater understanding of the world around them.

—Does the student realize the vastness and importance of this "gift of knowledge"? Surely he must, and most assuredly he realizes an urge to show acknowledgement of the gift and in true Christmas spirit offer a gift in exchange.

What, then, should the student, in receipt of this "present," give in "exchange"?

The answer is simple and one which would have been more deeply felt by the givers of the knowledge than any other "gift":

"Give the mind" to those donors and treat their gift as any other material present would be treated.

"Open it"; open the mind and let the "present's" thought content flow into self-consciousness.

"Examine it"; after taking it into the mind go over this knowledge and give it serious thought; decide, by study, on its wisdom or lack of wisdom.

"Use it"; whatever is accepted by the individual student as wise thought he should use in building further self-wisdom or in building a happier life, for which it was meant.

As with some material gifts the student may want to take back the "present," as in exchange for new or wiser knowledge. The return of concrete gifts is proper in this society and in parallelism so is exchange of the "present of knowledge" for another.

This "gift of knowledge" was given in a real and sincere spirit, a spirit found among all people at this season of giving and receiving. It should be accepted in such a "Christmas spirit."

It is the greatest of all gifts and deserves acknowledgement.

To Everyone — A Merry Christmas

SINCE this is our last publication date before Christmas vacation we of The Guardsman wish to take this time to wish everyone at the college a warm and hearty Merry Christmas and a happy holiday.

May Santa Claus be good to you all.

Lights, Seats, Sadler's Wells— A Ballet Ring About The Cosmos

By Harold Painter

THE Sadler's Wells Ballet troupe is appearing in San Francisco; it's going to be a short run and seats are going to be hard to obtain if reservations are not made now.

If the troupe is up to past performances it promises to be good; the group is good in interpretation as well as technique, and seldom fails to win fresh acclaim with each performance.

It is a shame that the ballet does not have wider appeal. Perhaps the general public has been conditioned to thinking ballet is somehow associated with the circus, lunacy, or idle children.

A soloist is sure to be a balletic success if he can dance without looking as though he were being chased through a field of pumpkins; few can. Most solos are a compromise of rime and spurt; they land with a thump and return to the air in a fixed state of spread that is good form only on trampoline.

Most solos turn out to be duds. And the hat in the sidewalk who uses the ballet theater as something to pass while drifting with the mob has not bought a ticket because he has seen too many solos, probably at the high school variety show; he'll not pay to see what he thinks is so many soloists enjoined in rhythmic chaos. He misses enjoying a seat that is not a seat because well performed ballet will swoop him out of it.

When the ballet developed from pretty courtroom curtseys into theatrical acrobatics, the poet, who seems to abhor a vacuum in anything, found a new medium clapped into existence by dazzled spectators.

Until then the ballet was little more than music and motion, much the same as Mozart's musical quilts are distinguished ensembles, perfect harmonies joined in hand in ring-around-the-rosy. Now it's all-fall-down and ring about the cosmos, the poets dancing trumpet, the new lyric . . . Lights, Seats, Sadler's Wells.

San Jose State Aids Transfer Students

A few interim classes will start Monday, February 8, 1954, at San Jose State College for those students who wish to transfer after the close of the current semester, Viola Palmer, admissions officer at San Jose State College, stated recently in a letter to F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare here.

The registration date is Friday, February 5, 1954.

San Jose State College, which runs on a quarterly basis, plans to offer sufficient work to constitute a full-time program.

Further information regarding courses, applications and registration will be available at a later date.

Larry Elizarde Is Man Of Experience

Activity Has Marked His College Career

A member of the Associated Student Election Committee and Club Activity Board representative plus a long list of other past positions—it is no wonder Larry Elizarde is one of the busiest men in the student activity department.

His mastery of organization has not only been felt here at the college but from the past schools he has attended. One of the outstanding past records occurred when he and his Lowell High School committee set out to raise a little money for the school by holding a paper drive.

Elizarde had hopes of gaining considerable money, around a hundred dollars, but little did he dream at the time that he, through his organization broke the city record by raising a thousand dollars.

At the college he was a member of last year's Associated Student Card

Organization—Skill Of Election Commissioner

Sales committee which broke the campus sales record.

Seattle born, Elizarde came to San Francisco in 1945 where he attended Roosevelt Junior High School, was a graduate of Lowell High, has traveled to France in 1947 as a delegate to the Boy Scout International World Jamboree where he was introduced to boy scouts from all over the world and also had a spin at glider flying, a sport much different from the flying he does as a hobby.

Not outstanding in holding student office positions but outstanding in his work as an organizer, this drive has led Elizarde to an interesting career of ability and initiative which is recognized by all those around him. The students of the college can congratulate Larry Elizarde for his work that is never done.

Gas Mask Anyone?

Second 'Old Faithful' Now On West Campus

By Bev Swope

"Where's the airwick?", or "Who threw away his chemistry experiment?" are only a few of the comments flying loud and fast around the west campus lately as the college has turned itself into a second Yellowstone National Park.

Geysers of hot steam and mud have been both gushing and trickling from various underground pipes near west campus buildings. As much as 85 pounds of pressure scattered hot mud near Building 13.

Outside of Building 4 a veritable geyser has developed. Apparently the steam does not annoy a few students who were seen using this facility for separating glued papers.

According to P. L. Schlesenger, head custodian here, broken steam-pipes are the cause of the trouble. Aided by the dampness of the soil, a chemical reaction was set up between the acid in the clay and the outer covering of the pipes, causing the outer layers to erode and the steam to escape.

Last Wednesday work was started on the underground pipes outside of Building 4. Workmen were busy digging up the soil in order to repair the pipes.

Because of the efficiency of the janitorial staff, the college has not felt any harmful effects from the broken pipes. All the west campus classrooms are well heated as usual. The reason is that the pipes were quickly moved from underground to above the walkways, a temporary measure since the west campus classrooms will probably not be in use too much longer.

Lose Something? Try Searching For It In Building 2

Students who can't find time to visit the museums or other exhibits around town might find the lost and found department in Building 2 here a good substitute.

Highlights of the displays are one purple shoe, one social security card, a black leotard with ballet slippers (size 6½) to match, ten gloves of assorted colors and styles (minus mates), thirteen and one-half fountain pens, a pair of men's greasy white trousers, a man's greasy white tee shirt, thirty-three text books, and a Bible. Among these and many other items filed away in the lost and found, almost every student here can find something to his liking.

Concerning the lost books, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, has one comment to make. "Please," goes his plea, "put some sort of identifying mark in your text books."

Students finding lost articles should turn them in to the telephone operator in the main building or to the offices of either the dean of men or the dean of women in Building 2. Students wishing to redeem lost articles should go to the offices of the deans.

Battleships of the U. S. Navy are named after states; cruisers after cities; and destroyers after deceased Navy and Marine corps officers, former Secretaries of the Navy, and Congressmen prominent in naval affairs.

• Good Work

Editor, The Guardsman:

Initiative and radium are a great deal alike. They are both exceedingly rare, yet a mere drop of either will rock the World.

Initiative is the ability to begin something. To begin it, without being told by anyone else. To start the job, entirely on your own responsibility without asking anyone else to share the hazards with you. If you have initiative, you are not afraid to let others steal the fruits of your work if it is successful; but, principally, you are not afraid to take the entire blame for it, if it fails.

Such initiative has been and is being shown by the members of AS election committee this semester.

I find that nobody with initiative ever embarrasses himself. Try as you may, you can't think of anyone who ever made a fool of himself by starting the ball rolling. The man with initiative can fall and does fall, but failure doesn't stop him because his initiative lifts him up after the fall and helps him win on the next attempt.

Thus the magic force of initiative is praised not only here at the college but everywhere. Organizations laud it. I believe that the "Angels whoop it up" when they see a lone man step out of the beaten path to do something he isn't supposed to do, doesn't have to do, wasn't told to do. He does it

Snake Dance Can Be Quite Costly At Stevens Institute Of Technology

Stevens Institute of Technology, N. J., has an old tradition which seems to cost students more money each year. It's called the Snake Dance, and this year it cost about $175 in damage bills.

The damages: Two hats stolen; two chairs and some shuffleboard weights missing from a local tavern; one door wrecked in the Belvedere Hotel and Bar, Hoboken; four chairs smashed and decorations wrecked in the same establishment; one campus sign stolen.

All this happened last January, but the Interfraternity Council is still wondering how to pay off. (The Snake Dance is a fraternity tradition.)

PRE-GAME CEREMONY: The basketball game between Kansas and Kansas State (at Kansas State) was scheduled for 8 p.m., but students began lining up at the gate around noon.

They entertained themselves by reading, doing homework or playing cards.

GIRLS AT PRINCETON? Princeton officials had their values jolted when they received a letter from a midwestern girl (addressed to the Dean of Women):

"I am sincerely thinking about attending your university and would like some information in regards to tuition, board, books, and a part-time job if possible.

"Some information on the size of the school and the campus and the situation of the dorm and sorority houses along with any other information would be desired."

Since Princeton had no dean of women, Assistant Dean of the College, Hamilton Cottler, did the honors. He told her it would be useless to send the information she requested, Princeton does not admit women students.

ENGLAND: Three girls from Reading, England, now studying in France, sent letters of protest to the boys back at Reading university for trying to import French girls as dates.

Some Reading men had invited three "particularly beautiful" girls from the Paris Sorbonne. Following the letters of protest, the English girls paraded in Bikini bathing suits to show that not all the beauty was in France.

Anyway, the Paris girls refused the Reading invitation.

INDIA: Compulsory military training for all college and high school students in India was discussed without conclusion in the House of People in New Delhi. Speakers generally supported the scheme and said it would make young people more disciplined.

THE GOAL?: Definition of "college," according to the Michigan State Normal News:

"Institutions which sometimes lower entrance requirements with an end in view — not to mention promising tackles and backs."

Advances In U.S. TV Impress Foreign Visitor

By Shirley Murphy

GERD WULFF, news editor and political commentator of Radio Bremen, was favorably impressed by the technical development of American television.

Herr Wulff's trip to the United States was sponsored by the State Department and while here, he and the other seven in his party, studied all phases of the American way of life, each man investigating the phase of industry, politics, government, or economics in which he was best qualified.

While at the college Herr Wulff spoke to the survey of broadcasting class, taught by Henry Leff, explaining the operation of German radio. He agreed with many American T. V. addicts in their opinion of the lengthy commercials—he was not impressed.

It's A Girl

The increase in the number of cigar smokers on campus last week need not cause cigarette manufacturers any alarm. The stogies so much in evidence were due to the paternal generosity of Louis Batmale, dean of student activities, who announced the birth of his fifth child. Her name is Jacqueline.

Old Rams Never Die

A "Khaki Ram Kluh" has been formed by three loyal PFC's stationed at Fort Lewis, Washington. The rooters are Keith Gardner, Bill Thomas and Doug Hayward, all of whom were formerly students at the college and are now in the employ of the Army. They meet spasmodically and discuss the good old days.

All-Big 7 Conference Linemen

THE FIVE RAM FOOTBALL players who won All-Big Seven Conference honors this season are shown above. Tackle Gerald Jomes is at far left with tackle Jerry Landi next to him.

In the center are Ram seasonal co-captains Pat Fracisco and John Roy, wearing City College's recently purchased grid uniforms. Roy, two-year Ram veteran, earned a guard slot on the all-star squad.

James, a first year man with the Rams, was selected on the All Northern California High School club last season for his play with Polytechnic High School of San Francisco.

Landi, also a Frosh, is a product of Sacred Heart (S.F.) where he earned all-city honors for his high school performances.

Roy was mentioned prominently in last year's All-League selections.

All-Big 7 Conference Backs

THE OTHER TWO City College selections are fullback Don Brand (above, second from right) and quarterback Ray Arata (far right).

In placing five men on the team City College placed second in the number of players selected to West Contra Costa, Big Seven Champions this season. The league winners placed six men on the squad.

Modesto and Stockton each had five all-conference players, while Santa Rosa and Sacramento each had four selections. San Mateo gained two positions on the team.

The Ram selections verified Coach Graver Klemmer's prediction that these five would garner all league honors.

Klemmer offered congratulations to these outstanding players, who fully deserved the honor of being chosen to the team.—Photos by Denevi.

Ram Hoopsters Face Hamilton Air Base Tonight

After a successful season opener on their home court, the Ram basketball team takes to the road this evening to meet Hamilton Air Force Base there at 8 p.m. Several other practice games, including an abbreviated Visalia Invitational Tourney, are on the bill for the Christmas Holidays.

Tonight's contest should provide the fans with some interesting basketball, for the Hamiltonians have a well-balanced squad of ex-high school and college players, and are decidedly stronger than the Marine team that the Rams defeated last week.

The Visalia Tourney, normally one of the highlights of the season, has been cut to one game this year, because of scheduling difficulties. Visalia Junior College will host this college on Saturday, December 12, at 8 p.m. The Rams were Tourney champions last year.

A match with Menlo Junior College follows the Visalia engagement, with the Oaks meeting the Rams on the City College court next Tuesday, December 15, at 3:30 p.m. Following the Menlo game, the Rams move to Berkeley to meet the always-powerful University of California "Blues." The Blues are the California junior varsity, and are usually a powerful and well-balanced outfit. This year might not be an exception.

With two weeks off for Christmas vacation, the Ram hoopsters again become hosts as they meet Marin and Napa on the home court on successive afternoons, Marin on the 30 and Napa on the 31. Both games start at 3:30 p.m.

The Rams have shown brightly in their practice sessions and their games to date. In their encounter with the San Francisco Marines, they unveiled potent all-around scoring ability, with three men hitting over ten points, and a flexible and effective defense.

Center Theopolis Dunn, on the basis of his practice sessions and his team-topping performance in the season's curtain raiser, appears to have the pivot post all to himself.

Jerry Stack and Warren Baxter lead the race for the forward positions, and Mike Leaskou, Al Hoider, Jim Stephens and Jack Diggins are all battling for the guard slots. Stack and Baxter are the only returnees from last year's squad.

Don Frosh Team Edges Ram Quintet, 56-55

Only two free throws in the last minute by University of San Francisco Freshman guard Bud Gorzek kept the Ram basketballers from opening the season with a two game sweep last week.

Gorzek's charity tosses won for the Dons, 56-55, last Friday night, after the Rams had romped over a woefully inept San Francisco Marines team, 80-36, last Tuesday afternoon. Both games were played on City College's home court.

The Rams apparently had the U.S.F. yearlings beaten, as they took a lead in the second quarter that held until Gorzek's points decided the issue.

Final Football Stats; Brand Tops In Rushing

RAMBLINGS

By Al Polacio

FROM rags to riches.

That seems to have been the story of the City College football team this season.

Failing to dent the win column during the first four contests, the Rams, coached by Grover Klemmer, suddenly caught fire and proceeded to take the measure of four of the remaining five opponents. The belated surge earned them second place in the Big Seven Conference with four wins, one tie, and one loss.

The team's sterling comeback performance prompted Klemmer to remark, "It is the greatest 'never-say-die' squad I have ever coached. Their spirit and determination were upheld throughout the campaign."

Opening the season on September 26 against Menlo's Oaks, the inexperienced Rams fumbled and penalized their way into defeat, 9 to 6.

The conference opener with Santa Rosa on October 1 found City College tacking up a 13 to 6 lead in the third quarter only to allow the Beareubs to come from behind and end up with a 13-all tie.

In the first road game, the Rams were ground under by a bolting West Contra Costa Comet, 39 to 13, on October 10 at Richmond.

Don Brand was introduced as a fullback on October 16 in the encounter with Los Angeles and the former end bowed in with a bang. He tallied two touchdowns to spearhead City College's 19 to 19 standoff with the Cubs.

Traditional rival San Mateo became the Rams' first victim on October 24 at Redwood City, 32 to 13. Brand again proved instrumental as he chalked up three scores to share credit with a head-up defense.

Heavily-favored East Contra Costa was forced to garner four touchdowns in the last ten minutes before tucking away a 30 to 13 win on October 31 in a tilt played at Martinez.

The Rams finished their road jaunt on November 6 at Sacramento by edging the Panthers on the strength of Jerry James' conversion, 19 to 18.

With third place and greener pastures in the offing, Klemmer's eleven banked on a stubborn defensive line and a fine passing performance by Quarterback Ray Arata on November 13 to squeeze past Stockton, 14 to 13.

Still frisky and insistent on climbing even higher, the Rams nailed down the runner-up position in the league by downing Modesto's Pirates in the final game on November 20, 24 to 21.

Boxing Team To Be Formed After 3-Year Absence

After a successful boxing tournament November 17 in the men's gymnasium, Coach Roy Diederichsen announced that this season, for the first time in three years, the college will field a boxing team.

The team, according to Diederichsen, will compete with freshmen squads from bay area four-year colleges as well as junior colleges.

All students are eligible to try out, he said, and those interested should enroll as soon as possible.

A series of elimination bouts to determine team members are scheduled in the near future, the boxing mentor added.

In the feature match of the opening tournament, Rudolph Hoffman defeated Jim Metcalf by a technical knockout in the second round.

Complete results of other matches are as follows:

Bruce Comer, 125, won over Lee Tennant; Mike Camera, 135, defeated John Olson; Jim Bass, 142, beat Bob Hurd; Keene Turner, 145, won over Martin Hall; Harry Mueller, 150, defeated Martin Storman; William Shoaf, 151, topped Wesley Perrasso; Bob Durand, 160, won over John Roach; and Al Sclalanea, 165, defeated Bob Herald.

Fischer Issues Call For Baseball Talent

With football and soccer seasons completed and basketball in the air still another sport is making its voice heard at the college.

Baseball — the national pastime — officially started its pre-season here when Coach Bill Fischer held a meeting last Thursday to discuss the coming Ram horsehide campaign with prospective players.

Men wishing to try out for the club were asked by Fischer to see him in the men's gymnasium as soon as possible.

Two Ram Backs, Three Linemen Named As Coaches Announce Big Seven All-Conference Grid Selections

By Gail Moss

Five City College football players were named to the official Big Seven All-Conference Team announced last week at a meeting of conference coaches here.

The strong Ram line was well represented. Tackles Jerry Landi and Gerry James were named to the first and second teams respectively and guard John Roy received honorable mention.

Quarterback Ray Arata was also named to the second club, and fullback Don Brand joined Roy in the honorable mention column.

The All-Conference Team was chosen by the coaches in a mail vote, and the final tabulation was announced by H. F. Taggart, Conference Commissioner, at the meeting held on the college's west campus.

Landi and James have been described by Head Coach Grover Klemmer as the best pair of tackles in the league. Roy, one of the few veterans on the club, has again been a standout in the forward wall. Arata was an excellent performer on both offense and defense, and Brand, shifted from end to fullback early in the season, led the team in rushing.

Landi and the others chosen for the first team will receive belt buckles in honor of their selection, and the others named will be mailed certificates. The complete All-Conference selections released by Taggart are as follows:

First team: Ends, Darrell Haynes (Stockton) and Jerry Beatie and Karl Rubke (both Santa Rosa) tie; Tackles, Phil Huff (Stockton) and Landi; Guards, Severn Hayes (West Contra Costa) and Duane Wickstrom (Modesto); Center, Bert Watson (Modesto); Quarterback, J. B. Girard (Stockton); Backs, Doug Peters (West Contra Costa), Wilbur Gary (West Contra Costa), and Stan Beasley (Modesto).

Second team: End, Joe Rich; Tackles, Mel McDonald (WCC) and James; Guards, Don Deary (Sac.) and Bob Light (S. R.); Center, Benny Hammond (WCC); Quarterback, Arata; Backs, Gene Campbell (Stock.), Gene Peterson (Mod.), and Don Bossert (S. R.) and Silas Anderson (Sac.), tie.

Honorable mention: Tackle, Carlos Aparicio (Sac.); Guards, Roy and LeRoy Smith (Stock.); Center, Tom Sells (S. M.); Quarterback, Bob Inness (S. M.); Backs, Credell Green (WCC), Brand, and Ward Gardner (Sac.).

Four Ram Soccer Stars Named On All-League Team

(Editor's Note: Humberto Fischnaler, Guardsman sport reporter and member of the Ram soccer team, was selected by Coach Roy Diederichsen to represent the college at the meeting held at University of San Francisco last Wednesday to choose an all California Inter-Collegiate Conference soccer club.

Fischnaler is considered by Diederichsen as not only a fine soccer player but also as a fine analyst of the sport since he intrusted the reporter-player with his selections for the all-conference team, presented at the meeting. Diederichsen made the selections in his capacity as head soccer mentor here.)

Coach Wishes For Good Old Days; "TV Officiating Is A Workout"

By John Murray

"Oh for the good old days of football when they wore coon skin coats and television was but another fancy of H. G. Wells."

Many a football official occasionally thinks such, among them Roy Diederichsen, one of the college physical education instructors, who is an active official of the Pacific Coast Conference.

Recently he made his television debut as field judge at a Presidio Field game on Del Courtney's local Game-of-the-Week program.

All during his eight years as a football official he has found the work interesting if not fun, but in only one day with the roaming eye of television . . . well it was still interesting but a little more like work.

Normally his duties as field judge would only take in checking time during plays and huddles but . . .

For the benefit of the cameras running interference along the sidelines, Diederichsen had to keep the official time of the whole procedure (with a small stop watch he was forever pulling from his pocket), chase across the field to fire the gun ending the quarters, scamper back and forth between plays to notify television officials of the ground rulings (such as penalties by whom against whom) and also to notify the number of minutes left in each period, and . . .

He had quite a workout but came up smiling all the same. When it was finally over he confessed that television does add interest to his work, but he would not recommend it to anyone who is not in top condition.

Sixteen Students Volunteer For Work In Library

New, temporary help has been added to the college library, to keep book circulation in smooth running order, Clement Skrabak, library staff member here, announced last week.

Delta Psi sorority members are contributing their free time to the library, Skrabak said, and are helping by checking out books on the desk, taking care of the catalogs or by doing office work. At this time, 16 women have signed-up for three week periods. They are as follows:

Adele Mallinger, Connie Panagakis, Dolores Solisgear, Fat Quick, Marilyn Seardena, Lee Merriwether, Sharon Ford, Sharlene Klein, Susie Metaxos, Lenore Thompson, Marcia Herd, Victoria Silva, Irene Soohodolsky, Barbara Schneider, Joanne Yarnell and Joan Bolsch.

The Container Corporation of America recently contributed a self-published atlas to the library, Skrabak added, which will probably be an important reference book for both instructors and students.

It was edited and designed by Herbert Bayer, and contains unusual photographs, maps, data and graphs about all countries. It has been developed for the express purpose of meeting the changes that have occurred in the political, social, and economic world since World War II.

Gifts of books and pamphlets serve a dual purpose in the successful operating of the college library, Skrabak also pointed out.

Saving of money, and addition of worthwhile literature to the library, are the important purposes gained by the numerous gifts received from many companies and people.

WAA Hosts Washington In Last Playday Today

The Women's Athletic Association of the college will host George Washington at the last high school playday of the semester in the women's gymnasium today at 3 o'clock, Colleen Walker, president, announced.

Badminton is the sport to be played, and refreshments will be served at the close of the contest.

Another badminton playday took place last Saturday, December 5, at San Mateo Junior College. All colleges of this area were invited, and women from this college reported a good time was had by everyone.

Foreign Students Invited To Attend Mt. Diablo Party

Foreign students who would like to attend a party tomorrow, given by the Mount Diablo Council for United Nations at Mount Diablo, should sign the list on the bulletin board outside the foreign students office here, Joseph Jacobsen, college foreign student counsellor, stated last week.

The party is part of a celebration of Human Rights Day. Seven experts will conduct discussions on the topic, The Foundation of Human Rights, at the affair.

Transportation from San Francisco to Mt. Diablo and back will also be furnished, Jacobsen said.

Since Christmas Holidays are approaching, those students who would like to be invited to American homes to dine and observe Christmas activities as celebrated in this country are requested to consult Jacobsen.

Nine foreign students were guests for Thanksgiving in American homes in San Francisco and Berkeley, through arrangements made by the foreign student office.

Jacobsen noted that the number was below his expectation because he had anticipated many would like to take such an opportunity without any hesitation.

Variety Show Theme Named

Theme for the City College Varieties, will be "Campus Daze Down Through the Years," Jim Glasson, student director of the show, announced last week.

The production will attempt to trace the history of the college in songs, skits, and other acts, according to Glasson.

He also said that tickets will be on sale for the two performances starting December 28 and will be sold until show time or until tickets are sold out. The performances are set for Thursday evening, January 14, and Friday evening, January 15, and will be held here in the west campus auditorium.

The show was originally scheduled to run for three nights, Glasson stated, but technical difficulties forced the abandonment of one performance.

The production staff of Glasson, Producer Julie Hanan, Assistant Director Lee Merriwether and Assistant Producer Deane Cyr expressed enthusiasm over the various acts in the show.

Miss Pie A La Mode Of 1953

"Come and get it," says Joanne Hassman, named Miss Hot Apple Pie a la Mode of 1953 by the college Hotel and Restaurant Society. She voiced her approval of the cafeteria's Friday Special, hot apple pie a la mode covered with a flavored sauce, after sampling the delicacy.

Every Friday, Peter Garrett, one of the student chefs, wheels a cart loaded with these delightful specialties among the tables of the cafeteria creating an atmosphere of home style cooking. The price—only 21 cents.

Also on the menu is a delightful assortment of sundaes covered with warm syrup and pieces of hot apple pie, each selling for 15 cents, and a dish of two scoops of ice cream for a dime. The cafeteria invites all students to sample these desserts.

Council Approves Italian-American Club, Orders Inventory Of AS Property

Organization of a new club open to all students here received its final approval last Thursday by Student Council, after Dave Raphael, Club Activities Board president, stated that CAB had accepted the Italian American Club's constitution.

Raphael explained that the club was open to students of all nationalities, and would be on active status early in the new year.

At the suggestion of Wray Jacobs, Finance chairman, council voted unanimously in favor of having all campus organizations of the college take a complete inventory of all property owned by the Associated Students.

Jacobs explained that the reasons for doing this are many, but mainly to help next semester's Finance Chairman allocate funds to the various activities from the Associated Student budget. Before the new budget for next semester can be apportioned, the actual net worth of the AS must be known.

Council moved that organizations not complying with this rule, will not be appropriated money in their next semester's budget. The Finance Committee reminded all those concerned that the inventory must be completed by Friday, January 15.

AS President George Effenberger stated that the vacancy left open by the resignation of Parliamentarian Jim Brownfield will be filled at the next meeting of the Council.

Jim Gleason, drama member, pointed out that a letter of gratitude was received from the Red Cross, thanking the drama group for the 20 complimentary tickets to the campus production of The Male Animal, which were given to members of the Armed Forces.

Two former members of Student Council were present at the meeting Thursday. They were Jan Terry, winner of the Council's outstanding student service award last semester, and Walt Rilliet, ex-member of the Sophomore Council.

College Hour Change

Student leaders from the San Francisco high schools will visit the college on Friday, January 8. As a result, the college hour schedule has been moved to Wednesday, January 6, according to an announcement from President Louis G. Conlan.

Vet Report Signup Begins December 28

Signup for the monthly reports of all veterans under Public Law 550 will begin Monday, December 28, and continue through January 4, 1954, according to Robin Dunn, assistant to the coordinator of Veteran Affairs here.

The reports may be signed in the Veteran Affairs office located on the second floor of Building 3, Dunn said, and it is imperative that veterans do so if they are expecting the allowance.

Dunn said the reports verify the veteran's attendance record at the college and that he is meeting the minimum requirements.

merely because he thinks it's about time somebody did it! This has been the case with the members of my committee.

If initiative is so miraculous, why not use it as our Election Committee has done? It isn't a foreign subject to you. You think a lot of things, you plan a lot of things, and you see the need for a lot of things.

Yet some of you are afraid to "stick your neck out!" Don't be that way. Take initiative as your shield and you'll never get hurt!

Take initiative as your food and your table will be bountifully spread. Take initiative as your hook and you'll be the most educated of men. Initiative will lead you into verdant pastures, the life of courage and freedom, the proper destiny of the individual.

A fine example of initiative shown here is the work that is being done by this semester's election committee.

Merino Mascot Still Nameless And Homeless!

By Gail Moss

City College's recently acquired merino ram is still nameless after a contest designed to name him failed, according to Ken Feldin, chairman of the committee named by George Effenberger, Associated Student president, to find a nickname for the mascot.

Lack of student support caused the failure of the contest, Feldin said. He stated that he was disappointed in the students, especially members of the Associated Students. The contest was open to any student at the college, but since the purchase of the mascot was primarily an AS function, Feldin expected AS members to be prominent among the voters.

Plans for another contest have been made, but Feldin could not say whether it would be held this semester or early next semester.

The contest was held during the week of November 23-27, on the three days immediately preceding the Thanksgiving holidays. The short time allotted students to vote could explain the lack of interest, Feldin said.

At the same time, Wray Jacobs and Stan Shalit, the mascot's bodyguards, announced that the nameless one is also homeless. His welcome at the Ingleside Police Station is wearing thin, according to Shalit, and the group of five students who first delivered the animal to the campus have been hunting all over the Bay Area for a suitable home for the ram. The five are Jacobs, Shalit, Joe Garbarino, Chuck White and Gary Halkens.

The Ram first made an appearance at the college on October 20, due largely to the efforts of the aforementioned five. He made a big hit with the students and faculty alike almost immediately.

With hardly any time to get used to his new surroundings, he started appearing at football games and other college functions. His appearance apparently added to the morale of the football team, for they started winning games from the time that the mascot first attended a game.

Prep Day To Take Place Here Friday; City Administrative, Student Leaders Will Attend

City College of San Francisco Prep Day will take place here Friday when the college administration and the Associated Students host administrative and student leaders from San Francisco's seven public high schools and representatives from the San Francisco School Department and Board of Education.

Announcement of Prep Day was made jointly by college President Louis G. Conlan and Associated Student President George Effenberger recently.

The day was planned, according to the presidents, so that both students and faculty of local high schools could become better acquainted with the college and its activities.

College President Conlan will host the administrative and school department representatives while Associated Student President Effenberger will welcome the student leaders.

According to Effenberger, the guests from the San Francisco School Department will be as follows: Dr. Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of Schools; Dr. Edward Redford, Assistant Superintendent of Secondary Schools; John Levison, President, Board of Education; and Mrs. George Hindley, School Board member.

The administrative high school visitors will be the principal and one vice-principal from each secondary school, Effenberger said.

Names of the student officers from each of the schools who will visit the campus are not available at this time, but Effenberger announced that from 35 to 40 are expected Friday.

Other guests invited by the presidents are as follows: Dr. A. J. Cloud, President Emeritus of the college; Margaret Dougherty, former dean of women here and Ralph Vetterlein, president of the Associated Students of City College in Spring 1951.

Vetterlein is to be the guest speaker at a luncheon to be held here later in the day, Effenberger stated. He is now President of the Associated Students of the University of California.

Probable program for the day, as announced by Effenberger, will begin at 9 a.m. in Building 2 here where a coffee hour, sponsored by the college, is scheduled to take place.

After the coffee hour the student representatives will tour the new building on the east campus and the college hotel and restaurant department. Then the assembled visitors will be photographed by students of the college photo staff.

Following this tour the group is to Open both to men and women students, the $25,000 competition will be based on scholarship, personality, and resourcefulness with special emphasis on worthiness of such an award.

Competition will be divided between the men and women so that there will be no male student competing with a female student. Firs' place award is a $1,000 scholarship, with awards of $800, $700, and twenty $500 awards respectively.

Applications for the scholarships must be filed no later than March 1, 1954, the counselling office warned. Applications may be obtained with any additional information by writing John F. Malley, Chairman, 16 Court Street, Boston 8, Massachusetts.

SF County Clerk Is Newman Club Guest

Martin Mongan, county clerk of the City and County of San Francisco, will be a guest at the college Newman Club Mass and Communion breakfast this Sunday, January 10, Mike Aggeler, the group's president said this week.

Members will attend the 10 o'clock Mass at St. Emydius Church, Jules and De Montford Sts. A breakfast in the college cafeteria will follow, Aggeler said. Price of the affair will be $1.00. At that time Mongan, who graduated from the University of California in 1930, will speak on the topic, Civil Service in Transition. He will discuss the general purpose of the Civil Service in the United States today from the administrative point of view.

"I value the opportunity of coming out to speak to the young people and hope that I will have a few ideas that will be of benefit to them," Mongan stated.

Walter McMurry, 1401 Van Ness Ave. Clubs, sororities, and fraternities are all urged to nominate candidates, Franks commented.

Voting for sophomore king and queen candidates will take place at the college from Monday, January 18 through Friday, January 22.

34 File AS Election Petitions; Introduction Of Candidates At College Hour Rally Today

A total of 34 students won nominations from their political parties, the Interfraternity Council (IFC) and United Students Association (USA), for candidacy in Associated Student elections scheduled next Tuesday and Wednesday on campus, according to a list released by Larry Elizarde, election commissioner here.

The list includes three candidates running independently, and one office, that of Freshman Class President, was uncontested at press time.

Because of a delay in processing the petitions, following an extension of the original deadline for filing, the list released by Elizarde for publication is unavoidably incomplete.

Today at the college hour election rally, the candidates will be introduced and their party platforms given. The rally will be in the auditorium here.

Independent candidates are Jane Zelinsky for AWS president, and Dorothy Cutler and Charles Smock for sophomore council.

IFC candidates are as follows: Joe Garbarino for AS president; Alberta Cordini for vice-president; William Boldenweek for AMS president; Joseph Ortiz for freshman president; Jan Sewall for AWS president; Jim Viekers for sophomore president.

Election Rules Announced By AS Commissioner

Basic rules and regulations of past elections will be followed in this year's Associated Student elections to be held next Tuesday and Wednesday, January 12 and 13, Larry Elizarde, AS Election Commissioner, announced last week.

Any member of the Associated Students may vote in the election for Executive and council positions. Polls will be located in the basement of the main building and in the student lounge in Building 2, Elizarde said, and he outlined the following plan that will be in effect at the polls.

The polls will open at 8:30 a.m. on both Tuesday, January 12, and Wednesday, January 13. There will be two members of the election committee at each of the voting places to punch AS cards and assist the voters, the rules state.

Each voter will present his card to the committee member and sign the register, giving his name and card number.

Only the election committee members, who will wear identifying cards, and the student actually voting will be allowed in the voting area. No campaigning will be allowed within 100 feet of the polls. The voting areas will close at 2:30 p.m. on both days.

College Hour Sked In Effect Today

Because representatives from San Francisco public high schools will visit here Friday for Prep Day, the college hour schedule has been shifted to today, according to an announcement from President Louis G. Conlan.

The election rally will be held during today's college hour, and classes will follow the regular schedule this Friday.

The schedule for today is 8 o'clock classes—8:10 to 8:50; 9 o'clock classes—9 to 9:40; 10 o'clock classes—9:50 to 10:30; College Hour—10:40 to 11:20; 11 o'clock classes—11:30 to 12:10; 12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1.

619 Veterans Attend College This Semester

Six hundred and nineteen veterans of both the Second World War and the Korean conflict are now attending the college, according to Betty Arnold, secretary of veterans affairs.

There is a total of 83 World War II veterans attending the college and 536 Korean veterans, she stated.

Seventy-six of the Second World War veterans are receiving subsistance allowance under Public Law 346, which is the regular GI Bill and the other seven are receiving their allowance under the veterans rehabilitation bill, which is Public Law 16.

Of the Korean Veterans 11 are attending college under Public Law 894, the rehabilitation bill and 525 are receiving their allowance through Public Law 550, which is the regular Korean Veterans Bill.

Ram-Nap Of College Mascot Touches Off Citywide Alarm

By Gail Moss

A city-wide alarm was out last week for person or persons unknown after the college's Merino ram mascot was brutally ram-napped while enjoying a pre-Christmas rest at his home in back of the cafeteria.

Before the faithful students rise up and form a lynch mob to hang the villains, let it be reported that the ram has been recovered, but his abductors are still at large.

The crime took place on Sunday, December 13, in the afternoon. Wray Jacobs, who had been preparing meals and doing other odd jobs for the honored guest, went to check on the ram, and found the rope holding him (the ram, that is) cut and Sammy, as the animal is temporarily called, gone. He immediately suspected foul play and informed the police.

All of Sunday night and Monday morning found vigilant officers of the law patrolling city streets in prowl cars, looking for the missing animal. Their search was fruitless.

Jacobs was careful to let the news slip to newspapers, but apparently no reporter of the sleuthing variety took the hint, and Jacobs was forced to carry on alone.

Finally, on Monday morning, he trailed the ram-nappers to their hideout and after hardly any battle at all he was able to retake the ram. In the confusion, however, the "bandits" escaped and are still at large.

The motive for the crime was not evident. Police believe that the criminals planned to demand ransom for Sammy's safe return, and that Jacobs apprehended them before they had time to send a ram-som note.

New Year's Resolution Needed For Benefit Of Everyone Here

HERE it is 1954 and time for the yearly resolutions. The custom of making these resolutions is usually an empty gesture.

Human nature will out and what seems to be quite a logical promise at the beginning of the year and one which will be kept is found impossible to keep as the year runs its course.

The custom of making new year's resolutions, as for any practical value involved, is useless. But it seems to make us feel better to make these unkept promises, and so the tradition goes on this year as ever.

However, there are resolutions, tradition or no, which can be kept, adding to the well-being of the individual and of those around him.

As students here we believe a resolution is needed; a resolution which will be used for the benefit of everyone at the college.

A larger number of active participants are needed in Associated Student functions. A comparatively small group is doing the greater part of the activity of the association which helps all of us.

We've mentioned often of the value and of the need for active interest and participation in Associated Student affairs. This semester many students joined the association, but not enough students used the privilege of activity to which their membership entitled them.

An example of the activity of the comparatively few Associated Students who are really aiding their education and benefiting the rest of the members is Prep Day planned here Friday.

We offer thanks to them and to the faculty members who gave aid in preparation for this important public relations event.

It's obvious how vital such things as Prep Day are to the college. Such activity is deserving of the support of all Associated Student members, not just a small group of overworked members.

They need our support and we need to help them. As we've said before the only way to achieve a "well-rounded" education is through such activity.

So with our wish for a happy and prosperous new year we include a suggestion for the one resolution which is of the greatest consequence to students here—

"We resolve not only to join the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco, but also to participate in its activities, for the benefit of ourselves and our associates."

Visitors—Welcome To The College

THE Guardsman would like to extend a welcome to the Prep Day guests and offer them an invitation to visit our offices in Building 4.

We know that you honored visitors will find at the college the spirit of friendliness and helpfulness which are "trademarks" of the City College student, administrator and instructor.

We also feel that you will see the soundness of the college program, both academic and social. No graduating high school student could choose a finer college at which to study.

Greetings, we hope to see you again, and soon.

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman office building 4-D. Deadlines are noon each Wednesday. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but his identity must be known to the editor.)

• Elections

Editor, The Guardsman:

In the past the response from students as far as voting is concerned has left much to be desired. Now is the time to make student government more representative of all the students of the college. The only way to achieve this ideal form of government is for every associated student to vote for the candidate he feels is most qualified for the office.

Each student who has the right of franchise should make an effort to become acquainted with the various candidates running for each office and let the qualifications of the candidate rather than his political affiliation be his guide.

With 1,800 students able to vote, let us hope that the number who show up at the polls will double if not triple the poor showing of 300 last semester.

Guardsman Apology

In a story printed in The Guardsman on December 9 concerning the broken steam pipes on the west campus here, the name of the man who did the bulk of the repair work on the pipes was inadvertently left out.

John Lally, a school department steamfitter who does maintenance work on the college buildings, restored the west campus to normalcy once again with the aid of his fellow workers.

Thanks to them there are no more steam clouds, no more detours and no more odors!

Celebrating New Year Is An Imitation Of Age-Old Custom

Through the din and confusion of New Year's parties, millions of people on December 31, imitated age old customs of many civilizations.

The idea of hanging mistletoe stemmed from Britain's Druids cutting it from their sacred oaks and distributing it among the people as charms of luck.

The Romans borrowed the customs, and, in turn, the early English observed the old Roman habit of cleaning their chimneys on New Year's day. Today, cleaning the chimney is echoed in cleaning the slate, or New Year's Resolutions. Originally, chimney cleaning was done to drive out all evil spirits and ill omens, but it finally came to signify that good luck would attend the house throughout the year.

The horns, whistles, bells and shouts that arise so suddenly and loudly at midnight were derived from an ancient Chinese custom. They believed it would scare away evil spirits for the ensuing year.

The parties themselves are a time honored institution. They stemmed from elaborate religious ceremonies. The first were believed to have been celebrated in Rome, and were said to have lasted several days.

All this has laid the basis for our own New Year's celebrations, and, without knowing it, our advanced civilization dedicates one full night to driving out evil spirits and bestowing luck upon itself and others, fully armed with mistletoe, noise makers and spirits of its own choosing.

Eight Soldiers From Fort Ord Visit Here On Furlough Time

By Shirley Murphy

Brightest faces around campus last week belonged to eight soldiers on furlough from Fort Ord. Seven of the visitors were from New York and had never been in San Francisco before. They were favorably impressed by the college and stated they were going to request a transfer here when they returned to their base.

The Horn Blows At Noon

The banshee wail echoing through the campus on the first day classes resumed following Christmas vacation was our air raid siren—it was being tested. Evidently those manipulating the machine were a little hard of hearing because it was obvious after the first five minutes that the siren was not defective.

Man Or Beast

Keeping abreast of the times, the college anthropology department changed the label, Piltdown Man, which identified a model of the cranium on exhibit in the basement of the main building.

London scientists recently discovered that the "Piltdown Man," formerly believed to show one stage in man's development, was actually the head of an ape that had been doctored to disguise it. This scientific hoax was exposed last November.

It Pays To Advertise

Banners for bumpers is the unique gimmick being used by show directors to advertise the Varieties of 1954. The graphic arts department is printing 1,000 banners with the name of the production on them. These streamers will adorn the vehicles of the students, announcing the show to the motoring public.

For Women Only

A large audience of women students gathered in Room 136 of the main building yesterday at 11 a.m. to listen to Betty Hanneman, United Air Lines stewardess representative explain the duties and qualifications of the airborne career girls.

TV Age Gives Birth To New Social Behavior

By Harold Painter

Today is the age of TV; one's host and hostess are likely to have eyes like two knobs on a Dumont. With hosts it's no longer, "Good evening, Mr. and Mrs. Umph," but, "Aisle 2, seat 3, rows 1 and 2, Shhh!" And they're led to a continuous blur of mis-infrequently interrupted by a few moments of smoky drama on horseback.

The car as a measure of social distinction is being outclassed by the highest and most baffling TV antenna on the block; what is seen now when entering the suburbs of a city is an ensemble of what looks like uprighted branding irons, modern sculpture, and curious secret society emblems. Below them sit smug clots of viewers like perched owls come to stare at a forest fire.

Emily Post is writing a potential best seller entitled "TV Etiquette." The key words are silence, undying faith, and tip-toe out, no need to say goodbye, treading lightly so as not to rattle the antenna.

The technician is something next to a soothsayer or a medicine man. No devout viewer will allow heathen hands to touch the Inner Temple of the set, a temple filled with one-eyed icons and glass candles.

The car as a means of riding in the country to see the effect of the seasons on billboards has been replaced by a wheelless machine that rolls ads by about the same speed they would appear while driving 50 or 60 miles an hour. Next week they are featuring the autobiography of a washing machine, and the virtuous life of a steam operated potato-peeler.

Even used car lots are being replaced by used-TV lots; the new model features blinders, eyewash, and a ten foot pole to turn the dial from any position in the room. The last two feet of the pole may be unscrewed and used to beat interrupters into silence.

The Empire State Building in New York is 1,248 feet in height. The Statue of Liberty, including the statue and pedestal, is 305½ feet in height.

Washington Tops Enrollee Count

Total enrollment at the college this semester is 5,115, of which 3,189 are men, 1,926 women and 2,029 are graduates of San Francisco's public high schools, with George Washington High School again leading the enrollment statistics with 388 graduates in attendance here.

These figures were compiled last week by the registrar's office and released by Gertrude Somerville, acting registrar.

Runners-up this semester are Balboa, with 284, and Lowell, with a registration of 271. Fourth among the total enrollment is Lincoln with 246, then Mission, 228; Polytechnic, 225; Galileo, 189; Commerce, 151; Girls High, 32; Samuel Gompers, 13; and Continuation, 2.

San Francisco private school enrollment totals 426, the East Bay sent 397 students here, 638 students came from various parts of California, while other United States schools, foreign students, and non-high school graduates total 1,594 collectively. The grand total for this group is 3,086, with 1,924 men and 1,162 women.

New students, including public, private, and foreign graduates number 1,862, with George Washington again leading enrollment statistics with 146.

Runners-up are Lowell with 111; Polytechnic, with 102; Balboa, 101; Galileo, 77; Mission, 74; Lincoln, 71; Commerce, 21; Gompers, 3; and Girls High, 3.

Iranian Students Welcome Visiting Countryman

Inspector General Here On US Tour

By Mohi ud Dean

A large number of Iranian students here welcomed Sallroka Saidi, Inspector General in the Ministry of Education of Tehran, Iran, on December 4.

His tour in the United States, lasting 4 months, is sponsored by the State Department Boards of Education assisted him in his visit to many schools in the major cities of New York, Washington, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Saidi's main object in the visit is to see the comparison between the systems of education in elementary and high schools in the United States and in Iran.

He noted that the American schools being tuition-free give citizens a greater opportunity to obtain education than the Iranian schools, and he also explained that the educational system here was conducive to the character development of students.

During his travel in the United States, he was glad to meet many students from his native country.

Left to right at top are Parviz Ashrafi, Abdullah Shokat, Iranian Minister of Education Saidi, Mahdid Taibanish, Vartan Vaskanian, Mirshamca Nateghi, Joseph Jacobsen, foreign student adviser. Ramblings

By Al Palacio

HOW does this year's City College basketball team stack up in the upcoming Big Seven Conference championship race, someone asked this department a while back and immediately held on for an answer.

Not wanting to put our foot in our mouth, we sought out the wise counsel of two gentlemen who have been closely connected with the team in its contests thus far—our cage reporter Gail Moss and Head Coach Ralph Hillsman. We were assuming, of course, that three heads are better than one.

After the question had been laid squarely in their laps, we sat back and attentively pieced together all that was being said. Naturally, our two cents worth was audible now and then, but only to keep the conversation from going stale.

After a lengthy discussion involving this trio, we regained self-confidence once more and were now prepared to answer the patient inquirer who by this time was a bit weary.

The present edition of Ram basketballers, we told him, is well sprinkled with experience and new faces. The starting five has two returning lettermen along with the remaining three-some of frosh.

As of right now, the squad appears to be one big question mark.

The Rams have several practice games under their belts and have broken even in the win-lose column. Play for keeps doesn't open until next week and that's when the chips will be on the table.

An innocent bystander would be inclined to show a sad expression for the Rams' chances of annexing the title laurels, but we've observed Hillsman-coached teams far too often to sell them short, regardless of material. His is that special touch which more often than not inspires potentially weak clubs to great heights.

By this time, our listener couldn't hold on any longer and demanded to know our prediction as to City College's final standing. We obliged by boldly stating that our Rams would show their heels to the pack enroute to first place. That's right, we said it and we're glad. We predict a championship team.

Our visitor thanked us for everything and departed shaking his head.

Prof 'Secret Weapon'

The profs were apparently caught offguard when this shot was taken during a practice session. It seems their "secret weapon" was uncovered by the camera — the three handed professor who was undoubtedly being kept under wraps to throw at the unsuspecting sophs in the upcoming encounter.

Modesto Tourney Next For Rams

Cagers Encounter Long Beach In Modesto Opener; Eight Game Practice Slate Concluded

Hess And Bondanza, Former Ram Cagers, Star For Bears, Spartans

Frank Hess and Bob Bondanza are the latest in a long line of former City College of San Francisco basketball standouts who have gone on to further stardom in the sport at other colleges and universities.

Hess played a forward position on last season's five and was one of the team's leading scorers. He joined Coach Nibs Price's California Bears after enrolling at the Berkeley college this semester.

Ram Basketball Coach Ralph Hillsman has cited Hess as an example of what determination can do for a player. At the beginning of the present season the ex-Ram was not highly rated on the Bear roster, but through his all-out hustle, which Price has acclaimed, Hess recently earned an important starting spot in the star-studded Cal lineup.

The new California standout joins another ex-City College Hillsman coached player on the Bear quintet. He is Bob Matheny, All-Pacific Coast Conference guard, who made the All-Conference team for his play with the Ram team of 1949-50, Northern California Junior College Conference champions of that season.

Bondanza enrolled at San Jose State this Fall after starring for two seasons with City College ('51-52, '52-'53). His work in 1952 earned Bondanza a spot on the All-Conference club of that year.

He is what observers have called the "perfect playmaker" and best described as an inspirational player. A small man, as basketball players go, Bondanza makes up for his lack of height with speed, a sure and steady eye, and some of the smoothest passing and teamwork to be seen on local courts.

Currently he is playing at Spartanville behind San Jose State's veteran guards Buster Burges and Carroll Williams, but Hillsman believes that he may prove to be the "sleeper" on the Spartan squad once he establishes himself at the San Jose college.

Once more, by their play, Hess and Bondanza have preserved Hillsman's record as a moulder of some of the finest basketball talent on the coast through his coaching at the college.—By D. M.

Weather Causes Delay In Intra Title Playoffs

Intramural championship playoffs have been delayed because of bad weather during the final two weeks before Christmas vacation, Ralph Hillsman, director of the intramural program, announced last week.

Hillsman said that some class champions have been decided in football and basketball, but when the classes changed sports the rains started, slowing down outside competition.

By next week, he added, class champions should have been decided in both sports, and during the following week teams in the same physical education hours will meet for the class championship. Then sometime after January 20 playoffs will be held until the college champion is decided. Individual gold belt buckles will be awarded to the winning team members.

This year has marked the first time an intramural sports program has been held during physical education periods rather than after classes.

Previously, according to Hillsman, the program has been aimed at students who didn't partake in physical education. Since most men are now in some sort of physical activity the program has been altered to what it is now.

Candidate List For Boxing Team Continues To Grow

Candidates for the pre-official boxing tryouts here mounted to 14 last week, according to head boxing coach, Roy Diederichsen. The official signup is sometime in February, when all candidates will vie for the varsity team.

When confronted with the question of why early workouts Diederichsen stated "Since the college hasn't participated in intercollegiate boxing for three years, it is necessary that we get an early look at what we have so as to have some knowledge of the material at hand next season."

He paused for a moment and then continued, "training time and rules also have to be set up and that makes another reason for an early start."

Describing what the training program would consist of, the coach rattled off in rhythmical tones "road work, heavy and light bag, calisthenics, sparring, and of course, some fundamentals."

"So far," he went on to say, "Roger Hoffman, heavyweight, and lightweight Roy Hill have shown up the most promising in these drills."

The year's squad will range from the featherweight ranks up to the heavy with bouts for all on the team arranged at the most frequent intervals. For example, the Rams might at one meet send three lightweights to the post providing that the red and white has more leather throwers at that weight than in any other division.

Competition will be sharp with the locals meeting freshmen teams from San Jose State, San Francisco State, Santa Clara and any other nearby two-year college that might pick up the gloves.

As an added feature to their already full schedule, the Rams will hold an All-Star City College of San Francisco tournament some time in February with trophies going to the winners.

Home Five Splits Holiday Contests

The Ram basketeers got the New Year off to a good, albeit early, start last week with a pair of decisive home court victories after observing the earlier holidays in true Christmas spirit by dividing four games with tough opposition.

The afternoon of December 30 found the home five on a spree against a tense College of Marin club. The Rams built up a 26-3 lead early in the second period and coasted from there on to an easy 70-34 win. "Diablo" Dunn, the big Ram center, controlled the boards and led all scorers with 16 points. Warren Baxter netted 14 and Jerry Stack contributed 12 for the winners.

Napa provided a little more competition in the January 31 afternoon tilt, but again the well-balanced Ram team won out, 68-55. Only three men were able to score for the Northerners, but their big center, Ken Tronstad, bucketed 29 points, and forward Mel Boyboso collected 20 to keep the visitors in the game. Mike Leaskou led the winners with 19 points, and his passing was a factor in the win. Theopolis Dunn scored 13 and again controlled the rebounds.

The Hamilton Air Force Base Defenders, led by ex-California star Billy Hagler and playing on their home court, gave the Rams some stiff competition in a game that saw the lead see-saw back and forth before the visitors finally won, 65-63.

Mike Leaskou garnered 25 points to top the scorers, and Theopolis Dunn got 19, but it was two free throws by Jim Stephens that provided the margin of victory. Hagler was high man for the service team with 21 points.

Following their Wednesday night victory, the college's cagers went south to meet College of Sequoias at Visalia on Friday night, December 11. The Giants were victorious in the one-game Visalia Invitational Tourney, gaining a 74-58 decision over the hustling Rams. An unprecedented 35 personal fouls were called against the Rams, and the entire starting five fouled out.

Rich Rubio led the C.O.S. scoring, netting 26 points, and Warren Baxter and Stephens were high for the losers with 14 and 13 respectively.

December 15 found the home club at last returning to their own court, and still smarting from the C.O.S. defeat, they romped over a hapless Menlo five, 75-48. Coach Hillsman cleared the bench, as 13 players saw action and all but two of them scored. Baxter looped through 14 points to top the winners, and Diablo Dunn and Al Holder collected 11 and 10 respectively. Leaskou, Stephens and Jerry Stack each chipped in with nine.

Next on the agenda was the powerful University of California "Blues." The game was played on December 18 as a preliminary to the Cal-Washington State varsity contest and found the Rams on the short end of a 62-54 score. Leaskou tried to pull the game out of the fire with six field goals for twelve points in the fourth period, but it wasn't enough. He topped all scorers with 18 points.

Team Poses Threat To Tourney Foes

The Ram basketballers get their first taste of Big Seven Conference competition this week-end when they journey to Modesto for the 16th Annual State Junior College Basketball Tournament.

Coach Ralph Hillsman's eagers meet Long Beach Junior College, a tough non-conference foe, in the opening round of the 16 team tourney on Friday night, January 8. The winner of this contest meets the victor in the Ventura-Stockton game, and the Rams will progress through the elimination tournament, either in the championship flight or in the consolation rounds.

Long Beach is one of three rugged Southern California teams partieipating in the tournament. From the same area come Los Angeles City College, a long-time football rival of the college, and Pasadena Junior College.

The Big Seven Conference is out in full force with City College, Modesto, Stockton, Sacramento, Santa Rosa, West Contra Costa and San Mateo all attending.

Other colleges rounding out the select group are College of Sequoias, Fresno, Ventura, Grant, John Muir and Reedley.

The home quintet has met only one of the other teams in the tournament so far this year. They traveled to Visalia for the one-game Visalia Invitational Tournament and lost to the hosting College of Sequoias, 74-58. In a game that was much closer than the final score would indicate. The Rams will apparently have to wait until next year for revenge, for the Visalians are in another round, and it is unlikely that the two teams will meet in the final rounds of play.

The college has yet to meet a Big Seven Conference foe this year, and their record against outside competition has been only fair. The freshladen team has jelled well in recent games, and only some heart-breaking defeats have kept them from taking a better record into the upcoming tournament. Their spirit and balanced scoring potential should make up for their lack of height, but they will meet their first big opponent at Modesto this week-end.

Thirty-Three Men In Baseball Sign-up

Thirty-three prospective players have signed up for the upcoming Ram baseball season here that will have its official tryouts next Monday, January 11, at Ocean View ball park, Head Coach Bill Fischer announced last week.

Of the 33, seven were returning veterans, Pitchers Bob Word and Fred Nyser, utility men Ron Lawrence, Ron Rouse and Eddie Fernandez, and 1953 Big Seven batting champion, Rudy Buffin.

Fischer stated that dates of all the practice sessions will appear on the bulletin board in the men's gymnasium.

Plans Formed For Annual Soph-Prof Cage Tilt

By Humberto Fischnaler

Plans are now being formed for the annual Soph-Prof basketball game to be played in the men's gymnasium at a date to be announced later. Dean John Brady is in charge of the prof team while soph class president, Keith Franks, will coach the second year men.

The game promises to be another torrid contest in this hot rivalry which dates back to 1940 when the present series was inaugurated with a triumph for the instructors.

Through superior finesse, great coaching and experienced material the professors have been able to turn back the soph challenge year after year. Boasting a host of casaba luminaries, the "enlightened ones" will once again enter the fray in the role of favorites.

Such stars as Ralph Hillsman, Grover Klemmer, Alex Schwarz, Roy Diederichsen, Lou Batmale, Tom Nesbitt, Roy Burkhead and Mike Monaco, will give the professors a nucleus of hard-playing, hard-shooting and hardened veterans who are expected to show no mercy against a team made up of inexperienced but brave upperclassmen.

The sophomores will counter with an outfit headed by Dino Gofas, George Effenberger, Joe Garbarino, Bill Boldenweck and Player-coach Franks.

As can readily be seen both squads have spared no expense in lining up the best talent available for the classic.

The sophomores will be out to avenge last year's 23-13 defeat at the hands of the pedagogues, while the latter are just as anxious to preserve their supremacy over the future graduates.

The prospect of a large crowd for the affair has led Franks to believe that his troops will be in the right spirit and full of determination to pull the upset of the year.

The professors on the other hand fear that overconfidence on the part of certain key players could very well ruin the chances of the Academy A. C. to noteh another triumph.

Roberta Usher And Frances Bellas Are Denman Scholarship Winners

President Emeritus Makes The Formal Award Presentation

Winners of the annual Denman Scholarships were presented the awards in a ceremony December 29 in the office of President Louis G. Conlan, Mary Golding, dean of women, announced last week. Named as winners were Frances Bellas and Roberta Usher, sophomore students here.

The presentation was made by Dr. A. J. Cloud, president-emeritus and first president of the college. Dr. Cloud was chairman of the committee to determine the award winners. Other members included Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, Dean Golding and F. Grant Marsh, coordinator, division of student welfare.

Miss Bellas, former honor student at Balboa High School, is a secretarial major and has been working as a secretary three hours a day while carrying 17½ units at the college.

Miss Usher, former honor student at George Washington High School, is majoring in letters and science. She was voted sophomore queen and participated in the fashion show presented by the Associated women students. She plans to teach when she graduates from a university.

Both women are members of Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society. Miss Bellas has better than a "B" average, and Miss Usher has maintained a straight "A" average.

The Denman fund was established in 1939 by Judge William Denman and his sister in memory of their father, James Denman, former San Francisco Superintendent of Schools and President of the Board of Education.

More About Prep Day Here Friday

visit various classrooms at the college to witness lectures, science demonstrations and any classes in which they noted individual interest in questionnaires sent out by the President's office early in December of last year.

The day's program will then continue with a short tour of the west campus.

While the student guests are touring the administrative visitors will have a group meeting on campus.

At 12:30 p.m. a luncheon is planned in the Faculty Dining Room here at which students from the college Hotel and Restaurant Department, the Variety Show cast and other college groups will entertain the guests.

After the luncheon there will be an open discussion in the Student Lounge, Building 2, featuring questions concerning City College of San Francisco.

Prep Day was brought about mainly through the work of an Associated Student committee composed of Effenberger, Julie Hanan, Stan Shallt, Wray Jacobs, Dave Raphael, Walt Yakovleff, Jane Zelinsky, Barbara Campello and Bill Boldenweck. These and other Associated Students also are guides for the student tour.

A special faculty committee headed by college instructors Mervin Slosberg and Elmer Patterson worked with the AS committee.

Both these committees, working with Conlan and Effenberger, made complete plans and arrangements for what Effenberger says as a new undertaking promises to be one of the most successful events in the college's history.

Dougherty Trophy Awarded To Delta Psi Sorority At ISC Luncheon Here

The Dougherty Trophy, presented to the sorority on campus with the highest scholastic average, was awarded to Delta Psi at a luncheon, sponsored by the Inter-Sorority Council, held in the faculty dining room here yesterday.

The award, to be given semi-annually, was initiated this semester. Marilee Scholl, president of Delta Psi, received the trophy on behalf of the organization from Margaret Dougherty, former dean of women at the college who retired in June, for whom the award was named.

The trophy was awarded on the basis of the scholastic averages of the members of each sorority.

Other guests at the luncheon included Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college; Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator division of student welfare; Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator division of instruction; Louis Batmale, assistant dean in charge of student activities; Mary Golding, dean of women; Gertrude Somerville, assistant registrar; and the members of the Inter-Sorority Council, comprised of the presidents of the campus sororities.

They are as follows: Millie Pinkus, ISC president, Alpha Lambda Chi; Miss Scholl, Delta Psi; Jane Zelinsky, Kappa Phi; Barbara Harris, Phi Beta Rho; Alberta Cordini, Theta Tau; Connie Coleman, Zeta Chi. Dean Golding is adviser to the group.

Non-Citizens Requested To Submit Report Form

Effective January 1, 1954, any student here who is not a United States citizen, must submit an Address Report Form I-53 to any U. S. Post Office clerk or U. S. Immigration Office. Students may obtain the card from the counselling office in Building 3.

Immigration and Naturalization Service officials say the card must be obtained, filled out, and handled in in person no later than January 31, 1954.

Variety Show Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the 1954 Varieties, to be held next Thursday, January 14, and Friday, January 15, are now on sale, according to Jim Glasson, student director of the show.

Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Club Activities Board, from Finance Chairman Wray Jacobs, or at the campus bank in Room 188 of the main building, Glasson said. The price of tickets will be $1.00 for general admission or $.50 with an Associated Student card. The show will start at 8 p. m. in the west campus auditorium.

There will be 24 acts in this year's show, Glasson announced. They will range from comedy skits and tap dancing to the college's a cappella choir and a chorus line recruited from the college's women students, he said, and the men's glee club and an orchestra will entertain.

IRC Panel Today

A panel discussion on the culture and economics of the Near East will be held today by the International Relations Club during college hour in Building 9, Room K here, Joseph Jacobsen, foreign student counsellor, announced last week.

The discussion is open to all interested students, not only members of the organization, Jacobsen commented, and he urged as many as possible to attend.

Connecticut U Bubbler Fountain Destroyed

At the University of Connecticut, an explosion destroyed a bubbler fountain in a dormitory. Students who set the blast—which did $200 damage—said they were just trying to counteract the noise that was going on in the building, not trying to injure anyone.

EDUCATED COLLEGIANS: A college education is a marvelous thing. Here are some of the errors that turned up when a general information test was given at the University of Oregon.

Fjord—a Swedish automobile; Iran—Bible of the Mohammedans; Nicotine—the man who discovered cigarettes; Scotland Yard—two feet, ten inches.

CUP BY CUP: Students and faculty at the University of Oklahoma consume between 25 and 30 thousand cups of coffee each week in the student union, according to the Oklahoma Daily. Approximately 60 per cent drink it black.

A DOOR OPENED: Pennpix, humor magazine at the University of Pennsylvania, has taken a radical step. It has opened its staff to women students. The editors say they hope to attract a larger and more varied group of writers by going coeducational, and the business manager agrees.

BLAST AFTER BLAST. Officials at Furman University, Greenville, S. C., are hunting midnight saboteurs who, one night shortly after midnight, set off a bomb in a dormitory hall. The blast twisted and tore the garbage can in which the charge had been hidden; it smashed transoms up and down the hall and split open two wooden doors.

No one was in the hall at the time of the explosion, and no one was injured. Commented the Furman Hornet in a front page editorial: "We know that it takes some people longer to grow up than others. When a person enters college it is time for him to put away his childish ideas and practices and begin to think and conduct himself like a man."

Bay Area Dept. Stores Sponsor Design Contest

A contest to encourage the development of new fashion design ideas by college students in Northern California is being sponsored by the major department stores and specialty shops of the San Francisco Bay area, the Manufacturers and Wholesalers Association of San Francisco and the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Entry blanks may be obtained from Virginia Gohn, merchandising instructor here, whose office is 222, main building. The deadline for entering the contest is March 1, 1954.

Contest information as announced by Miss Gohn is as follows:

United States Government Bonds will be the awards given to the winning students. The first prize is $100. The second through the fifth prize winners will receive $50 each, and the sixth to tenth winners each receive $25. Participating students, whether or not they win awards, will be given every possible assistance in securing employment in the fashion industry.

This contest is open to all students in Northern California who are registered at any four year university or college or two year junior college.

Any category of fashion apparel for men, women, or children will be acceptable. Samples are to be completely made up, in any kind of fabric. Students retain complete possession and ownership of all their samples and may model them personally, if desired, during judging. Each student may show from one to three entries. The entries must be completed by September 1, 1954.

A committee composed of students, other than those entered in the contest, fashion editors, retailers and manufacturers will judge the entries on September 16, 1954. Judging will take place in San Francisco.

In judging the entries the primary objective will be to find fresh new design ideas and functional value in a garment or part of a garment. Expertly finished samples will not be expected by the judges. All entrants will be invited to appear before the judges informally and show their entries.

Library Will Be Ready In March

The library in the new building will be ready for use in March, Clement Skraback, library staff member here, announced last week.

Seating approximately 650 persons, the new library has been designed for spacious comfort, and will provide an excellent opportunity for students to study, to borrow books or to browse.

Outstanding new features are the modern skylights, three levels of open stack books, a special reading, periodical and reserve room, and a wide view of the city.

Rules and regulations will remain about the same, Skraback added.

Film On South Today

The Great New South, film presented this week by the audio-visual department, will be shown only during college hour today, according to Madison Devlin, visual aid instructor at the college.

The movie, shown in Room 136, will be shown only the one time, instead of three times, as originally scheduled, Devlin said.

The change was due to the shifting of college hour for this week from Friday to today.

Students may also see the film at 12 noon on Friday, he stated, also in Room 136.

Deadline Set For Award Applicants

Deadline for applications for the Phi Rho Pi Alumni Speech Award Contest has been set for Tuesday, January 12, Thomas Dutcher, adviser to the debate society, said last week.

Tentative plans are being formed now for the semi-annual contest which will be held in late January, the exact date to be announced later, Dutcher said. Topic fields for the extemporaneous speeches will also be announced at a later date, he said.

The contest is open to all Associated Student members. Students who are interested should consult Dutcher in Building 4K.

The winner of the contest will have his name engraved on the two and one-half foot gold alumni award for speech. Recent winners of the contest were Paul Peterson and Joseph Schwab, Dutcher said.

George Lippi, president of the debate society, is manager for the contest, he added.

Officers for the society this semester are as follows:

Lippi, president; Carmel Todaro, vice-president; Diane Slater, secretary; Don Warto, treasurer; Ken Reaves, CAB representative.

AS Property Inventory Due To Start Friday

Inventory of all property owned by the Associated Students will begin Friday, January 15, according to Wray Jacobs, chairman of the Finance committee. This is the first time, since the opening of the college in 1935, that any such inventory has been taken.

A series of questions will be sent to organizations and clubs on campus. The questionnaire will ask such questions as, the number of articles used in an organization, the date of purchase, condition of the articles, purchase price and probable date of replacement, Jacobs announced. The inventory will cover band, police, choir and football uniforms. The AS also owns drama club and rally committee supplies.

Election Edition

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME XXXVII SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 13, 1954 NUMBER 11

3 AS Offices Uncontested On Official Ballot

Three offices are uncontested in this semester's Associated Student election, which ends today, according to the latest list of candidates released by Larry Elizarde, election commissioner here.

Alberta Cordini, Inter-Fraternity Council candidate for Associated Student vice-president, is unopposed after the withdrawal last week of Mildred Stoll, candidate for that office on the United Student Association ticket, and Bill Boldenweck is now unopposed after the withdrawal of Ken Logolito, USA candidate, from the race for the office of Associated Men Student president. Boldenweck represents the IFC.

The third uncontested office is that of Freshman president. Paul Ortiz of the IFC has the support of both parties.

Other changes in the ballot found two independents withdrawing from the election. Jane Zelinsky was contesting for the office of Associated Women Student president, and Charles Smock was running for a position as a sophomore member of council.

There were several changes in those contesting freshman and sophomore memberships on council.

From the IFC, Frances Ratcliff withdrew from the election, and Jim Herman, Betty Peterson, and Marcia Norstrum were added to the ballot for the freshman. George Saba and Brad Owens are now in the race for the sophomore members of council.

The USA had only one change, with Al Vanoni replacing Bobbie Wallace in the competition for position as a freshman member of council.

Conlan Expresses Sympathy Over Death Of Tomer

It was with the deepest sympathy that President Louis G. Conlan last week announced to the college the death of Stephen J. Tomer, faculty member here since 1937. Tomer was a chemistry instructor at the time of his death.

He died suddenly of a heart attack on December 23, 1953. Tomer is survived by his wife and by his mother who is a resident of Plainsville, Ohio. He had no brothers or sisters.

Services were held in San Francisco on December 26 and the burial was at Plainsville on December 28.

Dr. Conlan said that Tomer was an outstanding instructor sincerely interested in the welfare of his students and that his death was a great loss to the college faculty who held him in the highest respect and esteem.

Before coming to City College of San Francisco Tomer was on the faculty of St. Mary's College where he instructed for 13 years.

Tomer received his A.B. from Heidelberg College and his M.A. from Stanford University and had known Dr. Conlan since 1926.

Foreign Students Urged To Register

Foreign students here who have not yet made their Spring semester registration programs are urged to do so by making appointments in the counselling office, Building 3, Joseph Jacobsen, college foreign student adviser, stated yesterday.

He noted that there are still many students who have been slow in making their programs. One reason for the delay, he asserted, is that some students are not acquainted with the work of getting the program straight.

Registration programs outline a temporary course of study for students and are validated with a stamp in the counselling office. Therefore it is necessary to have them made before the expiration of the present semester, Jacobsen said.

Get Your Money's Worth—A Vote Today Will Protect The Investment

THIS week, today, in fact, the most important event of the semester here takes place — the semi-annual Associated Student elections.

Much has been written in the past urging support for AS elections and much more will be written in the future. Examples of such writing are the time worn cliches, "vote as you please, but please vote;" "voting is not only a privilege, but also a duty," "we don't support a candidate, but we do support a vote," "voting is the life-blood of democracy."

The list of similar phrasings is endless; but what are words without actions to carry them out?

In recent elections response to these truthful and sincere urgings has been incredibly slight. For instance, out of approximately 1400 possible voters last semester, only 400 Associated Student members came to the polls.

Four hundred voters out of a possible 1400, that's twenty-nine per cent — twenty-nine per cent of the Associated Students who managed to elect the people who would direct the college's extra-curricular activities for a six month period.

More important, these elected members would direct how to spend the association's funds to which each of the non-voters as well as the voters gave five dollars.

To some of the 1000 non-voters a five dollar investment may seem an incidental sum, not worth taking interest in, but any sound businessman will say that an investment, no matter how small, is important; important enough to observe closely and to help grow.

And if someone else is directing how to spend that investment and directing its growth only a fool would fail to have something to say about who will do the directing of spending his funds.

The only way for the average Associated Student member to have his voice heard concerning expenditure of his five dollar investment is to vote.

Editors will extoll the virtues of voting until time endless as being "the life-blood of democracy," "the exercise of a privilege and a duty," and so forth.

Fine and ideal reasons to "get out the vote," but be practical about it —

An investment is an investment; get your money's worth. Vote, be it IFC, USA or Independent.

Joe Garbarino

IN RUNNING for this office, I realize the responsibilities and duties of the Associated Student President because of my close relationship with the past four presidents. Since 1948 the Inter-Fraternity Council has been a major factor in the success of student government here, and we have made City College the top two-year college in California.

The spirit which the IFC has brought forth this semester has never been heretofore equalled and being an active participant in this move, I hope to keep spirit at the same high level and keep the good name of City College on top.

IFC Candidate

Ed Hjerpe

MY MAIN purpose in running for Associated Student President is to return truly representative government to City College. The methods I intend to use are listed in the 11 point platform of the United Students Association.

My experience in student government includes Associated Men Student President, membership on Sophomore Council, CAB representative, USA President and membership on many committees.

Because of my past experience and because I desire to serve you, I urge you all to cast your vote for me for Associated Student President.

Ed Hjerpe,
USA Candidate

Deadline Set For Soph King, Queen Petitions

Deadline date for the nomination of candidates for college sophomore king and queen is Monday, January 18. All petitions must be returned to the Associated Student office, Building 2, by this time, Keith Franks, sophomore class president here, announced recently.

Voting for candidates also begins on Monday, January 18, and will continue until Friday, January 22. Associated Student card holders are eligible to vote at the silver pole in the main building or in the AS office.

The only requirement for entry into the contest for king and queen is sophomore standing, Franks said and urged all clubs, sororities and fraternities to submit their entries without delay.

The winning queen of the Sophomore Ball will be given an opportunity to compete in the Sophomore Doll contest sponsored by the University of California in March.

CAB To Issue Survey Forms On Student Interest

A new questionnaire form will be issued by the Club Activities board during registration here next semester to all students except new ones, Dave Raphael, president of the CAB, announced recently.

In addition to asking the means of transportation of students to and from the college, the questionnaire will give them an opportunity to state the amount of their college interest and what they believe has been "right and wrong" with past campus activities.

Through this, according to Raphael, the CAB hopes to direct its activities so that more student support will be given, and more genuine interest in college functions will prevail among the students. If the CAB has missed somewhere along the line, Raphael said, the officers will be able to find out where and correct it.

Raphael further stated that instead of being issued questionnaires, new students will be given the blue registration cards issued last semester to all students. The cards show the direction of social interests among the whole student body.

Raphael appointed Loretta Warchot to head the committee in charge of the questionnaires and Mildred Stoll to head the registration cards committee.

1905 Eligible To Vote; Polls Close Today

With a possible turnout of 1905 Associated Students, the elections for this semester end this afternoon at 2:30 p.m., and Larry Elizarde, AS election commissioner, expects a large return when the ballots are counted.

The polls, located in the basement of the main building and in the student lounge in Building 2, opened yesterday morning at 8:30 a.m.

Two members of the election committee are on duty at each of the polls to assist the voters and punch AS cards. The voter should present his AS card to the committee member and sign the register with his name and card number.

Elizarde stressed the importance of having an Associated Student card when going to the polls. No one will be allowed to vote without first presenting an AS card to the election committee member on duty, and the card will be punched to designate that that AS member has already voted.

Results of the election will be announced within 24 hours after the polls close, Elizarde said.

Officers of the election committee include Elizarde and Barbara Sturman, Ray Conlon, Alton Tanner, Jane Lyle, Agnes Dietrich, Loretta Warchot, Walter Pearce, Guy Dertschman Jr., Bob McNaught, Marion Cheader, Walt Spliti, Joe Barvaresco, Albert Gallardo, Margie Hrapoff, Meg Schick, General Allan Chambers, John Sablan and Robert J. Florer.

Others in the group of committee officers are Philippe Jarvie, Trudy Johnstone, Jerry Schween, Janet B. Klieman, Joe Bieman Jr., Jane Peterson, Diane Castro, Joann Livingstone, Sonia Seeboihn, Harold Jackson and Shirley Landman.

No amendments are on this semester's ballot.

Club Meetings, Film This Friday

Club meetings will be held during college hour Friday in rooms assigned, according to Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here.

Also scheduled for the college hour is a film which will be shown in Room 136 in the main building, audio-visual aid instructor Madison Devlin announced. The film, produced by the Chrysler Corporation, is entitled Northward to Nome and depicts the beauty of America's last frontier, Alaska.

It will be shown at 10:40 and 11:30 a.m. and again at 12:30 p.m., Devlin said.

A double college hour is scheduled January 22 for the soph-prof basketball game at the men's gymnasium, according to the social calendar.

Our Suggestions For A Better Student Government In Spring

BY THE end of this week Associated Student officers for Spring 1954 will be elected and will begin formulating their plans for next semester.

It is our hope that in drafting their forthcoming program the officers will take into mind three suggestions which we believe are of prime import to any successful student government.

Our suggestions for a better Associated Students organization are as follows:

1. That all activity planning be done in coordination with every AS organization. Frequently two or more college groups have scheduled campus functions on the same date.

2. That the association constitution and its by-laws be followed without exception. Contrary to the belief of some, "rules are rules" and were made to be kept in all cases. It is neither good government nor is it democratic to enforce a rule in some instances and to seemingly ignore it in others, whatever the reasons.

3. That the college government be truly representative. No matter which campus party gains a majority vote in the elections all interest groups should have their voices heard in the government. A much too select few have been carrying the load of AS work.

We have nothing but praise for the job these few have accomplished, but fine job notwithstanding, more people are needed in AS group functions to truly represent all sides of college life.

With these suggestions The Guardsman wishes the best of luck to all candidates and hopes that whoever wins the election will scan this list of three and evaluate it according to their wish for a successful student government here in Spring 1954.

Shots At Ramdom

A Calm Atmosphere Reigned On West Campus Last Week Because Students Suffer From Laryngitis

By Shirley Murphy

ALL was quieter on the western campus last week. The calm could be attributed to firm resolves for 1954 or, a sudden hurst of academic energy before the end of the semester, but actually at least a portion of the tranquil atmosphere was due to the fact that many students trekked to the snow country during the holidays and while there misplaced their voices.

A Yellow Streak?

Our little Merino Mascot did a capable job spurring the football team on to victory, but he seems to be lacking when it comes to real fighting spirit. Last week he was noted retreating from the advances of Dr. Phyllis Haley's pugnacious cocker spaniel.

One Big Happy Family

The helpful spirit prevalent in the college was demonstrated again by a notice on the bulletin board in the main building last week. The sign was written by a student who wished to sell engineering supplies, but it was not worded simply "For Sale." The phrasing was, "Are you planning to take engineering 22? If so, this may be the break you need."

Seeing Double

Photographer Frank Denevi's assistant is still a little puzzled. When Denevi was taking pictures of Betty Hanneman, United Airlines stewardess representative, and a group of coeds, his helper was to get the names of those being photographed. Ordinarily this would have been a simple assignment, but Denevi kept changing the position of the girls just before he took the picture and the co-ed contingent was made up of twins Jackie and Patti Mascarelli and Pat and Bev McCormick.

Graduates

Former Student Leaders 'Return' To Seek Jobs

They shall return—and that is exactly what numerous graduates of the college have been doing lately, according to Joseph A. Amori, job placement director here.

Among those who visited Amori at the college the week after last Christmas vacation were five former Associated Student presidents, four of whom were Korean veterans recently discharged from the service.

Stanley Fletcher, AS president in Fall 1952, who was also a World War II veteran, was placed by Amori with United Parcel Delivery. Tom Dill, AS president in Spring 1952, found a position with the Geneva Sunnydale Seed Company through the college.

Drafted soon after graduation, Harrison Williams, AS president in 1950, entered Officers' Training School to emerge a First Lieutenant after the war. His major at the college was salesmanship; therefore Amori placed him with the Carnation Company as a sales trainee.

Another AS president, Pete Chevrier, class of 1951, was placed with the Carnation Company, also as a salesman.

Ralph Vetterlein, AS president at the University of California at Berkeley this semester, also returned to his first Alma Mater for future job placement. He is an industrial relations major.

In connection with these incidents, Amori and Louis F. Batmale, dean of student activities, are planning a dinner next semester honoring the 35 past AS presidents of the college.

"We would like to see at the dinner as many of the past presidents as can possibly attend," Amori commented.

Past And Present

Main Building Pillars Reflect Historic Origin

Students walking in and out of the main building of the college countless times a week walk right between the pillars before the entrances oblivious of the fact that they are walking between the pillars of time.

If students would but take a moment to walk up to one of those impressive pillars and examine it closely he would be surprised at seeing how much of the past exists today.

Brachiopods, bryozoans, and other plant-like animals which roamed the shallow seas of the Mississippian regions make up most of the fossilized matter of the pillars. This fossilized formed rock is called Indiana limestone, a popular type of rock used in building many public edifices.

Some two-hundred million years ago, these animals walked the sea bottoms while the amphibeans were starting their ascent from the land to the water. These fossils are really the skeletal remains of the animals which were piled in large layers and after the passing of many ages formed the vast limestone regions of Indiana and the Mississippi area.

Strangely enough the great eastern coal beds along the Appalachians were about to be formed at the same time by the large tropical forests of ferns, some of which reached a height of a hundred feet.

With such a historic background, it is no wonder that these pillars of this limestone are so impressive as they stand silently before the entrances of the public buildings as well as the college. What could be better than a college building for the future built of the past?

Ram's Horn . . .

Letters to the Editor

Editor's Note: The Guardsman is happy to announce that the state of affairs at the college has seemingly achieved perfection. There are no contributions to the Ram's Horn this week and we take it that everyone here is well satisfied with everything on campus.

Just in case, between now and next week, something does come up to disturb this state of perfection and anyone wishes to voice a "gripe," letters to Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman office, Building 4-D. Deadlines are noon each Wednesday.

If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but his identity must be known to the editor.

Perhaps some would like to show their appreciation of the college's seemed perfection. If that be the case, give credit for the excellentness through a letter to the editor.

Canadian H & R Student Speaks To Sixth Grade Class

A letter in a childish hand from a sixth grade class at McKinley Elementary School of San Francisco recently led Tevie Smith, Canadian student of the Hotel and Restaurant division here, to pay a visit to the sixth graders and to speak about his home.

An article about the foreign students of the College Hotel and Restaurant division written by a Guardsman staff member, published therein and later published in the Public School Bulletin, came to the attention of the McKinley children.

According to Smith the children were far from shy. They started a question and answer session without any prompting.

Among the questions asked were, "Is the flag raised every morning in Canada?" "What are the ten Canadian provinces?" "How different from American schools are the Canadian schools?" "What would happen to an American sparrow if he flew over the border into Canada—would he be protected?"

Smith said that he enjoyed talking to the youngsters as much as he thinks they enjoyed hearing him. He spent an hour answering questions but there were still ten hands in the air when it was time for him to leave. The children were currently studying Canada.

Flight From Communism

Nicholas Reveals Experiences In A White Russian Colony

By Mohmud Dean

Flight to freedom from Communist regimes at two different periods within a matter of a few decades is a story told by Voronoff George Nicholas, a white Russian student here.

Nicholas' parents escaped to Manchuria in 1921 with a group of people after the Bolshevik Revolution led to the ultimate control of Soviet Russia by the Communist Party.

Then the second generation was forced to leave China at the beginning of 1949, when the Chinese Communist advanced threateningly.

Born in Shanghai, China, Nicholas lived exclusively with the White Russian Colony and attended a commercial Russian High School where pre-revolutionary subjects were taught. The method of teaching was purely European style.

The difference between a White and Red Russian is that the latter follows the Communist ideology while the former opposes it. There were many White Russian Colonies in Manchuria but after World War II a large number of Russians were repatriated to the Soviet Union thinking that the Communist Party policy had changed. The skeptics remained behind.

About 5,000 White Russians were evacuated to the Philippines under the sponsorship of International Refugee Organizations in 1949, at a time when the Chinese Communists approached Nanking. Nicholas' family was also with this group and was disembarked on a small island called Tubabao in the Philippines.

Within a year and a half the future destiny of the refugees was decided for some went to Australia, some to South America and others to the United States.

A second semester student at the college, Nicholas majors in electronics, a subject which he substituted for music. He is a professional trumpet player and at one time belonged to the Shanghai Municipal Symphony Orchestra.

He also served the US Army for two years, stationed at Fort MacArthur and spent a year with the Sixth Army Band. Now as a veteran he draws $135 a month under the GI Bill.

Stateless and a married man, Nicholas expects to obtain United States citizenship in the near future. As a displaced person he finds America his best haven.

Snake Raising

Student Keeps Two Boas, One Python As Pets

By Don Osborne

Some landlords may object to renting apartments to families that have children or dogs, but apparently there is no objection to raising snakes.

William A. Carney, student at the college, can verify this statement by the fact that he raises two boa constrictors and one python snake which he keeps in glass cages in his apartment.

Carney can't remember when he actually became interested in snakes but recalls bringing home small varieties while still a child in Alabama. He has since graduated up the scale to what he terms "a normal interest in reptiles."

The two boa constrictors, who are about three years old and a mere five feet long, were born in this country, but their parents were of South American descent. The python, who made his way to this country from India, is about five years old and measures nine feet from his nose to the tip of his tail. Carney has had the snakes about two years after acquiring them while in Florida.

A regular feeding schedule is set up by Carney which consists of one meal per month. At this time the two boa constrictors receive a couple of live hamsters or guinea pigs, but the python, because of his larger stature, dines on whole rabbits.

Although Carney hasn't named them, he states that the snakes do have different personalities. "One gets angry easily while another hisses quite a lot. All three can be held in my hands depending on their moods," he said, "and on occasion I can even stroke the python's head much the same as petting a dog."

When the snakes outgrow his apartment Carney intends to donate them to the zoo.

When asked if he had any other hobbies Carney said, with a grin, "I'm afraid I'm all wrapped up in this one."

One New Year Vow Kept: Resolve To Make Resolution Every Year

By Harold Painter

The year following the New Year's celebration is generally incidental to the clattering of tin bells and disturbed brows at the sound of kiss-o'clock. No one knows whether he's rushing the new year in or the old out; he's just rushing, wading through wet confetti to the mourning after.

Once arrived, it's "I resolve to make a resolution every new year; that's the only resolution kept."

1954 or 1220. It makes little difference, just another day after tomorrow, then yesterday, progressing backward until it comes limning into view over the celestial horizon. Each one is more battered than the last; each profaned, like the sepulcher strewn with confetti and crushed paper hats.

The never-growing-up new year babe comes around once a year to have its diaper changed.

But it's fun, like jumping through a plate glass window. Or eyeing the future through the bottom of a glass.

New Year Day is time for meditation, surveying the past for a foundation to the future, seeking out mistakes and, failures, rearming hopes and needs.

Time is better measured in progress than years. We've been meeting the New Year while walking backward, bumping into it, back-to-back. And all the jets in the world couldn't revolve the world fast enough to make up for lost time.

The energy spent in celebrating New Year's should be used to perform an open season world cleaning before some one New Year goes off with an H-bomb or mass lunacy.

Victim Files $1,000 Suit Against Regents

Associated Collegiate Press; irked by the ringing of carillon bells, a University of Colorado student sued the board of regents for $1,000 for "mental damages."

But despite testimony of friends who said he had become "ill-tempered" since the bells began to ring and—a university psychologist who said "prolonged stimulation could have such effects," student Glen Groenewold lost his case before the campus moot court.

Groenewold, business manager of the Colorado Daily, charged, "The noxious bells . . . distract me while I work, disturb my work schedule, and have caused me great mental and emotional damage." One day, he said upon hearing the bells he tore up a report which had taken him several hours to compile. Perhaps his most disagreeable experience, Groenewold said, was when the bells played "Hold that Tiger."

The jury termed Groenewold an extra-sensitive individual.

Vikings Knock Rams From State Tourney

Leaskou, Dunn Star As Team Loses 88-83 Heartbreaker In Annual Modesto Tournament

By Gail Moss

A scoring splurge by Mike Leaskou and two outstanding performances by Theopolis Dunn weren't quite enough as the City College cagers dropped two consecutive games last weekend in the 16th annual State Junior College Basketball Tournament held at Modesto Junior College.

The Rams first met Long Beach, winner of the recent Sam Barry Memorial Tourney and eventual winners of the Modesto affair, and dropped a heartbreaker to the Vikings, 88-83. Mike Leaskou had one of the best nights of his career, bucketing 25 points before fouling out in the third quarter, and had he been able to continue, the whole complexion of the game might have been changed. "Diablo" Dunn scored 18 points, controlled the backboards, and completely outplayed Joe Handley, Long Beach's all-tournament center, and Warren Baxter garnered 15 points for the losers. Viking Coach Charlie Church did not substitute during the entire game, and his iron men all scored in double figures. Guard Jerry Mitchell, another all-tournament choice, netted 20 for the winners, and their two "low men" each collected 16.

The Rams, who were ranked highly at the start of the tournament, were in the game all the way. At the end of the first period they trailed by only three points, and at the half they held a 41-36 lead. The Vikings had knotted it by the end of the third quarter, 59-59, and although the home club bucketed 24 points in the final stanza, the Southerners collected 29 to provide them with the final margin of victory.

On Friday afternoon, with a minimum of rest and a natural letdown after the disheartening defeat earlier, the San Franciscans again dropped a close game, this time to the Ventura College Pirates, 71-53. The final count was not indicative of the fight that the Rams put up. Ventura held only a slim 43-40 lead going into the fourth quarter. Turning on the pressure, the losers succeeded only in committing fouls, and the Pirates hit on 16 of 26 free throws in the last period alone to make the final score as large as it was.

Ventura Coach George Hails had apparently heard about Leaskou's performance against Long Beach, and he had his men pressing the Ram guard closely. He tried everything, but he could collect only two points for the entire game.

Dunn, however, nearly matched his performance of the previous night. The big center poured through 18 points and did a fine job on the boards before fouling out midway in the last period. Ventura center Duane Asplund, 6-6 hook shot artist, led the scoring with 22 points, 11 of them in the fourth period and most of those after Dunn had left the game.

Intramural Playoff Dates Now Being Set

Schedules are now being drawn-up for the play-off of various intramural sports here, Ralph Hillsman, college program director, stated last week.

Class champs were decided last week and will vie against other physical education classes in different hours during this week.

Hillsman said the teams will battle until two clubs in various sports meet for the college championship this month.

The delay of these play-offs was brought about by bad weather during the final two weeks before Christmas vacation.

This semester has marked the first time an intramural sports program has been held during physical education periods, rather than after classes.

Previously, Hillsman stated, the program had been aimed at students who didn't partake in the college's physical education activity. Since most men are now in physical education, the program has been altered to what it is at present.

Banquet For Soccer Team Tomorrow

Coach Roy Diederichsen's Ram soccer team will celebrate the end of the campaign by holding a banquet tomorrow night at the Montclair restaurant on Green street.

The affair will start at 6 p.m. with the promised attendance of such stalwarts of the team as Jorge Del Rosario, "the Panama Reed"; Ernie "Steamroller" Smith; Gomer "Goalie" Thomas, Ralph "Payo" Sanchez, Chico "el Bato" Perez, Tony "Flatbush" Critelli and many others who were responsible for the fine showing the team made the past season.

Other college players expected for the banquet are Jaime Martinez, who left the college to join the Air Force, Don Revere, center halfback, the Maltese Twins, Joe and Larry Agius, Guillermo Delgadillo, Bill Torrico, Ray Murillo and Caballon Conrado.

Ernie Smith is in charge of festivities, and he promises a great time for the team.

This season's squad featured a combination of speed, ball-control and good passing "a la Argentina" with the European style of rough, tough good soccer to provide the college with a colorful club.

Although the University of San Francisco took the California-Intercollegiate conference championship, the Rams were contenders all the way, and only a late season slump prevented them from annexing the crown, observers have commented.

Ramblings

By Al Polacio

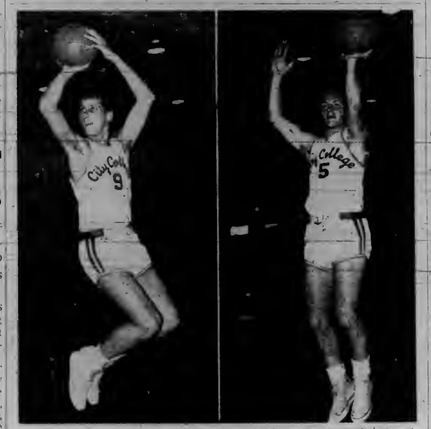
IT looks as if 1954 is going to be a banner year in athletics at the college.

The respective coaches shouldn't necessarily get the idea that a whammy is being put on them but all indications point to great improvement in every sport. Take a look:

The basketball team of last year was a good club but it had the very bad habit of losing the ones they were supposed to win and vice versa. Hence, mediocrity set in. This year, though, things are a lot different, or so the observer is led to believe. Coach Ralph Hillsman, it is felt, has the horses, as they say around the track, and the overall picture is very bright.

In track, Coach Roy Burkhead in 1953 finished the season with nine cindermen who put all their talents together and emerged in a second place standing in the conference. All but two of them are returning and, together with the newly-enrolled ex-prep stars, should shoot the Rams all the way to the top.

An eleven-loss one-won record was all the baseball team could muster last year and that, of course, gave Bill Fischer's horsehiders sole ownership of last place. But remember that Fischer was building with an eye to the future. This could be his long-awaited season to shout.



The 1953 "cinderella" football team suddenly found out about four games into the schedule that it wasn't as bad as everybody thought and pulled itself up by the bootstraps from the depths of the second division into an amazing second place finish.

The majority of the players hinted they would return next season among whom are Fullback Don Brand and Center Earl Smith, backbones of last year's eleven. Unless the guess is wrong, Coach Grover Klemmer will have a very talented outfit to work with come Fall again.

Already a happening of some importance has come in with the new year in the sports side. That, as previously announced, is the forming of a boxing team by Coach Roy Diederichsen after a three-year absence.

January 22 Officially Proclaimed 'D-Day' For Traditional Soph-Prof Basketball Game In Men's Gym

By Humberto Fischnaler

D-Day—Friday, January 22!

That's the date set for that annual extravaganza, that classic of classics, the Soph-Prof basketball game. It will be played in the men's gymnasium during a double college hour with the time limit set for 20 minutes so as to give the professors a chance to catch their breath.

The favored instructors have been training strenuously and promise to be in top shape for the event. Dean John Brady's troops are led by 7' 5" Alex Schwartz, the college's answer to Oregon State's Swede Halbrook; 6' 7" Ralph Hillsman, the playmaker of the team; 6' 3" Roy Diederichsen, the talented soccer, boxing and now basketball star, and 6' 9" Lou Batmale, a promising Casaba artist. Other athletes expected to participate for the Venerable Diffusers of Knowledge are Grover Klemmer, Tom Nesbitt, Roy Burkhead and Mike Monaco.

Sophomore chances for an upset rest in the hands of Dino Gofas, Joe Garbarino, Bill Boldenweck, George Effenberger and player-coach Keith Franks. On these men rests the responsibility of defeating the high and mighty professors.

Last year the "learned ones" came out with a 23-13 triumph at the expense of the upperclassmen but this year, according to Coach Franks, "We will win as we are determined to avenge past debacles suffered by the sophomores at the hands of the instructors."

Physical Ed Instructor Returns To Campus After Year's Absence

Gloria Dunn, women's physical education instructor here, has returned to the college after an absence of a year. She is replacing Vivian Bernard, who will attend a midwestern university to work for her Ph.D. Mrs. Dunn also replaces Miss Bernard as the adviser for the college Women's Athletic Association.

Colleen Walker, president of WAA, announced that an afternoon party, from 4 p.m. until 5 p.m., will be held tomorrow in the women's gymnasium for the purpose of installing new officers and presenting WAA awards.

The last junior college playday of the semester was held on January 9 at College of Marin. Women from the college attended and competed in tennis, archery and badminton.

Varsity Boxing Team Starts Practice For Coming Fistic Season

Boxing practice for next semester's team swung into high gear last week, according to head boxing coach, Roy Diederichsen.

Prospective leather throwers for the varsity team started to work out in earnest in both heavy and light bags, shadow and road work, in preparation for the coming season which is only three weeks away.

According to railbirds at a recent practice, Mike Mitchell, middleweight, and Norman Hill, lightweight, have shown as among the best of the present crop of boxers here.

This year's squad will range from the featherweight class up to the heavyweights, with bouts for all on the team arranged at frequent intervals.

Members of this year's team are as follows: Mitchell, Bruce Comer, John Roach, Hill, Nick Camera, James Bass, Keenen Turner, Phillip Starr, Al Scialanca and Kenneth Stormen.

Ram Hoopsters Face Santa Rosa In Conference Opener

With one of the smallest teams in the Big Seven Conference, and certainly one of the most colorful, the City College cagers journey to Santa Rosa to open their conference season on the Bearcubs' home court at 8 o'clock tonight.

The Rams have come up with seven who might be considered first stringers, in addition to several more who form a top-notch bench. Although only two of these seven, Theopolis Dunn, 6-5 center, and Mike Leaskou, 6-3 guard, can be considered big men, basketball-wise, the whole squad has displayed real hustle and a baffling passing game.

More than once during the practice season the passes of Leaskou and the rest have picked out teammates all alone under the opponents' basket. The result of the hustle and amazing passing is a colorful winning team.

Coach Hillsman's basket-weavers will have to open their bag of tricks when they take on the Bearcubs tonight. The Santa Rosans are defending co-champions of the Big Seven, and although their practice record for this season is only three wins and three losses, they still must be considered a threat.

Under the guidance of Coach Bob Mastin, and with George Slender, all-conference football end and just as dangerous on the court, pumping in the points from his forward position, the Cubs might turn up as the spoilers of the league.

As predicted at the beginning of the season, the Rams' main asset is balance. Leaskou is the leading scorer as the club enters league play. He has garnered 108 points in eight games for a 13.5 average.

Dunn has 99 points for a 12.4 average and has consistently controlled both backboards. Veteran Warren Baxter has collected 91 for a 11.4 average, and Jerry Stack, the only other returning letterman, has netted 62 points and a 7.8 average.

Jack Diggins, Jim Stephens, and Al Holder have all chipped in with important points, and Holder, a teammate of Leaskou's in high school, is showing the ball-hawking ability and team leadership that earned him all-city honors last year at Lowell High School of this city.

Largest Baseball Signup In Recent Years Seen Here

The turnout for the college's varsity baseball team is expected to number 50 or more when coupled with incoming freshmen of Spring '54, Bill Fischer, head coach, announced last week. That will make for the largest sign up for the diamond sport here in recent years.

Of the 33 now on hand, seven are returning veterans, pitchers, Bob Word and Fred Nyser, utility men Ron Lawrence, Ron Rouse and Eddie Fernandez and Rudy Buffin, 1953 Big Seven batting champion.

Dates for all the practice sesions will appear on the bulletin board in the men's gymnasium.

Conlan, Fischer Officiate In East-West Football Classic At Kezar Stadium

By John Murray

During this last East-West football game, January 2, all eyes were centered upon the college greats whose names will live in their minds for a long time to come. But how many ever remember the names of those hard working men who give their time to keep the game what it is, the officials?

Ever stop to think who they are? Could be someone you know, as was the case at Kezar Stadium. Out there among the day's top stars were two members of the college, Louis G. Conlan, president, and William Fischer, physical education instructor and coach.

Fischer, performing the duties of umpire, was noted as one of the day's outstanding officials, outstanding for one reason, because he was the only official minus the traditional black cap. Upon questioning it was learned that the cap was stolen. It seems that the souvenir hunters are no longer content with the goal posts.

Conlan, known to the sports world as "Dutch" Conlan, showed once again as field judge the alertness and good judgment he displays every day for the college.

Conlan and Fischer are not the only faculty members connected with sports in the manner of officials, referees, and umpires. There are many of them, and their names will be coming up time and again in the great sport events of today and tomorrow.

To coin an old phrase, old soldiers never die, nor do boys who grow up lose their love for sports, as our officiating instructors prove.

Dance Scheduled After Variety Show

An Associated Student dance, Curtain Call, will be presented this Friday, January 15 from 11 p.m. to 12 midnight in the college auditorium after the variety show, Julie Hanan, AS vice-president, announced last week.

The college orchestra will provide the music. Casual sportswear is the appropriate attire, and decorations will consist of movie posters from various local shows.

Admission price to the dance has not yet been determined, according to Miss Hanan. The City College-San Mateo basketball game will start at 7 p.m., the variety show at 8:30 p.m., and the AS dance will complete the night of entertainment.

1954 Varieties Open Tomorrow Night

CHOREOGRAPHER for the coming varieties is Julie Hanan. The petite soph is also scheduled to perform in the cast.

Twenty-Four Acts Will Headline Colorful, Student-Produced Show

By Diana Phillips

Campus Daze Down Through the Years, City College of San Francisco 1954 Varieties, will be presented here Thursday and Friday, January 14 and 15, in the auditorium, Building 1, according to Jim Glasson, director of the production. Curtain is 8 o'clock Thursday evening and 8:30 on Friday.

This semester's show consists of approximately two dozen acts, Glasson declared. It includes such specialties as ballet, Spanish and Hawaiian dances and violin and piano solos.

Members of the cast include City College students Kitty Frierson, Bill Nix, Nadine Williams, Anita Parisi, Jerry Chrisman, Ray Tankersly, Lee Meriwether, Glen Wescott, Rich Romich, Tony Young, Charles Mankin, Nolan Kotz, Shell Toor, Judy Apinner, Jan Klieman, Pat Quick, Alejandro Cornejo, Ilona Baker, Pete Garrett, M. The chorus line is composed of Alberta Cordini, Joanne Hassmann, Tony Young, Roberta Usher, Jan Sewall, Barbara Campello, Jane Zelinsky and Miss Meriwether.

Technical advice for the entire production came from Michael Griffin, instructor in the drama department here, Glasson announced.

An all-out publicity campaign was launched last week to interest the public in the show, Glasson stated. Advertising methods used included sending posters to all San Francisco high schools, giving one thousand automobile bumper strips to students and faculty of the college for their cars and a window display in the downtown Emporium.

At the Stonestown Emporium a preview was given Friday afternoon, January 8, in order to publicize the show, Glasson added, and the performance was tied in with the opening of several stores in that location. The presentation, The Gold Melting Pot, included nine acts and a finale.

The show spanned the century, from buckboard and covered wagon to jet and flying saucer." Numbers in the show were School Days, and I've Been Working on the Railroad, by the Hotel and Restaurant quartet; Wagon Wheels, and Iowa, My Iowa, by Nolan Kotz and Shell Toor; Summertime by Nadine Williams and Ed Freeman; Luau by Ilona Baker's Hawaiians, Mag Bolanos and his violin; La Carioca, and April in Portugal, by Alejandro Cornejo's Latin Americans.

The finale, My Country, 'Tis of Thee, was sung by the entire cast. These numbers will be included in the presentation here at the college, Glasson said, and a large turnout is expected.

LEE MERIWETHER will appear in both the cast and chorus of the 1954 varieties that will take place here Thursday and Friday nights.

Total Of 1,905 AS Cards Sold This Semester

Total number of Associated Student cards sold this semester is 1,905, Stan Shalit, AS card sales chairman, announced here last week.

"The efforts of this semester's card sales committee would have been fruitless had it not been for the able assistance of vice-chairman, Ron Byrne, and Dave Harak, Gary Halkens, Wray Jacobs and all others who have helped me," Shalit commented.

Plans for next semester's Associated Student card sales are now underway. The AS card sales committee has been at work designing the card for next semester, arranging discounts, and planning new social activities, Shalit elaborated.

The Associated Men Students and the Associated Women Students will renew their sales contest next semester. The organization which sells the most cards will receive the perpetual trophy which was originated this semester, Shalit stated.

AS members have the right, the privilege, and the responsibility to vote in the Associated Student elections. "Beyond a doubt the most important function of membership in the Associated Students is the duty of voting at election time," Shalit said.

Students are reminded by Shalit that AS cards will gain them admission to the City College basketball games. Students not members of the association will be charged $1.

The early bird, disappointed in not catching the worm, should be sufficiently happy not to be caught off base by the early cat.

AGS Plans A Special Corner In New Library

Plans for an honor society corner in the new library are being made by Alpha Gamma Sigma, honor society here, according to Don Jensen, faculty adviser.

Honor society corner, as it is tentatively called, will be for the benefit and convenience of AGS members only. Although the corner is not yet definite, Jensen said, he hopes it will become a reality.

Next semester the AGS plans to make close contact with high school honor societies in this city by inviting sponsors and presidents to attend the AGS installation dinner, Jensen announced.

Two or three weeks after the opening of the Spring semester, the honor society will hold a Sunday afternoon tea to officially open the AGS activities for the semester, Jensen declared.

Inter-Fraternity Council Offers Four Major, Basic Objectives

Together the candidates of the Inter-Fraternity Council have pledged to strive, to put into effect the following program:

I. To continue to increase the interest and participation in student activities:

A. To implement and expand the current reorganization of the Rally Committee into a still more efficient, workable organization.

B. To provide more varied college hour activities, including outside rallies, and to make it easier to belong to clubs of your choice.

C. In order to increase the student's knowledge of activities and facilities available to them, we will publish a pictorial guide of the campus, showing what these facilities and activities are and where they are taking place. For the new students we will hold a welcome rally at the time of their registration.

D. To present again a full, varied social schedule and to make the Social Committee meetings more accessible to all students.

E. To stimulate greater participation in student activities by the various professional groups on campus by encouraging them to actively participate in the Club Activities Board and in the Mardi Gras.

F. To maintain closer cooperation between the students and the faculty by continuing to hold faculty-student leader conferences.

G. To make it possible for all students to know their athletic teams better by putting pictures of team members at student gathering places. To make available to all students game schedules and team rosters for all athletic events.

II. To improve methods of presenting City College to the public.

A. To institute a program of bringing business leaders from specific industries to visit the campus and providing them with an opportunity to see the advantages of hiring City College graduates.

B. To provide an opportunity for San Franciscans to visit City College on special days, luncheons, and dramatic events.

III. To continue efforts in developing closer relations with the Alumni Association.

A. Establish a strong on-campus Alumni Chapter.

B. Give the Alumni Association the opportunity of participating in City College events.

C. Institute a definite program of informing graduating students of the advantages of joining the Alumni Association.

IV. To try to establish a class in parliamentary procedure so that everyone interested may learn this vital instrument of student government.

United Student Association Proposes 11-Point Program

1. Council Reorganizations

Each council member will be assigned to a standing committee in order to better understand the problems confronting all phases of student government.

2. Posting of Minutes and Agenda

Copies of council minutes and next agenda will be published and posted in both the main building and Cloud Hall in order for all interested students to be given the opportunity to acquaint themselves with the working of your student government.

3. Centralized Ticket Booth

Permanent ticket booths will be set up on the west campus and between the main building and Cloud Hall in order to permit rapid and efficient distribution of The Guardsman and other campus literature and ticket sales.

4. Public Announcement of All Committee Meetings

In order to rectify the present condition of poorly attended committee meetings, all notices of committee meetings will be posted both in the main building and on the west campus.

5. Half-Price Car Tickets

The United Student Association will continue to work to return the right of City College students to purchase reduced fare car tickets from the Municipal Railroad.

6. Special Interest Groups

We feel that there is a definite need for the Associated Students to provide the opportunity to all students to express themselves in their particular field of interest. We therefore advocate that the Associated Students allow small clubs devoted to special interests (chess, stamp collectors and so forth) to hold regularly scheduled meetings on campus.

7. Bi-Monthly Cabinet Meetings

In order to insure a coordinated and definite policy in your student government we advocate a system of bi-monthly cabinet meetings whereby cabinet members can decide on a definite program of needed legislation and a well-planned activity program.

8. Associated Student Constitution

Placing the original draft of the Associated Student Constitution in a suitable frame and placing on display in Cloud Hall.

9. External Publicity

Continue to expand the publicity committee in order to increase the amount of favorable outside publicity in all mediums of publicity.

10. Freshman Orientation

New students should be given a better opportunity to learn about the college. Therefore we feel that Freshman Orientation should be expanded to include a full program of indoctrination including a complete tour of the campus.

11. Government

Continue in the policy that student government is set up to represent all students and the philosophy of student government should be governed by the ideal that personal ambitions and desires should not be the motivation behind your student bodies.

IFC Sweep; Garbarino President

29% Of Eligible Voters Go To Polls; Cordini, Boldenweck, Sewall To Lead Association

By Gail Moss

A surprisingly poor turnout marked the Associated Student election here last week in which Joe Garbarino won the AS presidency for the coming semester and Vice-President Alberta Cordini received a comparatively large vote of confidence.

Garbarino defeated Ed Hjerpe, United Student Association candidate, by 139 votes in the largest vote registered, as the Inter-Fraternity Council made virtually a clean sweep. Even for the important presidential post, however, only 549 of some 1900 eligible voters went to the polls.

Miss Cordini, the IFC choice for vice-president of the AS, ran unopposed and received over 80 per cent voters' support.

The matter was brought before the Student Council, but they could not reach a decision and the case was tabled until this week's meeting.

If Lowe should be declared ineligible, the contested job would go to Jan Sobieski, and she would thus become the lone USA candidate to hold a post. Miss Sobieski finished eighth in the voting for seven council positions.

Jim Moody gained the most votes for the freshman members of council, followed by: Carol Hotton, Joseph Canepa, Marcia Norstrum, Betty Petersen, Lowe and Bob Arago, all of the IFC. If it is decided that Lowe is eligible, these seven will fill the council positions.

Spring Signup For Former Students Set

Spring registration of former students here will be Thursday, February 4, after a five day vacation, according to Gertrude Sommerville, assistant registrar. Final grades will not be available to students until registration day.

Friday, January 29, the end of final week, will start the five day vacation which will end Thursday, February 4. Registration for new students will be Friday, February 5, the day after former students register.

Registration, grades, and transcripts of grades will be held up, if library fines are not paid or gymnasium, chemistry or other equipment is not turned in to instructors. Records must be cleared before Friday, January 29, and instructors and librarians will not be at the college during the five day vacation between semesters.

The registrar's office will be open during the vacation, but it will not be equipped to handle library fines or equipment not returned before the semester closed, Miss Sommerville announced.

Final grades will be sent to the home of any student who leaves a self-addressed envelope with the registrar's office, Miss Sommerville said.

Friday College Hour Expanded For Many Activities Slated

College hour this Friday is expanded to double proportions to accommodate the varied activities slated here for that day, according to Louis Batmale, college dean of student activities.

Topping the list in entertainment is the traditional Soph-Prof basketball game, a classic among college sports events.

Following the game the intra-mural championship awards will be presented to the winning teams at the men's gymnasium.

This Friday's double college hour schedule, as announced by Batmale, is as follows:

8 o'clock classes—8:10 to 8:50.
9 o'clock classes—9:00 to 9:40.
10 o'clock classes—9:50 to 10:30.
College Hour—10:40 to 12:10—with omission of 11 o'clock classes.
12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1 followed by the usual schedule.

Garbarino Message

"I would like to thank each and every one of those students who have placed their faith in me by selecting me as their Associated Student President.

"Looking forward to a successful semester, I feel that if all students would donate some time to their college activities we can and will have a very wonderful and colorful semester."

Joe Garbarino, AS President.

The Crucial: Soph-Prof Tilt Friday At 10:40

By Humberto Fischnaler

Preparations are going on at a feverish pace for Friday's crucial, the annual Soph-Prof basketball game to be played during a double college hour in the men's gymnasium here. Starting time is 10:40 a.m.

Dean John Brady's "oldtimers" report no injuries among their troops but are beginning to wonder if the constant practice hasn't taken some of the sharpness out of the club. Unverified rumors have it that "El Hombre Montana" Schwarz, the ace of the professors, has been missing frequently on his famed hook shot and that Ralph Hillsman is not using his height to advantage on the rebounds.

The Sophomores, according to Keith Franks, their player-coach, will probably use George Effenberger to check Schwarz and Dino Gofas to put the pressure on Hillsman. This strategy may or may not work as the "exalted ones" still have a couple of fair country players in "Dazzling" Roy Diedrichsen, and Lon "Point-a-Minute" Batmale and their strong bench consists of such true and tried veterans as Mike Monaco, Tom Nesbitt, Roy Burkhead and Grover Klemmer.

Franks, whose team must be definitely given the underdog role, hopes that he can find a bench strong enough to throw against the instructors and urges any sophomore who is interested in playing and who hasn't turned out for the team to get in contact with him in Building 2.

Typical of the spirit shown by the sophomores is this remark attributed to Joe Garbarino, "There is no substitute for hustle and we have plenty of it. It will be a close game but we'll win."

The Thinkers have always been able to turn back the Upperclassmen challenge, but Friday's game could very well usher in a new era of victory for the sophomores and establish the supremacy of youth over age with a victory for Franks' neophytes.

That it is a green team, is true, but if spirit can do the job the professors better beware of the sophomores.

Last year in an exciting game the "Brains and Brawn Society" triumphed to the tune of 23-13 as Hillsman and Diedrichsen starred. Alex Schwarz is said to have finally arrived as a polished performer this season and is expected to hold the spotlight. Pro scouts are interested in his style of play and could very well induce him to sign a contract.

Although a large crowd is expected for the affair there are still good seats available for early birds. The game itself will last only 20 minutes by mutual consent so as to allow the professors to catch a train back to their classes.

No betting will be allowed on the premises and anybody found trying to influence the outcome of the game will be turned over to the campus police. A Reno syndicate has made the professors 13½ point favorites.

Voting For King, Queen Of Soph Ball This Week

Voting for King and queen of the Sophomore Ball takes place this week at voting places in the student lounge in Building 2 and at the silver pole in the main building from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Keith Franks, sophomore president, stated recently.

The candidates who have filed petitions up to the present time are Mike Aggeler, Joe Garbarino, Dave Hanak, Edward Hjerpe, Bob Lauenstein, Al Palacio and Jim Vickers for king, and Connie Coleman, Emily Hardy, Mildred Pinkus, and Mildred Stoll for queen.

Franks urged all Associated Student members to vote. Posters with pictures of the candidates will be placed at strategic places to facilitate voting, he added.

Names of the winning contestants will be disclosed at 11 p.m. during the sophomore ball. Engraved trophies will be awarded to the royal couple at the ceremony. The queen will also get the opportunity to compete in the Soph Doll Contest sponsored by the University of California on March 5.

In charge of voting are Meg Schick and Felicia Zeigler, according to Franks.

Soph Ball To Ring Curtain On Year's Social Season Saturday

A formal farewell for the college's sophomore class brings to a close the Fall 1953 social season. The semi-annual sophomore ball will be held on Saturday, January 23, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Terrace Room of the Fairmont Hotel, Keith Franks, sophomore president, announced last week.

Music for dancing will be supplied by Dick Saltzman and his orchestra. Bids for the affair may be purchased this week at the bank in the main building or from sophomore salesmen. The price is $2.50 per couple.

Dark suits or tuxedos for men and formals for women are the appropriate attire, Franks added.

Highlighting this, the last social event of the season, Franks said, will be the coronation of the king and queen at 11 p.m. At this time the names of the two winners will be disclosed, and the perpetual trophies will be awarded to the queen by Beta Tau and to the king by Theta Tau. The coronation waltz led by the royal couple will then follow.

Franks, Warren Kennedy, sophomore vice-president, and Dolores Moscone, sophomore secretary are in charge of the sophomore affairs.

Fall of 1936 saw the inauguration of the sophomore ball. The sophomore graduating class June, 1940 climaxed a week of fun with the formal prom and the election of a "sweetheart."

Sophomore men were given an opportunity to share in the honor when in the fall of 1945 the position of king was added to the ballot. The presentation of perpetual trophies to the royal couple was also started at this time.

H&R Division Announces Finals Week Schedule

Schedule for the cafeteria and campus snack bar for finals and registration week was released today by Hilda Watson, head of the Hotel and Restaurant Division here.

Mrs. Watson reported that during finals breakfast is from 7:30 to 10:15 a.m. and lunch from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. During registration the hours will be 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Normal hours are slated for the snack bar and fountain during finals week except that at the end of the week Mrs. Watson said they will probably close at noon instead of the regular 2 o'clock hour. One thing definite is the schedule during registration; they will be closed all the time.

New AS Officers To Be Welcomed At Banquet Tonight

Present officers of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco will welcome the newly elected officers at the semi-annual banquet for student leaders tonight, George Effenberger, AS president, announced last week. The dinner will be held at the Hotel Californian, he added, at 6:30 p.m., Taylor and O'Farrell Streets in San Francisco.

The newly elected AS president will be sworn in and will take his oath of office during the affair, Effenberger stated. Other newly elected officers will be sworn in tomorrow by the new president, Effenberger commented.

Presentation of the Outstanding Student Award is also scheduled for tonight, Effenberger declared. Those nominated for the award are Ted Kast, Dottie Cutler, Jim Glasson, Ron Byrne, Paul Ortiz and Emily Hardy. The nominees were voted upon by members of the Student Council and President's Cabinet, and the winner will be announced at the banquet.

In order to be eligible for the award, students must not hold either elective or appointive office, according to Effenberger. The award is to honor the student voted as having done the most, individually, for the college and its student government. Such a student, Effenberger continued, is one who volunteers and has worked hard on behalf of City College.

Also on the agenda is the presentation of keys to the members of the Council and Cabinet, Effenberger said. The keys are awarded at the end of each semester to the members of student government.

All members of the Associated Students are invited to attend, Effenberger emphasized. The cost is estimated at approximately $1.50 per person.

Campus Book Store Offers Trade-In Value For Old Text Books

The Ramporium, campus book store, is now accepting text-books for a liberal trade-in value, and will continue to buy all text-books that can be resold until registration day on February 4, Richard Main, manager of the book store, urged students to turn in their books before this date.

The Time Schedule for next semester will go on sale at the Ramporium on Friday, January 22, according to Main. The price will be 25 cents.

Having a Time Schedule before registration starts is both helpful and convenient, since it will save about an hour's work in scheduling programs during registration, Main added.

The Ramporium will have enough copies for the first 1500 persons who arrive at the book store to purchase them. Everyone else will have to wait until the day of registration, Main said.

Club Cavalcade: Installations Over For Fraternities

By Bev Swope

Tau Chi Sigma held its formal initiation on Saturday, January 2, followed by the installation of new officers: President, Dick Arey; Vice-President, Bob Lauenstein; Secretary, Lance Thurston; Treasurer, Al Niemi; Historian, Ron Byrne; Pledgemaster, Gene Borelli. The Garden Room of the Hotel Claremont was the scene of the pledge dinner after initiation and installation. A joint with Zeta Chi was held last Wednesday, January 6, and another with Alpha Lambda Chi is planned for tonight.

Alpha Phi Omega, college service society, held its active initiation on Saturday, January 9 at the home of Anthony Frost with a banquet following. Those made active members were Alton Tanner, Joe Beeman, Richard Trauner, and Leo De Lapp.

The first bi-annual pledge dinner of Lambda Phi was held on Tuesday, January 5. The fall pledge class was officially initiated at this time.

Delta Psi held a joint meeting with Beta Phi Beta last week and a business meeting last night to elect next semester's officers.

Theta Tau and Phi Beta Delta held a joint meeting at the home of Loretta La Fata, Wednesday, January 6.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon held its formal initiation at the estate of their sponsor, Colonel Fred McFarland, on Sunday, January 3. The fraternity now has 19 new brothers. Inauguration of new officers will be held on Saturday, January 16, at Veneto's restaurant in North Beach.

Deadline for all club news is Wednesday at 12 noon. All information should be submitted to The Guardsman office in Building 4 before that time.

Dance Scheduled After Variety Show

An Associated Student dance, Curtain Call, will be presented this Friday, January 15 from 11 p.m. to 12 midnight in the college auditorium after the variety show, Julie Hanan, AS vice-president, announced last week.

The college orchestra will provide the music. Casual sportswear is the appropriate attire, and decorations will consist of movie posters from various local shows.

Admission price to the dance has not yet been determined, according to Miss Hanan. The City College-San Mateo basketball game will start at 7 p.m., the variety show at 8:30 p.m., and the AS dance will complete the night of entertainment.

1954 Varieties Open Tomorrow Night

CHOREOGRAPHER for the coming varieties is Julie Hanan. The petite soph is also scheduled to perform in the cast.

Twenty-Four Acts Will Headline Colorful, Student-Produced Show

By Diana Phillips

Campus Daze Down Through the Years, City College of San Francisco 1954 Varieties, will be presented here Thursday and Friday, January 14 and 15, in the auditorium, Building 1, according to Jim Glasson, director of the production. Curtain is 8 o'clock Thursday evening and 8:30 on Friday.

This semester's show consists of approximately two dozen acts, Glasson declared. It includes such specialties as ballet, Spanish and Hawaiian dances and violin and piano solos.

Members of the cast include City College students Kitty Frierson, Bill Nix, Nadine Williams, Anita Parisi, Jerry Chrisman, Ray Tankersly, Lee Meriwether, Glen Wescott, Rich Romich, Tony Young, Charles Mankin, Nolan Kotz, Shell Toor, Judy Apinner, Jan Klieman, Pat Quick, Alejandro Cornejo, Ilona Baker, Pete Garrett, M. H. Friedrichson, Mag Bolanos, Jan Sobieski, Julie Hanan, the college A Cappella Choir and the Men's Glee Club.

The chorus line is composed of Alberta Cordini, Joanne Hassmann, Tony Young, Roberta Usher, Jan Sewall, Barbara Campello, Jane Zelinsky and Miss Meriwether.

Technical advice for the entire production came from Michael Griffin, instructor in the drama department here, Glasson announced.

An all-out publicity campaign was launched last week to interest the public in the show, Glasson stated. Advertising methods used included sending posters to all San Francisco high schools, giving one thousand automobile bumper strips to students and faculty of the college for their cars and a window display in the downtown Emporium.

At the Stonestown Emporium a preview was given Friday afternoon, January 8, in order to publicize the show, Glasson added, and the performance was tied in with the opening of several stores in that location. The presentation, The Gold Melting Pot, included nine acts and a finale.

The show "spanned the century, from buckboard and covered wagon to jet and flying saucer." Numbers in the show were School Days, and I've Been Working on the Railroad, by the Hotel and Restaurant quartet; Wagon Wheels, and Iowa, My Iowa, by Nolan Kotz and Shell Toor; Summertime by Nadine Williams and Ed Freeman; Luau by Ilona Baker's Hawaiians, Mag Bolanos and his violin; La Cucaracha, and April in Portugal, by Alejandro Cornejo's Latin Americans.

The finale, My Country, 'Tis of Thee, was sung by the entire cast. These numbers will be included in the presentation here at the college, Glasson said, and a large turnout is expected.

LEE MERIWETHER will appear in both the cast and chorus of the 1954 varieties that will take place here Thursday and Friday nights.

Total Of 1,905 AS Cards Sold This Semester

Total number of Associated Student cards sold this semester is 1,905, Stan Shalit, AS card sales chairman, announced here last week.

"The efforts of this semester's card sales committee would have been fruitless had it not been for the able assistance of vice-chairman, Ron Byrne, and Dave Harak, Gary Halkens, Wray Jacobs and all others who have helped me," Shalit commented.

Plans for next semester's Associated Student card sales are now underway. The AS card sales committee has been at work designing the card for next semester, arranging discounts, and planning new social activities, Shalit elaborated.

The Associated Men Students and the Associated Women Students will renew their sales contest next semester. The organization which sells the most cards will receive the perpetual trophy which was originated this semester, Shalit stated.

AS members have the right, the privilege, and the responsibility to vote in the Associated Student elections. "Beyond a doubt the most important function of membership in the Associated Students is the duty of voting at election time," Shalit said.

Students are reminded by Shalit that AS cards will gain them admission to the City College basketball games. Students not members of the association will be charged $1.

The early bird, disappointed in not catching the worm, should be sufficiently happy not to be caught off base by the early cat.

Evening Division Sign-Up Is Set

Registration for the evening division of the college will be held January 25 through January 28, 1954, between the hours of 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. in the main building, Edward Sandys, dean of general college courses, announced here last week.

Instruction will start February 8, 1954, and classes will be held between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m., Mondays through Thursdays. Sandys further pointed out a maximum of six units may be taken in the evening division.

Classes will be offered in business administration, English and speech, floriculture, foreign languages, history, mathematics, music, paint technology, philosophy, photography, psychology, science and sociology, Sandys added.

Printed pamphlets dealing with the evening division of the college may be obtained from counsellors or from the telephone operator in the main building, Sandys stated.

Sandys said the Ramporium will remain open for the first two weeks of next semester so students in the evening division may purchase their books.

AGS Plans A Special Corner In New Library

Plans for an honor society corner in the new library are being made by Alpha Gamma Sigma, honor society here, according to Don Jensen, faculty adviser.

Honor society corner, as it is tentatively called, will be for the benefit and convenience of AGS members only. Although the corner is not yet definite, Jensen said, he hopes it will become a reality.

Next semester the AGS plans to make close contact with high school honor societies in this city by inviting sponsors and presidents to attend the AGS installation dinner, Jensen announced.

Two or three weeks after the opening of the Spring semester, the honor society will hold a Sunday afternoon tea to officially open the AGS activities for the semester, Jensen declared.

Parties Present Platforms

Inter-Fraternity Council Offers Four Major, Basic Objectives

Together the candidates of the Inter-Fraternity Council have pledged to strive to put into effect the following program:

I. To continue to increase the interest and participation in student activities:

A. To implement and expand the current reorganization of the Rally Committee into a still more efficient, workable organization.

B. To provide more varied college hour activities, including outside rallies, and to make it easier to belong to clubs of your choice.

C. In order to increase the student's knowledge of activities and facilities available to them, we will publish a pictorial guide of the campus, showing what these facilities and activities are and where they are taking place. For the new students we will hold a welcome rally at the time of their registration.

D. To present again a full, varied social schedule and to make the Social Committee meetings more accessible to all students.

E. To stimulate greater participation in student activities by the various professional groups on campus by encouraging them to actively participate in the Club Activities Board and in the Mardi Gras.

F. To maintain closer cooperation between the students and the faculty by continuing to hold faculty-student leader conferences.

G. To make it possible for all students to know their athletic teams better by putting pictures of team members at student gathering places. To make available to all students game schedules and team rosters for all athletic events.

II. To improve methods of presenting City College to the public.

A. To institute a program of bringing business leaders from specific industries to visit the campus and providing them with an opportunity to see the advantages of hiring City College graduates.

B. To provide an opportunity for San Franciscans to visit City College on special days, luncheons, and dramatic events.

III. To continue efforts in developing closer relations with the Alumni Association.

A. Establish a strong on-campus Alumni Chapter.

B. Give the Alumni Association the opportunity of participating in City College events.

C. Institute a definite program of informing graduating students of the advantages of joining the Alumni Association.

IV. To try to establish a class in parliamentary procedure so that everyone interested may learn this vital instrument of student government.

United Student Association Proposes 11-Point Program

1. Council Reorganizations

Each council member will be assigned to a standing committee in order to better understand the problems confronting all phases of student government.

2. Posting of Minutes and Agenda

Copies of council minutes and next agenda will be published and posted in both the main building and Cloud Hall in order for all interested students to be given the opportunity to acquaint themselves with the working of your student government.

3. Centralized Ticket Booth

Permanent ticket booths will be set up on the west campus and between the main building and Cloud Hall in order to permit rapid and efficient distribution of The Guardsman and other campus literature and ticket sales.

4. Public Announcement of All Committee Meetings

In order to rectify the present condition of poorly attended committee meetings, all notices of committee meetings will be posted both in the main building and on the west campus.

5. Half-Price Car Tickets

The United Student Association will continue to work to return the right of City College students to purchase reduced fare car tickets from the Municipal Railroad.

6. Special Interest Groups

We feel that there is a definite need for the Associated Students to provide the opportunity to all students to express themselves in their particular field of interest. We therefore advocate that the Associated Students allow small clubs devoted to special interests (chess, stamp collectors and so forth) to hold regularly scheduled meetings on campus.

7. Bi-Monthly Cabinet Meetings

In order to insure a coordinated and definite policy in your student government we advocate a system of bi-monthly cabinet meetings whereby cabinet members can decide on a definite program of needed legislation and a well-planned activity program.

8. Associated Student Constitution

Placing the original draft of the Associated Student Constitution in a suitable frame and placing on display in Cloud Hall.

9. External Publicity

Continue to expand the publicity committee in order to increase the amount of favorable outside publicity in all mediums of publicity.

10. Freshman Orientation

New students should be given a better opportunity to learn about the college. Therefore we feel that Freshman Orientation should be expanded to include a full program of indoctrination including a complete tour of the campus.

11. Government

Continue in the policy that student government is set up to represent all students and the philosophy of student government should be governed by the ideal that personal ambitions and desires should not be the motivation behind your student bodies.

Spring Signup For Former Students Set

Spring registration of former students here will be Thursday, February 4, after a five day vacation, according to Gertrude Sommerville, assistant registrar. Final grades will not be available to students until registration day.

Friday, January 29, the end of final week, will start the five day vacation which will end Thursday, February 4. Registration for new students will be Friday, February 5, the day after former students register.

Registration, grades, and transcripts of grades will be held up, if library fines are not paid or gymnasium, chemistry or other equipment is not turned in to instructors. Records must be cleared before Friday, January 29, and instructors and librarians will not be at the college during the five day vacation between semesters.

The registrar's office will be open during the vacation, but it will not be equipped to handle library fines or equipment not returned before the semester closed, Miss Sommerville announced.

Final grades will be sent to the home of any student who leaves a self-addressed envelope with the registrar's office, Miss Sommerville said.

IFC Sweep; Garbarino President

29% Of Eligible Voters Go To Polls; Cordini, Boldenweck, Sewall To Lead Association

By Gail Moss

A surprisingly poor turnout marked the Associated Student election here last week in which Joe Garbarino won the AS presidency for the coming semester and Vice-President Alberta Cordini received a comparatively large vote of confidence.

Garbarino defeated Ed Hjerpe, United Student Association candidate, by 139 votes in the largest vote registered, as the Inter-Fraternity Council made virtually a clean sweep. Even for the important presidential post, however, only 549 of some 1900 eligible voters went to the polls.

Miss Cordini, the IFC choice for vice-president of the AS, ran unopposed and received over 80 per cent of the voters' support.

In other important races, Jan Sewall (IFC) captured the presidency of the Associated Women Students by a wide margin over Jan Michel (USA), and Jim Vickers (IFC) edged out Al Palacio (USA) for the office of sophomore president. Bill Boldenweck, the IFC candidate for the office of Associated Men Student president, ran unopposed, as did Joseph Paul Ortiz, who received the support of both parties.

The IFC swept the race for the seven sophomore council positions. Roberta Usher won the most support, with George Saba, Brad Owens, Mikie Wrenn, Alice St. Louis, William Phillips and Ken Feldin also winning posts and finishing in that order.

Their greatest opposition was provided by Emily Hardy (USA), who missed a seat on the council by only five votes, and by Dot Cutler, who finished only 11 votes behind Miss Hardy. Miss Cutler was the only independent on the ticket.

The race for freshman council seats was just as close, and at press time one seat was still undecided: Lawrence Lowe (IFC) apparently won the position, making it a clean sweep for his party, but it was discovered that he is not officially a member of the Associated Students. The matter was brought before the Student Council, but they could not reach a decision and the case was tabled until this week's meeting.

If Lowe should be declared ineligible, the contested job would go to Jan Sobieski, and she would thus become the lone USA candidate to hold a post. Miss Sobieski finished eighth in the voting for seven council positions.

Jim Moody gained the most votes for the freshman members of council, followed by Carol Hotton, Joseph Canepa, Marcia Norstrum, Betty Petersen, Lowe and Bob Arago, all of the IFC. If it is decided that Lowe is eligible, these seven will fill the council positions.

Garbarino Message

"I would like to thank each and every one of those students who have placed their faith in me by selecting me as their Associated Student President.

"Looking forward to a successful semester, I feel that if all students would donate some time to their college activities we can and will have a very wonderful and colorful semester."

The Crucial: Soph-Prof Tilt Friday At 10:40

By Humberto Fischnaler

Preparations are going on at a feverish pace for Friday's crucial, the annual Soph-Prof basketball game to be played during a double college hour in the men's gymnasium here. Starting time is 10:40 a.m.

Prospective Grads Carry On Tradition

Voting For King, Queen Of Soph Ball This Week

Voting for king and queen of the Sophomore Ball takes place this week at voting places in the student lounge in Building 2 and at the silver pole in the main building from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Keith Franks, sophomore president, stated recently.

The candidates who have filed petitions up to the present time are Mike Aggeler, Joe Garbarino, Dave Hanak, Edward Hjerpe, Bob Lauenstein, Al Palacio and Jim Vickers for king, and Connie Coleman, Emily Hardy, Mildred Pinkus and Mildred Stoll for queen.

Franks urged all Associated Student members to vote. Posters with pictures of the candidates will be placed at strategic places to facilitate voting, he added.

Names of the winning contestants will be disclosed at 11 p.m. during the sophomore ball. Engraved trophies will be awarded to the royal couple at the ceremony. The queen will also get the opportunity to compete in the Soph Doll Contest sponsored by the University of California on March 5.

In charge of voting are Meg Schick and Felicia Zeigler, according to Franks.

Soph Ball To Ring Curtain On Year's Social Season Saturday

A formal farewell for the college's sophomore class brings to a close the Fall 1953 social season. The semi-annual sophomore ball will be held on Saturday, January 23, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Terrace Room of the Fairmont Hotel, Keith Franks, sophomore president, announced last week.

Music for dancing will be supplied by Dick Saltzman and his orchestra. Bids for the affair may be purchased this week at the bank in the main building or from sophomore salesmen. The price is $2.50 per couple.

Dark suits or tuxedos for men and formals for women are the appropriate attire, Franks added.

Highlighting this, the last social event of the season, Franks said, will be the coronation of the king and queen at 11 p.m. At this time the names of the two winners will be disclosed, and the perpetual trophies will be awarded to the queen by Beta Tau and to the king by Theta Tau. The coronation waltz led by the royal couple will then follow.

Franks, Warren Kennedy, sophomore vice-president, and Dolores Moscone, sophomore secretary are in charge of the sophomore affairs.

Fall of 1936 saw the inauguration of the sophomore ball. The sophomore graduating class June, 1940 climaxed a week of fun with the formal prom and the election of a "sweetheart."

Sophomore men were given an opportunity to share in the honor when in the fall of 1945 the position of king was added to the ballot. The presentation of perpetual trophies to the royal couple was also started at this time.

H&R Division Announces Finals Week Schedule

Schedule for the cafeteria and campus snack bar for finals and registration week was released today by Hilda Watson, head of the Hotel and Restaurant Division here.

Mrs. Watson reported that during finals breakfast is from 7:30 to 10:15 a.m., and lunch from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. During registration the hours will be 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Normal hours are slated for the snack bar and fountain during finals week except that at the end of the week Mrs. Watson said they will probably close at noon instead of the regular 2 o'clock hour. One thing definite is the schedule during registration; they will be closed all the time.

New AS Officers To Be Welcomed At Banquet Tonight

Present officers of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco will welcome the newly elected officers at the semi-annual banquet for student leaders tonight, George Effenberger, AS president, announced last week. The dinner will be held at the Hotel Californian, he added, at 6:30 p.m., Taylor and O'Farrell Streets in San Francisco.

The newly elected AS president will be sworn in and will take his oath of office during the affair, Effenberger stated. Other newly elected officers will be sworn in tomorrow by the new president, Effenberger commented.

Presentation of the Outstanding Student Award is also scheduled for tonight, Effenberger declared. Those nominated for the award are Ted Kast, Dottie Cutler, Jim Glasson, Ron Byrne, Paul Ortiz and Emily Hardy. The nominees were voted upon by members of the Student Council and President's Cabinet, and the winner will be announced at the banquet.

In order to be eligible for the award, students must not hold either elective or appointive office, according to Effenberger. The award is to honor the student voted as having done the most, individually, for the college and its student government. Such a student, Effenberger continued, is one who volunteers and has worked hard on behalf of City College.

Also on the agenda is the presentation of keys to the members of the Council and Cabinet, Effenberger said. The keys are awarded at the end of each semester to the members of student government.

All members of the Associated Students are invited to attend, Effenberger emphasized. The cost is estimated at approximately $1.50 per person.

Campus Book Store Offers Trade-In Value For Old Text Books

The Ramporium, campus book store, is now accepting text-books for a 40 per cent trade-in value, and will continue to buy all text-books that can be resold until registration day, on February 4. Richard Main, manager of the book store, urged students to turn in their books before this date.

The Time Schedule for next semester will go on sale at the Ramporium on Friday, January 22, according to Main. The price will be 25 cents.

Having a Time Schedule before registration starts is both helpful and convenient, since it will save about an hour's work in scheduling programs during registration, Main added.

The Ramporium will have enough copies for the first 1500 persons who arrive at the book store to purchase them. Everyone else will have to wait until the day of registration, Main said.

Shots At RAMdom . . . The Semester In Review

By Shirley Murphy

BEFORE the Fall '53 semester is concluded, let's take a look at it and review what has happened of importance here from September 1953 up to the present.

George Effenberger and Julie Hanan took over the two top Associated Student offices on September 14. The freshman dance, held at the Colonial Room of the St. Francis Hotel was on October 2. The AS card sales drive broke records, 1500 cards sold during the first week by the AS card sales committee. Errol Garner highlighted the first rally of the semester. The Ram eleven lost 7-6 to Menlo in the first football contest of the season.

CLUB DAY IN SPOTLIGHT

Club Day held the spotlight during the first week of October. Activities of the day, sponsored by CAB to acquaint new students with extra-curricular facilities of the college, were climaxed by the Club Carnival Dance in the evening.

In his message President Louis G. Conlan expressed the hope that the opening of the new building in the Spring would bring students closer to the college and its activities. In the sports department a 13-13 tie with the Santa Rosa Bearcubs was recorded.

Homecoming week was celebrated October 11 to 15. The AMS Rally-Dance at which Roberta Usher was crowned Homecoming Queen and the AWS awarded a plaque for selling the most AS cards; and the game with Los Angeles City College, which resulted in a 19-19 deadlock, were the newsworthy events of the week. The soccer team tied USF and the Ram gridders bowed to West Contra Costa 39-13.

Who Got 'Em Tom-Tom was the question of the week as October 19 rolled around. The missing drum was the Tom-Tom Trophy, traditionally awarded to the winner of the CCSF-San Mateo game. The Maie Anhaul, first theatrical production of the semester, was presented by the drama society October 23 and 24. Stanford defeated the Ram soccermen 2-0.

Ram Mascot Comes To College, the "big story" of the semester, broke October 28, complete with the details of his capture by five "fearless" students. Student leaders attended the Northern California Junior College Conference at Sacramento. "We Had 'Em Tom-Tom Trophy," since it turned up in the rooting section as we whipped the Bulldogs 32-13.

COFFEE TIME

At the half way mark, the student faculty coffee hour was the event of the week. Hayloft Hop, western garb, ma'am, was presented by the Inter-Fraternity Council. A special bus sped Ram rooters to the Sacramento football tilt. The soccer team boasted a 3-2 score over San Francisco State.

It was "tea time" in Mid-November as the AWS hosted prospective women students from the San Francisco high schools at a tea and fashion show. Student leaders attend the Asilomar conference and the United Student Association presented its first dance. The Ram eleven beat Sacramento and Stockton to seize third place in the Big Seven Conference.

The Torch-Bearers illuminated the Little Theater December 3, 4 and 5. Three vacant Student Council seats were filled that week, and the debate society participated in discussions at the University of California. City College wound up the grid season in second place in the Big Seven by defeating Modesto 24-21.

Politics reared its head just before Christmas vacation. Both parties, the Inter-Fraternity Council and the United Student Association, held conventions to nominate candidates for the spring elections. The traditional Christmas concert was presented in the auditorium by 100 students. College athletes received awards at the Block SF dinner. Five Ram gridders were announced all conference selections and four soccer stars were named to the All-California Inter-Collegiate Conference team. USF's frosh team edged the Ram quintet 56-55, opening the basketball season.

Highlight of the New Year was Prep Day, when the college administration and Associated Students hosted administrative and student leaders from San Francisco high schools. Candidates for the Spring semester elections were introduced at a college hour rally. Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, held an award dinner. Roberta Usher and Frances Bellis were announced winners of the Dorman scholarships. The Ram basketeers divided four games.

ELECTIONS, VARIETIES

AS elections and the 1954 Varieties headlined last week's activities. A complete listing of candidates, their statements and the platforms of the two parties comprised the election coverage. Plans were being made for the Sophomore Ball, to be held January 23 by the class officers. The traditional Soph-Prof basketball game slated for January 22, held the sport limelight. Mountclair Restaurant was the locale of the banquet honoring the soccer team.

These events constituted the big news of the semester and these coupled with the every day occurrences of college life, have added memorable chapter to the history of City College of San Francisco.

'Pat On Back' To Students, Faculty For A Successful Fall

ON BEHALF of The Guardsman and on behalf of the members of the Associated Students, we would like to give a "pat on the back" to the Fall semester's asspciation leaders for a fine job well done.

Few Associated Student Presidents anywhere have ever worked harder at their position or gained more benefits for their organization than outgoing AS President George Effenberger.

Space limitations won't permit us to voice our appreciation individually to each and every AS member who has worked greatly to the advantage of all of us, but rest assured—their service to the college has not gone unrecognized.

Without the efforts of Effenberger and these unnamed benefactors much good would have been omitted from the lives of students here during the semester.

To the association's administrative adviser, Louis Batmale, we also extend a warm and sincere "thank you" for the invaluable aid and guidance which he has offered us this Fall.

No one can dispute the fact that the semester has been successful from the standpoint of student activities. This success was made possible not only by the student and faculty leaders of the college but by you—"Mr. Average Student." We believe you deserve a big "pat on the back" and a "well done."

The Guardsman itself wishes to express gratitude for the assistance everyone here has given us in publishing our paper during the Fall.

We hope it has in some small way added to your enjoyment of student activities this semester. We were honored and happy to have served one of the finest and most appreciative audiences which any publication could ever have.

Stepping out of usual editorial style I wish to personally thank each of the persons and groups named above for their understanding help and would especially like to offer my sincerest "thanks" to all the members of The Guardsman staff for their talents and hard work.

Without the inspired work of these writers, frankly, I would have been "lost" and if the readers will look in the staff listing below "Editor-in-Chief" they will see the names of those people who really did the job of bringing The Guardsman into their college life this semester.

The last name in the listing, Joan Nourse, is the first in the minds of all us in The Guardsman. Her unmatchable advice and guidance and most especially, her unbelievable patience, will be remembered by myself and the whole staff for many years to come.

Miss Nourse's patience was almost matched by our printers at the Shanly Company, whom I thank for all the valuable assistance and courtesy they have shown to us.

To those of you who are leaving the college, goodbye and good luck; knowing each of you has added something worthwhile to all our lives. We know you have all gained immeasurable educational stature from your stay here.

To those returning in Spring, thanks again for your support and we'll look forward to seeing you next semester in the pages of your newspaper, The Guardsman.

Dick Meister, Editor, and The Guardsman Staff

Congratulations To New AS Officers

WE OFFER our congratulations to new Associated Student President, Joe Garbarino, and to the other newly elected association officers.

Best wishes for a successful semester which will benefit yourselves as well as the whole organization.

We know all candidates, elected or not, will work together for the betterment of the college and its students.

Toronto Student Newspaper Editor Resigns In Protest

"I dislike communism to the extent that I feel any means directed against its destruction are fair."

And, so saying, news editor Paul Bacon of the University of Toronto's student newspaper resigned his job. He was protesting the burning in effigy of Senator Joseph McCarthy by fellow students, who performed the act one night with the full support of the paper.

SWEETER SWEET CORN: A new variety of corn—four times as sweet as any now known—has been developed by a botanist at the University of Illinois. The extra sweetness is caused by a gene called "shrunken-2." The new corn is expected to be placed on the market sometime within the next three to six years.

TOIL AND TROUBLE: His faith "materially shaken" in the power of crystal balls, Dr. Albert Hyma, a professor at the University of Michigan, has sued his Detroit spiritualist for $16,400.

A fellow of the Royal Historical Society of London and of the Guggenheim Memorial foundation, Hyma began having seances with the spiritualist in 1937. Her financial advice, he said, has been nothing but wrong. At one time the professor even mortgaged his house to get $9,500 he needed to follow up a tip.

During the seances the spiritualist would connect Hyma with his mystic "godfather"—English author Thomas Carlyle.

Wrestlers' Blood-And-Thunder Draws Variety Of Characters

By Harold Painter

PROFESSIONAL wrestling is one of those acts that everyone wants to get into; there's nothing like it for vicarious participation. From grandmother breaking out of her lace in the front row to the drunk in the gallery there's an open invitation to get into the tussle.

But participation is generally limited to verbal ear holds an guided missiles of abuse and refuse. The only safe party is in the boiler room, and he sometimes wonders if the roof is going to bring the match to the basement.

Most bouts feature a waffle-eared villain and a handsome young hero dedicated to preserving his maiden ears. Anything from slapstick to heavy drama is likely to result, and the only people disappointed are those that didn't get in.

Although no official publication will uphold the opinion that any one wrestler is the nastiest man in town, the crowd is completely in the know and quickly strews the villains entrance with paper cups and boos. On the way to the ring he wrestles umbrellas, purses, and rolled up newspapers; he's usually dressed in his favorite conception of Moses, and bears abuse in a smug imitation of a martyr to he doesn't know what.

The hero is borne in on more triumphal noise than can be made by a cavalry charge in an echo chamber. If he can write, he'll sign autographs; otherwise he'll smile from cauliflower to cauliflower and strike a pose.

The first round sounds like two steers in a head-on collision and someone slapping two steaks together. The nice man bows and greets with a hand-shake. The response is usually growling and a good eye gouging; rolling, cursing; an airplane swing and a hailing out with no parachute.

The last bout is one of those affairs where the fans know if he does it will tactics,' and generally ends up on the floor like two hamburgers smothered in referees and seconds, just before time to leave.

Everyone leaves in a state of complete excitement, sure to come back next week, wrestling his way home through bus and traffic.

Sno-Mobile Feature Heads List On Out Of This World Show

A sno-mobile isn't a vehicle, as one might suspect, nor is it anything from outer space.

The sno-mobile is among the many displays of mobiles in building 4, on the second floor, constructed by the basic design class which operates under the supervision of Merle Wenman, instructor.

These "3-D" mobiles must have had a theme in mind by its designer, besides having had a correct feeling of balance.

In the case of the sno-mobile, the necessary requirements were—paper, which had to be bent in order to offer weight for the balance, and threads of tension members which were attached to let the weight hang. Supporting the paper and threads are "arms," which are composed of pieces of wire.

The designer of the sno-mobile chose "cold winter" for his theme and had his mobile attached to a thin wire over a platform where angel hair represents the space between the falling snowflakes and the earth. Dark-blue cellophane was used to portray a sense of coldness to the earth.

Mobiles may be made of any materials; the object is to give constant motion, and they may present an idea or thought.

The family of birds known as dippers and water ouzels exhibit remarkable agility under water and while submerged use their wings much as they do in flying.

Effenberger Urges Active Student Participation

I WISH at this time to extend to all the students of City College of San Francisco my personal and heartfelt thanks for their support throughout my term of office as Associated Student President.

In so doing, however, there are certain impressions which have accumulated in my mind during my tenure of office. In the interest of maintaining the high point of student government, developed over the years here at the college, I feel obligated to mention just a few of the more prominent ones:

In any community which lacks the spirit of "teamwork" there is bound to exist chaos, lack of organization and internal strife. The world is founded upon good intentions, but these same intentions without execution are but good intentions. You have just been faced with the duty of electing a new student administration. This having been accomplished, pledge your whole-hearted support to these people; they possess your mandate, but again intentions must be accompanied with positive measures, positive support.

Your student activity program is dedicated to you, the students, and by your participation through the purchase of an Associated Student membership card, you insure your activity program. This newspaper which you are now reading costs you approximately $3000 per semester to publish; your athletic teams require your financial support; your band and choir also need monetary assistance; your budget then is derived from the sale of AS cards. From a tuitional standpoint, City College offers you free education, is it asking too much of you to support your college for the mere $5 per semester for AS membership?

Your faculty is the best that the City and County of San Francisco can offer you. Their reputation speaks for itself and this is continually pointed out by the Board of Education and the Superintendent of Schools. Support the faculty, develop a closer association by seeking their advice. You are citizens of your college community and citizens of your country, but, moreover, you are here to develop that citizenship to its highest degree of perfection. This you can do, if you will. The faculty by virtue of their wisdom and years of experience can offer sterling bits of advice if consulted. You are at an age now where the national legislature is pondering a question vitally concerning you and the future of our nation, the issue of a constitutional amendment and the lowering of the legal voting age. This means that responsibility is being pushed upon you whether you are to accept it or not. Develop pride and confidence in yourself, but also learn to appreciate your fellow man.

Ask questions of people, understand others by understanding yourself, but inquire. Thinking is still your sole prerogative, the responsibility of arriving at a conclusion still rests with you. Ask the advice of those who can give sound advice. Ask your faculty to participate. Build that certain something in your college called "esprit de corps."

In leaving, I wish to you from the bottom of my heart all the good fortune and success which life has to offer.

George Effenberger,
Associated Student President,
City College of San Francisco, Fall 1953

Intra Program To Be Completed This Friday 'IF'

Intramural titles in various sports here should be decided this Friday if everything goes according to schedule, Ralph Hillsman, program director stated last week.

Football went into the semi-final stage last Friday as a team from Grover Klemmer's Tuesday-Thursday 11 o'clock class outfought gridders from Roy Diederichsen's 11 o'clock class, 13-6. At the same time less than fifty yards to the side, Alex Schwarz's team was battling Roy Burkhead's aggregation to a 6-6 tie, the winner to be decided by the dipping of a coin because of the crowded schedule.

Hence Klemmer's team will vie against either Burkhead or Schwarz club to determine an opponent for the Monday-Wednesday class champion.

On the basketball front, the first round of semi-finals is still being played, and should have been completed as of now, making the college championship game for the hardwood sport possible this Friday.

Students were also fighting for top honors in semi-final and final rounds of tennis last week. In the intermediate doubles Diederichsen's Tuesday-Thursday partners meet Hillsman's duo from his 11 o'clock for championship on a date not yet set.

Elementary singles in the net sport were narrowed down to two players. Intermediate singles and elementary doubles are slated to be completed also by this Friday, according to Coach Roy Diederichsen who was present at the matches.

Note: Names of participating players were not available.

Baseballers In Initial Workout At Ocean View

Baseball workouts on last Monday and Tuesday were canceled because of bad weather conditions suffered last week. However, on Wednesday, with ideal weather conditions prevailing, 35 horseshiders took to the field at Ocean View Park for their initial practice session of the 1954 season, Bill Fischer, head baseball coach here, stated.

Six of the prospective players are veterans, pitchers Bob Word and Fred Nyser, utility men Ron Lawrence, Ron Taurse and Eddie Fernandez and Rudy Buffin, 1953 Big Seven batting champion.

In answer to the question of why the large turnout for the diamond sport this season, Fischer said, "I am very glad to see that interest in the national pastime here on the campus is again on the upward climb after showing a notable decrease in recent years."

Practice session schedules will appear on the bulletin board of the men's gymnasium, Fischer commented.

Ram Boxers Shape Up For Coming Practice Meet Against SF State

Boxing practice for the college varsity team stepped up to a fast pace last week in preparation for the coming practice meet against a freshman squad from San Francisco State, Roy Diederichsen, head boxing instructor, announced last week.

The Rams are scheduled to meet the crosstowners in three weeks for light sparring workouts.

Commenting on the training routine the men have been observing, Diederichsen stated, "Just like the rest of the coaches in this business I would like to see things going a little better, but for the most part I am satisfied with the work the team has been doing."

Going a little further to applaud his boxers the coach said, "Some members of the varsity team have been working out on their own along with regular scheduled practices in the afternoon."

Diederichsen declared, "All we need is a little experience. Right now most of the men on hand will be stepping into a squared circle for the first time, and when they meet the 'Gators, they'll be a little nervous at first, but when our men get a few fights under their belts, their opponents will be the recipients of a lot of trouble when we meet up with them. All we need is just a little experience."

Emphasis in recent work-outs has been mainly on conditioning, shadow boxing and work-out on the heavy bag.

As seen from outside the ropes, Mike Mitchell, middleweight, and lightweight Norman Hill have shown much during the recent practice periods and are expected to be among the best against the 'Gators.

From the featherweight to the pile-driving heavyweight, the college boxing squad will be well filled for the coming bouts.

Making up the leather-throwing roster are Mitchell, Bruce Comer, John Roach, Hill, Nick Camera, James Bass, Keenen Turner, Phillip Starr, Al Scialanca, George Berkeley and Kenneth Stormen.

Ramblings

By Al Palacio

ODDS and ends from a sports reporter's notebook which will be closed today for the last time this semester. . . . Basketball Coach Ralph Hillsman has nothing but praise for the superb ball-handling and passing of his ace guard, Mike Leaskou.

"I have seldom had the pleasure to work with a player who handles himself so gracefully and effortlessly as Mike," raves the likeable cage mentor.

The Ram flash, in our book, is smooth and coordinated in every phase of the game. He moves with the quickness of a cat and possesses an uneanny eye which makes him a threat from any spot on the court. His best shot is a virtually unstoppable jump push which has gained him top-scoring honors in many contests.

As Hillsman said, the 6-foot-3 star shoots only when it is certain his teammates are well covered. There is nothing hoggish about him and fellow players will attest to that.

Our vote for the best little man in Big Seven Conference basketball right now must go to diminutive Warren Baxter, 5-foot-8 City College forward. His main asset is speed of which he takes full advantage.

The well-built, ever-hustling Baxter makes his presence felt in every tilt. He is all over the court intercepting passes, setting up scores, and raising havoc with opponents.

Roy Diederichsen, soccer and boxing coach, is well pleased with the crop of pugilists who turned out for the newly-formed boxing team. "Most of them lack experience," he commented, "but they're learning fast."

When the Rams arrived on the scene of the recent Modesto Invitational Junior College Basketball Tournament, they found much to their surprise that they had been picked as co-favorites along with Long Beach for championship honors.

There's a reason for the broad smile on the face of Track Coach Roy Burkhead, and it isn't because of the beautiful weather, either.

His Ram thinclads have what is shaping up to be just about the best squad he has ever handled at the college. He has six outstanding athletes returning off last year's team which took runnerup laurels in the conference championships at Sacramento. Add to this the names of some outstanding former high school gridermen and the outlook looks very bright, indeed.

And so, with the curtain being lowered on the final act, The Guardsman sports staff now says goodbye.

Block SF Has New Head

Dick Landucci was appointed president of the Block SF Society last week by Faculty Sponsor Bill Fischer. His appointment followed the dropping out from college of Shelley White, the former president.

In his first official act, Landucci appointed John Roy as vice-president. The rest of the society's officers, elected by members at the outset of the Fall semester, will remain the same.

Hoopsters To Face Tough Foes

LEAPING HIGH for what may be a two-pointer in City College's recent game with College of Marin is dead-eye Ram guard Mike Leaskou. Other Ram players are guard Al Holder (No. 13) and forward Jack Diggins (No. 5).—Photo by Sabo.

Rams Encounter Panthers, Comets Tonight, Friday

Sacramento's short but rugged Panthers and West Contra Costa, pre-season choice to capture the Big Seven Conference basketball crown, provide the opposition as the Ram hoopsters enter the second week of conference play.

The home tilt pits the Panthers tonight at the Capital City. Sacramento lacks height, but so far this season they have displayed enough scoring potential and hustle to offset the defect. Harvey Fong, 6-3 center, and forward Cleo Beatty provide a large part of the scoring punch.

City College encounters the Richmond Comets on the Ram home court Friday night at 8 o'clock, and it should be one of the hardest-fought contests of the still-young season.

Coach Rudy Hansen's Contra Costans boast Eural McKelvey, last year's All-Big Seven center and league scoring champ, veteran guard Johnny Sullivan, and R. L. Harrell, a Navy veteran and a real threat, both on the backboards and in the scoring column.

The underdog Ram quint will counter with their one-two-three scoring punch of Mike Leaskou, Theopolis Dunn and Warren Baxter, plus the speed and ball-handling ability of Al Holder, Jack Diggins and Jerry Stack.

Hit Road Again

With some time off for final examinations, the San Franciscans hit the road again to meet the Stockton Mustangs. This year the Mustangs are aptly named, for Coach Frank Boyle has installed an excellent fast break and the Rams appear to be one of the few clubs in the league that will be able to keep up with Stockton's speedsters. The two fast teams collide on January 29 at 8 p.m. on the Mustangs' home court.

Just a week after the Stockton contest, on Friday, February 5, Coach Ralph Hillsman's basketballers return to the City College court and host the strong Modesto Pirates. The Modestans, like many of the other teams in the conference, can boast little height but have speed to burn.

Willie Reek, forward from Oakland's McClymonds High School and an All-Tournament choice in the recent State Tourney held at Modesto, poses the main scoring threat, and Buccaneer Coach Leon Lafaille has built his club around Rock and guard Bob Hodges.

Meet Cubs in Second Half

Following the Modesto engagement, the Rams start the second half of the twelve-game conference season by meeting Santa Rosa on the Ram floor on February 9. They then grapple with San Mateo on the Bulldog court on February 11, Sacramento at City College on February 17, West Contra Costa at Richmond on February 19, Stockton here in San Francisco on the home court on the 23, and Modesto on the Pirates' floor on February 27. All games start at 8 p.m.

Ram Cagers Take Lead In Opening Week Of Big Seven Conference With Wins Over Santa Rosa, San Mateo

By Gail Moss

Overcoming their opponents' great height advantage, the City College hoopsters slipped past Santa Rosa, 47-42, last Wednesday night on the Bearcub court and followed that up with a home court victory over San Mateo, 61-52, on Friday evening.

The Rams were forced to start against Santa Rosa without the services of Theopolis Dunn, big center and one of the team's top scorers. Dunn was suffering from a leg infection and Coach Ralph Hillsman sent him to a Santa Rosa hospital for a shot of penicillin. "Diablo" returned for the second quarter and played out the game, but the bad leg hampered him and held him to nine points, well below his average.

Bearcubs Control

While Dunn was being shot full of medicine, his mates were giving Santa Rosa a game of it. The Bearcubs controlled the backboards in the first period, largely through the efforts of 6-6 center Ron Walters. After falling behind 8-1, the visitors put the scoring load on Mike Leaskou and the tall guard responded with 12 points in the opening stanza to pull the Rams to a mere 13-14 deficit.

Dunn entered the game at the beginning of the second period and the winners took a 20-19 lead, never to be headed. Leaskou finished the evening with 24 points for high honors.

Matcans Take Lead

San Mateo, with a starting club that averages 6-4½, started as though they were going to make a rout of the contest as they ran up a 10-3 lead early in the game. Again the Rams rallied, and with Dunn gathering in more than his share of rebounds against 6-8 Jack Allain and 6-7 Charley Bogle, they pulled up to a 14-12 score. In the second period the hosts bucketed 20 points for a 32-21 halftime lead. From then on San Mateo was out of the game, and although they tried hard to get back their lead, they couldn't quite pull it out.

Hillsman cleaned the bench in the last minutes, but that didn't keep three Rams from scoring in double figures. Warren Baxter copped scoring honors for the Rams with 18 points, besides putting on a fine show of ball-handling. The little "eagle" brought a cheer from the crowd by dribbling around, past and virtually under big Bogle, who towers nearly a foot over the 5-8 Baxter.

Leaskou Hits 16

Mike Leaskou, although sitting out part of the second quarter and hampered in the last half with a bad charley horse, pumped through 16 points, and Dunn hooked in 12. Jack Diggins nearly got into the doubles column with nine points, and Jerry Stack was a tower of strength on the backboards, despite his comparative lack of height.

The twin victories put the Rams in first place in the Big Seven Conference. West Contra Costa, the pre-season choice to win top honors in the conference this year, was upset by Sacramento in their opening game, and San Mateo, another contender, dropped a close game to Modesto before losing to City College.

Track Team Signup Set For February 11

Official signup for all track team candidates is scheduled Thursday, February 11, at 3:30 p.m. in Room 107 of the men's gymnasium, Coach Roy Burkhead announced yesterday.

At the informal gathering, Burkhead said, the potential Ram cindermen will go through the usual form-filling procedure and take a physical examination. The coach added that he will make a point of talking with each man individually.

The 1953 City College trackmen took second place in the Big Seven Conference with a team numbering nine men. Six of these proven performers are returning this year and Burkhead is expecting excellent showings from each of them.

The returning lettermen are Charley Smock, sprints; Al Carlson, 880-yard run; Bill Rumford, 440-yard dash; Lew Anderson, mile; Bob Cross, two-mile; and Al Amador, relay and 880.

Burkhead said that much of the squad's title chances this year will depend on the caliber of former high school athletes who turn out.

Practice sessions will be conducted on the Riordan High School oval, adjacent to the college.

Leaskou, Tri-Sport Ace In Prep Days, Stars For Rams

Mike Leaskou, All-Northern California prep eager last year, is one of the most colorful players in local basketball circles today.

The "Golden Greek," a first year star on the current college varsity, has always been the subject of controversy as to his abilities but nobody can dispute the fact that he has them.

A three sport athlete while attending Lowell High School in San Francisco, Leaskou will devote his energies to basketball from now on.

Recently he silenced his critics with a 25 point outburst against College of Sequoia in the Visalia Invitational tourney and is now the leading scorer on coach Ralph Hillsman's Ram quintet.

Leaskou is 6' 3" tall and weighs 185 pounds. He is the latest in the line of former prep stars who have gained their early college basketball experience under Hillsman.

14 Women Receive WAA Awards

After participating in sports during the Fall semester, 14 women of the college received Women's Athletic Association awards during an afternoon party on January 14 in the women's gymnasium, Association President Colleen Walker announced.

The party also served the purpose of installing officers for the spring semester. Taking over the presidency is Joan Anderson. Janet White will be vice-president and the office of secretary-treasurer goes to Esther Phillips.

Gloria Dunn, sponsor of the association, announced that the following women received awards:

Monya Andry, Enin Cole, Rose Cossens, Marian Crandall, Dolly De Fries, Helen Gibson, Emma Jean Hilliard, Marian Marbles, Miss Phillips, Mary Ann Rudometkin, Madeleine Somsen, Miss White, Lucinda Yuen and Miss Anderson.

A volleyball playday was held here in the women's gymnasium at 3 o'clock January 15. All two-year colleges of the area were invited, according to Miss Walker. Refreshments were served.

Prep Day Claimed Success By Faculty, Student Visitors

Prep Day here, January 8, at which the college administration and the Associated Students hosted administrative and student leaders from San Francisco's seven public high schools, was acclaimed a success by all concerned.

Two visiting administrators who voiced favorable opinions of the first Prep Day held here were Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools, and Edith E. Penee, principal of Lowell High School.

Dr. Clish stated that he thought the undertaking was an excellent idea and that he hopes ultimately it will include private and church-sponsored schools so that they also may be informed of the opportunities available here at the college.

Comment of Miss Penee, assistant dean of women at the college in 1935, was, "I shall never forget my year on the faculty here. I am always happy to find the college achieving the worthwhile accomplishments I expected of it."

All the high school students questioned about their impressions of the college voiced favorable opinions. Some of the statements were as follows:

Bruce Belding (Washington): "I'm amazed at the friendly spirit existing between the faculty and the students."

Jim Crenshaw (Galileo): "The college is really great. I felt right at home and it will be very pleasant to be a part of it soon."

Elinor Lurtz (Galileo): "I was particularly impressed by the work exhibited in the art department."

Joe Passasisi (Galileo): "Students were all so friendly."

Alan Seid (Washington): "It's a fascinating place, quite a change from high school."

Scott Sherman (Lowell): "I liked the informality. Prep Day was a valuable experience, benefiting both the college and the high schools."

Lula Tamaras (Washington): "Enjoyed my visit today very much. I was impressed by the high academic standard and well operated student government."

Bloomers received their name from Mrs. Amelia Jenks Bloomer, who was born at Homer, New York, in 1818.

Seventeen Fine Arts Students Will Present Oil Exhibit In Stonestown

Vision '54 is the theme of an oil exhibit to be presented February 3 through March 3 at J. and C. Dover in Stonestown by 17 fine arts students of the college, Evans Ecke, art instructor, announced recently.

Ecke quoted Lewis Mumford, well-known writer, who once stated that "When society is healthy, the artist reinforces its health, but when it is ailing he too easily reinforces its ailments."

Vision '54, subtitled The Young Painter Comments, strongly suggests that even in complex and confused times, artists can do much more that reflects negative and distintegrating aspects of contemporary life, Ecke stated.

"These young painters have found with the pattern of our times definite values ranging from man's inborn need for order to the mysterious mental and emotional world outside his conscious control," he said.

The exhibit will reflect points of view not commonly seen in Bay Area painting. Representing the college are the following painters:

Art Student Wins Scholarship Award

Dave Massing, advertising and commercial art major here, was awarded a scholarship to the San Francisco Academy of Advertising Art, starting this February after he completes his sophomore year.

Massing is but one of three commercial art majors from the college to be awarded this scholarship. The other two are Barney Wan, who is now part time instructor on men and women's fashion design at the academy, and Antonio Rogue, currently completing a course in commercial art there.

Library Holds Same Hours For Week Of Finals

No changes will be made in opening or closing hours of the college library during finals week, Clement Skrabak, library staff member here, announced last week.

Circulation rules will remain the same throughout final week, Skrabak added, although it is preferred that students take out books from day to day, instead of for the usual two week period.

Book circulation is increasing, Skrabak commented.

New books available to students are as follows: Society and the Nursing Profession by J. M. Reinhardt, Europe's Quest For Unity by S. K. Padover, Crime In Modern Society by Elliott, Six Ways To Get A Job by P. W. Boynton.

Overcoming Prejudice by B. Bettelheim, Your Taste and Good Design by T. M. Folds, You and the Draft by W. S. Vincent, and What You Should Know About the Social Class by W. L. Warner.

These, and all other new books, may be borrowed for a two-week period, unless they are classified in the reference section, Skrabak added.

Registrar Will Forward Transcripts On Request

Students planning to transfer to another college or university must consult the registrar during finals week. Final grades will not be sent to the new college or university, unless students comply with this ruling, according to Gertrude Sommerville, acting registrar.

Transferring students should have work in progress reports sent to the college or university of their choice, if they have not already done so. Grades will be forwarded after forms available in Building 3 have been filled out, Miss Sommerville added.

Three New Courses Added To Evening Division Schedule

Three new courses have been added to the curriculum of the evening division, Edward Sandys, dean of general college courses here, said last week.

Courses added were Psychology 37 for training directors and personnel managers and Business 166, punch card application. The evening division has also added Zoology 16. This class has not previously been offered to students in the evening division of City College, Sandys pointed out.

Most of the classes for the evening division will be held in the main building with the exception of photography, I.B.M. punch card and a few others, Sandys said.

The evening division has courses in English and speech, business administration, floriculture, mathematics, music, foreign languages, history, paint technology, photography, philosophy, science and sociology, and psychology, said Sandys.

Enrollees in the division can take a maximum of six units, Sandys added, and classes open February 8.

Registration dates for the evening division begin January 25 and run through January 28. Class hours will be between 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m., Sandys stated, and the classes will be held four days a week, Mondays through Thursdays.

Campus Police Issue 325 Tags To Student Motorists

Three hundred twenty-five traffic citations, totaling approximately $1,235, were handed out between September 25 and January 5, Leo C. Hertoghe, assistant chief of the campus police here, reported recently.

Most of these citations were received by motorists parking in prohibited areas about the campus, Hertoghe said. Many students were also tagged for parking on the west campus without permits.

A serious offense that students are being cited for is not curbing the wheels of their car while parked on a hill.

Speeding is a problem constantly confronted by the campus police, Hertoghe said. The speed limit anywhere on campus is 15 miles per hour and 25 m.p.h. on Phelan Avenue, unless classes are changing, at which time the limit is dropped to 15 miles per hour.

The prohibited parking areas on campus are any red, yellow or white zone and any lawned area, where the grass is definitely green and growing.

Hertoghe reminded students that the campus police while on duty around the campus have the same authority as a regular police officer.

The campus police force consists of 13 men. The Chief of Police is Gordon N. Richardson. He is assisted by Hertoghe and Charles F. Oehler, who are the assistant chiefs of police. The ten patrolmen are Don Baker, Arthur Clarkson, William Chapman, Patrick Daveren, Al Ghiorzi, Frank Kindregan, Renzo Panelli, William Scott, David Henderson and George Plese.

College, Hospitals Offer Courses In Pre-Nursing

Pre-nursing curriculum here was developed for students who are either enrolled in a college of nursing or will enroll in a college of nursing at the end of their college training, Dr. Lloyd Luekmann, co-ordinator, division of instruction, stated recently.

There are seven hospitals in San Francisco which are served by the college and are under the San Francisco Board of Examiners. Women who are concurrently enrolled at Mount Zion, St. Francis, Children's, St. Lukes, French, Franklin and Mary's Help Hospital's Schools of Nursing take courses here for six months to two years as part of their training, Luckmann said.

Started in 1939 to improve the standards of instruction and give the students a wider program, the curriculum has expanded to three separate programs. They are as follows: a one year preparation for hospital training, a two year preparation for hospital training, and a one year applied nursing program.

Those currently enrolled at a school of nursing are taking the last program. Women taking the first two programs will later enroll at a school of nursing, Luckmann added.

The first and second programs include courses in physical education, personal hygiene, English, special chemistry, nutrition, sociology, anatomy, psychology, biological terminology, first aid and bacteriology.

Students enrolled in the applied nursing program take courses in physical education, life science, personal hygiene, English, elementary chemistry, nutrition, elementary bacteriology, first aid, practical speech, and personal adjustment or group guidance and psychology of study.

Debate Society Plans Discussion

Heading the list of activities planned by the Phi Rho Pi, debate society here, for the next semester is a round table discussion scheduled for February 11, Thomas Duteher, the group's adviser, said this week.

During the discussion, to be held at Stanford University, students will choose a topic for the annual student congress, Duteher said.

"Participation in Phi Rho Pi activities can be as valuable as a speech course," he stated. Membership is open to all students who have an Associated Student card. Tournaments will be coming up during the Spring semester, with a national one at Stockton.

College Cafeteria Operates On A Non-Profit Basis

Good food, sold as cheaply as possible, is the aim of the college cafeteria, according to Hilda Watson, head of the Hotel and Restaurant department.

City school authorities maintain that the cafeteria must operate on a profitless basis but that it also must not be operated at a loss. To be able to do this the cafeteria's financial obligations to the city, and to the students run along a thin margin. Usually the cafeteria breaks just about even at the end of each college year, Mrs. Watson said, but if not, then the difference is made up during the following semester.

A typical luncheon served during the last semester, consisting of roast loin of pork with apple sauce, parsley potatoes, Brussels sprouts and bread pudding, indicates the fine line that is followed between profit and non-profit.

The pork is estimated at costing 21 cents, apple sauce at 1 cent, potatoes at 4 cents, Brussels sprouts at 5 cents, a roll and butter at 2 cents, bread pudding at 4 cents, labor 15 cents, and miscellaneous, such as the depreciation, cleaning supplies and items used in preparation, at 6 cents. This all comes to a total of 58 cents, 2 cents under the price charged by the cafeteria for this luncheon.

"Considering present prices and the cost of labor, it is hoped the difficult task undertaken by the cafeteria is better understood by students," Mrs. Watson commented.

Students Benefit By Concert Card

A special student rate membership card is being offered to the students of the college by Spencer Barefoot, San Francisco concert manager, Meyer Cahn, music instructor, announced here yesterday.

This is a new concert plan directed especially to music students who become members of the Friends of Music Society, he stated.

Membership cards in the Friends of Music, selling for $5.00, tax included, will admit students to a series of ten outstanding concerts, give holders of the cards the benefit of reduced prices for certain other concerts, and be good for free tickets to a number of musical events.

The series of ten concerts during 1954 will include the following attractions, he said:

Richard Dyer-Bennet, folk singer; Lili Kraus, pianist; William Stern, Dutch violinist; Adele Marcus, American pianist; Valentina Oumansky, dance satirist; and William Masselos, young American pianist.

Students interested in this kind of program are requested to consult Meyer Cahn in Building 1, west campus, here.

Vets Must Sign Reports During Week Of Finals

All veterans receiving their allowance under Public Law 550, Korean Veterans, must sign their monthly reports during finals week, beginning January 25 and ending January 29, 1954. Signing of the reports may be done on the second floor of Building 3 in the office of Veteran affairs, said Betty Arnold, VA secretary here.

College Student Certificates to be sent to the draft board by all students here in the I-A, I-S or II-S Draft Classification who are now completing their first or second year are available in the office of F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare, Building 3.

Since this certificate is a reminder to the draft board to show that the student is still in college, students affected should see Marsh before the close of the semester.

In Life And Death College Foremost To Joseph Nourse

In life as in death, the man for whom the Joseph Pomeroy Nourse Student Loan fund here was named, remembered City College of San Francisco.

"Major" Nourse, as he was called by his many friends, was former superintendent of San Francisco schools and father of faculty member, Joan Nourse. He died February 17. One of his last requests was that no flowers were to be sent to his funeral. Instead donations could be made to the student loan here bearing his name.

Alumni, faculty, and students alike mourned the passing of this friend of the college who had been identified with San Francisco schools for over 43 years.

In his memory flags on all municipal buildings flew at half-mast for two days.

"City College has lost a staunch friend in the passing of 'Major' Nourse. His service to this institution during its most formative years, we should never forget," said Louis G. Conlan, College President.

"He made a lasting contribution to the cultural life of San Francisco, first as a teacher, then as a high school principal and later as superintendent of public schools. 'Major' Nourse's leadership is represented in the thousands of young people who were privileged to have come under his influence," Conlan added.

"As a graduate of Galileo High School, I personally benefitted from the guiding hand of 'Major' Nourse and the lasting contribution he made to that institution as its first principal," said Joe Garbarino, President of the Associated Students here.

While superintendent of public schools in San Francisco, "Major" Nourse approved the plans for the main building and gymnasiums of the college and along with Dr. Archibald J. Cloud, first President, worked through the years for the college.

"On behalf of the Associated Students of City College, I would like to extend to Miss Joan Nourse, The Guardsman adviser, our sincere sympathy and most heartfelt condolences in the loss of her father.

"It is with the feeling of profound regret that we received the news of the loss of one who has been such a warm and sincere friend of the teachers. Not only did Joseph P. Nourse befriend the teachers of San Francisco but particularly did he support the college in its early stages when we most needed a friend," said George Baffico, President of the college Faculty Association.

"Mere words cannot express his sincerity, his warm and unassuming manner, his devotion to the school system. His loss will be deeply felt, not only by the school system but also by his many personal friends."

AS President Joe Garbarino Displays Attitude Of Friendliness Plus Interest

"Happy-Go lucky" Joe Garbarino, new president of the Associated Students here, began his first week in office by kicking-off a campaign on the all important AS card sales.

Garbarino, who is anxious to fill his semester in office with many varied activities for the students, was born in San Francisco 21 years ago.

While attending the college (this is his last semester) he participated in student council affairs, was a member of various committees in student government, a past president of Beta Phi Beta fraternity, and a member of the Italian club.

A pharmacy major, Garbarino has definite plans for the future. He expects to continue his education at either Idaho State or the University of California.

High AS card sales, the factor which governs almost all campus activity, rates first on Garbarino's list of goals to be attained as president here.

Besides the usual affairs, Garbarino and the council will sponsor some night rallies, college hour dances, and another variety show.

With his usual attitude of friendliness, and interest, Garbarino issued the following statement:

"The job of Associated Student President is one of the highest honors that can be bestowed on a student, and I intend to appreciate this honor by doing the best possible job I can.

"If students co-operate in buying their AS cards, we can offer them innumerable social and educational activities this semester."

In conclusion, Garbarino added that students are welcome to see him at any time, to offer ideas or discuss any problem they might have, concerning the college.

Associated Students office is located on the first floor of building 2 (Student Activity building) at the West campus where Garbarino may be reached.

AS Student Day Friday To Climax Card Sales Week

Associated Student Day, to be held this Friday, will climax this week which has been designated as Associated Student Membership Week by Joe Garbarino, AS president.

The main purpose of this week, as outlined by Garbarino, is to acquaint students, especially those new to the college, with City College of San Francisco and with the advantages of being a member of the AS.

Several events to boost the enthusiasm of the students are scheduled for Friday. Student leaders will tour the classrooms to explain the benefits of membership in the AS, Garbarino said. This will be followed by a rally during college hour, with the college's band in attendance to help build up the spirit. Sammy the Ram, the college's mascot, will be on hand to supervise the sale of AS cards, according to Garbarino.

The day's heavy social schedule will be rounded out by the Frosh Ball, and Garbarino pointed out that this dance, to be held in the evening at the Palace Hotel, will be free to Associated Students, but bids will cost any non-member $2.50.

Some of the other benefits of an AS card, as stated by Garbarino, are free admission to all home sports events, rallies, admission to commencement exercises without the $4 cost to non-members, and four AS dances and two hotel dances, also free to AS members.

Associated Student cards cost $5 and may be purchased this week at the student bank in the main building, in the new ticket booth outside of the Ramporium, at the student office in building 2, or from individual card sellers on campus.

First Italian Club Meeting Today

Today at 1 o'clock, the Italian Club will meet for the first time this semester, in building 2 on the West campus here, Joe Garbarino, current club president, announced last week.

Main purposes of today's meeting are to elect new officers and to interest new members, he said.

Election of a new president will allow Garbarino more time to devote to his office as Associated Student president, he commented. Other present officers of the club are Remo Rebizzo, vice-president; Dick Battaglia, secretary, and Karin Walker, treasurer.

The club is open to all students of the college, Garbarino stressed, and no emphasis is placed on nationality or race. All students are urged to join by Garbarino.

Purpose of the club, he explained, is to promote enthusiasm and general spirit among students.

Informal Dance Set For Palace Friday Evening

To welcome new students and to provide an evening of fun for all, the college's freshman class will present the semi-annual frosh ball on Friday, February 26 in the Palace Hotel Ballroom, Paul Ortiz, class president announced last week.

The dance, scheduled to continue from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, features the music of Ross Headley and his nine piece orchestra.

Admission to the affair is by Associated Student card. The event is open only to couples and one AS card is necessary per couple. Non-card holders may purchase tickets at the door Friday night for $2.50, said Ortiz.

Cocktail dresses for women and suits for men is the appropriate dress for the informal occasion. The entrance to the Palace Hotel on Jessie and New Montgomery streets is the one to be used by students, Ortiz stated.

Red and white suede tallies with silver tassels will be given out at the door of the dance, added Ortiz.

Members of the freshman social committee helping Ortiz with preparations for the ball are Peggy Alexander, Joyce Brannack, Al Caredio, Diane Kayler, Marcia Norstrom and Sonia Seebohm. Sponsors for the event are Anka Perisich and Harry W. Frustuck, instructors at the college.

The freshman ball is the first off-campus social event of the spring semester, Ortiz said, and he would like to make it the most successful by having everyone attend.

The frosh hall started first as a freshman sprawl on May 15, 1936. The dance was an afternoon affair starting at 2:30 p.m. in the Galileo auditorium. Spring 1936 freshman class officers declared that it would be entirely stag "with plenty of women guaranteed." The executive council set the admission price at 10 cents per person. Since this time the freshman dance has become a tradition at the college.

AS Card Sales Goal Set At $6500; First Week Nets Half

Sale of Associated Student cards during the first two weeks of this semester are the highest since 1950, according to Dave Raphael, Student card sales chairman. A total of 923 had been sold as of last week, adding $4,615 to the coffers of the Associated Students.

Raphael pointed out that while sales to date are encouraging, they are still far from approaching the total anticipated sale of $6,500, which must be met if the full program of student activities is to be carried out. The main income of the Associated Students is from card sales.

For the second semester the Associated Men Students are competing with the Associated Women Students for honors as top salesmen, during the two weeks following registration. This semester's contest will end this Friday, February 26. The AMS, led by president Bill Boldenweck, was leading slightly at the beginning of last week, but the Jan Sewall led AWS was rapidly closing the gap. A perpetual trophy is awarded the winner of the contest. The AWS won last semester under the leadership of Joanne Hassmann.

A plaque is also awarded each semester to the individual selling the most cards after registration. All students are eligible for the award. Although individual totals were not available, Raphael said that Emily Hardy is a strong contender to repeat as top salesman.

Raphael also stated that members of the Associated Students will be admitted free to the Frosh Ball this Friday night.

Appointments And Budget Dominate Council Meetings

As his first official act of the Spring semester, Joe Garbarino, Associated Student President, swore in 14 of his cabinet appointees last week at one of the twice weekly meetings of the Student Council in building 2A.

The new cabinet members taking oath of office swore to abide by the constitution of the Associated Students of City College.

The new Council approved the Frosh Ball budget of $400 as recommended by Paul Ortiz, Freshman President.

Alberta Cordini, Associated Student's Vice President announced that $60, the proceeds from the Hello Dance held in the college auditorium on Friday, February 5, had been turned over to the "March of Dimes."

"Card sales have reached $5,500 to date," Dave Raphael, Associated Student card chairman, announced, and Associated Student card sales will continue in full force for the next two or three weeks.

A motion to charge all campus organizations a $5 deposit for filing a petition for a date on the Social Calendar, was passed unanimously.

Shirley Murphy, Publicity Chairman, stated that material to be announced over the West campus public address system, must be in the hands of Ron Byrne two weeks in advance of the date of their announcement, and stressed that posters for the West campus must be approved by Dick Meister, and for the Main Building, by William Eckert, Room 349, two weeks previous to the date of their display.

Club Meetings To Head College Hour Schedule

Club meetings will be the featured event of this week's College Hour, according to a schedule released by Louis F. Batmale, dean of student activities here.

The schedule for College Hour always follows the same pattern, which is shown in The Guardsman nameplate.

A 40 minute College Hour was originated in order that the students having the same interests could get better acquainted with each other, declared Batmale.

The calendar for the Spring semester College Hours events is as follows:

March 5—Rally.
March 12—Club meetings.
No College Hour March 19 because of midterm examinations.
March 26—Club meetings.
April 2 — Student-faculty coffee hour.
April 9—Club meetings.

Tribute To An Educator

THE Guardsman joins with members of the college's student body and faculty in paying tribute to a great educator, a great teacher and a great friend of the college, Joseph P. Nourse, on his passing.

Truly it may be said that a teacher's work well done, lives long after he departs; the influence of his teachings lives on indefinitely.

And the greater the teacher, the more lasting that influence. The spirit and influence of San Francisco's great educator, and a leader in the founding of our college, Major Nourse, will be with San Francisco's students now and always.

Must Be 100 Per Cent Student For A Full College Education

COLLEGE study is comprised of two main fields of training, the academic and the social.

Each of these two fields make up half or 50 per cent of a student's training and success in one is useless without success in the other if we are to receive what is popularly termed a college education and be a "100 per cent student."

If success comes to a student in only one of these fields, then he has only received half an education, and has been only a "50 per cent student."

The majority of students here are well on the way to academic success. The college's excellent administration and faculty are offering the best aid possible to help students toward this goal of skill in technical knowledge. The only other items we need to instre success in this field are our basic intelligence and that costly item, textbooks.

Cost notwithstanding, textbook sales have been "booming" as usual. So it seems that fifty per cent of the requirements for a successful college education are being met.

The other fifty per cent of the educational requirement, success in the social field, is in the hands of the Associated Students of the college and its fine student leaders, just as the academic field is in the hands of the college's administration and faculty. Here, too, the student needs other items to insure success. These necessary items are, as in the academic field, his basic intelligence and again an item of cost, Associated Student membership.

This item of cost, which involves buying an Associated Student card, is certainly not nearly so "costly" as the item of textbooks.

No!, not again you say. Another "pitch" for five bucks. Well, the "pitch," if you will, is not for five dollars in actuality, but a "pitch" for your complete education and enjoyment; for you—the 100 per cent student, not the 50 per cent student.

Unfortunately it costs money to insure us real social training and enjoyment and that's why the "pitch" must include the five dollar item. Considering what it adds to our successful education, 50 per cent or one-half of the whole, and considering the entertainment and "good times" it affords us, an Associated Student card is the best bargain which most of us will ever come across.

Associated Student membership provides us with the finest entertainment at an almost unbelievably low price; the social calendar will factually bear this out.

By membership we receive this entertainment, a so-called "luxury," but association membership is really not a "luxury," it's a necessity. A necessity if we wish to reach the aim of our study here, a full and completely successful college education.

Incidentally, is there a better combination for a success than education plus entertainment and "good times"?

Be a 100 per cent student, get a full education and enjoy yourself.

Greeting From The Guardsman

WE would like once more to welcome our readers to the college. We have made many wonderful friends during our 18 years of publication here and are looking forward to making many more in this, our nineteenth year.

Our only objective is to serve the best interests of our fellow students and we hope to reach that goal with their support which has been given so graciously throughout our history.

We'll be seeing all of you, friends both old and new, each week in the pages of your Associated Student newspaper, The Guardsman.

Sammy Success At City College

SAMMY, THE COLLEGE'S mascot, attracted much attention, especially from AS President Joe Gorborino, on the day of his arrival here last semester.—Photo by Tsagolokis.

Sammy, the Merino ram mascot of the college, has ended his first semester here, and it's been a howling, or should we say "baaing," success.

For the benefit of the few unenlightened ones, Sammy (and this is only a temporary name) first came to the college on October 20, soon after the Fall semester began. His arrival was greeted with great enthusiasm on the part of students and faculty.

Now the rambunctious, no-longer-little ram is a mascot in every sense of the word, accepted by the college and allowed to run around the campus virtually at will, looking eagerly forward to another year of work, play and social activity.

Shots At RAMdom

Silver Pole, Sam, The Redwood Ram Mascot Make Up College Traditions And Customs

By Shirley Murphy

DR. A. J. CLOUD, college president emeritus, and Angelo Rossi, former Mayor of San Francisco, breaking the ground for the main building in 1937.

EVERY institution of higher learning is steeped in tradition, customs and terminology which have become an integral part of the college and have grown as the college itself has expanded. City College of San Francisco is no exception.

Phrases and practices have evolved since the opening of the college at its present site on the elevation overlooking Ocean Avenue in August, 1940.

At that time one of the most important of the college's traditions was born. The column at the head of the stairs on the first floor of new building was termed the Silver Pole. It became the meeting place of students during their breaks and has remained a congregating spot. "I'll meet you at the Silver Pole" is one of the most used vernacular phrases of the students here.

Growing Pains

In 1946 the 30 acres comprising the west campus were acquired by the college from the Navy Department. The building on the hill became the Main Building.

The west campus will be vacated next semester when Cloud Hall opens its doors, but at present its buildings house some of the most important facets of campus life.

Offices of the dean of men, dean of women, dean of student activities and placement director are located on the second floor of Building 2.

The student lounge, on the first floor of Building 2, plays a dual role —social and academic. There students may study or merely relax between classes.

Junior White House

Just inside the doors of this same important edifice is the Associated Student office, the domain of the duly elected representatives of student government at the college.

That fleet-footed mountaineer, the ram, holds sway above all other members of the animal kingdom here. The college boasts three such creatures.

Newest member of the trio is the little Merino mascot, which was acquired last semester by the Associated Students from the crags of Pope County. He can be found munching on the west campus mingling with the students and cheerfully munching grass when he is not spurring the team on to victory at games, attending one of the many activities on his heavy social schedule or supervising activities in the cafeteria.

Colorful Spectator

Sam, the Redwood Ram, looks majestically at all visitors from his lofty perch in front of Building 1. He doesn't say much but is cognizant of everything happening on campus. Bathed in the colors of the college, he is a mute symbol of the living spirit of the college.

The last ram of distinction is two legged. He is sponsored by Phi Beta Delta fraternity and attends the games and social functions in the spirit of a court jester.

There are three places on campus where students may obtain nourishment to help carry them through the day. They are the snack bar in the Main Building, and the cafeteria and fountain on the west campus.

Confusing College Hour

The "College Hour" schedule is not only confusing to new students, but to many "vets" as well. On Fridays and other special days during the semester when "College Hour" occurs, morning classes are shortened ten minutes and the time gained is utilized between the 10 and 11 o'clock classes for rallies, club meetings and other AS activities.

Next semester many of these terms will be obsolete as the facilities of Cloud Hall are taken advantage of, but today they are the key words in the vocabulary of every student at City College of San Francisco.

The Spectator

San Francisco No Place For Rustic Minded Persons

By Harold Painter

SHOPPER'S day in San Francisco would be riot anywhere else. Market street is one of the few places a man can't tip his hat without tipping five or six more at the same time. The people come and go like flies. But, unlike flies, they don't use the available wall space.

Money is the only thing that gets around freely.

There was a woman with a sign that said something about the world coming to an end: 'Come, Be Saved!' Her world came to an end when she tripped and fell. The only thing she saved was the sign. Maybe that's the sign of the time.

The modern cars parked along the curb look like mobile showcases. (The figure won't end here.) Most of them seem to be driven by mannequins, dressed to kill. They are dressed from the waist up, anyway. Half of them may not be wearing shoes, and half of those, pants.

For every coek that crows there are a thousand people to throw shoes at it. That's how rural we are. Frank Lloyd Wright wants to spread some country around in the city.

Wright often mentions the theory that form follows function. That might be interpreted to mean that the function of shoppers should be aided by the form of their field of operations. In that case, Market street might be remade into something like the Farmer's market, Bagdad, and a roller rink combined. Maybe it's better the way it is.

Popular etymology derives the word "news" from the initial letters of the the compass—North, East, West and South.

Ram's Horn . . .

Letters to the Editor

Editor's Note: The Guardsman feels that this column is a most important feature of the publication, for it is here where interested students have their only opportunity to see their views in print.

Any student who has any complaints, praise or general information which he believes could be of benefit or enjoyment to the college is urged to submit letters to the editor.

Those letters may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or at The Guardsman office, Building 4D. Deadline for contributions is noon each Wednesday.

Names will be withheld upon the writer's request, but the editor must know his identity.

College Roundup

Flatfeet Is New Ruling For NWU Campus Cupids

AT Northwestern University, a recent ruling permits students to extend an affectionate goodnight kiss at dormitory doors—but only so long as the couple keep all four feet on the ground.

AUSTRIA: A "milk campaign" is now being tried out at the University of Vienna, Austria. All students have been given the chance to drink milk between lectures at reduced prices.

If the campaign meets with student favor it will be tried out at other institutions.

ENGLAND: The Cambridge, England, student newspaper, Varsity, came out recently with a three-dimensional picture supplement, produced by the American "metroscopic" process.

LITERARY LICENSE: Following is a letter to the Forty-niner, Long Beach (Calif.) State College:

"I thought last week's suggestion by one of your columnists . . . that the campus ladies be invited to view the alleged 'literary gems' to be found on the walls in the men's rest room was in very bad taste. I question the boundaries of literary license exercised by the responsible columnist."

Upsets Keep Rams In Conference Race

Surprise Victories Over Sacramento And West Contra Costa Give Cagers Second Place, Brighten Title Hopes

By Gail Allan Moss

Upset victories over Sacramento and West Contra Costa last week put the Ram hoopsters back into this year's Big Seven title race after a split of six earlier games had nearly eliminated them from contention.

After winning their first two contests of the season, the home five met a tough Sacramento squad at the Capital City on January 20. The Panthers' "five iron men" poured it on to gain a 36-20 half-time lead and then coasted to a 65-55 final score. Mike Leaskou nalled 18 points to top Ram scorers.

Two nights later found the Rams dropping a 72-64 home-court heartbreaker to West Contra Costa. The Richmond Comets, hopelessly outclassed in the first half, trailed by ten points at halftime, but the officials ruled that the clock had run one minute over at the end of the half and penalized the home team five points.

Replay of the final minute cost them three more markers, and the disheartened San Franciscans then watched an apparent victory slip from their grasp. Warren Baxter, suddenly blossoming out as a scorer, poured in 25 points to top the Rams.

Coach Ralph Hillsman's fears that the heartbreaking defeat would break his club's spirit disappeared as they out-hustled Stockton, 63-61. The Mustangs made a game of it, but with three regulars out of the lineup they were no match for the Rams' one-two punch of Baxter and Leaskou, who pumped through 19 and 15 points respectively.

On February 5, the Rams met unbeaten and league-leading Modesto and easily knocked over the Pirates, 59-50. Baxter was again top pointgetter, with 20, in one of the big suppsets of the season and the first of several for the City College quintet.

The Rams again took the home court four nights later, this time whipping Santa Rosa, 90-80, in the pointfest of the year. Bearcub George Slender was impossible to stop as he canned 36 points, but his mates were not as hot. Baxter continued his spree with 22 points, Leaskou bagged 21, and Theopolis Dunn and Jim Stephens each dropped through 17.

San Mateo, the biggest team in the league, rose up from their second division spot to deal Ram title chances a heavy blow, 72-64. The Bulldogs, on their own bandbox court, romped to an 18-0 lead in the first quarter and held on for the win. Baxter and Jerry Stack topped the scoring with 14 points apiece.

The second big upset of the season was a 78-56 trouncing of Sacramento on February 17, and it put the Rams back in the race for conference laurels. The hosting City College five took a big lead and held it as center, Theopolis Dunn, rammed home 28 points, a team high.

Still another upset came two nights later when the Rams eked out an 83-78 win over West Contra Costa at Richmond. The San Franciscans held the lead most of the way, but the Comets were always within hailing distance. Baxter was again the big gun with 25 points, Leaskou netted 17 and Ike McArthur, a new member of the club and already a starter, collected 15.

So, congratulations and thanks for a good year, Dave Davis, Bill Emmerling, Charles Gill, Flemen Hardy, Al Kingston, and Desha and Europe Williams.

While we're passing out the bouquets here, let's not forget an important one—the well-deserved thanks to the student body. Attendance was sparse at the early season games, but as you realized that you were backing a winning team, and a good one, packed houses became the rule rather than the exception.

The high point of the season for the fans, and there seems to be no disagreement on this, was the second Ram-San Mateo game. Played at San Mateo's "band-box" gym, and with the Bulldogs struggling to keep out of the cellar, this traditional rivalry might have gone all but unnoticed.

But the game, played as a benefit for the March of Dimes, brought out the best of the Associated Students, for they chartered two buses, flocked to the game in droves, cheered themselves hoarse, and responded greatly to the plea for contributions to the March of Dimes.

Ramblings

By Gail Allan Moss

Maybe this is a poor way to start a semester, but "we told you so."

Early in the current basketball season, after the Rams had played only a few games, the Guardsman sports staff came out with the prediction that win, lose, or draw, the college's quintet would be a colorful one. Well, you don't have to take our word for it anymore. Just ask anyone that saw even one of the games this season.

This color was provided in large part by the top scorers of the team, guard Mike Leaskou and forward Warren Baxter. Not only did they score often, but they did it in a manner that brought Oh's and Ah's from the crowds, both at home and on the road. In addition, Leaskou's unusual and effective passing and Baxter's dribbling and ball-handling had the fans in fits in more ways than one.

We feel, however, that someone besides these players deserves a big hand. Coach Ralph Hillsman has done a wonderful job, true, and Leaskou, Baxter, Theopolis Dunn, Jerry Stack and the other regulars deserve every good word that has been said about them twice over. Now we think that the bench deserves a plaudit or two.

The reserves have done a wonderful job this year, too. These fellows showed up for practice every day, hustled as hard as the regulars, and then yelled for their teammates who were in the game while they themselves were gathering splinters, all without complaint. We'd like to take this opportunity to name a few names and congratulate them all for a good season.

Ex Ram Player Signs With Pro Baseballers

Sherwood Slatt, an outfielder for the Ram baseball team last year and presently a student here, has signed a professional baseball contract with Carlshad, New Mexico.

Slatt, 20, was one of only a dozen picked from several hundred players who tried out at a camp held recently by the San Francisco Seals. Carlsbad, a member of the Class C Longhorn League, has a working agreement with the Seals by which the local nine sends several players to the Southwestern team.

Block SF Elections During College Hour

Elections for officials of the Block SF society will take place during college hour this coming Friday, according to Bill Fischer, society sponsor. The meeting will be held in Building 10D.

Among the activities the society plans for the spring semester are as follows: a dance, the Block SF award dinner, the Most Valuable Player awards and participation in the Mardi Gras.

Fischer stressed that any student who is the possessor of a Block SF award is eligible to join the society.

A successor to President Dick Landucci will be chosen by the participating member. Other officials to be elected include a Secretary-Treasurer and a Sergeant-at-Arms to take the place of outgoing Craig Kirkpatrick and Rudy Buffin.

Ram Nine Opens With Gator Team In Oceanview Practice Tilt Saturday

San Francisco State will test the Ram baseball team's ability in a practice game to be played at Ocean View playground this Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

Candidates for the 1954 version of the college's varsity include a host of former prep athletes and a good number of returning veterans.

Newcomers who are expected to bolster the club in its fight to evade the cellar position of the Big Seven conference include: Stan Fetterman, ex-Lincoln High pitching ace, Nolan Wilson from Balboa, an outfielder, Jerry Johnson, another former Buccaneer, infielder Tom Roper, Riordan, and Rich De Bandettino, from Sacred Heart.

From last year's squad the Rams will count on the services of Rudy Butlin, defending batting champion of the Big Seven; catcher Ron Lawrence, recipient of the Most Valuable Player award; Eddie Fernandez, infielder-outfielder Jerry Stack, Jim Boccalloni, an outfielder and first baseman Ron Towse.

Also returning to the team is Tom James, a veteran of the 1952 squad, who was injured in an auto accident and was unable to play last year.

Coach Bill Fischer believes that the current varsity shows more promise than the clubs he coached in the last three years.

Last year's outfit finished a sorry tallender in the strong Big Seven Conference, winning only one out of 13 league games, but the future definitely looks rosy for the horsehiders.

City College's 1950 baseball team won the southern division of the Big Seven only to lose to Santa Rosa, the northern finalist, in the play-offs and since then lady fortune has refused to turn her face towards the Rams, thus relegating the squad to second division standings.

League games are expected to be played at Big Rec in Golden Gate park with the league opener set for March 27. A doubleheader with the Stockton College Mustangs will usher in the new season.

All-College Boxing Tourney Scheduled To Choose Varsity

Fifteen men climbed through the ropes and into the squared circle in the men's gym last Monday afternoon, in the first all-out practice session for the college's varsity boxing team, according to Roy Diederichsen, head boxing instructor here.

The outing lasted three hours and called for running over some fundamentals, heavy and light bag punching, jump rope, shadow boxing and a little contact sparring.

Diederichsen stated the boys will keep tuning up until the latter part of March, when the college will put on an All-City College fistic tournament to determine the varsity team.

When asked how the team shapes up for the coming season Diederichsen said, "It will be a couple of years, at least one, before we get back into the form and development of material on the same par with that of 1950, when the college dropped inter-collegiate competition. But," he added, "things look pretty bright considering this is the first year that we have scheduled matches since that time."

Making up the leather throwing roster are as follows: Mike Mitchell, Bruce Comer, John Roach, Norman Hill, Nieh Camera, James Bass, Keenen Turner, Phillip Starr, Al Seialanea and Kenneth Stormen.

The longest battle within the ropes of a squared circle took place in the Olympic Club of New Orleans, April 6, 1893, between Andy Bowen and Jack Burke.

College Instructors Lead Double Life

Basketball Tilts In Capable Hands

By Humberto Fischnaler

Alex Schwarz, Lou Batmale, Roy Diederichsen and Grover Klemmer lead a double life, a sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde existence. During the daytime, instructors at the college, in the shadows of the evening they become basketball officials.

That's right, basketball officials, a hardy occupation indeed. Are you there, Mr. Farrell?

Of the four, Dean Batmale is the old man of the bunch, having blown the whistle for eleven years, Schwarz and Diederichsen boast three years of experience while Klemmer is the "baby" having just started in the tooting business.

Schwarz, an all-Pacific Coast football player while at USF, coached for several years in the prep circuit producing outstanding basketball teams at St. Ignatius and Mission High. He was also a football mentor at the latter school.

Batmale, a product of Lowell High, played for USF and later on sunk field goals for the Olympic club.

Klemmer is a former track great and holds the distinction of receiving letters in three sports while an undergraduate at California.

Diederichsen coaches soccer at the college and has turned out several outstanding teams in the past years. He also supervises boxing and tennis.

Various college basketball leagues are justly proud of the work of these "three ref-keteers" while the fourth member of the famous quartet, Klemmer gains his experience in the high school league.

Happy whistling for many years, gentlemen.

Ram Cagers In Season Finale Against Modesto

The Ram cagers drop the curtain on a successful and colorful Big Seven Conference season this Saturday night at 8:00 when they travel to Modesto to meet the short but powerful Pirate five.

The Rams defeated the Modestans with ease in the first meeting of the two teams, 59-50, but the Buccaneers, with a home court advantage, could bounce back for a victory.

Sparked by Willie Rock, the jump-shooting forward, the Southerners have been one of the surprises of the league. Rock, despite an injured ankle in the past few games, has surpassed his school's scoring record and is expected to be in good shape for the coming battle.

In the first City College-Modesto battle, the Rams knocked the Pirates from the unbeaten ranks and from the conference lead in one fell swoop. Coach Ralph Hillsman juggled his defenses for Rock, and with Mike Leaskou guarding him most of the game, Rock could net only eight points. However, he collected his fourth personal foul early in the third period, and that hampered him throughout the remainder of the game. Rock is currently sporting a 17 point average, and should better his previous performance against the Rams.

City College has been strengthened during the second half of the season by the play of Ike McArthur, all-City forward from Washington High. McArthur has done his share of scoring and is strong on the backboards. Europe Williams, his teammate from Washington, has also helped the club at center.

Leaskou and Warren Baxter have been the top scorers this season, and both are definitely in the running for All-Conference honors. Leaskou has displayed some of the finest passing seen in the Big Seven this year, in addition to his scoring ability, and Baxter, the little rabbit, has suddenly blossomed forth not only as a high scorer but as a deceptive and effective ball-handler.

WAA Sports Signups Planned This Week In Women's Gym

Signups for the partiepation in sports are being held all this week, Joan Anderson, president of the Women's Athletic Association here, announced at the first meeting of the organization last Friday.

The purpose of the meeting was to acquaint women new to the college with the officers, activities and awards of the organization, Miss Anderson said. Other officers of the organization are Janet White, vice-president and Esther Phillips, secretary-treasurer.

All women members of the Associated Students are eligible to participate in the sports which are held one day a week at the convenience of the participants. Sports will begin the week of March 1.

In addition to the regular sports, Miss Anderson said, the WAA also sponsors playdays for San Francisco high schools. Three college playdays, Santa Rosa, March 6, City College, April 24 and Napa, May 22 are in sight for this semester.

300 Awards Given To Last Semester's Intra Program Title Holders

Approximately three hundred awards of various types were given out to last semester's intra-mural program winners, Ralph Hillsman, program director stated last week.

Gold belt buckles were awarded to school champs, silver medals to runners-up and bronze medals to class title holders.

Basketball kingpins were Grovef Klemmer's Tuesday-Thursday class, captained by Danny Hontalas, who defeated Bill Fischer's class 45-36. The affair was the preliminary to the Sopn-Prof game last semester. Other members of the squad were Pete Germenis, Bob Gonzales, Pete Kaplanis and Earl Erickson.

Faculty To Greet AGS Eligibles At First Meeting

Students eligible for Alpha Gamma Sigma membership will be invited by Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, to attend a gathering here next month of faculty and students connected with the honor society, according to Don Jensen, the group's faculty adviser.

Omega Chapter of Alpha Gamma Sigma, statewide two-year college honor society, will hold its first meeting of this semester on a date to be announced later, stated Jensen. Sophomore Hal Jackson is serving as AGS president, and other officers will be chosen at the initial meeting.

Students who achieve 30 grade points in a minimum of 12 units, excluding physical education, and have a 2.0 grade point average with no grade lower than "C" are eligible for temporary membership the following semester.

Permanent membership is attained by qualifying for three out of four semesters and maintaining a 2.3 grade point average. A high school Gold Seal Bearer coming to the college is given associate membership upon entering.

Any student whose scholarship meets these requirements may check with Jensen at his office in building three. Grade point average is figured by multiplying the number of units a course is valued at times the final grade received in the course. Thus a final grade "A" in a 3 unit course would yield 9 grade points, a "B" in the same class 6 grade points and a "C" 3 grade points.

Points totaled in this way from final grades in all the student's courses when divided by the number of units carried will give the grade point average.

Parking Permits Still Available; Police Tag Autos

Parking permits are still available to members of the Associated Students, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men here, announced recently.

The campus police began tagging cars without permits this week. Citations issued by the police are official and payable to the City of San Francisco, he added.

Dean Browne stated that it was advisable for anyone who plans to park on campus this semester to obtain permits. These permits are available at the dean's office in Building 2 between the hours of 8 and 11 and 12 and 4. Students should present their car registration slip and Associated Student membership card, Browne said.

Parking is allowed in the west campus parking lots, the unpaved area between Building 13 and Phelan Avenue, and on the circle drive, except in red, yellow, or white zones, the dean stated.

No parking is allowed on the ramps at either side of the Main Building, he said. Lawns and narrow roads on the west campus are not to be used either, he added. The speed limit on campus is 15 miles per hour.

Dean Browne emphasized the fact that permits allow cars to be parked in designated areas and does not authorize illegal parking. He further stressed that permits may be suspended for speeding, reckless driving, that would jeopardize such privileges.

Officers of the Campus Police are Chief G. R. Richardson; Assistant Chief, C. F. Oehler; Line Chief, L. C. Hertoghe. The deputized policemen are A. R. Clarkson, G. V. Plese, D. C. Henderson, W. R. Chapman, A. R. Ghiorzi, D. R. Baker, W. A. Scott, F. M. Kindregan, R. R. Panelli, P. J. Davoren.

Audio-Visual Films Need Projectionists

Projectionists, to be paid 75c an hour as lab assistants, are needed to run the motion picture projectors during the Friday film series and during classes, according to Madison Devlin, audio visual aids instructor here.

Applicants need not be experienced but must be American citizens living in San Francisco. Interested students may contact Devlin in Room 155.

Films will be shown on Fridays at 10:40 a.m., college hour, and at 12:20 p.m.

Conlan Back From Trip

Louis G. Conlan, President of the college, returned yesterday from a two-week trip to Atlantic City, New Jersey, where he attended the annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators.

Dr. Conlan also took time during his trip East to visit Cornell University in order to study their Hotel training course.

Forum Magazine Enlarges Staff; Positions Open

Forum, the college literary magazine starting its eighteenth year of publication, needs student staff members to edit, read manuscripts, criticize and assist in the publication of the magazine, Catherine Connolly, faculty adviser, stated recently.

Positions are also open to students interested in gaining practical experience in applied publicity and commercial advertising. Members of the staff, she emphasized, may earn academic units or work in an extra-curricular capacity.

A meeting will be held during college hour, Friday, in room 19A, she announced. Students interested in joining the staff are invited to attend.

Further information, Miss Connolly stated, may be obtained from her office in Building 19, room 9.

The purpose of the magazine, she indicated, is to publish a cross-section of student writing showing literary ability and originality.

Written material is solicited from the entire student body, and writing and editing are entirely student undertakings, she emphasized.

Manuscripts, she added, may be left in her office, and students are encouraged to begin writing as soon as possible. All manuscripts must be type-written and double spaced.

A deadline has been tentatively set, and manuscripts will be accepted no later than April 1.

College Library Rules Announced; Doors To Open At 8, Close At 4; Many Books Added To Shelves

Rules and regulations of the college library were announced last week by Clement Skrabak, library staff member here.

Opening and closing hours, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., remain the same, as will other regulations pertaining to borrowing of books and magazines.

Open stack books, according to Skrabak, may be borrowed for a two-week period. Reserve and reference books may only be taken out over night.

"Interest in the library has been on a steady increase," added Skrabak. "and we are gratified to know that students have taken note of our well-stacked shelves, and the wide variety of fiction and non-fiction literature that we have to offer."

Among some of the new books acquired by the library recently are: The Art of Human Relations by H. C. Lindgren; The Recovery of Belief by C. E. Joad; Human Relations by H. Cabot; Economic Problems of Today by J. Klein; Projects That Pay by Jane Kirk; Education and Liberty by J. B. Conant; A Complete Book of Etiquette by A. Vanderbilt; The Silent World by J. Y. Cousteau; Garden of the Antilles by J. V. Watkins, and Handicraft by L. E. Griswold;

Variety Music Cavalcade by J. Mattfeld; Wrestling by the V-Five Association of America; Natural Golf by Sammy Snead; The Wild Honey by Victoria Lincoln; Seventeen by Booth Tarkington, and The Laughing Matter by W. Saroyan.

Located on the third floor of the Main Building, the library is accessible to students for both research and browsing. A large staff will be there at all times to help students in the selection and borrowing of books.

Chairman Sets Publicity Dates

Meetings of the Associated Student publicity committee will be held this semester on Tuesdays at 11 o'clock in Building 4B, according to Shirley Murphy, chairman.

Purpose of the committee is to promote internal and external publicity of the Associated Students.

Organizations seeking publicity for events they are sponsoring are asked to send representatives to a meeting of the committee a month prior to the activity, Miss Murphy stated.

All copy for posters should be submitted to the chairman for approval at least two weeks prior to the event. Organizations will make arrangements for their posters with Paul Ortiz of the graphic art department and Robert Florer of the commercial art department, explained Miss Murphy.

Committee members are as follows: Barbara Masters, vice chairman; Bill Boldenweck, Ron Byrne, Alberta Cordini, Dean Cyr, Humberto Fischnaler, Joe Garbarino, Jim Glasson, Patty Moran, Dick Meister, Patricia Old, Paul Ortiz and Dave Raphael.

George Mullany is faculty adviser of the group.

The Holland tunnel, under the Hudson river from New Jersey to New York, was completed in 1927 and is 9,250 feet in length.

Campus Publication Regulations Set At Board Meeting

Regulations concerning campus publications and posters were announced at a recent Publication Board meeting by Dick Meister, board chairman.

The regulations, in accordance with the Associated Student constitution, released by Meister, are as follows:

1. Any organization or campus group, including the association itself, which intends to publish any material for distribution to any students of the college must have the master copy approved by the board chairman in Building 4D. Additionally a copy of the distributed material must be sent to the chairman. Penalty for not following the rule will be stoppage of publication by the board for the Associated Students.

2. All posters which are to be put on campus must be approved by the chairman before posting. Violation of the poster rules will he immediate removal of the posters.

It was stressed by Meister that these regulations were instituted for the protection and furtherance of the good name of the college as well as for the protection of any individual organizations concerned.

The chairman said that these regulations will aid organizations in handling posters and publications properly.

Other members of the Spring 1954 AS Publication Committee appointed by chairman Meister are as follows: Joe Garbarino, AS president; Alberta Cordini, AS vice-president; Wray Jacobs, AS finance committee chairman; Shirley Murphy, AS publicity committee chairman; Patty Moran, Guardsman managing editor, Joan Nourse, Guardsman adviser, and Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here, meet with the board.

Meetings of the board are called when needed, by the chairman.

Four New Members Added To Faculty

They are Dr. Margaret Cain, English and communications; James Stoney, life science and chemistry; Catherine Powers, women's physical education; and John Makey, communications.

On leave, Luckmann said, are Rose Kraft, who is on a personal leave, and Ruth Somers and Leland Elsan, who are both on sabbatical leave.

Rally Friday Benefits Polio Finance Drive

Newly-appointed Rally Commissioner Wayne Easley announced last week that a definite possibility exists that big-name entertainment may be on hand for this Friday's college hour (10:40 a.m.), rally in the campus auditorium. Current plans call for the rally to be a benefit for the March of Dimes.

Members of the Associated Students will be admitted free to the rally, but will be asked to make a small donation to the polio fund. Non-members will be admitted on payment of a slight admission fee which will also be turned over to the fund.

The Rally Committee at last week's meeting voted to form an entertainment sub-committee to handle the problem of procuring entertainment for rallies as well as other social activities. Joe Bavaresco was appointed to head the sub-committee.

Bob McNaught was elected to the position of secretary of the rally and social committees. Since the two committees are meeting concurrently this semester it was felt that one secretary could serve both effectively.

In further action, the Rally Committee voted to assume responsibility for the distribution of The Guardsman. Copies of The Guardsman will be available from committee members at the silver pole and outside the fountain on Wednesdays throughout the semester.

Both Easley and Alberta Cordini, vice-president of the Associated Students and chairman of the Social Committee, pointed out that all students are invited to attend the meetings, which are held each Monday and Wednesday at 11 a.m. in Building 2B.

Members of the Social Committee are Jim Vickers, sophomore president, Paul Ortiz, freshman president, Bill Boldenweck, A.M.S. president, Jan Sewall, A.W.S. president and Miss Cordini.

Chinese Sweetheart Ball Saturday Night At Palace

Sweetheart Ball, an annual tradition with the college's Chinese Students' Club, will be presented Saturday, March 6, in the Gold Room of the Palace Hotel, Amy Lee, club spokesman announced recently.

Dancing to the music of Ray Hackett and his orchestra will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Admission price to the semi-formal event is $3.50 per couple, and bids may be purchased this week from any member of the Chinese Students' Club, Miss Lee added. Proceeds from the affair provide two student scholarships of $35 each to be awarded by the club to qualifying students.

A highlight of the affair will be the election of a sweetheart. Voting for contestants is scheduled to take place at the Gold Room door. The six women competing for the coveted title are Barbara Fong, Rose Hong, Jean Jung, Lorraine Jung, Betty Lim and Lillian Wong. Pictures of the candidates, added Miss Lee, will be posted at the entrance to the dance floor.

As the occasion is semi-formal, suits for men and cocktail dresses and formals for women are the appropriate attire, Miss Lee also stated that a door prize will be given out during the affair.

Social committee members preparing for the event are Alvin Chan, Barbara Fong, Emma Him, Jack Hing, Ronald Lee, Tim Lee, Fred Loo, Betty Wing, Sidney Wong and Pat Yee.

Speaking for the Chinese Club, Miss Lee urged everyone to attend the ball for a full evening of enjoyment and entertainment.

Student Council Fills Vacancy

Lawrence Lowe was recently elected to fill a Student Council vacancy made empty by his own disqualification in January. Other AS members up for election were Al Vanoni and Janet Sobieski.

Lowe, after serving as councilman for two months last semester, discovered that he was not registered as a member of the Associated Students, because he had purchased an Associated Student membership card, at a discount, from a friend who was leaving college.

The rulings, that cards are not transferable, and only AS members can hold office prevailed and caused Lowe to resign, thus leaving a seat for Freshman Council vacant.

Although Lowe was elected by the members of The AS in the January elections, his status caused an unfilled seat.

A vacancy for Sophomore Council was filled at a later meeting. The seat was left vacant by the resignation of Brad Owens, who for other commitments found leaving his post necessary. Jim Glasson was elected.

Council approved the Constitution of the International Relations Organization, accepting them as a new campus club, and approved the petition to reinstate Delta Sigma Tau as an on-campus fraternity.

Australian Film Billed For College Hour Series

Land of the Kangaroo, a film about Australia, will be shown during college hour, Friday, March 5, at 10:40 a.m., in Room 136, main building, according to Madison Devlin, Audio-Visual Aids instructor here.

All students and faculty members of the college are invited to attend, Devlin said.

The film will be shown again at 12:20 p.m., the same day.

Parking Permits Running Low

Parking permits are quickly running out and are bound to expire sometime next week, according to Edwin C. Browne, dean of men here.

Available to AS card-holders, the permits can be acquired through Dean Browne's office, Building 2.

Along with an AS card the student must present some form of auto ownership, Browne pointed out.

Need for haste in obtaining a permit was stressed by Browne along with last semester's campus police record showing the long list of citation holders who waited until the last moment only to find out it was too late.

Campus police have already started detouring the permit-less autos from the west campus parking area. Soon however they will be passing out citations to illegally parked cars. The tickets are as valid as those issued by the San Francisco police department, according to police officials.

Date Set For Draft Deferment Tests

Any student who is eligible and interested in taking the draft deferment must apply at his selective service board before March. 8, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced here last week.

In order to be eligible for the test, Dr. Marsh pointed out, a student must be in the upper half of his class and carrying a total of 15 units at the college.

The test will be given on Thursday, April 22 at various colleges in the Bay Area. Any student so desiring may take the test here, Dr. Marsh added.

25 AS Leaders Attend Parley At Santa Rosa

Twenty-five student leaders will represent the college at the regional conference of the California Junior College Student Government Association in Santa Rosa tomorrow, according to Joe Garbarino, Associated Student president.

Purpose of the conference, on the Santa Rosa Junior College campus, is to provide students with the opportunity to discuss mutual problems of student government. Representatives of 22 Northern California Junior Colleges are expected to attend, Garbarino said.

Workshop meetings will be held covering the classifications of student government, student body finance, campus organizations, athletics, student publications and publicity, associated men students, associated women students, and rallies and assemblies, according to Garbarino who will head the City College delegation.

Representing the college will be Alberta Cordini, AS vice president; AMS President Bill Boldenweck, AWS President Jan Sewall, and Jim Vickers and Paul Ortiz, Sophomore and Freshman Presidents, and the President's Cabinet.

Members of the Student Council attending will be Bob Arago, Joe Cannepo, Ken Folldin, Marcia Norstrom, George Saba, Roberta Usher and Mikie Wrenn.

AS Card Sales Nearing Record

A big drive is now on for Associated Student membership, Dave Raphael, AS card sales chairman here, announced today. The record of all card sales should be broken this week, according to Raphael, who estimated $7,000 in sales. Up to date, $5,500 worth of memberships have already been sold.

The chairman said that Associated Student cards may still be purchased in the student activities building for $5 and said they are well worth the price and more than pay for themselves. Upon presentation of a card students may attend all affairs, and games of the college for half price or no cost. Various stores and recreation centers are offering reduced rates to card holders also. These places are listed on the cards.

To help promote this drive, color cartoons and walking sandwich signs may be seen throughout the entire campus. In charge of printing the color cartoons is Paul Ortiz and Mildred Stoll. Wray Jacobs, Wayne Easley and Bob Moore designed and made the walking sandwich designs.

Get Acquainted IFC Smoker Set For Tomorrow

To acquaint both new and old students with the members and activities of the college fraternities, the Inter-Fraternity Council will hold its second semi-annual men's smoker tomorrow in the student lounge, Building 2 at 8 p.m., Walt Yokovleff, IFC president stated last week.

All men students of the college are invited to attend the smoker, Yokovleff added, and no admission will be charged.

Movies on the highlights of the San Francisco 49'ers past football season, obtained through the courtesy of Lou Spadia, business manager of the 49'ers, and Vic Morabito, co-owner of the team, plus scenes from the 1953 college Mardi Gras will be shown.

Speakers at the affair will be Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, Louis Batmale, assistant dean in charge of student activities and Joseph A. Amori, placement director here. Following the speeches refreshments will be served by the Hotel and Restaurant Division catering service, Yokovleff declared.

Because of the success of last semester's smoker, Yokovleff said, the IFC decided to stage one again this semester to give the men students an informal opportunity to meet representatives from campus fraternities.

Arrangements for the smoker were made by newly elected IFC officers, Yokovleff (Gamma Phi Upsilon), president; Frank Orrell (Phi Beta Delta), vice-president; Eugene Hawkins (Kappa Rho) and Lance Thurston (Tau Chi Sigma), joint secretaries, and Ken Folden (Alpha Sigma Delta), treasurer.

Eight to ten members from each of the nine campus fraternities will be present at the smoker. Those fraternities are Alpha Sigma Delta, Alpha Phi Epsilon, Beta Tau, Beta Phi Beta, Gamma Phi Upsilon, Lambda Phi, Phi Beta Delta, Kappa Rho and Tau Chi Sigma.

Ushering Passes Now Available For Opera

Ushers' passes for the Pacific and Metropolitan Opera series and the San Francisco Symphony can be had on request, Mary Golding, dean of women here, announced last week.

Interested persons, men or women, can acquire passes from the dean of women's office for almost all performances.

"Not more than an hour of easy work affords many hours of pleasant musical entertainment," Miss Golding said.

West Campus Evacuation To Cloud Hall Begins This Month

By Roy Swope

Newly-erected Cloud Hall, located behind the main building of the college, will be completely occupied before the close of the spring semester, as evacuation of west campus classrooms begins this month, President Louis G. Conlan stated last week.

Official dedication ceremonies are tentatively planned for Public Schools' Week in April, he added, and bids for the construction of the Student Union building are due within the next month. The cafeteria, fountain, hotel and restaurant department and the Ramparium, student bookstore, will be located in this building.

Distinctive features of Cloud Hall, President Conlan said, are the modern lighting facilities, the soundproofed rooms and the unique color combinations.

Green, gray, yellow and brown classrooms and corridors with brown or green asphalt-tiled floors produce a colorful and stimulating effect. The exterior of the structure consists of slabs of crushed rock, which are both decorative and durable.

According to President Conlan, the first level of the new building will house the law enforcement department and the business department. The architecture, drafting, engineering and audio-visual departments will occupy the second level. The student library, which will seat 700 persons, and the 54 faculty and administrative offices take up the top level of the building.

The offices vacated by the administration in the main building will be occupied by the counsellors, registrars and deans, President Conlan added.

The boiler room in the new building will regulate the heating not only in the 57 classrooms of the main building and any other building to be erected in the future.

Cloud Hall, President Conlan declared, will also be the receiving area for campus storage.

The building construction has been recently approved and accepted by architect Milton Pflueger. Construction was done by Cahill Brothers of San Francisco.

Gracious Aid Of St. Francis A Great Benefit To Students

ST. FRANCIS Hotel Day is over but benefits to all its participants will be felt for many years.

The unequalled graciousness which Managing Director Dan London and his entire staff showed the college's representatives was truly in keeping with the World famous reputation enjoyed by the St. Francis. It's a great reputation and one which the hotel most certainly deserves.

Words seems useless to describe the friendly and helpful spirits that seemed to hover around each St. Francis employee. This spirit was centered in London, the friend of presidents, governors, admirals, generals and the friend of City College of San Francisco.

Hotel Division students at the St. Francis saw, and had a chance to practice, at the top of the ladder up which their training here is guiding them. The ladder just couldn't go any higher than the St. Francis Hotel, certainly one of the top establishments of its kind in the world. Their training here plus the lessons learned at Hotel Day will really be a boost up those rungs.

The college's representatives, needless to say, conducted themselves in a way which could only reflect the best possible opinions of City College. Every student made the best use of this opportunity to aid in hotel operation at its best and left everyone with favorable thoughts of the college.

On behalf of the hotel and restaurant division, The Guardsman and the college as a whole we wish to thank director London and the St. Francis staff, from the kitchens to the front offices for their friendliness, instruction and entertainment.

It's been said that the hotel doesn't have a separate public relations department as such, that the the entire staff handles these relations.

They certainly do.

Council Meetings Need Attendance For True AS Representation Of All

EACH Tuesday and Thursday at 12:10 p.m. in Building 2 there is a meeting to which every member of the Associated Students should and must go.

We say "must go" because if the member wants true representation he must be some-time in close contact with his representative in the association government; these representatives are in the Student Council which assembles those two days a week.

The council votes on measures which direct your organization, the Associated Students. They can't see each one of you and get your views during the week so drop in and see what's on their minds.

If you agree with them say so, if you disagree get up and tell 'em; it's your government — don't let all the weight fall on 14 people, the Student Council, and have them do all the debating on issues which affect close to 1500 people.

Those who aren't as yet association members will see when they attend a meeting the unsoundness of their delay in joining the organization. If Mr. Lincoln will pardon us, it's really "a government of the students, by the students, and for the students."

Keep the AS leadership on its toes. See you in Building 2.

Silent Generation Of Poets Make Hay While The Professor Shines

By Harold Painter

THE silent age. A wisp of what might have been an American literary tradition seems to have been whirled away in silence. Now we have mediocrity and frustration; words, neurotic words. Words, words, words, and verbose silence. Philology, semantics, and words so brittle they break at the turn of a page.

Words are tyrannical things. Modern poetical word usage is a very tyrannical thing—it exists for iron-bound meaning, forged by the academy master. The scholar imitates poetry with two-dimensional words, and the students imitate the scholar.

The bulk of contemporary American poetry is reminding of mobiles hanging idly in deserted corridors, carefully made decors hung on loose, fluid frames.

Form is the criterion of content. Mediocrity is accepted if it's modern, up-to-date, obscure, scientific: puttering for the sake of puttering. Jabber, jabber, jabber, and more. Intellectual shop-talk in a widely circulating open letter. Buzz, buzz, buzz; jabber, jabber, jabber, too preoccupied with themselves to know what's going on about them.

Hundreds of poems might bear the same title: 'Frustrated Me,' Me, Me, Me! My little neurotic self and my sympathetic book shelf. Like an old maid peeking out the blinds when she might be seeing visitas, when she might tear down her blinds and let the sun in.

20th Century Noah Turns Up On Campus

By Shirley Murphy

WHEN the rains came in such quantity recently, a Twentieth Century Noah was discovered on the campus. Rather than the proverbial ark, his vehicle was a '39 Studebaker. During his break between classes, Dave Hanes taxied students to their classes in the main building. Don't stop, Dave. It's a good idea, rain or shine.

A Dog's Life

One of the busiest beings on campus during the past few weeks has been Dean Edwin C. Browne's cocker spaniel, Buff, who has been shuttling applications for parking permits between the Dean's office and the parking area in front of Building 2. It has been estimated that Buff has saved the good Dean several thousand steps by her samaritan efforts.

How Do You Do?

Two hysterical students were seen running from the Zoology 1B class last week. One of the "zoo" students had asked them if they would like to meet a friend of his in the lab. They gave an affirmative answer and went into the lab. He led them to a darkened corner of the room, made the introductions and the young ladies retreated post haste. His friend was a cadaver.

Happy Natal Day

Strains of "Happy Birthday" were heard emanating from Building 2 last week as members of council saluted AS President Joe Garbarino on his 21st anniversary. "Let them eat cake" was the motto of the day as pieces of pastry were given to all passers-by.

The Name's the Same

Tom Collins, a student at the college, obtained an absence excuse last week because of an attack of influenza. Commented Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, "I prefer my tom collins without flu."

Thieves Learn Stolen Chicks Too Hot To Eat

AT the University of Alberta, three radioactive chickens, have been stolen from the university's atomic research laboratory. They aren't fit for human consumption, but, unless they have a Geiger counter, the thieves will never know.

HOW'S THAT?: Students of beginning psychology at San Diego State College (Calif.) were asked recently to write down what they considered to be their "most valuable asset." Two answered "intelligence"—and both misspelled it.

SOMETHING'S AMISS?: Chaos has split apart a highly publicized contest held last month in Miami Beach, Fla., to choose the "College Queen of the United States."

First of all, the third-place winner accused the winner—Toby Gerard of Miami—of wearing falsies. Miss Gerard promptly denied the charge, declaring, "No one could possibly know."

Then Rosaline Sappington, a University of Michigan beauty who participated in the contest, also claimed the judging was "not on the up and up." Miss Sappington said her hotel room was across the hall from that of the contest director, and that she heard the judges decide on a winner —"a girl from Texas who goes to the University of Miami" — the night before the contest was held.

"They wanted someone who would be around Miami after the contest," Miss Sappington said, adding, "I found out later that one of the judges was a man she (Miss Gerard) dated."

Burglars Enter Green Houses

Culprits have been at work for the past few months in the various green houses here, Harry Nelson, head of the college's horticulture department, reported last week.

The department has recently noted the loss of a number of plants after a series of weekend raids, Nelson said.

The most recent burglary, February 13, revealed a finer taste developing within the guilty party, who has gradually diverted his attention from cactus to orchids. Unless he has a private greenhouse, though, his prized orchids won't last him long, according to Nelson.

The horticulture department doesn't care, Nelson declared, just as long as the orchids don't die. They require a lot of care.

Crime does not pay.

H & R Goes To The St. Francis; Students Man Hotel For A Day

Twenty-nine students from the hotel and restaurant division of the college put into practice techniques learned in their daily classes as they assumed responsibility for the operation of the St. Francis Hotel on Friday, February 19 on the invitation of Dan E. London, managing director.

Each student was assigned to a department. From the manager director's job to the making of beds in the 1000 rooms of the hotel, they learned, first hand, the daily routine of the various departments and what will be expected of them in their chosen vocation.

Students lunched in the Mural Room of the hotel with their department heads. Throughout the day, group tours were guided by members of the hotel staff, showing the operation of the St. Francis from the cleaners on the top floor to the basement pastry shop.

Assisting the hotel and restaurant group, under the direction of Hilda Watson, were members of the college journalism and photography departments. Assuming the duties of the promotion and publicity department of the hotel, they photographed and interviewed members of the staff and their proteges. Staff members also explained to engineering majors the internal operation of the hotel.

Commenting on the success of Hotel Day, London stated that the benefits received were mutual. Not only do the students see the duties they will perform in their chosen field, but the staff is kept on its toes answering the questions of the students. Many of their suggestions, he added, are incorporated into the daily routine of the hotel.

Others who spoke at the affair were Mrs. Watson; F. Grant Marsh, director of the division of student welfare at the college; Wendell Muntz, hotel division instructor; William Tessner, president of the college hotel and restaurant society; Edward Sequeira, resident manager of the hotel.

Students from the hotel and restaurant division who participated in the activities of the day were as follows: Julian Amador, Dewey Barkett, Harland Bond, Claudine Claussen, Larry Craig, Don Dougal, Ian Fedderson, M. H. Friedrichsen, Richard Gibbons, Dick Gould, Ed Haimovitch, Richard Hall, John Harris, Phil Heidt, Freda Hinle, Harvey Hoyt, Duke Leonard, Richardson Masterson, Harry Merla, Fred Mowrey, Grant Naylor, Doris Plummer, Flody Romero, William Romney, Taneyo Suzuki, William Tessner, Willie Walls, Frank Wefel and George Yeakey.

Engineering students present were Martin Fettig and Ibrahim F. Sumuran.

College Thespians Slate Kind Lady For March Dates

Members of the drama society here, will present Kind Lady, a psychological drama, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, in the college's Little Theatre, according to Michael Griffin, adviser head of the group.

Admission to Associated Student members is 25 cents, providing they have obtained their Associated Student cards prior to the dates of the production.

For Associated Student members who join after March 10, admission is 50 cents, Griffin said, and general admission is one dollar. Tickets may be purchased at the student bank.

Leading roles will be played by Joyce Cody and Deane Cyr, who have appeared in prominent characterizations in plays presented earlier by the drama department, stated Griffin. Other members of the cast are Isabelle Clarke, Herb Freeman, Jim Glasson, Caroll Hall, Jim Lafayette, Duke Leonard, Irene Morozoff, Lorretta Warchot and Diana Williams.

The story of the play is concerned with Henry Abbott, a forceful young man, analyzing the peculiar circumstances of Mary Herries, a wealthy young woman. Abbott persuades her to take him into her home. He devises a plan to gain power of attorney over Miss Herries' estate, by having her proclaimed insane.

Kind Lady was written by Edward Chodorov and was presented on the Broadway stage. It later played San Francisco with May Robeson and Ralph Forbes in the leading roles. Ethel Barrymore starred in the movie version of Kind Lady.

Student Award Presented

Dottie Cutler, recently appointed Corresponding Secretary of the Associated Students for the spring semester, was named Outstanding Student Award Winner for the Fall Semester, 1953, at the AS Banquet.

Miss Cutler has been active in student government and social activities for the past three semesters, holding down the positions of Vice-President of the Associated Women Students Club Activities Board representative, member of the rally and social committees, and Vice-President of Delta Psi sorority.

Ram Mascot Takes Over Dugout Duty As Baseball Season Nears

With spring training getting under way and the baseball season not far off, the college is apparently harboring a new star.

After arriving on the campus too late to make the football squad, Sammy, the college's Merino ram mascot, is turning his attention to baseball and it appears that he'll be as good on the diamond as he might have been on the gridiron.

The Rams didn't fare too well last year on the baseball field and even with the help coming in from the high schools Sam will be a welcome addition. Coach Bill Fischer is as yet undecided where his new star will play, but observers figure him for an outfield slot and it is supposed that he will bat in the clean-up position.

For students who saw the young ram when he first arrived on campus, let it be explained that he has grown some new muscles. None of his old speed is gone, but his new-found power makes him a threat to hit the long ball as well.

Sam was approached for his statement while standing near the dugout, and he was quick to cooperate with the reporter. Asked about the grade of competition he expected from veterans and rookies, the slugger had but one reply: "Baaaaa."

The Merino enlarged on this statement by saying, "I really don't expect to have much trouble breaking into the lineup." He munched another mouthful of grass and continued.

"Bill—I always call him Bill—can't decide where to baaat me. It's a tossup between the lead-off spot and one of the power positions. As for the field—well, I can play any position, of course, but right now I'm in the baaaattle for center field and third baaase and I may do some pitching."

So saying, he left the dugout and strode to the plate for some baaa—excuse, please—batting practice.

ASSOCIATED STUDENT MEMBERS, the only persons to whom parking permits are being issued, are free to park on the west campus. Students who are not AS members may have difficulty in finding parking space free of broken glass, rocks, dirt and mud-puddles, as the above example might indicate.

Annual Charter Day Celebration, Membership Campaign, Magazine Topics Of Next Alumni Meeting

Plans for the college's annual Charter Day celebration will be discussed at the next meeting of the alumni association, Edwin Frediani, president of the association, announced this week. He added that date and location of the meeting have not been determined.

Frediani, who has been president of the group for two years, said that meetings of the association are not regularly scheduled and are called by petition of the members. Approximately seven meetings are held each year to discuss social and business functions of the group.

Last year the Charter Day dinner was held in honor of Margaret Dougherty, who was retiring as dean of women here.

Charter Day is the association's main social function of the year and is always a success, according to Frediani.

Also a topic for discussion at the next meeting will be plans which are now underway for a regular alumni publication, which according to Frediani, would keep alumni of the college in touch with student and alumni activities.

The group held a campaign for members last year which Frediani termed as successful. However he also stated that the association is always looking for new members and at present could accommodate quite a few.

A non-profit organization, the association is incorporated and run by a board of directors. Two types of membership are available at the college bank. Charter Life memberships for $10 which afford the member all the privileges of the association for life and Subscriber memberships at $3 renewable yearly.

Forum Magazine Asks For Staff

Staff members are still needed by Forum Magazine, entering its eighteenth year of publication at the college, this May when the annual edition appears, reports Harold W. Painter, editor pro tempore of the magazine. He added that interested students may contact him in Building 1D.

Forum is the college's literary magazine, supported by the Associated Students and intended to offer an opportunity for students to develop abilities in creative writing, editing and mechanics of publication.

Sponsor for the magazine this semester is Catherine Connolly of the English department, replacing Dorothy Mercer, who is withdrawing from Forum after many years of sponsorship due to the press of increased duties and college activities, Painter said.

He noted the years of helpful assistance given the magazine by Dr. Mercer and voiced appreciation from himself and staffs of past semesters. He added that he felt Forum would continue to be well sponsored under Miss Connolly's guidance in the future.

Unique in that it is one of the few two-year college literary publications, Painter stated that the magazine solicits contributions from all students here of material such as poetry, satire, prose and many types of artwork.

He concluded by saying students may secure advice from either himself or Miss Connolly, and should forward their manuscripts to Miss Connolly in her office in Building 19 before the first week in April, which has been set as the tentative deadline.

H&R Opens Catering Service On Campus

Facilities for catering service this semester are reported available to all campus organizations here by Dean Woods of the Hotel and Restaurant society.

Those desiring activities above the pot-luck level can make their wishes known by inquiring at the H & R office in back of the cafeteria, where those in charge will take the order and put it into effect.

Services range from coffee and cookies to just short of an all-out banquet. As to the type of catering service, the society leaves that up to the organization.

Skilled Labor Applicants In Demand Now

Trained job applicants are still in demand, although part time jobs are not as plentiful as last semester, said Joseph Amori, director of placement services here.

Those in demand are typists, stenographers, accountants, office machine operators and other trained personnel, who will receive about the same wages as last semester, ranging from $1.25 to $1.50 per hour. In most cases the hours are from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., with occasional Saturday work, he said.

The entire labor market, stated Amori, is characterized by a freeze. The employer is now in a position to use more selective methods in hiring personnel such as tests and thorough investigation of the applicants scholastic records. One of the reasons for this situation is due to a decrease in the shifting of jobs. Workers are now remaining on their jobs and are putting in a full day's work for pay received.

Since the beginning of the semester 600 students have filed applications for part time work. Many of these are highly skilled craftsmen such as carpenters, plasterers, electricians and painters who have either decided to change their occupational goal or are taking refresher courses. Many of these have been placed on Saturday and Sunday jobs in private homes making repairs and remodelling, said Amori.

Demands for summer jobs have been coming in slowly during the past week. These have been mostly openings in resorts, summer camps, forestry service, etc. All students, Amori added, should file their applications immediately in order to receive consideration for summer jobs.

Space Available On Bulletin Board

All students of the college may make use of the bulletin board in the southwest end of the main building at any time to post notices, according to Marie Kenison, telephone operator here at the college.

A variety of goods and services are advertised by means of the bulletin board. Some of the goods offered for sale or wanted are cars, books and school supplies.

The bulletin board is located in the main building next to room 133. The board itself is divided into three categories: For sale or trade, transportation, and miscellaneous. Students who wish to advertise anything in the aforementioned categories may do so by obtaining a notice card from the telephone operator. The cards are to be filled out and posted by the student. All notices are cleared from the board at the first of each month.

700 Vets Benefit From Federal Aid

More than 700 veterans are in attendance at the college this semester, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced recently.

Six hundred fifty-five of these are studying under federal laws and eighteen under the California state law, he said.

Federal benefits are provided by four laws. Veterans of World War Two are covered by public laws 346 and 16. Public laws 550 and 894 are applicable to Korean veterans.

Marsh stated that those veterans enrolled under laws 346, 16 and 550 are eligible to receive their books free of charge, and that any veteran covered by these laws who has not obtained his books may do so by applying at his office. He stressed that veterans who desire these books should not purchase the books and present the receipts for refund, as this procedure is not permissable.

Disabled veterans, attending college under public laws 16 and 894, may also obtain free Associated Student membership cards upon application to Marsh's office.

One of the provisions of public law 550, the Korean bill, is that veterans receiving benefits must file a certificate of attendance each month. Veterans may file their certificates between the first and fifteenday of each month at the veterans affairs office on the second floor of Building 3.

Graduation Petitions Are Due By March 12

Petitions for students who expect to graduate in June should be obtained and filed at the registrar's office, Building 3, no later than Friday, March 12.

"It will be to your own advantage to file your petitions as soon as possible," recommends Miss Gertrude Somerville, assistant registrar at the college.

Eligible for certificates of completion are all students who have satisfactorily completed a two year curriculum, in accordance with the requirements of the California State Department of Education and the college faculty.

Along with the specialized requirements, students who wish to graduate must have a record of 60 units in which the last 12 units are of at least a "C" average grade.

Fifty-two per cent of all students in their third or fourth year at the University of California have attended a two-year college.

AWS Leader In Associated Student Card Contest; Emily Hardy Wins Individual Sales

Associated Women Students have won their semi-annual contest with the AMS by selling the most AS cards and thus retain the perpetual trophy they won last semester, according to Dave Raphael, card sales chairman here.

Trophies will be awarded at a March of Dimes dance in the auditorium on March 5, 1954, to the outstanding seller of Associated Student cards this semester. Emily Hardy was announced the winner for the individual selling contest, continued Raphael.

These past three weeks the card sales has broken the record of previous years and reached a peak of $6,400. Last semester's entire sales total amounted to $6,305. The chairman also stated that the desired goal for this entire semester's sale of cards is $8,000.

The amazing number of card sales are due to these reasons: excellent cooperation of the student government; full support of various committees, and new types of publicity—sandwich signs, cartoons, letters sent to students and speeches in classrooms, according to Raphael.

Graduating students should be reminded that they may graduate in cap and gown free if they are—members of the Associated Students, reminded Raphael. All other students must pay $4 for the gowns. Some other AS card benefits are as follows: Drama events, sports events, parking, dances, rallies, publications, musical events, active part in student government, elections, and concerts.

Cards are still on sale for $5 in the Associated Student office, Building 2, at the Bank in the main building or at the Ramporium on the west campus. To help reach the desired goal, 300 more memberships must be sold, Raphael commented.

Kind Lady Opens Three Day Run Tomorrow; Cody, Cyr In Lead Roles

Curtain Rises On Campus Drama In Little Theater

Kind Lady, the college drama department's first production of the semester, will start its three day run tomorrow evening, March 11, at 8:30 p.m. in the college Little Theater, Michael Griffin, head of the department, announced last week.

The play will be presented Friday and Saturday evenings, March 12 and 13, at the same curtain time, Griffin added.

Admission is free with Associated Student cards to students who apply at either the student bank in the main building or the Ramporium on the west campus for a ticket, Griffin stated. Students without tickets, but with AS cards will be charged 25c at the door. Students with student cards from other schools will be admitted for 50c. General admission is $1.00.

Kind Lady is a drama in three acts, written by Edward Chodorev. It will star Joyce Cody as Mary Herries, a wealthy, somewhat eccentric old woman, and Dean Cyr as Henry Abbott, the young promoter who attempts to relieve her of her worldly possessions.

Other members of the cast, according to Griffin, are as follows: Harry Borress, Barbara Campello, Pete Garrett, Herb Freeman, Carroll Hall, Duncan Lagoe, Lee Meriwether, Irene Morozoe, Janet Sobieski, Loretta Warchot and Diana Williams.

Miss Cody appeared in last semester's production of Private Lives and Cyr played the male lead in the Torchbearers.

Posters for the production were designed by students in the commercial art department under the direction of William Eckert, department head. Slot posters were printed by students in the graphic arts department, under the supervision of George Mullaney, Griffin said.

Sets, he added, for the first time, were designed completely by students.

Graduates Must Submit Petitions Before Deadline

Students of the college expecting to graduate in June must obtain and file their graduation petitions in the registrar's office in Building 3, no later than March 12, Gertrude Somerville, assistant registrar at the college, announced last week.

If a prospective graduate fails to meet the deadline, Miss Somerville explains, he will have to wait until the office staff has time to check the petitions. Students who turn in their petitions too late, may have to wait an extra year before receiving their diplomas.

As explained by Miss Somerville, the petitions are checked and post cards are sent to each student reading "pending satisfactory completion of this semester's work." After the second midterm, grades are checked, and post cards are again sent to the students applying for graduation. Students whose grades show border-line cases are notified at this time.

A third check on grades is made in June. In the case of the real borderline students, this check is made after the final grades are received.

Commencement exercises, held only once a year, will take place on June 18, 1954, and at this time both February and June graduates will receive their certificates of completion, according to Miss Somerville.

Literature Sought By Forum Magazine

Harold W. Painter, sophomore student here, was appointed editor of Forum, the college's literary magazine, for the current semester in a meeting held recently at the college. Margaret O'Leary, also a second-year student, was chosen business manager.

The magazine, published each year in May, is presently asking for material from City College students in the line of prose, poetry, satire and illustrations.

This week Catherine Connolly, faculty adviser to Forum, urged all students interested in having their work published in the magazine to submit their manuscripts to the Forum office in Building 19 before the April 1 deadline.

Dean Seeks Honest Man Out Of Modest Hiding

There is an honest man on the campus and Edwin C. Browne, dean of men here, is seeking him out of modest hiding.

Three weeks ago an anonymous person handed Browne a lost sum of money which has not been claimed yet. Browne wishes to have an audience with the person as soon as possible so he can return the money.

Book Store Hits Record Sales, Volume Up Twenty Per Cent

Ramporium, student book store here, reached a high in sales last week, according to Dick Main, manager.

Spring book sales reached the peak which was attained by May 1 last year, Main asserted. Volume sales have risen 15 to 20 per cent over the last spring sales, exceeding any spring semester since the Ramporium opened in 1950, commented Main.

Also, Main said, the Associated Students are benefiting through greater sales by a greater return percentage.

During the rush period 15 students were hired to maintain as steady a flow of customers as was possible, Main said. At present the flow of students has dwindled so that Main can "catch up on his books" which are two weeks behind.

Other than required books, Main stated, The Ramporium carries a complete line of accessories to knowledge, such as the College Outline series, 3x5 cards in various languages along with verb wheels or anything that The Ramporium management consider helpful to a student's learning.

Main stated that anything in the way of books that are not on hand but that students wish, he will obtain if students are willing to see him personally and talk the matter over.

Also stated by Main is the fact that any book changes that are made will be done in the Fall of each year.

The Ramporium has a complete line of physical education equipment, decals, pens, pencils, paper, slide rules, class rings and a multitude of other useful items.

Main also expressed appreciation to each student for his patronage and patience.

Before coming to the bookstore to sell or exchange books, Main commented, official drop cards must be obtained from Edwin C. Browne, dean of men in Building 2. He commented that this is a precautionary measure to project students who have lost books from having them sold.

Also Main pointed out that the lost and found department in Browne's office contains hundreds of found books.

Recently Formed IRC Fosters Unity Among Students

In order to increase their knowledge and appreciation of the concept of "one world," students from more than forty nations recently founded the International Relations Club on campus, according to Joseph Jacobsen, foreign student adviser here.

The club is open to all students. Jacobsen declared, and those interested may attend meetings on Fridays during college hour.

In recent elections Magtangal Bolanos from the Philippine Islands became president of the group. Other new officers are Honorato Dizon, Philippine Islands, vice-president; Celia Alvazoglow, Greece, secretary; and Emilia Leviev, Bulgaria, treasurer.

The club, in close cooperation with the Rally Committee, will provide the major share of the entertainment for the International Night Rally, scheduled for April 23 in the campus auditorium. Margot Cohen, club social chairman, is in charge of arrangements.

Record Achieved As More Than 300 Qualify For AGS

More than 300 City College students, an all time high, will be eligible to join Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society here this semester, Don Jensen, faculty adviser to the group reported this week.

Students who achieved a 2.0 grade point average in at least 12 units last semester are eligible for membership in the society.

"I urge all eligible students to come and apply at my office in Building 3," Jensen said, "for frequently in checking graduation petitions for those who are to graduate with honors, students will have failed to fulfill the required three out of four semesters of AGS membership."

Jensen also noted that scholarship at the college has been improving in the past two years.

Omega Chapter of Alpha Gamma Sigma takes part in many college activities, one of the highlights being the group's part in the annual Mardi Gras held every spring.

The chapter's booth at last year's carnival was a major attraction, featuring a bean bag throw at pictures of college instructors.

A Sunday afternoon tea is scheduled for the near future, Jensen added, where eligible honor society students will meet with Omega Chapter officers and members.

AMS Slates Date For Mardi Gras

The Mardi Gras date of May 21 was released by Associated Men Student President Bill Boldenweck.

An annual affair sponsored by AMS, Mardi Gras consists of a float parade, king and queen judging and coronation, a dance, concessions and many other attractions.

Planning for a successful day Boldenweck says this coming Mardi Gras will top all those before it, in production and operations.

Committee heads to cover the publicity have been appointed.

Boldenweck states that the Ocean Avenue merchants will also lend a hand in advertising.

Location of the concessions, Boldenweck revealed, will be around the Redwood Ram in front of Building 1.

Money will not be handled directly between stand and spectator Boldenweck pointed out. At separate booths money will be exchanged for tickets and these in turn will be passable currency among the concessions.

Money received through the Mardi Gras will be placed in one pile and distributed to the various organizations' funds.

AMS hopes to have as king and queen judges, celebrities of television, Royal coronation will follow the choosing of the regal pair.

Crossroads Of America Billed For College Hour

Students and faculty are invited by the college audio-visual aids department to attend a free movie "Crossroads of America" to be shown during College Hour, Friday, March 12, in room 136, main building, at 10:40.

Madison Devlin, Visual-Aids instructor announced that the movie will be shown again at 12:20 to those unable to attend the first showing.

Full AS Membership Essential To Carry Out Semester Plans

ASSOCIATED Student organizations are naturally completely supported by Associated Student funds. There's no questioning that fact, and since those organizations are supported by AS funds, then it follows that every member of that supported group most logically must be an Associated Student.

The constitutional law of the association supports the fact by stating that each AS financed organization on campus must be complete in its AS membership.

However, some organizations have been neglectful in abiding by this completely logical and necessary law.

These groups aren't purposely breaking this most important of AS rules; it's only careless neglect.

But before any AS budgets are passed the individual organization affected must be 100 per cent in Associated Student membership.

For each organization's own benefit it is hoped that its members won't delay much longer in becoming 100 per cent Associated Students.

They need the money as appropriated in the budget to carry out any plans they may have for the coming semester.

Hollywood Western Classics Often Lack Historical Accuracy

By Harold Painter

EVERY decade or so Hollywood produces a western classic. The last one was a film called My Darling Clementine, with Henry Fonda and Victor Mature.

There were Wyatt Erp, Doc Holaday, a beautiful half-breed girl, and a drunken Shakespearian actor who recited the soliliquy from Hamlet as though he'd written it; there was Tombstone, Arizona, a frontier town, and a woman from the East.

The plot was pretty close to life, fast, and it called to mind a way of life that old men like dreaming back to, and young men are often wishing had been their own.

The film Hondo seems to be in keeping with the best tradition of the slouch hat series. The broad shoulders of John Wayne are an ideal frame for buckskin shirt, holster-worn Colt, and dusty boots. He has the prairie man's squint, the long stride, and the gaze over a woman's head that hints of a long, drawn-out struggle with the elements, the sun-downer's hardfisted fight for survival, and the domestic trait of the male bold in reserve that makes a woman aspire and look over her shoulder to see what the man is looking at, hoping she is in that distant picture.

It is a pleasure to watch a film that has some historical accuracy to it, and no one with a feeling for history, esthetic or otherwise, can sit back in pleasurable belief while a Custer is being charged by a flock of Eskimos on elephants.

Reasonably historical minutiae are unnecessary—few are that discerning or need be. But everyone is discerning enough to be disturbed by gross inaccuracies, mistakes that are generally the result of a script writer inspired by the missing pages in his cheek book.

Hondo added a nice historical touch in showing an unusual method in Indian warfare, and there was nothing historically disturbing unless someone was bothered by the weave in Hondo's broadcloth britches.

Hondo, as a great many westerns, was enjoyable mainly for its scenery and the romantic attraction of an era. The audience is generally willing to put up with a saddle-worn plot just to get a whiff of black powder smoke, horses and Indian grease, and to saddle into the frontier mood that seems to come on a picture post card saying wish you were here—here with the trees and the streams, the lazy streams and the spirited streams.

Lakes and ponds and mesas and plains. The hummocks and hills. Prairie grass and the flaxen grass, valleys and steppes and crags and ranges and gorges. And the steadfast movement of the seasons, the rains, the snows, the winds and the thunders and the blown sands. Spring and summer, autumn and fall. The years, the long day and a lifetime, a season next the earth . . . often picture post-card saying wish you were here.

Coffee Prices In Cafeteria Are Non-Progressive

Coffee prices have gone up in the market but not here, states Lawrence B. Wong of the college's hofel and restaurant division.

"We still believe," Wong said, "that a cup of coffee for breakfast is a man's best friend. If the cost of coffee skyrockets, the thing behind the skyrocks there would be no squawk."

However, there are more ingredients that go into a cup of coffee than are usually realized.

Price increases in the last two years on sugar, cream, civil service employees' wages, and soap used to wash the greasy china turn the simple coffee bean into a golden nugget.

Surveys are made regularly, Wong declared, revealing some 2,000 cups consumed daily by students and faculty. Coffee with cream and sugar is the most expensive cup to supply, and naturally enough it is the most popular on the campus.

Using a policy of customer satisfaction, H & R puts coffee to the acid test. Removing the labels from a number of different brands they are checked for aroma, texture and flavor. In this manner the cafeteria tries its best to buy the best.

The ruby-throated hummingbird summers in the United States but winters in Yucatan.

Danger And Excitement Lure Bill Fishback

Racing Motorcycles, Exploring Sunken Ships Make Hazardous And Surprising Adventures

PREPARING TO EXPLORE a sunken hull, Bill Fishback, Navy veteran and student here, could easily resemble a "Man from Mars" in his diving suit.—Photo by Blanco.

By Don Osborne

Racing motorcycles at 120 miles per hour and exploring sunken ships 120 feet below the surface may not sound like too much fun, but to Bill Fishback it's "really living."

Fishback, an engineering major here has been diving since the age of nine and owned his first motorcycle at the age of 11. Since that time the lure of excitement has been a determining factor in his life.

At nine Fishback was diving with a mask and spear for abalone and other underwater life. Deciding that he liked the depths Fishback bought his own suit when only 15 and for some time was earning a living by diving. He started with the standard type diving suit but now uses an Aqualong suit which is lighter, has very little metal and is not dependent on an outside source of oxygen but may be carried in tanks on one's back.

Fishback relates a story. While exploring a sunken tugboat he caused an eddy of currents in the engine room. A corpse got caught in the current and began following him around. When he came to a stop the corpse, rather affectionately threw his arms around the unsuspecting Fishback. Needless to say, he was somewhat startled and made a rather hurried exit.

At 14, he began racing motorcycles around the countryside. His interest became aroused when he hitch-hiked a ride on the back of one. "From that time on," Fishback says, " I decided that was for me." At present he owns a BSA and Harley Davidson and has had them up to such speeds as 120 miles per hour.

Once, during a race, Fishback took a spill while traveling at this speed, but came out of it unhurt. When asked whether he thought motorcycles are dangerous, he shrugged his shoulders and replied "it's all in the way you look at it."

Fishback, who spent four years in the Navy and has been to Alaska, Japan and Korea, attended Bakersfield High School. The 24 year old veteran was born in Los Angeles but now lives in Alameda.

Among his less daring and calmer habits is model airplane building and horseback riding. The model airplane building seems to carry over from the days when he used to fly.

Jan Sewall Is Mademoiselle Contest Winner

"It pays to be critical" -or so Jan Sewall, Associated Women Student President here, is finding out.

Last August, Mademoiselle fashion magazine had its customary contest for those who could best criticize the August 1953 issue. Among the applicants, 693 students from various colleges were picked, each to represent her respective campus on Mademoiselle's national College Board. Miss Sewall was among these.

As a board member, she will complete three assignments that will help her develop her interests in writing, editing, fashion and advertising in competition for one of 20 guest editorships to be awarded in May by the magazine.

Guest editors will be brought to New York for a month next summer to edit, write and illustrate the August 1954 issue of the magazine. They will earn a salary while there as well as visit fashion showrooms and relax at a round of parties and theatre-going.

Mademoiselle sends Miss Sewall various cosmetics to sample along with questionnaires of her opinion on various subjects. She is quite excited about the prospective trip to New York and hopes to be one of the 20 chosen.

When asked of her feelings on discovering that she was one of the 693, she replied, "I can't believe this is happening to me; it's wonderful."

Campus Government Headed By Council

Congress is the highest governing body of the United States; the Student Council is the highest governing body of the Associated Students of the college.

All funds in the AS coffers are allocated by Student Council. It is responsible for and has final authority in the supervision of the affairs, policies, properties and conduct of the association.

Council chairman is the AS president. Voting members include the AS vice-president and 14 Council members elected from the AS seven representing the freshmen, 7, the sophomore class.

Council meets twice a week, Tuesday and Thursday at 12 o'clock in Building 2B. Meetings are open to all AS members.

Shots At Ramdon

Loaf Of Bread, Pound Of Meat Mit Mustard?

By Shirley Murphy

OFFICE of the Associated Student President in Building 2 has become known as "Garbarino's Sandwich Shoppe," since the boy from North Beach began serving hors-d'oeuvres to his subjects. His snacks consist of a loaf of french bread, a half-pound of cheese and cold cuts.

- Sun-struck

Torrid pre-spring rays sent many athletic minded students to the sands of Taraval for relaxation. Golfers, aquatic stars and would-be gridders frolicked playfully on the beach. The unseasonal weather was evidently too much for one "All-Star." Who took a dip in the cool blue waters of the Pacific, clothes and all.

- Consideration

An almost paternal spirit is exhibited by conductor #5 on the K car line, who bellows each a.m. as students scurry from the car to classes, "Take your lunches, we don't want 'em."

- Little Boy Lost

Enrollment in one of the classes of modern dance taught by the physical education department is 1 male, 50 females. Fair odds, to say the least.

- S. F. C. A. Material

Is it possible our little Merino mascot is suffering from malnutrition? He was noted by some observant humanitarians last week chewing on the fire hydrant next to the cafeteria.

- Standing Room Only

Few students are late in arriving at Dr. John Selig's 8 o'clock class in political science. Those who are tardy nip almost assured of having to carry in a chair from another room and energy is at a low ebb at that time in the morning.

- Crowd Pleaser

Warren Baxter and Mike Leaskou may have been high point men for the basketball team this year, but reserve center Desha Williams was the real cheer-getter. Just his entry into the game, stirred up the rooting section, and when he scored, the noise was deafening.

Rhode Island is the most densely populated state.

City College Ram Mascot Is Eager-Beaver

Sam, the college's ram mascot, apparently has had his fill of social life for awhile, and he's now ready to buckle down to more serious work.

Up to now the ram's main job has been public relations, and City College's fast breaking quest on campus, he hasn't been assigned much homework by the instructors and they have been careful to make his final exams very easy.

The first lulling of Sam's eagerness to work his way through college came last week end when he started visiting the various departments of the college. His first stop was the office of The Guardsman.

The staff was busy at the copy desk, but from the moment that Sam first peeked in the front door, all work stopped as the reporters watched the celebrity. Seeing that his opportunity to view the journalism department at work was lost, the ram left the premises, but he was seen a few minutes later slyly pecking in a side window.

His next visit was to the campus police department. Speculation that he was just there to pay off a traffic fine was soon forgotten as he intently watched the minions of the law go through their paces.

Sammy refuses to comment on the parts of the college that he has seen at work, other than saying, "baaa" to all of them. He may be dissatisfied, but coming from Sam, this could also be a term of endearment.

The Merino is expected to visit other parts of the college in the near future, and instructors are busily preparing for his inspection tour. For after all, if such an important personage as Sam goes around saying "baaa" to every department, the college administration might get the wrong idea.

Gators Beat Rams In Opener As Wildness Plagues Locals; College Nine Plays SI Today

Saint Ignatius High School opposes the college baseball team today at 3:30 p.m. in a practice game to be played at Big Rec (Golden Gate Park). Alameda Naval Air Station plays the Rams Friday, March 12 and Treasure Island has a March 16 date with the college nine.

The first practice tilt this season found the Red and White dropping a 7-6 decision to San Francisco State, February 27. Stan Fetterman started for the Rams and allowed 6 hits and 1 run in the 6 innings he toiled on the hill.

Bob Ward, Jim Hatchel and John Pulli teamed up to hold the Gators to only 2 hits in the last 2 innings but they were wild, walking 8 men. Pulli was the losing pitcher.

The team definitely has improved over last year's squad if the practice games are an indication. Ram Coach Bill Fischer stated.

Stockton's Mustangs will be the first Big Seven league opponent for the college when they meet the locals March 27 in an afternoon doubleheader at Funston Field in San Francisco.

The University of California frosh squad hosts the Rams March 23 at San Pablo Park, Berkeley and the U. S. Marines come here on March 25 in a couple of pre-season games. East Contra Costa completes the slate on March 31 at Funston.

The baseball schedule for the month of March is as follows:

March 10—Saint Ignatius High, Big Rec.
March 12—Alameda Naval, Big Rec.
March 16—Treasure Island, Funston.
March 17—Mission High, Funston.
March 18—Presidio, Big Rec.
March 19—Alameda Naval, There.
March 23—U. C. Frosh, San Pablo Park, Berkeley.
March 25—U. S. Marines, Here.
March 27—Stockton (Conference game), Here, Doubleheader.
March 31—East Contra Costa, Funston.

RAMBLINGS

By Gail Allan Moss

A SUCCESSFUL basketball season is over, the returns are in, and it's time to go out on a limb and list choices for a Big Seven All-Conference team.

Sometime within the next few weeks, the coaches of the Big Seven teams will announce the official All-Conference club. Any resemblance between the official picks and this "dream team" is strictly coincidental, but it is felt that the men named are at least worthy of the mythical honors bestowed each year, and any coach would be proud and happy to send a team like this out on the floor.

So, as a tribute to these players and for what it's worth, here is The Guardsman's 1954 Big Seven All-Conference basketball team:

Forwards; Charley Bogle, San Mateo, and Warren Baxter, CCSF.

Center: Eural McKelvey, West Contra Costa.

Guards: Charles Young, Sacramento, and Mike Leaskou, CCSF.

The outstanding player of the year was by far the big Richmond center, McKelvey. The 6-6 Comet, an excellent rebounder, led the league in scoring for the second straight year with a 21.6 average. 'Nuff said.

Bogle, the other big man on the team at 6-8, was also a top board man, and that and his 15.7 average, good enough for fifth in the scoring race, were two of the few bright spots in an otherwise dismal Bulldog season.

Baxter, the other forward, was undoubtedly the surprise of the league. After riding the bench last year, the 5-8 speedster turned up as a top scorer this year, and his 17.9 average was second only to McKelvey in the final scoring statistics. Besides that, his speed and ball-handling ability was one of the reasons that Modesto newsmen called the Rams "fastest-breaking club in the conference."

Young, the 5-10 Panther guard, was the number three scorer in the league and the playmaker of the Sacramento club. He has been compared to Bob Matheny in his actions by Ram Coach Ralph Hillsman, high praise indeed for the red-headed sophomore. His 17.2 average, although excellent, is not indicative of his complete all-around value to his team.

Rounding out the "perfect" quintet is Leaskou. The tall 6-5½ guard, the junior half of City College's fast break duo, sported a 15.6 average at season's end, and his unorthodox passing and fantastic driving shots were both a help to the team and good entertainment for fans.

There are two other players that deserve special note in listing the top performers. Willie Rock, Modesto's jump-shooting forward, was an early-season catch for honors, but a badly injured ankle, although it seemed to keep him out of the lineup, handicapped his scoring in the latter half of the year.

Theopolis Dunn, Ram center, was in the opinion of many, the best all-around pivot-man in the conference, but he had the misfortune to be hitching McKelvey's incredible scoring ability.

His next visit was to the campus police department. Speculation that he was just there to pay off a traffic fine was soon forgotten as he intently watched the minions of the law go through their paces.

Sammy refuses to comment on the parts of the college that he has seen at work, other than saying, "baaa" to all of them. He may be dissatisfied, but coming from Sam, this could also be a term of endearment.

The Merino is expected to visit other parts of the college in the near future, and instructors are busily preparing for his inspection tour. For after all, if such an important personage as Sam goes around saying "baaa" to every department, the college administration might get the wrong idea.

Four Veterans Bolster Ram Track Team's Title Hopes; Tough Big Seven Race Ahead

With only a handful of last year's squad returning and a tough schedule facing them, the Ram trackmen have their practice sessions under way and are looking forward to a good season.

The only returnees are Al Carlson, Charles Smack, Bill Paratore and Bob Cross, but all of them starred last year and are expected to form a strong nucleus this season.

Carlsen was the Big Seven champion in the half mile last year, covering the distance in 1:58.6, and he should improve on that good time while running the half mile and 440 yards (quarter mile) this time around.

Smack, the Rams all-purpose man this year, will probably see action during the season in both sprints, the 120 and the low hurdles. Smack was a member of the top mile relay team last year.

Another three event man, Paratore will probably run the sprints and the low hurdles. Cross, a two-miler who won the event in all but one of the college's dual meets last season, has been moved to the mile this season, and coach Roy Burkhead expects great things of him.

The squad is graced with a host of fine newcomers, and the best of them appears to be Don Malone, a Texas product. Malone, a four sport man in high school, won three events in last year's Texas State meet, capturing the 100 yard dash in 09.8, the broad jump with 23-2 and the low hurdles in 23.7, all excellent performances.

Other top newcomers include sprinter Jack Cargill from Jordan; John Apperson, the Oakland Athletic League high hurdling record holder; Dyrad Junior Sabino Redinda, who did 22-3 last year at Polytechnic, and discus man Rick Mesquitalis, Gary Jones and Earl Smith of Washington and Ken Orrell from Polytechnic.

"We can fill a few weak spots," said Head Coach Burkhead, "and should be a better than average club." This Saturday's Ram hopefuls have competition from other partners, pole vaulters on high jumpers and Burkhead plans to have a chance to test all the squad in three positions. Jones will probably be used in the shot put, but as yet no one has been switched to fill the other spots.

Ram Athletic Teams Play In Big 7 Conference

The Big Seven Conference is a league of Northern California two-year colleges that includes City College's athletic teams, with the exception of the soccer team, which competes in the Northern California Inter-Collegiate Soccer League.

The Big Seven, formerly called the Northern California Junior College Conference, is composed of City College, Modesto, Sacramento, San Mateo, Santa Rosa, Stockton and West Contra Costa (Richmond). The league's name was changed in 1950.

Teams of the Big Seven have distinguished themselves in inter-league competition and the conference is generally recognized as the strongest two-year college group in Northern California.

Other leagues in the area are the Coast Conference, consisting of East Contra Costa, Hartnell, Marin, Menlo and Monterey, and the Golden Valley League, including Grant Tech, Sacramento, Napa, Shasta, Feather River, Sierra, Vallejo and Yuba colleges.

Varsity Boxing Breaks Into College Program

Boxing officially breaks into the college sports program in the near future, with the varsity team meeting freshman squads from other local colleges, Roy Diedenichsen, head boxing instructor, stated last week.

Competition will be furthered by the addition of other two-year institutions in Northern California to the Rams already growing schedule.

Diedenichsen said that in all the boxing tourneys the college enters participants will be required by state law to wear protective head gear to prevent any possible injury.

Hoping to start the season off on the right foot, Diedenichsen's charges went through their usual rough practice schedule with almost expert precision.

The All City-College Boxing tournament that was slated to take place March 3, was cancelled because of the lack of ring opponents in the varsity.

AS Heads Promote Campus Athletics

Associated Student Men's Athletic Commissioner here, Al Kingston, whose main job is to secure a closer relationship between the college athletic department and the Associated Students, last week revealed the commissioner's plans for the coming semester.

Plans call for an intramural basketball league to be held among various campus fraternities and clubs. The games would be played twice weekly with each fraternity or club playing once a week so as not to interfere with other activities. The winners would receive awards of some kind, according to Kingston.

This is a big step in building up an intramural program, which is already in full swing here, and is the athletic commissioner's goal for this semester.

A duty of the commissioner is to keep Ram athletes more aware of what the Associated Students here are doing for them. The AS bears the complete cost of the college athletic program.)

Kingston also checks on athletes to see if they are AS members, a constitutional law for all participants. He does over the athletic budget and has to give valid reasons why money should be spent for the inter-collegiate sports and intramural activities.

Kingston must also decide who should receive athletic awards according to provisions in the AS constitution.

WAA Participates In Santa Rosa Playday

Participants from City College in the Women's Athletic Association playday last Saturday at Santa Rosa had a successful time, according to association President Joan Anderson. The playday included students from all Bay Area two-year colleges and the City College sport of the day was basketball.

There are three possible awards for members of the Women's Athletic Association, Miss Anderson added. These awards include, the first semester shield, the second semester Block SF and the third semester star.

Golfers Boasting Three Good Members

Boasting a trio of returning veterans from last year's second place team in the Big Seven Conference, Ram golfers enter their second week of practice with some degree of anxiety, Ralph Hillsman, head coach here, stated last week.

Heading the list of second year men is Gene George, Lou Sartor and Charles Lowe. George has golfed in the middle 70's, while Sartor and Lowe have recorded averages in the low 80's.

Other players in contention for the varsity are as follows: Stan Diamond, Bob Flanagan, Joe Galante, Doug Heidobrn and Harlan Hayakawa.

Basketball Team Finishes Season Breaking Records

Again this year, as in the past, the Ram basketballers have made a good showing for themselves, both as a team and individually, according to official records released last week.

As a team, the Rams finished in second place, but the City College outfit was the highest scoring quintet in the Big Seven, with 810 points in 12 games, the only team in the league to go over 800.

Defensively, they ranked third in the league, giving up 741 points to the opposition. The average score in each of the dozen games was 67.5 for the college and 61.8 for the opponent.

Individually, the Rams fared just as well. Forward Warren Baxter finished second in the Big Seven race, guard Mike Leaskou was sixth and center Theopolis Dunn was ninth.

All of last seasons' individual records were broken during the course of the 1954 season. The record most frequently smashed was Frank Hess' 1953 mark of 23 points in a single game. Dunn scored 28 and 25 in single games, Baxter bucketed 25 on two different occasions and Leaskou checked in with 24 in each of two games.

Another record that was completely shattered was Jerry Stack's top average mark of 12.0 points per game last year. This season Baxter, with 17.9, Leaskou, with 15.6, and Dunn, with 14.1 all bettered this mark. Baxter's 1954 record is the highest average for conference games recorded at the college.

The other record broken was also bettered by a wide margin. Dunn bucketed 97 free throws to smash Hess' mark of 62 last year. Dunn also came within two of Kevin Duggan's college mark of 99, set in 1950.

Individual scoring for the 1954 season was as follows:

Name	FG	FT	TP
Baxter	137	62	336
Leaskou	129	64	322
Dunn	105	97	307
Stack	53	32	138

Diggins	36	19	91
Holder	18	26	62

Any athlete who has been awarded a Block SF letter is eligible to join the society, Bill Fischer, society sponsor, stressed.

Activities which the society plans for the future lifeblue participation in the Mardi Gras, a dance, The Block SF dinner, and a Most Valuable Player Award.

Netmen Lose To Stanford Frosh, Then Come Back Against Lincoln

City College's tennis fortunes hit their ups and downs this past week as the team lost to the Stanford Frosh and then recuperated to defeat Lincoln High School.

Last Thursday City College's undefeated practice season went a-glimmering as they lost 6-3 to a strong Stanford Frosh at Palo Alto. The outstanding performance of the meet was turned in by Marvin Gordon, the number five man, who won the only singles match.

The other two victories were won by the ace doubles teams which were composed of Stan Cartwright and Bill Wright, and Harold Kopp and Allan Matsumo.

Last Monday the team bounced back using a make-shift lineup, composed of varsity and junior varsity men. The match score was 5-4 in City College's favor.

Singles matches were won by Matsumo, 6-4, 7-5; Gordon, 6-1, 6-1; Sam Yumato, 6-2, 6-4; the doubles victories by Matsumo and Donald Wing, 7-5, 6-1, and by Yumoto and Joe Lepshner, 6-1, 7-5.

This completed the practice season leaving a practice record of two wins and one loss. The regular season opened last Friday against San Mateo, with results unavailable at press time.

Models Needed By Photography Department Here

Models are still needed for many of the photography classes here, Emmett Smith, photography instructor, said this week.

Openings were noted by Smith in the Tuesday afternoon portrait class, Monday evening class, Tuesday and Thursday morning advertising photography class and the Tuesday evening motion picture class.

Lack of self-consciousness and a willingness to pose are essential characteristics for any person interested in modeling Smith added. A wide range of types and nationalities, regardless of sex, are needed.

Beginning models will not be paid but prints of their pictures will be given them. If and when a model becomes a regular worker, some financial compensation will be given, Smith noted.

All interested students can sign up for an interview in Building 9 after 10 o'clock on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Each applicant will be given an interview, said Smith, but no promises will be made about being accepted for the job.

Coach Heads Clinic

RALPH HILLSMAN, basketball coach here, heads a panel of eight two-year college coaches chosen to conduct a clinic for high school mentors this Saturday following the high school Tournament of Champions at Berkeley.

Every aspect of basketball will be covered in the clinic, which will consist of a series of addresses by the two-year college men to high school coaches from all over Northern California.

Coaches on the panel besides Hillsmore, Leon Lafaille, Modesto; Roy Bolstad, San Mateo; Rudy Hansen, West Contra Costa; Guy Brion, East Contra Costa; Woody Hutchinson, Grant Tech; Irvin Diamond, Marin; and Joe Morelich, Napa.

Mysterious Visitor Is Not Lady Luck; Embarrassing Moments For Producer In Victorian Furniture Hunt

Lady Luck wasn't so kind to Deane Cyr, the producer of Kind Lady, last week.

Cyr was searching the campus and the city for some authentic Victorian furniture for one of the sets of Kind Lady, the coming production of the Little Theater, when he happened to hear that George Gould, a biology instructor here, was a collector of such furniture.

There was only one drawback. Cyr had never met, nor even seen, Gould, but the rumors went that he was a hard man to deal with.

Cyr came up with a solution. He went to see Dean Edwin C. Browne, the well-known public relations man and after-dinner speaker, in hopes that the dean could help him out.

He was about to unfold his tale of woe when Dean Browne had another visitor. The newcomer, being a gentleman through and through, sat down in the dean's office and gave Cyr the floor, all the worse for Cyr.

The producer came right to the point (something unusual in producers). "We need some Victorian furniture for one of our sets, Dean Browne, and I've heard that some instructor here named Gould has some, and I'd appreciate it if you'd kind of uh—talk to him first and put in a good word for me."

"I'd see him myself," Cyr hemmed and hawed, "but I've heard that this Gould is a tough nut to crack and you—you know, you're closer to him and you could probably get me in with him."

While all this was going on, Dean Browne's other visitor just sat and took it all in. Finally he interjected with "Just what would you need, Cyr?"

The young man was on the verge of telling him, too, and just as he started to realize who the visitor was (you've probably guessed) Dean Browne confirmed the worst.

"Cyr, why don't you talk to Mr. Gould here personally?"

(Note: Despite the circumstances, Kind Lady, furniture and all, can be seen in the Little Theater on March 11, 12 and 13.)

Correction

An error in regard to benefits under certain public laws applicable to veteran education was inadvertently published in the March 3 issue of The Guardsman.

Only veterans under public laws 16, 346 and 894 are eligible to receive their books free of charge.

Frosh-Soph Cage Game For March

To stimulate competition between the freshmen and sophomore classes, a basketball game will be held sometime during March in the men's gymnasium here, Paul Ortiz, freshman class president, stated last week.

Men who wish to play ball for the freshman team should contact Ortiz as soon as possible. Players will be chosen on a first come, first serve basis, he added. Only 10 to 15 men will be accepted.

Sophomores interested in the competition should consult Jim Vickers, sophomore class president.

We hope, said Ortiz, to make this basketball game between sophs and frosh a semi-annual tradition of the college.

The freshman and sophomore teams will be coached by Ortiz and Vickers respectively.

Officers of the freshman class, added Ortiz, are Peggy Alexander, vice president and Sonia Seebohn, social secretary. Class committee members are Marcia Norstrom, Al Caredio and Diane Kaylor.

Student Bank Manages Club Activity Funds

Clubs, fraternities and sororities bank their money in the college Student Bank, room 188 main building, according to Roberta Fredrick, bank cashier here. To hold money and to issue checks upon request to the various organizations is the chief function of the bank, Mrs. Fredrick explained.

Associated Student cards, tickets and college dance bids may be purchased by students at the bank window, said Mrs. Fredrick. At commencement, bids for graduation are also available there.

Student lockers are also issued at the bank. These are given out only in September, emphasized Mrs. Fredrick.

The bank is open Monday through Friday. Hours are from 9:45 until 11:10 in the morning and from 12:01 until 1:15 in the afternoon.

Alumni Magazine Major Proposal For Future Meet

Plans now underway for a regular alumni association publication will be discussed at the group's next general meeting, according to Edwin Frediani, association president. The place and date of the meeting is not yet set.

The purpose of the publication would be to keep the alumni in touch with student and alumni activities.

Also on the agenda is discussion of the annual Charter Day celebration, the association's main social function of the year, Frediani said. Last year the affair was in honor of Louis G. Conlan who had just become the president of the college.

Frediani also stated that approximately seven meetings of the association are held annually to discuss social and business functions of the group.

Homecoming Week, featuring a visit to the campus and a banquet prepared by the Hotel and Restaurant division of the college is a high spot on the social calendar of the group, according to Frediani.

Last year the group held a drive for members which was termed successful by Frediani.

A non-profit organization, the association is incorporated and is run by a board of directors who meet as the occasion arises.

Membership in the organization is of two types. First, there is the charter life membership, which costs $10 but affords the member the privileges of the association for life. Secondly, there is the subscriber membership, which is renewable yearly at a cost of $3.

Honor Student Receives Florence Lewis Award

Pricilla Wong was awarded the Florence Lewis Scholarship here last week.

Miss Wong came to this country in 1947 from China. Since then she has been self supporting, according to Dean Mary Golding.

In her fourth semester here, Miss Wong has maintained a high grade point average, Dean Golding added.

The scholarship consists of $25 and an Associated Student card. The award is based on scholarship, need and leadership, she stated.

Miss Lewis, for whom the scholarship is named, graduated from the college three years ago, and in appreciation of the experience and fine instruction she had at the college she has left this award to a deserving girl each semester, Dean Golding explained.

College Coffee Hour Scheduled

Students will have the opportunity to meet faculty members during the Faculty-Student coffee hour on Friday, April 2, in Building 2, during College Hour, George Baffico, president of the Faculty Association, announced here last week.

The meeting, which is a bi-annual affair, will be the sixth of a series since its innovation, Baffico said. The gathering affords students an opportunity to meet and talk with all members of the faculty and thus create better relations, he added.

Free coffee will be served and Baffico invites all students to attend.

MARINES HERE FRIDAY

Members of the Marine Corps will be on campus Friday, March 12, to discuss the Officers' Candidate Course and the Platoon Leaders Class.

Choral Festival, Concert And Tours Will Keep A Cappella Choir Continuously Occupied Throughout Spring Semester

Plans for a spring concert here and a choral and choir festival at San Francisco State College, are keeping the A Cappella Choir singing at a fast pace this semester, Richard Vine, choir director here, announced last week.

Among some of the selections planned for the spring concert, on May 7, and the Choral Festival at State College on May 3, are: Sacred Anthems, Cheruhin Song, Love in Grief, Coral Sweet, Showboat songs, and Porgy and Bess.

The choral festival, an annual affair, not only for the college, but for many other two-year colleges in Northern California, promises to be a long remembered affair for the choir, Vine stated.

Choirs and choral groups from the following colleges will be represented: Sierra College, Lassen Junior College, Shasta College, Napa College, Grant Technical College, Sacramento Junior College, Santa Rosa Junior College, College of Marin, East and West Contra Costa, Vallejo College.

Stockton College, Modesto Junior College, Menlo College, San Mateo College, San Jose Junior College, San Benito College and Hartnell College.

A week-end tour of Northern California is planned for the choir, said Vine, and they will sing most of the selections on the program for the spring concert.

Soloists who will take part in these performances are Ilima Baker, Kitty Freirson, Emma Hilliard, Raymond Murrillo, Susan Palmer, Earl Phillips, Richard Ramich, Barbara Senegal, Loretta Warchot, Barbara Warner and Nadine Williams.

The choir is planning a picnic and baseball game at Sigmund Stern Grove on Sunday, May 15. The game is between the Altos-basses and the Tenors-sopranos.

Officers elected to represent the choir for the spring semester are as follows: Henry Boice, President; Nolan Katz, Vice-President; Lue Terry, Secretary-Treasurer; Edna Johnson, Publicity Manager; Ilima Baker and Throvolde Hansen, Property Managers; Cecil Solomon and Patricia Ford, Librarians.

10 Delta Psi's Aid College Library Staff

Ten Delta Psi sorority members have contributed their free time to the college library, according to Clement Skrabak, library Staff member, last week.

To handle the large circulation this semester, Skrabak explained that temporary help was needed at odd hours of the day, and that several sorority members signed-up.

Those working at this time are Georgia Buerger, Meribeth Taylor, Shirley Stevens, Francine Catania, Georgia Baldasson, Charlotte Wright, Irene Soohodosky, Barbara Schneider, Lenore Thompson, and Joanne Yarnell.

Jobs done by these students include working on the circulation desk, the reference stacks, the cataloging room and the office.

Spring Serenade Is Theme Of A WS Tea

Spring Serenade has been chosen as the theme of the Associated Women Student tea and fashion show to be given on April 8 here, Jan Sewall, president of the organization, announced last week.

The tea is scheduled to be held in the new library in Cloud Hall. Thirty girls and a sponsor from each San Francisco high school will be invited, Miss Sewall said. Cotton dresses and heels will be the style of dress, she added.

The Riviera Dress Shop will supply dresses for the fashion show. Six sorority and six non-sorority women, as yet undecided, will model the clothes.

Sorority pledges will serve at the tea and sorority members will be hostesses at the affair, she stated.

Committees for the tea, Miss Sewall announced, are publicity, decoration, set-up, food and serve, entertainment, hostessing, clean-up and clothes.

Other officers of the AWS are Lois Mantel, vice-president; Loretta Warchot, secretary, and Joan Anderson, treasurer.

Groups Active In Final Rush Weeks

By Patty Moran

These are busy days for campus sororities and fraternities as they step into the final weeks of their rushing period.

Alpha Sigma Delta met jointly with Phi Beta Rho on Wednesday, February 24, at the home of Judy Loorya. Each member gained admission by bringing a can of food to be used in the sorority's program of helping the needy.

The sorority held its first affair at the home of Elaine Stickle on Sunday, February 28.

Ray Tankersley was recently elected Manager of the Band Association. Bob Nordstrom was chosen Assistant Manager. Other officers elected are Student Director, Henry Boyce II; Secretary-Treasurer, Conchita Bondoc; Librarian, Zoraida Lopez.

President of the Horticulture Society is Louise McMichael. Holding positions with her are Vice-President, Lon Harverson; Secretary, Lillien Anderson; Treasurer, John Chamberlain.

Officers for Kappa Phi this semester are President, Mary Walker; Vice-President, Bobbie Campello; Corresponding Secretary, Patty Mascarelli; Recording Secretary, Carol Hotton; Treasurer, Jackie Mascarelli; Pledge Mistress, Mary Lou Williams; Historian, Joyce Van Haren; Sergeant-at-Arms, Joann Adolph.

Kappa Rho will hold its first affair this Sunday, March 14, for all men students that signed up on CAB Day.

Theta Tau held its first affair on Monday, February 22, at the home of the sorority's president, Jan Sewall. The group met for a joint meeting with Gamma Phi on Wednesday, February 24.

A welcome party, sponsored by the International Relationship Club, was held for new foreign students in Building 2 last Friday, March 5.

Phi Starr is the new Pledge Master for Tau Chi Sigma, due to the resignation of Gene Borilli.

Officers for the Filipino Students Club were elected at a recent meeting. They include President, Bart Regino; Vice-President, Manuel Tuna; Secretary, Josephine Stardo; Treasurer, Cristina Medina; Sergeant-at-Arms, Sammy Baxter; CAB Representative, Tomas Ramirez.

Honor Society Sponsors Tea For Members

Alpha Gamma Sigma, honor society here, will sponsor a president's reception for honor students and members of the faculty on Sunday, March 21, from 2 to 4 p.m. in the student lounge, Building 2, according to Don Jensen, adviser to the group.

Invitations to the affair have been sent, Jensen said, by Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college. The week following the tea, a society dinner will take place, but a definite time for the event has not been set.

Concerning AGS membership requirements, Jensen said, students are often confused. The honor society is run on a one semester basis. Students maintaining a "B" average or better at the college with no grade lower than "C" and a minimum of 30 grade points are eligible to join. Both the "B" average and the 30 grade points are necessary.

High school gold seal bearers may be admitted on a temporary basis for one semester. After permanent membership, Jensen further stated, a student must maintain AGS membership for three out of four semesters, or four out of five semesters in high rating also.

This semester's AGS President is Harold Jackson, who has been a member for two semesters and the Secretary-Treasurer of the organization, Ruby Gaston, is a four semester member.

To date there are 25 members of the honor society. They are as follows: Robert Ash, James Becker, Ruby Blessing, Marion Cheader, Luther Distler, Charles Dean, William Doyle, Mary Jane Fong, Garnet Hong, Frans Klaver, Lim Lai, Edward Lester, Dongid Magrini, James McDermott, Orsa Montsanas, Victor Pacquet, Albert Persyn, Joseph Schauer, Nancy Walsh, Loretta Warchot, Miss Gaston and Jackson.

Eligible students should contact Jensen in the counselling offices in Building 3, west campus, to sign up for membership.

Tryouts For Curious Savage End This Friday

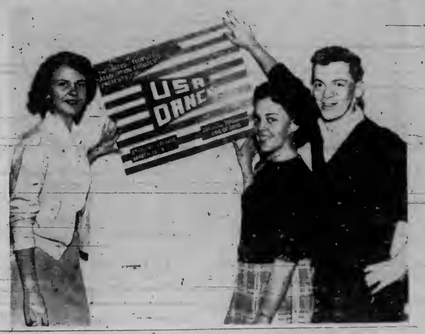
Tryouts for another drama society production, The Curious Savage, will be held tomorrow and Friday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., in the college's Little Theatre, main building, Michael Griffin, drama adviser here, announced last week.

Any member of the Associated Students may try out for a part in the coming production, Griffin explained, adding that those who are cast as either actors, producers, stage hands, prompters or in any other special position may earn from one to three units of college credit depending upon the amount of time given.

Dates for the presentation of the play will be Thursday, April 22, Friday, April 23 and Saturday, April 24.

The Curious Savage, written by John Patrick, is a comedy. The story concerns an elderly and extremely wealthy woman, Mrs. Savage. With the idea of relieving the old lady of her money, greedy stepchildren have her committed to a sanitorium. Here she meets frustrated misfits for whom she gives her affection and whose company she begins to enjoy. The story ends happily as the old lady proves again that greed and dishonesty never pay.

College Hour Gives Way To Midterms



No college hour has been scheduled for this Friday, March 19, because of midterm examinations, according to Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here.

Consequently, the movie usually shown by the audio-visual department during college hour will not be presented this Friday. The movie and the club meetings held during college hour will be resumed next week on Friday, March 26.

The college hour schedule will continue each Friday until the end of the current semester, Batmale said, with the exception of April 16, which is Easter vacation. May 7, which falls in the week of second midterms and June 18, the last day for final examinations.

USA Presents Frisco Frolics Friday

Second Semi-Annual Record Dance In Lounge Highlights Weekend

With the theme Frisco Frolics, the United Students Association will present its second semi-annual record dance here in the student lounge, Building 2, on Friday, March 19, from 9 p.m. until midnight, Millie Stoll, USA spokesman, announced last week.

Admission price is 25 cents to Associated Student members and 75 cents general admission, Miss Stoll stated. Tickets will be available at the door Friday evening.

As the social event is strictly casual, sportswear will be the appropriate dress, she added.

The latest popular records will provide music for dancing.

Making arrangements for the affair are USA social committee members: John Adams, Wray Jacobs, Bob Moore, Dave Raphael, Sonia Seebohm, Alton Tanner and Miss Stoll.

The purpose of the dance, Miss Stoll commented, is not only to provide an evening of enjoyment for everyone, but also to give students an opportunity to acquaint themselves with the USA and its members.

The United Student Association, which devotes time and service to the college and nominates candidates for Associated Student offices, meets during college hour on Fridays in Building 5L.

Women Beat Men In Card Sales Contest By $460

Victors in the Associated Student card sales contest announced here today were the Associated Women Students, who accounted for $3,465 of the total $6,350 received from card sales thus far, topping the Associated Men Students by $460.

Individual card sales honors went to Emily Hardy, sophomore student here, who was also high-card salesman in last semester's AMS-AWS contest.

Dave Raphael, AS card sales chairman, stated that the $6,350 total is an all time AS card sales high, and is rapidly approaching the $8,000 goal set by the card sales committee. He said he felt that mainly through the efforts of Miss Hardy and her fellow students had the new card sales record been established.

Other students who pushed Miss Hardy for honors were AS President Joe Garbarino, AS Vice-President Alberta Cordini, AMS President Bill Boldenweck, AWS President Jan Sewall, Lance Thurston and Walt Yakovleff.

A new card sales contest aimed at obtaining 100 per cent membership voluntarily among non-budget supported clubs on campus started last week. Staff Raphael declared that scrolls will be placed in the main building and in Building 2 to carry the names of clubs achieving 100 per cent AS membership among their members.

The committee is considering a plan whereby veterans and their wives would be required to have only one card for each couple, Raphael said. He pointed out that cards may still be purchased at the Associated Student office in Building 2, and are also on sale in The Rampornium on the west campus.

Rally Auditions Start Next Week

Talent tryouts for performances in future rallies here will be held Monday, March 22 and Tuesday, March 23, Emmet Thompson, the college's newly elected Rally Commissioner, announced last week.

Students interested in appearing in the college's rallies, must sign with Thompson in the Associated Student office for auditions, he said.

Where the tryouts will be held has not been determined, Thompson stated, but the site will be announced at a later date.

Further information, he said, may be obtained from members of the Rally Committee, who are Ena Bevereso, Bob Arago, Joe Bavaresco, Ron Berne, Bottie Cutler, Wray Jacobs, Ann Lee, Lawrence Lowe, Bob McNaught, Bob Nordstrom, Marcia Norstrom, Brad Owens, Pat Quick, Dave Raphael, Shirley Rathbone, Sonia Seebohm, Millie Stoll, Alton Tanner, and Miki Wrenn.

Associated Student Financial Report Headlines Council Business; Debate Follows Budget Item

A total Associated Student budget of $16,100 for Spring, 1954 was voted upon and passed by the Student Council last week.

In its meeting March 9, lengthy debate followed the introduction of one budget item, while 17 others grouped under co-educational activities and miscellaneous headings were passed with little comment.

A partial campus police budget of $240 for three new police uniforms and $10 for alterations was passed, and discussion of the remaining $100 of the recommended $350 police budget was scheduled for a Finance Committee meeting later, because of a suggestion by Fred Fitzgerald of the law enforcement department here.

Fitzgerald suggested that the $100 which was originally recommended to be used for a campus police banquet be applied instead for new leather jackets for the force. Money for the jackets was deleted from the original requested campus police budget of $700.

Much discussion followed this proposal, in which Fitzgerald further asked that the campus police be paid for their services during the college's Mardi Gras carnival, stating that on the evening of the carnival the men work from 6 p.m. until after midnight.

Phi Rho Pi debating society budget was dropped from $370 to $270, when it was pointed out that the society could not use $100 marked for transportation expenses to a forensic gathering in Oregon, because of a ruling prohibiting trips out of state.

Budgets for men's and women's activities and the publications budget were considered and passed at committee meeting last Thursday. See page 4 for complete itemized budget story.

Appointment of Emmett Thompson to the position of Rally Commissioner was announced by Associated Student President Joe Garbarino.

Thompson, who fills a vacancy created by Wayne Easely when he was forced to leave college last week because of ill health, was assistant Rally Commissioner in fall semester of 1950, prior to his Army induction.

Meetings of the council, held each Tuesday and Thursday in 12 Noon in Building 2A, are open to all members of the Associated Students.

This Week's AS Campus Activities

Activities open this week to all Associated Student members are as follows:

- AMS MEETING—Today, 2 p.m., Building 2B.
- COUNCIL MEETINGS—Tomorrow, Tuesday, 12, Building 2A.
- CAB MEETING—Tomorrow, 1 p.m., Building 2A.
- SOCIAL COMMITTEE—Tomorrow, 2 p.m., Building 2B.
- USA DANCE—Friday, 8 p.m., Student Lounge, Building 2.

Pre-Registration Starts In April

Because of the probable high number of students returning here next semester, appointments for pre-registration counselling, scheduled to begin Monday, April 5, should be made as soon as possible, in the counselling office in Building 3, Alva McMillan, counsellor here, announced last week.

Appointments may be made starting Monday, March 22, he said.

Priority for early registration will be reserved for students whose programs are stamped with low registration numbers, McMillan added, and these may be obtained by early counselling appointments.

Loss of programs will result in higher numbers, he warned, because registration time is stamped by machine.

All counsellors, McMillan stated, will be glad to answer questions arising about curriculum or the college, if students will see them before April 5, when counselling pre-registration begins.

Student Delegates Represent College At Santa Rosa Parley

To present a united front at the California Junior College Student Government Conference at Coronado on April 1, 2 and 3, 19 Northern California junior colleges met at Santa Rosa Junior College on March 4.

Twenty-one student delegates and two faculty advisers represented this college at the conference.

In a series of workshops and assemblies, the student leaders combined ideas and suggested improvements in two-year college systems.

Among the workshops visited were student government, finance, publications and publicity, rallies and assemblies (headed by Alberta Cordini, AS vice-president here), athletics, Associated Men Students and Associated Women Students.

One of the problems discussed was the status of semi-professional athletes and their position on two-year college teams. Problem of financing the college conferences was also mentioned and the question of whether the college hosting the conference should be subsidized was discussed.

Faculty members present at the parley were Mary Golding, dean of women and Louis Batmale, assistant dean in charge of student activities here.

Student leaders who attended were Joe Garbarino, AS president, Miss Cordini, AS vice-president, Bill Boldenweck, AMS president, Jan Sewall, AWS president, Walt Yakovleff, information service chairman and slate officer, and council and cabinet representatives Bob Arago, Joe Bavaresco, Bottie Cutler, Ken Feiffel, Wray Jacobs, Patti Mascarelli, Barbara Masters, Bob Moore, Marcia Norstrom, Paul Ortiz, Dave Raphael, George Saba, Millie Stoll, Jim Vickers and Mickie Wrenn.

Vet Sign-up Period Shortened Next Month

Veterans attending the college under the provisions of Public Law 550 should file attendance certificates at the veteran's affairs office in Building 3 as early as possible in April, according to Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator, division of student welfare here.

The sign-up period will be shortened by two days next month. The normal period is the first four days of each month, March 1 and 2, but April 3 and 4 fall on a weekend.

Marsh also noted that the number of veterans attending the college has increased to 750 and that there is a possibility that the number will soon reach 800.

Construction To Begin On Student Union Building

Construction of the college's Student Union Building, primarily to house the cafeteria here, will begin next month following acceptance of bids by the Board of Education on March 9.

Besides the cafeteria, the building will be the new location of the fountain, hotel and restaurant division and the student bookstore, The Rampornium.

General construction will be undertaken by Ira H. Larsen and Company. Plumbing is by the Broadway Plumbing Company and electrical work by the Hampton Electrical Company of San Francisco. The total amount of the construction bid is $685,478. Construction will begin next month and will be completed in April or May of 1955.

Board members at the March 9 meeting recognized the need to continue to use some parts of the west campus until the Student Union Building is completed.

Cloud Hall, behind the main building, is already completed and will open for classes this month. Although not yet definite, plans for dedication ceremonies have tentatively been set for Public Schools' Week in April.

Them Snakes Just Gotta Go— Or You Too Can Be A Saint

MANY years ago Ireland was in dire distress, plagued by snakes who were overrunning the country and making it somewhat less than liveable.

Along came a man named Patrick who drove out these snakes and for this wondrous deed the hero was sainted and Ireland was saved.

How the college could use dear Saint Paddy today, but unfortunately he's busy on another campus, one of far greater heights than ours on the hill.

Why do we need the hero of the olde sod today? Well, the college is, as once was the case in Ireland, plagued by snakes.

These college reptiles aren't the kind the Saint dealt with, but they are just as dangerous in making City College as unlivable as Ireland was B. P. (before Patrick).

Our snakes are of the mind, snakes of non-participation. Non-participation in campus activities.

The Saint's snakes were destroying Ireland and these mental snakes are destroying the college activity program.

Associated Student activities have been supported by a microscopic number of students, the lucky few who aren't bothered by the aforementioned snakes.

Of course the large number of non-supporting students are in the grips of those mental snakes, and them mental snakes just gotta go! It's them or the activity calendar and the "livability" of the college.

The creatures must be driven out, not by a saint, but by a much less saintly person—by you, the average college student.

How to drive out the villains? Use your imagination. Saint Patrick cleared a whole country of snakes. All you need clear is the small area of your own mind.

And Paddy did it without benefit of college training, probably never saw even a high school diploma.

(In addition to your imagination try using that card you paid five clunkers for; the darn thing must be getting moth-eaten in your wallet.)

Honor the great man today, not only by wearing the green but by emulating our hero in doing some snake chasing of your own.

You too can be a Saint Patrick.

Jazz Offers Perplexing Problem In Youth, Life, And In Future

By Harold Painter

JAZZ is baffling. The people who make it will not agree on a definition other than that jazz is syncopated and noisy. Some will trace it to an excitable group of New Orleans musicians, and some trace it to the African slave in America. Everyone will agree, though, that jazz is purely American.

It's been identified with the American folk tradition, much in the same manner that soil is identified with the earth. Perhaps our forefathers were less restrained than we've been taught, and the Quakers were really a group of dance fans who derived their name from the fashion in which they responded to "singing of the Psalms."

Jazz has been called the musical commentary of the times. Sometimes it seems as though the times are out of kilter or the commentator is missing his uppers.

Jazz is too loud to be ignored, and some profound American writers have taken it seriously as indicative of an age. And they called it the Jazz Age, the 1920's. The Charleston, the speakeasy, and the barrel-house piano were jazz birds on the same limb.

When World War II appeared, people were still tottering. But the tradition had been passed on to the younger generation, the young people who were just a little rebellious, and found jazz a ready means of self-expression. Jazz seems to have taken a deep hold in the nerves of youth.

Jazz appears to be a sort of social indicator. A nervous uncertain era becomes jazzy, gaudy, too happy, afraid, hysterical. Music becomes disjointed. Anxiety and jazz often seem synonymous.

Few nations will lay claim to anxiety as a part of its tradition. If the origin of jazz can be traced to anxiety, it has no legitimate claim to the culture of a nation.

It's difficult to imagine a Japanese community sing having Home on the Range on its program. But Japan has accepted jazz, and the world has accepted jazz, perhaps, because anxiety is universal.

Knife Throwing Society Formed At Cambridge

A new society has been formed at Cambridge University — dedicated to the advancement and promotion of knife throwing at the institution.

Undergraduate members of the Cambridge Knife-Throwing club are now in the process of hunting up targets.

SKIN THE FOUNTAIN: You think you've got problems.

Consider the case of the decorative water fountain at Southern Methodist University.

It isn't run in the winter — because it might freeze. And it isn't run in the summer — because there's a water shortage in town that time of year.

Last week the SMU student council voted unanimously to try to get the fountain flowing.

How are they going to do it? Easy. Use anti-freeze, and let it bubble all winter.

CANADA: Constables were assigned to the University of Toronto's annual rugby train to make sure no one brought beer aboard. They were instructed to stop all students carrying suspicious parcels.

Last year the train suffered $500 damage at the hands of the rugby fans. The cost was paid through a general levy of students.

Stormy Weather Fails To Stop Convertible With Spring Fever

By Shirley Murphy

A LIVING propagandist for the Chamber of Commerce was observed speeding around the campus last week. Through rain and sleet, he drove his little '41 DeSoto convertible, sans top.

Name Dropping

Wyoming has been relocated. Nominally it has come to California and enrolled in the college in the person of Wyoming Robinson.

The Voice

Not only great artists are sensitive. Last week in the fountain, a robust would-be tenor was warbling, practically on key. Hearing a chorus of disparaging remarks, his eyes suddenly clouded and demanded, "What'd you expect, Howard Keel?"

A Is For Appetite

Chefs who prepared the luncheon for the recent Junior College Conference at Santa Rosa must have been gratified by the reception their delicacies received from representatives of the college. Two of the bigger student government leaders went through the line twice—from soup to dessert.

New Trend

Popularity of singing commercials seems to be on the upswing. The audience at the Inter-Fraternity Council smoker seemed to enjoy the commercials of the company sponsoring the movie, which showed highlights of the San Francisco 49'ers 1953 season, as much as they did the film.

Queen For A Night

Barbara Fong was chosen Sweetheart at the Chinese Student Ball, held recently at the Palace Hotel.

Shades Of Ireland

St. Patrick Is Still Alive In Irish Hearts

By Dolores Stoffers

Today, everyone is Irish, at least everyone claims to be Irish.

In fact, one who admits no connection, whatsoever, with Ireland, today, is thought by others to have a hole in his head, and no self respecting person wants that.

According to history and legend, this Saint Patrick was quite a person. When he was 16, he was captured by pirates who took him to Ireland, where he was forced into slavery. All was not well with him at the time, but whether the pirates knew it or not, they did Ireland a good turn, because after he escaped to France, he returned and did a lot of good on the Emerald Isle.

He drove the snakes out of Ireland with his music, and as anyone knows, that takes a lot of doing. Come to think of it, he wasn't even born in Ireland. He was supposed to have come from England, Scotland, France, or someplace.

No one can stuff off being Irish today, considering the fact of Saint Patrick's ancestry, because now there's no excuse.

Looking around the campus, nobody, but nobody, can help getting into today's spirit. The soft green slope in front of the main building, the west campus' emerald lawns where the morning sparkles on the clover: all is an essence of olde sod.

Students, merrily whistling The Foggy, Foggy Dew, and clad in the traditional green, notice that even Sammy, the "Marin O'Ram," is Irish today.

Mononucleosis Newly Named Old Disease Hits Bay Area

A rather peculiar disease has visited a score of Bay Area youths within the past few weeks, leaving diagnosticians, parents, and victims in wonderment.

Current medical belief is that the disease is a virus, and the virus has been labeled mononucleosis. The name is derived from one of the peculiar effects of the infection — the multifold increase of white blood cells having abnormal shape and a single nucleous.

High fever, swollen lymph glands, liver ailment, sore throat, leg pains, headaches, stiffness of the neck, stomach and chest pains are some of the symptoms. Symptoms discomfort the patient for two or three weeks and leave no permanent damage.

Twenty years ago, people called the disease grippe or glandular fever, and were at a loss to find an effective cure. Today, the infection has been identified and named but still lacks an effective anti-biotic or drug cure.

Diagnosis is simple and effective. A sample of the suspected host's blood serum is combined with a sample of sheep blood. If the cells of the sheep blood huddle together, identification of the disease is confirmed, and the patient is recommended two or three weeks of rest and comfort—perhaps, the reason the disease is particularly popular with college students.

Run-down college students, who have pursued too rigorous a program or taken a steady breakfast diet of coffee and a page or two of the 8 o'clock text, are, as a group, the most susceptible.

The disease is as prevalent as penuimonia but rarely as serious. The 15 to 30 age group is most likely to contract the disease, and persons beyond middle age are immune to it if they have had a minor attack in youth.

Building Two Is Headquarters For Student Activity

Building 2 is an important factor in the running of student activities of the college.

Inside its grayish-white walls and under its sloped roof, many personalities figure and plan dances, rallies, meetings and games for the Associated Students.

There is usually always some event or topic being discussed and proposed for placement on the social calendar In one of the rooms may be found members of the AS cabinet.

In fact, smiling Alberta Corlini, Associated Student vice-president here, is on the job. This brown-haired, brown-eyed, bubbling person may be distinguished clearly by her "Hello, how are you?" with a big smile. Miss Corlini's duty is to set the social calendar for the semester which she hopes appeals to all students in order to arouse the college spirit.

One may sometimes wonder whose voice is eagerly blasting over the loudspeaker, throughout the parking lots on the west campus. It well might be college yell leader Joe Bavaresco giving one of his pep talks. He could also be known for his warm, friendly smile and his brimming college spirit.

Bavaresco has many plans for raising spirit here; one of these is an upcoming rally with the college yells and songs, besides outside entertainment. At present, he is looking for some new songs and yells from students and would appreciate it if they would contact him in Building 2.

Another active officer is the college information service chairman, Walt Yakovleff. Brown hair and twinkling blue eyes are only a fractional description of this important personality.

His duty is to send information that other colleges write and ask for concerning City College. He also sends questionnaires to every two-year college in California, and from the answers, he makes a chart with 100 copies and takes them to the state conference, distributing one to each college that attends.

Letters to the Editor

• Attention Campus Police

Editor, The Guardsman:

It has been my misfortune to have to leave the west campus during the peak of rush hours. I have found that there has been a continuous line of cars going out the east gate exit, which makes it impossible for the students to get to their gym classes, or whatever class that they may have. I would like to make a suggestion that the campus police try opening the other half of the gate so that there will be a double line of traffic for right and left hand turns consecutively.

Am waiting anxiously for your immediate action.

Finer Things Of Life Are Important To Sam The Ram

By Don Osborne

Sammy, the college's Marino Ram Mascot, believes in the Greek philosophy of having a sound mind along with a strong body. Not only is Sammy a competent athlete but he also delves into the finer things of life.

For instance, it's not at all uncommon to see him complacently chewing grass to the strains of Beethoven or Bach that filter out the window of the music room in Building 2.

One of Sammy's favorite grazing grounds is outside of Building 6, where, because of his sensitive hearing he can indirectly sit in on David Everall's philosophy classes. Almost any Monday, Wednesday and Friday Sammy can be seen vigorously nodding his head in approval of one of Everall's views.

Though he voices an occasional "Baaa" in disapproval, Sammy is usually in complete agreement with the instructor.

One of Sammy's favorite contemporary writers is Philip Wylie, whom he reads avidly. The ram agrees whole heartedly with Wylie's theory on "Momism" and has this to say about the subject:

"We American rams had better begin standing on our own four feet in regard to the so-called weaker sex. The situation has gotten to the point that we self-respecting rams no longer know who wears the horns in the family."

His other favorite contemporaries include Steinbeck, Huxley, Faulkner, Bradbury and others. Hemingway used to be one of Sammy's favorites until he found out that the famous author once went on a wild sheep hunt.

Although Sammy has been known to enter in combat over the prize Ewe, he is basically a pacifist, and a firm vegetarian. Sammy has never really gotten over the shock he received when he discovered that the cafeteria was serving lamb chops on the luncheon menu. His reaction to this was "And at such a cheap price!"

He was not available for further comment.

Two Delegates For CAFCW Convention Chosen By College

Delegates from the college to the California Athletic Federation of College Women convention at Santa Barbara this weekend are Joan Anderson and Rose Coussens. Gloria Dunn, sponsor of the Women's Athletic Association here, announced last Wednesday.

Miss Anderson and Miss Coussens will stay at the Mar Monte Hotel situated on the beach in Santa Barbara.

All colleges in California are invited to attend the convention.

Topics to be discussed are Playday Organizations, How To Foster Spirit, Co-ed Activities and Classes, Standardization of Point System, Water Show Presentations and Awards.

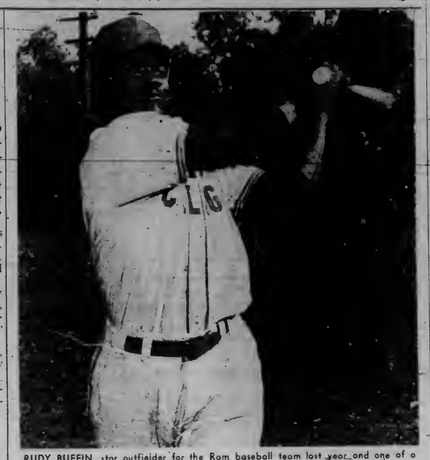
Miss Anderson and Miss Coussens, Mrs. Dunn said, will leave Friday and return Sunday evening.

They will be traveling with the delegates from San Francisco State College, she added.

Sports Program Offered By WAA

Women's Athletic Association sports, now in their third week, are well underway, according to Joan Anderson, president of the organization here. Participating in the sport program are 29 women students, she declared last week.

Basketball heads the list with 14 women, volleyball second with 12 and tennis follows with 6 signed up.



"Women are still welcome to sign-up," Miss Anderson said.

The basketball team, under the managership of Ruby Gaston, has already seen action in a playday on March 6 at Santa Rosa. The team won from East Contra Costa 15-3, lost to Chico State 17-7 and tied with Napa College 15-15.

Women on the San Francisco playday team were Marilyn Angel, Patricia Ford, Miss Gaston, Phyllis Ingram, Zoraida Lopez, Marian Marbles, Birdie Mayes, Margaret Milburn, Eldonia Norman and Mary Ann Rudometkin.

Volleyball, held on Monday at 3 p.m., has Phyllis Ingram as manager. Players in this sport are Miss Anderson, Monya Andres, Janice Brown, Marion Crandell, Doreen Delaney, Miss Gaston, Betty Jacobs, Marian Marbles, Esther Phillips, Janet White and Lucinda Yuen.

Rose Coussens is manager of tennis, which meets during college hour, Miss Anderson stated. Tennis players are Barbara Lumeden, Betty Lumsden, Noreen Phillips, Mary Ann Rudometkin and Colleen Walker.

RUDY BUFFIN, star outfielder for the Ram baseball team last year and one of a group of returning veterans, demonstrates the form that made him the Big Seven Conference batting champion last season. Buffin averaged .448 in the 13 conference games played, and his high mark and power were bright spots in an otherwise dismal season in which the college won only one of 13 Big Seven games. Buffin, who was also on end on the football team last year, has been one of the top performers again this season.—Photo by Sherry.

Ram Baseballers Face Presidio Tomorrow, Alameda Flyers Next

San Francisco Presidio Club provides the opposition for the college baseball team tomorrow afternoon in a game slated for Big Rec. The tilt will be played on the Graham diamond at 3 p.m.

Next day the Rams travel to Alameda to test the Naval Air station there. Play ball will be heard at 3 p.m.

Against the San Francisco State junior varsity on March 2, City College came out on top of a 6-0 decision. The Gators could only muster three hits off the college pitching.

Then on March 5 the Red and White defeated the U. S. Marines by a score of 8-0 as Jerry Stack came through with 3 for 5.

Bob Wood and Jim Hatchel combined to hold the Leathernecks to only four hits with Wood receiving credit for the victory. The college nine made ten hits.

Saturday saw the Rams play Santa Clara Frosh and surprise the Broncos to the tune of 9-7. Stan Fettermann went all the way striking out 16 men in the process of winning the game. The box score of that one reads: City College 9 runs, 11 hits; Santa Clara Frosh, 7 runs, 6 hits.

Coach Bill Fischer of the diamond squad remarked that Dick Bandettini has shown good form around the first base spot and that Jerry Stack is hitting the long ball. Others commended included Bob Mannini and Jim Koeffer.

Athletic Scholastic Eligibility Rules Set

With midterm examinations this week, scholastic eligibility rules governing student activity in two year college athletic competition go into effect as follows:

1. Athletes must be passing in 10½ units.

2. Returning students must have passed at least 10½ units in the previous semester.

3. Athletes must be residents of the local county or from one where no two year college is located.

4. If the athlete is transferring from a four-year college, he is eligible, if attending college from the district where he makes his residence.

RAMBLINGS

Cage Season Over; Sport Action Slow

By Gail Allan Moss

WITH the Big Seven Conference basketball season over and the cage sport gone from the campus for another year, players and officials are ranging all over California to find action.

Mike Leaskou, the Rams' high-scoring guard, kicked off the extra-curricular activities by joining the Signature Homes team, a strong entry in this year's Pacific Association tourney, held in San Francisco.

He joined Bob Matheny, ex-Ram and more recently University of California star guard, Dick Tamberg, also of California, Jim Ramstead, former All-Pacific Coast Conference center from Stanford, Chuck Bogle of San Mateo, Dave Epperson, first-string forward from Stanford and Frank Evangelho of University of San Francisco Quite-a club!

This Redwood City team went all the way to the finals of the PA, losing to defending champion YMI. Leaskou and Matheny were named to the second all-tourney team. Incidentally, Mike O'Neill, another ex-Ram and currently a YMI star, was named the most valuable player in the tournament.

Coach Ralph Hillsman is another to gain laurels, those of another sort. He was chosen to head a panel that lectured to high school coaches last week-end following the high school Tournament of Champions at Berkeley. The idea, or one of them, was to continue close relations with the high schools. This is a good idea and one that should be used more often.

The last, and certainly not least, on the list is Lou Batmale. The dean of student activities here is also a noted basketball whistle-blower — referee that is — and he was picked, along with Lloyd Leith, to officiate the Pacific Coast Conference championship games between University of Southern California and Oregon State College, held in Los Angeles two weeks ago. This is quite a tribute to the dean's ability.

Another item of interest was the score of the final game of the State Junior College Basketball Tournament at Sacramento, also two weeks ago. Actually, it wasn't the score either, but the participants. Fullerton knocked over Grant Tech, 65-57, to win the mythical title of California's top two-year college.

It was Fullerton that eliminated Modesto, 67-61, in the first round of the tournament. Modesto, the Big Seven champion, had a strong and hustling team this year and they deserved better, but they had the misfortune to come up against the champ right off the bat.

Inter-Fraternity Sport Planned

Inter-fraternity basketball plans were further evolved as Al Kingston, AS Men's Athletic Commissioner here, revealed his ideas for the forthcoming season.

He hopes to have all nine campus fraternities competing when league play starts on the week of March 22.

To further the authenticness of the league this year's varsity basketball stars will serve as officials to referee the games, until the league's conclusion in the first week in June.

Plans call for picking an all-league team of the best five or ten players. Having a four team bracket playoff to determine the league champion, and rewarding the winning teams and players with awards.

The teams will play once a week except for one week when the special schedule calls for all teams playing twice. A large turnout of both players and teams is expected by Kingston. The main problem now is the difficult problem of making out a schedule, however this condition is almost worked out, according to Kingston.

Next week the schedule will be released.

Ram Tracksters Open Season With USF At Kezar Saturday; Freshmen Star In Practice

With three weeks of practice under their belts and looking forward to the Big Seven Conference season, the college tracksters take on the University of San Francisco at Kezar this Saturday, March 20, at 10 a.m.

Forced indoors by the rain last week, the Ram thinclads practiced on the gymnasium floor and Coach Roy Burkhead feels that his charges are ready to go. His only doubts now are in the high jump, pole vault and shot put, where lack of experience hurts the Rams.

Burkhead is enthusiastic about several newcomers, among them Henry Stroughter and Ray McIntyre.

Stroughter, a miler last year at Balboa High School, has been moved to the 880 where he will team with veteran Al Carlsen to give the college a strong one-two punch.

McIntyre, from Washington High School, has also been shifted. Burkhead plans to use him in the sprints, although he was the All-City Meet winner in the 440 last season. McIntyre has already done :10.2 in the 100 yarder, fastest time of this season's practice sessions.

A change has been made this year in the State Junior College meet. Burkhead announced. Held on May 22 this year, the meet will have no heats in any events. Prior to this season as many as 60 participants might arrive to compete in one event, but this year a new selection method will make this impossible.

On May 8, the Northern California Junior College meet will be held at Santa Rosa and the four Northern California conferences will send three men to participate in each event. From this meet, four will be selected from each event to compete with the same number from Southern California in the State finals.

The Rams open their conference season with a triangular meet at Santa Rosa on March 27. The complete schedule is as follows:

March 27 — Santa Rosa at Santa Rosa.
April 3—Modesto at California.
April 9—Stockton and Sacramento at Sacramento.
April 17—West Contra Costa and Stanford Frosh at Stanford.
April 23—San Mateo at San Mateo.
May 1—Big Seven Meet at Modesto.
May 8—Northern California Junior College Meet at Santa Rosa.
May 15—Fresno Relays at Fresno.
May 22—State Junior College Meet, location undecided.
May 22—California Relays at Modesto.

Golfers Open At Harding Against Santa Rosa Friday

The college golfers, coached by Ralph Hillsman, begin the official Big Seven golf conference season Friday, March 19 against Santa Rosa at the Harding course in San Francisco.

Only the first five men on the ladder will play in any match and as the ladder is now, they are Gene George, first man; Lou Sartor, second man; Art Pira, third man; Charles Lowe, fourth man; and Bob Flanagan, fifth with Stan Diamond and Joe Galante in reserve.

Coach Hillsman revealed that the Big Seven race is wide open with San Mateo, West Contra Costa and Modesto all capable of taking the title.

The success of City College depends largely on the efforts of the first four men, who are all veterans from last season. The average scores of the first five players range from 78 to 84.

Although there will be no conference playoffs, there are two intercollegiate tournaments in which the participants will shoot for individual honors, the California State Championships and the Regional Championships of Northern California, according to Hillsman.

Co-Ed Sports Are Back At College

After a lapse of one semester co-ed sports are back in college sports activities.

To date there are six of these sports: archery, badminton, folk dancing, social dancing, tennis, and volleyball, meeting after 3 o'clock Thursday and Friday, Laurine Bergin, chairman of the women's physical education department said here last week.

The first event of the reorganized co-ed sports will be a badminton and tennis playday with other bay area two-year colleges in April here at the college. Men and women interested may apply to Nanet Sparks, faculty sponsor of the playday.

Students interested in any one of these sports available are invited to see Mrs. Bergin at the women's gymnasium here at any time. Since definite hours have not been decided for these athletics, men and women students may participate whenever their schedules will allow.

Concerning archery, Miss Sparks urged that only experienced archers take part. Students interested in co-ed folk dancing may contact Charles Mahnken, organizer of the college folk dancing club.

Although these sports are extra-curricular, co-ed badminton, folk dancing, and social dancing meet during regular physical education hours also.

There will be no meeting of these sports during college hour this semester, Mrs. Bergin said.

Red Headed Athlete With Ability; Jerry Stack Tops In Two Sports

Jerry Stack, all 175 pounds of basketball and baseball knowledge and ability in a 6.1 frame, is a conscientious athlete. An all out guy he gave up his usual role of scorer in the basketball team in order to become a playmaker and a feeder to the team.

Attending his second year at the college, the redhead, in the words of basketball Coach Ralph Hillsman, contributed one of the best jobs in basketball this year.

Last season he was the leading scorer of the team with 144 points in 12 conference games.

Came spring and Stack "went out" for baseball, turning in his usual fine performance. He was one of the leading hitters on the club.

Stack, a former All-City athlete from Balboa, is expected to bolster the Ram baseball squad this year by repeating his prowess with the bat which has characterized the diamond career of this gifted athlete.

Already he has proven his worth to the college nine by coming through with needed hits in the practice games played so far.

Stack has not made up his mind as to which university to attend after graduating from the college, but there is no doubt in the minds of observers that he will be a great help to the lucky coach who lands him.

His athletic feats at the college provided many thrills for fans and team mates alike. The baseball squad can expect much more help from him this season.

Intra Play Underway; Team Captains Selected

The college's intramural program got away to a fast start last week as captains of various teams selected their personnel for the coming semester, Ralph Hillsman, program director announced last week.

Head men of each squad were chosen by their respective instructors to their position for their playing and leadership ability.

Teams will consist of seven or eight men, who will perform as one unit for all the various intramural sports offered here. There will be no specific name for the squads other than team numbers.

Hillsman stated that the schedule provides for round-robin play with one class champion meeting another for the hour title in one sport. When that has been decided the classes will change sports in order to give everyone a shot at the championship of each activity.

Faculty Committee Meets This Week, Will Consider Procedure For Awarding Four Scholarships

Meetings of the scholarship award committees on campus, will be held this week to authorize the availability of scholarships this semester, Mary Golding, dean of women, announced recently.

Four scholarships are being considered by the committees this week.

The Dr. A. J. Cloud Scholarship, of $50 is awarded each spring semester, at a pre-commencement assembly, to one man and woman, and is given on the basis of their need of the scholarships, and demonstration of leadership at the college.

Miss Golding stated that students who wish to compete for the scholarship, must send their letters of application to the Dean's offices in Building 2, by Monday, April 12, to be considered by the committee.

Chairman of the award committee is Don Jensen, president of the Cloud Foundation. His committee consists of Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, Miss Golding, and a member of the student-faculty relations committee.

Graduating class of 1953 scholarship fund awards 50 dollars to two men and two women each spring semester at the pre-commencement assembly; and it is awarded on the same basis as the Cloud scholarship. Students interested must send in letters of application by Monday, April 12, according to Miss Golding.

Chairman of the committee is Maurice Power and other members are the same as those on the Cloud Scholarship committee.

The Theta Tau Alumnae Scholarship awards 30 dollars each semester to one woman student, who has achieved a "C" average or better, in 15 units or more, each semester.

Applications for the award should have been sent in, she said, by February 23 to the awards committee, which consists of Miss Golding, chairman, and Dr. Marsh.

The fourth award, Florence Louis scholarship, was given to Priscilla Wong.

Men students must send their scholarship applications to the Dean of Men's office, and women students must send theirs to the Dean of Women's office.

Opera Passes Are Becoming Scarce

Because of large student response, ushers' passes for the Pacific and Metropolitan Opera and San Francisco Symphony performances are almost exhausted, Mary Golding, dean of women here, said last week.

Passes for Friday matinees, however, can still be obtained, she pointed out.

Passes may still be obtained in her office in Building 2, for the San Francisco Symphony concerts, which will continue through April 24.

"O" as a prefix of Irish names means 'grandson of.'

Dance, Soph-Prof Game Highlight Soph Week

Sophomore Ball, semi-annual tribute to the college's sophomore class, will be held on Saturday, June 12, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at a place still to be decided upon, Jim Vickers, sophomore class president, announced last week.

The week preceding the formal dance, Monday, June 7, through Friday, June 11, will be sophomore week, added Vickers. During the double college hour on Friday of that week, the sophs battle the profs in a traditional baseball game at Oceanview Playground at Plymouth and Lobos avenues in San Francisco.

Also during sophomore week voting for king and queen of the Sophomore Ball will determine who will reign at the affair. Engraved gold trophies are awarded to the king by Theta Tau sorority and to the queen by Beta Tau fraternity, Vickers stated.

Men and women students of the college with a minimum of 24 units are eligible to compete for the royal crowns, he added. All clubs, sororities and fraternities and other organizations on campus are urged to nominate candidates at least two weeks before the ball.

Pending the approval of Student Council, other sophomore class officers are Frank Orell, vice-president and Jackie Mascarelli, secretary-treasurer.

April 5 Is Deadline For Parking Permits

Deadline for parking permits is set for Monday, April 5, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men here, announced yesterday.

Beginning Monday, March 22, he said, permits will only be issued on Mondays, and students should not request parking permits except on that day.

To date the total number of permits issued is 737. The supply is running low, and the parking lot is becoming more filled, he added.

Dean Browne advised that all students who have not yet acquired a permit should now do so in Building 2.

Police are now tagging autos without permits, and he emphasized that the tickets are as valid as ones received downtown.

Art Students Exhibit Work At Stonestown

Eighteen art students here are exhibiting their oil paintings at the art exhibit at J and C Dover's in Stonestown, according to Evans Ecke, art instructor here.

The exhibition has been running since February 12 and was planned to end March 12 Quality of the students work has caused the show to be extended to April 1, Ecke said.

Student exhibitors are as follows: Adair Bentlye, Marjorie Close, Lawrence Conmy, Ken Davis, John Ferguson, Josephine Gandert, Andrew Gillespie, Christine Hansen, David Johnson, Richard Kohfield, Richard Landucci, Lillian Laves, Renia Martinez, John O'Brien, Michael Ruiz, Paul Wong, Victor Worden and Cledus Washington.

Placement Office Calls For Full Time Summer Work Applications; Openings To Be Available Soon

Students in search of full time summer work should turn in their applications as soon as possible at the placement office, second floor of Building 2, Joseph A. Amori, director of personnel placement service here, announced today.

Jobs with summer camps, resorts, public utility companies, federal agencies, and airlines will soon be opening, Amori said.

Northern California summer resorts are beginning to organize their staffs which will include kitchen helpers, waiters, waitresses, housemen, maids, laundry workers, drivers, food servers and the like. Men are in more demand than women, Amori declared, with a ratio of about nine to one. Experience of some kind is required.

Both public and private summer camps for girls and boys will be needing counselors, arts and crafts instructors, athletic instructors, nature study specialists, photographers. These supervisory positions will require experience of some kind, he said.

Students with engineering backgrounds may find positions with public utilities companies who have begun their recruiting campaigns. Most of these positions, Amori said, will be out of town.

Federal agencies will be hiring college men for various positions in forestry camps in Northern California. Students applying for this type of work should have some mechanical ability and be able to adjust to outdoor life, Amori remarked.

This year will show very little opportunity for employment of students under 18 years of age, he said.

Debaters Prepare For April Events

Members of Phi Rho Pi, college debate society, sharpened their speaking skills in preparation for upcoming debating events by participating in a roundtable discussion during last Friday's college hour, according to faculty sponsor Thomas Dutcher.

The discussion was one of a series in preparation for the state student congress to be held at S. F. State on April 24 and for the Pacific Coast Tournament at College of the Pacific, April 8-10, Dutcher said.

A preliminary event of the student congress was held at San Jose State College on March 4 to draw up the bills to be presented at the full assembly, under the general heading, How can the operations of the Congress of the United States be improved? City College was represented at San Jose by students Ken Felldin, Stan Lee, Irena Morizoff and Paul Ortiz.

Friday's discussion was on The True Believer by Eric Hoffer, a book on the role of the fanatic in history.

Seven Guides Needed For Cloud Hall Dedication

Seven more students are needed to act as guides for the dedication of Cloud Hall sometime in April, Millie Stoll, chairman of the Club Activities Board, announced last week.

"The guides," she said, "will tour the general public around the new building."

Students already signed up for guides are Joyce Galligani, Carol Clark, Jack Frost, Ed Harer, Ralph Libby, Jan Michel, Bob Moore, Jim Needles, Clementina Radillo, Shirley Rathjens, Dick Vega, Pastuer Yuen and Miss Stoll.

Petitions for campus recognition for clubs must be turned in to the CAB by tomorrow, Miss Stoll warned.

Officials Oppose PUC Move To Use Campus Land For Restaurant Site

By Dick Meister, Editor

In recent action the San Francisco Board of Education authorized Dr. Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of Schools, to appear before the City Public Utilities Commission, Planning Commission and Mayor to oppose a plan of the PUC to lease land adjacent the campus here for building a restaurant.

At a meeting of the board, held March 16, the members went unanimously on record as "vigorously opposing the construction of any type of restaurant at the proposed site of Ocean and Phelan Avenues."

Immediately after the proposal of the commission was known, protests over the action began, Dr. Clish appeared before the aforementioned commissioners, and a student protest, in the form of a letter, was sent to the PUC on behalf of the Associated Students here.

Earlier this month the commission called for bids to lease the lot on the Northwest corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues and stipulated that the bids be restricted to the drive-in type of eating establishment. (The land is actually owned by the PUC and is leased to the college until this summer.)

Associated Student President Joe Garbarino pointed out that the AS wishes that the use of the lot be up to the standards of the College's master building program.

He also said, in agreement with the student letter, that a congregation of crowds at or near the campus would present a definite control problem, as far as activities and traffic are concerned.

At a meeting held March 17, with college administrators, Louis G. Conlan, Oscar E. Anderson, John J. Brady, Louis Batmale and Dr. Clish, it was decided to do everything possible to present the utilities group with the School Department's valid reasons for opposition to the plan.

The group planned to send communications to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors to contact Riordan High School and Lick-Wilmerding School authorities (Lick-Wil-

Campus Police And Student Council In Dispute Over Budget; Mardi Gras Salary, New Uniforms Discussed

By Deane Wylie

Both factions in a dispute over the Campus Police budget reached an apparent impasse during discussions last week, and according to Finance Committee Chairman Wray Jacobs final decision in the matter will come from the Associated Student Council in a meeting here tomorrow in Building 2A.

At a council meeting March 9, instructor Fred Fitzgerald of the law enforcement department here, noted that the Finance Committee in its budget recommendation had reduced the requested police budget from $700 to $350.

Fitzgerald stated that the $350 deleted from the budget would have been used to buy leather jackets for campus force members, and he added that "police uniforms now in use are in poor condition and are made of light weight fabric."

He went on to say that if the council would not grant the police a larger budget, he would demand that they be paid for patrolling the college's Mardi Gras festivities in May, implying that the council members were too "immature" to understand the police financial problems.

At this point the council passed a partial police budget of $250 of the total $350.

In attempts made in subsequent Finance Committee meetings to solve the problem, the committee did not yield in its refusal to allot a larger sum to the police, contending that money was not available to do so. Police representatives remained firm in insisting on reimbursement for Mardi Gras services.

Bill Boldenweck, president of the Associated Men Students who sponsor the Mardi Gras, suggested that campus police be given a percentage of the carnival receipts' profits in payment for Mardi Gras patrol, and he was asked by Jacobs to confer with Leo Hertog, police liaison officer in the AS Cabinet.

Marsh Reports Results Of AAJC Annual Assembly

After returning last week from St. Louis, Missouri, where he attended the annual convention of the American Association of Junior Colleges, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator division of student welfare here, reported recently that the college showed up well in relation to others represented at the meetings.

According to Marsh, the association's chairman of the committee of student personnel, literature concerning the college was displayed prominently at the convention, and was the only display to be placed in placards on the walls.

Marsh, who had occasion to study the other colleges' programs for student personnel, reported his finding that the program here is the most outstanding one practiced by any two-year college represented at the convention.

As one of the 390 representatives at the convention, Marsh stated that methods of improvement of instruction in the colleges were discussed, as well as the betterment of administration and organization of colleges.

Dance Scheduled For College Hour Friday

Admission to the dance is by presentation of an Associated Student card, and the dance will continue throughout the whole college hour until 11:20 a.m.

Because of Business Education Day, college hour Friday, April 2, is cancelled and will take place Wednesday, March 31.

Dedication Plans Of New Building Set For April 25

Dedication ceremonies to inaugurate Cloud Hall, the new building at the college, will take place Sunday, April 25, opening day of Public Schools Week, President Louis G. Conlan announced last week.

Meanwhile, plans to move from the west campus to Cloud Hall have run into temporary difficulties, Conlan explained. Chairs and other furnishings have not yet arrived. "As soon as they are here," he said, "We are ready to move." They should arrive within the next few weeks, he added.

The move will be accomplished gradually, Conlan stated, a few classes at a time and perhaps the whole Engineering Department. "We haven't the facilities to move the entire west campus at once," he remarked.

Although Cloud Hall will be completely occupied by the end of the semester, the college will continue to use parts of west campus, the president pointed out. The cafeteria, fountain, auditorium and campus bookstore. The Ramporium, will be in use at least all this year. The college hopes to go on using the parking facilities there indefinitely, he added.

The Student Union Building, construction for which will begin next month, will house the entire hotel and restaurant division, including the cafeteria and fountain and The Ramporium, Conlan declared. The building, under the construction of Ira H. Larsen and Company, will be completed some time in April or May of 1955. The building, a single structure with two stories in the rear, will be located to the south of the Science Building.

At a meeting held at Superintendent of Schools Dr. Herbert C. Clish's offices on March 17, final plans for the dedication ceremonies were formulated by a group of college administrators headed by Conlan.

The dedication plans, as released at the meeting, are as follows:

Ceremonies will take place in the Cloud Hall library at which Dr. A. J. Cloud, president emeritus for whom the building is named, Dr. Clish, Conlan and outstanding California and San Francisco educators, alumni, and retired faculty members and public officials will speak, in addition to student leaders.

Invitations will be sent out by the president, and arrangements are being made for a special parking area for the many guests expected by the group.

One hundred college women will act as official hostesses to greet the visitors and speak to them of the college.

Public Opinion Against Restaurant Proposal

ON BEHALF of the entire college and anyone who realizes the value of higher education, The Guardsman joins in opposing the proposed plan of the City Public Utilities Commission to lease the land on the corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues for the purpose of building any type of restaurant.

Public opinion, the master of all public officials' destinies, is certainly against such a proposal. The list of citizens and prominent municipal officials who have gone on record against the move verifies that.

Reasons for such opposition are sound and valid; a restaurant of the type this would be, attracts the usual crowds who are easily led into such a place and find nothing better to do than "hang-out" there. These "hangers-on," unfortunately, become restless and naturally resort to the common teen-age mischievousness identified with such "hang-outs."

Their acts of mischief would be directly identified with the college, while the college would have no control over them. Besides the ill-will they would create, think of the classroom disturbances and interference with Associated Student activities. Our students are more mature than the "restaurant crowd" and need no supervision, but the younger "crowd" must have that supervision to stay out of mischief.

They would supply the disturbances, but even though in the City College area, we'd have no control over their actions for which our students would be blamed and which would harm "teen-ager" development.

A restaurant on a corner of Ocean Avenue would present a serious traffic hazard, cars going in and out would completely tangle the already overloaded avenue traffic.

Any such restaurant would be an eyesore near a campus such as ours. The taxpayers of San Francisco have spent millions of dollars to beautify their City College. Are these dollars to be wasted simply for the sake of a lease?

The college once gave 25 feet of its land on Phelan Avenue to the city so the roadway could be widened and the area beautified. What good was that generous donation for beauty if its whole purpose is to be ruined by a "joint" blaring forth with gaudy signs; "hamburgers 19 cents, chili 15 cents, hot dog on a roll 20 cents."

Landscaping plans for the college show it as a picturesque campus, with the appearance of a park; there can be no room for a restaurant of this type which is constantly covered with waste paper and garbage waiting to be whipped by the wind to the far corners of the "park," our campus, San Francisco's campus.

Why anyone thinks there is need for another restaurant on Ocean Avenue is beyond us; the number now is more than enough to satisfy any hungry citizens, students and all.

Therefore no concrete need exists for such an establishment, but there is a definite necessity for it not being built here, a necessity if the citizens of San Francisco are to get full value for their complete tax investment.

We should like to recommend to the Public Utilities Commission of San Francisco that they reconsider any plans which they may have for leasing the land in question for the building of any sort of eating establishment.

The price of a lease is not worth the price of a college, one which cost the city of San Francisco millions of dollars and an institution which benefits thousands of the city's youth, sons and daughters of the very taxpayers who built the college.

We see uncountable benefits from City College of San Francisco for many now, and the construction of a restaurant here would benefit few, certainly not the youth of San Francisco for which the land in the area was originally intended.

Student-Faculty Coffee Hour Re-Scheduled For March 31

Date for the student-faculty coffee hour here has been changed from Friday, April 2, to Wednesday, March 31, Katherine Shorb, chairman of the committee, said this week.

The change in the date was made necessary because of Business Education Day, scheduled for Friday, April 2.

The change in schedule necessitated a shift of the college hour program; College hour schedule will be followed on March 31, not April 2, administrative officials announced, and the student-faculty coffee hour will be held as the activity during that college hour.

Started two and one-half years ago, the semi-annual coffee hour has proved to be a successful project of the student-faculty relations committee, she said.

In past semesters between 1500 and 1800 people have attended the affair, Mrs. Shorb added.

Finances for the coffee hour are supplied by the Faculty Association, Mrs. Shorb said, with additional donations from the students working on the committee that plan the affair.

Assisting Mrs. Shorb on the committee are George Baffico, Mildred Barnard, Merritt Beckerman, Mary Golding, Harold Miller, Anka Persich, Maurice Power and Douglas Soule.

Refreshments will include cookies and coffee, Mrs. Shorb said.

AS Sponsoring Dedication Ball

To tie in with dedication ceremonies, scheduled for Sunday afternoon, April 25, a Dedication Ball will be held at a San Francisco hotel on Friday evening, April 23, Alberta Cordini, Associated Student vice-president, announced recently.

Archibald J. Cloud, former president of the college, and several dignitaries from the San Francisco Board of Education will be honored guests at the social affair.

The dance, which was originally scheduled for Friday, March 26, was postponed to this more appropriate time, Miss Cordini added.

AS President Joe Garbarino also issued a call for volunteer students who wish to help in the dedication ceremonies and dance preparations to contact him in the Associated Student office, Building 2.

The AS social committee is presently at work planning for the ball.

Purpose Of The Campus Police Lost In Unfair Budget Demand

THE original purpose in forming the campus police seems to have been lost in recent weeks by that Associated Student sponsored organization.

This purpose was a two-sided affair, one which would benefit both the police and the association. On one hand the police trainees would get actual on-the-job work and on the other the Associated Students would receive the services of the trainees.

To get these services the AS agreed to sponsor the police by putting them on a budget and spending a considerable amount for such necessary items as uniforms.

Now, however, the police want a salary for their work in addition to the uniforms and experience. Is that fair to anyone?

Just how far away from the original purpose the police have strayed can be shown by their method of presenting the police budget to the Student Council, a budget which included the salary item.

A faculty member represented the police at council despite the fact that an AS Presidential Cabinet position is set up for the student chief. This representative, in fact, "demanded" the money be given "or else no campus police services." He made his "demand" to a group which he labelled "immature."

The immaturity rests elsewhere; to compromise is the mark of the mature mind, but the campus police haven't seemed to want compromise.

It's time the group realized what their purpose here is, how realization of that purpose will benefit all, and time they truly join with the rest of the Associated Student "family" in working agreement.

Shots At Ramdom

Brawny Six-Footer Proves Chivalry Alive, Rescues Swooning Coed

By Shirley Murphy

CHIVALRY is not dead. Last week a pretty blonde coed, who had just emerged from the cafeteria, swooned and collapsed on the pavement in front of the building. Without a second's hesitation, a brawny six-footer who was passing by scooped the petite student into his arms and carried her to Building 2. Having accomplished his mission, Sir Galahad silently stole into the day, in the direction of traffic-congested Ocean Avenue.

Washington Confidential

John Adams and Alexander Hamilton are now enrolled as students at the college—which all goes to prove, you're never too old to appreciate the benefits of a college edueation.

Return of the Troubadour

One of the most popular customs of the Middle Ages enjoyed a rebirth at the college recently. Three students, parked in the west campus parking area, filled the air with lilting Latin rhythms. Accompanied by a guitarist, these touring minstrels, drove o'er the campus, ending the safari at the men's gymnasium, where they inspired the athletes with choice selections.

Mobile Diner

Khan Mihan, proprietor of Pop's Lunch Wagon, has moved. Too many famished students had been beating a path to his window, at the expense of the grass.

Pop is now in business directly across the street from his old stamping grounds, where there is no grass to be trampled.

Gung Ho!

When Sergeant James Snyder and Sergeant Frank Feldaus of the United States Marine Corps visited the college recently, at least 50 students a day questioned them about opportunities for advancement and other pertinent facts regarding the Corps. Could these boys be anticipating the glories of a vacation in the Southland, in the general vicinity of Pendleton?

First Things First

Audiences at the Friday and Saturday night performances of Kind Lady missed one of the most interesting lines of the play. On opening night, the dialogue for one scene ran "Then she was my wife, now she's my fiance." Victorian customs were different, weren't they?

APO President Donates Blood

Last week a call for human blood came from the office of Dean Edwin C. Browne.

Directed at a willing student the plea for the livesaving liquid reached the President of Alpha Phi Omega, Ralph Libby.

In the true manner of the national service fraternity, the plea was answered immediately by Libby who volunteered his services to Browne who in turn sent him to Irwin Memorial Blood Bank for the transfusion. The plea originated from a fellow student whose mother was in need of the "red Life."

Libby, who is a veteran of the Korean war is the holder of a mistamped "dog tag" According to Libby, the dog tag lists his blood as simply "none."

The 24 year old veteran has lived in seven states and the Panama Canal Zone. He has been active in the National Guard since he was 17 years old and now holds the rank of corporal in the Army Reserve.

A major in education here, the service-minded Libby joined the national service fraternity on campus, Alpha Phi Omega, and was elected President of the organization last semester.

According to Libby the purpose of the organization is to render service to the college, fellow members and the nation and also to promote fellowship.

OOPS, JUST MADE IT! All set for their usual 45 minute trip across the bay, are two of some 400 student commuters who attend classes at the college. Among the Eastbay cities represented here are Oakland, Albany, Berkeley, Alameda and San Leandro.—Photo by Ruppert.

400 Commuters From Eastbay Recognize Towering Bridges And Freeways As Familiar Landmarks

By Deane Wylie

Market Street's four-faced ferry building clock has long since ceased to be a familiar bay-crossing landmark, and the student commuter of today is better acquainted with the towering bridges and the wide freeway lanes that lead him daily to the college.

To the some 400 commuters who travel here each day, the trip from the Eastbay cities—Albany, Alameda, Berkeley, Oakland and San Leandro—becomes routine after the first week or so, and the average commuting time of 45 minutes to an hour fits easily into the traveler's schedule.

While the name City College of San Francisco would imply that students are from San Francisco proper, just the opposite is so. Students from San Francisco are in the minority, for only 49 per cent of the total enrollment here last semester were students from the city's public and private high schools.

Students from foreign countries, out of state and from other parts of California made up the remaining 51 per cent of last semester's total enrollment of 5115, and the 400 Eastbay commuters are part of this figure.

Private cars seem to take preference over public transportation for the majority of the bridge travelers, but a few come by Key System bus and train and apparently enjoy doing so.

Dick Richardson is a Key patron daily at 7 a.m. A second year student here, he enjoys the bridge train trip, as it gives him extra minutes of study time that auto users can't take advantage of. He boards the Trestle Glen "B" train a few minutes away from his Oakland home each morning and usually arrives at the City College station in about an hour and 15 minutes.

Alameda resident Nancy Hebel who travels the upper level of the Bay Bridge via private auto to her 8 a.m. classes in the Science Building, says she enjoys the transbay trip with her Alameda friends and looks forward to coffee sessions in the cafeteria each morning after arrival.

A transfer student here from San Francisco State, is Jane Coop, who lives in Berkeley and drives to classes daily with two friends.

"We all chip in to buy a $10 bridge commute," Miss Coop said, "which gives us 50 trips and lowers the traveling expenses."

In all, the commuters did not seem unhappy with their 30 mile handicap each day. They are concerned, but not worried over the added expense of the trip, and when asked about residential choice to a number replied that they prefer the slower paced life of the East Bay.

College Library Receives Donations

Gifts and books contributions to the college library have been numerous this semester, according to Clement Skrabak, library staff member here.

Among those who donated books, magazines, and publications to the college, are senators, faculty members, students, business institutions, and many foreign countries.

Among the faculty members here, those who have donated fiction and non-fiction literature are as follows: Marjorie Baillache, Waddington Blair, Philip H. Davidson, Madison Devlin, Kenneth L. Hobbs, George W. Hutchinson, Manfred E. Mueller, Fred Kelly, Ruth Patterson, John M. Selig, and Mervin K. Slosberg.

No Vacancy In Hurley Village

Hurley Village and Balboa Park, the two college veteran housing projects, are filled to capacity at the present, manager Theresa Blake announced yesterday.

Veterans with families are eligible to enroll on the waiting list, as there will be some vacancies at the end of the semester.

The quonset huts consist of a kitchenette, two bedrooms, and a bath; they may be rented either furnished or unfurnished.

Balboa Park, the other housing unit, consists of 25 one bedroom units, and Hurley—Village contains 10 two bedroom huts.

A furnished quonset hut's rent amounts to $43.50 a month, and gas and lights are included in the rental.

Any interested veteran-student with a family should apply to Mrs. Blake at her office, 350 Marston Avenue, near the campus.

The $35,000,000 Golden Gate Bridge crosses the portal of the harbor of San Francisco. Its towers are 746 feet tall. The center span clears water by 220 feet. It is 4,200 feet in length and is the longest single span in the world.

Mascot

Archers Find Sam Difficult Target To Pin Down

By Don Osborne

While on one of his many tours of the campus, Sam, the college's Merino Ram mascot found his life in danger and was forced to leave what he thought was an innocent situation in a highly undignified manner.

It all happened when Sam took a stroll down to the men's gymnasium for his afternoon workout. On the way he noticed some trucks unloading bales of hay in a field. With a true vegetarian's sense of duty, Sam decided that rather than leave all the nutrition go to waste he would do his best to put it to good use.

With true ram determination, Sam tackled this delightful task. It was during his dessert that Sam was rudely forced to leave. The "baaa" of contentment that he was about to utter turned to a "baaa" of horror as Sam looked up and saw raining down upon him what he firmly believes to be thousands of arrows.

Sam's only comment on this was "How was I supposed to know that it was the archery range and even if I was they could have warned me."

Being a true adventurer, Sam is rather proud of his experience because he now knows just what his ancestors went through when they pioneered this country. He plans to do a study on the "Defense Against College Archery Students" by paralleling it with the "Defense Against Indian Tactics."

Families Halt German Study

'RECKLESS MANNER': Students in East Germany have been warned not to have families "in a reckless manner," so as to prevent their studies from being interrupted.

Free German Youth leaders have been called upon to "provide [the] students ways and means to spend their leisure time in an interesting fashion—especially on Sundays."

SOPHOMORES LEAD: Among students at Smith College, sophomores are the most prone to cut classes. A recent poll showed 58 per cent of the sophs cut at least once a week, and for three main reasons: Studying for exams, dull classes, and out-of-town weekends that conflicted with Saturday classes.

Commented the Sophian, student newspaper: "The reasons or excuses for missing class reveal neither maturity nor responsibility."—Compiled from Associated Collegiate Press releases.

Beat The Devil: Cymbals, Brass, Drums, And Rollicking Comedy

By Harold Painter

BEAT the Devil is an unusual film comedy, one of those fantastic affairs where the comedy rolls in melodic sequences, one after the other.

It begins in Corsica, in a normally quiet village of dusty streets and blistering stucco walls. Four international brigands are being marched off to jail, and a band is playing . . . Deet. Deet. Deet. Deet. Deedle. Deedle. Deet. Deeee. Bam Bam Bam Bam. Boom Boom Boom Boom.

The story ends where the story begins, in a little village in a far off land. Boom. Boom, Boom.

Uranium is the source of activity, a uranium deposit in Africa to be held in speculation. That's what the four brigands and the American are after.

An Englishman, steeping in tradition and dreaming of being part of the landed gentry, has an imaginative wife, Gwendolyn; they, too, are going to Africa. The Englishman arrives—he swims; the others don't arrive—they depart on a ship.

Boom. Boom. Boom. Boom. Ruba dub dub. Six men in a tub, a Portuguese tub, Ruba dub dub. Boom. Boom. Boom. Boom.

The captain of the ship has three sheets to the wind, and the ship is under the weather. There is attempted murder on deck while the piano plays by itself a pan-room melody. And the Italian wife of an American makes love to the Englishman who has been approached by a German to take part in an African scheme.

Boom. Boom. Boom. Boom. The captain is thinking the ship is sinking and directs the passengers to shore. They set afloat in a rickety boat, and row with a wavering oar. Boom. Boom. Boom. Boom.

They land at a strange place and are taken by Arabs. They want the Arab chief to believe they are going to sell vacuum cleaners in central Africa, but the Arab is shrewd and smart and persistent—he won't be deterred from his purpose; he won't allow them to leave until he is sold an interest in Rita Hayworth at a fair price. The American swings the deal and the group sails.

Boom. Boom. Boom. Boom. The ship that sank is tied to the bank back at the place they began. They are met by a man with a badge in his hand; he wants to know about murder. Boom. Boom. Boom. Boom.

Everyone has a glass of champagne with the man from Scotland Yard. The imaginative young English actress investigator just what she wants to know. The man refuses more champagne and makes his arrest. And the four internationalists involved in the murder of an Englishman in Sofia are marched off to jail. Boom. Boom. Boom.

The story ends in the place it began, in a little village in a far off land. Boom. Boom. Boom. Boom. Bam Bam. Bam. Deet. Deet. Deet. Deet. Deedle. Deedle. Deedle. Deet. Deeee. Bam. Bam. Bam. Bam. Boom. Boom. Boom

Baxter Named To All-League

All-Conference Selections Released By Coaches; Dunn On Second Team

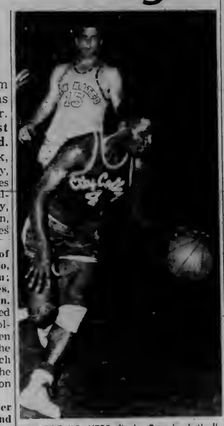
Two members of City College's second-place basketball team have been named to the 1954 Big Seven All-Conference team as released last week by Dr. H. F. Taggart, conference commissioner.

Forward Warren Baxter was a unanimous choice for the first team and center Theopolis Dunn was selected for the second squad.

Others named to the first team were forward Willie Rock, Modesto; center Eural McKelvey, West Contra Costa; guards Charles Young, Sacramento, and Johnny Sullivan, West Contra Costa. McKelvey, the only repeater from last season, and Young were unanimous choices with Baxter.

The second team was composed of forwards Chuck Bogle, San Mateo, and George Slender, Santa Rosa; center Dunn; guards Bob Hedges, Modesto, and Jack Cheney, Stockton.

The all-conference squad is selected by the coaches of the member colleges. Each coach nominates two men for honors, with the exception of the conference champion, whose coach nominates three. Modesto won the championship this season and won the right of choosing a trio.



These names are put on a master list and each coach selects a first and second team. A coach is not allowed to vote for his own players, so a unanimous choice will receive six votes for the first team.

Baxter was one of the most improved players in the Big Seven this year. A substitute guard last year and an average forward at the beginning of this season, he had developed as a big scorer by the beginning of conference play, and collected 212 points in 12 games for an average of 17.7.

His speed and ball-handling ability made the Rams a great exponent of the fast break. Baxter was second in scoring only to McKelvey, who captured the title for the second straight year.

Dunn was recognized by opponents and officials as perhaps the best pivotman in the league. He netted 169 points. The 6-5 center was a leading rebounder, and he too was second only to McKelvey, this time in a race for the post position.

Every college in the Big Seven was represented on the team. West Contra Costa led selections with two placed, the Rams had two and champion Modesto had a pair. Sacramento, San Mateo, Santa Rosa and Stockton each landed one spot.

WARREN BAXTER, flashy Ram basketball forward, was named to the first club of the Big Seven All-Conference team. He was a unanimous selection.

Coaches, Players To Be Feted At Block SF Rally

The coaches of City College sports will be honored and the block letter awards for this year's basketball team will be presented by the Block SF Society this Friday, March 26, in Building 10D during college hour, Bill Fischer, sponsor of the society, announced last week.

Ralph Hillsman, basketball coach, will be the featured guest and will show motion pictures of either the Modesto Invitational Tournament, held last January, or the finals of the State Junior College Tournament, held this month at Sacramento, Fischer said.

Anyone who has won a letter in any sport, whether or not he is a member of the society, is invited, Fischer stressed.

The complete list of letter winners for the 1954 basketball season is as follows:

Warren Baxter, David Davis, Jack Diggins, Theopolis Dunn, Bill Emmerling, Flemen Hardy, Al Holder, Al Kingston, Mike Leaskou, Ike McArthur, Jim Stephens, Jerry Stack, Desha Williams and manager Ralph McDonald.

College Boxing Has New Look And Trial-Horse Angle

Boxing returned to the campus last week, after a 14-day layoff with a new look and an old angle, according to head boxing coach, Roy Diederichsen.

The "new look" means that members of the varsity team are given the chore of coaching inexperienced leather throwers for the up-coming and rescheduled All-City College fistic tournament. The "old angle" being this has been used here before and with much success.

Coach Diederichsen explained the situation as follows:

1. Members of the varsity team will take under their wing a maximum of 20 men, no more than two in the same weight division, and give them pointers of the fight game.

2. The participants will be readying for the college tournament.

3. Elimination bouts will be prepared during the physical education classes. That comes about because of the large amount of performers expected and the limitation of a 10-card bout for the tournament.

4. Practice schedules will be set up by respective student varsity boxing teachers (members of the varsity team).

5. Trophies will go to the winning fighters and managers.

The varsity boxing team got an even split in a tri-angular fistic meet two weeks ago at Sequoia High School gymnasium, Diederichsen stated last week.

The colleges competing were freshman squads from San Jose State and San Francisco State Colleges.

Rudy Buffin, Big Seven Batting Champion, Returns To Spark Rams

Rudy Buffin, hulking right-handed hitting centerfielder on the City College baseball nine, and the Big Seven's league-leading hitter of last year, returns this season to try once again to retain this highly coveted honor in what will be his last season here.

Buffin, who last year led the league in hitting by whacking the ball at a .476 mark, will be out to try to exceed that feat this year. Buffin has had a somewhat short baseball career.

He originally hailed from Booker T. Washington High School in Dallas, Texas, where he didn't play high school baseball. His experience was picked up playing in various sandlot leagues, where he played four or five years.

Buffin proved he was a versatile performer last season when he was called to play third base for the last half of the season. He prefers to play centerfield, his first love. His greatest thrill occurred in his first game for the Rams against the USF Frosh: he had a perfect day at the plate, hitting four for four, including a homer, triple, and two singles.

Co-Ed Activities May Increase

"If more students, men and women, take part in the co-ed sports this semester, fencing and golf will be offered for next semester's co-ed activities, Laurine K. Bergin of the women's physical education department here, said yesterday.

To date there has been a poor turnout at these extra-curricular sports, causing the cancellation of two of them, co-ed tennis and volleyball—but archery, badminton, folk dancing, and social dancing are open to any men and women students interested.

Folk dancing every Friday, at 1 p.m., in the women's gymnasium, and the three other activities assemble every Thursday and Friday at 3 p.m. and during regular physical education hours.

"Students interested in the sports offered," Mrs. Bergin added, "may contact me, at any time in the women's gymnasium."

As for requirements, Mrs Bergin stated, there are none except that each student taking part in co-ed sports must be a member of the Associated Students.

Stockton College Opposes Ram Nine In League Opener

Uncle Sam's Marines play the college baseball team tomorrow afternoon at Silver Terrace playground, Mission and Silver Streets, in a practice game. Starting time has been set for 3:15 p.m.

On Saturday, Coach Bill Fischer's crew inaugurates the Big Seven season by playing a double header with the Stockton College Mustangs. The games will be played at Funston No. 1, Chestnut and Webster Streets, with the first till scheduled for 12:30.

Rain has forced the cancellation of several pre-season encounters, including the St. Ignatius, Alameda Naval Air Station and Treasure Island contests, but on March 13 the college nine traveled to Concord to meet East Contra Costa. The Rams won that game 6-4 as they erupted with four big runs in the last two innings.

Bob Mannini proved to be the leading stickman for the San Franciscans as he collected three hits in five times at bat. One of his safeties was a home run with none on in the first half of the ninth inning.

The pitching chores were equally divided between Jim Batchel, Stan Fettermann and Bob Word with Word receiving credit for the victory. Tom James did the catching for the entire game.

Stockton comes to town as a question mark team, but the grapevine has it that the Mustang pitching staff is not to be disregarded. The port city nine ended the season in the second division last year, but the arrival of new talent could prove beneficial to their cause.

Coach Fischer believes that the Rams have a well-balanced squad this season and one capable of finishing in the first division of the Big Seven.

WAA Announces Dates For Playday Season

Starting off the playday season here, the Women's Athletic Association was host to Galileo and Mission High Schools last Monday. Joan Anderson, president of the association, stated that the two teams represenating the college were composed of women engaged in WAA volleyball.

Refreshments were served after the affair.

At a meeting of the organization last club meeting day, playday dates were announced as follows:

April 5, Polytechnic and Balboa, volleyball.

April 14, Washington and Galileo, basketball.

April 19, Lincoln and Lowell, volleyball.

May 12, Polytechnic and Mission, basketball.

May 24, Washington, volleyball.

College playdays are April 21, badminton at the college, and swimming May 22, at Napa, Miss Anderson said.

Rams Meet Strong Bearcubs At Santa Rosa In Big Seven Track Opener This Saturday

Big Seven track and field competition gets under way this Saturday, March 27, when the Ram thinclads journey to Santa Rosa for an afternoon meet with the strong Bearcubs.

Ram Coach Roy Burkhead has had no chance to see the Santa Rosans in action this season, but reports are that the hosts are loaded with talent. Dick Blewett, Santa Rosa coach, welcomed a turnout of 55 freshmen, and the newcomers, with a nucleus of veterans, give the Cubs a deep and well-balanced team.

The strongest positions for the Bearcubs are the weakest spots in the City College lineup. Santa Rosa is especially strong in the field events and they boast the top two-year college high jumper in Northern California Burkhead's charges are desperately in need of an experienced high jumper.

The same holds true in the shot put, where the Cubs are strong and the Rams are still hunting for someone to fill the position. The Rams are strongest in the sprints and middle distance events.

Originally scheduled as a triangular meet, it now appears that the City College-Santa Rosa contest will be run as a dual meet. The third team that was to compete dropped out of the contests, and unless Blewett can come up with another non-conference college to round out the trio, it will be a dual affair.

The Rams have been hurt in the last weeks by the rain and Burkhead is afraid that the lack of practice may have slowed down the team's progress. The wet turf has forced the tracksters to move from their practice sessions on the Riordan High School track to the grass of Balboa.

The runners have only missed one day because of the weather, Burkhead said, but the field event men cannot work out on the grass. The Ram mentor had expected to know more about his team after a series of time trials that were set for last Wednesday at San Francisco State College, but the trials were cancelled by the bad weather.

RAMBLINGS

By Gail Allan Moss

WHEN Pete Newell, formerly head basketball coach at Michigan State and University of San Francisco, was named last week as new mentor at California, it finally stopped all speculation that Ralph Hillsman, head coach here, would get the job.

Hillsman was a guard, and a good one, at California, playing under the just-retired Nibs Price. (He also played as a Ram in 1936.) The Ram head man came in for praise from his teacher in a recent magazine article. Price, who coached the Golden Bears for 31 years, named Hillsman as one of the dozen or so best players he had handled at Berkeley.

Hillsman was definitely a prospect for the position. The fine job he has done here (his teams have never finished lower than second place since he took over in 1946) was a good recommendation for the trans-bay spot.

The post at California is one of the the most coveted in collegiate basketball, but for the sake of City College, we're just as glad Hillsman didn't get the job. With all respects to Newell, a fine coach, California's loss is our gain.

While on the subject of California basketball, Bob Matheny, the Bear's great guard and a former Ram cager, has been named to Look Magazine's third string All-American team and also will participate in the annual college all-star East-West basketball game at Madison Square Garden on March 27.

Apparently the college's Dean of Student Activities, Lou Batmale, wasn't finished when he officiated the Pacific Coast Conference championship basketball games at Los Angeles. He also worked the NCAA Western regional playoffs at Corvallis, Oregon, last week.

Inter-Fraternity Cage Dates Set

Inter-fraternity basketball plans were finally worked out last week as Al Kingston, Men's Athletic commissioner here, released the schedule for the coming season.

March 22-23: Alpha Sigma Delta vs. Beta Tau; Kappa Rho vs. Lambda Phi; Tau Chi Sigma vs. Gamma Phi Ypsilon.

March 29-April 1: Alpha Sigma Delta vs. Kappa Rho; Beta Phi Beta vs. Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Lambda Phi vs. Tau Chi Sigma.

April 12-13: Lambda Phi vs. Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Beta Phi Beta vs. Kappa Rho; Beta Tau vs. Tau Chi Sigma.

April 19-22: Beta Phi Beta vs. Beta Tau; Alpha Sigma Delta vs. Lambda Phi; Kappa Rho vs. Tau Chi Sigma; Gamma Phi Ypsilon vs. Beta Phi Beta; Alpha Sigma Delta vs. Beta Tau; Lambda Phi vs. Kappa Rho; Gamma Phi Ypsilon vs. Tau Chi Sigma.

April 26-29: Gamma Phi Ypsilon vs. Alpha Sigma Delta; Tau Chi Sigma vs. Beta Phi Beta; Beta Tau vs. Kappa Rho.

May 10-13: Alpha Sigma Delta vs. Beta Phi Beta; Beta Tau vs. Lambda Phi; Kappa Rho vs. Gamma Phi Ypsilon.

May 17-20: Beta Phi Beta vs. Lambda Phi; Beta Tau vs. Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Tau Chi Sigma vs. Alpha Sigma Delta.

Stockton Nine Defeats Rams, 6-4

Baxter Hurls Four-Hitter; Rams Score Four Runs In Last Two Innings

Bob Mannini proved to be the leading stickman for the San Franciscans as he collected three hits in five times at bat. One of his safeties was a home run with none on in the first half of the ninth inning.

The pitching chores were equally divided between Jim Batchel, Stan Fettermann and Bob Word with Word receiving credit for the victory. Tom James did the catching for the entire game.

Stockton comes to town as a question mark team, but the grapevine has it that the Mustang pitching staff is not to be disregarded. The port city nine ended the season in the second division last year, but the arrival of new talent could prove beneficial to their cause.

Coach Fischer believes that the Rams have a well-balanced squad this season and one capable of finishing in the first division of the Big Seven.

Netmen Prepare For Crucial Tilt Friday Afternoon

With the Big Seven Conference championship wavering in the balance, the college tennis team musters all of its big guns for Friday afternoon's encounter with Modesto Junior College on the Pirate's home court, Ray Diederichsen, head net coach at the college, announced last week.

This match set, in all probability, will be the deciding one for the league title, providing the Rams get by Stockton College, the results of which were not available at press time.

Boasting a national two-year college titlist, and a nationally ranked racket performer, the Pirates will enter play odds on favorites. Heading their array of stars are Pancho Contreras and Jerry Moss. Contreras is the above mentioned U.S. champ, and Moss is listed among the nation's top ten.

The coach said, "Unless the boys all come up with a superior effort, we'll come out of the Modesto match on the short end of the ledger."

On the net court in a previous game, the Red and White dropped arch rival San Mateo to the count of 4-3.

Sharp play was exhibited by both teams, as they battled down to the wire trying for their initial win. The Rams got off to a slow start as Bill Wright and Harry Kopp, Marvin Gordon and Alan Matsumato lost double matches to the Bulldogs.

Then the locals regained their poise and balance and copped four of five single sets from the Mateans.

San Francisco State was to provide the next competition, but the game slated for March 11 was cancelled because of rain.

On March 12 the Rams celebrated their return to conference play by scoring a resounding 6-1 victory over West Contra Costa.

Balanced Edition Goal Of Forum Magazine Staff

Forum Magazine is well under way toward reaching its goals, according to Edwin Brush, business manager of the magazine.

The staff's greater bulk of effort is being directed toward obtaining advertising and arranging a campus publicity program that would make everyone on campus aware of what he stressed as "their magazine," for Forum's goal, he said, is a well balanced magazine with humorous and serious content in the best of style.

Brush noted that the staff is divided into two distinct groups: an editorial staff and a business staff. The business staff is most active at present and the editorial staff will have its hands full within the next month when the influx of copy is expected to be heaviest.

Some of the student staff members, he remarked, are receiving class credit for the work, while others are working on a purely outside activity basis, benefiting by the experience they receive in the publication of a magazine.

The staff, he declared, is fully organized and by all appearances promises to get out a successful magazine. The magazine is presently harrassed by a slow contribution of manuscripts.

He pointed out that manuscripts are encouraged from everyone on the campus, may be of any content; serious, satirical, humorous in prose and poetry, and can be submitted to Forum, Building 19.

The number of words is limited to 1500; manuscripts should be typewritten and double spaced, the staff decided, but hand written material will be accepted.

Pre-Registration Counselling

Pre-registration appointments can now be made in the counselling office in Building 3, Alva McMillan, counsellor here, announced last week.

Proposed program sheets will be given to each student as he arranges an appointment with his counsellor. McMillan said. Students should fill out these sheets as fully as possible, he urged, because their programs will be more their own, and counsellors will be able to devote more time to discussing their problems with them.

Those who have not yet arranged to see their counsellors should do so as quickly as possible, McMillan said, so that early registration will be possible.

He added that counsellors here are in the midst of visiting high senior classes of all San Francisco public high schools, and will continue to do so throughout next week. The counsellors will distribute literature concerning the college and its departments to students and answer questions.

Debate Society Meets Top Orators

Members of Phi Rho Pi, campus debate society, will compete with orators of major colleges and universities from all Western states for team and individual honors in the Phi Kappa Delta speech tournament at College of the Pacific April 8, 9, and 10, according to faculty sponsor Thomas Dutcher.

The tournament is one of the West's top forensic events, Dutcher said, and the college's speakers will pit their eloquence against some of the finest collegiate spellbinders on the coast.

Trophies and cups will be awarded for the best team and individual performances, with a sweepstakes cup to be presented to the team with the highest all-around average.

Competition will be in four major classifications, debating, extemporaneous speech, impromptu speech and oratory, Dutcher noted.

Subject for debating, a team event in which either team may be given the affirmative or negative side, will be "Resolved, that the United States should adopt a policy of free trade."

Topics for the extemporaneous events, in which the speaker is allowed five minutes to prepare his material will be drawn from the general field of taxation, while topics for the impromptu events will be drawn from current events. Impromptu speakers are allowed one minute of preparation, Dutcher said.

Card Sales Near AS Committee Goal Of $8000

Associated Student card sales have passed $6800 and are steadily climbing towards an $8000 goal set by the card sales committee, Dave Raphael, committee chairman, stated here last week.

The United Student Association was named as the only non-budgeted club to achieve 100 per cent Associated Student membership among its members in the contest for club card sales, and Raphael indicated that the name of the group would be placed on the scrolls in Building 2 and in the Science Building.

The card sales committee secured two new theater discounts last week for AS card holders, and according to Raphael, details of the new discounts are now being worked out. Announcement of the new benefits will be made soon, he added.

"One more drive will be held to reach the $8000 goal," Raphael said, "for I feel that many students who want to buy cards have not done so, perhaps because they feel that not enough benefits are included with purchase of the cards."

"I would like to request," he continued, "that all students who have thoughts as to the improvement of card benefits submit their suggestions to either Dean Batmale's office in Building 2 or to The Guardsman office in Building 4."

Associated Student cards may still be purchased for $5 at the bank in the Science Building, the Associated Student office in Building 2, or at The Rampdrum in Building 12.

Horticulture Class Enters Garden Show

Members of the horticulture classes here are making preparations for the exhibit they will enter in the Oakland Flower and Garden show in the Lake Merrit Exhibition Building from April 30 to May 2, according to John Chamberlain, horticulture student here.

Each exhibit is allowed 250 square feet, Chamberlain said.

A model of the college exhibit shows a brick wall and bench in the background shaded by evergreen trees and perennials and annuals in the foreground.

A lot of work and time goes into an exhibit of this type, Chamberlain said. Students are growing the plants to be used in the exhibit in the greenhouse now. Rules allow contestants one week to set up their exhibit, Chamberlain explained.

City College was awarded the $500 first prize at the Oakland Flower and Garden show last year and its exhibits have been annual prize winners in different categories.

More About PUC Plan For Lease

merding plans to build a school on land in the immediate area of the college). Plans also call for talks with the district Parent-Teachers' Association (the second district, which includes the college).

According to Dr. Clish, the PUC knew of the Board of Educations' opposition to the proposal in advance through a letter which the superintendent sent them before requests for the bids were sent out.

Dr. Clish, the Board of Education, the college administration, faculty and students and other numerous San Francisco citizens are working at the present to rectify what in Gabarino's words is a "bad situation for the college and for the general populace of San Francisco." (An AS group again presented their case to the PUC at a meeting Monday).

Six Student Delegates And Faculty Adviser Will Attend Junior College Government Conference At Coronado

To discuss student problems and activities with the two-year colleges of the state, six student delegates and one faculty adviser from the college will attend the 17th semi-annual California Junior College Student Government Conference on April 1, 2 and 3, at the Hotel Coronado in Coronado, California, Walt Yakovleff, information service chairman, announced last week:

Louis Batmale, assistant dean in charge of student activities; Joe Garbarino, Associated Student president; Alberta Cordini, AS vice-president; Jan Sewall, Associated Women Student president; Wray Jacobs, AS finance chairman; Dave Raphael, AS card sales chairman and Yakovleff will represent the college at the Coronado conference. Transportation will be provided by a United Airlines plane.

The purpose of the CJCSGA, Yakovleff explained, is to provide a means for discussing problems pertaining to student government, to promote better relations among the two-year colleges of the state and to establish statewide student organizations to promote the best interests of the students.

Between 45 and 50 colleges are expected to attend the conference, Yakovleff added, with more than 300 student leaders and advisers.

The CJCSGA first started on a statewide basis in November of 1945 with 15 colleges present at the assembly. Since 1947 the association has met twice each year, fall and spring, preceded by meetings of colleges in the northern, central and southern sections to discuss mutual problems and to formulate an agenda for the state conference.

At the state conference problems concerning athletics, rallies and assemblies, finances, student government, campus organizations, and publications and publicity will be discussed.

State officers of the CJCSGA are as follows: John G. Krawchuk, president; Mary Taddiken, secretary; Margaret D. Olson, faculty chairman; John Fitzrandolph, vice president, southern section; Horton Flaming, vice president, central section; Marilyn Malvino, vice president, northern section; Anne Lindsay, treasurer; Yakovleff, information service chairman. The offices of treasurer and ISC are fixed at Pasadena and San Francisco respectively.

Comedy Production Planned For April

A comedy with a moral, The Curious Savage, will be the next production of the college's drama society in the Little Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, April 22, 23 and 24, Michael Griffin, drama adviser, announced last week.

Curtain time for the three act play is 8:30 p.m. on the three evenings.

Plans for the Mardi Gras production have also been started, Deane Orr will be producer-director of the three unit show, Griffin added. The series of skits will be a parody on the manners and habits of the college Joe and Jane, he commented, and will be performed on a revolving stage. Production will be similar to Leonard Silliman's New Faces.

Gaslight will be the June production of the Little Theatre Group.

Student Ushers Needed For 15 Symphony Concerts

Passes are available to students, here, who wish to usher at the remaining performances of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, at the War Memorial Opera House, Mary Golding, dean of women here, announced last week.

Students will be required to work for one hour only, and may watch the performance from the dress circle, the area granted the ushers from the college, Miss Golding said.

Symphonies will continue through Saturday, April 24, she stated, and will feature Enrique Jorda and Bruno Walter as conductors.

Jorda will appear through Saturday, April 10. Selections from Prokofieoff, Beethoven, Mozart, and Wagner will be directed by Jorda, tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, March 27. Honor Society Plans Installation Dinner

Tentative plans are being made for an Alpha Gamma Sigma installation dinner to be held on Tuesday, April 6, at 6:30 p.m. in the faculty dining room, according to Don Jensen, faculty adviser to the scholastic honor society here.

Again all students eligible to join AGS are reminded to inform Jensen in Building 3.

After the first midterm grades are in, the faculty adviser will start checking all students who are eligible to graduate with honors. Jensen urged all students who have met the requirements, a 2.3 grade average with a minimum of 60 units, to check with him.

To date 17 new students have been admitted to the AGS, making the total now 42. They are as follows: Elena Acosta, Marilyn Angel, Frances Bellas, Mary Janice Brown, Dorothy Fallon, Jim Kanihan, Dick Meister, Gail Allen Moss, Shirley Murphy, Dorothy A. Radar, Victorla Silva, Shirley Spinner, Raymond Tankersley, Roberta Usher, Ronald C. Won, James Wong and Herman B. Zellcs.

Heels and cotton dresses will be the proper dress.

Dean Louis Batmale Contributes To Basketball As Referee For The Pacific Coast Conference

LOUIS F. BATMALE, dean of student activities at the college, is also a busy referee for the Pacific Coast Basketball Conference. To date he has refereed 30 college games this season.

A shrill blow of a whistle, a glistening polished court, a striped navy blue and white shirt means basketball. Along side these symbols has been the college contribution to the Pacific Coast Conference this season, referee Louis F. Batmale, also dean of student activities here.

During this past basketball season, Dean Batmale has refereed 30 college games, most of which were in the Pacific Coast Conference.

Besides reviewing the western region teams, he refereed the following games: University of California vs. Stanford; U.C. vs. University of Southern California; U.C. vs. University of California at Los Angeles; U.S.C. vs. U.C.L.A.; Stanford University vs. U.S.C. and U.C.L.A.; University of Southern California vs. Oregon State College, in the playoffs.

Other college and university games which he refereed were La Salle, Bradley Tech, Oklahoma A&M, Yale, Notre Dame, Michigan and Minnesota.

The University of San Francisco opened the road of Batmale's basketball career where he played the game. His next association with the sport came when he was a coach at St. Ignatius and Commerce High Schools. Then he entered the field of counselling here, though he still kept in basketball contact as a referee.

Referee Batmale's toughest games were University of Southern California vs. Oregon State; U.C.L.A. vs. U.C., and Oregon vs. Oregon State. As he puts it, "The big problem is throwing a jump-ball when there are 7 3" players."

Student Here Faces Deportation

Immigration Laws May Force Margot Cohen To Leave Country

By Bill Boldenweck

Margot Cohen, a stateless orphan as a result of World War II, who thought she had finally found a haven when she arrived in the United States two years ago, now finds herself facing deportation with such dubious company as Lucky Luciano and Dick Haymes, because of technicalities in the Federal Immigration laws.

The 22 year old student, fighting to stay in control of her emotions, explained her case before Student Council last week and asked student support of a bill introduced in her behalf by Representative John J. Allen of California, which provides that she be permitted to remain in this country and apply for naturalization. One number will be deleted from the German immigration quota if the bill is passed.

Miss Cohen's predicament is a result of her birth in Goch, a city in East Germany, now under Russian control. Fleeing from Nazi oppression prior to the Second World War, she managed to reach Holland.

With the subsequent occupation of the Netherlands, she was interned in a concentration camp, from which she escaped with the aid of the underground. Her entire family was killed in concentration camps, but she was able to remain in hiding until the end of the war.

Tracing her only living relatives to Haiti, she joined them and subsequently was granted a student visa to the United States. Her aunt and uncle followed on the regular quota. The visa has now expired and because the immigration regulations of Haiti prevent renewal, Miss Cohen finds herself in the position of having to leave this country with no practical place to go.

The Jewish Welfare Federation contacted Representative Allen, who presented her case to the House in his bill. She is now under technical arrest, pending the disposition of her case.

After hearing the facts, council immediately passed a resolution supporting the bill which will be forwarded to Representative Allen for presentation before the House.

MARGOT COHEN.

Petitions to Congress to permit Miss Cohen to remain in the United States and continue her studies are now being circulated. Students and faculty members may sign them in the Associated Student office, The Guardsman office, the Silver pile and the Rampdrum.

Student Council Supports Guardsman Editorials On Campus Police Dispute And Drive-In Restaurant On Campus

In unanimous decision, the Associated Student Council last Thursday passed a vote of confidence in last week's Guardsman editorials regarding the Campus Police dispute and proposed campus location of a drive-in type of restaurant.

Final decision in the Campus Police controversy, as far as the police demand for reimbursement for services at the college's Mardi Gras carnival was concerned, was reached in a meeting between Associated Men Student officers and Campus Police representatives on March 22.

Bill Boldenweck, AMS president, stated that in mediation with Leo Hertog, police liaison officer in the Associated Student President's Cabinet, the AMS had to allow the Campus Police ten per cent of gross Mardi Gras profits. Up to press time the AS Council had not ruled on the matter.

In other council business last week, Don Pace was elected to fill the sophomore seat on Council vacant since the resignation of Jim Glasson earlier in this semester. Pace was elected on the third ballot by council, defeating Emily Hardy, high-card salesman in the AS card sales contest this Spring, by a narrow margin. Other students nominated for the position were Diane Tolman and Dick Arey.

Council members were asked by Associated Student President Joe Garbarino to give thought to the future of Sam, the college's Merino mascot. Garbarino commented on the ram's present inactivity and lack of student interest in the mascot.

Rounding out the choir activities for the month of April will be participation in the dedication of Cloud Hall, Sunday, April 25.

Shortened Period For Veteran Sign Up

Since the period in which veterans must sign their monthly attendance certificates for subsistence payments under Public Law 550 will be considerably shortened this month, veterans affected should appear at the veteran affairs office in Building 3 as early as possible this week to file the necessary forms, according to Dr. F. Grant Marsh.

Speakers Named For Dedication

Chief speaker at the dedication ceremonies of Cloud Hall here Sunday, April 25, will be Dr. Monroe Deutsch, retired provost of the University of California, President Louis G. Conlan announced last week.

Other speakers at the ceremonies will be guest of honor Dr. A. J. Cloud, president emeritus of the college in whose honor the building was named. Dr. Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools and President Conlan.

Educators, alumni, retired faculty members and student leaders of the college will also attend.

President Conlan has sent invitations to the ceremonies and arrangements have been made for a parking area to take care of the expected crowd.

Acting as official hostesses for the college will be 100 women students of the college. They will greet the visitors and answer any questions concerning the college.

Students who have signed up as guides for the affair are as follows: Carol Clark, Alberta Cordini, Mei Ling Fong, Joyce Galligani, Margie Hicks, Barbara Jenkins, Amy Lee, Jan Michel, Irena Morozoff, Clementina Radillo, Shirley Rathjens, Sonia Seebahm, Jan Sewall, Meg Shick, Millie Stoll and Felicia Zeiger.

Other guides can sign up with the Associated Women Students.

This Week's AS Campus Activities

A Cappella Choir Bills 2 Concerts At Balboa High

Two concerts by the A Cappella Choir will be given at Balboa High School at 9 and 10 a.m. on Wednesday, April 7, Richard Vine, choir director here this year, announced yesterday.

Selections sung at this year's Spring Festival, he added, will also be repeated at the Choral Festival in May at San Francisco State College.

A list of the songs planned is as follows: Cherubin Song, Love in Grief, Coral Suite, Christmas Songs, Sacred Anthems, Vistas of Song, Lullaby of Christmas, Praise the Lord Eternal, Battle Hymn of Republic, On the Isle of May, What Is This, Thine Called Love? and opening choruses from Cavalleria Rusticana.

Taking part in these performances are soloists Barbara Warner, Earl Phillips, Emma Hilliard, Kitty Fierson, Susan Palmer, Barbara Senegal, Raymond Murrijlo, Nadine Williams, Richard Ramich, Ilma Baker and Loretta Warchot, he said.

Sigmund Stern Grove will be the setting of a picnic Monday, April 12. Vine added, where a baschall game between the altos-basses and tenors-sopranos will be held with a dance following.

Deadline Announced For Parking Permits

Parking permits will not be issued after next Monday, April 5, stated Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, here recently.

Until that time, permits may be obtained on Mondays in Dean Browne's office in Building 2.

All students applying for permits must be members of the Associated Students.

It is mandatory for all who park in the west campus to have parking permit stickers on their car windshield. Those who do not obey the set rules will receive tags from the Campus Police force.

Faculty and Students Gather During College Hour Today For Get-Together In Building Two

Faculty-Student Coffee Hour will be held during college hour today in the student lounge, Building 2, Katherine Shorb, chairman of the student-faculty relations committee, announced last week.

Purpose of the event, Mrs. Shorb said, is to give both faculty and students an opportunity to become better acquainted in a friendly and informal atmosphere.

The bi-annual affair, sixth of a series since its innovation two and one-half years ago, has proved to be a successful project of the student-faculty relations committee, she said.

Mrs. Shorb added that refreshments, including cookies and coffee, will be served. All students are urged to attend.

Working with Mrs. Shorb on the committee are George Baffico, Faculty Association president, Mildred Barnard, Merritt Beckerman, Mary Golding, Harold Miller, Anka Periseich, Maurice Power and Douglas Soule.

Finances for the coffee hour are supplied by the Faculty Association, Mrs. Shorb said.

Previous date for the faculty-student event was Friday, April 2. The shift in programming was necessary on that date because of Business Education Day, when representatives from San Francisco business firms will visit the college.

Between 1500 and 1800 persons have attended the coffee hour in past semesters, Mrs. Shorb added, and the semi-annual affair has since its inauguration enabled students and faculty to become better acquainted with each other.

Refreshments including cookies and coffee will be served, Mrs. Shorb added.

50 Businessmen Due Here Friday For Bus-Ed Day

By invitation of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, 50 leading businessmen from firms throughout the city will visit the college this Friday, designated Business-Education Day, for a tour of the campus, President Louis G. Conlan announced last week.

Purpose of the tour, President Conlan explained, is to give the businessmen an opportunity to become familiar with the public schools of San Francisco.

"There is a tremendous interest in public education among businessmen," he stated, "because of the large tax expenditure spent annually for public schools."

Following breakfast at 9 a.m., the group will assemble for a social period in order to become acquainted with the faculty and students of the college.

Continuing the program there will be a period of orientation during which guests will receive general information concerning the college program of studies.

The group will then tour the campus, visiting the Science Building, Cloud Hall and the classes and faculties of the west campus.

At a luncheon in the faculty dining room, guests will be entertained by a discussion of student activities and speeches by students expressing their own views of the college.

No Action Taken On PUC Leasing

Action by school department officials against the proposed lease of land adjacent to the campus has brought no definite results to date. A meeting with Public Utilities Commissioners, scheduled for March 22, was cancelled. Action, if any, taken at the meeting held last Monday, occurred too late for publication.

Louis G. Conlan, Oscar E. Anderson, John J. Brady, Louis Batmale, college administrators, and School Superintendent Herbert C. Clish, and a group of Associated Students, attended the meeting with PUC officials to present their arguments against the proposed plan.

Standards of the college's building program would be lowered, it was pointed out, and a congregation of crowds at or near the college would present a definite problem in connection with activities and traffic.

Joining college administrators and the AS, are the Ocean Avenue Merchants' Association.

7 Representatives Attend Student Conference

Seven representatives from the college will attend the 17th semi-annual California Junior College Student Government Conference at the Hotel Del Coronado in Coronado, California, which starts tomorrow and will continue through Saturday, Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here, announced recently.

Eighteen bay area colleges have chartered a Western Airlines' plane, Batmale added, which will leave early tomorrow for Coronado.

College faculty adviser to group attending the conference is Batmale. Student delegates are Joe Garbarino, Associated Student president; Alberta Cordini, AS vice-president; Jan Sewall, Associated Women Student president; Wray Jacobs, AS finance chairman; Dave Raphael, AS card sales chairman and Walt Yakovleff, AS information service chairman.

Agenda for the conference, according to Batmale, includes discussion of problems relating to college finance, student government, publicity and publications, athletics, activities, and men's and women's student organizations.

Student card sales and appropriation of funds will be among the problems discussed under finance. College spirit and elections will be discussed in the student government workshop. During the publicity and publications workshop, public relations, and student publications — newspapers and yearbooks — will be discussed. The status of semi-professional athletics in colleges will be one problem discussed under finance, Batmale added.

The college hosted the CJCSG Conference in fall of 1947 and spring of 1952. The latter conference was held at the Fairmont Hotel.

WALT YAKOVLEFF, AS information service chairman and state officer, with six other college representatives, will attend the California Junior College Student Government Conference at Coronado tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

"Help Week" And Good Will, Or "Hell Week" And Ridicule?

NEXT Monday marks the beginning here of a period which is traditionally known in college circles as "Hell Week," the time when fraternity and sorority pledges go through initiation proceedings.

The often foolish antics during the period do nothing to add to the prestige of City College's fraternities and sororities. Rather, the proceedings gain nothing but ridicule for these organizations.

"Hell Week" serves no constructive purpose here; neither for the pledges, who must act more in a manner more befitting an elementary school than City College of San Francisco, nor for the organizations involved who are laughed at for their adherence to "Hell Week" traditions.

Some may think that the week should serve no constructive purpose, that it's "just a part of traditional college life" and an occasion to let one's hair down. This is a foolish belief.

"Hell Week," if handled properly, can become one of the most important and constructive events on the campus calendar, in furthering the good name of the fraternities, of the sororities and of the college itself.

Why not change "Hell Week" into "Help Week" with each fraternity and sorority giving its pledges a public service project to work on; college projects, such as cleaning up the campus, building ticket booths, decorating the student lounge; the possible projects are limitless. There are also many community undertakings which could be accomplished by pledges.

Instead of spending "Hell Week" loudly singing ridiculous songs and passing out candy and bubble gum to passers-by, let pledges loudly proclaim the virtues of the cancer fund, heart fund or other worthwhile charities, and instead of giving their "goodies," giving their time to collecting donations for such worthy causes. In a community of this size there are thousands of unfortunates who would welcome the "helping hands" of strong armed pledges in repairing their homes, weeding their small gardens and the like.

Such work would not only aid the organization's public relations, but would aid them in getting a better membership—a fraternity or sorority certainly would rather have a member who is willing to help his fellow man than one who's merely willing to make a fool of himself in front of his fellow students. It's axiomatic that "any fool can act foolish."

Fraternities and sororities have proved that they are capable of good works by their representation in the excellent student government here and a "Help Week" would strengthen that proof.

Unlimited possibilities for obtaining the community's good-will and that of all students in a "Help Week" outweighs the ridicule and ill-will often obtained by the organizations in "Hell Week."

Sunday Morning Sausage: The Link In Good Family Relationship

By Harold Painter

SUNDAY morning sausage fry is an American institution that seems to have passed with the grub hoe and the bacon curing on the living room rafter above the mantel.

Nothing is more encouraging to family harmony than the smell of savory sizzling sausage frying in a black iron pan with fried eggs for pan-fellows: a companionship that when surrounded by rosy Sunday faces flowers into a beautiful union of family, Sunday, and sausage that will stick to the mind's ribs longer than grandfather's stories.

And a visit to the well stocked delicatessen: —

Clean, marble floor and white walls, and a humming glass counter filled with yellow and white and orange, soft, hard, tart, mellow, and ripe cheese.

And salami peppered with spices, biting white fat and dark oily meats; and fish and pickled fish, pickles and sauces and salads; and rainbows of bending shelves filled with brightly colored cans from all the ports of the world:

—Is second only to Sunday church in contributing to the quietude and peace of the domestic man, a visit that where the panorama of sausages like saintly icons and images from antiquity to modern times, inspire man to the sacrament of the home and the table and the hearth, and remind him that the land is rich and fruitful and under his feet.

And the sausage as a link between man and man is an institution that is universal with a variety of 500 hundred sausages to vouch for it.

And if the sausage is not taken as a breakfast communion, it is taken for lunch or for dinner or for a table of hock beer and cheese; sausage has been the link between hundreds of years of friendships.

America should sit over a plate of well cooked sausage and fried eggs, and dine with the rafters, swine, sausage makers, and land, take its hat off and bow twice to its sausage makers.

Hints For April Fool Jokes

By Dolores Stoffers

Ah, for the good old days.

Things just aren't what they used to be. Times were when April 1 was a day of plotting and everyone was suddenly turned into a practical joker.

Probably the main reason for the April Fool's Day situation, as it stands today, is lack of imagination in this generation of students.

If one looks around the college, objectively, he can find great potentialities for practical jokes, for instance:

The art labs in Building 10 could be considerably brightened by a brilliant array of every hue, if some enterprising art students would just get to work. Then, if they want to be difficult, they should consider, too, the equipment drawers, whose locks can be easily jammed, temporarily.

Now, if someone wants to get obnoxious about the whole deal, he can tour the biology labs and procure souvenirs. A few specimens, placed effectively, will produce interesting results and a million guffaws.

Chemistry labs can provide probably the most welcome laughs on the campus. After the chemists have successfully "masked" their way out of class, grabbing vials of carbon disulfide (that liquid which bears the resemblance of rotten eggs) on their way out, they must go directly to the west campus. There, many objects can be found which can be saturated effectively with the substance.

Of course, the hotel and restaurant department can do the most overall damage. Need more be said?

Results of a recent survey show that the gymnasiums here provide the most diversified entertainment. There are equipment lockers in which to lock people, hoses in the showers with which to drench passers by, and many other features the practical jokers will find handy.

There is a seemingly permanent mud puddle on the corner of Ocean Avenue and the road leading to the gymnasiums. Take a friend for a walk.

Using these suggestions as a criterion, students can find many other things to do tomorrow. The victims won't mind. After all, it's April Fool's Day.

College Safeguards Student Health
Physician Insures Aid

For the past nine years the City Public Health Department has placed at the disposal of students of City College of San Francisco, Dr. Thomas P. Jones, a physician, who is in attendance daily from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. in the south end of Building 5, second floor.

Purpose of the Department of Public Health in placing a physician at the college is to insure medical attention at any time it is emergently needed by students. No other two-year college in the state of California enjoys this privilege.

It is the hope of the department that students will avail themselves of this opportunity to safeguard their health. In the past three years students have often used the medical facilities which are available here.

THOMAS P. JONES, college physician, insures medical attention to students daily from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. in his office in Building 5.

Advance Design Students Work Hard At Real Make-Believe

By Bev Swope

"Desseins" — a word that suggests all the color of an artist's palette plus the romantic touch of "un accent francais" — describes a group of ambitious advanced design students who make a business of pretending.

The group, which consists of ten second-year art students here, performs make-believe jobs that are handled by professional industrial designers.

Among the many activities of the Desseins was the redesigning of India House, a fashionable restaurant on Washington street. The group ate there, observed and studied the floor plan, took measurements and then redesigned the entire establishment.

Another job well done by the ten students was the redesigning of Trade Fair, a furniture store in Sausalito. The owner was so well pleased with the students' ideas that he exhibited their models in his store.

A third project was fabric designing for Quaintance Fabrics and a fourth was the redesign of packaging for Northwest Foods, an imaginary company.

The staff of this semester's Desseins are as follows: Jacob Arnautoff, Vincent Fabris, Mary Fillinger, Josephine Gandert, Andrew Gillespie, Jesse Hover, Daniel Hull, Joana Magee, Don Pringle and Roba Lee Wrenn.

The Desseins are just one integral part of an elaborate and complete art department here. According to Franchon Gary Mead, art instructor, the two-year art curriculum here provides a basic training in art techniques and philosophy for students who intend to continue studies at professional art schools or at a university.

During the first semester students learn basic art principles; in the second semester they apply what they have learned to definite problems related to professional practice, and then by the third semester they are ready to begin work in fine arts or industrial arts.

Eighteen of the fine art students presently have oil paintings on display at J and C Dover's in Stonestown. Such favorable comment was drawn concerning the paintings that the exhibition has been extended past its original deadline.

Library Offers Recorded Music

By Yvonne Feibelman

Music, Music, Music, is the latest theme song of the college library.

The library has for some time been featuring records for the benefit of those culture addicts who prefer the classical and operatic style of music.

No, it's not broadcast over a loud speaker—silence supreme still reigns, and the studious ones in the crowd never hear a note.

The method of listening to the music is almost completely private, and has proved to be quite successful.

A phonograph (which by the way, has stood much wear and tear throughout its many years of service here), with attached ear phones is used. It plays in three speeds, and is capable of supplying students with a full variety of enjoyment.

Foreign students, who at times may find the English language somewhat of a barrier, can also benefit from the library phonograph.

Language records are in the music library, and would probably be a help to many, native or not.

At this time, four separate ear phones have been attached to the machine.

Plans for four more phonographs, to be put in the new Cloud Hall library are under way, so that more students may benefit from this service.

The first automobile accident occurred in New York City, May 30, 1896, when Henry Wells of Springfield, Massachusetts, in a Duryea Motor Wagon, collided with Evylyn Thomas, a bicycle rider.

Shots At RAMdom

Students Pursue Einstein Books, Satire, Comics

By Shirley Murphy

TASTE of students at the college in reading matter, other than text books, is certainly diversified. Last week two students were observed in the fountain perusing works of their own selection. One was completely involved in Mad, a satirical comic book, and the other was just as engrossed in Einstein's Theory of Relativity.

Eat and Ride

The Municipal Railway is running competition to the cafeteria and fountain. Many students who work in the afternoons are now consuming their midday snack in transit. To date, no coffee machines have been installed on the cars.

West Campus Demolition

As a student took his seat in a west campus classroom last week, the chair collapsed. Stated the frugal instructor, "Just because we're moving into the new building is no excuse for wrecking the furniture."

Times Are Tough

More visitors to the Dean of Men's office than ever before have stooped to pick up the buffalo nickel, which is nailed to the floor near the Dean's desk and is a permanent part of the office decor. Either people are becoming more observant or this is a pertinent commentary on the economic situation of the times.

Blaze At Midnight

The hook-and-ladder men of the City were given a helping hand recently by some fire-fighting Rams. Leaving the dance sponsored by the United Student Association, these rangers noted a strange glow over Ocean Avenue. As they drove along they saw the cause of the illumination — the motor of a flivver had caught fire. Jumping from their car, they helped extinguish the blaze.

Freshman Coed Surprised By Photographer

AT Cornell University, a freshman coed has offered to buy all copies of the freshman directory. She says a picture of her published in the directory stands to ruin her social life.

She was trying to remove a shred of stringy substance from her teeth when the photographer snapped the shutter.

COED STYLE

Members of the Coed Journalism club at the University of Denver took over the Denver Clarion, student newspaper, on Lincoln's birthday — and put it out female style.

All members of the staff for that issue were women, including the copy "boy." The special issue was published on pink paper.—From ACP releases.

It seems to require a lot more brains to live decently than it does to make three or four million dollars.

H&R Provides Army Chefs

Armed service units throughout the nation have had a pet gripe from the "first army 'till now, and that was the way their food was cooked.

Today in the Napoleonic fashion of travelling on its stomach, the services are nutrition-wise and are taking the cooks out of the filing cabinets and placing them before a stove.

This is by no means a small program but involves the large scale contributions of many. The hotel and restaurant division here on the campus is today doing much to push over operation kitchen.

With a wide sprinkling of graduates in the services, the division has spread a table of satisfaction across the nation, even across the Pacific to far away Hong Kong.

As a well established organization, H & R turns out many artists in kitchen craft, keeping a record of the trade put into practice by its graduates.

With such a turnout it will not be long before trained chefs throughout the armed services will be turning the mess halls into one of the most popular places on any camp, post or ship.

Diamond Nine Opposes East Contra Costa

Funston #1 playground provides the locale for this afternoon's baseball game between the college nine and East Contra Costa's horsehiders. The practice contest at the Chestnut and Webster diamond will start at 3 p.m.

On Thursday, March 18, the Presidio ball club met the Ram squad at Big Rec and suffered a 5-4 defeat.

Bob Word started for City College and allowed two runs and four hits during the five innings he was on the mound. Stan Fetterman pitched the last four and received credit for the victory. He gave up two runs although he didn't allow a single hit.

RAMS LOSE DOUBLEHEADER

Errors proved the undoing of the Ram baseballers last Saturday at Funston Field as they dropped both ends of a double-header to Stockton College, 4-3 in ten innings and 6-2 in the seven inning nightcap.

Rightfielder Nolan Wilson provided the batting punch for the Rams with four hits in eight at bats, pitcher Stan Fetterman struck out 12 in the opener and Bob Word did not allow an earned run in the second game.

Tom Roper was the hero of the contest in doubling to right field with the bases loaded in the last of the ninth with two men out to drive in two runs and tie the game.

Dick Bandettini then singled to left to score Dave Neglebon with the winning run.

Next Tuesday the college team hosts San Mateo in a Big Seven Conference game.

Leading hitters for the Rams so far include Dick Bandettini with nine hits in 19 times at bat for a .474 batting average, Rudy Buffin the defending Big Seven batting champion, with a .393 average, the result of 11 safeties for 28 times at the plate and John Pulli with a .462 average.

The line score for the City College-San Francisco Presidio baseball game is as follows:

Presidio	100 100 200
4 runs, 6 hits, 4 errors
City College	001 100 003
5 runs, 6 hits, 3 errors

Batteries: Hill, Monroe and Jacobson: Word, Fetterman and Lee and James.

WAA Hosts High Schools Monday

Polytechnic and Balboa High schools will be the guests of the Women's Athletic Association here for the second playday of the semester on Monday, April 5, Joan Andersen, president of the association, announced recently.

Volleyball will be played with 12 players from each of the high schools participating. Two teams from the college will vie with them for top honors.

At a recent volleyball playday with Galileo High School, one of the college teams won one game and the other team lost one, while Galileo split even with one win and one loss.

Plans are now underway, Miss Andersen said, for the intercollegiate badminton playday to be held here on Saturday, April 24.

All two year colleges from the Bay Area will compete. Students interested in taking part in the sport affair should see Nancy Sparks, WAA advisor, in the women's gymnasium, Miss Anderson added.

Winning Teams Hillsman Specialty; Coach Boasts Enviable Record

One of the most active and successful coaches at City College is Ralph Hillsman, head basketball coach, who boasts an enviable record while at the college.

Hillsman began his own higher schooling at City College back in 1935. He then went to the University of California through 1937 and 1938 where he received his teaching credentials. From 1939 through 1942 he taught at Lassen Junior College. The next four years were spent in the United States Navy. Since getting out of the Navy in 1946 until now he has been teaching at the college.

As far as his athletic achievements are concerned, Hillsman first received prominence at City College when he was placed on the All-Junior College Conference Basketball Team in 1936. He then proceeded to play ball for the University of California and St. Mary's Pre-Flight respectively.

His most noteworthy performance however, has been as head basketball coach here, where he has piled up an amazing record.

This record consists of never having coached a team which has finished lower than second place. His teams have shared first five times, won it three times, and have finished second twice—quite a record.

Campus Boxing Prospers Under New Ring Slate

Two weeks have passed since the adoption of the new look and old angle in the college's boxing program, and according to head boxing coach Roy Diederichsen, all results point to a successful outcome.

Explaining the above the coach said, "Members of the varsity boxing team, who incidentally have completed their fistic season, will take into their stable any inexperienced performer and teach him the fundamentals of the sport, readying them in the best way they know for the All-City College Boxing Tournament which is scheduled for the latter part of May."

Diederichsen added that the old angle has been tried out before and with success.

A new wrinkle has been added to the new look, the coach went on to say, that is in the issuing of contracts by managers (member of varsity team to students who have signed with them). The contract will bind manager and fighter to each other. Once this has been done, the signee will perform for that coach only or none at all.

Each varsity boxing member will be alloted a maximum of a 20-man team. No more than two in the same weight division. They will set up their own training site, practice time, training routine and rules.

Coach Diederichsen made clear the point that all partielpants in this venture will have to be of beginner status. Any experienced performer is not eligible to compete, but those in this category can consult the coach and obtain permission and contracts to start their own boxing "stable."

Elimination bouts will be set up along the way, March through the middle of May, in order to determine what leather throwers will climb over the ropes the night of the tournament.

Elimination bouts will be continued until two champions in the same weight class have been decided. In turn they meet in the squared circle tournament night.

Members of the varsity team turned managers are as follows: Glen Lamm, Norman Hill, Rudy Hoffman, Al Sinoloca, John Roach, William Sinclair, Ken Turner and Mike Mitchel.

Women Needed To Fill Co-Ed Class

Co-ed folk dancing had its initial meeting last Friday at 1 p.m. in the women's gymnasium here. Twelve men and women students were present, Laurine Bergin, chairman of the women's physical education department, announced yesterday.

More interested women students are needed to fill out the class, she said, since there are mainly men students participating in the co-ed activity.

Archery, badminton, and social dancing met during regular class time and on Thursday and Friday, 3 p.m. last week, informally.

Further co-ed sports have been curtailed, Mrs. Bergin said, because of a consistently poor turnout at the activities.

Block SF Awards Explained; Fischer Reveals Regulations

Coach Bill Fischer, sponsor of the Block SF Society here, revealed information yesterday as to how athletic awards may be received.

First, all conference games are recognized as block letter games. Awards are divided into two groups, major and minor sports.

Major sports consist of basketball, baseball, boxing, football, golf, soccer, tennis, and track, while the minor ones consist of badminton, J. V. baseball, J. V. basketball, J. V. football, skiing, and swimming.

The individual requirements of each of these sports is as follows:

Basketball—there is a set minimum of ten block letter games. Tennis — eight block letter games with a final conference match. Soccer—four block letter games. Baseball—minimum of ten block letter games. Boxing — four block letter meets, in addition to the conference championships. Golf — eight block letter games. Swimming — to be governed by the same rules as track.

Besides deciding awards, the Block SF holds other activities such as semi-annual participation in the Mardi Gras, a Block SF dinner held annually and presentation of a dance.

BILL FISCHER, sponsor of the Block SF Society.

Also they sponsor a Block SF rally each semester, aid in presenting other rallies and in organizing social functions of the college. They have meetings Fridays during college hour.

Ram Golfers Thunder Past Santa Rosa In League Opener

The Harding golf course was no bed of roses for Santa Rosa golfers last Friday, for they were soundly defeated by the City College golf team, 12½ to 2½, in the opening salvo of the Big Seven Conference.

City College won all five matches as Gene George defeated Santa Rosa's first man, shooting a 78 to win 2½ points.

Lou Sartor turned in a 77 for the highest score of the day, picking up 3 points for the college.

Art Pira shot an 82 to take another 3 points and an 83 gave Charles Lowe 1½ points.

Bob Flanagan shot an 82 for 2½ points.

Golf Coach Ralph Hillsman said that all conference matches in San Francisco will be played at the Harding course, and all practice matches will be played at Sharp Park. The following is the schedule for the 1954 season:

March 26—Monterey.
March 29—USF.
April 5—Menlo.
April 26—USF.
May 3—Marin.
April 2—Sacramento.
April 8—Stockton.
April 28—San Mateo.
April 30—Modesto.
May 7—Contra Costa West.

The Stockton and San Mateo matches will be played at San Francisco. On May 14 and 15, the Big Seven Conference tournament will be held at Modesto, and on May 17, the California State tournament will be held in Southern California.

Intramural Play In Third Round

The intramural sports program, under the supervision of Coach Ralph Hillsman, is now entering the third round of competition here.

The program is divided into two halves, those classes meeting on Monday and Wednesday form one half, and the other bracket is composed of Tuesday and Thursday's classes.

Then there is the subdivision into indoor and outdoor sports. The main indoor sport is basketball, and the outdoor sports include touch football and softball.

The winners of a certain hour compete in an elimination tournament, narrowing the field down, until there is a winner from each of the two main brackets. The intramural championship is determined by this game.

Those teams eligible for participation in intramural competition are only those enrolled in physical education classes.

Ram Trackmen Lose To Cubs, Meet Modesto

Santa Rosa took advantage of a slow track and their superiority in the field events to defeat the City College thinclads last Saturday, 81⅔ to 69⅓, in the Big Seven Conference opener at Santa Rosa.

Vallejo also was entered in the meet, although not a member of the Big Seven, and had 23 points.

The Rams, more than held their own in the track events, despite poor running conditions, but Santa Rosa captured every first place in the field except the shot put, where Bob Huffman of Vallejo took top honors.

Top performance in an otherwise poor group was Ron Walters' win in the high jump. Walters, the 6-6 Santa Rosan who is also the center on the Cub basketball team, leaped 6-5, for a Santa Rosa College record.

Outstanding performers for the Rams were a pair of veterans, Al Carlsen and Charley Smock. Carlsen won the 880 yarder in 2:02.6, and Smock ran the 100 in the poor but nevertheless winning time of :10.6 and took second place in the 180 yard low hurdles.

The college's only other firsts were in the 180 yard dash, run in place of the 220, where Jack Connell took top honors, in the two mile where Medford Todd's 11:07.5 was good enough for first, and in the mile relay.

Modesto is the next Big Seven opponent for the Rams. The two teams meet this Saturday, April 3, at California.

Stack Quits College For Diamond Career

Jerry Stack, star outfielder for last year's Ram varsity baseball team and one of the top performers in practice games this year, has left the college and is now looking for a professional diamond contract.

Stack, who was also a two-year letterman in basketball here, is highly regarded by professional scouts. He will join his brother Jim, an ex-Marine, in considering professional offers. Both Jerry and Jim are outfielders, although Jerry can play first base.

Warm Weather Sports Under Way

RAMBLINGS

By Gail Allan Moss

Tennis, Golf Need Campus Attendance

SPRING is here, the warm weather sports are under way and a little plug for the so-called minor sports is in order.

This isn't a slight at track or baseball, but they are the sports that usually draw the big crowds anyway. The lesser known (in the college bracket) and less attended games are the ones that need the boost.

These "minor" sports are not, of course, minor in any way. They are just as important to the participants as baseball is to the horsehider or track to the runner. They require just as much skill and in some cases more than the big attendance sports and they can be just as exciting to a spectator who really loves the thrill of a good contest.

The sight of a baseball clearing the fence or a smooth double play, or a last ditch effort that wins a race is thrilling. But the all too few dyed-in-the-wool fans who support golf or tennis will argue that a match-winning long putt on the 18th hole or a clean hard cannonball serve on the tennis court is just as exciting. And they're right.

Even without the thrills of a tight match in these "little" sports, the attitude of the participants would make supporting them worthwhile. They play for the love of the sport and no other reason. No athlete is worth his salt if he doesn't love the game he's playing, but in golf, tennis, swimming and the like there are very few big headlines and few $50,000 contracts.

To the members of the "minor" teams, the game is the important thing. The members of the Ram golf team think it's important enough to shell out $150 for equipment. The college doesn't furnish even one little golf ball. The same holds true in tennis, although the cost isn't nearly as great. The point is that these players are willing to pay for the privilege of participating.

The finest drawing card is good hard competition, and tennis and golf (two good examples) are two of the few sports where a two-year college can compete on even terms with the varsity squads from big colleges and universities.

The Modesto tennis team is one example. Last week the Modestans and their two nationally ranked players, Pancho Contreras and Gerry Moss, won the eighth annual Northern California Intercollegiate tennis tournament at Berkeley, finishing well ahead of Stanford, California, University of San Francisco and Sacramento State, all four-year institutions.

Bob Gaughran, Stockton College swimmer, recently set a new national two-year college record of 2:21.6 for the 200 yard backstroke. Unfortunately City College has dropped swimming as an inter-collegiate sport, but these two recent performances point up the high grade of competition in the unheralded sports in two-year colleges and especially in the Big Seven Conference.

This is not meant as a get-out and-support-the-team sermon, but as a tip to real sports fans. The "minor" sports deserve support and in return they're ready to give a good brand of competition and plenty of entertainment. There is generally no admission to these events, and even if there was it would be well worth the half dollar or so to get out and support the "little" sports in addition to the already well supported spring sports.

Date Of Charter Day Celebration Still Undecided

Date of this year's Annual Charter Day celebration here has not yet definitely been set, according to Edwin Frediani, college Alumni Association president.

Frediani explained the purpose of the Annual Charter Day as Alumni Association's annual "big get together." On April 17, 1935, the State Board of Education, at Sacramento, voted unanimously that San Francisco Junior College, now City College of San Francisco, be established.

On May 1, 1935, Vierling Kersey, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, signed a charter designating San Francisco Junior College as a college under the supervision of Edwin A. Lee, who was, at the time, Superintendent of Public Schools for San Francisco County, and Archibald J. Cloud, as President of the college.

The first of the annual Charter Day celebrations was March 31, 1948, Mayor Elmer Robinson was the guest speaker at a dinner and honored guest of the occasion which was held in the student lounge.

Last year's Charter Day Dinner and celebration was held in honor of retiring Dean of Women here, Margaret Dougherty.

Frediani pointed out that the annual celebration is rarely held on the date of the actual signing, but that the date is set yearly by the association.

17 AS Activities Not 100 Per Cent

Stating that 17 of 28 activities on campus which receive Associated Student financial backing have not achieved 100 per cent AS membership, Dave Raphael, AS Card sales chairman, this week admonished the clubs not posting total membership to do so soon.

He indicated that activities failing to meet the 100 per cent requirement will not receive their AS budget allotment.

The drive for new AS members will continue this week, Raphael said, with concentration aimed at the non-budgeted clubs on campus. He added that an intensified drive will take place during the days before and after dedication of Cloud Hall Sunday, April 25

Last week a class directed by Henry Leff of the radio-television department here, took over responsibilities of announcements over the Building 2 public address system, and Raphael stated that all future announcements in regard to AS card sales will be made by class members.

Associated Student membership may still be obtained by purchase of the $5 AS card at three locations on the campus: The Ramporium, located in Building 12, the bank on the first floor of the Science Building, and at the Associated Student office.

Clubs Must Apply For Recognition

Petitions for campus recognition and Business Education Day were the orders of business at the Club Activity Board meeting here on March 23.

Warnings will be sent to those clubs on campus who have not yet turned in their petitions to CAB. "If these clubs do not respond to the warning," Mildred Stoll, chairman of the board said, "action will be taken to have them classified as non-recognized clubs."

These clubs are Alpha Gamma Sigma, Beta Tau, Filipino Club, Le Cercle Francais, Globe and Anchor, Italian-American Club, Lutheran Discussion, Men's Glee, and United Student Association, she added.

The second point of business concerned guides for Business Education Day, Friday, April 2. It was voted unanimously to have 14 representatives from CAB and six from Student Council to act as guides for the 50 visiting businessmen.

The visitors will be divided into groups of five, each with a faculty member and two guides. They will tour Cloud Hall, the Science Building, and the Hotel and Restaurant Division.

In order that the student guides be acquainted with Cloud Hall, the March 25 meeting of CAB was held as a tour of the new building.

Ramporium Offers Special Reduced Student Rates On Leading National Magazines

The Ramporium, student bookstore here, has, in addition to necessary books and supplies, special student rates for some of the nation's leading magazines, according to Dick Main, store manager

According to Main, The Ramporium maintains a subscription agency for most magazines that students may desire. Main commented that there are probably 1000 or more magazines in all that are available at The Ramporium subscription agency.

Main also stated that many of the magazines are available to students at special rates. Among the most popular of the magazines that are available at special rates are Life, Time, and Newsweek. Main commented.

Students should inquire at The Ramporium for student rates to their favorite magazine, Main said He also stated that around Christmas time most of the magazines have special rates for everyone, but that students may take advantage of special rates on some of the leading magazines year round.

At the present time, Main stated, Life, Time, and Newsweek offer the most substantial savings for students, but other magazines also offer savings.

Main pointed out that The Ramporium also, has, for the use of students, a stack of magazines from which students are welcome to clip articles or any other needed material.

Available for students' use are a paper-cutter and a three-hole paper punch.

Club Cavalcade: Meetings, Affairs Prepare Pledges For Hell Week

By Patty Moran

FRATERNITIES and sororities are preparing their pledges for "Hell Week" through affairs, meetings and interrogations.

Theta Tau held its second affair, a Luau, on Monday, March 8, at the home of Alberta Cordini.

Entertainment was supplied by a four-piece combo led by Kent Lundgren and by Ilima Baker and her small Hawaiian group. Members of Beta Tau helped serve.

Saturday, March 13, was the date of Phi Beta Delta's first affair, which was held at the home of Ron Killon.

Alpha Sigma Delta held its second affair last Saturday night. Interrogation will be held tonight at the home of Ken Felldin.

Pledge instruction for pledges of Alpha Lambda Chi will be held this Sunday afternoon, April 4, at the home of Roberta Usher, the sorority president.

Italian American Club will have a meeting today at 1 p.m. in Building 2. All students are invited to attend the meeting and to join the club.

Tau Chi Sigma gave its second affair last Saturday night at Bob Lauenstein's home. Several members and guests went to Sorrento's in North Beach for coffee and pizza afterwards.

Tilden Park, Oakland was the locale of Beta Tau's second affair on Sunday, March 21.

The fraternity defeated Lambda Phi in a basketball game on Monday, March 22, in the men's gym

The group also had its third affair last Sunday at the Three Little Swiss restaurant.

The fraternity had a recent college hour meeting to discuss its plans for the Mardi Gras.

The group held its first Interrogation last Sunday, March 28.

Engineering Students Must Claim Drawings

Engineering 22 students who have drawings left in the engineering department in Building 11 should claim them immediately from instructors there as the department is preparing to move to Cloud Hall soon, instructor Glenn F. Hurd of the engineering department announced this week.

Mardi Gras Plans In Preparation

Preparations for the annual campus Mardi Gras entertainment on May 21 are well under way, Bill Boldenweck, AMS president here, announced last week.

Tentative plans are being made to present to the public three fifteen-minute shows in a three-hour period in the student lounge on Mardi Gras night.

Military band units and civic marching groups have received invitations to participate in the annual affair, Boldenweck said.

Petitions for King and Queen of the Mardi Gras, he pointed out, will be available soon, and all campus clubs, sororities and fraternities are urged to nominate candidates for competition. Deadline for the return of the petitions is tentatively set for May 5.

Petitions will be distributed by the Club Activities Board.

Navy Representatives Interviewing Students

Representatives from the Pensacola Naval Air Station will interview students interested in joining the Navy between 9:00 and 3:00 p.m today in a booth on the west campus in front of The Ramporium, according to Joseph A. Amori, placement director here.

Officers in charge are Lieutenant Commander Robert Vanderberg, flying ace of World War II, and LTJG N. L. Bausch, Naval Aviation Procurement Officer. Interested students may obtain information as to rules and requirements to enter the Naval Air Training program from these men, Amori said.

Financial Difficulties Force Alpha Gamma Sigma Dinner Postponement To April

Because of financial problems, an installation dinner on Tuesday, April 6, for members of Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society here, has been postponed until a date later in April, Don Jensen, faculty adviser of the organization, announced last week.

Talking the problem over with individual members of fraternities and sororities, Jensen found students enthusiastic toward his plan for having each fraternity and sorority on campus contribute the cost of one dinner. Some time is needed, Jensen added, to present his idea to the Inter-Fraternity Council.

Jensen hopes to include sponsors and student presidents of high school honor societies in the celebration to be held in the faculty dining room here.

Two hundred faculty members and students attended the AGS reception given recently in the student lounge.

Among the faculty represented at the tea were George Baffico, president of the Faculty Association; Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college; Jensen; Katherine Shorh, chairman of the student-faculty relations committee attending the reception; Christel Cranston, and Dorothy Mercer, honor society associates.

Representing the administration were Dean Mary Golding and Dean Edward Samlys. Representatives of the counselling staff included Alva McMillan and Mary Perry.

John French, Irene Mensing, Clement Skrabak and Douglas Soule were members of the student-faculty relations committee attending the reception

Faculty members invited had been, at some time or other, officially associated with the honor society, Jensen said.

Membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma totals 61 to date. New members are as follows: Josiah Beeman, Rose Coussens, Frank Denevi, Lloyd Donahue, Charles Gallagher, Richard Hall, Jesse Hever, Glen Johnson, Alice Kaz, Anton Klauer, Florence Louis, Kathleen Morgan, Donn Pace, Elizabeth Peterson, Sviatoslav Shaskolin, Marian Spicka, Beverly Swope, Theodor Thomsen and Priscilla Wong.

The 12 models chosen by the AWS board, are as follows: Frances Aranguena, Greta Dal, Mary Daley, Louis Ferrero, Barbara Fong, Marie Henry, Jan Hoffer, Barbara Masters, Ardath Perkins, Bev Swope, Karin Walker and Janet Weaver. The women will model clothes supplied by the Riviera Shop on Ocean Avenue.

Entertainment for the affair will be supplied by students Ilima Baker, with Hawaiian numbers, and Mag Bolanos, on the violin, accompanied by Pat Quick at the piano.

All women who belong to the Associated Women Students, Miss Sewall said, will receive invitations as also will all women faculty members.

Twenty high seniors and a sponsor from each public and parochial high school in San Francisco are also invited.

Commencement Slated June 18 At Riordan High

Commencement exercises, set for Friday, June 18, will be held at Riordan High School's auditorium, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, announced here last week.

The auditorium was selected for commencement, Browne said, when the commencement committee was unable to obtain the War Memorial Opera House, as was originally planned.

Graduation petitions have as yet not been totaled, Browne stated, and the number of graduates will not be known until the petitions are tallied by the Registrar's office.

Student speakers have not been selected, but they will be selected from lists submitted to the committee.

"It is anticipated," Browne said, "that each graduate will be allowed to invite three guests to the affair."

Caps and gowns will be furnished free to all graduates holding Associated Student cards. Those who do not have an AS card will be asked to pay a $4.00 rental fee, according to Browne.

Film Feature For Friday Cancelled

Because the college hour originally scheduled for Friday, April 2, has been changed to today, in accordance with Business Education Day, the films usually given at this time will not be shown, Madison Devlin, visual-aid instructor, said this week.

Movies will be shown during the following college hour, Friday, April 9, as usual. At this time, Devlin said, two films will be shown, entitled Introduction to Gaspe and Trappers in the Sun.

The first film deals with the Gaspe Peninsula, situated East of Quebec. A picturesque film, Introduction to Gaspe features a background of French-Canadian folk songs.

Trappers in the Sun is the story of the lobster fishermen in the Maritime Provinces of Canada.

Both films are from the Canadian consulate, and are equipped with sound and color.

These films will be shown in Room 136 of the Science Building during college hour, 10:40 a.m., and again at 12:20 p.m

Roles for the next drama production, The Curious Savage, to be presented on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, April 29, and 30, and May 1 in the Little Theatre here, have recently been cast, according to Michael Griffin, drama adviser.

Joyce Cody and Stan Miller will play leading parts. Other members of the cast are as follows: Barbara Campelio, Noreen Durnette, Duncan Lagoe, Lee Meriwether, Irene Morozoff, Ron Orsalini, Warren Smith, Bob Stewart, Loretta Warchot and Diana Williams.

Producer of the play will be Dean Cyr. Rich Barulich will handle the sets and Lafayette Jamerson will be in charge of lighting.

According to Griffin, admission will be free to those with Associated Student cards who apply at either the student bank in the Science Building or The Ramporium on the west campus for a ticket. Students without tickets with AS cards will be charged 25 cents at the door of the Little Theatre. Students with student cards from other schools will be admitted for 50 cents. General admission will be $1.

Typing Services Made Available To College

Typing services, beginning this week, have been made available to students at the college by the personnel placement service here.

Evident need for such a service was pointed out by Joseph A. Amori, director of placement.

Students who are registered at the placement service office, and who have been carefully screened and tested for their typing speed and accuracy, Amori said, will be hired to do the work.

Reduced rates will be charged, he added, and any student desiring typing to be done, can bring their material to the placement service office in Building 2, on the west campus.

Students who can type at the rate of 45-60 words per minute, and who are interested in part time work, are requested to register at the placement office as soon as possible.

Cloud Hall Dedication Plans Tentatively Completed As Official Ceremony Day Nears

Plans for the dedication ceremonies of Cloud Hall on Sunday, April 25, have been tentatively completed, Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, announced last week.

Open house from 1 to 2:30 p.m., the ceremonies from 2:30 to 4 p.m. in the new library and open house until 5 p.m. will be the order of the day, John J. Brady, dean of semi-professional courses and chairman of the dedication committee, announced.

Speakers for the ceremonies are as follows:

Dr. Monroe Deutsch, retired provost of the University of California; Dr. Archibald J. Cloud, president emeritus of the college, for whom the building was named; Dr. Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools; Dr. Conlan; Charles Foehn, president of the Board of Education; George Gavin, state chairman for Public Schools Week, and Milton Pflueger, Cloud Hall architect.

Invitations have been sent out to prominent citizens, Conlan added, and all faculty and students are expected to attend.

Guests of honor may park in the drive in front of the Science Building and in the circular drive in the rear. The west campus is to be used for parking for other visitors.

Guardsman Editor Dick Meister announced that a special issue of The Guardsman commemorating the dedication of Cloud Hall will be published Wednesday, April 21.

Mobile Unit Tours Campus; Students Given Free X-rays

A mobile unit of the San Francisco Tuberculosis Association will take free chest X-rays on campus students, faculty members and college personnel from Wednesday, April 21 until Wednesday, April 28, Louis A. Dunwell, case finding supervisor of the association, announced recently.

The unit will be stationed in front of the women's gymnasium Wednesday and Thursday, April 21 and 22, will move to the men's gymnasium for Friday and Monday, April 23 and 26, and then for the benefit of those students who are not taking physical education courses, will journey to the west campus where it will remain in front of the fountain for the last two days of the campaign, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 27 and 28 respectively.

These chest X-Rays will not only assure that one is free from T.B., but will also detect some types of lung cancer and heart disease prevalent in the body, Eli Glogow, health education supervisor of the association, said.

The last check made here by the association in May, 1953, found some five active cases of T.B. out of 1,200 daytime students X-rayed. A previous check in 1950 found 15 active cases out of 1,350 X-rayed.

Both Glogow and Dunwell urged cooperation and pointed out that the service is free and voluntary, takes only a minute or two of students' time, requires no undressing and is a preventive health measure

Veterans Eligible To File For April Checks

Korean veterans who have not yet filed their attendance forms for this month are now delinquent, but may receive delayed payment of subsistance by applying immediately at the veterans affairs office in Building 3, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare here, announced this week.

He also noted for the benefit of Korean veterans who have not as yet instituted training under Public Law No. 550, that any veteran discharged prior to August 20, 1952 must begin his studies before August 20, 1954.

Spring Fever Dance Slated Friday Night

Gamma Phi Ypsilon will present its traditional Spring Fever dance this Friday, April 9, in the college auditorium, Building 1, according to Walt Yakovleff, Interfraternity Council president.

Price of admission is $1.50 per couple, Yakovleff said. Dress is casual and tickets are on sale this week and can be purchased at the student bank in the Science Building or from any fraternity pledge.

Music will be provided by Dick Saltzman and his orchestra, Yakovleff commented.

The dance committee is composed of Jim Brownfield, president of Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Morrie Perotti, vice-president, in charge of the social committee; Warren Davidson, treasurer, in charge of ticket sales, and Bill Phillips, pledge-master, in charge of pledges helping with decorations.

We plan to transform the auditorium into a park with completely new ideas in decoration, Yakovleff declared. These innovations include unusual lighting effects, park benches, greenery and tables and chairs for refreshments.

In place of the usual stage location for the orchestra, Yakovleff pointed out, it will be placed in the center of the auditorium to simulate a band concert in the park.

During intermission, approximately 10:15 to 10:45 p.m., skits by the campus fraternities will be performed. They will be similar to variety and talent show sketches.

All campus fraternities are cooperating in the dance, Yakovleff explained, with Perotti in charge of coordinating the work of each club.

Everyone who attends the college and his date is invited to attend the festivities, Yakovleff said, and "we know that they'll enjoy themselves fully."

PUC Delays Action On Proposed Lease Of Corner To Drive-In

BULLETIN

Action on the proposed leasing of the corner at Ocean and Phelan Avenues, a part of the college campus, to private interests for the purpose of erecting a drive-in restaurant has been delayed until the meeting of the Public Utilities Commission at 5 p.m., Monday, April 26.

The commission met last Monday evening, April 5, with representatives of the college, the school board and the proposed owner, but no decision could be reached.

The controversy over the proposed drive-in restaurant at the corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues was brought to a near climax at a hearing of the Public Utilities Commission on Monday, March 29, in the commission's chambers in City Hall.

Dr. Herbert Clish, superintendent of public schools, and Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, vigorously opposed the measure. Backed by students and private parties, Dr. Clish and Dr. Conlan stated their views before the commission.

Before protests were made, the northwest corner of Ocean and Phelan was to be leased for $605 per month to a 19-cent hamburger drive-in restaurant.

Objections to the proposed lease were based on the "undesirable crowds of persons" that would frequent the restaurant.

Dr. Conlan pointed out that the site would be directly across the street from the soon-to-be-erected Student Union Building.

Associated Student President Joe Gabarino stated dramatically, "I just can't see how you can consider raffling off the future generations who will enroll at the college for the price of a few hamburgers."

Harold Alber, representing the proposed owner, retalinted by stating that the Public Utilities Commission had failed to light the corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues adequately, and, especially the college station for the protection of women students attending night classes. He added that the proposed establishment would be flood-lighted.

Edwin Frediani, attorney-at-law and college Alumni Association president, offered his services to Dr. Conlan in farthering opposition to the restaurant.

Cloud Hall Library Scene Of Afternoon Tea, Fashion Show

Spring Serenade, the Associated Women Students' tea and fashion show to be held tomorrow from 2:30 p.m. until 4:30 p.m. in Cloud Hall library here, is expected to have a turnout of 600 guests, according to Jan Sewall, association president.

Tea, punch and cookies will be served from 2:30 until 3 p.m. and the fashion show will begin at 3:15 p.m. Sorority members will act as hostesses, and pledges will serve.

The fashion show will be divided into two sections with entertainment provided by Ilima Baker and Mag Bolanos during the intermission.

Twelve models will wear clothes provided by The Riviera Shop on Ocean Avenue. Each model will appear twice in summer cottons, Dresses, pedal pushers, shorts, bathing suits, and a formal are among the selections to be modeled, Miss Sewall said.

Lois Mantel, association vice-president, and Miss Sewall will be the mistresses of ceremonies.

All women belonging to the Associated Women Students, women faculty members, and 20 high senior representatives and a sponsor from each public and parochial high school in San Francisco have been invited to the affair.

The library, in order to carry out the theme, Miss Sewall stated, will be decorated with flowers and live canaries.

Models for the affair include Frances Aranguena, Mary Daley, Lois Ferrero, Barbara Fong, Marie Henry, Barbara Masters, Lee Meriwether, Ardath Perkins, Bev Swope, Donna Thompson, Karin Walker and Janet Weaver.

Chairman of the committees are Ena Aguirre, set-up; Mary Walker, clean-up; Janice Hoffer, food and serving; Joan Anderson, decorations; Loretta Warchot, invitations; Marcia Herst, hostessing.

Mary Gohling, dean of women, is sponsor of the group.

Clubs Meet During College Hour Friday

Club meetings will be held during college hour this Friday in regularly designated rooms. The normal schedule will be resumed after last week's departure from regular routine when the college hour was switched from Friday to Wednesday because of the Education-Business Day.

Spring vacation will start next Wednesday, April 14, and extend through Easter Sunday, April 18. Classes will be resumed on April 19.

Because of the vacation, there will be no issue of The Guardsman next week. Publication will be resumed on April 21 with a special Cloud Hall dedication issue.

Campus Police Given Salary For Carnival Service

Campus Police force members will be paid $7.50 each for their services at the college's Mardi Gras carnival May 21, Associated Men Student President Bill Boldenweck announced while acting as chairman of Student Council on April 1, in the absence of Joe Garbarino, Associated Student President.

Money for the $750 salary is to come from a sum originally allotted to the AMS to provide for band music at the Mardi Gras, Boldenweck added, stating that the $100 intended to hire a band will be divided into salaries for 14 student patrolmen.

In an unprecedented appointment, Associated Student President Joe Garbarino, in an AS Council meeting here March 25, named Emily Hardy and Jane Zelinsky to serve as Co-election Commissioners and head the Election Committee for the Spring, 1954 semester.

Discussion in regard to the proposed location of a 19-cent hamburger drive-in on the northwest corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues continued in the council meeting March 30.

The council voted unanimously to appropriate $100 from the AS contingent fund to the Major Joseph Pomeroy Nourse Student Loan Fund, a fund originally established by the college Faculty Association in 1943 when the late Major Nourse retired as Superintendent of San Francisco Schools.

A non-commercial 22-minute color film, it deals with the nomadic Navajo's ingenious methods of producing jewelry and rugs, and of the silver, baskets, and pottery of the pueblo-dwelling Zunis.

College Group Should Be Heard In 18 Year Old Vote Proposal

SHOULD 18 year olds be allowed to vote?

Today's youth, of which college students are the thinking leaders, is the group most directly affected by such a proposal and should have a voice in deciding the matter one way or the other.

We honestly don't know what student opinion is concerning the question and neither do the community's voters, who, through their congressional representatives, may soon decide the issue.

The nation's president believes 18 year olds deserve the right of mandate and the proposition may come to a vote soon.

Proponents of giving the vote to 18 year olds say—"If a youngster at 18 is legally of age to risk his life for his country then he should also be allowed to help enact the very laws which require the endangerment."

Opponents of the proposal say—"Not many 18 year olds are mature-minded enough to realize the importance of government, of its laws, its officers and what is actually best for all citizens."

These are only two of the numerous pros and cons concerning the proposition; many other arguments for and against have been offered.

But what do youth's leaders, college students, think of the voting question?

The answer lies here at the college, and the best way to find that answer is by that "old faithful"—the poll.

Elsewhere on the page is a poll ballot for students to mark "I do think" or "I do not think" that "18 year olds should be allowed to vote" with space for reason and comment.

What's your opinion?

Margot Cohen Deserves Aid

THE GUARDSMAN wishes to go on record in support of Margot Cohen in her wish to remain in the United States.

Miss Cohen is one of the college's most respected students and a true "citizen" of our community.

The story of her life is an inspiration to all of us and should, in addition to her fine record here, prove Miss Cohen most assuredly deserving of the opportunity to become a permanent citizen of her adopted country.

We strongly urge all administrative, faculty, and student members of the college to aid our friend by petitioning the Congress of the United States in Miss Cohen's behalf.

(Petitions may be signed in the Associated Student office, The Guardsman office, The Ramporium or at the Silver Pole.)

Mt. Tamalpais Affords Hikers Health, Pleasure And Sun

By Harold Painter

HIKING is healthful to the mind and body, and pleasant. And the weekend hiker will find a wealth of trails in the Mt. Tamalpais area in a diversity of countryside changes from fresh alpine meadows to the Monterey type seacoast.

Most of the hills surrounding Mt. Tamalpais are heavily covered with California chaparral with an occasional outburst of Douglas fir and Sargeant cypress, and several footpaths skirt the ridges and plunge into heavily wooded valleys below.

Muir woods is the queen of the valleys, with a kingdom of ancient redwoods. Some of the trees reach three hundred feet; some are a thousand years older than the twentieth century and less likely to fall.

Their roots stand deep in moist soil fed by a small stream that briskly begins in the upper slope of the valley; the stream moves quietly through the quiet redwoods, into a meadow and sun, then joins the ocean several miles below.

How much more majestic is a redwood than a Grecian column; fluted, aspiring, vibrating sentient, and more ancient than the Parthenon.

Mt. Tamalpais once boasted having the crookedest railroad in the world, an eight and one half mile course that ran just below the south ridge of the mountain.

It ran along 280 turns, and the passengers could see as far west as Bolinas Lagoon, south to Suicide Rock on the way to Santa Cruz, and even when the day was hazy they could see the top of Mt. Diablo.

The railroad was abandoned early in the nineteen hundreds but the roadbed still remains and is now a footpath and an excellent vantage point from which to see the bay area in an architects layout.

A series of trails north of Tamalpais converge in a lake region back of San Anselmo; lakes Lagunitas and Alpine are the focal points of several trails and enrich the land with a wide variety of vegetation and animal life.

So for a sunny afternoon and wide billing of pastoral entertainment, try Mt. Tamalpais and the surrounding countryside: foot-weary and sore, you'll think much better of yourself and nature.

75 Students Hired For GM Motorama

Everybody got into the act during the big General Motors Motorama show last week, as 75 students from the college were hired to work as hostesses, uniformed guards and assistant show promoters.

Twelve beautiful and smart women students were hired from the college. The search to find these college beauties was led by Lee Meriwether, drama student, who appraised and screened the many eligibles.

Fraternity Presents Its Orchid Award

ORCHID AWARD WINNER, Alice G. Thornton, counter girl in college cafeteria, was honored for her friendliness by Beta Tau fraternity.—Photo by Bianco.

Beta Tau Honors Counter Worker For Friendliness

Friendliness paid off for Alice G. Thornton, assistant counter girl at the college's cafeteria, when she was presented with Beta Tau fraternity's first monthly Orchid Award today.

Members of the fraternity, appreciating her friendly disposition and especially her greetings of, "I like the looks of your baby blue eyes," and "Good morning, young man, My, you look nice this morning," voted unanimously in favor of her receiving the award.

Her friendliness, they and many other students here feel, is as warm as the coffee she serves, and the orchid is only a small token of their gratitude.

Members of the fraternity are not the only ones who speak in praise of Mrs. Thornton. According to Lawrence Wong, instructor-manager of the cafeteria, she is a very good worker and is liked by everyone on the cafeteria staff. She has one fault, though, he said. She loves to talk, but, then, what woman doesn't. She can certainly make a dull day a bright one, he agreed.

Mrs. Thornton, who has worked in the college's cafeteria for three years, was born in Atlanta, Georgia, where she attended high school and a year of college before heading West.

She loves a good joke, and watching boxing and wrestling matches and football games. Students may view her picture in the display case in the Science building.

Next month, the Beta Tau orchid award will be presented to another woman of the college's non-certificated (non-teaching) staffs, whom the members of the fraternity consider worthy of the award. Recipients are elected on merit of their personality and service rendered to the students and welfare of the college.

Any student or faculty member who would like to suggest a nominee may do so by informing a member of the fraternity.

Sign Of The Times? Three Salute As Instructor Orders Attention

By Shirley Murphy

LIVING proof of the militaristic age in which we live was the instructor who marched into the fountain last week and ordered "Attention." Three students saluted.

Testing

Newest decorative addition to the furniture in the fountain is on trial. A table, equipped with folding legs, is moved to a different section in the "cafeporium" daily to test its durability.

Shavings

Red and white striped pole in front of the Ramporium is not painted in that manner for the usual purpose of luring those in need of clipping. It's there to stimulate college spirit.

Ram Recruit

Sam, the Ram was noted in spirited conversation with some representatives of the Air Force recently. Are the boys in blue thinking of starting an auxiliary?

Students Unite

True scholastic attitude was demonstrated in the cafeteria one early morn recently. Six brawny students picked up a classmate who lingered over his morning stimulant and literally carried him to class.

What's In A Name

An invitation to the AWS fashion show and tea was sent to Gail Moss. The sports editor of The Guardsman, who is Gail Moss, is still debating whether he should attend the soiree.

Talent, Inc.

In one ten minute number of the Mardi Gras entertainment, five dancers, two singers, a five-man stage crew, two sound engineers, two prop men, three lighting men, two costume people will participate. At this rate registration will have to increase 25 per cent to take care of the manpower situation.

Spring Fever Is Unfair To Sexes

Spring, the season when according to popular legend "a young man's fancy lightly turns . . ."

This is unfair. Nobody ever bothers to ask what happens to a woman in spring. Does a woman's fancy turn or doesn't it? Or maybe it is turned all year long.

What happens when young ladies are still as cold as winter?

FOR THE BIRDS OF IT: Indiana (Pa.) State Teachers College has come up with a two-day vacation from classes, clubs and makeup work—just to give students time to read for their own pleasure.

The vacation — called "Reading Day"—has no strings attached.

Students were asked, but not required, to browse about before the holiday, and then to read whatever they liked just so long as it wasn't college or club work. College librarians reported student taste fell heavily toward fiction.

TOPSY-TURVY: At Agnes Scott College in Decatur, Ga., "Suppressed Desires Day" turned the campus upside down.

Students attended class, chapel and meals in shirts and jeans, and shouted in the library whenever they pleased. They greeted professors with "Bon jour, Pierre," or "Nice day, isn't it, Willie Joe," and answered instructors' classroom questions frankly. Sam, The Ram, Earns His Keep; Assists Teams And Trims Lawns

By Don Osborne

If there are any students on the campus who think Sam, the college's Merino ram mascot, isn't earning his keep they're all wrong.

Sam's work is keeping the lawns on campus all neatly trimmed. When one stops to consider all the lawns on campus, it turns out to be a pretty big job after all. This doesn't bother Sam. He keeps right on doing his best to keep the campus clean and the lawns neatly manicked down.

Another of Sam's jobs is helping out the caretakers and janitors. Most of the time this is carried on in a supervisory capacity, but sometimes the men get stuck and Sam generously offers his assistance.

On Saturday and Sunday, when the campus is comparatively deserted, Sam has the important job of keeping guard over all the college. He makes periodical tours of the campus, inspecting anything that seems to be unusual and challenges all strange visitors.

This might seem like an easy job, says Sam, "but it requires a lot of hoofing." It must be remembered that Sam has accepted the responsibility of guarding millions of dollars of equipment without so much as voicing a single "baa" of discontent.

Of course one of Sam's main jobs is to tour the campus daily, making sure that the college is running in an academic fashion and giving the athletic teams his able assistance. This in itself is enough to earn Sam's keep.

Taking all this into consideration, Sam more than earns his place on the campus. Little destructive habits that he has, such as trying to chew up his rival, Sammy, the Redwood Ram, can be easily overlooked if one weighs them with his constructive habits.

Ram Baseballers In Busy Week; Two Practice Contests, Big Seven Tilt With San Mateo Scheduled

Three games, one of them an important Big Seven Conference contest at San Mateo, are on deck this week for the Ram baseballers as they meet St. Ignatius High School at Big Rec tomorrow, journey to the Bulldogs' home field on Saturday and take on the Alameda Naval Air Station nine Monday at Alameda.

The Rams played San Mateo yesterday at Big Rec. Results were not available at press time.

San Mateo and the Rams both started the season poorly. The Bulldogs dropped a doubleheader to Sacramento 18-3 and 8-6 in eight innings in a game scheduled for seven frames. The college nine also dropped two in their conference openers, losing to Stockton College, 4-3 in ten innings and 6-2.

There were several bright spots in the twin defeats at the hands of the Mustangs. Nolan Wilson, rightfielder and lead-off batter, collected four hits in eight times at bat to up his season-to average to .333. In the past six games Wilson has pasted the ball for a .444 mark.

Another standout for the Rams was pitcher Stan Fetterman. Fetterman went the distance in the ten-inninger, striking out twelve, but he was betrayed by five Ram errors.

San Mateo's performance was just as misleading. The Bulldogs got off on the wrong foot, but they too can be tough and Saturday's battle of the current cellar-dwellers shapes up as a close contest. Game time is 2 p.m.

St. Ignatius, the Rams' opponent tomorrow, is one of the strongest high school teams in San Francisco. In the opening game of their league season they easily whipped perennially strong Sacred Heart and the Wildcats now appear on their way to the city title. The tilt is set for 3:30.

Monday's contest starts at 3 p.m.

Beta Phi's Post ASL Cage Victory

Don Baroni scored 37 points to give his Beta Phi Beta basketballers an 88-40 win over Alpha Sigma Delta last week and set his team up as a definite contender with two weeks of Associated Student League play out of the way.

In the first game for each squad, the Beta Phi's romped to the highest team score of the young season. Besides Baroni's individual record performance, Al Kingston bucketed 23 points and Joe Galante collected 17. Stan Lee garnered 26 for the losers.

In another important game, Beta Tau took a first quarter lead and held on to post a 52-38 win over Gamma Phi Ypsilon. Beta Phi Beta and Beta Tau meet tonight at the men's gymnasium here in the top game of the week. The other game this week finds Lambda Phi meeting Alpha Sigma Delta, also tonight. This game starts at 7 p.m., with the Beta Phi Beta-Beta Tau contest to follow it.

League standings are as follows:

Team	W	L
Beta Tau	2	0
Beta Phi Beta	1	0
Gamma Phi Ypsilon	1	1
Tau Chi Sigma	0	1
Lambda Phi	0	1
Alpha Sigma Delta	0	1
Alpha Kappa Rho	0	0

New Baseball Park Being Built; Ready For Use By 1955

The large barren field near the men's gymnasium here is expected to develop into two hardball diamonds and two softball diamonds by April, 1955.

A new baseball field is being built with $800,000 received by the city from the sale of Father Crowley playground to allow room for a free-way. The baseball field is being built to compensate for the loss of the playground.

The finished baseball field will be replete with concrete bleachers and a large backstop. If things come off as planned, the Ingleside police station will be abandoned and will be converted into a temporary dressing room within a few years.

Whether or not the field will be finished within a year depends upon the weather. Grass seeds have yet to be planted, although the concrete barriers and fences are being erected.

Despite the fact that the diamond is being built near the campus, it will not be exclusively for the use of the college. The diamond will be run by the city recreation department, and other schools will be allowed to use it, although concessions will be made to the college for the use of the field for games and practice.

Linksmen Defeat Monterey, 12-3

With three of the five golfers shooting 74's, the City College team swept over Monterey Peninsula College in a practice match, 12 to 3, last week.

Previous to this match, the lowest score had been a 77, which was established in the recent Santa Rosa match, however, Gene George, Doug Hierdohrn, and Don Watkins all turned in 74's to pace the Rams.

"I still can't believe those scores," Ram Golf Coach Ralph Hillsman said.

On March 29, the Rams met USF in a practice match at Sharp Park, but played only eight holes before they were rained out. At the end of the first eight, the Rams were trailing, 3 to 2. The first, third and fourth USF men were leading as opposed to City College's number two and five men.

Next league match scheduled is with Sacramento and will be held in the capital city.

Little is known of Sacramento's strength, but if the Rams post three 74's again, they stand a good chance for victory.

RAMBLINGS

By Gail Allan Moss

ADOPTION of the new free throw rule by the basketball coaches' convention and the National Collegiate Athletic Association rules committee recently seems to be generally regarded as a sound move and there has been little of the furor which followed the inception of the one-and-one ruling that has been in effect for the past two years.

Basically, the new rule is simply a reverse of the old one. Under the one-and-one system, a player received a second charity shot if he missed his first one. Now, under the new ruling, a second shot will be awarded only if the first is made. If the first is missed, the ball remains in play.

Ralph Hillsman, basketball coach here, is definitely for the rule and he seems to be in the majority. "The main thing is, of course, the fact that it places a premium on good shooting, rather than poor," is the way Hillsman puts it and he seems to be voicing the opinion of most coaches all over the country.

All of those who are for it and even those few who oppose it agree that it is worth a try. It certainly will be encouraging to see the good shooters getting the break instead of the set-tler-armed players who score only with freak floor shots and can't hit a free throw to save their life.

The new rule also brings up the subject of what last year's Ram team would have done with the bonus shot. The college's cagers were well-drilled on the free throw line, a Hillsman-coached-team trademark, and with the extra shot bonus the Rams would have been a higher-scoring team and a good example of a situation where class would be an aid rather than a detriment.

While on the subject of basketball and Hillsman, we're reminded that the Ram head man turned out to be the prophet of the year. After the Modesto Invitational Tournament in January, Hillsman described the balance between the Big Seven teams by predicting that the conference champion would lose three games. Modesto, the champion, finished the league season with a nine won-three lost record

Malone Stars But Trackmen Lose To Powerful Modestans; Rams Meet Panthers Friday

Modesto, one of the strongest track teams in the Big Seven, easily whipped a greatly improved Ram crew, 90½-36 in a triangular meet last Saturday at Edwards Field in Berkeley.

University of California's hosting freshman team also competed, but the Bears were no match for the Pirates or the Rams. California took only one first place and wound up with 24½ points.

Modesto won the first four events and after that there was no doubt who would come out on top. The Pirates took nine of fourteen first places in all and tied for top honors in the high jump.

Despite the lopsided score, the Ram performances were greatly improved over those of the Santa Rosa meet and against most squads the college would have made a fight of it. Modesto is definitely the number one contender for the Big Seven title.

Coach Roy Burkhead unveiled the highly-touted Don Malone for the first time and the Texas flash captured the 120 yard low hurdles and took second in the 100 yarder and the broad jump. His individual performance was matched only by Modesto's Chuck McGuiness, who won both sprints.

The only other winners for the Rams were Al Carlson, veteran 880 man, who breezed to a 1:59.0 victory in that event, and the mile relay team of Jack Connell, Charley Smock, Carlson and Bob Cross. This quartet, one of the league's best, romped to a 3:27.9 win.

The broad jump was the outstanding event of the day. Modesto's Ray Goodwin took first place with a leap of 23' 6¾" and Malone jumped 23' 5½", a personal best. The winning distance was the best of any of the college or university meets held in the State over the week-end.

City College will meet Sacramento and Stockton in a triangular Big Seven meet next Friday afternoon at Sacramento. Stockton, the stronger of the two, boasts Don Ludlow, the league's outstanding distance runner, who was a triple winner in the Mustangs' meet against West Contra Costa. Meet time is 3 p.m. Summary of the Modesto-Cal Frosh-City College meet is as follows:

Mile—Wyatt (M); Voss (SF); Gleason (M); Soares (C) 4:45.8.

College Netmen Lose To Strong Modesto Squad

City College's netmen, coached by Roy Diederichsen, invaded Modesto on Friday, March 26, for the most important match of the tennis season, but lost, 7-0.

Modesto's tennis team, the perennial powerhouse of the Big Seven Conference, was headed by Mexican Davis Cupper, Pancho Contreras, who defeated Bill Wright in the feature singles match, 6-0, 6-1. Contreras took the net at every available opportunity, volleying and smashing flawlessly.

In the number two match, Alan Matsumoto of City College was beaten by Yves Lemaitre, 6-2, 6-4, and in the closest match of the day, Modesto's George Murfitt defeated Hall Kopp, in an exhausting baseline battle, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3. Don Stonsaas defeated City College's Marvin Gordon, 6-2, 6-2, and Ray Samson of Modesto beat Bob Chrisman, 6-3, 6-3.

Modesto's superior net play was the deciding factor, especially in the doubles, where southpaw Don McKee and Lemaitre defeated Wright and Kopp. In the second doubles match, Matsumoto and Marvin Gordon lost to Stonsaas and Bob Ray in straight sets.

A league match with Stockton has been postponed twice and is expected to be played early in the second week of April. Santa Rosa and Sacramento will be played on April 9 and April 30, respectively. Sacramento had a weak team last year, but is rumored to have a strong squad this season.

On May 7, the Big Seven Conference championships will be held at Golden Gate Park.

WAA Captures Playday Events

Teams representing the college at a recent Women's Athletic Association volleyball playday here with Mission High School won three games and lost one.

Women representing the college were as follows: Joan Anderson, Monya Audres, Irma Jean Armstrong, Janice Brown, Conchita Bandee, Marion Crandell, Ann Curtis, Dorcas Delaney, Patsy Gray, Ruby Gaston, Phyllis Ingram, Betty Jacobs, Zoraida Lopez, Birdie Mays, Janet White and Lucinda Guen.

Balboa and Polytechnic High Schools were guests of the WAA for volleyball on April 5, with results not available at press time.

Miss Anderson, president of the association, announced that plans for the inter-collegiate badminton and tennis sportsday to be held here on Saturday, April 24, are well underway. Colleges invited are Santa Rosa, Napa, Marin, East Contra Costa, West Contra Costa, San Mateo, Hartnell and Vallejo.

Klemmer Speaker At Next Block Meeting

Grover Klemmer, college football coach, will be guest speaker at the next Block SF meeting on Friday, April 9 in Building 10D, Bill Fischer, block society sponsor, announced last week.

University of California Football Highlights of 1953 will be the subject of Klemmer's speech, he said. Movies of the college's championship team of 1951 vs. Stockton will follow Klemmer's discussion.

Coach Burkhead Keeps Winning Tradition Alive

ROY BURKHEAD, head track coach here, who has had consistent winners at the college.

With a string of winning teams to his credit, Roy Burkhead is just keeping up a City College tradition of topnotch athletic squads.

The tall, husky Burkhead first came to the college in 1948 and since that time he has produced nothing but winners.

His first charges were the junior varsity track and football squads. In 1951, with Coach Grover Klemmer on a special leave, Burkhead took over the varsity footballers and led them to the Big Seven Conference championship. Since then, with Klemmer back at the helm, Burkhead has confined his talents to coaching the linemen.

Burkhead's chief job here is as head track coach, a post he took over in 1952 after assisting Klemmer. In his first season with the thinclads, the graying mentor produced a team that finished third in the State, and again last year Burkhead's tracksters finished up among the leaders in the State meet and captured second place in the Big Seven Conference.

Burkhead received his college training at University of San Francisco, where he lettered in football, track and baseball. After leaving the Hilltop in 1937 with a Bachelor of Arts degree, he entered the Navy and was an athletic officer at San Diego Naval Training Center.

The coach went from the Navy to Turlock Union High School in 1947 and took the reins of the football, basketball and track teams. In his single year at Turlock, he took county championships in all three sports, and his football and basketball clubs won Northwestern division titles.

The next year he came to City College and continued his winning ways and the Rams are just as happy to have him on their side.

Curious Savage Opens April 29 On Campus

With The Curious Savage as their second drama production of the semester, the college players will present three performances of the comedy in the Little Theatre, Room 28, Science Building at 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 29, Friday, April 30, and Saturday, May 1, Michael Griffin, drama adviser, announced recently.

Admission to the play is free with Associated Student cards to students who apply for a ticket at either the bank in the Science Building or at The Ramporium, Griffin explained, adding that those without tickets but with AS cards will be admitted for 25 cents. Students with student cards from other institutions will be charged 50 cents at the door. General admission is $1.

Cast of characters and respective players for The Curious Savage are Mrs. Ethel Savage, Joyce Cody; Dr. Emmett, Stan Miller; Samuel, Herbert Freeman; Miss Wilhelmina, Irene Morozoff; Titus, Ron Orsalini; Hannibal, Warren Smith; Florence, Gene Lutt; Fairy May, Barbara Campello; Jeffrey, Duncan Lagoe; Mrs. Paddy, Loretta Warchot; Lily Belle, Diana Williams; Mary Jane, Noreen Durette.

The comedy revolves around Mrs. Savage, a wealthy and elderly woman, plagued by greedy stepchildren who commit her to a sanitorium. There Mrs. Savage meets numerous misfits whom she both enjoys and helps. According to Griffin, her adventures provide three acts of hilarious enertainment.

The drama department tentatively plans to present Our Hearts Were Young and Gay as its June production, Griffin stated.

The advanced acting group at the college plans to produce a one-act play as part of the second midterm. These advanced actors will select, cut, cast, produce and direct the play, Griffin said.

Another one-act play, Sparkin', will be directed by Lee Meriwether and presented at a college rally in the west campus auditorium later in the semester.

IRC To Present Variety Show Of Nations April 23

Students of the college will get a glimpse of cultures in foreign countries during college hour Friday, April 23, when the International Club presents a variety show in the auditorium here, according to Joseph Jacobsen, group adviser.

The International Club, under the leadership of Magtangelo Bolanes, will present a program consisting of the native dances of many foreign countries. Students will be attired in authentic costumes.

Students from 52 different countries all over the world comprise the membership of the International Club. Purpose of the club is to promote a better understanding of the philosophies of various countries.

IRC will hold a meeting this Friday during college hour in 5D.

French-Canadian Films Will Be Shown Friday

During its meetings, films on different countries are shown, with accompanying lectures by a club member coming from the country dealt with in the film. There have been films and lectures on Denmark, Kenya and India. The meetings are open to all interested students.

Two films will be shown during college hour this Friday, April 9, at 10:40 a.m. and again at 12:20 p.m., in Room 136 of the college's Science Building, according to Madison Devlin, audio-visual aid instructor.

Equipped with both sound and color the films entitled, Trappers in the Sun, and Introduction to Gaspe', are both from the Canadian Consulate here, Devlin said.

Trappers in the Sun illustrates lobster fishermen in the Maritime Provinces of Canada.

Introduction to Gaspe', a movie of the Gaspe' Peninsula East of Quebec, features a background of French-Canadian folk songs.

Finance Committee Finishes Plans For College Budget, Ready To Take New Duties

The Associated Student Finance Committee, headed by Wray Jacobs, finished planning the AS budget for the spring semester last week and is ready for any future duties.

Main duty of the Finance Committee, Jacobs said, is to plan the AS budget and to allot the prescribed amount of money to each activity. One hour meetings are held once or twice a week in Building 2A to discuss any current financial problems which may arise.

Problem of settling the spring budget was difficult, he said, for the budgets requested by the 35 organizations totalled $23,000. The AS fund had only $16,000, which was gotten largely from the sale of AS cards and from profits of The Ramporium.

Each budget submitted was carefully studied, all unnecessary items were omitted, and the budgets were discussed with representatives from each organization. The recommended budgets were voted on by the Student Council.

Any organization protesting its allotment of money may present its case to Council and a final decision will be rendered, since Council must approve the budget before it can be enacted, Jacobs said.

In order to support the AS budget, he continued, each member of an organization requesting an allotment of money must have an AS card. After the individual budget has been approved by Council, money alloted is credited to the organization's account at a bank.

To withdraw money, a club must present an itemized account which matches that which the bank has received from the Finance Committee. Fraternities are run on a private basis, receiving no AS monies.

Chairman of the Finance Committee is appointed by the AS President and approved by a vote of Council. The chairman, in turn, selects the members of his committee, and the Finance Committee is formed. Students assisting Jacobs on the committee are Walt Yakovleff, Alberta Cordini, Sonia Seebohm, Ken Felden, Millie Stoll, Jan Sewall, Bob Moore and Dick Arey.

Forum Magazine Deadline April 12

Deadline for submission of material for Forum Magazine is Monday, April 12, Editor Harold Painter announced this week.

Published each spring by the Associated Students and the Forum staff, the magazine features writings of students of the college exclusively.

Manuscripts of not more than 1500 words may be submitted on any subject, serious or humorous. Poetry in any form is acceptable. Contributions have been few so far, Painter stated, but the number is expected to increase heavily as the deadline approaches.

"The Forum is a fine opportunity for budding authors to showcase their talents," Painter said, "and we expect some fine material. What surprises me, considering the number of Korean War veterans on campus, is that we have not received any material relating to the Korean action."

AMS Mardi Gras Parade Awaits Police Approval

Applications for permission to hold the annual Mardi Gras parade, sponsored by the Associated Men Students of the college, have been forwarded to the San Francisco Police Department, Bill Boldenweck, AMS president, announced last week.

Military band units and civic marching groups have received invitations to participate in the affair, Boldenweck declared.

After permission to hold the parade and the route has been planned, Boldenweck explained, the number of floats sponsored by merchants of this area will be determined.

The parade will begin the traditional Mardi Gras festivities, Boldenweck said. In charge of the parade are Dick Arey and Lance Thurston.

Meanwhile, Deane Cyr, entertainment chairman for Mardi Gras, issued a call for men and women volunteers to help with the technical part of the production of The Curious Savage, and productions slated to run during the evening of the Mardi Gras. Cyr said that help is needed in lighting, sound and prop work.

According to Cyr, the production will show off the talents of technicians whom, he said, he knows must be in hiding around the campus. He also said that the production of the Mardi Gras will be difficult without the proper assistance to technicians.

Openings for parts or jobs for technicians will be available to any student willing to give some time and effort to the production, Cyr said. Cyr commented that it would be desirous that students not already connected or committed to a booth or activity volunteer.

Mardi Gras Royalty Petitions Available

Petitions for the Mardi Gras King and Queen are available at Club Activities Board meetings on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 p.m. in Building 2, Eliat Morrison, coronation committee head, said yesterday.

Any members of the Associated Students may run, Morrison said. Contestants, he pointed out, are usually sponsored by a club, sorority or fraternity on campus.

The King and Queen will ride in the Mardi Gras procession's lead car down Ocean Avenue. Afterwards, Morrison said, they will reign over the celebration.

Students From H&R Division Plan Hotel Tour

To gain first-hand information concerning hotel management, eight students from the hotel and restaurant division here will tour several Southern California hotels and restaurants the week of April 20 through 27, Hilda Watson, hotel division director, announced recently.

During the seven day tour the group will visit and spend one night at numerous hotels along the coast, she added. Among the hotels to be toured are the Casa Munras Hotel in Carmel, Carillo Hotel in Santa Barbara, Knickerbocker in Hollywood, Statler and Biltmore in Los Angeles, Desert Inn in Palm Springs and The California in Fresno.

Hotel division instructors who will make the journey are Wendell Muntz and Mrs. Watson. Students from the department selected to make the tour are as follows: Julian Amador, Harland Hall, Edward Harmovitch and Floyd Romero.

Students To Visit Photo Department

Members of the photography department here will stage a demonstration Friday, April 23, for a group of visiting students from Portola Junior High School, according to Charles Lamp, college photography instructor.

The demonstration will consist of reconstruction in a color print by the subtractive process. The process is a final step in color photography, Lamp said.

The prints are broken down to their basic hue components, red, blue, and green. Then their original color components are reconstructed with cyan, yellow and magenta, the complimentary dyes of the basic hues. By this process, a white piece of paper is converted to a color print within 15 minutes.

Fire, Brimstone Harass Pledges In "Hell Week" Here

By Patty Moran

IT IS the season of Lent throughout the world, but on carppus it's also "Hell Week," the traditional period of fraternity and sorority pledge initiation, which will run through this Friday.

Recent social affairs have helped prepare prospective members for their "test by fire" this week.

Delta Psi gave its second affair on Wednesday, March 24, at the Alexandria Hall. Entertainment was provided by members of the sorority as well as by members of Alpha Sigma Delta, Gamma Phi Ypsilon and Lambda Phi.

Business meeting for the purpose of planning "Hell Week" was held by members of Tau Chi Sigma on Wednesday, March 31.

The fraternity met jointly with Lambda Chi last night. Pledges of both organizations provided entertainment at the meeting.

Zeta Chi held its pledge orientation last Sunday, April 4, at Margie Hicks' home. A joint meeting with members of Lambda Phi was held last night at Warren Lubich's home.

Phi Beta Rho had a meeting with its pledges on Thursday, April 1, at the home of Dorothy Trezise.

Joint meeting with Beta Phi Beta is scheduled for tonight.

Canterbury Club had a Corporate Communion on Friday morning, April 2, at St. Francis Church.

The group had a meeting last night at the church hall, located at Ocean Avenue and San Fernando Way. The guest speaker for the event was Father Penell, St. Francis' pastor.

Members of Alpha Lambda Chi's Mardi Gras float committee had a meeting on Wednesday, March 31.

Deadline for all club news is Wednesday at 12 noon. Information should be submitted to The Guardsman office in Building 4D before that time.

Application For Scholarships Due By Next Monday

Students at the college who wish to apply for scholarships this semester, must have letters of application on file in the deans' offices by Monday, April 12, Mary Golding, dean of women here, announced recently.

Men must send their applications to Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, Building 2, and women must send theirs to Dean Golding, Building 2, she added.

Awards will be given by the Cloud Foundation, in honor of Dr. A. J. Cloud, President Emeritus of the college, and by the graduating class of 1953, Dean Golding stated.

Cloud Hall Ceremonies Mark Public Schools Week Start; Dr. Monroe Deutsch To Speak

By Bev Swope

Cloud Hall, newly-erected seat of campus learning, formally opens its doors to the public on Sunday, April 25, at official dedication ceremonies in the reserve reading room, upper level of the new building with prominent state and local citizens as guest speakers.

Sunday's dedication ceremonies in Cloud Hall will officially usher in Public Schools Week, which runs from April 25 through May 1.

Schedule for the day's activities, according to John J. Brady, dean of semi-professional courses here and chairman of the dedication committee, includes open house from 1 to 2:30 p.m., official dedication ceremonies from 2:30 to 4 p.m. in the library reading room, and open house again until 5:30 p.m.

Master of ceremonies for the affair will be George Gavin, state chairman for Public Schools Week. Dr. Archibald J. Cloud, president emeritus of the college, for whom the building is named, will be called upon to speak in the official ceremonies.

Principal speaker at the dedication proceedings will be Dr. Monroe Deutsch, retired provost of the University of California at Berkeley, who will pay tribute to Dr. Cloud and review the college's history.

Other outstanding civic leaders who will speak are as follows: Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college; Charles Foehn, president of the San Francisco Board of Education; Milton Pflenger, local architect who planned and designed Cloud Hall, and Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools. The topic of Dr. Clish's speech will be Public Schools Week.

More than 1300 invitations have been sent to distinguished California citizens, including Governor Goodwin Knight, Attorney General Patrick Brown, Mayor Elmer Robinson of San Francisco and numerous state senators and local assemblymen, supervisors and judges.

Cloud Hall will be dedicated to furthering higher education and all students and instructors are urged to attend the ceremonies on Sunday afternoon, Dean Brady commented last week.

Mary Golding, dean of women, and Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here, will be present with 100 student guides, who will conduct visitors through classrooms and laboratories of the new building.

Guests of honor will be allowed to park their cars in the drive in front of the Science Building and in the circular drive to the rear of the new structure. Other visitors will use west campus facilities. The campus police department will serve visitors at the festivities.

Musical selections by the City College A Cappella Choir, orchestra and concert band will provide entertainment.

A list of the songs planned by the choir for the event is as follows: Cherubim Song, Love is Grief, Coral Smith, Christmas Songs, Sacred Anthems, Vistas of Song, Lullaby of Christmas, Praise the Lord Eternal, Battle Hymn of the Republic, On the Isle of May, What Is This Thing Called Love?, and the opening chorus from Cavalleria-Rusticana.

Selections to be played by the band and orchestra include: To A Wild Rose, St. Anthony's Chorale, Festival Finale, and Telemann Concerto for Four Clarinets.

In conjunction with the dedication ceremonies on Sunday, a Dedication Ball will be presented by the Associated Students of the college.

Dedication Invitation

Officially invited to attend the Sunday dedication ceremonies of Cloud Hall, the newest campus building, are all students and faculty members.

Invitations have been sent out to honored guests, speakers, and city officials. Interested citizens, friends of the college and faculty are urged to be present at the ceremonies.

Dedication Ball Set For Friday At Palace Hotel

Highlighting the preparations for the dedication ceremonies on Sunday afternoon will be the Dedication Ball presented this Friday night, April 23, in the Palace Hotel Ballroom, Alberta Cordini, Associated Student vice-president, announced yesterday.

Archibald J. Cloud, president emeritus, Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools, and Commissioners of the San Francisco Board of Education will be honored guests at the dance, Miss Cordini said. Faculty members, as well as all students are invited, she added.

Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, with music by Howard Fredrickson and his orchestra. Stags for men and cocktail dresses for women will be appropriate attire for the event, Miss Cordini declared.

Students with Associated Student cards and members of the Alumni Association will gain free admission to the dance. Cost to non-members of the AS or alumni has been set at $2.50 per couple.

Yelling members of the AS social committee assisting Miss Cordini with dance preparations are Bill Boldenweck, Associated Men Student president; Paul Ortiz, Freshman class president; Jan Sewall, Associated Women Student president; and Jim Vickers, Sophomore class president.

Other students on the committee are Ena Aguirre, Joe Bavaresco, Dottie Cutler, John Lo Coco, Marcia Norstrom, and Walt Yakovleff.

The AS-sponsored dance was previously scheduled for Friday, March 26, but Miss Cordini and the members of her committee decided to postpone it until this month when the dance could be tied in with dedication festivities.

Miss Cordini expressed the belief that the off-campus dance will provide an evening of fun for all attending. She hopes that as many students as possible attend the affair and make it a great success in keeping with the success of the college's building program and the dedication Sunday.

Guides Are Needed

Opportunities to act as guides at dedication are still open, and those wishing to volunteer should sign up in Dean Mary Golding's office, Building 2. Guides will greet visitors and answer questions concerning the college and its students.

President's Message

Early Campus Scattered City-Wide; New Buildings Solve The Problem

WHEN City College of San Francisco was founded in 1935 no buildings were constructed to house the college and it was necessary to find shelter wherever available. As a result, the first classes were held in the University of California Extension Building at 540 Powell Street and at Galileo High School at Bay Street and Van Ness Avenue. As the enrollment increased it was necessary to find additional facilities until finally classes were held in more than 20 locations.

Although the students and faculty were required to travel great distances and suffer many hard hips during the early days of the college, they took these adverse conditions in stride and laid the foundation for the spirit of loyalty, unselfishness and firmness of purpose that exists to such a high degree among faculty and students at our college today.

The first great milestone in the history of the college was reached on April 25, 1937, when representatives of the San Francisco Public Schools and leading citizens of the community gathered at Balboa Park to break ground for the first permanent buildings of the college; the present Science Building and the two gymnasiums. These buildings were occupied at the beginning of the fall semester, 1940 and were officially dedicated with appropriate ceremonies on November 10, 1940.

From 1940 until 1945 these new buildings were quite adequate. However, with the influx of veterans following World War II the college was forced to use the temporary buildings located on the west campus, which had been abandoned by the Navy. Thus, for a major portion of the time since its founding in 1935, City College has been required to use temporary buildings.

With the dedication of Cloud Hall, the new library and classroom building, on April 25, City College will pass another important milestone. These new facilities, along with the first unit of the Student Union Building which is now under construction, will provide adquate space for our entire operation and will enable us to abandon the temporary buildings on the west campus.

PRESIDENT LOUIS G. CONLAN

According to present trends, however, within the next few years the college enrollment will again exceed the capacity of our permanent facilities. It is my fondest hope that prior to such time the remaining buildings in the master plan for City College will have been completed so that it will not be necessary to resort to temporary facilities again.

At a time like this as we dedicate Cloud Hall, the faculty and students should be most grateful to the citizens of San Francisco for providing the beautiful buildings on this campus, which are among the finest in the land. The most appropriate way to demonstrate our appreciation to those responsible for providing these facilities is for students and faculty alike to utilize them for sound educational purposes to the fullest extent; to strive at all times to make our college more worthy of the glorious city of San Francisco for which it is named.

Louis G. Conlan, President
City College of San Francisco

Editorial: Dedication Of Cloud Hall Another Step In Long Range College 'Plan Of Vision'

SOON we dedicate a building, signifying the physical growth and prominence of City College of San Francisco.

Dedication of Cloud Hall is a certain sign of our growing physical stature and importance, but it is also a concrete symbol of the educational stature of the college.

Just what went into the building of Cloud Hall, what led up to its dedication 19 years after that day in 1935 when San Francisco Junior College was established?

Work, untiring work, is the answer. It took the combined efforts of thousands of men and women, students, faculty, and administrators who had a dream, a vision, of making City College of San Francisco the finest educational institution in the nation.

Leader in the fulfillment of that vision is the man for whom the new building is named, Archibald J. Cloud, who patiently and unceasingly guided the early "pioneers" and their successors toward the goal of realization of a vision.

When Dr. Cloud retired as president in 1949 after 14 years of unequalled service to the college and its students he left the college leadership in the best of hands. His successor, Dr. Louis G. Conlan, has ably carried on the philosophy of Dr. Cloud and his "pioneers."

The administrators and faculty who have worked with the presidents were, are, and always will be working for the "vision" for the student and their college.

All these men and women are forever working to increase college facilities in order to give the greatest number of students a finer opportunity to study.

It is through their efforts and through those of the San Francisco Superintendent of Public Schools, Herbert C. Clish, and the city Board of Education that we are expanding in both a physical and a mental direction. Cloud Hall is only the latest step in a long range plan of "vision."

And you can be certain that the national scholastic ranking of the college, although already high, is only the latest "step" in this plan of educational "vision."

So as we dedicate Cloud Hall let us realize what it signifies and strive to be worthy of the vastness of work which the community, the college and its leaders have done for us.

To the college's honored guests at the dedication we say, "welcome," and speaking on behalf of the college as a whole we wish to thank you for your presence here.

We know the visitors will see just how wonderfully the "vision" of Dr. Cloud and his aides has helped the youth of the college in obtaining the best possible educational benefits.

President Emeritus Cloud

DR. ARCHIBALD J. CLOUD, president emeritus of the college, in whose honor Cloud Hall is named.

A. J. Cloud, College's Friend, Is A Force Behind Its Success

By Dick Meister, Editor

Sunday a campus building will be dedicated in the name of a friend of City College of San Francisco, Dr. A. J. Cloud.

Dr. Cloud has been with the college ever, since there was been such an institution, formerly as its President, now as its President Emeritus. This friend, a true educator, has been a driving force behind the college's growth since its very beginning.

He began his teaching career at Lowell High School here in the city where he became head of the English Department. In 1910, Dr. Cloud was made a deputy superintendent of San Francisco Schools and later Chief Deputy, posts he retained until 1935.

It was that year Dr. Cloud was chosen as president of the newly established San Francisco Junior College.

In the beginning, the president administered over classes which were conducted in 23 locations throughout the city, but largely through his leadership the campus became more unified as the years passed.

The leadership, friendliness and recognized brilliance of A. J. Cloud did immeasurable good in putting the college "on the map" where it is today, and immeasurable good in helping all students.

His work with semi-professional courses, especially in the hotel and restaurant field, have been noted by the general public as of the greatest consequence.

It's typical of the man that in thinking of the college he is always thinking of its future; he is deeply appreciative of having the new hall named in his honor, but is now thinking of the college's next building, the Student Union.

In reference to this new edifice, which will include the hotel and restaurant department, Dr. Cloud said, "This newest building will meet all educational requirements, enabling the staff, headed by Mrs. Hilda Watson, to develop the needs of the hotel industry through its students."

He is greatly satisfied over the hotel department's progress and over the success met by its graduates. Dr. Cloud commented that the college is greatly indebted to the many hotel and restaurant men who have aided the department.

The hotel and restaurant program was the first of its type and has served as a model for similar courses throughout the educational field.

The President Emeritus also expressed gratification to the city's Board of Education and Superintendent of Schools, Herbert C. Clish, for their far-sightedness in helping the college building program.

When Dr. Cloud retired in 1949 as president he left behind him a tradition of untiring work for the college and its students which has been carried on by his successor, Dr. Louis G. Conlan.

Thinking of all his years of educational service, Dr. Cloud considers that his highest points of gratification were received from his association with the college.

When Dr. Cloud was first appointed as president educators throughout the state hailed the action as "being the

Architect's Dream

Modern Design Is Keynote Of New Building

By Diana Phillips

Ultra-modern design, both inside and out, is the keynote of Cloud Hall, new building on campus.

From architecture and landscaping to the smallest details of lighting and color scheme, the building was designed to present the maximum of beauty and utility.

Constructed on a hill, Cloud Hall's unusual shape is apparent at first glance. The front is four cornered and faces the men's and women's gymnasiums. Two side wings sweep back toward the Science Building and open onto the court between the two buildings.

Landscaping is now underway in the court and in the area surrounding Cloud Hall. The court, with its benches and warmed by the afternoon sun, provides a good location for lunch or relaxation between classes.

Running along the entire length of the front of the building is a stone walkway which is also furnished with benches.

Curving pathways have been paved through the site of the front lawn, and lead to the two main doors. The doors themselves, uniquely constructed are large and made of glass.

The interior presents a color scheme intended to be both stimulating to study and easy on the eyes. Soft, restful greys, greens, yellows and tans are used throughout.

In keeping with the modern conception of the importance of texture in an aesthetic sense, smoothly painted walls are artfully blended with rough stone.

Adding to the futuristic impression of the building is the low hanging ceiling, in a fog-form design, and simple, circular supporting poles in the third floor library.

Dramatic lighting makes use of natural daylight as much as possible, with windows running the length of the outside walls and the ultra-modern skylights in the reference reading room of the library.

Also occupying the third floor, along with the library are 34 faculty and administrative offices.

The first two floors house 57 soundproof classrooms which will soon be the location of the law enforcement and business departments on the first level and the architecture, drafting, engineering and audio-visual aids departments on the second floor.

Cloud Hall was designed by architect Milton Pflueger and constructed by Cahill Brothers of San Francisco.

Relaxed West Campus Atmosphere Forfeits To Dignified Cloud Hall

By Shirley Murphy

EASTWARD HO! When the facilities of the west campus are vacated and the pilgrimage in the direction of Cloud Hall begins, many changes in routine and attitude will occur.

Both faculty and students will be affected by the transition.

Chief external alteration will be the modernization of architecture — from the semi-primitive construction of the barracks to the atomic-age design of the new building.

As students and faculty members who make up the college community leave the ancient for the contemporary, they will be forfeiting the relaxed atmosphere of the west campus for the more dignified sector beyond.

The library will be the major benefactor. As a result of the house cleaning which will precede the change of residence, many lost books, long since demanded by the library and vehemently asserted to have been returned, will be restored to their respective nooks in the stacks. Accessibility of the new library should result in an ever widening circle of readers.

Centralization is the chief feature of the new location. No longer will students be forced to simulate athletes in training for the Olympics as they trek to their daily classes. The 126,000 foot pounds of energy used each day by the dean of men in his routine attendance checking duties, will be cut down considerably when he is stationed across the hall from the registrar's office.

Counsellors are anticipating more space, soundproofed rooms, and spacious antechambers in which the students may remain comfortably while waiting for advice. The open door policy currently adhered to by the counselling staff will be altered in the interests of privacy and quiet, when the group's headquarters is shifted to the Science Building.

Many objects of sentimental value only, furniture (weather-beaten chairs) and plants must be discarded, but that is the price of progress and the eastward movement is but one step in the program of progress for City College of San Francisco.

17 Years Ago

AS THIS SUNDAY, April 25, marks a most significant occasion in the annals of the college, so did on April 25 afternoon 17 years ago. On that some date in 1937, Archibold J. Cloud, then college president, watched as Angelo J. Rossi, former mayor of San Francisco, broke ground on the college's new Balboa Park site, signifying the beginning of construction of the Science Building.

Double Enrollment Seen By 1956; Campus Expands To Meet Demand

By Harold Palnter

A FUTURE need for expanded campus facilities was recently expressed by Dr. Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator of Educational Management at the college. If by 1965 present economic and war trends have maintained themselves, the college administration may anticipate having double the present enrollment; facilities should by then have expanded to meet the need.

By the next bond issue, plans for a new fine arts-class room building should have been presented and building should commence within the two years following.

The Fine Arts Building and Auditorium combined in a single unit are designated for the space now occupied by Hurley Village, Veteran housing would be discontinued and the units removed.

The auditorium would provide space for 2000 to 2500 students. Local high schools would be encouraged to use it as a place of graduation. Dr. Anderson believes, thereby affording graduating high school students a first hand acquaintance with the college.

Extended parking space would be necessary, and the gymnasiums would need to be expanded. Tennis courts and enlargement of sports fields would have to be developed.

Most applauded development might be a swimming pool to be constructed by the City Department of Recreation. Divided use of the pool would be given the college, Balboa High School, and the general public. Location of the pool or pools will be the site of the old Junior Museum, recently burned down.

The horticultural building would have to be expanded with increased enrollment, and should the enrollment of the college warrant, a new administration building would need be constructed south of the present Science Building.

So it can be seen that the college is ever expanding and developing, providing for its many students

RAMBLINGS — Winning Tradition Keeps Rams On Top

By Gail Allan Mass

ATHLETICS are an integral part of the tradition of any college and City College has built a tradition of champion teams and champion players. The story of Ram teams, coaches and athletes has been punctuated with honors since the first chapter was written in 1935.

It was in that year that the San Francisco Junior College gridders played their first intercollegiate football game. With the late Russ Sweet at the helm the footballers made an auspicious start by whipping Salinas Junior College, 12-0, but finished the season with only two wins as against six losses and a tie. The outstanding event of that year was the beginning of the still-hot rivalry with Los Angeles City College. Los Angeles won, 7-0, at the Rams' home field, Seals Stadium.

The next year, in 1936, Sweet's Rams (now so named officially) entered the Northern California Junior College Conference and in 1937 the college had its first taste of football honors by sharing the NCJCC title with Sacramento.

Lee Eisan became head coach in 1939 and when he handed the reins to Grover Klemmer in 1947 his teams had distinguished themselves despite the lack of manpower during the years of World War II

ALL-AMERICANS

Klemmer wasted no time in producing champions. In 1948, his second year as head man, the young coach produced the finest football team in the college's history. Sparked by fullback Ollie Matson and center Burl Toler, the Rams romped over all opposition, winning eleven straight, including a 20-7 victory over Chaffey Junior College in the Gold Dust Bowl.

When Matson and Toler were named to the two-year college All-American, the Rams became the only two-year college team ever to have two so honored in the same year.

Roy Burkhead relieved Klemmer in 1951 and in his one season as head coach won the Big Seven championship Klemmer returned to the job in 1952.

"UNKNOWNS" WIN TITLE

The first basketball squad of the college provided one of the biggest upsets in Big Seven (NCJCC) history. The "Unknowns," under Coach Louis "Dutch" Conlan, (now college president), and sparked by team captain and all-conference guard Ralph Hillsman, captured the league title.

Hillsman returned to his alma mater as head cage coach in 1946, last in a line of coaches which included Conlan, Tom Wilson, Sweet, Eisan and Wilson again. From 1946 through the past 1953-54 season the slightly built mentor's teams have never finished lower than second in the Big Seven and his squads of 1948-'50 were among the greatest in league history.

BURL TOLER, All-American center who helped the Ram gridders to an undefeated season and a 20-7 win over Chaffey at the Gold Dust Bowl in 1948.

The championship team of 1948-'49, with Bob Matheny, Dud Truelson and Don Payne named to the first all-conference team and Kevin Duggan selected for the second squad, breezed through a tough schedule and finished the year with 30 wins and 2 losses. But it was only a preview of what was to come.

CAGERS IN NATIONALS

The next season found Duggan returning to spark his club, to the regional championship and a berth in the National Tournament at Hutchinson, Kansas. The Rams went into the second round of the tourney and Duggan was rewarded with All-American honors.

Ram track, like football, has had only four coaches and also like football and all the others, it has had more than its share of winning teams. Under Coaches Sweet, Jim Jensen, Klemmer and Burkhead the thinclads have prospered and only the abandonment of the sport for a year is a blight on the line record. The one year of non-participation was 1945, when the war limited the talent available.

Baseball has had nearly the same success here. In a city known for the fine quality and quantity of baseballers that it turns out the college has more than held its own. With Coaches Eisan, Jack Gaddy, Jack Brady and Bill Fischer turning out players like Hal Flinn of the San Francisco Seals and dozens of others, the Rams' athletic superiority has been upheld on the diamond.

BOXERS MISS TITLE

Other sports and other coaches have contributed their share of fine players and championship teams to the Ram records. Soccer, golf, tennis, boxing, swimming, fencing, crew, wrestling — all have added chapters to the story. Roy Diederichsen's boxers, who came within three points of the national title, losing to Pasadena City College in the 1949 National Junior College Boxing Tournament, are prime examples. Joe Hare, another of Diederichsen's charges, joined Ram immortals when he was named goalie on the 1952 All-American soccer team.

Only lack of space keeps this brief history from becoming a whole book, complete with heroes, thrills and happy endings. The Rams, more of them than can be counted, have well upheld the college's winning tradition on the athletic field.

Gymnasiums Mark Fourteenth Year On Campus

Fourteen years have passed since that memorable November 10, 1940 afternoon when City College of San Francisco athletes finally found a home in which to show their talents. For it was on that date that the present men's gymnasium here came into being as the result of a bond proposition passed by the voters of San Francisco in 1937.

On the night of February 15, 1941, the first athletic contest took place in the new building four months after its inaugural as the Ram basketball team dropped a decision to Modesto.

Before that day the basketball team alternated with the local high schools in using Kezar Pavilion as the site of all home games.

Previously the boxing and tennis teams had literally to move all over the city to find suitable localities for practice. The fisticuffers worked out in the Galileo High School gymnasium while the netmen traveled to the Golden Gate Park courts to try their skills.

The new building satisfied the needs of the basketball, boxing, and tennis squads for a home base. It also gave momentum to the intramural program of the college.

Other sports are not quite as fortunate as the ones previously mentioned in that they lack proper facilities even today, but future building plans should aid them.

Music festivals, rallies, dances are a few of the activities which have taken place in the gymnasium before the west campus auditorium was available.

The traditional Sophi-Prof basketball game is also played here, while local high schools use the men's gymnasium for some of their cage contests.

With the opening of Cloud Hall on campus, students no longer will have to worry about making that celebrated trek from the gymnasiums to the west campus.

The women's gymnasium was dedicated on the same date as the men's building. It provides a location for sports suitable to women students such as archery, basketball, volleyball and badminton. Situated to the left of the men's gymnasium, it also serves for co-educational dancing.

Activity Calendar

Leading off the fourth AS activities week of April is an AMS meeting on Wednesday, April 21, in Building 2B, at 2 p.m.

On Thursday, April 22, there are two conferences in Building 2A with the Student Council meeting at noon, and CAB at 1 p.m.

On that Friday, April 23, is a college hour rally in Building 1 at 10:30 a.m.

Following the rally is a baseball game at West Contra Costa and a track meet at San Mateo. Both will be held at 3 p.m.

Friday night will feature an Associated Student dedication ball at the Palace Hotel, beginning at 9 o'clock.

Nineteenth Sports Year Finds Ram Teams In Good Standing

As the college finishes out its nineteenth year of athletic competition, the Ram teams are again, for the most part, well up among the leader in the Big Seven Conference.

Coach Roy Burkhead's track team has had the misfortune to come up against two of the league's stronger teams in the first two meets and the Rams were beaten in both meets. The schedule for the rest of the year makes it still possible for the thinclads to match their second place finish of last year.

Baseball, too, got off on the wrong foot this season on campus. The Rams, a cellar team last year, lost their first three conference games, but their record in practice contests indicates that Coach Bill Fischer may have the team to be a real contender.

The college's tennis team has fared a little better in the early season. Their only conference loss has been to nationally-ranked Modesto and Coach Roy Diederichsen counts on finishing well up in the Big Seven race.

Golf, another spring sport in which the college participates, has also enjoyed a successful year so far. The Rams trounced Santa Rosa in their first conference match and Coach Ralph Hillsman's golfers have done well enough in outside matches to promise at least the second place position that they held last year.

Boxing attempted a comeback this year after a three-year absence from the college, but lack of varsity fighters caused a change in the program.

In Fall sports the college did well. Grover Klemmer's footballers put on a late season rally, including three straight upset victories, to finish in second place in the Big Seven, and Diederichsen's soccer team also finished among the leaders. Hillsman's basketball team lost the conference title in the last game of the season and had to settle for a second place tie.

Coaching Staff Sparks Athletics

Sports on campus are the pride of the college as spirit and good sportsmanship run hand in hand. Going together also is a good athletic program and outstanding coaching staffs. The college is fortunate in having both.

Heading these team "ramrods" is Jack Gaddy, head of the athletic department here.

His six-man team includes Ralph Hillsman, a former athlete of the college who has made a name for himself as coach in Big Seven Conference basketball and golf. Bill Fischer, one of the veteran coaches here has led the Ram baseball team through many a season with noted success. He is also sponsor of the Block SF Society.

The football season features the combined cunning of coaches Alex Schwartz and head man Grover Klemmer, former world's record holder in track.

Roy Burkhead is the college's hard-working track coach, and Roy Diederichsen coaches tennis, soccer and boxing.

Gaddy's staff has sparked the athletic program here with their hard work and belief in promoting good clean sports.

Matheny, Truelson and Don Payne were named to the first string All-Conference team and Duggan was selected for second team honors. Duggan returned the next year to spark the Rams to the regional title and a spot in the National Tournament at Hutchinson, Kansas, and was named to the All-American team that season.

Brady Named Chairman Of Dedication

College Dean of Semi-Professional Courses, John J. Brady, is official head of the committee for Cloud Hall dedication ceremonies.

Brady, formerly Ram baseball coach and assistant dean in charge of student activities, is familiar with all phases of the college through his varied positions here. His specific duties as Dedication Day chairman involve heading and coordinating activities of all campus groups participating in the ceremonies.

Committee jobs of sending invitations to the off-campus public, arranging for speakers and planning decoration are being accomplished with the aid of many college organizations and departments, Brady noted.

Among departments participating in the event are advertising art, business, floriculture, graphic arts, journalism, law enforcement and music. Other student organizations helping at the ceremonies are headed by the Associated Students of the college.

DEAN JOHN J. BRADY

"This program," Brady said, "will mark the opening of Public Schools Week. The dedication and open house ceremonies were slated for April 25 to tie in with the Schools Week.

"This is a 'great occasion," Brady added, "and we've waited a long time for this important addition to our campus. If we have the cooperation of all student and faculty members, we can make the affair as memorable as it should be."

Students' Bond With College Is Unbreakable

Down through the years since the founding of the college in 1935, the Associated Students have kept a bond between the institution and its students that has never been broken.

On September 4, 1935 a handful of students of the newly formed San Francisco Junior College met in the University of California Extension Building at 540 Powell Street to consider plans for a constitution of the Associated Students.

Following the adoption of the original constitution of A.S.S.F.J.C. on April 15, 1936, there were many changes until a new constitution was written and adopted by the college AS in Spring 1946.

The new constitution abolished the original system of Executive Council and formed the present system of a Student Council, which handles the legislative side of the organization, and the Presidents Cabinet which performs judicial duties of the association.

In 1935 the first Associated Student elections were held. With two-thirds of the AS membership voting Bennett McGuire was elected the first president of the Associated Students.

Party politics in the association were first noticed in 1947 when the Student League as well as the Fraternity party was organized. The first of these elections saw the powerful Fraternity holding the majority of AS offices.

Throughout its history the AS has had able student leaders from McGuire to the Spring 1954 president, Joe Garbarino. Faculty advisers have helped immeasurably in making a success of the organization which has been hailed as exemplary in two-year college student government by many civic leaders. The present faculty adviser, Dean Louis Batmale, is a guide and inspiration to his charges who fondly call him, "Coach."

Dedication Of Cloud Hall Will Be Milestone In History Of College

By Deane Wylie

Almost 19 years have passed since the first ceremonies establishing the college were held in August of 1935 in San Francisco's War Memorial Opera House; the dedication of Cloud Hall this Sunday will be another milestone in a history that once saw students attending classes in 23 locations about the city.

Started without permanent buildings or campus, the college offered classes prior to 1940 at the University of California Extension Building on Powell Street in downtown San Francisco and at Galileo High School on Van Ness Avenue. Several science classes were held at Mission High School, and a small study hall and part of the college library were located in a P. G. & E. building.

Enrollment steadily increased and it was realized that a permanent location had to be selected for San Francisco Junior College, as it was then called, so that students struggling to attend classes at widespread spots could be housed on a single campus.

SITE CHOSEN

Possible sites for the new college were suggested and debated in the fall of the first year of the college's existence, and from a dozen proposed locations that included acreage in the Sunset, Marina, and Golden Gate Heights districts, the City Board of Education finally settled upon the 38 acres of Balboa Park that are now the east campus.

On April 23, 1937—exactly 17 years ago next Sunday — ground breaking ceremonies were held on "Hill 29," as the land was later designated by the San Francisco News, and students and faculty watched as the late Angelo J. Rossi, then mayor of San Francisco, turn the first shovelful of earth to signify start of construction on the new campus.

Rapidly rising from land where the county jail had once stood, the Science Building and the two gymnasiums were completed in June of 1940. In November of that year dedication ceremonies were held for the new buildings, and the college officially had its first permanent home.

CLOUD LED PLANNING

In those early years, it was through the leadership of Archibald J. Cloud, first president of the college, that dreams of a permanent campus were realized. Appointed president after serving as Chief Deputy Superintendent of San Francisco Schools, Dr. Cloud was given the task of unifying a student group numbering close to 1500 and meeting in no single location.

Until 1941, the college, still housed in one building, was forced to limit enrollment to 3000 students, although there were more than 1000 additional applications. After Pearl Harbor, the enrollment dropped and nearly one-third of the faculty joined the armed forces.

In 1945, the college acquired facilities that had been used to house women who were training for service in the WAVES, and the 19 buildings west of Phelan Avenue became the west campus area.

This acquisition provided not only classroom space, but living quarters for returning veterans, who comprised a substantial portion of the enrollment. The problem of providing space for a student body that had grown almost overnight from 3500 to nearly 6200 students was solved when the additional units were put to use.

WEST CAMPUS ADIEU

With the opening of Cloud Hall and relocation of classes this year, the west campus will revert back for the most part to the City Public Utilities Commission, from whom the land is presently being leased. PUC plans call for a reservoir to be constructed on the location.

In an effort to raise the college to its rightful place of merit beside the other colleges and universities of the bay area, the San Francisco Board of Education renamed the college on February 12, 1948.

Through the efforts of Dr. Cloud, the faculty and students and upon the recommendation of Superintendent of School Herbert C. Clish, the board changed the official title of the college from San Francisco Junior College to City College of San Francisco.

To make way for growth of the college, construction of Cloud Hall was begun in June, 1952. The new structure, containing 129,000 square feet of floor space, will house a library, faculty offices and classrooms.

PROGRAM CONTINUES

Already out of the blueprint stage and waiting construction is the new Student Lounge, which will house the hotel and restaurant division classes and student activities offices. Located south of the Science Building on the east campus, ground breaking ceremonies were held last April 9.

In June, 1949, Dr. Cloud retired, and as his successor the Board of Education appointed Louis G. Conlan as the college's second president.

President Conlan had been co-ordinator of Educational Management at the college from September 1940 until he left the college in Spring 1943, to serve in the Navy, and at the close of the war he was appointed principal of Mission High School.

Before being appointed to the college presidency he served as Co-ordinator of Secondary School Education in San Francisco.

COLLEGE RANKS HIGH

In the nearly two decades that have passed since that first meeting in the War Memorial Opera House, City College of San Francisco has risen to a position equaled by few two-year colleges in the country.

Recently rated first in the state and eleventh nationally in scholastic listings, the college, with new opportunities offered by the Cloud Hall facilities, seems sure to retain its high educational standards.

Student Leader

JOE GARBARINO

It is always a great honor to be elected Associated Student president at City College of San Francisco. At this particular time it is even more of an honor to be able to represent the present Associated Students at this memorable occasion—the dedication of Cloud Hall.

Those who have gone before us as well as those of us who are here, and the thousands who will attend the college in the future will always cherish the memories and appreciate the leadership of Dr. Cloud.

We, as students of City College of San Francisco, dedicate ourselves to the support of this institution for we well know that "The Truth Shall Make You Free" and as Dr. Cloud has said "Education is not a destination, it is a journey—always we are enroute."

Browne Recalls Beginning Of The College In 1935

(Editor's Note: Dr. Browne has been with City College of San Francisco since its inception and as thousands of graduates throughout the world can testify, he has always been "one of the student's best friends."

Following is a brief resume of his thoughts concerning the institution of which he has so long been a part, as told to Guardsman staff writer Bill Boidenweck.)

"Nineteen years is a long time," said Edwin C. Browne, college dean of men, "but it seems like only yesterday that Dr. Cloud and I made our whirlwind tour of every Junior College in the state, gathering information and advice in preparation for the opening of San Francisco's adventure in higher education, San Francisco Junior College.

"The need for a junior college had been felt for a long time, and our hopes were finally being realized. Nearly a thousand students from San Francisco were daily crossing into San Mateo to attend the junior college there, and more than $100,000 yearly was being paid to the San Mateo school district by San Francisco for their education. Opening of a junior college here saved the city that amount and also allowed us to begin receiving a like amount from the state.

"Our first classes were held in the University of California Extension Building on Powell Street, and at Galileo High School.

"Sometimes, when I hear students complain about the walk from the gymnasium to the west campus, I wonder how they would feel about the trip from Bush and Powell to Bay and Van Ness.

"Fortunately, we were able to move, after only a few years, into our own campus, the Science Building here at Ocean and Phelan Avenues. The building was completed and occupied in 1940, and was almost outgrown when the advent of World War II cut attendance considerably.

"Now that we are about to move into Cloud Hall, another milestone in the history of City College is being passed. As I have watched the college grow, and seen her students go into the stream of life, I feel proud to have been a part of its history."

best move possible to insure success of the new institution."

Soundness of this statement has been shown throughout the college's history, for the success that it enjoys today can be traced right to the work done under the leadership of "a friend of City College of San Francisco, a true educator"—Dr. A. J. Cloud, president emeritus.

The Future...Student Union Building

Civic Leaders Break Ground

Wielding a 3 foot stainless steel spoon, a gift of the Dohrmann Hotel Supply Co., Albert Pick, president, American Hotel Association and Louis G. Conlan, president of the college broke ground on April 9 for the new Student Union and hotel and restaurant training facility here.

Pictured at left with students of the hotel division are guests at the ceremony (L. to R.), Dr. A. J. Cloud, president emeritus of the college; John P. Gifford, Area Property Coordinator, Federal Security Agency and first head of the hotel program here; Pick; Dr. Conlan; Karl Weber, operator, Hotel Whitcomb; Dan E. London, managing director, St. Francis Hotel; and Paul Handlery, president, Northern California Hotel Association.

Work is now in progress on the $700,000 building which is expected to be completed and ready for use within a year. When complete it will provide facilities for training of 160 students of the Hotel and Restaurant Department as well as the student bank, Ramporium, student government offices and complete food service for the college.

Cloud Hall Dedication Ceremonies Mark Official Opening Of Building

DR. A. J. CLOUD

Dr. Cloud Receives Long Ovation As Speakers Pay Tribute To College

By Gail Allan Moss

With a large gathering of guests including some of the most prominent men in the field of education present, Cloud Hall, the campus building named for President Emeritus Archibald J. Cloud, was dedicated in a two-hour ceremony last Sunday, April 25, in the spacious library of the new structure.

Featured speaker was Dr. Monroe E. Deutsch, Provost Emeritus of the University of California and a lifelong friend of Dr. Cloud. Dr. Deutsch spoke on the important role that the two year college plays throughout the country and especially in California. He went on to name some of the many contributions that "Archie" Cloud had made to the college and education in general, and he briefly sketched Dr. Cloud's eventful life.

Dr. Cloud, the guest of honor, received a long standing ovation when introduced. He disclaimed much of the credit given him by the other speakers, saying that most of it belonged to the faculty of the college. He expressed his appreciation to all who had helped build the college.

CLOUD PORTRAIT

Dr. Cloud's speech was followed by the unveiling of a huge portrait of him, presented to the college by Dr. Nicholas Fernando on behalf of the Associated Students.

Joe Garbarino, Associated Student president and a friend of Dr. Fernando, and Alberta Cordini, AS vice-president, unveiled the work, which will hang on the wall of the new library.

Conlan, presiding over the ceremony, opened the proceedings by accepting the national colors from Joseph Baer of the West of Twin Peaks Post of the American Legion. This was followed by the invocation, by Reverend Alexander Fleming, president of the San Francisco Council of Churches. George Gavin, state chairman for Public Schools Week, then delivered the welcome address.

CLISIUS ADDRESS

Following Gavin's talk was a speech by Dr. Herbert C. Clish, San Francisco Superintendent of Public Schools. Dr. Clish spoke on "Public Education Looks Ahead," stressing the need for more facilities and instructors for the coming generation of students.

The college's A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Richard Vine, then sang several selections, followed by Dr. Deutsch's speech.

BUILDING PRESENTED

Milton Pflueger, the architect who designed Cloud Hall, then presented the building to Charles Foehn, president of the San Francisco Board of Education, who in turn presented it to Dr. Clish and Dr. Conlan. Dr. Cloud's remarks and the benediction, spoken by Reverend Edward L. Casey, Chaplain of the college's Newman Club, closed out the ceremony.

Open house, with exhibits from all departments of the college on display, was held in the Science Building and Cloud Hall preceding and following the ceremony.

Band Sponsors Contest Prior To Dance On Friday

One Night Stand, this semester's Band Association dance will be held Friday, April 30, in the college auditorium, from 9 p.m. until 12 midnight, according to Bob Nordstrom, spokesman for the dance publicity committee.

Admission price is 50 cents each for Associated Student members and $1 general admission, Nordstrom stated.

Dress is sport, he added.

Music will be provided by the college dance band, which has 18 pieces, Nordstrom said. Vocalist for the evening is Kitty Frierson.

Another feature of the dance is three door prizes consisting of a portable radio, a $5 money order and an album of records.

A contest to pick the name of the band will be run all this week. Ballot boxes have been placed around campus and ballot are being given out to receive suggestions for the name, Nordstrom said. Suggestions may be either serious or novel. Deadline is 3 p.m., Friday, April 30.

Ballot boxes will be located in the following places:

Center hallway, the snackbar and outside the library in the Science Building, men's and women's gymnasiums, cafeteria, auditorium and the west campus fountain.

The winner of the contest will receive a $25 government bond and must be present at the dance in order to win.

Dance chairman for the affair is George Stack. The publicity committee includes Ray Tankersley, chairman; Nordstrom, Wilton Wong, Henry Boyce, Conchita Bondoc and Bill Sinclair.

Divided Opinion Shown On Voting For 18 Year Olds

According to returns of the recent Guardsman 18-year-old vote poll, the opinion of students here is evenly divided.

The main reason given for allowing 18-year-olds to vote was "that if 18-year-olds are old enough to fight they are old enough to vote."

"If the government can take an 18-year-old into combat, then the least it can do is let the 18-year-old vote for his commander-in-chief," wrote one student.

Immaturity was the reason most often given against lowering the voting age.

"The typical 18-year-olds of today are happy-go-lucky and are interested only in legislation which concerns them most. They have no interest for other important legislation. What would happen then?", said another ballot.

Most of the other reasons given were along the same lines, but with variations:

"Most people are either mature enough to vote at 18 or they never will be."

"Eighteen-year-olds are too prone to accept any political propaganda as basis for voting."

"Age is not a criterion to judge the maturity and responsibility of the individual voter, so what difference does it make?"

Collegiate Press Ranks Guardsman All-American For Twentieth Time

For the twentieth time in twenty-five semesters of Associated Collegiate Press membership, The Guardsman has received the top national ranking, All-American, in the two year college newspaper field. The award was given for the Fall 1953 semester volume and was the first All-American honor given the college paper since Spring 1951.

Notification of the rating was received here last week from ACP headquarters at the University of Minnesota where a group of judges, professional newsmen, went over each issue of college papers entered in competition from throughout the nation.

These judges rated publications according to a strict scoring system which covered every conceivable phase of a college newspaper as to coverage, style and treatment for each field: policy, news, feature, sports, editorial, column, printing, makeup, typography which were judged separately as either poor, weak, fair, good, very good, excellent, or superior in comparison with all papers.

The scores for each of these sections were added and from the overall total, publications were rated as All-American, First Class, Second Class, Third Class, or Fourth Class.

Of all the two year college weekly newspapers scored, six received All-American rating, the number one award.

Members of The Guardsman staff for the All-American volume were as follows: Dick Meister, editor-in-chief; Shirley Murphy, managing editor; Patty Moran, assistant managing editor; Al Palacio, sports editor; Mohi ud-Dean and Tony Campilongo, editorial assistants; Gail Allan Moss, news editor; Joan Anderson, Earl Erickson, Yvonne Feibelman, Humberto Fischnaler, Natalie Fleisher, Pete Germenis, Marlene Hoffman, William Lockey, Barbara Masters, Sylvia Morse, John Murray, Don Osborne, Harold Painter, Diana Phillips, Dolores Stoffers, Bev Swope, Al Vanoni, reporters; Larry Tsagalakis, chief photographer; Frank Denevi and George Saba, photographers.

Little Theater Group Presents Curious Savage This Weekend

Three performances of The Curious Savage, a comedy by John Patrick, will be staged by the college players beginning tomorrow evening at 8:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre, Room 28, Science Building, Michael Griffin, drama coach here, announced last week.

On the following evenings, Friday, April 30, and Saturday, May 1, the comedy will be presented at the same curtain time, Griffin added.

Associated Student members who apply for tickets at either the student bank in the Science Building or at The Ramporium on the west campus, will be admitted to the affair without charge. For those without tickets but who are AS members, admission is 25 cents at the door.

General admission is $1, Griffin added. Also, students with student cards from other colleges and high schools will be charged 50 cents admission at the door of the Little Theatre.

Leading roles in the production will be played by Joyce Cady as Mrs. Ethel Savage and Stan Miller as Dr. Emmett.

Other members of the cast and their respective roles are as follows: Samuel, Herbert Freeman; Miss Willmhina, Irene Morozoff; Titus, Ron Orsalini; Hannibal, Warren Smith; Florence, Gene Litt; Fairy May, Barbara Campello; Jeffrey, Duncan Logee; Mrs. Paddy, Loretta Warchol; Lily Belle, Diana Williams; Mary Jane, Noreen Durette.

In the play a wealthy and eccentric old woman, Mrs. Savage, is committed to a sanitarium by her greedy stepchildren. The plot unfolds hilariously as Mrs. Savage meets and befriends numerous misfits. Her triumph over avarice and petty jealousies, according to Griffin, will provide an evening of riotious entertainment.

"The last performance of the comedy will close Public Schools Week."

Double College Hour Scheduled Friday

A double college hour has been programmed this Friday so that students here may tour Cloud Hall, Louis Batmale, dean of student activities at the college, announced last week.

Guides from last Sunday's dedication ceremonies will be on hand to show students around the new building and can be contacted there, he added.

The schedule is as follows:

8 o'clock classes—8:10 to 8:50.
9 o'clock classes—9:00 to 9:40.
10 o'clock classes—9:50 to 10:30.
College Hour—10:40 to 12:10—omitting 11 o'clock classes.
12 o'clock classes—12:10 to 1, followed by regular schedule.

Semi-Annual IFC Convention Today; Nominations Open

In order to nominate candidates for coming Associated Student elections, the Inter-Fraternity Council will hold its semi-annual political convention at 3 p.m. today in the student lounge in Building 2. Walt Yakovleff, IFC president, announced last week.

The convention will be jointly presided over by Yakovleff and Felicia Zeiger, president of the Inter-Sorority Council.

Representatives from all campus sororities and fraternities will attend. Three of the delegates from each organization will have voting privileges, Yakovleff added.

Election commissioners, Emily Hardy and Jane Zelinsky, will also attend the convention, Yakovleff stated. Invited to observe the affair, Bob Moore, president of the United Student Association, and his delegates will be present.

During the convention candidates will be nominated by delegates, Yakovleff commented. Then after the nominees state their qualifications, the delegates will vote. No limit has been set for the number of candidates who may run for office.

Nominations will be made for the offices of Associated Student President, AS Vice-President, Associated Women Student President, Associated Men Student President, the two class presidents, and the 14 council seats, Yakovleff added.

Pre-Registration Appointments Booked Until May

Students who have not made appointments for pre-registration counseling should do so as soon as possible, according to Alva McMillan, counsellor here.

Because students here have promptly arranged for pre-registration counseling, most counsellors' appointment times have been booked well into May, McMillan added.

Appointments may be made in the counselling office in Building 3, he added.

Students who have not made their appointments should do so as soon as possible, McMillan said, or they will not be able to confer with their counsellors until late in the semester. Appointments may be made in the counselling office in Building 3, he added.

Counsellors are now in the process of programing new students for next semester, McMillan stated. Senior goals classes in city San Francisco public high schools have been visited.

Success Is For The Graduate Who Applies College Training

THERE is always talk around any college campus which runs along the general lines of "I'm attending college so I can be sure of a high paying job when I graduate. My degree will make certain of that; employers always give the 'big money' to college graduates."

Or in other words, "I'll trade my degree for a high salary."

It's almost certain that anyone who approaches an employer with that idea will get, instead of "big money," none at all, in fact, no job at all.

A college degree and the education for which it stands are not themselves assurances of success in life, financial or otherwise. Future success depends on how the graduate applies the study and knowledge which he has received in earning a "sheepskin."

The world is full of "intellectual bums" who may have a string of degrees but who can't apply the vast knowledge floating around in their heads.

Everyone must agree that the best, and actually the only, approach to an employer is one which might be phrased, "Mr. Employer, I've had college training and believe the study I've done in earning my degree has sufficiently prepared me to be a working part of your organization."

The college graduate has only the right to think he is worth a high salary if he can prove such worth to the employer — prove the worth, not merely tell him. The worker in any field, degree or not, must first prove himself if he wants that "big money."

Behind all these lines of thought is the basic philosophy of any college — "We teach our students to THINK."

At City College of San Francisco there is an ideal educational situation; students are taught not only to think but, because of a broad, modern curriculum, are also taught to work — taught practical work in their chosen vocation.

Here cultural background and practical education go hand in hand, a circumstance which seems to be the best answer to the age old educational "fight" of liberal arts cultural training against practical work training.

For at the college neither of these so-called "opposing factions" is against the other in instruction. They are taught side by side in perfect accord to make students THINK while preparing themselves for future employment. But they are not taught by this method merely to give students degrees which will automatically assure high salaries.

Having a college degree doesn't mean future success; applying the knowledge which the degree represents does.

'Thanks' For Fine Dedication Help

WE WISH again to express the college's sincere "thanks" to all those who helped in Sunday's Dedication ceremonies. Those who represented City College did a fine job of showing its position as a "proud possession of the community of San Francisco."

To all our honored visitors, the citizenry of the community we say simply, "Thanks for coming, see you again, and soon, we hope."

Shots At RAMdom

Super Sleuths, Science Students Stumped By Pitted Windshields

By Shirley Murphy

ONE explanation for the pitted auto panes found thus far on campus is that an army of displaced Martians were recently "rudeshed nearby. Despite extensive sleuthing by all frustrated Mike Hammers on campus, the culprits have not been apprehended.

Another reason for the pock marks on windshields as suggested by knowing science students, is a possible epidemic of chicken pox among the autos on campus. Perhaps instead of a host of super sleuths invading the campus, the medical society should be called in to investigate the disease before it spreads to the surrounding neighborhood. So far more than 150 cars here have been afflicted with the ailment, including the new auto that transports the President of the Associated Students.

San Francisco reporters must also have, considered the "vandalisms" newsworthy since four of them visited the college last week to observe.

For still another logical explanation remember the hydrogen bomb.

Another Smith Brother

Price of thin blades must have become prohibitive recently, judging from the Lincolnesque appearance of an otherwise well-groomed lad about the campus.

Mistake In Navigation

Some of the student leaders dedicated to make the Coronado jaunt almost didn't leave for the Southland.

They journeyed to the new airport scheduled to open in August. After they had waited an hour and noticed no planes in the vicinity, one of the more observant decided they might be in the wrong place. Fortunately their flight had been delayed two hours and the college was well represented at the conference.

Not Forever Female

Status quo of the Newman Club has undergone a reversal. This semester the men outnumber the women by a substantial ratio. Membership is still open, girls!

Caught In The Act

After waiting ten minutes for an instructor to put in his appearance, students began to walk out of a class only to be halted at the door by the instructor himself.

RAM'S HORN

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman office building 4-D. Deadlines are noon each Wednesday. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but his identity must be known to the editor.)

• Hell Week Juvenile

Editor, The Guardsman:

I believe that something should be done about the juvenile antics of the sorority and fraternity pledges.

As long as this City College of ours is considered a junior college, there should be something done about the pledges making "mud pies," throwing rotten eggs at each other, and promoting vandalism on the campus.

As long as the pledges are considered old enough to enter college, they should at least act like adults, instead of third grade students.

If this has no effect, I believe a few columns in the Chronicle and Call-Bulletin may do some good. But if you believe it right to carry on as the pledges have been doing, you should start some marble games, jump the rope games, and hop-scotch games in physical education.

Erwin D. Christensen

• Hell Week Supported

Editor, The Guardsman:

On behalf of my fraternity brothers, I would like to congratulate The Guardsman on the editorial published last week (April 7) titled "Help Week and Good Will, Or Hell Week and Ridicule?"

It has always been the purpose of Alpha Phi Omega to be of service to the Associated Students, to the faculty and to the school. So it is no wonder that, with these principles in mind, our charter forbids hazing in any shape, manner or form. Instead of hazing, our pledges are required to complete fifteen hours of service time to show that their interest in the activities of our organization are sincere.

We, the men of Alpha Phi Omega, wish to go on record as supporting wholeheartedly the proposition made by the editors of The Guardsman to change "Hell Week" into "Help Week" for, we too feel that "fraternities or sororities certainly would rather have a member who is willing to help his fellow man than one who is merely willing to make a fool of himself in front of his fellow students."

Again, our heartiest congratulations.

From 'Model T' Ford To '54 'Cad'—College Has Them All

From the "Model-T" to the "Coupe de Ville," from spoked wheels to white walls, from hard tops to canvas, automobiles have been rolling on the streets and highways for decades.

Innumerable manufacturers of automobiles that were at one time considered to be popular have now become obsolete to the current generation. A few of these luxurious motor vehicles which dwindled into the past are the Winston, the Pierce-Arrow, Chandler, Peerless, Hupmobile and the Stanley Steamers.

It is a far cry from the cars that were manufactured early in the century to the high-powered vehicles of today. Automobiles seen mostly on the highways today are made principally by three large manufacturers —General Motors, Ford and the Chrysler Corporation. There are a few smaller organizations such as Packard, Hudson, Willys and many cars of British origin are in America today.

At the college the variety of cars is comparable to that of cities and towns throughout the land. A recent survey of all the automobiles registered to students here, has just been completed.

The results of the survey showed that the total number of cars registered to students is 706, and Chevrolet is the number-one car on campus with 170 cars. Next in order according to their popularity are Ford, 127; Plymouth, 80; Oldsmobile, 46; Mercury, 44; Buick, [illegible] Pontiac, 38; Studebaker, 35; Dodge, 27; Chrysler and Nash, 18; De Soto, 17; Hudson, 14; Cadillac, 12; M. G., 6; Austin, 5; Kaiser, 4; Willys, 2.

Specialized Arts Require Skill

Skilled hands and active minds identify students of two specialized departments of the college—graphic arts and ceramics.

Graphic arts, one of the two largest industries in San Francisco, offers excellent job opportunities in the bay area. According to Robert H. Meyer, graphic arts instructor here, enrollment in graphic art courses this semester has hit an all-time high.

Students of commercial art, painting, advertising and journalism also prepare for their fields in the graphic arts laboratory.

Ceramics, another highly-skilled craft, according to Roy H. Walker, ceramics instructor, plays an important part in art, industry and the home.

Students of this ancient art are taught to spin and mold clay into useful and beautiful forms. They also study the technique of glazing and chemical composition of clays.

Ceramics also teaches the principles of harmony and form and develops in the student an appreciation and taste for art.

Radio Staff Provides Music And Ads

The sounds, in the form of music and advertisement, that come blurting out of a little box on the wall in the Science Building classrooms here, may be attributed to members of the radio and television department of the college.

This department works with the Associated Student Publicity Committee and is actually broken down into two groups or sub-departments. The radio announcing department and the engineering and maintenance department are under faculty members Henry Left and Harold R. Edmison.

The department operates out of two studios located on the first floor of the Science Building and a studio in Building 2.

Actual broadcasts over local networks have been given from the studio in the Science Building. This is accomplished by piping the program to a downtown studio over telephone and on to the air from there.

The staff consists of nine student announcers and one script writer. Chief announcer is Richard Kitson.

Any information to be broadcast should be turned in two weeks prior to the event to the AS Publicity Committee during meetings every Tuesday at 11 a.m. in Building 12.

Fresh Air, Sun, Signs Of Spring In High Sierra

By Harold Painter

IN the spring the fancies of some men turn toward the summer mountains, sun, solitude, space and fresh air. Californians are fortunate; they have an abundance of each within easy riding distance.

Close with a pleasant degree of each, is Desolation Valley Wild Area. The valley lies at the north base of the Crystal range in the high of the Sierra Nevadas. Trails are plentiful and scenic; there are no roads, no cars, few people and lots of lakes.

Trails are frequent and well marked. A map, preferably the standard topographical map issued by the U. S. Forest Service, and a compass will keep one sufficiently orientated. Several of the local lodges provide maps incidental to advertising broadsides. This Spectator has learned that the ads are the more reliable.

The easiest entrance is through Echo Portals and the Echo Lake way off highway 50 on the Myer's upgrade. Packers are available at Echo Lake and at near-by Camp Richardson. But packers are expensive. Rent animals or pack in on foot. Nothing surpasses the pleasure of being independent and foot-loose.

Fishing? Fifty - two well - stocked lakes of it. Hunting and firearms are forbidden, but the camera nomad will find plentiful game in a grand variance of habitat.

A change of clothing is unnecessary. Rain wear is unnecessary. There are no ballrooms, and the little rain that appears is quick, infrequent and carries with it a warning device that sounds like thunder.

The grizzly bears are trying to make camp with the local residents and the rattlesnakes are having better grass in the lowlands. However, a return trip through Horsetail Falls a panoramic and encompassing route will pass through country abundant in rattlesnakes; a snake-kit is a safe assurance. Good Luck!

Sam Gets Sheared, Is Bare, But Happy

Contrary to campus rumors that say Sam, the college's Merino ram mascot, feels almost bare in his new suit, the truth is that he feels much better and not a bit self conscious about his recently sheared body.

Sam is quite proud of his new streamlined look and is extremely grateful that he was able to attend the Dedication of Cloud Hall last Sunday wearing his spring outfit.

When asked if he was worried about public opinion, Sam uttered his usual "Baaa" and then went on to say "The public will have to learn to accept it." With good Ram logic he rationalized the whole situation by paralleling his haircut with anybody else's. "That new look always meets with criticism; look what happened when skirts got longer."

Horsehiders Bid To Escape League Cellar This Saturday

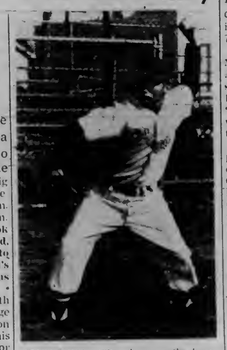
Hard Luck Baseball Club Plays Santa Rosa In Tough Doubleheader

By Humberto Fischnaler

Determined to keep the college nine in the league cellar, Santa Rosa's baseball club travels to Graham Field at Golden Gate Park this Saturday for a pair of Big Seven games against the college nine. First contest starts at 12:30 p.m. with the second one set for 3:15 p.m.

On April 6, the college squad took on San Mateo at Marchbank Field, Daly City and lost an 8-5 decision to the Bulldogs despite Dick Baggettini's timely hitting. Stan Fettermann was the losing pitcher.

Four days later, April 10, both teams met again with City College losing this time 4-1. Ram catcher Ron Lawrence pulled a ligament in his right knee in this one and is out for the season, according to Coach Bill Fischer.



Then on April 15, the Red and White squad played a practice game against the California Ramblers at Edwards Field, Berkeley and returned home with a 6-4 victory. Fettermann gained credit for this triumph.

West Contra Costa played host to the college on April 20 and once more the Rams suffered a defeat. The score was 3-1. Pitcher Bob Word allowed only one earned run, but the team committed five errors to betray him and help send him down to defeat.

Entrenched like they are in last place in the league standings, the Rams will have to start winning games if they expect to climb out of the cellar.

Leaders in batting for the Rams season averages are as follows:

Nolan Wilson, .359; Rudy Buffin, .351; Dick Bandettini, .333; John Pulli, .333; Ron Tawse, .316.

JOHN PULLI, utility player on the baseball squad, warms up in the bullpen prior to being called upon for a relief chore. He also sports a hefty .333 batting average.—Photo by Denevi.

Block SF To Hold Meeting On Friday

Block SF, college athletic honor society, will hold its regular meeting Friday, April 30, during college hour here, Bill Fischer, club sponsor, stated last week.

Guest speaker for the affair will be head track coach Roy Burkhead. Movies of the 1952 Olympic games or the California-Stanford track meet of 1953 will be shown to round out the program.

Kappa Rhos Win In ASL Cage Play

Sparkling shooting by Joe Maleffin, who scored 19 points, led Kappa Rho to a tightly fought 41-37 victory over a hustling Tau Chi Sigma five on April 13 in the lone Associated Student league game of that week. Jack Lucas led the losers with 18 points.

After several weeks of tight action, the leading scorers who are also in contention for all-league honors are Jack Lucas of Tau Chi Sigma, 58 points; Don Baroni of Beta Phi Beta, 37 points; Pat McGill of Gamma Phi Ypsilon, 29 points; Stan Lee of Alpha Sigma Delta, 26 points; Bob Peters of Gamma Phi Ypsilon, 24 points; Al Kingston of Beta Phi Beta, 23 points; and Phil Gaal of Beta Tau, 22 points.

The season's standings to date are as follows:

	Won	Lost
Beta Tau	2	0
Beta Phi Beta	1	0
Gamma Phi Ypsilon	2	1
Lambda Phi	1	1
Kappa Rho	1	1
Alpha Sigma Delta	0	1
Tau Chi Sigma	0	3

Golfers Try For League Title In Next Two Outings

A Big Seven golf championship looms closer and closer for the Ram golfers as they continue undefeated in league play, after tying a strong Santa Rosa team, 7½ to 7½ in their last league match.

Two crucial matches with San Mateo, on April 23, and Modesto, on April 30, will determine the final standing of the Ram golfers. Ralph Hillsman, the college golf coach, said, "If we can win our next two matches, we stand a chance of winning the title."

It was not until last week that the potential of the college golf team became apparent. In the Annual Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Championship, from April 15, through April 17, City College tied for fourth place in a field which included all the colleges in the bay area and many other colleges in Northern California. In total, 135 entrants represented the colleges.

A player's qualifying score determines his flight, and in the first flight, Tony Prinz of City College took first place honors, Gene George, who is first man for the college, won the third flight, as he averaged 78 for 90 holes of golf.

Bob Flanagan got into the semi-finals of the fourth flight before he was defeated and Dave Watkins bowed out in the quarter finals.

In the two year college division City College tied with Menlo again for first place among all such institutions in Northern California.

Three Playdays Left For WAA

Three playdays are left on the semester's schedule for the college Women's Athletic Association, Joan Anderson, president of the organization, announced recently.

They are as follows: Wednesday, May 12, Polytechnic and Mission High Schools, basketball; Saturday, May 22, college sportsday at Napa, swimming; Monday, May 24, Washington High School, volleyball.

The intercollegiate badminton and tennis sportsdays held here last Saturday produced fine competition, Miss Anderson said, but results were not available at press time. The affair started at 9 a.m. with registration and tournaments began at 9:30 a.m.

Another playday with the results also unavailable was the volleyball playday held in the women's gymnasium last Monday at 3 p.m. Lincoln High School was the guest, while the WAA volleyball group was the host.

The first baseball book was Robin Corner's The Book of Sports, published in 1834.

Modesto And Sacramento Favored To Run Off With Annual Track Duel; Carlson Top College Entry

With Modesto and Sacramento the logical team favorites, the top trackmen of the Big Seven Conference meet in the annual Big Seven Meet at Modesto this Saturday, May 8. The top entry for the Rams will probably be Al Carlson, veteran half-miler. Carlson is undefeated in competition this season and his victories have never been close ones. If the other conference colleges can come up with someone to push Carlson, the Ram ace should better his early season time of 1:59.9.

Bob Cross, co-captain with Carlson, is another Ram veteran who may bring the college some points. Cross' performances in the mile all year and Henry Stroughter's recent performances in the two mile have been bright points in the season for Coach Roy Burkhead.

Cross and Stroughter will have trouble in the mile and two mile respectively, for both will be competing against Stockton's Don Ludlow. Ludlow, the durable little redhead, will be the favorite in both events, and, should the Mustangs decide to enter him in the 880, he may press Carlson in that race.

Another who should be a double winner is Sacramento's sprinter Cleo Beatty. Beatty hung up 13 points against the Rams in their triangular meet with Stockton and was directly responsible for five more as he came from behind to win the relay for the Panther quartet.

Modesto, a strong all-around team, will base their hopes on team strength and, in particular, Ray Goodwin and Chuck McGuiness. Goodwin has broad jumped 23-6½ this year and will also be a threat in the high jump. McGuiness is a threat to Beatty in both sprints.

West Contra Costa will count heavily on Wilbur Gary, an All-Conference choice for halfback on the 1953 Big Seven football team. Gary has a 210.2 century to his credit and will press Goodwin in the broad jump.

Santa Rosa, one of the dark horses in the league this year, offers high jumper Ron Walters. In the first meet of the season Walters lifted his 6-6 frame to a Santa Rosa Junior College high jump record of 6-3⅝.

Netmen Triumph Over Santa Rosa

A 5-2 trouncing of Santa Rosa on April 9 has given the Ram tennis team undisputed possession of second place in the Big Seven Conference, with only one league match left to play, that with Sacramento this Friday, April 30.

In the Santa Rosa match, Bill Wright, playing despite an injured back, defeated Don Schafer of Santa Rosa, 6-2, 6-0. In the number two match, Allan Matsumoto defeated hard-serving Ken Bertorelli 9-7, 7-9, 6-1, in a duel that lasted over an hour and a half. Greg Ball ran down enough balls to get a set from Hal Kopp of San Francisco, who won 6-2, 2-6, 6-1. In the number four singles match, Bob Chrisman lost to Santa Rosa's Ron Vehytel, 3-6, 6-3, 0-6. Gordon Gordon of City College defeated Ron Kiser, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Wright and Kopp teamed up to beat Schaefer and Kiser, 6-1, 6-0, while Gordon and Win lost to Vehytel and Ball, 6-4, 6-0.

After the April 30 match with Sacramento at Golden Gate Park, Big Seven Conference play of 1954 will be ended and the Conference Championships will be held at Golden Gate Park.

Carlson, Cross Voted Track Co-Captains

Al Carlson and Bob Cross, two of the Ram track team's few veterans, have been named co-captains for the 1954 season.

Carlson has been a consistent winner in the half mile and has accounted for points, on occasion, in the 440 yard run. Cross also has been a regular contributor to Ram point totals, finishing well up in the mile run in every meet.

The two were chosen by a vote of their teammates, and Coach Roy Burkhead announced the selection immediately preceding the triangular meet at Sacramento last week.

Ram Trackmen Easily Whip San Mateo, USF

City College trackmen took 10 of 14 first places and romped to an 81-31½ victory over College of San Mateo in a Big Seven meet at San Mateo High School field last Friday afternoon. University of San Francisco varsity also competed and tied with San Mateo at 31½ points.

The Rams built up their lead in the 440, where Bob Matulac, Harold Hill and Herb Stockman captured the first three places and in the 220-yard low hurdles, where Charley Smock, Jim Canham and Dick Paige finished in that order for top honors.

Top point-getters for the college were Ray MacIntyre, who won the 100 yarder and took second in the 220, and Canham, who was victor in the 120 yard high hurdles in addition to his second in the low sticks.

RAMBLINGS

By Gail Allan Moss

TRACK being what it is—the most individualistic of sports—there are more individual performances that are noteworthy. One of these is the showing of Henry Stroughter in the two mile run in recent Ram meets.

The two miler is the most torturous event in a regular track meet. It takes terrific courage and stamina to do those eight laps around and then finish with enough of a burst to hold off anyone within hailing distance.

Stroughter ran the event for the first time in the Sacramento-Stockton-City College triangular meet three weeks ago. On that first try, although obviously exhausted (he had placed in the 880 earlier in the meet), he hung on to finish the race a strong third after giving Stockton's great distance runner, Don Ludlow, a battle all the way. His time was a creditable 10:38.0.

The next week, in a quadrangular affair at Stanford, he won the grueling event in 10:40.1, also a good time. Hats off to Henry Stroughter for a wonderful display of endurance and intestinal fortitude.

Incidentally, the tracksters were hurt a great deal by the loss of Don Malone, Malone, who in his one appearance in a Ram uniform had shown promise of becoming one of the Big Seven's top performers, withdrew from the college and returned to his home in Texas.

Another ex-Ram athlete, this one with his team for a little longer, hit the papers last week. Hal Flinn, the tall pitcher who went from Coach Bill Fischer's horsehiders to a professional baseball career, was assigned by the San Francisco Seals to Victoria of the Western International League. Flinn is described by city sportswriters as one of the top young prospects in the Seals' chain.

To change the subject once again. A fine idea was dropped on this desk recently. Al Kingston, the Men's Athletic Commissioner here, suggested that the grassy area between the men's and women's gymnasiums be converted into some sort of putting green for golfers and would-be golfers to do a little practicing.

This idea isn't entirely new. Coach Ralph Hillsman has had some of his charges out there with the clubs, but the poorly kept grass and those useless goal posts are no help to prospective golfers.

It would cost very little, outside of a good lawn mower and someone to push it, to convert the area into a fair-to-middling putting green. Kingston's idea, however original, is a good one. We offer it to the athletic department, free of charge.

Thinclads Whip Stockton, Lose To Sacramento

Although Sacramento's trackmen, led by sprinter Cleo Beatty, easily whipped the Rams, the City College thinclads picked up enough points to finish well ahead of Stockton in a triangular meet held at Sacramento's Hughes Stadium on April 9.

The following week, on April 17, Stanford's freshmen romped over West Contra Costa and the Rams. The Cubets were victorious in Big Seven competition.

In the Sacramento affair, the Panthers were never in any danger as they piled up nine first places to four for Stockton and only one for the Rams. The college scored enough second, third and fourth place points to give them the decision over Stockton.

Beatty was easily the outstanding man on the field. He captured the 220 yard and 440 yard dashes, took second in the 100 yarder, and was directly responsible for Sacramento's win in the mile relay, the most thrilling event of the day.

From the start, San Francisco led the Panthers in the relay. Jack Connell, Charley Smock and Al Carlson, running the first three laps for the Rams, each added to the lead, but Bob Cross, despite a fine effort, just couldn't keep back the flying Beatty in the anchor lap.

Top performer for the Rams was again Carlson. He finished second behind Beatty in the 440, his first competition in the event this year, and came from behind to breeze to victory in the 880. Henry Stroughter provided the surprise of the day when, after taking second in the 880, he entered the grueling two-mile run for the first time in his life and finished a creditable third with a time of 10:38.0.

Triangular score was Sacramento 78½, CCSF 37½, Stockton 32.

Stanford, like Sacramento, had no trouble in the four-way encounter at Angell Field. The Indians racked up five firsts and enough other places to provide the final margin. Stroughter again surprised in the two mile, winning out over teammate Medford Todd in 10:40.1. Todd took second place.

Connell was the only other winner for the Rams, taking the 440. Cross took a second in the mile run and Charley Smock ran second in the low hurdles for the college.

Score for the meet was Stanford 70, West Contra Costa 37, CCSF 25, Menlo College 16.

Budget Problem Continues Between Finance, Police

Budget problems continued between the Campus Police and the Associated Student Finance Committee in Student Council meetings recently, after the matter had supposedly been settled by an allocation to police members for their services on the evening of the college's Mardi Gras carnival.

In council meeting April 8 Alberta Cordini, AS vice-president, reported that the police had made a request for an additional $100 to cover the cost of a banquet for members of the force. Finance Committee Chairman Wray Jacobs stated that his committee recommended that council turn down the request and asked that a definite policy be established so that the question might be settled "once and for all."

Because of the absence of any representative from the Campus Police at council meetings in past weeks, further action on the problem was postponed. Information on the outcome of the situation was not available at press time.

The fate of Sam the Ram was discussed by the council, and a number of suggestions were made in regard to the animal's future—AS President Joe Garbarino reminded the group that the council dinner was approaching, and that possibly an end to the question might lie there. His comment was not greeted with popular approval.

After a motion was made to appropriate $55 to care for the mascot through the summer, Bob Arago, freshman member of council, moved to table the matter so that a more thorough investigation could be made.

Cohen Petition Grows; Cause Gains Momentum

Support for the cause of Margot Cohen, student at the college who faces deportation as a result of technicalities in Federal Immigration laws, continued to grow this week as a petition signed by more than 1,000 students and faculty members was readied for delivery to Congress.

Copies of the petition have been circulated during the past month with signatures piling up rapidly. The copies will be consolidated into one long petition which will be mailed Friday to Representative John J. Allen of California, who introduced a bill before the House to permit Miss Cohen to remain in this country.

Miss Cohen, a stateless orphan as a result of World War II, entered this country on a student visa after finding a temporary haven in Haiti. The visa has now expired and because the immigration regulations of Haiti prevent renewal, the deportation was ordered.

Letters from college administrators and student leaders as well as a resolution of the Student Council have been forwarded to Representative Allen supporting the bill. A delegation of professional business women saw Allen during a Washington visit and reported the outlook as "quite hopeful," Miss Cohen said.

She also expressed deep gratitude for the help and support of the students and faculty of the college.

"Nowhere in the world," she said, "are people so willing, even eager, to help someone in difficulty."

Home Economics Class Hosts AWS At Luncheon

Eight members of the Associated Women Student board here were guests at a luncheon last Thursday, prepared for them by the Home Economics class, under the direction of Frances Lloyd, instructor.

The luncheon was held in the dining area of Room 108 in the Science Building.

Ham, potato salad garnished with avocado and hardboiled eggs, hors d'oeuvres, hot biscuits and jelly comprised the main course. Ice cream on a baked meringue shell with strawberry topping was the dessert.

AWS board members who attended were as follows: Ena Aguirre, Joan Anderson, Barbara Campello, Marcia Herst, Lois Mantel, Diane Tolman, Mary Walker and Loretta Warchol. Mary Golding, dean of women, also attended.

JOHN CHAMBERLAIN, floriculture student here, is co-chairman of the college exhibit entered in the Oakland Flower Show to be held at the Oakland Auditorium April 30 through May 2. Floriculture Students To Compete In Flower Show

Floriculture students here will compete for the seventh consecutive year in the Oakland Flower Show, held at the Oakland Auditorium from Friday, April 30 through Sunday, May 2, according to Donald McMichael, a floriculture student here.

The college, only one to enter this year's show, has won blue ribbons in each of the six years it has entered exhibits. Other contestants, McMichael said, are from nurseries and garden clubs.

The entire floriculture class is working on the 350 foot outside landscape, McMichael stated. The landscape will be titled Campus Corner. The theme of the entire show will be Redwood Vacation Lands.

Plants used in the exhibit, he said, will be donated by Jay Juliana, formerly a student here and now operating a nursery in San Leandro.

A landscape display in the Science Building here shows a small scale model of the competing landscape plus a model of the college's first place landscape of last year. The model was constructed by advertising art students Robert Florer, Wayne Richards and Henry Thurlow.

Thurlow's flower arrangements took five first place ribbons in the annual San Francisco Garden Club show held at the St. Francis Yacht Club on April 6. He has also won several other blue ribbons for his landscaping and flower work since he first began his floriculture major study here.

In the floriculture training field, City College is the only United States college other than Michigan State that offers complete and practical training for the industry.

The curriculum, started here by Harry Nelson, includes everything from preparation of the soil to the finished product in the form of plants and flowers. Work with the finished product may lead to flower arrangement, design, retail flower shop operation, landscaping, or prize-winning exhibits.

Working with Nelson in the department are instructors John Herman and Raymond Peterson.

Forum Staff Still Taking Manuscripts

Although a tentative date, April 12, was set for the deadline for submitting material to Forum, college literary magazine, students may still submit manuscripts to the Forum staff in Building 19, Room 9 on the west campus, Catherine Connolly, Forum adviser, announced yesterday.

"Humorous and satirical prose is desired," she said, "and there already has been enough poetry offered." So far, 37 contributions of literature have been submitted. The tradition has always been that the magazine consist of not more than 30 pages.

Distribution of Forum is scheduled for Thursday, June 3, and to those who are members of the Associated Students, the magazine is free of charge; to all others, the price will be 50 cents, she said.

Mardi Gras Goes On Radio, T.V.

Arrangements are being completed with stations KPIX and KGO-TV for television, publicity for the annual Mardi Gras to be held at the college Friday, May 21, Deane Cyr, Mardi Gras entertainment chairman, announced this week.

A selection of satire, parody, musicals and skits are slated to run through the Mardi Gras entertainment three times. The selections, she said, are divided into three units of fifteen minutes each. As yet the production has not been named, he added.

Meanwhile, Flint Morrison, coronation committee head, said that petitions are still available for the king and queen contest. They may be obtained at Club Activities Board meetings on Thursdays at 1 p.m., and at the Associated Men Student meetings on Wednesdays at 2 p.m.

Letters are being sent to leading personalities in and around the Bay Area inviting them to act as judges in the contest, Morrison said. The contest, he added, will be judged at 2:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 20, in Building 2A.

The king and queen, Morrison explained, will ride in the lead car in the Mardi Gras procession down Ocean Avenue on May 21.

Recent Sorority, Fraternity 'Hell Week' Shows Trend Toward Constructiveness

By Paul Girard

This semester's traditional "Hell Week" activities got underway on Monday, April 5, with pledges of all fraternities and sororities meeting in the college cafeteria at 7:30 a.m. A large majority of pledges waited on their "masters" by bringing them their breakfasts while reciting humiliating poems.

Apparently the poems were recited too loud at one point during the daily activities, because Dean of Men here, Edwin C. Browne, stepped into the picture and ordered all non-eaters out of the cafeteria for the day. In compliance, the pledges resumed the activity outside in not-so-loud a manner.

A frequent sight, during the excruciating week for the pledges, was a pledge trying to break the 880 yard dash record along the roads of the west campus while in full dress and dragging his "master's" books.

A few fraternities made more constructive efforts. Pledges tried to give Sam the Ram a well needed bath.

Unsuccessful in their efforts to secure the ram, the 21 year old members of the fraternities and sororities turned to constructive and patriotic duty" by registering to vote in the June State primary elections at a booth provided in front of The Ramporium by the Non-Partisian Voters League and the city registrar of voters.

Two fraternities were suspended from campus after an exhibition of what was termed unnecessary and primitive conduct, not in the constructive line.

Sorority pledges complied with their older sisters' requests and "wishes" by carrying around boxes of "goodies" containing unknown bits of material.

Observers declared that the constructiveness of some of the fraternities and sororities showed a trend toward a "Help Week," which many have commented would aid all at the college.

Debate Society On Television Sunday

Three debate students from the college Phi Rho Pi society will participate in a new television program, Don't Judge A Book, on KPIX (channel 5), next Sunday, May 2, at 12:30 p.m., Thomas Dutcher, debate coach here, said this week.

Those to take part, according to Dutcher, are Grant Barnes, Irene Morozoff and Norman McLeod.

They will discuss Erick Hoffer's book, The True Believer, with students representing San Francisco State College, Dutcher said.

On future Sundays, according to KPIX, Don't Judge A Book will feature students from other Bay Area colleges and universities disussing literary classics.

College To Host Symphony Group In Early May

Members of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra will present a chamber music concert Tuesday evening, May 11, at 8 p.m., in the college auditorium, Meyer M. Cahn, band and orchestra director here, announced this week.

The concert will climax an all-afternoon instrumental ensemble festival of Northern California Junior Colleges, to be held on campus that day, Cahn said.

Under the baton of Emanuel Leplin, prominent composer and former protege of Pierre Monteux, the Symphony Orchestra will perform works by Tchaikovsky, Mozart, and other composers, Cahn said.

The concert will be open, free of charge, to students and faculty members, as well as to the public, he added.

As host for the event, the college is sponsoring the evening concert in conjunction with the American Federation of Musicians, and through the cooperation of Musicians Local No. 6, San Francisco.

Colleges expected to participate in the afternoon instrumental festival include East Contra Costa, Marin, Modesto, Monterey, Napa, Sacramento, Salinas, San Mateo, Santa Rosa, Vallejo and West Contra Costa.

Purposes of the festival, Cahn said, will be to encourage small group performance, and to acquaint the musicians with music literature for various ensemble groups.

Pre-Legal Orientation Program Tomorrow

Pre-legal majors of the college are invited to an orientation program in Room B of the new Hastings Building, 198 McAllister Street, San Francisco, tomorrow at 9 a.m., Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, announced this week.

Students who are interested in attending the program may be excused from class in order to do so, Dr. Conlan said. Reservations may be made today with the president's secretary, Edna Denhard, Room 126, Science Building.

Club Cavalcade: Sorority Presents; Dances, Meetings Occupy Clubs

By Patty Moran

MEMBERS of campus organizations returned from Easter vacation and began planning activities which will occupy the remaining weeks of the semester.

Newman Club had a Communion Breakfast on Sunday, April 11, at St. Emydius Hall, located at Jules and De Montford Streets. Dr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator, division of instruction here, was guest speaker.

The club held their last meeting last Thursday evening, April 22. A barbecue is scheduled for the near future.

Members of the Chinese Student Club are planning a benefit dance for the Tiny Tots of the Recreation Center. Entertainment, refreshments, and dancing are planned for the event which will take the place of a variety show previously scheduled.

Barbara Fong, Sweetheart Ball queen, was among the models in the recent AWS fashion show.

Masonic Club enjoyed a picnic at Boulder Creek during Easter vacation. The group will have a bowling party this month. An installation dinner is planned for sometime in May.

History's Greatest Week was the theme of Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship's annual Spring conference at Mission Springs, near Santa Cruz, on April 9, 10, 11.

San Jose State was the conference host. Speakers and discussion leaders included Paul Holsinger, G. Raymond White and A Wetherell Johnson.

Big event for campus sororities was the combined presents held last Saturday evening, April 24, at St. Francis Church Hall, Ocean and San Fernando Way.

Pledges of Alpha Lambda Chi released recently are as follows:

Joan Anderson, Sue Anderson, Geraldine Fink, Nina Flood, Yvonne Feibelman, Josephine Gandert, Rose Geonocas, Kay Griffin, Millie Kalsh, Diana Phillips, Joan Rettus, Dodie Stoffers, Gerry Steers and Loretta Warchol.

The sorority had a meeting last Thursday evening, April 22, at Bobbie Baldwin's home. Plans for Mardi Gras were discussed.

Zeta Chi pledges gave their sisters a dinner at the home of Jan Bruhn on Sunday, April 11.

Tau Chi Sigma pledges include Leo Champagne, Russell Goldstein, Leroy Lynn, Ed Scheeline and George Stack.

The fraternity held a business meeting on Monday, April 12, to discuss the forthcoming IFC Convention.

Deadline for club news is Wednesday at 12 noon. Information should be submitted to The Guardsman office in Building 4D before that time.

A Cappella Choir Enters Choral Music Festival

With the choir of San Francisco State College acting as host, City College's A' Cappella Choir will join other northern California college choirs in a choral music festival scheduled to start at 1:30 p.m. this Saturday, May 1, Richard Vine, choir director here, announced yesterday.

He said the program will begin with songs from individual choruses.

A concert will be given in the evening, he stated, which will start at 8 p.m. This evening performance consists of a mass chorus, which will include all the choral groups from northern California colleges singing together.

Vine added that there will be no solo singing.

Instrumental Music Day Tuesday

Leplin To Conduct San Francisco Symphony Orchestra In Evening Concert In College Auditorium

Climaxing the all-afternoon instrumental ensemble festival of Northern California two-year colleges on campus Tuesday, May 11, the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra will present a chamber music concert at 8 p.m. that evening in the college auditorium, according to Meyer M. Cahn, band and orchestra director here.

Emanuel Leplin, prominent composer and former protege of Pierre Monteux, will conduct the Symphony Orchestra in works by Tchaikovsky, Mozart, and other composers, Cahn said.

Leplin has performed with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra for many years. Prior to joining the orchestra, he won the coveted Prix de Paris, while a student at University of California. He served as director of the San Francisco Community School of Music from 1940-43.

He has presented many concerts in the Bay Area including those at the San Francisco Museum of Art, Temple Sherith Israel, San Francisco Civic Auditorium and Hillel Foundation in Berkeley.

As host for the event, the college is sponsoring the evening concert in conjunction with the American Federation of Musicians, and through the cooperation of Musicians Local No. 6, San Francisco.

The concert is being financed by a grant from the Music Performance Trust Funds of the Recording Industries. The fund is an extension of a program of public service originated by the Recording and Transcription Fund of the American Federation of Musicians.

Concert Invitation Extended To Public

An open invitation is extended to students and faculty members, as well as to the public, to attend the chamber music concert of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra on Tuesday evening, May 11, in the college auditorium, Meyer M. Cahn, band and orchestra director here, said this week.

PUC Lauds Students For Fight Against Proposed Eating Site

Untiring student efforts were lauded by the Public Utilities Commission for their vigorous opposition to the construction of the proposed restaurant at the corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues, at the PUC meeting on April 26.

Several commissioners asked that they be given an extension of time to consider further the objections to the location of such a restaurant.

The commission will make their decision on the proposal at their regular meeting Monday, May 10, at their chambers in the City Hall, Room 203 at 5 p.m.

At the meeting of the PUC on April 26, few students attended only because classes kept them away, a student leader commented. He also said that the controversy will not be forgotten in the wake of student activities, but will only leave the continuous thoughts of the students when the proposal is definitely and finally settled.

With the dedication of Cloud Hall and the construction of the Student Union, the multi-million dollar education plant here is near completion. It is the feeling of student and civic leaders that the beauty of the college will be marred by the construction of such a hamburger stand.

The first meeting of the PUC to consider the proposal was attended by college administrators Louis G. Conlan, Oscar E. Anderson, John J. Brady, Louis Batmale and by Superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools Herbert C. Clish, and a group of Associated Students who presented their arguments against the proposal.

At this initial meeting it was pointed out that the college's building program standard would be lowered and that the congregation of crowds would present a definite traffic problem and a hazard to the student activities program here.

Moore added that nominations for this year's convention are open. Petitions for nominations may be obtained either from Moore, who may be found in the Associated Student office in Building 2, or from any member of the organization's cabinet.

Mardi Gras Booth, Royalty Petition Deadline Today

All petitions for booths and for king and queen contestants for the Mardi Gras on May 21 are due today, Bill Boldenweck, Associated Men Student president, announced yesterday.

The AMS committee has decided upon the west campus parking area for the concession locations. A complete list of the booths and concessions will be available after the petition deadline, Boldenweck added. Representatives of campus organizations will then be allotted spaces.

There will be an invitational showing of drama productions for approximately 150 members of the faculty, campus organizations and representatives of press, radio and television.

Invitations will be mailed. Guests will submit criticisms on the productions. Date for this preview is as yet undecided.

The parade, which will open the Mardi Gras proceeding, will start from Junipero Serra and Ocean Avenues, continuing up Ocean, where it will turn into the west campus parking lot.

USA Party Plans Convention May 12

Robert Moore, president of the United Student Association announced last week that the USA convention will be held Wednesday, May 12, at 2 p.m., in Building 2A.

Moore stated that the main speaker for this semester's convention has not as yet been named. He noted that the speaker will be an educational leader who will guide the party in their nominations.

Moore added that nominations for this year's convention are open. Petitions for nominations may be obtained either from Moore, who may be found in the Associated Student office in Building 2, or from any member of the organization's cabinet.

Leave Of Absence Deadline May 19

Deadline for filing petitions for leaves of absences or for dropping courses is Wednesday, May 19, Gertrude Sommerville, acting registrar here, announced last week.

Failure to file petitions will result in the recording of a grade of "F" in all courses involved, Miss Sommerville stated. An "F" grade received in this way cannot be removed by a subsequent leave of absence, she added, and is the same as a failing grade for unsatisfactory scholastic work in a course.

Those students who withdraw from the college without filing a leave of absence, she further declared, may have their registration privileges withdrawn and may be denied an honorable dismissal.

All those students failing to meet the deadline cannot drop courses nor obtain leaves of absence without acquiring special permission from Dr. F. Grant Marsh.

This Week's AS Campus Activities

Activities open this week to all Associated Student members are as follows:

- AMS: Meeting today, 2 p.m., in Building 2B.
- STUDENT COUNCIL: Meetings tomorrow and Tuesday, 12 noon in Building 2A.
- CAB: Meetings tomorrow and Tuesday, 1 p.m., in Building 2A.
- BASEBALL: At Modesto, Saturday, 1:30 p.m.
- TRACK: Northern California Junior College Meet at Santa Rosa, Saturday, 1:30 p.m.

Ensembles From 13 Colleges Offer Day Program

Northern California two-year colleges will participate in an instrumental ensemble festival here on Tuesday afternoon, May 11, from 1 to 6 p.m., Meyer M. Cahn, festival director, announced this week.

Purposes of the festival, Cahn said, are to encourage small group performance and to acquaint the musicians with selections written for various ensemble groups.

A college quartet including Conchita Bondoc, Bob Nordstrom, Ray Tankersly and Wilton Wong will perform a Concerto by Teleman. The quartet is made up of woodwinds and clarinets.

The college band will play Rumanian Rhapsody by Enesco, Gavotte by Prokofieu, and an excerpt from Caesar-Franck's Symphony in D.

Approximately 200 guests will be served a dinner in the college cafeteria, Cahn said. Members of the Associated Students will act as hostesses.

Colleges expected to participate in the afternoon event include East Contra Costa, Marin, Modesto, Monterey, Napa, Sacramento, Salinas, San Mateo, Santa Rosa, Vallejo and West Contra Costa.

Tryouts Held For 2 Blind Mice Today

Tryouts for Two Blind Mice, a political satire by Samuel Spewack, will be held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the Little Theatre, Room 28, Science Building, Michael Griffin, drama coach here, stated recently.

Members of the Associated Students are urged to try out for a role in the June production of the college drama department, Griffin declared, adding that those who are casting earn from one to three units of college credit based upon the time and effort they give to the play.

Two Blind Mice requires a cast of 18 players. Special positions such as prompters and stage hands are also open.

The three act play will be presented here on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, June 3, 4 and 5, Griffin said.

Career Day Program May 10; 300 Students To Visit College

More than 300 San Francisco high school students interested in careers in engineering will gather at the college next Monday, May 10, to participate in "Engineering Career Day," presented jointly by the San Francisco Engineering Council and the San Francisco Public School Department.

Held in Cloud Hall, the three hour program will consist of addresses by men prominent in engineering fields, and counselling sessions in which students will be given an opportunity to question experts in 15 different engineering lines, according to W. T. Collins, chairman of the San Francisco Career Counselling Committee of the SFEC, which is sponsoring the event.

John Roberts, coordinator of child welfare of the San Francisco Public Schools Department, is working with Collins on the arrangements for Career Day.

At 9 a.m. on Monday, Collins said, the Career Day audience will hear a welcoming address by Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, who will introduce J. A. Campbell, chairman of the SFEC.

James G. Slier, supervisor of special services at the University of California, will speak to the students on "Military Requirements," a topic which Collins indicated had been frequently questioned by students at past Career Days.

After a keynote address by D. D. Smalley, vice president and assistant general manager of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, the high school students at 10 a.m. will go to one of six rooms where topics of their choice will be discussed with engineering experts.

Fifteen fields of engineering will be covered, and will include the following: electrical engineering and electronics, mechanical and aeronautical engineering, mining, metallurgical and geological engineering, civil, structural, architectural and military engineering.

Chemistry and chemical engineering will be examined in one classroom, and applied physics and nucleonics will be considered in another. Five counselors will advise students in each room.

The same topics will be discussed in the final hour of the program, Collins stated, to give students a chance to attend talks on other subjects which may interest them.

IFC Nominates John LoCoco For AS Presidency

By Bev Swope

After five official ballots, John LoCoco was chosen the Inter-Fraternity council nominee for Associated Student president by a two-thirds majority vote at the IFC convention April 28. LoCoco triumphed over his political opponent Bill Boldenweck in a close and furious struggle for nomination to the highest AS office.

A vote of confidence won Patti Mascarelli the nomination for AS vice president. Bill Phillips eased out Paul Ortiz by a simple majority vote on the sixth ballot for Associated Men's Student president; while Marcia Hurst captured the IFC nomination for Associated Women Student president after defeating Alice St. Louis by a narrow margin.

Bob Johnson and Brad Owens were unopposed nominees for the offices of freshman and sophomore presidents respectively.

Sophomores nominated for Student Council positions were Lawrence Lowe, Betty Peterson, Walter Frehe, Don Pace, Marcus Moore, Pat Smith and Joe Galante. These seven students were chosen from a field of 15 contestants. Marcia Norstrom, Harilyn Jacobs, Barbara Baldwin and Jim Brog were chosen as alternates.

Freshman nominees for Student Council were Bill Cirimele, George Sweet, Jerry Fink, Allie Green, Lou Altamirano, Rich Bolles and Eugenie Doodha. Alternates for the freshman members are Stan Lee, Pat Sullivan, Carol Hotton and Lafayette Jamerson.

Petitions for candidates for Associated Student offices will be available Tuesday, May 11 at the student bank in the Science Building, the Rampocium and the AS office, Building 2. Deadline for returning petitions is Wednesday, May 19, Joe Garbarino, AS president, announced recently.

Requirements for running for office are as follows: the candidate must have completed at least 12 units of college work (this varies with each office) with a grade average of "C" or better; he must also possess an AS card.

The number of college units required for election differs with each office. The requirements are as follows: AS president, 45 units of college work; AS vice president, 30 units; Associated Men Student president, 30 units; Associated Women Student president, 30 units; sophomore president, 45 units; freshman president, 12 units; sophomore members of council, 30 units, and freshman members of council, 12 units.

Only A Full Vote Will Assure Success Of AS Activity Here

IN THE Associated Student elections held this month at Stanford University 45 per cent of the AS membership voted.

Quite a contrast to City College of San Francisco's "high" of a 29 per cent vote in the Fall 1953 elections, the most recent held here.

Since all students at Stanford automatically join the Associated Students when paying their tuition, the success of the association is virtually assured no matter who its leaders may be; voting is not anywhere near the necessity which it is at City College.

Because the college is part of the San Francisco Public School system Associated Student membership is voluntary by city law and no one is required to join the association.

In comparing Stanford student voting with that of the college, one can see that although the percentage of Associated Student members voting here was 29 per cent, the overall voting percentage was only 11 per cent of all students. At the university the overall total was 45 per cent.

At Stanford approximately 3155 students of 7000 voted as compared to City College's 549 of 5115 (official enrollment in Fall 1953).

This is contradictory to logic; one would think that a student who joins an organization on his own would be more interested in deciding who will direct his activities than a student who has no "choice" but to join the organization, as is the case at Stanford.

Here students vote—their choice may not administer the organization as the voter would prefer and at the next registration day—the voter doesn't buy an AS card; he has a choice.

At the university students vote—their choices may not administer the organization as the voter would prefer and at the next registration day—the voter does buy an AS card; he has no choice.

It's not too soon to think of voting; all candidates will shortly be selected. The AS member should look over those nominated and make a decision to choose the students who will lead a free and voluntary AS membership in the Fall.

On the "Farm" everyone must join the Associated Students, yet no one need vote; at City College no one must join the Associated Students, but everyone must vote to assure success of their student activities.

Sincere Appreciation To Dr. Ferrando

WE would like to express the feelings of everyone connected with the college in voicing sincerest appreciation to Dr. Nicholas Ferrando for his wonderful contribution to Cloud Hall, the portrait of Dr. Cloud.

All of us will always consider Dr. Ferrando as our friend and as a friend who has contributed so much to the college that we will always be most highly appreciative of his gesture toward City College of San Francisco and its Associated Students.

Art Of Camping Requires Practice And Eye For Necessary Equipment

By Harold Painter

CAMPING is an art and, like an art, requires practice and the ability to distinguish the genuine from what glitters for the moment. What glitters for the moment is generally the attractive array of kits and gadgets that appear in sporting store windows about this time of year.

They soon stop glittering in the darkness of the pack-sack and begin jabbing the hiker in the back with each stride. For the most part, their highest virtue is that they keep money in circulation.

Camping, good camping, usually entails hiking; hiking begins with the feet. Feet like sturdy boots with ample distance between them and the coarse ground over which an active master will take them.

And a good master will treat his feet with respect, resting them periodically and providing them comfortable wool socks and plenty of fresh air. The leg likes a little boot, too — about 12 inches of tough, pliable leather.

Strong, loose pants are important. Forest green or black will hide the dirt nicely, and wool twill will keep the dirt from readily wearing holes. Cuffs on hiking pants, like field naturalists, gather a sample of all the flora and insect fauna with which they come in contact. Neither science nor hikers benefit from cuffs.

In the summer, a light cotton shirt and closely knit wool sweater provide excellent coverage in all but the highest mountain areas. A jacket is normally a useless burden.

A hat is a matter of choice. However, a good choice is wide brim to shade the eyes and a feature to shed water. Only rubber hats are fully water-proof. There is nothing more discouraging than a leaky water-proof hat.

Lonesome Blues Strike Sam

By Don Osborne

Spring is finally here and in full bloom. Everyone can feel it. Young lovers walk hand-in hand through the parks and all are happy.

All, that is, but Sam, the college's Merino ram mascot. His frustrated "Baaa" can be heard echoing across the campus, but to no avail, as he waits for a feminine answer.

His appetite has diminished to the point that he can hardly eat even one square foot of grass, and if this keeps up the campus is going to look overgrown in a short time.

At night he can't sleep. He wanders around the deserted campus quietly "Baaaing" and hoping for an answer, but only the occasional honking of a car horn reaches his perked ears.

Sam can't help remembering the old days when he had a whole harem of ewes around him all the time. In those days Sam would give anything to have a few minutes to himself but now he would give anything for just one ewe.

Sam is so distraught over his present situation that he has practically ignored the redwood Ram and only occasionally butts him in envy of his apparent immunity to romance.

Ram's Horn . . .

Letters to the Editor

• Thanks From Margot

Faculty and students
City College of San Francisco

My dear friends:

The harder it is to get something you want the more you want it and the more you appreciate its true value. The more difficult it is made for me to stay in this country the surer I am my decision to stay is right. One of the biggest factors in making this decision has been the warmth and understanding of the American people.

During these past weeks the friendliness of the students and faculty here at City College has helped me restore my courage to continue the fight for permission to make this country my home.

I wish to take this opportunity, as I cannot thank you each separately, to thank you for your support in my behalf.

I remain,

Yours truly,
Margot Cohen

The members of the fraternity appreciated it very much, and Miss Thornton was really thrilled.

We know that the presentation of the Orchid Award is one that she will never forget, but without the cooperation of you and your staff, it would not have been the success that it was.

Again, thank you.

Dedication Ball Attracts Lone Mountaineer

By Shirley Murphy

EMIGRANTS journeyed from far and near to attend the Dedication Ball at the Palace recently. One lad migrated from the Sierra complete with foliage. A delegation from College of San Mateo and one lone representative from Sacramento Junior College also added to the cosmopolitan atmosphere.

What's Yours?

Terminology used by Morpheus-ridden students ordering their morning stimulant in the cafeteria is quaint, to say the least. "Hold the cow, two shots of cream," and "coffee Boston" are but a few of the phrases used by caffeine addicts signifying their preference.

Undaunted Cyclist

"Neither rain nor rain dampens the ardor of Schwin enthusiasts. During the torrential downpour last week one rider was noted pedaling about the campus with his books slung over his shoulder.

Old Vets Never Learn

Three representatives of the United States Air Force, Lieutenant Robert J Cabaniss, Technical Sergeant George E. Flannery and Technical Sergeant Thomas M. Thompson visited the campus recently, interviewing men students and accepting applications for aviation cadet aptitude tests. They were impressed by the fact that there were as many veterans among the applicants as those who had not served time. Never say die?

Nebraska Professor Opens Wrong Class

This one has them laughing at the University of Nebraska.

On the first day of second semester classes, a tardy professor walked into a room where 100 students had gathered for a political science class.

He walked briskly to the blackboard, erased what had been written there and announced, "If there's anyone not here for Political Science 4, now is the time to leave."

The students protested. This was Political Science 1, they said. Then it dawned on the bewildered professor, who grinned, apologized and said, "I must be in the wrong room," and left.

Escape To Western Germany

Young Czechoslavakian Risks Life To Find Freedom

Late at night, a black train moved slowly around a curve and turned away from the German border, and began moving deeper into western Czechoslavakia. As the last car came around the curve, a young man made a quick resolution and jumped from the car. He ran hurriedly to shelter in the surrounding woodland.

The young man had left his possessions behind in communist dominated Czechoslavakia: he carried only a small compass and matches to take him safely through 16 miles of heavily guarded woodland to freedom in western Germany.

He'd spent the night in the forest, walking quietly and carefully to avoid being shot on sight. Dawn was lighting the sky when a churchbell began ringing in a hidden woodland village.

The youth followed the sound of the bell to the outskirts of a strange village sleeping on a peaceful Sunday morning.

The shadows next the homes on the long street afforded safety as the young man moved quietly through the village. He wondered where he was. There was no signs, nothing to indicate whether he had safely entered Germany.

Apprehensive, he was leaving the village when he saw a small bulletin board too dark to be read in the morning light; he feared lighting a match and strained to read the writing on the board. He thought he saw German characters; he wasn't sure. He took a terrible chance and struck a match.

The writing on the bulletin board was in German: John Rafanovic had found freedom and a new life.

John Rafanovic is now a student of City College and a citizen of the United States. He left Czechoslavakia in June, 1948, spending several years in Europe before entering this country as an immigrant.

Rafanovic said he left his home because he wanted freedom and the right to pursue his own values of life. In communist dominated Czechoslavakia, he said, there is no freedom for the individual who does not belong to the communist party.

He had been engaged in the hotel trade with the communist party assumed control of the country; a two year economic program was initiated and employees of all the major industries were reduced in number and the burden of industry thrown on the shoulders of workers who belonged to the communist party. Rafanovic, along with other workers who were not affiliated with the party, lost his job; he thereby forfeited job preference to party members and found it almost impossible to obtain work.

Censorship of public opposition. Rafanovic said, was acute; public criticism of the government was forbidden and because of the hazard of citizen arrest, whereby a citizen might inform on a neighbor for suspicion of defaming the government, private conversation was stilted and careful to avoid anything that might be interpreted as dissatisfaction.

Rafanovic said that he, like many other Czechs, found life in communist dominated Czechoslavakia oppressive and dangerous; he wanted to escape to freedom.

After jumping the train and arriving in Germany, Rafanovic eventually reached the American counter intelligence authorities, was screened and freed a stateless person.

For six months, he worked in the town of Diggendorf as a translator; he moved to Hamburg where he presented himself to the International Refugee organization and was placed in a refugee camp.

In the camp, he worked for the IRO as interpreter and translator while waiting for immigration to the United States. He was granted the right to enter the U. S. in 1950, arrived here and worked on a farm in the same year.

The Army drafted him and he was sent to Berlin to work with the intelligence service as a translator and interpreter. Having completed two years of service, he was returned to the United States and discharged.

After working briefly in a local brewery, Rafanovic entered City College of San Francisco as a veteran and began his studies of civil engineering.

January 4 of this year, Rafanovic became a citizen of the United States and experienced again the sense of relief and joy he had when he read the bulletin board in western Germany and knew he had crossed safely to freedom.—By Harold Painter.

Cloud Hall Has Modern Movie Facilities

At the touch of a button, a motion picture screen unrolls silently from the ceiling. Another switch is flicked and the windowless room is filled with picture and sound: this is transition that takes place daily in three unique film-viewing rooms in newly-dedicated Cloud Hall.

The projection room offers the latest features in classroom motion picture exhibition. Wall speakers, built-in projection platforms, theatre-type seats with hinged writing boards, and automatically dimmed lights are all part of the acoustically designed rooms.

Credit for planning of the college's expanded audio-visual aids program goes to Madison Devlin, instructor in the department since 1947.

Located on the second floor of the three-level building, the department facilities include workroom space, film vaults, a completely equipped darkroom.

Distribution of films and equipment will be speeded with use of a pass-through wall in the spacious front office.

When it was created in 1947, the audio-visual department had but two film projectors, one phonograph and an old mirrorphone recorder. Under Devlin's guidance, the department has progressed until it now has over 60 pieces of available equipment, including film projectors, phonographs, slide and opaque projectors and tape recorders.

The college owns approximately 120 films, and the department can obtain motion pictures from libraries over the country.

Upon its move to Cloud Hall into its new ecru and foam-green offices, Devlin claims the department will have facilities and offer services second to no other college in the country; and, when students are participants in the plush projection-room scene already described, this statement will certainly seem a reality.

Carlson Breezes To Big Seven Record As Modesto Wins All-League Meet

Ram Half-Miler's Mark Bright Spot As Tracksters Finish Fifth

Al Carlson, unbeaten Ram half-miler, romped to a new Big Seven 880 record in the Conference Meet last Saturday as Modesto, taking advantage of their home track and at full team strength, eased into the 1954 team track and field championship of the Big Seven.

Five new league standards were set in the meet and two others tied, but Carlson's run was the top job of the day. His mark of 1:57.2 easily bettered the old mark of 1:59.0, set by Sacramento's John Blackwood in 1951.

Modesto captured seven of 14 firsts as they swept to 59½ points, 30 more than Santa Rosa, their nearest competitor. The Rams picked up 13 points for fifth place.

Modestans accounted for two of the new records and both of the tied marks. Don Malinoff shattered his own discus record of 140-4¾, set last year, with a toss of 147-1¾ and Proverb Jacobs put the shot 49-3½" to break Clyde Wetter's 1952 mark of 49-1¾.

The two tied marks were credited to the Pirate's sprinter, Chuck McGuiness. He took the 100 yard dash in :09.0 and the 220 in :21.6. McGuinness won the trophy for individual high scorer by virtue of his double win and a lap on the winning relay team, edging out Stockton's Don Ludlow, a double winner in the mile and two-mile.

Other new marks were set by Santa Rosa's Ron Walters in the high jump with a mark of 6-2⅝, bettering his own record of 6-1½, and by Larry Robbins of Santa Rosa, whose :24.5 in the 220 low hurdles broke the record :24.8 made by Ram Vern Chambers in 1953.

The other point getters for the college were Henry Stroughter, with a third in the mile and a second in the two-mile, and the relay team of Jack Connell, Ray MacIntyre, Bob Cross and Carlson. Charley Smock lost out in the finals of the low hurdles, Connell barely missed placing in the 220, Bill Canihan was edged out in the high hurdles and Harold Hill missed in the 880. Jim Kanihan and Dick Fulge were eliminated in the afternoon heats of the high and low hurdles respectively.

College Golfers Lose Close One To San Mateans

By Bob Chrisman

Despite a brilliant display of golf in which the entire team scores averaged 79, the Ram golfers lost a heartbreaking match to an inspired San Mateo team by one point.

It was the first loss of the season by the college golf team which has been rated by Coach Ralph Hillsman as "the best group of players as a team that I've ever had." San Mateo squeezed by the linkmen by the tight score of 8½ to 6½.

Gene George, a consistently strong performer for the college in the number one spot, suffered his first loss of the season when he dropped a close match to Charles Leider, who shot a 74 to outshine George's 77 and thereby collected 2½ points.

In the number two match, Tony Prinz of the Rams won his match with a 78. Lou Sartor, the number three man for the college, was leading his opponent going into the sixth hole, but the San Mateen took the next four holes, and picked up three points for San Mateo as he went on to win with a 77 over Sartor's 79.

Although Bob Flanagan shot an 81 and Dave Watkins a 79, San Mateo was able to salvage enough points to get a score of 8½ and win the match.

However, the Ram golf team is still in the race for the championship of the Big Seven Conference. They will meet a dangerous Modesto team at Modesto which boasts a record-breaker in their number one man, who shot a 65 at the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Championships to set a new record.

League standings:

Team	Won	Lost	Tie
Santa Rosa	4	1	0
San Mateo	3	1	0
CCSF	2	1	1
Sacramento	1	2	1
West CC	0	4	0

RAMBLINGS

By Gail Allan Moss

ONE of the most courageous athletes in the history of City College — or any college — received his teaching credentials recently and is now teaching at a San Francisco elementary school.

Don Grant, when he first came to City College, was so crippled with polio that it was impossible for him to stand for more than five or ten seconds. Not only did he get his college education under these circumstances, but he turned out for athletics.

He first played baseball for the Rams, even though he had to play on his knees, rising for just those few seconds to make a throw. Then, at the University of California, he made the football team, still playing on his knees and still rising up for just enough time to make a tackle or throw a block.

After completing his learning under these adverse conditions, he started in with his chosen career of teaching. At first his job was as a substitute teacher in grammar schools around the city and everywhere that he went he was popular with his students.

Now Grant is a regular teacher, holding a regular job despite his terrific handicap. He is certainly the most courageous and determined man that we have ever met, and his love for athletics and generally wonderful outlook on life should be an inspiration for anyone who knows his story.

Gil McDougald, infielder for the World Champion New York Yankees and American League Rookie of the Year for 1951, was once a student at the college. Sadly enough for Bill Fischer, he never played in a Ram uniform.

In addition to veteran quarterbacks Ray Arata and Al DeLaTorre, both Les Barros and Johnny O'Rourke, the first and second string All-City San Francisco signal-callers last year, are enrolled here. Arata was second string choice for Big Seven All-Conference in 1953, so Coach Grover Klemmer should be well-stocked at the important position this Fall.

Ray MacIntyre, sprinter for the Ram tracksters, can finally shave. He had vowed not to use his razor until he won a race. He finally came in first in the 100 yard dash against San Mateo, and his words as he crossed the finish line were "I can shave."

Jerry Landi, All-Conference tackle with the Rams last year, has traded his Red and White uniform for a khaki one.

Thinclads Prep For NCJC Track Meet Saturday

Top trackmen from four Northern California two-year college conferences will compete against one another in the Northern California Junior College Meet this Saturday, May 8, at Santa Rosa.

The Big Seven Conference, Golden Valley League, Coast Conference and Central Conference are the leagues competing.

Three men, chosen from the four all-conference meets, will represent each league in each event. Of these, four from each event will represent Northern California in the State Junior College Meet on May 22. The location of the all-state affair is as yet undecided.

Top performers for the Big Seven are many. In the sprints, Santa Rosa's Larry Robbins and Sacramento's Cleo Beatty are the main threats. Both have recorded good times in the 100 and 220 yard dashes and each is strong in at least one other event. Robbins is a consistent winner in the 220 low hurdles and Beatty should score points in the 440.

The strongest man in the middle distances is easily Al Carlson, Ram half-miler. Carlson has yet to be challenged this year and is a definite threat for honors in the state competition.

Other top performers are Stockton's Don Ludlow in the mile and two mile, Modesto's Ray Goodwin in the broad jump and Santa Rosa's Ron Walters in the high jump. Walters holds the Santa Rosa record for the event with 6-5⅜.

Netmen Shoot For Conference Honors

With a record of 4 wins and 1 loss to cinch second place, the City College tennis team will shoot for individual honors in the Big Seven Conference Championships this Friday at Golden Gate Park.

A recent league match with Sacramento at Golden Gate Park has been played, but the results were unavailable at press time.

At the end of each tennis season, the Big Seven Conference Championships are held, and the quarter-finalists of this tourney will be eligible for participation in the California Junior College championships which will be held in Modesto on May 15 and 16.

Any member of a Big Seven Conference team can participate in the Conference Championships. The following is the draw for the City College players:

Wright vs. Foley (San Mateo)
Chrisman vs. Robins (West Contra Costa)
Wing vs. Schaefer (Santa Rosa)
Gordon vs. Tuselle (Stockton)
Kopp vs. Uchytel (Santa Rosa)
Matsumoto vs. Wong (San Mateo)

In the doubles, three teams from the college will participate:

Wright & Kopp, bye
Matsumoto & Gordon vs. Wester & Tuselle (Stockton)
Chrisman & Wing vs. Guerra & Lawson (Stockton)

Chronological Age Doesn't Hinder Oldest Collegiate Tennis Star

By Humberto Fischnaler

Somewhere in Florida there is a fountain. Satchel Paige found it. Jersey Joe Walcott drank from it and Ponce de Leon, a tennis aficionado must have given tennis player Bill Wright a flask of the wondrous elixir that flows from this Fountain of Youth as a tribute to Wright's longevity.

For at the age of 44 years, Bill Wright, an engineering student at the college, is the oldest collegiate tennis player in the country.

Not only that but he is one of the top netmen in the state as witness the fact that he was ranked third in California two-year college play last year.

Noted for a backhand which is his best weapon he defeated Modesto's Reyes, Mexican Davis Cupper, in a doubles match last season only to have the decision reversed in the State finals at Fullerton late in the season.

A former Merchant Marine engineer, Wright has traveled all over the world and it might well have been in his travels that he met Ponce de Leon and the old Spanish Conquistador responded by giving him the celebrated potion.

Certainly there is no evidence toward a let down on his part. The only dual match defeat Wright has suffered so far this year has been to Modesto's Pancho Contreras, another former Mexican Davis Cupper, and that's certainly no disgrace.

He came to the college from Seattle, Washington, and under the tutelage of Coach Roy Diederichsen, the "youngster" developed into quite a tennis player.

Rams Try For Initial Win In League Play, Journey To Modesto For Double Header

City College's cellar-dwelling baseball club travels to Modesto Saturday, May 8, to engage that squad in a couple of Big Seven conference games.

West Contra Costa proved too strong for Bill Fischer's lads as the Comets decisioned the college 6-1 in a game played on the winner's home field Saturday, April 24.

Gene Stang pitched a five-hitter and Don Motolza homered with one on in the seventh tuning to lead the Comets to the lopsided victory.

Stan Fetterman allowed only seven hits, one more than the college could muster off the West Contra Costa pitching but still was charged with the defeat.

The doubleheader against Modesto could prove to be the start of a trek from the league basement to a higher position in the standings as the Rams enter the decisive stage of competition.

Coach Fischer stated that the college team has had its share of bad luck but will give any club a fight this season.

Players like Nolan Wilson, Rich Bandettini, Tom Roper and Stan Fetterman are valuable assets to the college cause and as long as they and the rest of the team are around, Big Seven clubs can expect determined opposition from the locals.

League standings:

Team	Won	Lost
Stockton	6	2
Modesto	3	1
West CC	5	3
Sacramento	3	5
San Mateo	2	4
CCSF	0	6

With the second largest sign-up in the college's history, 40 students, the campus novice All-City College Tournament slowly shapes up as the best fistic attraction in recent years, according to head boxing instructor here, Roy Diederichsen.

The largest sign-up was in 1948, when 90 men turned out for the annual ring affair.

Diederichsen stated that at least ten more leather-throwers are expected to sign with the manager of their choice this week. He added that applications for the tourney will be accepted until weigh-in dates which will be May 18 and 19.

Following are the names of fighters and their managers who have entered the tournament which is scheduled for May 26:

College's Prep Day Scheduled May 12; High School Student Leaders Will Tour Campus

Semi-annual Prep Day will be held at the college Wednesday, May 12, Alberta Cordini, Associated Student vice-president and chairman of the Prep Day committee, announced this week.

"Prep Day is designed for high school students who are contemplating attending the college and to acquaint them with the varied fields of educatioin and fine instruction available at the college," Miss Cordini stated.

The day's activities will start at approximately 8:45 a.m. with a meeting in the reserve reading room of Cloud Hall. Student leaders from San Francisco's seven Public High Schools will be served coffee, orange juice and snails before the main meeting gets underway, she said.

Registration will also be held during the interim for the student leaders attending the semi-annual affair.

Tour of the campus will commence at approximately 9:45 a.m., she added. Main feature of the tour will be Cloud Hall and the displays set up for Dedication Day.

Students will visit the classes of their choice between the hours of 11 a.m. and 12 noon. From 12 noon to 12:30 p.m., they will visit places of interest that were missed during the main tour.

Luncheon will be served to the educational and student leaders by the Hotel and Restaurant department in the faculty dining room, Miss Cordini said.

Invitations have been sent by Miss Cordini to Dr. Herbert C. Clish and all members of the Board of Education, Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, will host the high school principals.

Approximately 70 student leaders are expected to participate in the Associated Student sponsored day.

The semi-annual affair was started last semester and it was termed a "huge success" by Miss Cordini.

Committee chairmen for the day as announced by Miss Cordini are as follows:

Decoration, Mikie Wrenn; Secretarial, Dottie Cutler and Patty Mascarelli; Guides, Alice St. Louis and Ken Felldin; Registration, Marcia Norstrom and Jim Moody; Entertainment, Jim Glasson; Luncheon, Roberta Usher and Bob Arago; Programs, Paul Ortiz; Serving, Jan Sewall.

Commencement Committee To Select Speakers

Speakers committee for commencement here met last week to formulate a policy in the selection of student speakers, Edwin C. Browne, chairman of the commencement committee, announced here yesterday.

Two speakers will be selected from the graduates who are participating in the commencement exercises to be held on Friday, June 18, at Riordan High School auditorium, Browne stated.

Students will be selected from a group nominated by department chairmen and administrators who feel that their nominees, by reason of their past academic record at the college, should be offered the opportunity to try out, Browne said.

Try-out dates have as yet not been set, Browne noted, but will be announced directly following submission of names of students scholastically eligible.

Speakers will be selected not only for their academic standing, Browne pointed out, but also for their general contribution to the college over the years, and especially for their public speaking ability.

Midterms Replace May 7 College Hour

No college hour is scheduled for Friday, May 7, because of midterms, according to Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here.

All classes on that day will meet ten minutes after the hour, following the regular daily schedule.

A student holiday originally scheduled for next Friday, May 14, has been postponed until Friday, May 21. Regular college hour scheduling will be in effect May 14.

Committee Reviews Award Candidates

Alice Eastwood awards committee had a meeting May 3 to consider and review applications for the award, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men here, announced yesterday.

The award, given in Miss Eastwood's memory, is provided for the college by the San Francisco Garden Club, Browne said.

An annual purse of one hundred dollars is awarded at the college's annual commencement to the outstanding student or students who major in Floriculture, Browne noted.

Miss Eastwood was a noted botanist and horticulturist of the California Academy of Sciences.

West Campus Packs Bags, Moves Out

Gradual move from former classrooms in the Science Building and on the west campus to new rooms in Cloud Hall is slowly taking place, President Louis G. Conlan stated recently.

Drafting classes already occupy rooms in the new building, Conlan added. The business department will be the next to move after furniture has been placed in the classrooms. Other classes will be moved at random.

Cloud Hall will be completely occupied by the end of the spring semester, but a few west campus facilities such as the cafeteria, fountain, auditorium, campus bookstore and parking area will still be used for the college.

Cloud Portrait Unveiled At Dedication

Oil Painting Of Former President In New Library

By John Murray

The day of Cloud Hall dedication was drawing near and Joe Garbarino, Associated Student president, rushed up to his cousin, Dr. Nicholas Ferrando, with a picture of President Emeritus Archibald J. Cloud and asked, "Can you do a portrait in oils in time for the dedication"

A short time later Garbarino showed up on campus with a large canvas and during the April 25 ceremonies, the work of art was unveiled.

Most of the comments on the portrait were centered around the artist's skill in capturing the likeness and personality of Dr. Cloud. The portrait now hangs in a place of honor in the new building.

Dr. Ferrando is a native San Franciscan practicing medicine here. He received his early schooling in the city but obtained his medical degree in Italy where he spent much of his life.

In 1947 he returned from that war-torn country to carry on his practice in the United States.

Since he obviously can not follow the rule of "an apple a day," he turns to his paints whenever he is not working, a hobby which he believes is good medicine for relaxation.

WAA Representatives Participate In Playday At Washington High

A group from the Women's Athletic Association will represent the college at a playday at Washington High School today, Joan Anderson, WAA president, announced.

Participants in this playday were in the winning group at the Lincoln High School playday. The scores were 41-28.

One hundred twenty-five students from seven two-year colleges in the Bay Area participated in the Inter-Collegiate badminton and tennis sportsday at the men's and women's gymnasiums here on April 24.

East Contra Costa Junior College took top honors in the women's badminton events by winning first and second singles and first and second doubles. In the men's badminton events West Contra Costa won first singles and first doubles while San Mateo took second singles and second doubles.

City College players got as far in the events as follows: Carol Wong, semi-finals, first singles; Martha Dill, finals, second singles; Helen Gee and Judy Wong, semi-finals, first doubles; Paula Bakalar and Miki Wrenn, finals, second doubles.

The college's Betty and Barbara Lumsden won the women's doubles match in tennis. Santa Rosa took men's and women's singles and men's doubles. Napa won the mixed doubles match.

On April 21 the WAA basketball group sponsored a playday for Washington and Galileo High Schools. Results were as follows: CCSF 6-Galileo 4; CCSF 6-Washington 6; Galileo 6-Washington 6; CCSF 6-Galileo 0.

Two representatives from the college will attend, Miss Anderson said.

Council Approves Campus Police Pay For Mardi Gras

By Deane Wylie

Participants in a semester-long dispute over the Campus Police budget continued to wrangle in Associated Student Council sessions last week—the AS Finance Commiitee parrying with the police over problems of the Mardi Gras vs. a police banquet vs. considerable confusion.

Apparently the winners were the Mardi Gras and the confusion, when the council voted unanimously to uphold a proposal originally set forth by the Associated Men Students wherein the police would be paid $7.50 per man for services on the evening of the Mardi Gras.

After a request by Leo Hertog, Campus Police liaison officer in the AS President's Cabinet, for an additional $100 over the police budget allotment to be used for a semester's-end banquet, a motion that would have allocated the extra amount was defeated by the council by an eight-no, three-yes vote, with four abstensions.

After a few moments of perplexity and indecision over the motions and amendments to motions being presented, the council decided that the votes in regard to the banquet and Mardi Gras service would finally bring to a halt the controversy which had been continued since early March, when the current semester's financial report was first considered by the council, and would officially complete the report.

St. Francis Yacht Club Announced As Site Of Soph Ball

Sophomore week committee plans for the Sophomore Ball were announced here last week by Jim Vickers, Sophomore class president.

St. Francis Yacht Club in Yacht Harbor is the scene for the ball to be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., Saturday, June 12, Vickers said.

Tickets will cost $2.50 per couple whether students are members of the Associated Students or not, Vickers further stated.

Semi-formal dress will be the proper attire, Vickers added.

Plans for the traditional Soph-Prof game are not complete, and details will be announced at a later date, Vickers said.

During the years of heavy immigration to the United States, more men than women were immigrants, but since 1930 more women than men have entered the country.

Scholarship Award Board Decides On Winners Today

Winners of the six scholarships to be awarded here this semester will be decided when the members of the scholarship awards committee meet today, Mary Golding, dean of women here, announced last week.

Applications have been received from 31 students, she said, from whom the committee will choose three men and three women to be awarded the scholarships.

The awards will be given sometime this month, Miss Golding added, and the date of the awarding and when the recipients' names will be announced are also to be decided upon at today's meeting.

Present at the meeting will be Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator, division of student welfare, Dr. Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, Miss Golding and Maurice Power, instructor, she said.

Four scholarships of $50 each will be from the Cloud Foundation, a fund in honor of A. J. Cloud, president emeritus of the college, to two men and two women, according to Miss Golding. One man and one woman will be awarded $50 each by the Graduating Class of 1953 scholarship committee, she added.

Winners of the scholarships will be determined, she said, by the committee's consideration of the students' scholastic and extra-curricular records and their financial need for the scholarships.

Draft Deferment Tests May 20

Administration of a special College Qualification Test was announced this week by the Selective Service National Headquarters in Washington, to be given Thursday, May 20, here and at colleges throughout the United States.

Given to provide a basis for draft deferment of eligible college students by local draft boards, the examination will be the last opportunity for students to take the test in the present academic year.

Selective Service explained that the special test will be for the benefit of students prevented by illness or other emergency from attending one of the regular tests on November 19, 1953, and April 22, 1954.

Applications postmarked to and including May 10, 1954, will be accepted, but eligible students are urged by the Selective Service to secure, complete and mail their applications at once.

In filling in the applications, obtainable at any local Selective Service board, students should cross out "April 22" opposite the space reading "Center No." and write in "May 20", according to the Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the College Qualification Test.

Library Acquires New Magazines

To meet the popular demand of students who are interested in current magazines, the college library has acquired many new subscriptions, in addition to renewing various old ones, according to Clement Skrabak, library staff member here.

Magazines now on display in the racks range from household types to sports and car types, Skrabak said, and will supply many interested students.

Although these magazines may not be borrowed on the same two-week basis as books, Skrabak stated, many of the periodicals can be taken out for over-night use.

Two more magazine racks have been installed in the library, to provide ample space for the literature expected, Skrabak announced.

Plans for the move to the new library in Cloud Hall are well under way, Skrabak added, but they will not be completed until the necessary furniture has arrived.

The geographic center of the United States is in Smith County, Kansas, latitude 39° 50', longitude 98° 35'.

College Greets 65 Student Leaders Today At Semi-Annual Prep Day

Palace Hotel Is ISC Dance Site Friday Night

Concert Room of the Palace Hotel has been selected as the location for this year's annual Inter-Sorority Council dance, to be held on Friday, May 14, according to Felicia Zeiger, ISC president here.

Instead of the usual hours of 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, the dance will be held from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m., Miss Zeiger announced.

All students of the college and their dates are invited to the dance, Miss Zeiger emphasized.

"The ISC dance is always one of the most important events of the semester and it is always well attended," she commented.

Presidents of all campus sororities and their officers helped complete details for the dance.

Commencement Speakers To Be Chosen Next Week

Eleven candidates for commencement speakers were suggested to a speakers' committee last week, Edwin C. Browne, chairman of the commencement committee here, announced yesterday.

Eligible student's names were submitted to the committee by departmental chairmen and administrators on May 5, Browne stated.

When considering the eligibility of a student, administrators evaluated past academic records, and also reviewed contributions and service given to the college by the candidate, Browne pointed out.

From the eleven candidates, the committee will select two students as speakers for the June 18 commencement to be held at Riordan High School Auditorium.

William Culver, chairman of the speaker's committee, met today with the eleven candidates.

May 19 is the date set for the next meeting of the committee, when they will again review all candidates' qualifications.

AS Council Holds Special Meeting On Mardi Gras; Members Vote To Keep Traditional College Carnival

By Deane Wylie

Decision to hold the college's Mardi Gras carnival on Friday, May 21, as originally scheduled was reached by the council of the Associated Students in a special meeting here April 30, called at the request of the Associated Men Student President Bill Boldenweck.

When a faculty institute day was changed from May 14 to May 21, discussion arose as the advisability of holding the Mardi Gras on a student holiday. On its regular meeting April 27 the council had voted unanimously not to change the date of the celebration, but argument continued in regard to student indifference to the occasion.

The question of financial profit was also vigorously discussed, after Finance Committee Chairman Wray Jacobs pointed out that last year's Mardi Gras lost money after grossing $1,169 before payments of $1,091 to concerned activities plus $320 to the AMS, who sponsor the event.

Presenting his views on the situation, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men here, prefaced his remarks with "This is on my own." Continuing, he said "The fact that it (the Mardi Gras) is tradition does not make it valid. Murder has been a tradition in some places."

"The campus police at $7.50 per man won't solve the control problem," Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here, stated. "If you people take a hike, the administration is left in the open," Batmale added. "This is to be your decision and the administration won't stop you."

William Culver, chairman of the speaker's committee, met today with the eleven candidates.

"Don't duck the responsibilities of control. The Mardi Gras is a good public relations measure if it's a good one," he concluded.

"Let's go ahead and hold it," Boldenweck stated as the special session ended.

Publication Date Of Forum June 3

Publication date for Forum, the annual college literary magazine, is Thursday, June 3, Harold Painter, Forum editor, announced here this week. Beginning on that date, 1,000 copies will be distributed at The Rumporium.

The magazine will be lithographed with reproductions of art and sculpture work, according to Painter. The 32 page magazine is composed of work submitted by students.

Eight cover designs have been submitted by the advertising art class, he said. All covers are in black and white. Painter expressed the appreciation of the Forum staff for the cooperation of students and instructors who have strived to make the magazine one of the best published here.

There will be no charge for the magazine to members of the Associated Students, Painter said. Anyone who is not a member of the AS will be charged 50 cents. He added that distribution will continue as long as copies are left and an interest is shown in obtaining the magazine.

Two Candidates Run For Office As Independents

Two students announced this week that they would run independently for Associated Student offices in the June 2-3 election here. Bill Boldenweck, current Associated Men Student president, and Paul Ortiz, Freshman Class president, indicated they would file for the offices of AS president and AMS presidency, respectively.

The two men, both Inter-Fraternity Council members, were closely edged for official IFC nominations at that party's convention here April 28.

Boldenweck lost the party nomination for AS president on the fifth convention ballot to John La Cava, while Ortiz was defeated by a majority vote on the fifth ballot by Bill Phillips in the contest for the AMS presidential nomination.

Candidate petitions for Associated Student offices are available at the student body cards in Science Building, at The Rumporium and at the AS office in Building 2. Deadline for return of the petitions is next Wednesday, May 19, according to Election Commissioners Emily Hardy and Jane Zelinsky.

Students who petition for candidacy must be enrolled in a minimum of 12 units and must have a "C" average.

This Week's AS Campus Activities

Activities open to all Associated Students this week are as follows:

- AMS: Meeting today, Building 2B, 2 p.m.

Institute Cancels Next College Hour

Faculty members from San Francisco junior and senior high schools will tour the college Friday, May 14, in connection with High School Teachers Institute Day, according to college President Louis G. Conlan.

As a result, there is no college hour scheduled for that day, Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here, announced. It has been canceled in order that teachers may visit classes and become acquainted with the curriculum of the college. Approximately 100 instructors will attend.

Mardi Gras Booth, Parade Plans Drawn

Booth and parade preparation and promotion combined this week to push the college's annual Mardi Gras carnival to be held this year on Friday night, May 21.

Already the boardwalk between Building 2 and the fountain is being cleared for the coming event. Petitions for Mardi Gras participation were handed in last Tuesday.

Those organizations who handed in petitions include Alpha Gamma Sigma, Beta Phi Beta, the Band Association, Block SF, the Chinese Club, Delta Psi, the Engineering Society and Theta Tau. A complete list of the submitted petitions will be available later, AMS President Bill Boldenweck announced.

All organizations which submitted petitions, Boldenweck added, will put up their booths on the afternoon of Thursday, May 20.

On the promotional side, arrangements have been completed for announcements on the McGraw-McRitchie Show (KGO-TV), the Del Courtney Show (KPIX) and the Lee Giroux Show (KGO).

Saturday night has been announced as the date for the precue showing of the Drama Society's Mardi Gras production. Invitations have been sent to representatives of campus clubs and organizations as well as to faculty members.

Arrangements are being made to edit film strips for television spot announcements using selected shots from the 1951 Mardi Gras.

Parade preparations are being completed. The parade, featuring floats, bands and march order, will start at Junipero Serra Boulevard and Ocean Avenue, continuing over Ocean to the college, and circling the west campus.

USA Nominates Candidates Today

United Student Association candidates for the June Associated Student elections here will be nominated at the USA's semi-annual convention this afternoon at 2:30 p.m. in Building 2A, according to Robert Moore, USA president.

Petitions for the party's nominations may be obtained from any USA officer at the AS office in Building 2, Moore said. He stressed that the petitions must be filed before 1 p.m. this afternoon.

Speaker for the convention will be an educational leader who will guide the party in its nominations, Moore said.

He listed the following students as convention officers: Moore, presiding, Dave Raphael, vice-president, Mildred Stoll, secretary, and Wray Jacobs, teller.

Moore stated that at present no definite USA platform has been formed, and that establishment and adoption of a platform will take place at today's meeting.

He noted that the motto of the party is Spectemur Agendo — "Let Them Judge Us by Our Deeds," and added that all interested persons are welcome to attend the convention this afternoon.

Welcome To Your College—'Won't You Join Us—And Soon'

TODAY we have among us some distinguished guests, visitors from the city's public high schools, many of whom will be students of City College of San Francisco in the near future.

These representatives are certainly more than welcome and their presence here benefits both the guests and the college immeasurably.

More and more the secondary school students of San Francisco are realizing that City College is their college—their best opportunity for higher education.

All of us here know the soundness of the college's program, but a main problem in the past has been to get that knowledge to the prospective college students.

With the innovation of Prep Day last semester a solution to that "problem" became evident; high school students can now see for themselves, at first hand, the program's soundness and the friendliness and cooperation of our students, faculty and administration.

City College of San Francisco was established in 1935 for the benefit of the community's youth, and a great percentage of that group has taken advantage of its curriculum, which is devoted to their future success.

However, now even more of the city's youth, possibly a large number of the present high school graduates which today's guests represent, can realize the important place in their lives which their college, City College of San Francisco, can play.

Still, the question of "why attend a two-year college" may arise in some minds. An actual understanding of the college, which student visitors can now receive, will answer that question in favor of enrollment in a two-year college, their college—City College of San Francisco.

The same courses which are offered at most four-year colleges and universities are taught here, and we have the added advantage of smaller classes and of, therefore, a more closely knit student-instructor relationship.

The same credit is received for these courses at City College as at four-year institutions.

Consider the words of Dr. Herman A. Spindt, director of admissions at the University of California, who has said: "I can assure you the student will be fully as well served in his first two years of college schooling at C College of San Francisco as at the University (of California)."

Dr. Spindt's remark was prompted by "the excellence of the record of transfer students to the University of California from City College of San Francisco."

The college administration practises the theory that an academically sound person such as our instruction produces must also be socially sound if he is to be a success in life.

Following this theory we are given a free hand in City College's own student government organization, the Associated Students.

Opportunities for student activity in the association are endless, the group planned Prep Day as one of its "pet" projects with the advice and aid of the college administration and faculty.

This newspaper you are reading is completely student financed, organized, written and edited with advice of a journalism instructor who, as in all college student organizations, advises on "how to do," never on "what to do."

Production of a student newspaper is only one phase of student activity. There are clubs and organizations on campus which represent every possible student interest and which are financed and operated by students through the ASCCSF.

Fraternities, sororities, honor societies, athletic teams, debating teams; you name it and—"we got it and you can easily join it."

So, on behalf of the entire college we welcome Prep Day guests and extend our invitation to look over the campus, its facilities and its personnel. After a thorough inspection, think seriously of joining us for the next two years. The benefits you'll reap will be of the greatest consequence.

When you're touring the college we're sure you'll echo our appreciation to some educational leaders, who are also your fellow visitors today—men and women whose untiring work helps keep City College at its high level; San Francisco's high school administrators, who aid in the training of our well-prepared students, members of the city Board of Education, and the superintendents of schools who oversee all San Francisco education.

We hope to see all of the student visitors again after commencement, and we hope to see those guests who are a few years past high school, but nevertheless considered the college's number one honorary students, at every possible opportunity.

It has always been to City College of San Francisco's credit to be associated with such distinguished persons and it is our sincerest wish that they'll consider it to their credit to be associated with us.

Youth And Age Attend College

By Bev Swope

Youth and age plus 3,880 day students at the college unite to prove that whether 15 or 50, no one is ever too young or too old to learn.

Doubtless a child prodigy, the youngest student here is a 15 year old male. Only four students, evenly distributed two and two between the sexes, are saved 16.

Average college "Joe" is 19 years old, and his female counterpart college "Jane" is 18. She belongs to the largest single age group, which is 926 members strong, consisting of 481 men and 436 women.

The second largest age group the 19 year olds, has a total of 832 500 of whom are men.

Men outnumber women in every age group except the over 40 age level. Here women outnumber men more than two to one with 100 females competing against only 46 males. How many of these women are married and how many are not, statistics do not reveal.

In Spring of 1953 every student enrolled here was 17 years of age or older, and 166 students were more than 40 years of age.

Only a small percentage of students here has reached voting age. Out of the 3,880 enrolled day students, 1,625 are 21 or over. Two hundred and forty one of these just recently had their twenty-first birthday.

ROTC Colonel Has Odd Major

For the first time in the history of the University of Cincinnati, a has chosen to major in kindergarten teaching.

This makes the student, Thomas Salyers, the only male in a class about 60 coeds. But Salyers, an ROTC cadet colonel who intends to make the army his career, says he doesn't see "anything so unusual" about it.

"After all," he explained, "I'm just doing, on a larger scale, what every man does at home during the time he rears his own small children."

A Dartmouth student picked up an easy $30 on a bet recently. All he had to do was slip a goldfish or two into his tumbler and gulp them down.

FOR FROSH

Here are five commandments for freshmen, as imagined by the Daily Californian, University of California:

1. No high school paraphernalia will be tolerated and thou shalt not blister ostentatiously about childhood achievements.

2. Thou shalt diligiously pack as much wood to all rallies as any puny muscles can uphold.

3. Thou shalt not pose as "Big Man on Campus."

4. Thou shalt learn that saddle levis and such do not constitute the proper full dress and should be worn only at brawls.

5. Thou shalt live in most reverential awe and undiluted admiration of thy superiors, the all powerful class of 1955.—Compiled from AC releases.

Shots At Ramdom

Feathered Friend Finds Cafeteria Ideal Stop-Over For Breakfast

By Shirley Murphy

AN unexpected visitor dropped in to the cafeteria one morning last week for breakfast. Students dining peacefully felt a cooling breeze above their heads. Cause of the draft was a bird of unknown extraction. Speculators surmised, because of the tropical appearance of the feathered one, that it had paused to feast on its way to the South Seas.

The Inferno

A paper cup brigade was formed by two students to extinguish a fire in a trash can outside the fountain. A group of onlookers, less heroically bent, applauded their sterling performance.

Show Must Go On

Sombre figure crawling about the floor during the Friday night performance of The Curious Savage was not a misplaced second story man. It was merely the producer of the drama, turning his dexterous hand to engineering.

Growing Pains

Constant influx of new books into the library necessitated the building of more shelves to house them. Student Jacob Arnoutsoo performed the carpentering chores.

Pleasant Task

Five emissaries from the college matriculated to Sutter College to aid the Gators in judging the semi-annual campus queen contest. Lucky delegates were Dean Edwin C. Browne, Joseph Amori, Joe Garbarino, Walt Yakovleff and Bill Boldenweck.

Book Displays Aid Library

Displays play an important role in the maintenance of the college library.

Like any other department of the college, the library too must make itself known to students and faculty alike, in order to give the college population full benefits of what it has to offer.

For the past two semesters, this job was given to a student here, who has been commended many times by the library staff, for the excellent work he has been doing.

The student is Walter Splitt, who is majoring in floriculture and who takes a business course on the side, in order to get a full background for the florist shop he expects to open after graduating from college.

His interest in displays and such, was discovered last semester when Splitt was in charge of the Science Building show case displays.

Book information displayed is unlimited. Literature, ranging from fiction to non-fiction is used in the cases.

Bath Tubs And Bedsteads Too Cumbersome To Take Camping

By Harold Painter

PART of the art of camping is knowing what not to bring along.

For instance, bringing a hundred pounds of bedding on a camping trip is like bringing towels, sheets, and soap when going for a stay at the Palace Hotel.

Nature is not as given to catering as the Palace. But it is willing to provide comfort to the man who knows what not to bring along and how to use what he has on hand.

There is an old saying that too many cooks spoil the stew. In camping it's the same thing and a little different . . . too many pots ruin the cook, especially when he has to carry them. Backside cooks are easily discouraged with an axe handle; fatigue won't be beat off.

The Indians used frying pans to tie their horses down at night. The best thing a frying pan can do for a biker is tie down his horsepower. On all but short trips, they should be avoided.

What cannot be cooked in a steel or aluminum pot can be cooked on a wire or stick over the fire. What cannot be cooked by either method should remain behind in the grocery store. A tin cup, pie pan, table spoon and pocket knife will do the rest.

Something a good camp cook never brings along is a forest fire. Worse than burned beans is a barbecued cook and forest. A good fire is made in a cleared space of about five or six feet in diameter with a slight depression in the center to hold the fire. A fire pan will prevent arrest; water and discretion will prevent disaster.

In summer, a tent belongs stacked out in the closet at home. A poncho or shelter-half is light and serviceable as a ground cloth or tent. Either can be used as rain wear.

People used to sing about the bear who climbed over the mountain. There was no garden furniture on his back. Now they're singing about the camper who didn't get over the threshold of his house because he couldn't get the refrigerator through the door.

May Mardi Gras Festival Lends College Campus Gay New Orleans Atmosphere

By John Murray

City College of San Francisco may be a far cry from the New Orleans region, but when it comes to a Mardi Gras, there's little difference.

Mardi Gras here is May 21, just around the corner of expectancy, as it was back in 1946 when the first was produced as a sidekline for the traditional frosh dance that spring.

It may have started as a trial feature on the social calendar, but today it has become the safety valve of the semester when the book worms can effluh out of their library cocoons and spread their wings into the refreshing breezes of Mardi Gras night.

It's fun and fancy free joined by all of San Francisco and points east in parading floats, marching bands, dancing under the stars, brilliant colored booths and concessions while Mardi Gras King and Queen reign supreme.

Such a festival is not without hard work and tears, and the men with the dampest handkerchiefs on the campus are the Associated Men students, led by President Bill Boldenweck, who sponsors the affair.

They start at the beginning of the semester by plowing their way through the allotted budget. After that it is a long and hard grind through the months of planning, meetings, work and more work. When Mardi Gras finally arrives and it is all over, these man can look up at the sky and believe the moon is made of green cheese.

Much care and planning has been placed in the past Mardi Gras days, spreading across the city and state in scope. In 1953 the mayor led the parade down Ocean Avenue, and of course a known tradition among San Franciscans, Horse Trader (I Got 'em) Ed was there too. The parade consisted of hands from all over the state and floats constructed by the Ocean Avenue merchants who aided in the event's support.

This year the college drama society will again do their bid in presenting a colorful display of acting and stage technique. On the proposed program they hope to perform in Building 2 several skits with an interpretation of the Caine Mutiny Trial and Kismet as the feature attractions.

If anything is successful it is a sure sign that plenty of work went into it and that such work does not go unrewarded. Awards presented by the sponsoring groups will be given out to the best booth, float and if so decided, to the best costume, though a masquerade is not required.

Of course, for a night such as this there must be an illusion of fantasy kept up and that is furnished by the crowning of a king and queen. Chosen by a guest panel from a group of contestants, this regal pair will rule their kingdom of mardeaps throughout the night of revelry.

Yes, all this and more. From the first chord of laughter to the last sigh of enjoyment, Mardi Gras is Mardi Gras, whether in New Orleans or here; unforgettable.

Heath, Seals' Manager, Supports College Training For Pro Baseball

If Tommy Heath, manager of the San Francisco Seals, had his way, the local professional baseballers would apparently all be sporting college diplomas.

Heath puts forth some good arguments in favor of the college-trained ballplayer, too, but strangely enough his emphasis is not on the coaching that a man receives in college, but the social and intellectual training.

"Now that professional ballplayers have to be after-dinner speakers and television stars as well, the experience that they get in meeting people and making friends in college is a big help," according to Heath. He feels that a player with a college background has better all-around preparation for a job like professional baseball where he has to meet and impress so many people.

The class of men coming from colleges and universities being what it is, Heath feels that those with a campus background tend to be somewhat smarter than those who have just gone through high school.

"Brains count a lot in baseball," the Seals' boss-man acknowledges, "and anyone who can get through even a year or two of a college must have some sort of intelligence." Heath, a catcher in his playing days and now a highly regarded field general, should appreciate a smart player more than most.

The San Francisco horsehiders are blessed with several men who have some degree of college education. Gordy Brunswick, former Washington State College football star who recently hit two home runs to spark a Seal victory, is one.

Neil Sheridan, a product of University of San Francisco, took his turn at heroing by smacking two hits instrumental in the Seals' second straight triumph over Hollywood recently. The win came before the initial Friday "Family Night" crowd, a fairly large and quite enthusiastic one.

Heath was asked about pitcher Hal Flinn, an alumnus of City College, who was optioned to Victoria early this season.

"Hal has plenty of stuff, enough to pitch anywhere, but his control still needs a little sharpening. If he can improve on that, he should help us a lot next year."

Heath's opinions were generally shared by Walter "The Great" Mails, former Major and Pacific Coast League pitcher and now publicity director of the San Francisco club. Mails' main concern, of course, is getting people out to Seals' Stadium, but he still had time for a kind word about college level ball and what it produces.

If the San Franciscans are any example of what ex-collegians can do for a ball club, then more of them should go into the game, for the Seals, despite a poor start, play a good, sound and thrilling brand of baseball, and one worth seeing.

Winless Baseballers Bid To Leave Cellar In Crucial Doubleheader With Sacramento Nine Saturday

A baseball doubleheader against Sacramento Junior College at Sacramento this Saturday highlights the activities of the college nine for the week. Today the team meets the San Francisco Fire department in a practice game. Saturday's twin bill starts at 12:30.

Santa Rosa proved too strong for the locals as the latter went down to defeat twice 7-3, 9-4 last Mayday. The game was played at Big Rec.

Bob Word went all the way for the Rams and was charged with the defeat in the first game.

Stan Fetterman and Jim Hatchel pitched the second contest but were unable to stop the Santa Rosans. Fetterman was the losing pitcher.

On May 4 the Stanford Braves played the Rams at Stanford and this game ended in a 9 to 9 tie. Outfielder Nolan Wilson played his usual fine game.

Wilson, the leading Ram regular with a .344 batting average, is one of the outstanding batsmen in the Big Seven conference. He should be selected to the All-Conference team according to City College baseball coach Bill Fischer.

As to the squad Fischer commented that the locals are still striving to win their first conference game.

The opportunity to do just that will be provided Saturday against the boys from the Valley.

Oakland College Is Newest Member Of Big Seven Group

Oakland Junior College, scheduled to open in September, has been admitted to the Big Seven Conference and will participate in league basketball play for the 1954-'55 season.

The action was taken at a meeting of the league directors at the office of conference commissioner Harold F. Taggart in San Mateo last week.

Oakland will not field a football team this year and basketball will be the first intercollegiate sport for the new college. Bill Roekwell, highly-regarded coach from Fremont High School, will handle the reins of the Oakland five.

With the addition of the new institution, the name of the league will of necessity be changed. The name now under most serious consideration is the Big Eight. The conference was formerly called the Northern California Junior College Conference, with the name changed to the Big Seven in 1951.

AL CARLSON ace Ram half-miler, recently pulled up with the best race of his career at the Big Seven Conference meet. His spurt in the 880 set a new league record of 1:57.2.

Modesto Wins Big Seven Track

As a result of their convincing victory over the combined forces of the league's other six teams in the Big Seven All-Conference Meet on May 1, Modesto Pirates have the conference track and field champions for 1954.

Modesto took seven of 14 first places and scored 59½ points to clinch the championship that they had set up by going through their conference dual meets undefeated. Santa Rosa finished second with 29½ points, Sacramento third with 24 and West Contra Costa fourth with 16. The Rams were fifth with 13 points, barely edging out Stockton's Mustangs who, led by Don Ludlow's double win in the mile and two mile, took 12 points and sixth place. San Mateo went scoreless.

Ram Golfers Edge Modesto In Close Match, 8½-6½

By Bob Chrisman

In a tight match, City College golfers defeated Modesto 8½ to 6½ in a fifty-mile gale at Modesto recently.

An earlier defeat by San Mateo had put the Rams almost out of the contention for the title, since the league is strong, but the golfers defeated Modesto in the most crucial match of the year and are now in second place.

In the number one match, Gene George held his own with John MacMullen, who is probably the best golfer in the league, and won one point, which later proved to be the winning point. According to Coach Ralph Hillsman, this was the most crucial match of the day. George shot an 77 to MacMullen's 73.

Tony Prinz, in the number two spot, shot an 80 but lost three points to his opponent. Lou Sartor split in the number three match, shooting an 80 to gather up 1½ points. Bob Flanagan defeated his opponent shooting an 80 to garner 3 points. Dave Watkins also shot an 80 to pick up three points.

Since San Mateo dropped their match to Sacramento last week, the Rams stand a chance of backing into the Conference Title, according to Coach Hillsman, if they defeat West Contra Costa.

The roof fell in for the college team to the tune of 7-0, when they met Modesto. Despite a strong fight, the college netmen lost to a superior team, for as always, Modesto is the team to beat in the Big Seven.

City College had little trouble with Stockton, for the tennis team trounced them 7-0.

Santa Rosa won one singles match and one doubles match, but lost to the college tennis team, 5-2.

Sacramento's singles offered little opposition to the Rams, but the doubles matches were close, and both were decided in the third set, and both times, City College triumphed.

Those tennis players who are eligible for athletic awards are Bill Wright, Alan Matsumoto, Hal Kopp, Bob Chrisman and Marvin Gordon. In order to win a Block SF, a player must win three-fourths of the matches played.

Boxers Shape Up For Tourney Night

With the All-City College boxing tournament a short two weeks away, expectant participants on the ring card knuckle down to a serious training routine this week in preparation for that big night, Roy Diederichsen, head boxing instructor announced recently.

The tourney schedule for Wednesday, May 26, will send to the pits eighteen students in a nine bout program.

Fight managers, anticipating rough competition from their opponents, are rocking their brains nightly trying to come up with some special fight strategy for their boys to use in the square circle.

WAA To Compete In Napa Swim Meet

City College mermaids will be among the competitors at a Swimming Sports Day at Napa College on Saturday, May 22, according to Joan Anderson, president of the Women's Athletic Association here.

They will participate in the following events: 25 yard free style, 25 yard backstroke, 25 yard breaststroke, 3 women free-style relay, 3 women medley relay (back, breast free-style; 25 yards each), 2 stunt relays (3 women).

College Netmen Smash Panthers

City College's tennis team ended Big Seven Conference play by thumping Sacramento 7-0 to finish in second place in the league.

It was a successful season for the college netmen, for they suffered only one loss the whole season, and that was to Modesto, whose number one man, Gerry Moss, is ranked nationally. Modesto was the pre-season favorite to win the Big Seven again, and City College figured to place second.

City College got off to a slow start in the league opener by defeating San Mateo 4-3, as San Mateo rallied to win one singles match and two doubles matches.

The college netmen breezed past West Contra Costa 6-1, as the number two doubles match dropped to West Contra Costa.

The roof fell in for the college team to the tune of 7-0, when they met Modesto. Despite a strong fight, the college netmen lost to a superior team,

Carlson, Relay Team Win, But Modesto Romps In NCJC Track; Big 7 Sends 35 To State Meet

Modesto in particular and the Big Seven Conference in general completely dominated the first annual Northern California Junior College Track and Field Meet at Santa Rosa's Bailey Field on May 8.

Every team in the Big Seven, with the exception of San Mateo which did not compete, scored in double figures. The only other college in that bracket was College of Sequoias from the Central California Conference. Other conferences represented were the Coast Conference and the Golden Valley League.

The Big Seven thus qualified 31 individual participants and the City College mile relay team for the California State Meet at Santa Monica on May 22.

The Rams actually finished second in the relay, but Modesto, the winner, was disqualified for passing out of its lane. Other winner for the college was half-miler Al Carlson, who came from behind to take his event in 1:58.2.

Summary of the meet:

Mile—Ludlow (SO); Flowers (CO); Hosse (Marin); Martin (Hart) 4:33.6.

Ramblings

By Gail Allan Moss

TWO of the most idiotic rules that ever disgraced professional basketball were instituted by the National Basketball Association at a meeting of the league's directors last month.

First of the new rulings is that a team must shoot within 24 seconds after it gets possession of the ball. The other limits a team to six personal fouls per quarter.

The 24 second rule is, of course, aimed at ending stalling. In effect, it places even more of a premium on big rebounders and "east-off" shot artists who can get rid of the ball in that 24 seconds which is, incidentally, a random amount of time which wasn't explained in the officials' release.

What makes the new system even worse is the effect it will have on the fans. There are those who go just to see a shooting match and the already huge scores are to their liking, but there are also real basketball fans.

A real aficionado finds a tight defense and smooth ball-handling just as entertaining as high scoring, and with scores due to go even higher than they were, professional basketball just might lose more fans than it can afford to.

The other new ruling is well-aimed, but as it now stands it's a prime example of bungling. It states that every personal foul over the six-a-quarter limit will carry a two-shot penalty.

We seriously doubt that a team that is capable of scoring hundreds of points in a single game is going to worry much about that one extra free throw, except possibly in the last minutes of a close game. The fact that makes a farce out of the whole rule, however, is that each player is now allowed six personal fouls, rather than the five allowed to an amateur player.

If the league fathers were serious about wanting less fouling, they would reduce the individual total allowed to five a game or even less. Coaches who don't worry about that one extra point would think twice about letting an important player be forced out of the game via the foul route.

After all this adverse criticism, we'd like to say some kind words about somebody. We had the pleasure of visiting Seals Stadium recently, and the friendliness and co-operation shown us by Watter Mails, Tommy Heath and the whole staff of the San Francisco Seals was wonderful. Sincerest thanks to them all, and with that spirit the "Little Corporation" should have no trouble at all in making San Francisco baseball a success.

Associated Students League play takes to the courts again today with Lambda Phi vs. Alpha Sigma Delta and Beta Phi Beta vs. Beta Tau, in what is the most important game of the season thus far in as far as both teams are in a first place deadlock. Then on Monday, May 17, Beta Tau engages Alpha Sigma Delta while the Gamma Phi Ypsilons play Beta Phi Beta.

In the games of April 29, Alpha Kappa Rho defeated Alpha Sigma Delta 46-38 while the sharing league leaders Beta Tau nipped Tau Chi Sigma 31-22.

League standings:

	Won	Lost
Beta Phi Beta	3	0

Tau Chi Sigma	0	3

Registration Runs Four Days Next Semester

Registration next semester will be held four days, Monday, September 13, through Thursday, September 16, instead of the usual two days, Alva McMillan, counsellor here, announced last week.

Returning students will be scheduled to register on September 13 and 14, and the remaining two days are reserved for new students, he said.

Because approximately 1,400 returning students have, to date, been programmed, all registering appointments for the first day of registration have been filled, McMillan stated.

Students, he added, who have not yet been programmed will not be able to register until the late morning of September 14.

Counsellors' appointment books are filled for the next two or three weeks, according to McMillan, and students who have not yet made pre-registration counselling appointments are urged to do so as soon as possible.

Throughout the remainder of this semester, counsellors, in addition to programming returning students, will be visiting public high schools in the city to arrange programs for the incoming students, he said.

Students who act quickly in making appointments, McMillan added, may still be able to receive registration appointments early enough so that there will be no disappointment of desired classes being filled.

AGS Entertains Honor Graduates At Red Chimney

Rickey's Red Chimney in Stonestown is the scene for the Alpha Gamma Sigma dinner for honor graduates tentatively set for Wednesday, June 16, Don Jensen, sponsor of the college honor society, announced recently.

At the dinner, Jensen added, gold pins for honor graduates will be awarded. Certificates for wearers of the pin are to be presented from the stage at college commencement exercises on the evening of June 18.

Further plans for the celebration will be announced later.

Qualifications for honor graduation are a minimum of 60 units work in four semesters at the college and a 2.3 or better grade average. Students eligible are urged to contact Jensen in his Building 3 counseling office.

This semester 169 students compose membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma.

Students eligible to join AGS can still contact Jensen at any time concerning this semester's membership. Club dues are $1, payable upon joining. Requirements for temporary membership are as follows:

"B" or better average with no grade lower than "C" and a minimum of 30 grade points. Both the "B" average and 30 grade points are necessary. High school gold seal honorees may be admitted on a temporary basis for one semester.

For permanent membership, Jensen explained, students must maintain AGS membership for three out of four semesters, or four out of five semesters in high rating.

Floriculturists Awarded Prizes

First, second and third place prizes were awarded to members of the floriculture department here for their exhibits in the Oakland Flower Show at the Oakland Auditorium which ended May 2.

A bromeliad plant display, an indoor exhibit set up by Elizabeth Banks, was awarded a $40 first place prize.

A second place prize of $25 was given to the insectiverous plants exhibit set up by floriculture student Beverly Johnson.

An outdoor exhibit titled Campus Corner, which was a class project, was awarded the $65 third place prize in the amateur division. Third place position was given because all of the flowers were not in bloom. This exhibit was designed by Enrique Angulo, a landscape student from Peru, who is studying here.

Two Blind Mice Plays June 3-5 In Little Theater

Two Blind Mice, a three-act comedy to be presented by the college players on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, June 3, 4 and 5 at 8:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre here, is a political satire on the inner workings of government, Michael Griffin, drama coach, explained recently.

Mrs. Letitia Turnhill, widow, and Miss Crystal Hower, spinster, operate the Office of Medicinal Herbs (OMH). As the plot unfolds, a young reporter, Tommy Thurston, builds up the OMH to monstrous heights within the Department of Interior, basing his plans on the principle that all government workers do what they are told without question.

When Thurston attempts to end his practical joke and to dissolve the office, he discovers that no one believes that The OMH is illegal or a hoax. According to Griffin, episodes with the OSS, a pants presser and a rhumba teacher add to the hilarity of this satirical comedy.

Melvyn Douglas played Tommy Thurston in the 1949 production of the play on Broadway; Jan Sterling shared the bill in the part of his estranged wife, Karen Norwood.

Contest Winner Dubs Band As Rhythm Rams

Rhythm Rams, name submitted by a student of the college, Ron Orsallni, is the official title for the college's band. He submitted the name in a week-long contest for its selection.

Orsallni was announced as the winner at the dance sponsored by the band association, One Night Stand, on Friday, April 30. Orsallni, for having chosen the winning name, received a $25 saving bond as a prize.

Club Cavalcade: Parties, Dances, Sports Events Stimulate Activity

By Patty Moran

THIS week the fancies of sorority women lightly turn to thoughts of rhythm, gaity . . . and the Inter-Sorority Council dance.

Reports of parties, dinners, picnics, and sport activities indicate an equal stimulus in activities of other campus organizations.

Members of the International Relations Club gave a party in the student lounge in Building 2 on Friday evening, May 7.

Area of Mt. Tamalpais and Muir Woods will be the scene of a picnic for club members and their friends on Friday, May 21.

New officers of the Masonic Club to be elected this month will be installed at a dinner on Sunday, May 30. Locale for the affair has not been decided yet.

Bowling party at the Rathskeller is on the club's agenda this evening.

Members of the Canterbury Club attended a Corporate Communion last Friday morning, May 6, at St. Francis Church, Ocean and San Fernando Way.

Social meeting was held last night at Holy Innocents Church Hall, located at 26th and Fair Oaks Sts.

Parents of Phi Beta Rho members will have an opportunity to meet one another at a gathering on Tuesday evening, May 18. Refreshments will be served and entertainment will be provided by sorority members.

Following the meeting a Dutch Sil Yeah party will be held at Kuo Wah Restaurant.

Deadline for all club news is Wednesday at 12 noon. Information may be submitted to the Club Activities Board meetings held each Tuesday and Thursday at 1 p.m. in Building 2A, or to The Guardsman office in Building 4D.

CAB Discusses Lack Of Representation

How to have better representation at Club Activities Board meetings was the main topic at the May 4 meeting of CAB here.

Some of the suggestions were to combine CAB, Rally and Social committee meetings; to sponsor a picnic and a night rally.

Mardi Gras petitions were given out at the meeting. Bill Boldenweck, president of the Associated Men Students, answered questions from the group concerning the Mardi Gras, to take place on May 21. Answers to the questions were as follows;

Booths will be situated along the boardwalk on the parking area; space along the boardwalk will be allocated to clubs on a first come, first serve basis. Tickets at the Mardi Gras will be sold from one booth.

Jane Zerinsky, co-election chairman, announced that the deadline for petitions for candidacy in the Spring election is May 19. Seven posters are allowed each candidate, five on the west campus, and two in the Science Building. No posters will be allowed off campus.

Student Leaders, Attorney Asher Discuss Land Lease

As suggested by the members of the Public Utilities Commission, Harold Asher, attorney for the proposed lessees of the land at the Northwest corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues, lunched here with student leaders May 4.

A guest of Wray Jacobs, Associated Student Finance chairman and Joe Garbarino, Associated Student president, Asher inspected the campus.

Asher lunched with members of the Associated Students, Jacobs, Millie Stoll, Robert Moore, Garbarino, Alberta Cordini, and Dean of Student Activities Louis Batmale.

After a meal prepared by the Hotel and Restaurant division, Asher and the AS representatives toured the cafeteria, which Asher is mainly interested in, and then visited college president, Louis G. Conlan.

While conferring with President Conlan and student leaders, Asher commented that what ever the decision of the PUC is, "he wishes to remain the best of friends."

From the observations of those present, the meeting was held to familiarize both parties involved in the controversy with the general aspects of the argument.

At the meeting of the PUC on April 26 a decision was due on the proposal. Because of lack of information, the commissioners asked for an extension of time on the final decision until their meeting of May 10 at 5 p.m. in their chamber, Room 203 of the City Hall.

Competition For Bay Area Jobs Strong This Year

Strong competition for jobs highlights the current labor market in the San Francisco Bay Area, college placement director Joseph A. Amori reported yesterday.

He explained that for the first time since 1949, just prior to the Korean War, this condition applies to part time, full time and summer employment.

"There are more applicants than there are jobs in Northern California and employers are processing applicants with a fine tooth comb—even for summer employment," Amori stated.

He added that employers are asking for a high school and college transcript of record along with other personnel data prior to selection. He warned that many students are being eliminated because of poor grades and poor work histories on previous jobs.

"Recommendations are demanded by all employers," Amori continued. "The jobs are going to the best qualified, measured in terms of quality of performance on previous jobs, superior scholarship, and superior references from reputable sources."

He said that the jobs available now are at girl and boy summer camps, both private and public, and that they are looking for competent help such as counselors, instructors and maintenance men.

"Boy Scout or Girl Scout background is desirable but not essential for consideration," he added, "and older applicants are preferred. The average pay is $100 per month plus room and board."

Amori noted that because of the uncertainty of the market many employers, both urban and rural, are moving along cautiously and much later hiring is predicted.

He urged that applicants for summer jobs should register immediately at the placement service headquarters in Building 2, if they wish consideration.

Scholarship Winners' Names Held Until June

Names of the winners of the six scholarships awarded by the college this semester will be announced at a special rally in the first week of June, Mary Golding, dean of women, announced yesterday.

Winners have been selected, according to Miss Golding, but their names are being kept secret so that the selection will be a surprise when the results are announced at the rally.

Four of the scholarships, each for $50, will be from the Cloud Foundation and the other two, also for $50 each, will be awarded by the Graduating Class of 1953 scholarship committee.

College Institute Day Gives Students Holiday

Students of the college will have a holiday on Friday, May 21, according to Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here.

Institute Day, originally scheduled for May 14, was changed by school department officials to the present date, Batmale said.

The day is designed for college instructors to visit San Francisco junior and senior high schools and view teaching methods.

Next college hour is scheduled for Friday, May 28, from 10:40 to 11:20 a.m., he announced. An election rally for the Spring elections will be held then.

San Quentin Tour Planned By Campus Police Next Week

In order to learn about the routine of prison life, the campus police are planning a trip to San Quentin on Monday, May 25, Fred Fitzgerald, instructor in criminology here, announced yesterday.

He also stated that the campus police intend to hold their annual banquet at the Chukkers in June despite the lack of Associated Student funds. Each policeman will pay his own way.

The dinner will be a farewell for the graduating campus police, Fitzgerald explained, as well as an announcement as to who is appointed as the new chief.

In order to become chief of the campus police, Fitzgerald added, an officer must have attended the college for one year; he must meet qualifications for a regular police job; he must pass a written examination, and he must have a "C" average.

Campus policemen who are graduating this semester are William Chapman, Alfred Ghiorzi, David Henderson, Leo Hertoghe, assistant chief of staff; Renzo Panelli, Gordon Richardson, chief.

CAB Will Cite Club For Merit

Judging on merit and service to the college, the Club Activities Board will present a trophy to the outstanding campus club at the semi-annual student government banquet, Bob Moore, chairman of the trophy committee, announced at a recent CAB meeting.

Clubs who wish to enter the contest should turn in a letter to CAB by Thursday, May 26, he said. The letter must state what the club has done for the college.

Letters, Moore stated, will be judged by a committee, composed of the following officers: Associated Student president and vice-president, Associated Men Student president, Club Activities Board president and faculty sponsor, and the Dean of Student Activities.

The trophy will be perpetual. An honorable mention scroll will be given to the club rating second, Moore said.

Students Receive Honor Awards At Commencement

Seven top honor awards will be presented to qualifying graduates at the Friday, June 18, commencement ceremonies, to be held at Riordan High School's auditorium, Edwin C. Browne, commencement chairman here, announced yesterday.

Awards, according to Browne, are as follows: The President's Award Plaque, which is given to the man and women graduating who have performed the greatest service to the college.

Wall Street Journal award consists of a silver medal and a year's subscription to The Wall Street Journal. It is presented to the student in business who achieved the highest scholastic standing and showed promise in the field of finance and investment.

Leave Of Absence, Dropping Classes Deadline Today

Deadline for filing applications for leaves of absence and withdrawals from classes is today, Gertrude Sommerville, acting registrar here, announced last week.

Students who do not file petitions and withdraw from classes without proper authority will receive a grade of "F" in all courses involved, Miss Sommerville warned. An "F" grade received in this way is equivalent in all respects to the same grade received for scholastic failure and cannot be removed by any later action on the petitions, she explained.

Those students who take unauthorized leaves of absences may be denied an honorable dismissal and risk having their registration privileges curtailed, she emphasized. An honorable dismissal is necessary in order to transfer to another college.

As signatures are necessary in all departments and classes where equipment may have been given out, it is important that students start action immediately, Miss Sommerville stressed.

Students failing to meet the deadline today may not withdraw nor take a leave of absence without first securing special permission from Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator, Division of Student Welfare at the college.

24 Organizations Participate In Campus Carnival

Twenty-four campus organizations will participate in the Mardi Gras this Friday night.

Main events for the night in the way of concessions will be the drama production in the student lounge in Building 2 and the Band Association dance in Building 1.

Show Times Announced

Deane Cyr and Dick Moore, two of the drama club members behind the production, announced that three shows will be given each hour from 8 p.m to 11 p.m.

To gain direct audience reaction to the production, Cyr, student director, staged an invitational dress rehearsal last Saturday evening.

Cyr used a handful of production numbers and said that he found audience criticism beneficial and now can make his rewrite changes and restage weak spots for Friday's finished Mardi Gras show.

Work of dancer Patty Peters was noted by the producer as especially promising and although not too much was seen of comedian Pete Garrett, Cyr feels that he is developing into a top comedian and will be used more in Friday night's show.

Sets for the production are being built by Ritch Barulich; lighting effects by Layfayette Jamerson; stage construction by Duncan Logee.

The Band Association will present a dance with the college dance band furnishing the music. Coronation of the Mardi Gras king and queen is scheduled from 10:30 to 10:45 p.m. at the dance. Admission receipts will go to the association.

Themes Varied

Other organizations and the concessions they will sponsor are as follows: Gamma Phi Ypsilon, "Tomato Toss;" Hotel and Restaurant Society, "Snax Bar;" Beta Tau fraternity, "Dunko Booth;" Lambda Phi, "Powder Puff" concession; Engineering Society, "Drop in the Bucket."

Horticulture Club, "Ring the Bottle;" Theta Tau, "The Closest Shave of Your Life;" Zeta Chi, "Zeta Test."

Tau Chi Sigma, "Shatter the Platter;" Chinese Student's Club, a food selling booth with orders of Chow Mein on the menu; Alpha Sigma Delta, "Marryin' Sam;" Beta Phi Beta, "Cigarette Booth;" Alpha Lambda Chi, "Make Up Bar."

Others on the committee are Deane Cyr, publicity; Flint Morrison, coronation; Bob McNaught, security; Ron Byrne, registration; Dave Raphael, construction and grounds; Bob Fleter, posters and art; Dick Arey, parade and Bob Moore, finance.

Five Candidates Nominated At USA Convention For Spring Elections

At a sparsely attended convention on May 12, the United Student Association nominated five students as its candidates for the Spring Associated Student elections here on June 2, 3.

All of the five students were nominated as candidates for freshman and sophomore class representative positions on the AS Council. No candidates were nominated for higher AS offices, and the party extended nomination deadline for the vacant spots until the AS election petition deadline at 12 noon today.

The USA members present at the convention nominated as freshman class representative candidates Alton Tanner and Bob McNaught. Nominated as candidates for sophomore representative positions were Marie Louise Carl, Louise Distler and Ralph Libby.

When no candidate was nominated for the AS presidency, convention member Larry Elizarde moved that the party back the Inter-Fraternity Council presidential candidate, John Lo Coco. This motion was rejected.

A move by Bob McNaught that the USA support independent candidate Bill Boldenweck for the AS presidency was also defeated.

Convention delegates and guests heard an opening address by Mervin K. Slosberg, USA sponsor and political science instructor here, who stressed past achievements of the party and the importance of retaining a two-party system on the campus.

45 Choose Leaders For 1800 Under 'Unique' System Here

VOTING time is nearing and the strange phenomenon of a college student election by political party is staring us right in our somewhat puzzled faces again.

City College of San Francisco's Associated Students are unique among such organizations in the fact that they have a party election system — but, why have this system, is the question most students ask.

Beats us. No other associated student group has adopted it, simply because it won't work in college government as it does on a national scale.

How can anyone say that an election system which brings out less than 30 per cent of eligible voters to the polls is the right method to use.

Some say that student voters stay away from the polls because they are "lethargic"; it's not lethargy keeping them away, it's that they're "fed-up" with a party system which is, in reality, a one party sysfem.

This dominant party, the Interfraternity Council (IFC), composed of a small minority of students (fraternity and sorority members), has been "lucky," not only in having no real organized resistance, but also in having the candidates which it chooses turn out to be able leaders.

Not that the job done by these chosen leaders wasn't "first class," but who knows what might have happened had all students been given a "fair and square" opportunity for nomination.

Nominations are done in convention and to see the unfairness of the process all one need do is review the recent IFC convention.

At this gathering last month, it was obvious that the candidates nominated were, for the most part already, or soon to be, chosen by "vote-trading." "Vote-trading" goes something like this — Jane Jones from Alfalfa Mu Sorority says to Joe Smith of Alphabeta Zoup Fraternity, "We'll give our delegation's votes to your boy, Claghorn, if you promise us your votes for our gal, Suzzybelle."

"Gee, look Ma, I'm playing real politics!"

Claghorn is officially nominated by the Alfalfa girls and he rises to his feet and says to the assembly — "I'm a hard worker, I've done great work in the past." (What our boy forgot to add was, "Now I'll stand on my past record, I'm not interested enough in the future to formulate plans as yet.")

It's up to a mere 45 students, the number of voting delegates, to select candidates. So obviously, since the IFC carries almost every election, 45 persons select the leaders of an organization whose membership numbers close to 1800 students.

The other campus political party, the United Student Association (USA) is certainly not at fault; its lack of real organization is pathetic, especially since it has the majority of students here with which to work. However, the USA has found that a party system just won't work; students must be given the opportunity to run for office on their own nomination.

How about "self-nominations" wherein a student who is sincerely interested in the college can present himself to all the AS membership, who will, for themselves, decide —

"Has he the ability for leadership," and not "Has he party endorsement" or "Can he trade votes."

Three Former Students Return Here As Instructors

Hillsman, Wong, Jenson Serve College Again

By Bev Swope

Alma Mater of our hearts—the first words of the college hymn proved significant to three outstanding graduates of past years who were destined to return to the college to serve her again.

Ralph Hillsman, captain of the college's first basketball team, Don Jensen, Associated Student president in Spring of 1942 and Lawrence Wong, first regional graduate of the then newly-organized Hotel and Restaurant division—all three once popular and capable students at the college are now admired and effieient campus instructors.

A gradiate of June 1936, Hillsman captured All-Conference honors in that year as a first-string guard. The college basketball coach who spurred Hillsman and the team to victories during that first season was Louis "Dutch" Conlan, now president here.

Hillsman received his teaching credentials from the University of California in 1939. After four years in the navy, he returned to the college in 1946. Since then the college basketball team has never finished a season in a conference position below second place.

After serving the college as Associated Student President, Associated Men Student President and member of the soccer team, Jensen was graduated with honors in June of 1942. At commencement exercises he received the President's Plaque for outstanding service.

Completion of courses here led Jensen to further his education at Pomona College, the University of California, Stanford University and the University of California at Los Angeles. Finally, upon his discharge from the air force, he returned to his first college Alma Mater in 1947 as a counsellor and psychology instructor.

A life member of Alpha Gamma Sigma, college scholastic honor society, Jensen returned to become its present sponsor.

The first regional student out of ten successfully to complete the course in hotel management — then a nine unit course called institutional management — Wong was also a June, 1936 graduate.

After gaining practical experience in business, Wong was urged by a former instructor to return to the college to teach, and he did, but on a part-time basis as an instructor in accounting.

In 1941 he accepted his first full-time placement here managing restaurant operation and cafeteria and faculty room service, and instructing classes in accounting. Since this time he has been a valuable member of the Hotel and Restaurant division staff.

Roman Counterpart

Forum, AS Literary Magazine, First Started As Discussion Club

By Natalie Fiesler

At City College of San Francisco today, there is a counterpart of the old Roman Forum which is known as Forum, the college literary magazine.

First published in 1936, the magazine presented life on Skid Row, because, unfortunately, Skid Row, during the depression years, was the fate of so many citizens who should have fared better.

Forum, which originated as a discussion club prior to 1936, was then taken over by the Associated Students of the college.

At the time, Forum was supported through the AS funds, but as the cost of printing rose through the years, it became necessary to have advertising help finance the magazine.

During the first years of publication, it was a problem to distribute the magazine because the college was scattered throughout so many parts of the city.

No effort has been made on the part of editors to direct the theme of content; the writers are free to select their own subject, and all articles are voluntarily submitted. Last year's Forum had no theme, but the trend was in the poetic field.

Writers through the years for Forum, now successful in other fields, have included Dr. Tom Parkinson, now assistant professor of English at the University of California; Dr. Conrad March, who specializes in psychiatric work, and H. H. Evans.

Sponsors have been Dorothy Mercer and John Gerstung for the magazine, and Catherine Connolly is this year's sponsor.

Draft Situation Here Explained

Certain misunderstandings in regard to student draft deferments were explained recently by Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare here.

Present policy of the Selective Service is to defer students who qualify by maintaining a certain grade-point average in correspondence to their year in college, and who carry a course of study of at least 15 units a semester, Marsh stated.

Deferments are also granted on the basis of a student's performance in the service's College Qualification Test.

A special administration of the test, for students who were unable to attend one of the regular administrations last November and April, will be held tomorrow, May 20, here and at other test centers.

Two types of deferments may be awarded by local draft boards, who classify deferred students either I-S or II-S.

Students at the college who are in doubt about their Selective Service standing were urged last week by Marsh to come to his office in Building 3 to clarify draft ratings.

Procrastination, Anthropology

By Bill Boldenweck

WARM SUNDAY: 10 a.m.—Gradual awareness of surroundings denotes what passes for act of waking up. Mouth chock full of dark brown cotton. Squad of very small pygmies with lead shoes holding parade in cranium. Return to fitful sleep.

10:45—Wide awake. Retrieve Sunday paper from front steps. Plunge self into study of current events. Note with satisfaction that Spray and Hot-shot about to make it legal. Wonder how long it will take Tracy and Catchem to nab Snowdrop. Ponder over significance of Colonel Canyon's orders to return stateside. Exhausted by study of world problems. Roll over and back to sleep.

11:57—Up and out of bed. Dark brown cotton replaced by light green fuzz. Clear up by liberal use of toothpaste. Cold shower good for constitution but hard on nerves. Breakfast. Cold pork chops and warm apple sauce.

12:28 p.m. — Commence study of Eastern Roman Empire. Sun streaming in window. Give Empire back to Eastern Romans and retire to study of contemporary American literature (latest issue of Mad Comics).

1:09—Commence study of Pavlov's dog experiment for psych 1A. Remember that little female friend took course last semester. Hurried phone call for advice.

1:12—Little friend answers. Conservation begins on sparkling note (weather). Immediate agreement on pain of studying on such a nice day. Mutual decision to study after dark when it gets cooler.

1:51—Arrive little friend's house. Mutual pact to return early and resume study. Depart for wherever.

1:55—Discover mutual interest in marine biology and anthropology. By mutual agreement go to see "Critter From the Black Lagoon," it being full of information about marine biology and anthropology. Decide to let Eastern Romans keep their empire and let Pavlov's dogs wait until tomorrow.

Distress Signal Noted In Week Of Midterms

By Shirley Murphy

AN international distress signal was observed on campus. During midterm week the Bear flag was hanging upside down. Granted, midterm week is a trying period, but it doesn't quite constitute a world crisis.

Mud Slinging

One of the candidates in the June Associated Student elections marched into the AS office in Building 2 last week with a disturbed expression on his usually tranquil countenance. His clothing was decorated with artistically-arranged splotches of mud. Judging from externals, this promises to be quite a campaign.

One Man Show?

Writing, producing, directing and acting in the Mardi Gras drama production is one "Orson" Cyr. The epic would tend to be a monologue but for the 35 talented performers and crewmen who also have a hand in the skits.

To The Rescue

Heroic efforts of an alert student should not go unrewarded. This lad, seeing a hand grenade hurling through the air above the west campus parking lot, leaped toward the heavens and caught it before it touched the ground. Poor boy wasted his efforts for the weapon was but a replica of a model used during World War II.

Absences Show Students Prone To Ailments

By Dolores Stoffers

Every hour of every college day, the cafeteria and fountain can be frequented by at least a dozen poor, disillusioned souls who really shouldn't be there at all.

Why? They're cutting class, or to put it more nicely, taking advantage of unexcused absences allowed them.

What the average student does during this time varies slightly:

1. He sneaks to one of the two most coveted sites on campus, the fountain or the cafeteria. The pains he takes to avoid his instructor for the hour would make an O.S.S. agent look like a three-year old playing cowboys and indians.

2. He seats himself on a hard stool and lets the blaring music and the incessant yelling of his friends and a soothe his nerves, which would be otherwise jangled by a tense lecture ball.

3. He drinks a gallon of coffee.

4. He sits about writing an ingenious excuse so that he may be able to go to the beach on a classday when the weather is warmer.

When midterm weeks comes hither, quite a few students suddenly develop upset stomachs and the like and must take make-up tests the following week.

Dr. Edwin C. Browne, dean of men here, has, on file, many notes that proclaim a very unhealthy student body.

Many of the foreign students, he said, suffer from frequent headaches. From the information in Browne's files, one would easily come to the conclusion that American students are very prone to sudden and violent attacks of nausea, sprained ankles, toothaches and cold.

Then there's always the student who cuts class to catch an hour's sleep in his car and admits it.

Novel Political Party Advances Apathy Platform

The University of Minnesota has had an Apathy Party for some years, but until now nobody could muster sufficient energy to write a platform.

This year party president Al Skantz turned the trick. His platform, he says, was "Conceived in indolence and born in lethargy." Among other things, the party platform promises not to "See all sides of an argument" and to withdraw support to athletic enterprises and such enterprises that might possibly be construed as active. Worry about aim, ideals, goals, objectives . . . group identification, social adjustment, points to consider, however, moreovers, buts, ifs and ands.

ASK A FOOLISH QUESTION

At UCLA a sociology major with "nothing better to do" stood at the door of a college bookstore and asked customers, "Are you a Communist?" Eighty-nine out of 328 questioned answered "Yes." Later, 10 students returned to say they were just kidding.

THOSE FRATERNITY MEN

Fraternity men at the University of Vienna, after several drab years fashion, have been permitted again to wear their colorful caps and ribbons while on the campus. Teachers, however, still have the right to have the caps and ribbons taken off in the classroom.

GREECE: LOST BOOKS

Students who lost their textbooks in last summer's earthquake now have the use of a special lending library. The emergency library was established by the World Union of Students, with most of the books coming from England.

Boxing Tourney Will Send 18 Hopefuls To Pit; Nine Match Ring Card Set For May 26

An all City College Boxing Tournament, scheduled for Wednesday, May 26, will send to the pits 18 young hopefuls from the local scene who will be making their first public appearance in boxer's trunks, Roy Diederichsen, head boxing instructor here, announced last week.

The first program, slated for nine bouts, will find each event going for three rounds or less.

In this tourney for beginning boxers, the pugilists have been under the tutelage of their fight managers for two months. On this account the managers were complimented for their fine work by Coach Diederichsen.

With their guidance and knowledge of the sport, the novices have undoubtedly picked up many pointers about the squared circle, according to observers here at the college.

The coach stated that at the start of their training schedule a few of the boys dropped the right hand after throwing a left jab and were getting hit squarely on the button with a countering left hook. After a quite unhappy experience their managers quickly got them to keep their guard up.

On the tourney card will be entrants from the 125 pound division up to the heavyweights. Managers, if possible, will field two participants in each weight class.

Elimination bouts to determine finalists for tournament night will take place May 24 and 25 at 3 p.m. in the men's gymnasium. Weigh-ins are set for today.

Admission to the annual affair, which has been claimed to be the best the college has put on in many years, will be free.

Tennis Team In Second Round Of CSJCC Finals

After winning the Big Seven Conference Tournament on May 9 at Golden Gate Park and outscoring Modesto in the process, City College's tennis team is primed for the California State Junior College Championships which will be played at Modesto on May 20, 21 and 22.

Modesto won the Big Seven Conference with a 7-0 record as opposed to the second place record of the Rams, which was 6-1. In the post-league conference tennis championships, the college won first place over Modesto as Bill Wright and Hal Kopp, the top Ram doubles combination, defeated Raffo and Viceery 6-2, 7-5, after the San Mateo team was leading in the second set, 5-3.

Wright reached the finals of the singles championship, but lost to his old nemesis, Pancho Contreras of Modesto 6-3, 6-2, as Contreras defeated Wright with a sound all-court game, rushing net, stroking from the backcourt, dropshooting, lobbing, and volleying accurately.

The quarter-finals of the tournament are eligible to compete in the California State Tourney which will be held in Modesto this year. Entries from all over California will participate, but Northern California is expected to dominate the field, with Jerry Moss, Contreras, Wright and Yves Lemaitre as favorites.

These members of the Ram team who will play in this tourney are Wright, Kopp, Matsumoto, Gordon, Wink and Bob Chrisman.

Rams Edge Out Modesto For First Baseball Victory

A two run rally in the first inning of the second game of a doubleheader played against the Modesto Junior College baseball squad provided the impetus that carried the Rams to a 2-1 victory over the resident Modestans May 8.

It was the first game won by the college team this season, and it came in the wake of another defeat as the Pirates came out on top of a 12-0 decision in the opening contest.

Bob Word pitched the second tilt and received credit for the victory.

Outfielder Nolan Wilson came up with one of the season's best defensive plays for the Rams in the fifth inning of the nightcap when he made a one handed catch of an enemy drive to rob the Modestans of a home run.

Dick Bandettini, who had two hits in three trips to the plate, also played outstanding ball for the winners.

The first game debacle was quickly forgotten as the players concentrated in celebrating their initial win of the season.

Five Activities Still On WAA Sports Program

Five activities remain on the college Women's Athletic Association calendar, Joan Anderson, president of the association announced recently.

Plans for a booth in the Mardi Gras on Friday, are well under way, she said. WAA will participate in the Napa swim day on Saturday, May 22. The last high school playday of the semester will be with Washington and Galileo High Schools on Monday, May 24.

Al Carlson, Big Seven Half-Mile Champ, Follows Father's Example

By Humberto Fischnaler

Like father, like son. Al Carlson, former Washington High track great now a student at the college, can attest to that, for his progenitor was an outstanding harrier in his prep days at Oakland Technical High School.

Carlson, Jr., recently broke the Big Seven record for the 880 at the conference meet held at Modesto. His time of 1:57.2 smashed the old mark of 1:59.0.

Last year Carlson came close but not close enough as he posted a time of 1:59.4. In that same season he ran on the winning Ram relay team which came within 4/10 seconds of breaking the conference record.

On May 8 he competed in the Northern California Junior College track meet at Santa Rosa. Carlson qualified for the state meet at Santa Monica this Saturday by running the 880 in 1:58.2 in that one.

An engineering major, he plans to continue studying for his career after graduating from the college.

Besides running in the 880 Carlson is the anchor man on the current Ram relay team. Carlson's father competed in the 880 and the mile.

RAMBLINGS

By Gail Allan Moss

IN the past two weeks, two "magic" marks in the track world have been topped. Roger Bannister of England ran a 3:59.4 mile to top the fabled four minute mile, and Parry O'Brien put the shot 60 feet 5¼ inches.

Bannister, who, incidentally, wasn't considered among the top contenders for the "impossible" time, has cracked the barrier by six-tenths of a second (quite a bit in track times) and topped Gunder Haegg's world record of 4:01.4 by two full seconds.

O'Brien, formerly of USC and competing in a special event at a USC meet, broke his own world's record of 59 feet 2½ inches. He had done an unofficial 59-9¾ in the Drake Relays last month.

Now that the often discussed marks are on the books, the holders of the "magic" records are shooting for better times and distances. Bannister, when he finally had run the fabulous four-lapper, complained about "stupid" weather and started talking about a 3:56.0 in the event. O'Brien immediately began trying for 62 feet in the shot.

This seems to be regular procedure. When such a mark is reached by one man, that mark is no longer considered "impossible" by anyone and it seems that half a dozen others hit the same mark almost immediately.

This held true in the pole vault, among others, after Cornelius Warmerdam pushed over the 15 foot bar. That height in the event is still far from common, but enough good vaulters have done it so that it is no longer a phenomenon.

With the four minute mile and the sixty foot shot put now reality, rabid track fans will have to turn to some other "impossible" mark to discuss—perhaps the :09.0 hundred yard dash or the seven foot high jump. Come to think of it, that seven foot jump is just around the corner.

The entire Big Seven Conference will, we're sure, join in welcoming the as yet unopened Oakland Junior College into the league. The Oakland-ers will open their conference competition with the 1954-55 basketball season under the able guidance of Bill Rockwell. Rockwell, formerly coach at Oakland's Fremont High School, is one of the most highly regarded cage mentors in the area. Welcome, Oakland and Bill Rockwell, with sincerest wishes for good luck in the "Big Eight."

Soccer Star Here Opposes Pro Club

Recently selected to play against the Plymouth Argyle professional soccer team from England, Fito Molina, a student here, is also a member of the championship El Salvador FC, city soccer league winners.

Five years ago he was chosen to represent his native country, El Salvador, in the Central American soccer championships.

He prepped at George Washington High School where he played for the soccer club of that school. Molina still holds the record for goals scored in a single high school game, 8.

The Argyles play in San Francisco, Sunday, May 23. The game features the best players from the Bay Area against the Britishers and it will be played at Balboa Park soccer stadium near the college.

Soph-Prof Softball Tilt Set For June

Who will win the semester's Soph-Prof softball game is the big question around campus as the semi-annual event draws near.

June 11, the date set for the event, is on a Friday, during a double college hour. The game will be played on the college's athletic field, Jim Vickers, Sophomore class president, announced last week.

Players who will participate in the game have not as yet been selected, but Vickers has asked interested sophomores to sign-up with him in the Associated Student office, Building 2.

College Golfers Win Round-Robin Championship, Whip Santa Rosa In First Of Three Match Playoffs

By Bob Chrisman

In the last Big Seven Conference match of the season, City College's golf team acquired sole possession of first place by shutting out West Contra Costa on the latter's home grounds on May 7.

After leading the league early in the season, a tie with Sacramento and a loss to San Mateo put the Rams in second place. But San Mateo and Santa Rosa failed to produce the consistent winning play necessary to win the championship and lost several matches, enabling the Rams to move into first place on the last match of the season, when first place Santa Rosa lost to Sacramento.

As the league is now, City College is in first place and Santa Rosa and San Mateo are tied for second place. Since the college defeated Santa Rosa to put them in second place, a rule of the Big Seven Conference provides that Santa Rosa play the college again in a playoff match, the best two out of three.

City College won the first match, and if the Rams beat Santa Rosa at their own home grounds, the golfers will be Big Seven Conference champions. If they lose to Santa Rosa, a third and deciding match will be held in San Francisco.

No definite date has been set for this play-off match, but it will follow the Big Seven Conference golf tournament and the California State Junior College Championships.

The first five members of the college golf team participated in the conference golf tourney held at Modesto on May 14 and 15. At the present, City College is ranked along with Menlo College as the best two-year college golf team in Northern California.

Tony Prinz shot a 78 for medalist honors in the recent West Contra Costa match, and Gene George followed with a 79 as the college defeated a West Contra Costa golf team that has yet to win a match.

Carlson, Relay Team Represent Rams In State Junior College Track At Santa Monica Saturday

Half-miler Al Carlson and the Ram mile relay team, along with 30 others, will represent the Big Seven in the California State Junior College Track and Field Meet at Santa Monica this Saturday, May 22.

They and 21 other tracksters from three other Northern and Central California conferences won the right to represent the Northern section by placing in the Northern California Meet at Santa Rosa on May 8.

Place winners from the Southern California Meet will compete against the northerners in the Santa Monica affair. The meet will start at 7 p.m. with all events final.

Carlson should be one of the North's top performers. He is the holder of the Big Seven 880 record of 1:57.2, and he won the Northern California meet in 1:58.2 with yardage to spare.

Jack Connell, Ray MacIntyre, Bob Cross and Carlson ran relay in the Northern California race, but Harold Hill and Charley Smock are ready and able to step in if necessary.

Two of the other top performers for the northern team will be Stockton's Duane Ludlow and Modesto's Chuck McGuiness. The two tied for top individual honors in the area meet, Ludlow taking the mile and two mile and McGuiness capturing both sprints.

Others who could take honors for the north include Modesto's Ken Luenhagen in the 440, Paul Webb of Sacramento in the pole vault, Ron Walters of Santa Rosa in the high jump and Proverb Jacobs, Modesto, in the shot put.

Intra-Mural Teams End Play This Month

Intramural sports competition here will wind up the round-robin of hour and day championships this month, Ralph Hillsman, program director, announced yesterday.

While the elimination contests are under way, those not in the running will spend the semester in free-play basketball and softball.

The college play-offs between the Monday-Wednesday champions and the Tuesday-Thursday winners in basketball, football, tennis, badminton and boxing will be played during the double college hour on Friday, June 11.

On this date, which is also Soph-Prof softball day, awards for the college champions, along with the runners-up, will be presented. Coach Hillsman expressed the need for the presence of the teams to insure that everyone who deserves an award receive one.

Awards are given by the college Associated Students.

Babe Ruth first played baseball for the Baltimore Orioles in 1914.

Students Offered Special Rate On Sports Magazine

A new weekly sport magazine, to be published by the editors of Life and Time magazines is being offered to students at special charter rates here, according to Dick Main, Ramporium manager.

Main stated that the new magazine is not on the news stands yet, but will be sometime this summer. Charter subscription applications may be obtained at The Ramporium, according to Main. Special rates available to students only are 26 weekly issues of the new magazine for $3.

At present the magazine is in the "dummy" stages of development, according to Main. He stated that a few copies of the second issue of "Dummy" sport magazine are available at The Ramporium for student inspection and comment.

Year 'round sport coverage and feature on most sports will comprise the content of the weekly sport magazine, according to literature from the editors. Weekly previews of sporting events to come will have a place along with weekly columns on most every conceivable sport.

A name for the new sport magazine has not been disclosed as yet by the editors, but several suggested names have been released. Some of the names submitted by readers of the first "Dummy" publication are Arena, Box Seat, Program, Impact, Wild Spectator.

Coach Roy Burkhead, head track mentor here, commented that the new sport magazine "has tremendous vision and reading material." Harold Painter, editor of Forum, the college's annual literary magazine, said that the new magazine is a "sporty New Yorker."

Library Receives 25 Books From Welding Society

The college library has received 25 new books on the various forms of welding from the James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation, Clement Skrabak, of the library staff, announced recently.

Wilbur Russel, of the engineering staff, contacted the Lincoln Foundation and was able to secure the books for the college library. The books were donated free of charge and may be taken out for two weeks by students.

Initial contribution to the library totaled 25 books, but periodic donations of one book are being sent to the library by the Foundation.

There are a variety of books on welding which compose the Lincoln Welding Library. Many different facets of welding are dealt with, such as automotive welding, construction welding, highway and bridge welding, farm welding and repair, metallurgy, blueprint reading. Several volumes delve into personnel management and the teaching of welding.

A book contributed by Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation may be identified by a label pasted in the book stating that it was contributed to the college by the James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation.

Club Cavalcade: Mardi Gras, Pledge Dinners Occupy Organizations

By Patty Moran

MEMBERS of all campus organizations are directing their enthusiastic efforts this week to the construction of colorful floats and unique booths for the gay and festive Mardi Gras on Friday night.

Meanwhile, reports from fraternities and sororities indicate that pledge dinners are high on the groups' agendas.

Hotel Claremont in Berkeley was the locale of the Delta Psi Pledge dinner May 15.

Pledges of the sorority this semester are Shirley Downing, Carolyn Fisher, Nancy Goldman, Elaine Green, Shirley Payton, Sandy Podjarsky, Barbara Redford, Pat Sullivan, Dottie Sutcliffe.

The Claremont is also the site chosen by Alpha Lambda Chi for its dinner on Saturday, June 5. Initiation will be held at Millie Kalsh's home prior to the affair.

Meeting of the Constitution Committee was held last night at Joann Greene's home.

Pledges will give the sisters a dinner this Sunday evening, May 23. Business meeting at Kay Griffin's home is scheduled for next Wednesday, May 26.

Brothers and pledges of Kappa Rho journeyed to the Casino in Belmont for their pledge dinner on May 6.

Beta Tau chose the same night for its pledge affair. The fraternity met jointly with Theta Tau on Thursday night, May 13, at the home of Karen Walker.

Members of Phi Beta Delta had a double joint picnic at Lake Temescal, May 16, with Delta Psi, Kappa Phi and Alpha Sigma Delta.

Phi Beta Delta and Theta Tau will meet jointly tonight.

Newman Club will meet tonight at St. Emydius Hall, Jules and De Montford Streets. Refreshments and dancing will follow the meeting.

Deadline for all club news is Wednesday at 12 noon. Information may be submitted to the Club Activities Board meetings held each Tuesday and Thursday at 1 p.m. in Building 2A, or to The Guardsman office in Building 4D.

Semi-Pro Course Claims Half Of College Students

Fifty per cent of students at the college are enrolled in semi-professional courses offered here, John J. Brady, dean of semi-professional courses, said last week.

Many high school graduates, Dean Brady said, wish to obtain further training for employment but do not wish to attend college for four years. For such students, he said, the college offers two years of preparation leading to immediate employment and to the degree of Associate in Arts.

Some areas in which the college provides employment-training programs are as follows:

Advertising Art and Commercial Art, Business Accounting, Punched-Card Accounting, Advertising, Business Machines, Cooperative Merchandising, General Business, General Merchandising Management, Insurance, Real Estate, Secretarial Training, Traffic and Transportation.

Chemical Technology, Engineering, Architectural Drafting, Building and Contracting, Electrical Technology, Engineering Drafting, Mechanical Technology, Radio, Television, Electronics, Refrigeration, Air Conditioning and Operating Engineering, Surveying and Map Drafting.

When a modern military leader is called a "great captain" the figurative use of the title reflects the early-day importance of the rank.

Student Union's Purposes And Uses Outlined As 'Two Part Operation'— 'Training And Service For College'

(Editor's Note: Certain misunderstandings concerning the purpose and uses of the college's newest building, the Student Union, have recently arisen. Following are the facts concerning the structure which should clarify the situation once and for all for all observers.)

City College of San Francisco's latest building, the Student Union, now under construction at a cost of $700,000, is to house mainly the Hotel and Restaurant training division of the college. Money for its establishment was voted by San Francisco's electorate in the bond issue of 1950 by a margin of two-to-one.

When ground was broken for its erection on April 9 of this year those helping in the traditional ceremonies included Paul Handlery, president Northern California Hotel Association; Dan E. London, managing director of St. Francis Hotel; Albert Pick, president American Hotel Association, and Karl Weber, operator Whitcomb Hotel.

Included in the Hotel and Restaurant Division facilities will be a cafeteria, a dining room and kitchen areas to serve them. According to the college catalog, the greatest percentage of students' work in this division is concerned with actual "on-the-job" training, which is provided by such facilities.

In addition to serving as a practical training laboratory for hotel and restaurant students the new building will provide a food service to the rest of the college student body and faculty.

City Board of Education rules stress that the entire operation must be run on a non-profit basis and operate "strictly as a service."

The present Hotel and Restaurant structure is, as with all west campus structures, on Public Utilities Commission land and only a temporary building.

Meal service schedules will be the same in the new building as they are in the present site, according to division directors, with breakfast and luncheon served daily in the cafeteria and dining room. When the occasion calls for it, banquets will be served in the dining room as they have been in the west campus dining area many evenings, directors pointed out.

While learning hotel management, cooking and cafeteria operation, students also are taught regular restaurant techniques and one opportunity to do this is given in the dining room where faculty members dine "restaurant-style."

Blueprints show that the Student Union will also house the student bank, book store and student government offices.

Council Debates Athletic Travel, Forum Printing

Question of policy in regard to team and activity group travel and problems of reputations placed in jeopardy arose in in meetings of the council of the Associated Students last week.

When a motion was made in the May 11 meeting to appropriate $475 to the track, tennis and golf teams here for meets away from home, it was shown in analyzing the figure that seven cents per mile had been listed as a basic traveling rate.

AS Finance Committee Chairman Wray Jacobs recommended that the council make the mileage rate a set policy for team and activity group travel as a future referent, and the group voted unanimously to do so.

Council members heard Jacobs declare, "My reputation is at stake" as he commented on a report that Forum magazine, the college's literary publication, would not be printed where the Forum staff had originally indicated.

Stating that the Wright Letter Shop had submitted a bid $100 lower for preparing the magazine than two others received, Jacobs said a personal friend of his had been slighted when the staff announced that the East Wind Printers would get the job.

The matter was settled when Forum Editor Harold Painter told the council that the magazine staff had made no commitment before awarding the job to the East Wind Printers, and stated that the Wright firm could not have handled the job because of prior commitments.

Subcommittee Studies Extension Of 100% Rule To Organizations

In an effort to secure 100 per cent Associated Student membership from all non-budgeted organizations on campus, the AS Finance Committee is forming a subcommittee to study the possibility of enacting legislation to that effect and the results of such legislation. Wray Jacobs, Finance Committee chairman, revealed last week.

Membership on this committee is open to anyone on campus who is a member of the Associated Students, according to Jacobs.

One of the most important questions to be studied, Jacobs said, is that of whether the organizations that are now non-budgeted would be included in the AS budget if they had 100 per cent AS membership.

The 100 per cent rule now in effect applies only to activities financed by the Associated Students.

Drive To Combat Famine Started

An on-campus Meals for Millions drive to raise funds for famine relief throughout the world, sponsored at the college by the Hotel and Restaurant Society, will begin today, according to Richard Gould, student chairman.

Banks will be placed in the four food outlet locations on campus and students may make voluntary contributions.

Funds will be sent to Meals for Millions, a non profit foundation organized and directed by Clifford Clinton, which has its headquarters in Los Angeles, Gould noted.

Two Party Student Political System Unique On This Campus

By Deane Wylie

Come the end of this month the college campus will again be brightened by multicolored signs and posters in a prelude to the semi-annual Associated Student elections here next June 2 and 3.

The general excitement and "politicking" that go along with Associated Student elections here in comparison with student voting at other colleges may be attributed to the fact that there exists here one of the only college two-party systems in the nation.

First evidence of two-party existence here was during an AS election in 1948. The Spring semester of that year witnessed the forming of a Student League by charter clubs on campus and independent individuals.

The Student League captured four of the fourteen AS Council positions in that election, the opposition Inter-Fraternity Council taking nine and an independent candidate winning the remaining seat.

In January of 1949 the situation was reversed as the Student League captured nine council spots, with the IFC candidates winning only five seats. Spring of that same year saw the balance again fall in favor of the IFC, which took nine offices.

The death of the Student League in 1949 ended major opposition for the fraternity group in that year, but a new group appeared on campus whose program was apparent by its name, the "Committee For Better Student Government." At election time the group failed to materialize, and another organization was formed and called itself the "Affiliated Students."

The affiliation appeared not too strong, however, as the newly-formed group was unsuccessful in its attempt to capture any AS position. In June of 1950 the Affiliated Students again were dumped in their campaign for student government positions, taking but four out of fourteen spots.

Elections the following year saw the passing of the Affiliated Students and the reincarnation of the Student League, which had been dormant for two years. Coming back strongly, League candidates captured 11 of 14 council seats and three of the six top elective offices.

Elections interest stumbled in Spring, 1952 when 20 of the 21 elected offices went unopposed, and the fraternity party filled all posts. During summer of that year a group of students formed the United Student Association, which has continued to compete with the IFC since that time.

The USA made a strong showing in Fall, 1952 but won no offices in the following Spring, 1953 contest. Last Fall again saw the IFC taking every post.

Whether the two-party system will continue strong could be determined in the AS elections this June, the USA was warned by sponsor Mervin Slosberg in its convention last week. "It rests with you people to provide strong competition to the IFC candidates in order that the political party system may continue here," Slosberg said.

Election Petitions Deadline Is Today

Deadline for candidate petitions for Spring Associated Student elections on June 2 and 3 is 12 noon today, Election Commissioners Emily Hardy and Jane Zelinsky warned last week.

Candidates may return their petitions, together with the registration fee of $1.50 to the bank in the Science Building or to the Ramporium on the west campus, the commissioners said.

Petitions must contain signatures of 30 students, who must list their AS card number after their name. Students are not limited to the numer of petitions they may sign.

PUC Votes Against Lease For Proposed Drive-In Restaurant Near College

By Paul Girard

San Francisco's Public Utilities Commission, after a month and a half of consideration, voted unanimously not to award a lease to Miriam Sharp and Philip Lowe for three-quarters of an acre at the Northwest corner of Ocean & Phelan Avenues for use for a drive-in.

The decision was made, Oliver M. Rosseau, president of the commission said, because of great objections which were presented by school authorities, the administration, Associated Students, and private and civic organizations who backed the college in its stand that the establishment would draw an "undesirable element" to college functions.

Dr. Louis Conlan, president of the college, stated after the decision that he was pleased that the commission had taken the action and that he appreciated the consideration given to the problem by the commissioners.

First meeting of the PUC which considered the proposal was attended by Dr. Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Conlan, Louis Batmale, Oscar E. Anderson, John J. Brady, college administrators and a group of Associated Students.

Arguments against the proposal were made by the administration, Associated Students and civic organizations at the first meeting on March 29 in the commission chambers in the City Hall.

On May 4, Harold Asher, attorney for the proposed lessees, had luncheon at the college with student leaders and Dean of student activities Louis Batmale. After the luncheon, Asher and the students conferred with Conlan on the lease at which time Asher stated that he "wished to remain best of friends with the college, whatever the decision of the PUC is."

The PUC, at the meeting on May 10, before the decision was made, lauded students for their untiring efforts in behalf of the college in the controversy.

After final argument on May 17, by both sides involved in the controversy, the role of commissioners was called and their votes taken and the final decision in favor of the college was made.

A student leader commented, "the decision of the PUC in favor of the college was just, and fair consideration given both sides in the controversy."

West Goes East; English And Math Depts. Migrate

Social science, English and mathematics classes completed transfer from the west campus here into classrooms in Cloud Hall and the Science Building this week.

The hotel and restaurant division will remain in Buildings 12 and 14 and continue to operate the fountain and cafeteria, Dr. O. E. Anderson said. Buildings 4, 5 and 6 are almost completely evacuated, with the exception of The Guardsman workshop in 4D which will remain until June.

Classes in the Science Building that moved to Cloud Hall are as follows: S160 to C111, S191 to C116, S193 to C122, S194 to C105, S143 to C208, S211 to C114, S213 to C201, S214 to C101, S254 to C102, S255 to C103, S256 to C104, S300 to C109, S302 to C110, S393 to C119, S304 to C108, S346 to C115.

Boldenweck, Lo Coco Run For AS Presidency

Twenty-four candidates filed petitions for Associated Student offices, 20 having won nominations from their political parties, the Inter-Fraternity Council and the United Students Association, for the June 2 and 3 elections, according to a partial list released by Jane Zelinsky, AS election commissioner here.

Four candidates are running on an independent ticket, and three AS offices were still uncontested at the time of publication — AS vice-president, Associated Women Student president and Sophomore president.

Independent candidates are Bill Boldenweck for AS president, Al Kingston for Associated Men Student president, Abraham Virdeh for Sophomore member of council and Carol Thompson for Freshman member of council.

IFC nominees are as follows: John Lo Coco for AS president; Patty Mascarelli for AS vice-president; Bill Phillips for AMS president; Marcia Herst for AWS president; Brad Owens for Sophomore president; Robert Johnson for Freshman president.

Sophomore members of council: Lawrence Lowe, Betty Peterson, Walter Frehe, Don Pace, Marcia Moore, Pat Smith and Joe Galante.

Freshman members of council: Bill Cirimele, Gerry Fink and Richard Bdes.

Candidates nominated by the USA are as follows: Bob McNaught for freshman class president and for sophomore members of council, Marie Carl, Luther Distler and Ralph Libby.

Because of a delay in processing the election petitions, following an extension of the original deadline for filing, the above list of candidates released by Miss Zelinsky is only partially complete.

Voting will take place in the study hall (basement) of the Science Building, in the cafeteria and in The Ramporium, Building 12, on the west campus and in Cloud Hall on Wednesday, June 2, and Thursday, June 3, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Polls in the cafeteria will be open from 7:45 a.m. to 1 p.m., according to Miss Zelinsky.

Associated Student Election Board Releases Campaign, Voting Rules; Posters Need Committee Approval

Rules and regulations used in former Associated Student elections will again be followed this semester, Jane Zelinsky, AS Election Commissioner here, announced yesterday.

Campaign posters, which must be approved by the Election Committee between May 24 and June 1, must be no larger than 20 by 28 inches. The posters can be displayed in the west campus area within boundaries of Ocean and Phelan Avenues on the north, the cafeteria on the south, and Building 7 on the west.

Candidates wishing posters in the Science Building must bring them by June 1 to the AS office. These will be put up by Election Committee members only.

Responsibility for posters and their removal will be the candidate's. Placing of posters on walls, doors or windows of either campus will be forbidden except in the lounge, fountain and auditorium.

Publicity stunts must be approved by Dean Louise Batmale in Building 2. Campaigning of any kind will not be allowed within 100 feet of the polls during election days.

A maximum limit of 500 handbills has been set, but they are not to be posted on the campus. Handbills cannot be distributed within 500 feet of the polls during election days, Miss Zelinsky pointed out.

Campaign expenditures by candidates must not exceed $21.50, the marketable value of which will be determined by the Election Committee.

Voters upon registering must present their AS cards for punching. Only Election Committee members will be allowed to handle the polls and registration.

Holiday Cancels May 31 Classes

No classes are scheduled here for Monday, May 31, in observance of the Memorial Day Holiday on Sunday, May 30, Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, announced here yesterday.

A concert, sponsored by the music department, originally scheduled for Friday evening, May 28, was cancelled because of the three day holiday and the fact that college hour had already been scheduled for an election rally, according to Richard Vine, choir director here.

Civic Leader Offers Aid To Honor Student Here

Albert S. Samuels, Sr., San Francisco jeweler and civic leader, recently offered his sponsorship to Roberta Usher, a straight "A" student here, for the rest of her formal education.

It is the first such sponsorship at the college by Samuels. Miss Usher was informed of the sponsorship at a simple ceremony last week in the office of Dr. Louis Conlan, president of the college.

Samuels stated that he felt that he "Could appreciate a formal education because he, himself had received little." He also stated that, he felt he could and should help some deserving student through college because there are many "Pasteurs" who exist but are never discovered because of lack of finances to complete college.

Miss Usher was chosen as recipient of the award because of her scholastic standing, both here and while attending George Washington High School in San Francisco, and for her ability as a leader in student activities, according to Mary Golding, Dean of Women here.

Dr. Conlan commented after the ceremony, "It is wonderful for a leading citizen in a community to express his interest in education in such a tangible manner."

Miss Usher has not as yet decided what college she will attend under Samuels' sponsorship. She is considering attending either the University of California at Berkeley or Pomona College in Southern California.

Candidates Speak At May 28 Rally

A semi-annual election rally will be held in the college auditorium, Building 1, on the west campus, Friday, May 28 during college hour, Jim Glasson, election rally committee chairman, announced here yesterday.

Candidates for Associated Student President, AS Vice-President, Associated Men Student President, Associated Women Student President, Freshman Class President and Sophomore Class President will speak at the rally, according to Glasson.

Candidates for Sophomore and Freshman members of council will also be introduced at the rally.

Entertainment will be provided by members of the Associated Students in addition to expected professional acts, Glasson said.

All students are invited to attend the rally, he added.

Council Discusses IBM Facilities

By Deane Wylie

Discussion over proposed use of IBM facilities in student government work occupied Associated Student council members in meetings last week as Larry Elizarde presented information gathered by his "IBM Volunteer Citizens Committee."

Elizarde set forth a plan wherein information from Club Activities Board blue cards, which students fill in at time of registration here, would be transcribed on to IBM cards for quick sorting.

The IBM Committee also suggested that the council consider use of IBM cards in next week's AS elections, pointing out that voting machines are not available because of their use in concurrent city voting.

Joe Garbarino, AS president, told the council he had received a suggestion to move the Redwood Ram from its west campus position to a spot between the Science Building and Cloud Hall. Feasibility of the move was questioned by Walt Yakovleff, information service chairman, who noted that the Ram was presently resting in six feet of concrete foundation.

Date of the Student Council dinner will be June 8 at the California Hotel, according to Mikie Wrenn, appointed by Garbarino to carry out arrangements for the banquet.

Belief In Better Relations Needed In World Of 'H-Bombs'

WHEN Albert Samuels was speaking of the reason for his generous educational sponsorship of Roberta Usher, he made some comments which stand out in our minds as being most pertinent as Memorial Day approaches.

Samuels said that the need for sponsorship of such deserving and talented students as Miss Usher, who otherwise wouldn't be able to carry on their education, is a great one in today's world. Miss Usher and Samuels both believe that education should be used for furthering the good of mankind and not for destroying it.

In contemporary life too many are learning how to produce bigger and better "H-Bombs," but not enough are applying their skills toward better and more peaceful relations with their fellow men. This needed application of skills, then, is something in which both the sponsor and his benefactor believe.

With more men of Albert Samuels' belief in a better future for mankind helping such students as Roberta Usher, with the same philosophy, on to their goal of an educational background for peaceful relations there would be no necessity for a Memorial Day—no war dead to honor.

Or as Samuels put it—those of this generation can leave their descendants a happier world in which to live by helping them achieve that happiness.

We can be thankful that there are such understanding men and deserving students left in the world, despite all the warfare and the cynical viewpoints which the fighting often leaves in its wake.

These men and students, with their belief in peace, are the only true memorial tributes to our revered war dead, and we must see and apply the wisdom of their belief so that the dead we honor Sunday may never be joined by the warriors of another great battle.

This great battle, with its "H-Bombs" and people with lack of a feeling toward better relations with their fellow men may well be the end of our civilization, and our Memorial Day honorees will have, indeed, "died in vain."

PUC Agrees With Majority Opinion

SPEAKING for the college we would like to thank all the fine organizations, too numerous to list here, for their support in the recently settled restaurant-establishment proposal.

We want especially to voice our appreciation to the Public Utilities Commission for its interest in the college and its supporters. The commissioners have always made their decisions consistent with the majority of public opinion. This latest decision is another mark of their continuing aid to the college and to the majority of the citizens who sponsor that college.

It is our real desire that the prospective restaurant builders consider us their friends, and we wish them the best of luck in another, more suitable site which they may choose for their operation.

Uncertainty, Instability Are Reflected In Architecture

By Harold Painter

THE philosophy of modern American home building seems to reflect an unconscious concern for travel. More often than not, contemporary style and furnishing show a strong affinity for train stations and hotel lobbies.

Furniture, even, far from being collected with an eye to domestic comfort, seems poised for flight. Colors that broadcast only themselves, too hot to sit on, and sleek, sliding lines, more prone to motion than to solidarity, contribute an air of transcience to the modern American home setting.

The qualities of good taste, reason, order, and comfort have either been transcended or ignored, and the spirit of artistic violence has been brought home in a bag that until now had been generally occupied by a bacon.

The 19th century home builder apparently bolted his door to the troubles of his age. There is something in his home that suggests comfort, solidarity and a will to optimism, safety by firelight and family-side. But there seems frustrative energy housed in the glass and tile and sterile lines of the 20th century, a hopelessness that denies even comfort. And he has fitted his house with furtive wings.

The fog house and the sod-house were furnished with rough-hewn hospitality and friendly fires. The 20th century has lost the need; perhaps, it has been denied the need, the necessity of tradition, and is strangely at home housekeeping in the washroom of an air terminal.

The loosened energy of the times is the driving force of the architect; If he is successful, he has recognized and built what is in the mind of his contemporaries. We can not deny the success of the contemporary architect. We can not deny the success of our failure. We have burned our homes in the past. We live in train stations and stopping places on precarious routes. We live in pill-boxes and ships half-buried in sand.

Students Express Views Of Party System On Campus

• Orchid Award

Editor, The Guardsman:

Almost 2 months ago I read in The Guardsman of the Orchid Award. Your readers were told that the Beta Tau Fraternity was going to present an orchid to one of the women on the college's non-certified staff (non-teaching staff) whom the members of the fraternity considered worthy of the award. This was to be done every month. Alice Thornton was presented with the orchid for April, but as of this writing no one has ever seen the award for May that was promised by the "Frat" in The Guardsman.

Maybe they have forgotten or just ignored the promise, or could it be that they don't consider any of those hardworking women worthy of the award.

Later The Guardsman published a letter signed by John Lo Coco that thanked The Guardsman for the award coverage but didn't mention giving a regular monthly award as promised earlier by Lo Coco and his "Frat." This seems very "Fishy" as it came right after this Lo Coco got the IFC nomination for President. Was he playing politics? If so, then it seems to be a very cheap and crumby way of getting a little publicity.

Don't tell me it's the usual malarky of big promise and no action system.

What I really want to know is, who is at fault, The Guardsman or John Lo Coco and his Beta Tau Fraternity. Did The Guardsman give the readers false information on the Orchid Award or did Lo Coco and his fraternity cohorts make false promises.

Like I say, it's a terrific idea and if the Beta Tau doesn't want to carry out such a great cause then I suggest The Guardsman pick up where the "promisers" dropped the ball and start a "real" campaign for a very worthy award.

• Two Parties

Editor, The Guardsman:

I have just finished reading your excellent editorial in regard to the two party system on this campus. However, it appears that the editorial has begun, I believe, with a false premise, that the two party system, as such, is bad for the Associated Students. I can not believe that this is so.

The Associated Students of City College have been recognized in the past by many authorities as having the most advanced student government in the State of California, if not in the entire United States. For this highly advanced student government to return to an old-fashioned system of election, does not seem to be the answer to our problem. The party system works well in all forms of government in spite of its weaknesses.

If a system has weaknesses, the thing to do is correct them rather than to destroy it. In the specific case of City College Student Government, if one of two parties is overwhelmingly strong, the thing to do is to strengthen the weaker party.

No one should ever be criticized for being strong unless that strength is misused. Strength in itself is not a curse unless that strength is used to crush all opposition. It would be to the advantage of the strong party to encourage the weaker and give it as much assistance as possible in order that we can preserve our two party system. It has been proved in the past that when the elections are unopposed, or half-heartedly opposed, student interest tends to disappear; therefore, it would seem that real competition for student office must be encouraged.

The party system is workable if it is given a chance. Therefore, it is up to the students to show their interest rather than to adopt an attitude of, "it doesn't mean anything to me."

• IFC Support

Editor, The Guardsman:

A recent editorial in your paper was, in my opinion, quite misleading and I should like to correct a few of the impressions given. The Guardsman is a school newspaper and I believe it should present both sides of this subject and not be the propaganda tool of one small group of students.

It is an old custom to blame all evils on the party in power, a custom carried on admirably by your recent editorial condemning the IFC party. First you blame the IFC for the small turnout of voters.

This is not the fault of the fraternities and sororities, who work hard every election to turn out the school voters. It is unfair to condemn the IFC merely because the other political party on campus has proved itself to be weak and ineffectual.

We in the IFC would welcome strong opposition as beneficial to this school. As you say, we are in the minority, therefore if the student body of this school believes that we are doing a poor job in student government, it is within their power to defeat us. That they have not done this is the result of two things; one, they realize that we have worked hard to improve student government and are doing a good job, and two, there is no strong opposition.

The latter is not our fault, for as I stated before most of us in the IFC would welcome such opposition. You state that the "USA is certainly not at fault," yet point out that they have the majority of students to work with. Could not effective leadership in the USA produce results with this wealth of raw material?

We select the candidates we desire to represent us in open balloting. We also encourage any student who desires to do so to run independent and many excellent candidates do this.

We have never been guilty of discouraging any qualified candidate to run for office, whether it be on our ticket, another party's ticket, or independent. You certainly cannot claim that we try to cut the USA out of student government, for many positions on the cabinet are held by USA members, appointed by the "unfair" IFC.

I think it is about time you started coming up with constructive ideas instead of unfounded, destructive criticisms. We welcome constructive criticism, as all fair people do, but deplore the mud-slinging "slam" technique you showed in your editorial.

Treasure Hunt Digs Up Mud And Policemen

By Shirley Murphy

TREASURE hunt sponsored recently by The Chronicle produced at least one ironical situation. Allan H. Allen, an adventurous type Ram, was frantically searching for the bounty in the Presidio one gloomy evening when his car became stuck in the mud.

As he tried to free his vehicle from the muck and mire, he struck a defense battery, sounding an alarm. Within a matter of minutes Allan H. Allen was surrounded by six squad cars inhabited by the officer of the day and a squad of military police. After passing a security check, he was released. Wearily Allan H. Allen drove to his home, just seven blocks from where the treasure was found.

Sam in Shutterland

Newest model for the campus lensmen is our little Merino mascot. Unfortunately his latest chore seems to have gone to his head, more specifically his horns, for after his last posing stint, he pugnaciously butted an innocent bystander. All of his friends on campus are fearful that the little fellow has lost his humility, which made him so endearing.

Mandrake Comes to City

Study of man, as pursued in Anthropology 2B was given a new twist recently. Students were given an opportunity to observe man suspended in air as one of Houdini's followers performed a levitation stunt for their benefit.

Summer Epidemic

Newest tune on the juke box in the fountain, The Happy Wanderer, is indicative of the roving spirit that has infected a vast majority of the students with the advent of summer.

Administrative Avocation

Not only the law enforcement department of the college is interested in the activities of San Quentin. Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, is on the athletic advisory board of the prison.

Is Nothing Sacred?

Just the facts—an unattended patrol car was borrowed from its parking spot near a drive-in recently by a misguided prankster. The lad rolled the car down the hill near the entery and began playing games with the police radio. Police Communications Bureau, hearing that an officer had been shot, dispatched two radio cars and three Accident Prevention Bureau cars to the scene of the crime.

Emerging from the restaurant, patrolman Richard Silva, who is a student at the college, found his displaced car and ejected the misguided dragnet fan.

Rams Cop Two Third Places At State Meet

Seventh Annual City College Boxing Tourney Finds 18 Finalists Touching Gloves In Fistic Debut At 8 Tonight

By Tony Campilongo

Bringing to a close the semester's ring activities, the annual All-City College boxing tournament will take place here tonight at 8 p.m., in the men's gymnasium.

The program will feature 18 finalists who survived two or more fights in elimination bouts at the week's start.

Roy Diederichsen, head boxing coach here, stated that interest in the tourney from the standpoint of the boxers themselves has been the greatest in his seven year stint in the college athletic department.

"This spirit," the coach said, "along with the patient tutoring of fight managers in teaching the novices the ropes of the fight game will undoubtedly more than make up the admission price for the fight.

Payoff Due

"They have been at it (the boxers and managers) for two solid months now and tonight will provide the big payoff for the long practice hours put in," Diederichsen added and disclosed be the recipient of a trophy."

"It will be presented to the fightingest fighter of the tourney," the coach added, "not necessarily to the most skillful performer, but one who shows the most hustle and heart."

Some loyal ring fan, favoring the 10 per cent takers in the fistic sport groaned, "Poor managers, what do they get out of the tournament for all the work they put in."

Manager Trophy Offered

Laughingly the coach turned around and said to the young fight fan, "Must have slipped my mind; yes, the manager who comes up with the largest number of winning fighters will also be the recipient of a trophy.

Having gained another admirer, the mentor said that Stan Smith, former San Jose State middleweight boxing champ and national title holder in 1942, in all probability will referee the matches.

Sportswriters Judges

Judges for the night will be sportwriters from the city's four leading newspapers. Admission price will be free for Associated Student members and $1 for non-members.

Following are the names of managers and fighters who have made this tournament possible:

Managers: Norm Hill, Ken Turner, Al Scialanca, Roger Hoffman and Glen Lanium.

Boxers: Roger Lau, "Cal" Berkeley, Mike Cusec, Thomas Robinson, Rol Roger, Norm Fong, Ralph Harmas, Francisco Regal, Louis Comaduran, George Maritinez, James O'Connell, John Shelly, Ronald Kinared, Audry Lee, Stan Powers, Ernie Benard, Robert Lee, Gil Soto, John Ergot, Ed Palmieri, Joe Kelly, Ron Sinclair, Don Matisek, Bill Lucas, Manual Vano, Gabe Barras, Charles Leach, Dick Minetti, Jim Moody, Neil Leonard, Rich Christopher, John Mantele, Paul Crowley, Frank Regil and Earl Cross.

Golf Team To Battle Bearcubs For League Title

By Bob Chrisman

City College's golf team has enjoyed one of the most successful seasons in the history of the college, as the team awaits a playoff match with the second place Santa Rosa team which will be played within a few weeks.

City College trounced Santa Rosa at Harding in the league opener, beating Santa Rosa 12½ to 2½, as Lou Sartor won medalist honors with a 77. Santa Rosa, who is in second place behind the Rams, has the right to challenge the Rams to a playoff match to determine first place standing in the Big Seven, even though the Rams are in first place.

In the second league match, City College ran up against a strong dark-horse Sacramento team and tied the Panthers, 7½ to 7½, with Gene George shooting a 74 to pace the Rams at Sacramento, April 2.

The college golf team came off with a tie for first place in the two-year college division of the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Championships, along with Menlo, and finished fourth among all the colleges. In the individual championships, Tony Prinz of City College won the first flight, and George took first place honors in the third flight.

San Mateo surprised the Rams and handed them their first defeat of the season, beating them at San Mateo, on April 23, by two points, 8½ to 6½.

On April 30, the Rams defeated Modesto, 8½-6½ in another close match to stay alive in the Big Seven Conference title race.

West Contra Costa provided no opposition on May 7, when the Rams ran over them, 15-0 to move into first place as Santa Rosa lost to Sacramento. Prinz was medalist with a 78.

Block SF Meets June 4

Next Block SF Society meeting will take place Friday, June 4, during college hour, according to Bill Fischer, society sponsor here. The club meets in Building 10D.

Guest speaker will be Roy Burkhead, track coach at the college. Refreshments and films of college track meets are also on the agenda.

Rams Lose Two To Sacramento In Season Finale

By virtue of twin defeats at the hands of Sacramento May 15, the college baseball team ended the season in the Big Seven cellar. The score of the first game played at Sacramento was 7-2 and the Capital City nine came back in the nightcap to hang a 14-3 loss on the Rams.

Stan Fetterman pitched the opener but faulty fielding betrayed him, and as a result he was the recipient of another defeat.

Bob Wood, winner over Modesto recently and therefore only victorious Ram pitcher this season, hurled the second game. All of the Panthers 14 runs came off of him, but his mates made seven errors behind him.

West Contra Costa captured the Big Seveh Conference championship by edging Stockton in a playoff game. The two teams finished the season with identical 8-4 records.

Final League Standings:

Team	Won	Lost
West CC	*10	3
Stockton	*9	4
Santa Rosa	8	4
Modesto	6	6
Sacramento	5	7
San Mateo	4	8
CCSF	1	11

*Extra playoff game to determine champion.

Intra Program Rolling; Keen Competition Seen

By John Murray

Intramural sports roll toward keener competition as the semester passes the two-thirds mark and looks to the championship tilts.

All has passed with much seriousness on the player's part, but to the spectator, and the coaches, many an occasion has brought about an ill-suppressed "mirth-quake."

As an one occasion in Coach Bill Fischer's 9 a.m. Thursday class: A back received a football in punt formation while a teammate stepped in front of him to block. There was a tremendous up-swing of a leg as toe met football and football met teammate. A little dignity was lost but it did not cost the game.

To express a little of the earnestness involved, the playing of the game itself brings out the confidence and initiative of the players, and is proof of the athletic program here achieving its goal, physical education department heads have commented.

One class basketball championship had to be replayed three times because of the way the teams went all out to win, but could only tie. Another case was a Monday class team that hadn't won a single game, but that didn't dampen its spirit to try.

It is open competition like this intramural program that students enjoy today that will be a guide to a healthier life tomorrow, instructors have said.

Carlson, Relay Team Score As Compton Wins

City College's two entries in the Fourth Annual All-California State Junior College Track and Field Championships accounted for a pair of third places as Compton College eased to the championship at Santa Monica's Corsair Field.

Al Carlson, Big Seven champion half-miler, chased Mount San Antonio's Ray Coyle to a new meet record of 1:55.4. Carlson finished third and was clocked in 1:57.5, slightly under his Conference record of 1:57.2.

The Ram mile relay team was the other college representative. The milers finished fourth, but were awarded the third spot when Los Angeles City College was disqualified. Compton won the event with a new meet record of 3:17.1.

Compton's record in the relay was also a new national two-year college record. The Tartars broke their own record of 3:17.4, set in 1949 at the Fresno Relays.

Only winners for the Northern California teams were Duane Ludlow, a 9:37.4 winner in the two mile, and Art Pederson, who vaulted 13-2 to give Modesto a first place. Ludlow, who was held out of the mile by his coach, smashed the old two mile record of 9:40.5.

Compton scored 55¾ points for the win. Modesto was second with 45 and Santa Ana third with 43. The two third places gave the Rams 6 points and a tie with Hartnell, El Camino and College of the Sequoias for nineteenth place.

There were several meet records set this year. In addition to the two-mile relay, and half-mile, new marks were recorded in the 220, high jump, 100, 220 low hurdles, and the discus.

Two of the marks were set by Jim Hutcherson, sprinter from Los Angeles City College. Hutcherson did a 21.4 in the 220, breaking the mark of 21.6, and then came back to run the 100 yarder in 09.6, shattering the old record of 10.0, held by Van Parish of City College and shared by several others.

In both sprints Hutcherson was chased to the wire by Modesto's Chuck McGuinness. McGuinness finished second in both events and was timed in 21.6 in the 220 and 09.7 in the century, also a record breaking time.

Floyd Jeter of East Los Angeles provided one of the top records when he high jumped 6-7, two inches above the old mark. Other records set were by Don Daniel in the low hurdles, with 23.7, surpassing the old mark of 24.4; and by Bill Rogers of Chaffey in the discus, with a distance of 157-6½. The old mark for the disc was 146-11.

Final Team Scoring — Compton 55¾; Modesto 45; Santa Ana 43; LACC 38½; Mt. San Antonio 32; L. A. Valley 27½; Santa Rosa 21; East Los Angeles 20; Pasadena 16; Glendale 13½; Los Angeles Basic 12; Santa Monica 12; Chaffey 10; Stockton 10; Harbor 8½; Fullerton 8; Porterville 7; West Contra Costa 7; Hartnell 6; CCSF 6; El Camino 6; College of Sequoias 6; Yuba 5; Sacramento 4½; Bakersfield 4; East Contra Costa 2; Napa 1.

Trojan Threatens 7 Foot High Jump

RAMBLINGS

By Gail Allan Moss

Shelton Nearing Magic Leap Barrier

POSSIBILITY of the "magic" seven foot high jump was mentioned here last week, and from Ernie Shelton's performance in the West Coast Relays at Fresno on May 15 it appears we were closer than realized to the truth.

Shelton, one of the annual crop of University of Southern California track greats, leaped 6-9½ to set a new record for the Relays. His jump erased the mark of 6-8¾ that belonged to Walter Marty. Shelton just missed clearing the bar at 6-11.

Now that the four minute mile and the 60 foot shot put are in the book, the seven foot high jump seems certain to be next. The present world's mark, held by Walt Davis of Texas, is 6-11½, and there are quite a few timber-toppers within shooting distance of that height.

The main contender, of course, is Shelton, but aside from him there are several capable of seven feet. Chuck Holding, of East Texas State, has done around the 6-10 mark and vows that he'll top the "magic" mark.

Bill Russell, star basketball center at the University of San Francisco, has done 6-7½, and experts like Dink Templeton think that Russell, hampered by the lack of an organized track team at USF and himself preferring basketball to track, could crack the seven foot ceiling. Davis himself is still around to try and better his own world mark.

Athletes have progressed greatly in the last half century, and this year seems to be the year to break the "impossible" marks. We'd be willing to wager that the seven foot jump is added to the others before this season is over.

Speaking of Shelton, an unusual characteristic of his has been adopted by several other high jumpers, including some in the Big Seven Conference. The Trojan star leaps with only one track shoe on. His takeoff foot is bare. Whether this is any help or not is a debatable point, but it certainly hasn't done Shelton any harm and Santa Rosa's Ron Walters, Big Seven record holder in the event, among others, has taken to the one-shoe-on-and-one-shoe-off routine.

Several weeks ago we mentioned here that Ram football Coach Grover Klemmer was pretty well set at quarterback for the coming season with four top-notch signal callers on the campus. Klemmer has since patiently informed us that veteran Al DeLaTorre is in the United States Army and Johnny O'Rourke is now with the Air Force.

Poor Klemmer! This leaves him with only second team All-Big Seven quarterback Ray Arata and first team San Francisco All-City man Les Barros. How will the poor chap ever make out?

Tankersley, Mogan, Cordini Selected As Commencement Speakers From 18 Tryouts

After competing with 18 other candidates, Ray Tankersley, Alberta Cordini and Kathaleen Mogan were selected as chief student speakers for the Friday, June 18 commencement exercises, Edwin C. Browne, commencement committee chairman, announced here last week.

Members of the commencement speakers committee were William Culver, chairman; Thomas H. Dutcher, John O. French, Anka Perisich, Gertrude Sommerville, John M. Selig, Edwin C. Browne, Mary Golding, Louis G. Batmale and Lloyd D. Luckmann.

They selected the speakers on the basis of academic standing, clearness of expression and vocal strength when the students delivered their tentative speeches to the committee at a meeting held last week.

Tentative plans have been made for a pre-commencement assembly, Browne commented, to be held on either June 3 or 4. All graduates will be invited to attend. It is planned that all scholarship winners will receive their awards at that time. Fifteen Associated Women Students will usher at the affair.

A commencement rehearsal date for Friday afternoon, June 18 has been set by the committee. It is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m., Browne stated.

All graduates will receive an Associated Arts degree, if they have completed the necessary requirements, which are as follows:

A total of 60 units with at least a "C" or 1.0 point grade average maintained in all work completed at the college, plus the fulfillment of specific requirements set by the California State Board of Education and the college, listed in the college catalog.

Club Cavalcade
Initiations End Group Activities

By Patty Moran

FRATERNITIES and sororities are rounding out the semester's activities with pledge initiation ceremonies and banquets.

Other campus organizations are making plans for next semester with elections and installation dinners.

Pledges of Alpha Phi Omega, the service fraternity, will be formally initiated this Saturday, May 29. A banquet will follow the ceremonies.

Alpha Lambda Chi will have a meeting tonight at Kay Griffin's home. Sisters of the sorority were honored at a dinner prepared and served by the pledges last Sunday night, May 23, at the home of Joan Anderson.

Names of the 13 pledges of Beta Phi Beta were announced recently. The list includes Richard Amigo, Bill Cirimele, John De Martini, Joe Egri, Joe Garces, Bob Geppert, pledge captain; Bob Johnson, Ron Kindred, Jim Nichols, Roy O'Farrell, Paul Pearce, Bill Perasso and Mitchel Winoker.

Delta Psi had a business meeting last Tuesday night at Carolyn Fisher's home.

New officers of the Masonic Club will be installed this Sunday night, May 30, at a dinner-dance to be held at Mori's Restaurant, located in Sharp Park.

Nomination and election of new officers will be held at a meeting of the Newman Club on Wednesday, June 2. The club is planning its annual picnic and barbecue for Sunday, June 6.

Tau Chi Sigma held its pledge dinner at the Claremont Hotel in Berkeley last Saturday night, May 22.

Five pledges who formally became brothers of the fraternity at initiation ceremonies prior to the dinner were Leo Champang, Russ Goldstein, Lee Lan, Ed Scheeline and George Stack.

8 Courses Added In Home Economics

Eight courses in Home Economics, listed in the college catalog as not offered in 1954-55, were reinstated last week in the Fall semester curriculum, Edward E. Sandys, dean of general education courses here, announced.

Resumption of these courses is because of the return of Claire Magnesi, home economics instructor, from a year's leave of absence.

Courses now offered are as follows: G1. Introduction to Clothing and Textiles. G4. History of Costume and Personal Adornment. G6. Introductim to Textiles. G10. Entertaining for the Modern Host and Hostess. G11. Apparel and Home Buying Guides. G15. Clothing Selection and Construction. G18. Interior Decoration. 26A. Theory of Design and Color.

Students who wish to take these courses and who have already completed next semester's tentative program list, can consult their counselors again, Sandys said.

Debaters Prepare For June Speaking Event

Members of Phi Rho Pi, campus debate society, are preparing for the annual extemporaneous speaking event sponsored by the Alumni Association. Present plans call for the tournament to be held early in June, according to Thomas Dutcher, faculty sponsor.

A cup is awarded to the winner by the Alumni Association, Dutcher said, and noted that all students of the college are invited to participate. Those interested may contact Dutcher in Building 4X.

MICHEL DUMONT, press counselor to the French Consulates here and in Los Angeles, speaks to the International Relations Club this Friday, May 28, in Room 100 of the Science Building. He will discuss the current situation in French Indo-China. —French Embassy Photo.

French Official Will Speak Here

Michel Dumont, press counselor to the French Consulates in San Francisco and Los Angeles, will speak to the college's International Relations Club this Friday May 28, during college hour in Room 100 of the Science Building, according to Joseph M. Jacobsen, IRC faculty sponsor.

Dumont, a graduate of the Lycee Henri IV and the Faculty of Letters of the University of Paris, will address the group in regard to the situation in French Indo-China.

Previously serving with French delegations in Mexico, North Africa and Canada, he was appointed Director of Press and Information Service of the French Embassy in Washington, D. C., in 1946, and has held his present post since 1952.

All interested persons are invited to hear Dumont speak to the club, Jacobsen said. Organized this semester, the IRC states as its purpose the promotion of good fellowship between foreign and American students on campus. Membership is open to all students here and they may apply at Jacobsen's office in Building 3.

Election Rally Cancels Film Showing Friday

Changes in the usual program at the college have caused the films scheduled to be shown during college hour every week, to be postponed until Friday, June 4, Madison Devlin, audio visual instructor here, announced last week.

Films will not be seen this Friday, May 28, because of an election rally during college hour, Devlin said.

Sororities Vie For Dougherty Award

For the second time in the college's history, the awarding of the Dougherty Trophy to a sorority here will take place this semester, Mary Golding, dean of women, announced last week.

The award will be given to the sorority whose members have accumulated the highest grade point average, she said.

Given in honor of Margaret Dougherty, retired dean of women here, the award will actually consist of a permanent trophy, given to the winning sorority, Miss Golding said, and a perpetual plaque on which the sorority's name will be engraved and which will be placed on display in Cloud Hall.

The award was given for the first time last semester, she added. Delta Psi sorority was the recipient.

The trophy was awarded, Miss Golding said, to encourage good scholarship within sororities.

Name of the winning sorority will probably be announced at a luncheon given by the Inter-Sorority Council later this semester, she said.

Yell Leaders For Coming Football Season Needed

With football season rolling around in the Fall semester the call has been put in for pom-pom girls and yell leaders, to help guide the crowds that come to the games to root for the college team, Emmett Thompson, AS rally commissioner, announced yesterday.

Thompson will handle the interviews and tryouts of students wishing to be yell leaders or pom-pom girls for the college.

Tryouts will be held in the college auditorium, Building 1, on Thursday, May 27, at 2 p.m.

Card Sales Pass Seven Thousand Dollar Goal

By Carol Fisher

Approximately one week from now final tally on Associated Student card sales will be ready for release, Dave Raphael, AS card sales chairman, announced yesterday.

The goal of this semester of $7,000 has already been surpassed but there are still about 25 per cent of the graduating class who are not AS members.

At the present, Raphael said, mimeographed post cards are being printed to send out to those graduating who are not AS members as a reminder to buy them now or pay rental fee for cap and gown. AS cards can still be purchased for $5 at the student bank, first floor of the Science Building or at The Ramporium, west campus.

Those students who cannot pay the $5 price for AS membership, were advised to see Dean of Student Activities Louis Batmale, Dean of Men Edwin Browne or Dean of Women Mary Golding about earning AS membership through work on the campus.

Since elections of next semester's Associated Students officers is coming up early in June, Raphael reminded students that it is "important to vote because people they vote for spend their money." Only members of the AS will be permitted to vote.

Concerning the discounts for next semester's members, it was generally surmised that co-operation on this matter was hard to get because of the constant activity of students participating in the May 21 Mardi Gras festivities, but Raphael is working now on letters which will be sent to Bay Area and San Francisco firms who would give student discounts.

Further activities on these letters will start this week. Raphael said that this semester something new is being tried to get more discounts. Instead of sending out the usual mimeographed post cards, form letters will be used. This, he judged, will help get a few more discounts.

Giving as an example of one organization on campus, Raphael commented that this group was disappointed in the past because of inability to keep any medals and trophies it had won in contests for the reason that its members didn't have 100 per cent AS membership which is required of all campus groups supported by an AS budget. So he reminded any groups still not 100 per cent to see that members get cards now.

As a closing remark, Raphael asked that students without AS cards purchase them as soon as possible since most campus activities of budgeted and non-budgeted clubs alike depend upon membership.

Without required membership these campus clubs cannot have a representative at Club Activities Board meetings or put up any of their "cardless" members for elected or appointed student government offices.

Ferrero And Davidson Reign At Mardi Gras

King and queen of the college Mardi Gras celebration last Friday, chosen by a panel of guest judges, were Warren Davidson and Lois Ferrero.

As king Davidson received a custom suit and sport shirt from the Royal Park Tailors and accessories from the Cortez Custom Men's Shop.

Miss Ferrero's prizes included a party dress from the Riviera Dress Shop with accessories by Joseph Magnin, a summer dress from Alice of California and a beach outfit by Catalina of California.

Because of their Mardi Gras experience with the college a 10 per cent discount has been offered to City College Associated Students by some of the firms who donated prizes, according to Dean Cyr, student here, who arranged the discounts. Stores giving the discount are Royal Park Tailors, 175 O'Farrell Street; Cortez Men's Shop, 722 Broadway; and the Riviera Shop, 1552 Ocean Avenue.

Summer Session At Cal, SF State Open To Students

Summer sessions at both the University of California and San Francisco State College will be open to City College of San Francisco students desiring to gain additional units during the summer.

There will be two summer sessions of six weeks each at the University of California on the Berkeley campus during 1954. The first session will be held from June 21 to July 31; the second session from August 2 to September 11.

Students who wish to attend one of the summer sessions should file an application with the office of the summer sessions not later than Wednesday, May 26, for the first session, and Tuesday, July 13, for the second session.

Registration and payment of fees for the six week summer session at San Francisco State College will be Saturday, June 26, from 9 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m., and Monday, June 28, from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 3 p.m. Registration for the post session will be on Monday, August 9, from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

Summer session starts June 26 and ends August 6. The post session is from August 9 to August 27.

Deadline Friday For Chinese Scholarships

Deadline for letters of petition for the annual Chinese Sweetheart Ball scholarships is Friday, May 28, according to Darleen Young, vice-president of the Chinese Students Club here.

Two scholarships of $50 each will be presented to the Chinese man and woman student here who write the best letter stating their qualifications. Letters should be turned in to the office of Edwin C. Browne, dean of men.

In order to be eligible for the scholarships, students must be carrying 12½ units at present and must be returning to the college next semester.

Detailed information will be sent out to all members of the Chinese Club by mail, Miss Young added.

Semi-Annual Student Council Dinner June 8

Semi-annual Student Council dinner will be held at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, June 8, at San Francisco's California Hotel, Joe Garbarino, Associated Student president, said last week.

During the dinner the outstanding student in service to the AS, as chosen by the Student Council will be named and presented with an award. In selecting this student all members of the council or cabinet are excluded from the running, Garbarino added.

In addition the new AS president will be formally sworn into office.

Students with AS cards will be admitted to the affair for $1. Actual price of the dinner is three dollars per person, but the council is providing the additional $2.

Chairman Mikie Wrenn expects a turnout of approximately 120 persons, Garbarino said.

Placement Head Reports Scarcity Of Cannery Jobs

Now is the time to apply for summer jobs in canneries, college placement director Joseph A. Amori reported yesterday. He hastily added that the leaders in the cannery field say, "there is going to be an over-supply of cannery workers this year."

He explained that the way for students to make application for this type of work is not through the college but directly to the cannery.

There are three types of workers employed in canneries during the summer, he said, and all must belong to or join the union. The three types are year-round employes, seasonal seniority workers, and non-seniority workers.

Amori explained that a non-seniority worker is either a new worker or one who has been employed for only a short time. He added this encouragement, "Canneries prefer college students for this position because they are cleaner, smarter and have more enthusiasm usually."

He said there are no canneries in San Francisco County, but there are many in the East Bay and in Santa Clara County.

He listed those in the East Bay as Ball Cannery, California Packing Corporation (six plants), Stokley's, Felice & Perelli, H. J. Heinz & Co., Gerber's, Hunt Foods and Fruitvale Canning Co.

The usual schedule for the canneries begins with asparagus and continues with cherries, apricots, peaches, pears, fruit cocktail and tomatoes in that order. Some of these may overlap.

The wages, according to Amori, are set by the union on contracts with the canneries. They run $1.48 per hour for men and $1.32 per hour for women.

When does work begin? "When the fruit is ripe!" Amori concluded.

Hawaiian Theme Planned For Soph Ball At Yacht Club

St. Francis Yacht Club, decorated in a Hawaiian setting, will be the scene for the June 12, semi-annual sophomore ball, Jim Vickers, Sophomore class president, announced last week.

Tickets will cost $2.50 per couple, whether students are members of the Associated Students or not, Vickers stated. Dress will be semi-formal, he added. Formals for women and suits for men will be appropriate attire.

Tickets will go on sale during sophomore week, June 6 to June 11. Vickers stated, and salesmen can be recognized by the colorful Hawaiian shirts which they will wear during that week.

"Those who are interested in participating as King and Queen candidates," Vickers said, "should submit their names and petitions at the Associated Student office, Building 2, before Wednesday, June 2."

To be eligible as a candidate, students should be sponsored by a club, fraternity or sorority, and the student must have a total of 30 units of college work.

Committee members who are in charge of plans for the affair are Frank Gorrel, Sophomore class vice-president, in charge of bids and tallies; Jackie Mascarelli, secretary-treasurer, in charge of invitations and Larry Elizarde, in charge of decorations and special effects.

The Guardsman Election Edition

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME XXXVIII SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 2, 1954 NUMBER 14

Polls Open Today For AS Election

Bill Boldenweck

AL KINGSTON, independent candidate for Associated Men Student President.

PATTY MASCARELLI, unopposed IFC candidate for Associated Student Vice-President.

BILL PHILLIPS, Inter-Fraternity candidate for Associated Men Student President.

John Lo Coco

IN CHOOSING a president the members of the Associated Students will undoubtedly take into consideration the factors of ability to carry out the duties of the office, experience, and background in student government, leadership and maturity.

I feel that I meet these qualifications.

I believe that the greatest need in student government is to extend the scope of student government to represent the many students not now represented.

If elected to this office my aim will be to build an even more active unified student body and carry on the work of the last four student administrations of which I have been an active member.

Bill Boldenweck
Independent Candidate
for AS President

RUNNING FOR the office of Associated Student President is, I feel, both an honor and an obligation.

The honor is that of receiving Inter-Fraternity council nomination, and of being on the same ticket with the qualified candidates that the Inter-Fraternity Council chose.

The obligation is the realization that if elected, I represent you, the students of City College of San Francisco. This is also a very great honor.

If elected, I will strive to make the ideal Associated Student program one which will continually increase interest, membership, and participation within the college and which will result in an activity program of interest to every student at City College.

John Lo Coco
IFC Candidate
For AS President

Heated Contest Rages For Two Top Offices As 27 Candidates Enter Race

Poll Sites Listed

Associated Student voters will cast their ballot here today and tomorrow in four locations.

Polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. near the second floor elevator in Cloud Hall, in the basement study hall of the Science Building and in front of The Rampolrum, and from 7:45 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the west campus cafeteria.

Voters will be required to present their AS cards at the polls.

1450 Eligible To Cast Ballots; Heavy Voter Turnout Predicted

By Deane Wylie

Heated struggles for the posts of Associated Student President and Associated Men Student President, which have topped student interest in past weeks, will be climaxed here today and tomorrow when AS members cast their votes for Fall semester AS officers.

On the basis of pre-election campaigning, AS Election Commissioner Jane Zelinsky yesterday predicted a large voter turnout. As of May 27, 1450 students here are AS members and therefore eligible to cast ballots at the four polls, 455 fewer than the 1905 AS members last semester.

Vying for the AS presidential post are Bill Boldenweck and John Lo Coco. Boldenweck was denied nomination as Inter-Fraternity Council candidate for AS president, after losing to Lo Coco on the IFC's fifth convention ballot. He later filed a petition as an independent candidate.

The opposing United Student Association party is not running a presidential candidate, but has five members up for election.

Three offices are uncontested. Patty Mascarelli, Marcia Herst and Brad Owens, all three IFC nominees, are running unopposed for the offices of AS Vice-President, Associated Women Student President and Sophomore President, respectively.

Independent candidate Al Kingston opposes IFC member Bill Phillips in the AMS presidency contest, and in the only office featuring an IFC-USA struggle, Robert Jackson, sponsored by the IFC, is pitted against USA member Bob McNaught for Freshman President.

Eleven students are in the race for the seven sophomore member-of-council seats, seven IFC candidates and four USA candidates. Representing the IFC are Walt Frehe, Joe Galante, Lawrence Lowe, Marion Moore, Don Pace, Betty Peterson and Pat Smith.

The four USA members running for sophomore member positions are Marie Louise Carl, Luther Distler, Ralph Libby and Abraham Virdeh.

Up to press time Election Commissioner Zelinsky reported she had received only seven petitions from freshman members-of-council candidates, thus assuring the seven of election as the AS constitution provides for that number of freshmen on the AS council.

Six of the seven running for freshman members of council are IFC candidates. They are Richard Boles, Bill Cirimele, Gerry Fink, Allie Green, Lafayette Jamerson and George Sweet. The remaining candidate, Carol Thompson, is an independent.

Campus 'Meals' Drive Continues

Meals for Millions, campus drive sponsored by the Hotel and Restaurant society and the Associated Students here to raise funds for famine relief throughout the world, is still in progress, Richard Gould, student chairman, pointed out yesterday.

Banks for voluntary contributions are placed at the four food outlet locations on campus — the cafeteria, faculty dining room, fountain and snack bar, basement of the Science Building.

Funds collected here will be sent to Meals for Millions, a non-profit foundation organized and directed by Clifford Clinton, Gould explained.

Sign-Up Deadline For Vets Is June 4

Veterans receiving a subsistance allowance under Public Law 550, have two more days in which to sign their monthly reports, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare at the college, said yesterday.

The forms must be signed by Friday, June 4, and left in the Veteran Affairs office on the second floor of Building 3.

Football Rally Set For College Hour

College hour this Friday, June 4, will be devoted to a pre-football season rally in the college auditorium, Building 1, between the hours of 10:40 and 11:20 a.m., according to Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here.

All students are invited, Batmale declared, and entertainment will be presented. There is no admission charge, he added.

The rally is under the supervision of Emmett Thompson, Associated Student rally commissioner.

Classes will follow the regular college hour schedule, Batmale stressed.

Graduates Meet At Pre-Commencement Rally Tomorrow

All graduates have been requested to attend a pre-commencement assembly tomorrow, to be held in their honor, Edwin C. Browne, commencement chairman here, announced last week.

Graduating students will be excused from their 11 a.m. classes to attend the assembly in the Cloud Hall library, and Browne stressed the fact that all graduates are required to attend the ceremony.

Plans for the program call for presentation of nine scholarships, and a speech by Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college.

Two scholarships of $50 each from the Cloud Foundation go to a man and woman student respectively. Four of $50 each from the Class of 1933 go to two men and two women respectively.

A Dougherty Scholarship of $25, donated by the Faculty Wives Association, goes to a graduating woman student. Two scholarships of $50 each from the Chinese Sweetheart Ball fund go to a man and woman student respectively.

Commencement awards include the Wall Street Journal award, Alpha Gamma Sigma certificates and pins, the Harlan and Nuodex paint technology awards, Alice Eastwood floriculture award, the President's Award Plaque, to the graduating man and woman who have given outstanding service to the college, and the Scholastic Cup for the graduate with the highest scholarship record.

Commencement is scheduled at 8 p.m. Friday, June 18; with rehearsal called at 1 o'clock that afternoon, Dean Browne said.

Action Must Now Be Taken Against Worthless Candidate

IN THE Associated Student elections this semester there is an overwhelming favorite who may walk off with top honors. This candidate has won before and he may win once more if steps aren't taken to assure his certain defeat.

He has no campaign, no platform, no statement to the press and yet, in the previous two AS elections here this candidate has drawn 71 per cent of the vote.

Who is this tower of strength? — Mr. No-Vote-At-All, who draws his support from the high number of eligible student voters who, by staying away from the polls, elect him by a landslide.

The Guardsman has never, in its 19 years of covering college elections, backed anything but a large voter-turnout and a fair election. We've never backed any individual candidate or party and naturally have never spoken against any such individuals or groups in their quest for votes.

But this semester we are speaking up against a candidate, Mr. No-Vote-At-All, who has been a winner too often and who, despite his former strength must be, and can be defeated.

It's strange that this worthless candidate has never been beaten when his defeat can be brought about by perhaps the simplest of methods.

Just get out and vote — IFC, USA, or Independent, and Mr. No-Vote-At-All will be soundly trounced, much to the betterment of the college and its Associated Students.

A solution of this simplicity is the best answer to bigger and better election participation here. We've tried all sorts of other methods — advocating disposal of the two-party system, advocating building up the system, theorizing about democratic processes, pointing out that "Five bucks is five bucks, have a say-so about who's spending your dough," but we overlooked the best and only real solution to the continuing victories of Mr. No-Vote-At-All.

The simplest method is the only method — beat down this useless winner of the past by walking up to the voting poll, presenting your AS card and voting for your choices. Whomever you vote for, a vote for them will be a vote against Mr. No-Vote-At-All and a victory for the college, the Associated Students and for you, the active student.

As we've said before, we never take a side in an election, except the side of everyone — against non-participation, which can be won over now by you and your vote.

Marsh's Work—Unselfish Service

THIS semester the college honors one of its administrators, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, who is retiring after his many years of service to youth, here and elsewhere.

We can think of few men finer in whose hands have been placed the destinies of students, and we, as students, and speaking for the college as a whole must sincerely say "Thanks, Dr. Marsh, for all your wonderful service and guidance, which was perhaps ever more altruistic than most, being done for the most part in your quiet, unassuming manner, behind the scenes."

Needless to say we're all sorry to see Dr. Marsh leave the college, but it's time he started "living for himself" and enjoying the rest which his retirement will afford him and which he most certainly deserves for his unselfish work for others.

Best of luck, F. Grant Marsh, from all of us who greatly feel and appreciate your untiring efforts on our behalf.

West Campus A Ghost Town As Confused Students Move East

By Shirley Murphy

During the past two weeks the west campus, formerly alive with swarms of active students, has assumed the appearance of a ghost town. In front of offices where instructors held sway, bulging trash cans, filled with copies of periodicals, vintage '39, now take precedence. Most notable external evidence of the move has been the puzzled expression furrowing the brows of students, as they frantically search for a displaced class. With Frank Buck-like fervor, one group of social scientists changed locations four times — from the barracks to the Science Building to Cloud Hall and back to the Science Building. To date, the class has suffered no casualties.

Capitalist

Economic situation of the students of the college is not as bad as it would at times appear. Last week a student who had kept a library book overdue paid her 20 cents fine by check.

Distinguished Visitors

Role sheet of a history class here was graced with the signature of Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay and George Washington. Students explained that the instructor has made the class so interesting that they completely lost themselves and became identified with the patriot of the moment.

Dr. F. Grant Marsh, Coordinator Of Student Welfare, Leaves College At End Of Semester

1935 Start Here Was As Instructor

By Beverly Swope

In 1935 the first students of City College of San Francisco gained a friend and helpmate—a man soon admired and respected for his patience and wise judgment. Now, in 1954 the college will suffer a great loss, for Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, leaves here this semester after 19 years of service.

A charter member of the faculty, Dr. Marsh aided and witnessed the growth of the college from its infant days, when classes were scattered throughout the city, to the present time, when newly-erected Cloud Hall improves facilities on the Balboa Park campus.

Dr. Marsh's years of service to the college were begun as an instructor in mathematics and engineering. When he was made chairman of the department of business education in 1936, he provided the connecting link in supervision of programs for college classes at Galileo High School, Girls' High School, the University of California Extension and the Institute of Banking in the city.

At the onset of World War II Dr. Marsh was called to active duty as a Commander in the United States Navy to instruct young men at the University of California in naval science and tactics.

Upon his return to the college in October, 1945, he was appointed coordinator of counselling and guidance. When the college was reorganized in 1949, Dr. Marsh became coordinator of the division of student personnel, a position that he has filled capably for five years.

Born and reared in Virginia City, celebrated Nevada mining town of Mark Twain fame, Dr. Marsh began his first year of higher education at the University of Nevada. Later, he received the Bachelor of Science degree from the United States Naval Academy and was a commissioned officer in the navy.

Columbia University gave Dr. Marsh his Master of Science degree. After his retirement from the navy, he entered the field of education and soon became principal of Burlingame High School. Soon afterwards he began to teach at the University of California where he received the degree, Doctor of Education.

Dr. Marsh has spent most of his life working with young people—solving their problems and giving them sound advice. For the past five years he has been a member of the Executive Board of the San Francisco Council of Scouts and for the past three years a member of the National Committee of Student Personnel of the American Association of Junior Colleges.

Dr. Marsh plans to continue his work with the young people who have kept him "youthful in attitude and ideas."

• About I.F.C.

Editor, The Guardsman:

Let me qualify the following remarks with this one thought; I am a fraternity member and I believe in the good that can come from being a member of a fraternity.

Aside from this basic thought I believe also that there is no apparent reason why 45 people (the number of representatives at an Inter-Fraternity Council convention) should in effect rule over the desires, hopes, and aspirations of an Associated Student group which this term contributed over $7,200 to be used by many students through activities, athletics, and various organizations.

As in any governmental set-up where one party is allowed to stay in power term in and term out here at City College there is often a certain singular purpose uppermost, in the minds of those students governing the activities of their counterparts. To everyone, including themselves, they express this singular purpose as "service to the college" while in reality they practice "service to the college . . . through what is best for my fraternity (sorority)."

It is this attitude which has helped to stagnate political views of student government people and voting City College students. This is not to say, however, that I. F. C. officeholders have not been good job-holders—on the contrary, they have very often been outstanding examples of college student government.

One can see, however, that the apathy shown in recent elections by eligible voters is only part of a vicious cycle, brought on by this stagnant political attitude of those students elected to office, whose same election causes would-be interested students to stop trying to buck "the machine." Each group which has opposed the I. F. C. has sooner or later died a lingering death, partly because of a lack of continued support but mostly because the I. F. C. is the one group which is made up of student organizations which are on campus term after term.

The only solution would appear to be abandonment of the Inter-Fraternity Council as a political organization, with various fraternities and sororities putting up their own candidates against other fraternity-sorority people as well as against other independent candidates.

Either this, or some group which has a continuing membership must organize a strong party to oppose this I. F. C. The only group now capable of such continued opposition is the Club Activities Board, which currently includes fraternities and sororities. But then again maybe the victims are the culprits and maybe it's because the students don't vote and don't support the Associated Students that they put up with one party rule.

• Views of U.S.A.

Editor, The Guardsman:

We feel that the time has arrived that the United Students Association express its point of view on the recent discussion of effective leadership and the two party system. It has been stated that a small minority fraternity group have held the majority of elected offices. However, since the U. S. A. was first organized two and a half years ago, its members have held important positions in student government.

The most successful and well organized Mardi Gras was held under the capable leadership of Ed Hjerpe, the U. S. A. candidate for AMS President of Spring 1953. The U. S. A. has also held six important council positions. The Cabinet positions of finance chairman has been held for two semesters by a U. S. A. member; the positions of parliamentarian, alumni liaison officer, election commissioner, information service chairman, have been held by U. S. A. members. The card sales record has been broken for the Spring and Fall semesters by U. S. A. cabinet officers. The Club Activities Board president, a U. S. A. member has been elected for two semesters.

Therefore the United Students Association has always provided capable leadership for student activities and student government. We feel that one of the reasons that student government has maintained the high level of effective leadership is due to the fact that the U. S. A. members have always helped initiate and carry out plans for the betterment of City College. In particular, those of the original ideas conceived by members of the U. S. A. are prep day, CAB blue interest cards, centralization of ticket booths, attainment of live mascot and inventory of all Associated Student assets. In addition to these ideas, we have originated the opposition to the "pseudo" type drive-in eating establishment which would have been immediate to our beloved college. A member of the U. S. A. was nominated for a state office at the recent state conference of student leaders.

The U. S. A. believes that a two party system is necessary to provide the incentive for the various points of view of the students of the college.

Therefore we have presented the facts; we feel that the U. S. A. has always provided student government with the type of leaders which we feel can effectively inaugurate and carry out completely the plans which are best for the college regardless of politics. We endorse only those candidates we know will conscientiously strive to represent the student body. The only pressure that the USA recognizes is the 5000 students of this college.

• Retort Made

Editor, The Guardsman:

I can hardly feel that an excuse is necessary to such an over critical mind as is possessed by one of my fellow students. I do feel however, that some retort should be made to such an interesting analysis of our fraternal activities.

Speaking for Beta Tau Fraternity I feel that the announcement of any award should be held relatively confident I hardly realized that we had to be so condescending as to release this information to any person or persons until such a time as we deemed necessary and appropriate.

I hope the gentleman responsible for such show of appreciation for such a just cause can appreciate the fact that the nomination for this month's award had already been approved by the members of Beta Tau Fraternity as of 4:18, May, 1954. We all know how quickly time flies, but it seems to me that we are still in the month of May, but more than likely the gentleman himself can boast of so many punctual achievements that we, not just one person's Fraternity, but we as a group should feel ashamed because of our tardiness.

In closing I feel that it shall suffice to say that this award was not developed by just one person nor was it developed for political reasons; it took the whole Fraternity's approval to institute this award, therefore it is hardly fair to point out one individual as being the responsible party in this seemingly unpardonable sin of procrastination.

Boxing Tourney Featured By Nine Close Matches

By Tony Campilongo

One of the most successful All-City Boxing Tournaments in the seven-year history of the event came off as scheduled on May 26 with nine bouts, all hotly contested, filling the card.

Ed Palmieri and Louis Comaduran took top honors as they won their matches and shared the title of "fightingest fighter" in the tourney.

Comaduran, fighting at 150 pounds, made an up hill climb to defeat tough Robert Battle in a bout that went the full three rounds allowed. After just weathering a stormy first round, Comaduran came back with a series of short jolting punches to the head of his opponent to win going away.

Palmieri, a fast 146 pounder, floored John Shelly in the first round and went on from there to a lopsided win over his opponent. Palmieri's counter punching ability and well-educated left hand was enough to win him a share of top honors.

In the 125 pound division match, Roger Lau eked out a decision over Clayton Marshal. The match was close and hard fought for the entire three rounds.

Junior lightweight match at 132 pounds gave the crowd of some 500 a taste of good boxing combined with the hustle that was characteristic of the whole tourney. Mike Cassidy and Jay Miller both showed fine form and punching ability, with Cassidy gaining the nod over his opponent.

Manuel Vano came on steadily from the second stanza to earn the decision from fast-starting Earl Cross in the 139 pound division. The opposing corners went wild as the two fighters raced at each other with solid punches for the entire nine minutes, and only a little more effort in the stretch earned the win for Vano.

George Martinez took advantage of sharper punching and ring prowess to whip George Berkeley in three rounds. Both men weighed in at 155 pounds.

A dislocated shoulder, suffered by Ron Sinclair in the third round, cost him his fight with Ralus Rogers. Referee Stan Smith stopped the bout immediately and awarded the decision to Rogers.

Ernie Benard took advantage of a six-inch reach over Dick Minetti to win his light-heavyweight bout with a technical knockout in the third round.

In the heavyweight tilt Jerry James and Roy Barsanti fought to a draw.

Manager Norm Hill was awarded the trophy for having the most winning fighters in the tournament, although boxing instructor Roy Diederichsen was well pleased with all of the managers and fighters.

Beta Tau Stays Undefeated, Beta Phi Romps To Twin Cage Victories; Teams Meet Tonight For ASL Title

Beta Tau remained undefeated and Beta Phi Beta romped to a pair of easy Associated Student League victories as the two teams prepared for their title game tonight in the men's gymnasium here.

Beta Tau won their sixth straight with a wild 70-21 win over Alpha Sigma Delta on May 17, and Beta Phi whipped Gamma Phi Ypsilon, 62-35, on the same date and Alpha Sigma Delta, 70-40, on May 20. The other game that week found Lambda Phi trouncing Alpha Kappa Rho by a 40-18 score on May 20.

The Beta Tau five handed Beta Phi Beta their only loss to date when the two teams met earlier this season and the Beta Phi Betas will be out to avenge the loss and at the same time gain a tie for the title.

Beta Phi Beta will be sparked by league-leading scorer Don Baroni. Baroni has poured through 178 points in seven games for a 25.4 average. Phil Gaal tops the Beta Tau scorers with 89 points in five games for a 17.8 average, and third place in the league standings. Jack Lucas is in second place with 107 points for a three-game average of 17.8.

Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here, and Alex Schwarz, coach, both well-known Pacific Coast Conference officials, will referee the important game, according to Al Kingston, Men's Athletic commissioner here. The game will start at 9 p.m., immediately following the Tau Chi Sigma-Alpha Kappa Rho game which starts at 7:30 p.m.

Tau Chi Sigma and Alpha Kappa Rho will meet tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in the men's gymnasium and Lambda Phi and Alpha Sigma Delta will take the floor at 9 p.m.

WAA Installs Officers At Tea

New officers for the Fall 1954 semester will be installed today at the awards tea of the Women's Athletic Association here, Joan Anderson, president, announced yesterday.

Names of the new officers will be kept secret until the party, she said. Awards for participation in WAA sports will also be presented at the party.

Tomorrow, Miss Anderson and Esther Phillips, present secretary of the organization, will attend University Friendship Day at George Washington High School. At a recent playday with Washington the WAA volleyball team won both games played.

"Sherwood Forest," WAA's booth in the college Mardi Gras, won second place for best booth, and 200 tickets, $20, were taken in, Miss Anderson said.

Students from co-ed folk dancing class who attended the Mission High School Folk Dance Festival on May 13 were as follows: Charles Bevin, Mohammed Farouhan, Carol Garner, Charles Nahnken, Margaret Shour and Nancy Walsh.

More Players Needed For Soph-Prof Game

Need for players for the Soph-prof softball game was voiced by Jim Vickers, Sophomore Class president here, last week.

The softball game, to be held on Friday, June 11, is an important event of the season, Vickers said, and anyone interested in participating should submit his name at the Associated Student office in Building 2, west campus.

The game is held twice a year, and basketball and softball are both played, depending on the season.

Rams Cop Title, Come In Fourth In Tennis Finals

City College won a title and finished fourth in team standings in California as Bill Wright and Hal Kopp won the Consolation Doubles Tournament of the California State Junior College Tennis Championships which were held in Modesto on May 20, 21 and 22.

Wright, first man for the college, whose performances have been responsible for a major portion of the tennis team's success, was the only Ram tennis player to reach the semi-finals of the singles tournament, but lost to top-seeded Gerry Moss of Modesto, 6-4, 8-6.

After being behind 3-5, 5-40 in the second set with Moss serving, Wright fought off two match points, won the game and his own serve, and deuced the match at 5-all. Moss' aggressive ground strokes and sharp volleys finally decided the match, as he won 8-6 in the second set.

Marv Gordon and Alan Matsumoto reached the quarter-finals of the doubles tournament, but clashed heads with Pancho Contreras and Joaquin Reyes, the top-seeded doubles team from Modesto, and came off second best, 6-0, 6-0.

A first round upset removed Kopp and Wright from the regulation doubles tournament, but in the consolation doubles tournament, which is for the losers of the first and second rounds, the Ram doubles team enjoyed success, as they defeated Cooley and Read of Citrus College, 6-4, in the third set.

Kopp reached the quarter-finals of the consolation singles tournament, but lost to George Morfitt of Modesto, 6-1, 4-6, 6-0, as the steady left-handed Morfitt outstroked Kopp from the backcourt to win the match.

In team standings, the college, by virtue of several quarterfinalists, Wright, Kopp, and the Matsumoto-Gordon team, finished fourth in the tournament.

Loss Of Key Men Force Santa Rosa Bearcubs To Default Title To Ram Golfers In Second Playoff Match

By Bob Chrisman

A Ram golf team which stepped into first place on the last match of the season has officially won the Big Seven Golf Conference, as Santa Rosa defaulted their playoff match to the college golf team.

The Ram team, which Coach Ralph Hillsman has praised as "the finest group of players as a team that I've ever seen," had been leading the league until April 23, when San Mateo beat them by one point. This put Santa Rosa, whom the Rams had beaten in the season opener, in first place, while the college team was in second place with one loss and one tie with Sacramento.

After squeaking past Modesto 8½-6½ to stay in contention for the title, the Rams smashed West Contra Costa, 15-0, in the last league match of the season to move into first place, as Santa Rosa lost to Sacramento.

Since a loss to the college had put Santa Rosa in second place, Santa Rosa was entitled to a two out of three playoff match to determine the final winner between the two. The Rams won the first match. Second match was to be played at Santa Rosa, but absences of several key men forced Santa Rosa to default, and the Big Seven Conference golf title is now officially in the hands of the college.

One factor which contributed a great deal to the golf team's success is its even distribution of power completely down the line. There is no marked difference between the third and fourth men and the first and second men, insofar as golfing skills are concerned.

Gene George is the ball cow in the number one position and Tony Prinz, Doug Heldohrn, Lou Sartor, Bob Flanagan and Dave Watkins alternate in filling out the five man team. The last two men shoot in the low eighties, and George averaged around 76 or 77 in league matches.

RAMBLINGS

By Gail Allan Moss

SPRING sports are just about over for another year and as usual, the Rams have distinguished themselves in nearly every sport.

The so-called "minor" sports came out on top this year. The golf team captured the Big Seven title and ranks with Menlo College as the top two-year college golf team in Northern California. Coach Ralph Hillsman did wonders with his "divot-diggers" this season, and he and linksmen like Gene George, Lou Sartor, Tony Prinz, and all the rest combined for the best season in a long time.

Roy Diederichsen did just about as well with his tennis squad. Only Modesto, with two nationally ranked players, finished ahead of the college in the Big Seven. The Pirates, sparked by Gerry Moss and Pancho Contreras, whipped the Rams 7-0, but Bill Wright, Hal Kopp and the rest of the Ram crew came back to take the playoff team title.

Track wasn't quite so successful but the thinclads still cornered their share of honors. Half-miler Al Carlson was unbeaten in the regular season and set a new conference standard of 1:57.2 in the 880. Coach Roy Burkhead's crew all put out continually and the husky mentor deserved better than he got.

The Ram potential at the beginning of the season was terrific, but studies, withdrawals and too many other things took some of the top prospects that Burkhead has had in many years.

The luckless baseball team suffered the most. The horsehiders, plagued by shoddy fielding and never able to combine good hitting and pitching into one effort, won only one game, a 2-1 decision over Modesto. Despite their record, the Rams never quit hustling, a mark of Bill Fischer's teams. The hitting of Nolan Wilson, the pitching of Stan Fetterman and Bob Word and the come-through performance of the whole club was a real sign of City College spirit.

Win, lose or draw, the Ram teams had one thing in common—they never quit. The players and coaches all heartily deserve the congratulations of the whole student body here.

Wilson College's Leading Batsman

By Humberto Fischnaler

A .289 mark represents a healthy batting average in any man's league and with that mark Nolan Wilson, outfielder for the college baseball team this season, became the Rams' leading hitter for the past campaign.

Wilson, a right-handed swinger, is equally adept at going back for a ball as he is running the bases or driving in a run. A former Balboa High School star, Wilson has caught the fancy of professional baseball scouts with his all-around talent.

A good student and an engineering major he expects to continue his studies either at Santa Clara or Stanford universities. This year was his first season with at the college, so Baseball Coach Bill Fischer of the locals will eagerly await Wilson's return next season.

Rated by his coach as "being the consistent type of ballplayer" Wilson is a candidate for All-Big Seven honors.

On Sundays he plays for the Nickel Plate Cafe team of the San Francisco recreational league and at the end of the season Wilson came out the batting champion of that league also.

West Contra Costa Wins NCJC Baseball Title

West Contra Costa's baseballers, Big Seven Conference Champions, captured the Northern California Junior College title with a pair of wins over Vallejo, 7-4 and 5-2, on May 21 and 22 at Richmond's Nicholl Field.

The twin victories gave the Comet nine a 2-0 series decision and the right to represent Northern California in a series with Long Beach City College on May 29 and 30 in Southern California. The three-game series decided the California two-year college champion. Results of the West Contra Costa-Long Beach games were not available at press time.

Long Beach took the Southern division title by winning a best two-of-three series from Orange Coast on May 21 and 22. Orange Coast took the Friday night opener, 7-6, but the Vikings came back to sweep the Saturday double-header, 5-2 and 5-0.

Target Practice On Student Results In Trouble For Sam

By Don Osborne

Sam's future hangs in the balance as the college's Marino ram mascot's unprecedented attack on one faculty member and a student is bandied back and forth in Student Council. The question — What will happen to Sam?

An unsuspecting student, while on his way to class the morning of May 24, was the first target for Sam's lowered horns. After Sam contacted his target, the unidentified student let out a howl and scampered for safety. Apparently no serious damage was inflicted.

Not contented with his one direct hit, the ram decided to try and make it two out of two tries. As his new target, he chose a college Spanish instructor. Luckily the faculty member was slightly more alert than Sam's first target and was able to side step the onslaught. The instructor could not be found for comment.

Both faculty and students are seriously concerned with this new catastrophe. In a letter read during a council meeting on May 25, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, stated, "This unprovoked and spontaneous pressure has not cemented good student faculty relations and I feel that our aggressive companion should be placed in a position where there will be no repetition of unmerited assault."

It was later decided during this meeting that Sam would be held in safe custody until further plans for his future can be arranged. Wray Jacobs, finance chairman, and Joe Garbarino, Associated Student president, will assume the responsibility for his care until a decision is made

Miss San Francisco

LEE MERIWETHER, 19 year old freshman at the college, was chosen Miss San Francisco of 1954 from a field of nine finalists lost Saturday night at the Fairmant Hotel.

She will appear with other California beauty queens in Santa Cruz June 18 and 19 ta competè far the title af Miss Colifornia af 1954.

Speech Contest Here On June 8

After an absence of four years, the City College of San Francisco Alumni Association is once again sponsoring a Speech contest on campus, Thomas Dutcher, faculty advisor of Phi Rho Pi, debate society here, announced yesterday.

Open to all Associated Student members, the contest will be held this Tuesday, June 8, at 1 p.m., in Room 134 of the Science Building. A signup sheet has been posted on Dutcher's office door in Cloud Hall Room 385B.

The impromptu speech contest will deal with American foreign policy in the Far East, Dutcher said. As an award to the winner his name will be placed on the perpetual trophy which was put up by the Alumni Association. The trophy is awarded each fall term and a result help the students save money, according to Main.

Ramporium Buying Used Textbooks Until June 8

Used textbooks are now being bought from students for cash at The Ramporium, according to Dick Main, college book store manager.

Main stated that the bookstore began purchasing books on June 1 and will continue to do so until Tuesday, June 8. He added that the store is purchasing only the number of textbooks that will be used next semester.

Used texts may be purchased from other student stores which no longer sell them and a result help the students save money, according to Main.

Parties Present Platforms

Inter-Fraternity Council Plans AS Expansion, Better Relations

In order to continue the progressive policies which have marked Inter-Fraternity council administrations in the past, the IFC candidates have agreed to put into effect the following program:

I. To continue to increase the interest and participation in student activities.

A. To promote more interest in Rally Committee.

B. To provide more varied college hour activities, including outside rallies, and to make it easier to belong to clubs of your choice.

C. For the new students, we will hold a Welcome Rally before their registration.

D. To present again a full, varied social schedule and to make the Social Committee meeting more accessible to all students.

E. To stimulate greater participation in student activities by the various professional groups on campus by encouraging them to actively participate in the Club Activities Board.

F. To maintain closer cooperation between the students and the faculty. To make available free tickets to families of students who hold AS cards to football games.

G. To make it possible for all students to know their athletic teams better. To make available to all students game schedules and team rosters for all athletic events.

To make out of town games more accessible in the line of transportation.

II. To improve methods of presenting City College to the Public.

A. To institute a program of bringing business leaders from specific industries to visit the campus and provide them with an opportunity to see the advantages of hiring City College graduates.

B. To provide an opportunity for San Franciscans to visit City College on special days, at luncheons, and at dramatic events.

III. To continue efforts in developing closer relations with the Alumni Association.

A. To continue to give the Alumni Association the opportunity of participating in City College events.

B. Institute a definite program of informing graduating students of the advantages of joining the Alumni Association.—Inter-Fraternity Party.

Ten-Point Program Proposed By United Student Association

The United Student Association is a club organized by the students of City College and for the students of City College. Its ideals are primarily the endorsement of the type of leaders who can effectively inaugurate and carry out completely the plans which are the best for the student body regardless of politics.

The USA has always tried to help maintain the high level of student government which City College now enjoys. In the future, the USA will continue to formulate new ideas and carry them out to the letter. Some of the concrete ideas which the USA has already formulated are:

1. A possible solution to the immediate parking problem that faces the student body.

2. Investigation into the possibility of discounts on streetcars and buses.

3. A complete financial report to the student body concerning the allocation of student card funds.

4. Achievement of better publicity through the effective use of sandwich signs, special bulletins, and use of area between Cloud Hall and the Science Building.

5. A special committee set up by Student Council to hear the complaints, suggestions, and comments by the student body.

6. Establishing more tradition at City College: evening bonfire rallies, Frosh week, a welcome relief from studies.

7. More activities between freshmen and sophomores to achieve a better class distinction.

8. Establishment of definite policies concerning funds for the traveling expenses of teams.

9. Increase participation at football games by having printed programs, and car parades.

10. Having a victory dinner for successful teams of City College.

These ideas were formulated to help the entire student body. The USA believes in equal representation of all students, not just a minority. The USA will always strive to endorse capable leaders who are representative of the student body.—United Student Association Party

Farewell Dinner Will Install New Council, Officers

As a formal farewell to Spring 1954 Associated Student leaders and as an official welcome to new fall officers, the Student Council will hold its semi-annual dinner on Tuesday, June 8, at 7 p.m. in San Francisco's California Hotel, O'Farrell and Taylor streets, Joe Garbarino, AS president here, announced recently.

Gold keys imprinted with the Ram emblem will be awarded at the affair to AS council and cabinet members and a special key will be awarded to a student here chosen by council for outstanding service to the Associated Students of the college, Garbarino remarked, adding that members of council and cabinet are not considered in that selection.

Also, the new fall 1954 AS President will be officially sworn into office at the formal dinner, Garbarino declared.

Although the actual cost of the dinner is $3 per person, Garbarino explained, students with AS cards will be admitted to the affair for $1. The Student Council pays the remaining $2 per person out of its budget.

Ninety-three persons have signed up for the dinner so far, Garbarino commented, and Chairman Mikie Wrenn expects approximately 120 to attend.

Hiking Film Billed In Friday College Hour

Skyline Hike Over Muir Trail is the title of a 30-minute color film to be shown during college hour, 10:40 a.m., and 12:25 p.m. on Friday, June 4, in Room 136 of the college's Science Building, Madison Devlin, audio visual instructor, announced this week.

A favorite of hikers, the John Muir Trail follows the crest of the Sierra Nevada from Yosemite Valley to the top of Mount Whitney. The films show the thrills experienced by those who travel the trail, Devlin said.

New Parking Area Regulations Made

Until the end of this semester parking will be reserved for faculty only, on the first half of the circular drive around the Science Building and Cloud Hall from 7:45 to 10 a.m., Edwin Browne, dean of men here, announced last week.

Remaining parking area on the drive will be available to students to park their cars, he stated. Students who park in the reserved area will receive traffic tickets, according to regulations.

Club Cavalcade: Special Awards Recall Memories Of Mardi Gras

By Patty Moran

PERHAPS the Mardi Gras is a thing of the past to many students, but for the recipients of the special awards, the memories of the gay festivities still linger on.

Zeta Chi was awarded first prize in the best booth competition for its "Zeta Toot." Second place winner was Women's Athletic Association for its "Archery Target" booth. Honorable mention went to Alpha Sigma Delta's "Marryin' Sam" booth, and to Kappa Phi for its "Pool Shoot."

Members of Zeta Chi also took first prize in the best float contest for their display, which followed a nautical theme with women in bell-bottomed trousers. Beta Phi Beta and Phi Beta Rho placed second with their float which followed the "Wizard of Oz" theme.

Honorable mention went to Kappa Rho for its "1000 And One Nights" float, and to the Horticultural Society for its flower-bedecked float.

Best Mardi Gras club award went to Beta Phi Beta Fraternity.

Organizations are still active this week with dinners, meetings and elections of next semester's officers.

Newman Club members will nominate and elect their new officers at a meeting tonight at St. Emydius Hall, on Jules and De Montford Streets. Dancing and refreshments will follow.

The club will have its picnic this Sunday, June 6, at Adobe Creek.

Pledges of Phi Beta Rho gave the sisters of the sorority a Luau recently at the home of Dana Christiansen. Decorations and music were in the Hawaiian theme. Entertainment was provided by the pledges.

Members of Zeta Chi held a business meeting last Friday to elect next semester's officers. The sorority met jointly with Gamma Phi Ypsilon last Wednesday night at Margie Hick's home.

Following pledge initiation ceremonies at Millie Kalsh's home this Saturday night, June 5, Alpha Lambda Chi will have its pledge dinner at the Hotel Claremont, in Berkeley.

The sorority held a business meeting last week at the home of Kay Griffin. Elections were held and the results were as follows:

Barbara-Baldwin, president; Frances Aranguena, vice-president; Millie Kalsh, recording secretary; Joan Anderson, corresponding secretary; Sue Anderson, treasurer; Dolores Stoffers, historian; Jerry Steers, pledge mistress; Nina Flood, sergeant-at-arms.

Kappa Phi pledges gave a dinner honoring the members at the home of Pat Carolina on May 25. The following evening they met jointly with Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity at the home of Mary Walker.

Deadline for all club news is Wednesday at 12 noon. Information may be submitted to the Club Activities Board meetings held each Tuesday and Thursday at 1 p.m. in Building 2A, or The Guardsman office in Building 4D.

Little Theatre Players Cancel Two Blind Mice

Two Blind Mice, Little Theatre production scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, June 3, 4 and 5, will not be presented, according to Dick Moore, in charge of drama publicity here.

Because of production and casting difficulties, the three performances of the satirical comedy have been cancelled.

Forum Magazine Issued June 10

Because of publication and editing problems, Forum, the college literary magazine, will not be distributed tomorrow, June 3, but will be issued Thursday, June 10, Harold Painter, Forum editor, announced here yesterday.

Painter stated that the magazine will be distributed throughout the entire campus; in The Ramporium, in the square between the Science Building and Cloud Hall, at the Silver Pole in the Science Building, and on the third floor of Cloud Hall.

Cost of Forum to non-Associated Student members is 50 cents; to AS members there is no charge.

Annual Art Dinner Scheduled Tomorrow

Approximately 32 persons are expected at the college Advertising and Commercial Art dinner to be held at the Montclair Restaurant tomorrow evening, Jean Royeski, chairman of the dinner, said last week.

This annual affair will be given in honor of this semester's art graduates. Students in attendance will be from the Advertising and Commercial Art 62A and 62B classes, according to Miss Royeski.

Guest speaker at the dinner will be Earl Tholander, staff artist on the San Francisco Examiner. Tholander is a graduate of the college and majored in Advertising and Commercial Arts.

An inch of rainfall on an acre of ground is equivalent to 3,630 cubic feet or 226,512 pounds of water.

Boldenweck Wins Independent Victory

JOHN LO COCO (left), IFC presidential candidate congratulating AS President-elect Bill Boldenweck (Ind.) as new Vice-President Patty Mascarelli beams over her new position. Boldenweck was officially sworn into his office at the AS Council banquet last night.

By Deane Wylie

Bill Boldenweck, who bolted the Inter-Fraternity party six weeks ago when edged in his bid for the Associated Student presidential nomination, won that post as an independent candidate by a plurality of 76 votes over IFC candidate John Lo Coco in AS elections here last week.

His victory, considered by many as an upset over Lo Coco, was won in voting which saw 40 per cent of eligible AS voters cast ballots, an all-time college high. Of the 1450 AS members eligible to vote last week, 580 went to the polls. In voting last fall, only 549 of 1905 eligible voted.

President-elect Boldenweck's administration next semester will mark the first time since 1948 that an IFC candidate has not held the top position. In that year Pete Isola, representing the now defunct Student League, won by a 2-1 landslide.

In the race for Associated Men Student president, independent candidate Al Kingston triumphed over IFC man Bill Phillips by a wide margin, 334 to 223. Three uncontested positions found Patty Mascarelli receiving a 504 vote of confidence for the AS vice-presidency, Marcia Herst 460 votes for Associated Women Student president and Brad Owens 463 votes for Sophomore president.

The only race for a top office featuring an IFC-United Student Association battle finished with Bob Johnson, IFC candidate, winning over Bob McNaught, in the widest vote separation, 347 to 181. All five USA candidates were defeated in the balloting, the third time that pary has been shut-out. The USA won no positions in Spring and Fall of 1953.

The results of the election were first announced at 5:30 p.m. June 3 in the Building 2 lobby, as election commissioner Jane Zelinsky read the totals to a group of 50 tensed persons who had been waiting since 3 p.m. for the news.

Voting for the seven sophomore members of the council gave every seat to IFC nominees. Winning, in order of descending number of votes, were Marcia Moore (400), Pat Smith (400), Betty Petersen (383), Donn Pace (355), Joe Galante (351), Lawrence Lowe (346) and Walt Frehe (319).

Polling the least votes were the four USA candidates, Marie Carl (267), Ralph Libby (257), Luke Distler (224) and Abe Virdeh (218).

Only seven names appeared on the ballot for positions as freshmen members of council, thus giving each candidate automatic election. Freshmen council-members-elect and their votes of confidence are Richard Boles (474), Gerry Fink (466), Bill Cirimele (465), Allie Green (460), George Sweet (455) and Lafayette Jamerson (453), all IFC members, and one independent candidate, Carol Thompson (431).

In a statement issued yesterday, Boldenweck said "I feel proud and very, very happy to be accorded the honor of leading the Associated Students in next semester's activities. However, I also feel very humble that so many of my fellow students feel confidence in my ability to successfully carry out the duties of the office. "With hard work and a united effort," he continued, "we should reach new heights in our endeavors. I urge all students to work together to this end."

Musical entertainment will be provided by the college orchestra, directed by Meyer Cabu, and the college A Cappella Choir, directed by Richard Vine, Browne stated.

All graduates who are receiving their degrees at the commencement ceremonies will be notified to attend a rehearsal at the Riordan Auditorium at 1 p.m. the same afternoon of commencement, according to Browne.

Those graduates who are unable to attend the ceremonies may receive their degrees at the registrar's office, Building 3, west campus after July 1, he added.

They may also, Browne noted, leave a request at the registrar's office to receive the degree through the mail.

THREE HONOR STUDENTS selected as speakers are preparing their commencement speeches to be delivered at the June 18 ceremony. They are (left to right) Kathaleen Mogan, a pre-medical major who will continue her studies at the University of California; Raymond Tankersley, a music major, who will also continue his education at University of California; Alberta Cordini, who majors in letters of science and will also study at the University of California. These students competed with 18 other speaker candidates.

Forum Magazine Distribution Will Start Tomorrow

Distribution of Forum, the traditional college literary magazine, starts tomorrow at the Silver Pole in the Science Building, The Ramporium, in the square between Cloud Hall and the Science Building, and on the third floor of Cloud Hall, according to Harold Painter, Forum Editor.

To members of the Associated Students, the magazine will be free of charge, and to non-members, the price is 50 cents.

The effort of the magazine has been to present controversial subjects showing both sides of the question.

This year's Forum which consists of some 30 pages, will be different in makeup and will have lithographed reproductions of art work, Painter stated.

Out of 67 entries, 27 will be published, he said. The magazine will contain more poetry than prose this year and also quite a bit of satire. Many fillers will be used.

Eleven members constitute the staff of Forum. In addition to Painter, they are as follows: Business Manager, Edwin Brush; Art Editors, Earle Spren and Jake Arnautoff; Staff Members, Dorothy Fallon, Humberto Fischnaler, Bruce Tomlinson, Ruth Gompert, Helen Brewer and Dapline Hurlbut.

Al Varoni and Dick Moore are the Advertising Staff for the magazine, and Catherine Connolly is Forum faculty adviser.

Six Scholarships Awarded Here

Twelve students have been selected as recipients of six top college scholarship awards.

The award was given through the Alpha Kappa Alpha society through the sponsorship of the Urban League.

These students were given the awards at the pre-commencement assembly held here last Thursday.

Two Students Tie For Scholastic Cup Award

Scholastic cup race entered its final lap last week when the qualifying students were narrowed down to two —Roberta Usher and Carroll Pursell, and it was decided that both would win the top honor award, Don Jensen, Alpha Gamma Sigma sponsor, announced here.

This is the third year that two students tied for the award.

High grade point averages for both students made the decision a hard one, as Miss Usher has attained a 3.00 average, while Pursell maintained a 2.95 average, Jensen noted.

King, Queen Petitions Due Friday; Soph Ball Is June 12

Seven candidates have submitted petitions for King and Queen of the semi-annual Sophomore Ball to be held at the St. Francis Yacht Club in Yacht Harbor, Saturday, June 12, Jim Vickers, Sophomore class president, announced here last week.

The royal pair will be selected from candidates sponsored by a club, fraternity or sorority. Each candidate must have a total of 30 college units in order to compete, Vickers added.

Students competing to this date are as follows: For King: Al Batten, Beta Tau; Jim Brownfield, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Ken Felidin, Alpha Sigma Delta and Joe Garbarino, Beta Phi Beta. For Queen: Patty Mascarelli, Kappa Phi; Jan Sewall, Theta Tau; and Felicia Zeiger, Delta Psi.

Other students who are interested in acting as candidates for King or Queen and who are qualified, are urged to submit their petitions to Jim Vickers in the Associated Student office, Building 2, west campus, before this Friday, Vickers commented.

This Friday's college hour, June 11, will be doubled in order to feature the semi-annual Soph-Prof game to be held at the college's athletic field, according to Louis Batmale, dean of student activities here.

College hour will be held from 9:50 to 11:20 a.m., with 10 o'clock classes omitted, Batmale explained.

Final examinations begin next Monday, June 14, and continue through Friday, June 18. The examination schedule is on display on the first floor of the Science Building. Grades will be sent out after July 1.

Because of finals, this is the last edition of The Guardsman this semester.

Jim Glasson Chosen Outstanding Student

By secret ballot at the Student Council meeting last Thursday, Associated Student council and cabinet members chose Jim Glasson for the Outstanding Student Award of Spring 1954.

The award is given each semester to a student who holds neither an elective nor appointive office but who has rendered outstanding service to the college.

This semester Glasson has been active on the AS rally and social committees, handled the entertainment for the Prep Day luncheon and served as chairman of the election rally.

Goal Of Successful Semester Reached By Everyone's Effort

FINALE of another semester of Associated Student activity will soon be here and with this conclusion comes the realization that all the work put into it was well worth the effort. The desired goal has been reached; a truly successful semester, in view of student interest and activity.

Attainment of the successful mark is the result of the combined work of three college groups, the AS leaders, the AS advisers, and the students of the college.

Associated Student leadership was the most active and talented in years, being supplied by President Joe Garbarino, Vice-President Alberta Cordini and members of a Student Council and Cabinet who always worked with the welfare of all students first in their minds.

Head of AS advisers, the respected "coach," Louis Batmale, worked unceasingly with his colleagues, the college administration and faculty, to provide an "experienced-cleared" area in which students could formulate and work out their own plans and ideas.

The largest and most important group in this "big three," the students themseves, was the greatest factor for success. The students carried out all activities in such a manner that the semester could not help ending with its eagerly sought after goal of success being reached.

So, congratulations are most certainly in order for everyone at the college, for it was each and every person here, working in harmony, who led the way to the prized objective.

The Guardsman wishes to thanks its publishers, the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco, for their wonderful and understanding help this semester. In return we can only hope that our desired goal has also been reached — that of being of the most service to the most people on-campus.

Reaching this goal means a great deal to us, for our publishers and our readers, you — are the finest which any newspaper has ever had the privilege to serve.

Dropping the journalistic "we," I'd like to express my personal thanks to all the many, many wonderful students, instructors, and administrators who have made the job of Editor such a real pleasure. Your help, your criticism and your friendship will never be forgotten; my education, my life — gained something from you which I can never describe with the cold printed word.

And if the reader wishes to acknowledge those who have done the real work of bringing The Guardsman to them, let him look in the staff listing under "Editor-in-Chief" and read the roll of a great group of workers, the greatest anywhere.

Not all the work of The Guardsman was writing. Emmett Thompson and his efficient Rally Committee did the valuable "leg work" in delivering the paper into the reader's hands.

More than to any person or to any group our appreciation is owed to a wonderful woman for the paper's success — to Joan Nourse, who has advised and guided many Guardsman staffs to their goal, her goal of being a true credit to the students to which she devotes so much patience, time, and sharing of wisdom.

Speaking of patience, time and wisdom, let me thank our printers, Shanly Typographers, not only on our behalf, but on the behalf of our publishers, the ASCCSF.

Again we wish to express our gratitude to everyone at the college for their support this semester — and remember that The Guardsman, your newspaper, will be back at the old stand ready to serve you, come next semester.

Dick Meister, Editor, and The Guardsman Staff

Active Fall Seen Under New Officers

SINCEREST congratulations are offered to the newly elected Associated Students officers, Bill Boldenweck, president, and the other successful candidates.

Knowing their abilities and sincere interest in the college and its student activities we look forward to a most active Fall semester under their able guidance.

Those not receiving the voter's mandate have also shown their real interest in the college program by their candidacy and with these capable students working with those elected, next semester should be a standout in the college's history.

Shots At Ramdom: The Semester In Review

By Shirley Murphy

COMMENCEMENT exercises at Riordan Auditorium on Friday, June 18, will mark the close of one of the most significant semesters in the history of the college.

On "D-Day," April 25, Cloud Hall, new $2,500,000 library and classroom addition to the college, was dedicated. Since that time the facilities of the new building have been put into use. This marks the close of an era—no longer will the campus be divided. Beginning next semester all classes will be held in the buildings on the hill.

Before the final exodus, the time has come to review the last semester that the west campus played an active part in academic life of the college.

Partisans of North Beach came into power as Joe Garbarino and Alberta Cordini stepped into the two top Associated Student offices to guide the activity program of the semester. Freshman Ball at the Palace Hotel inaugurated the Spring '54 social calendar. Ram hoopsters moved into second place in the Big Seven title race.

As the first month of the semester drew to a close the Chinese Students' Club sponsored the annual Sweetheart Ball at the Palace Hotel. Twenty-five student leaders attended the regional conference of the California Junior College Student Government Association in Santa Rosa. The Inter-Fraternity Council held a smoker, complete with movies of the 49er's in action. Students from the hotel and restaurant division took over the operation of the St. Francis Hotel on Friday, February 19. City College basketballers were tied for second spot.

First drama production of the semester, Kind Lady, highlighted the week of March 10 Emily Hardy walked off with top hon rs for selling the most AS cards for the second straight semester. Ram quintet finished the season in second place, emerging with top scoring honors, 810 points in 12 games. Netmen split a pair, losing to the Stanford Frosh, but defeating Lincoln High School.

Midterm Week was climaxed by Frisky Frolics, presented by the United Student Association. Alpha Gamma Sigma feted members at a tea.

Dispute over the leasing of land adjacent to the college for a restaurant by the Public Utilities Commission was the big story as the end of March rolled around. Disagreement reared its head in another sector as the campus police and Student Council debated about fiscal matters. Two members of the basketball team, Warren Baxter and Theopolis Dunn, were named to the 1954 Big Seven All-Conference team.

Students rallied to the support of Margot Cohen, student at the college facing deportation because her visa had expired as the eighth week of the semester drew to a close. Members of the faculty hosted students at the semi-annual coffee-hour. Fifty businessmen toured the college, learning first hand its facilities and functions. Ram baseballers were edged out of a doubleheader with Stockton College while the golfers defeated Santa Rosa.

Spring Serenade, Associated Women Student sponsored tea and fashion show, was the event of the week prior to Easter vacation. Spring Fever dance highlighted the social side. Seven student leaders trekked to Coronado to meet with other two-year college leaders.

Dedication Day, the Dedication Ball and the expansion program of the college were the topics of the week of April 29. Ceremonies of April 23 brought many alumni back to the college.

The Curious Savage took over the Little Theater at the end of April. Otis Night Stand, a sport dance, was sponsored by the Band Association. Inter-Fraternity Council held its convention to nominate candidates for the Spring elections. Trackmen triumphed over San Mateo and USF as the tennis team was victorious over Santa Rosa.

Instrumental Music Day was the major activity of the twelfth week of the semester. Thirteen two-year colleges participated in an afternoon concert and Emanuel Leplin conducted members of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra in the evening chamber music session. Career Day saw 300 high school students interested in engineering visit the college. United Student Association nominated candidates to lead the Associated Students in Fall '55. Al Carlson, unbeaten Ram halfmiler set a new Big Seven 880 record.

Prospective Rams visited the college in connection with Prep Day activities with the advent of the week of May 10. Inter-Sorority Council held its annual soiree in the Concert Room of the Palace Hotel. Golf teams edged Modesto.

Vive La Mardi Gras! Annual carnival of fun and frolic held sway in mid-May. Lois Ferrero and Warren Davidson reigned over the festivities. Ram golfers won first place in the round robin championship.

Public Utilities Commission voted against leasing land for a drive-in restaurant as the Memorial Day holiday drew near. Candidates for the top AS offices spoke at an election rally. Ray Tankersley, Alberta Cordini and Kathaleen Mogan were selected as speakers for commencement.

Rounding out the activities of the semester will be the council dinner-Soph Ball, and commencement exercises. Next semester the activities, the students and appearance of the campus will be altered, but the traditions of City College of San Francisco will remain constant, foundation for them stemming from the inscription on the facade of the Science Building—"The Truth Shall Make You Free."

Early American Rifleman Blazed Trail In Fight For Independence

By Harold Painter

AMERICA has always been a great place for rifles and riflemen. Chances are, we owe our independence to the American rifle and to the gunsmith of Kentucky who invented the Kentucky rifle in 1740.

Until then the American settler had been using the European musket; it was seldom under 50 caliber, had a bore that looked like an abandoned mine, and was less accurate than the Indian Bow. In fact, Ben Franklin once recommended that the Continental troops be armed with the bow and arrow in preference to the musket.

American colonists felt an urgent need for a rifle suitable to their special needs. The Indian would not stand still long enough or near enough for a rifleman to aim and fire a rifle the size of a sapling. The big bore of the musket used too much precious lead and powder.

The Kentucky rifle of 1740 was remarkably well-fitted to American needs. It was about 45 caliber and utilized the principle of rifling: the reduced caliber conserved lead and powder, and the rifling made possible accuracy that compared favorably with the rifle of today and gained world recognition in its own time.

An excellent account of the rifle was made in the battle of King's Mountain, 1780. British troops had amassed on the summit to await the arrival of Colonel William Campbell's considerably smaller army.

Campbell's American sharpshooters arrived altogether too soon as far as the British were concerned; they killed 400 British, compared with 90 casualties of their own, and captured the entire army of 1100. The band of Americans took the entire command with the superiority of the Kentucky rifle.

The Kentucky rifle is still used by American shooters who have a feeling for guns and marksmanship. A link is made with the past and the American frontier tradition whenever the gun is fired, and there is a keen sense of achievement when a neat hole in punched in the center of the black.

Committee Names Albert O'Dea As Winner Of Wall Street Award

Nineteen year-old Albert Leslie O'Dea, an accounting major here, was selected as this year's Wall Street Journal Award recipient by a committee composed of instructors, and administrative staff members in the Business Education Department. Edward Larsen, commencement committee member here, announced yesterday.

Because of his high scholarship standing and the promise he shows in the field of Industry and Finance, O'Dea was selected by the administrator as best qualified for the award, Larsen stated.

O'Dea is a graduate of Abraham Lincoln High School, and during his two years at the college maintained a 2.75 grade point average in his business education courses during that time, Larsen pointed out.

Wall Street Journal Award consists of a silver medal encased in a block of clear plastic, and a year's subscription to the Wall Street Journal. It is given every year to outstanding business students in colleges all over the country.

In addition to the Wall Street Journal Award, O'Dea has also received a two-year scholarship award from Golden Gate College in San Francisco, where he will continue his business studies, and eventually become a Certified Public Accountant, Larsen said.

The Ram Must Go

Sam has struck again!

An unprecedented attack by Sam, the college's Merino mascot, on another unsuspecting student was recently reported. This time Sam sealed his doom by attacking Associated Student President Joe Garbarino.

Garbarino, prior to this unfortunate incident, was one of Sam's few friends. He was trying to find a way to keep Sam in college despite protests by faculty and students. Though Garbarino suffered no physical injury other than a damaged dignity, he declared last week, "The ram must go."

Colorado College Editor Stirs Up Election Spirit

Elections were coming up soon at Colorado A & M College, just as they did here and on many other campuses across the country. And, as on many other campuses, the student body did not seem to care much who got elected what.

The student apathy bothered Mike Gucovsky, editor of the Rocky Mountain Collegian, campus newspaper, who felt it his duty to stir up election spirit. So it was that he wrote an editorial which endorsed a full slate of candidates.

The reaction was immediate. "You have seriously violated the principles of free publication by your biased opinion, unwarranted authority and misrepresentation of the facts," wrote an angry reader.

"As we see it," wrote three others, "The Collegian is the Colorado A & M student paper. It should represent the entire school and as such should be impartial."

Letters to the editor filled the entire editorial page after Gucovsky's brave step. Some of the letters told why they disagreed with the editor's choices, others attacked him for not being "objective."

But as far as Gucovsky was concerned, all was well. He had broken a tradition of long standing at A & M, and he had stirred the campus into a political frenzy.

From the Daily Athenaeum, West Virginia University: Education is the biggest business in America. It has the largest number of owners, the most extensive and costly plant, and utilizes the most valuable raw materials.

It has the greatest number of operators. It employs our greatest investment in money and time, with exception of national defense. Its product has the greatest influence on both America and the world.

More Apathy: Students of the Mozarteum, the Salzburg Academy of Music and Dramatic Art, showed slight enthusiasm when they went to the polls for the first time this year to elect their student government.

Of an electorate of 182 only 41 voted. Nine ballots were termed invalid, and the remaining 32 votes went to the unitary list of candidates —who had been put up unopposed.— Compiled from ACP releases.

RAMBLINGS

By Gail Allan Moss

THE sports year is, for all intents and purposes, at an end, but there are still some bouquets to be passed out.

This has nothing to do with the records or the standings of the Ram athletic teams. Everyone should be aware, by now, of the year's success in terms of wins and losses. There's another sort of success that deserves note — success in terms of what athletics do for the individual.

In this respect, the Rams were definitely successful, and everyone concerned deserves plenty of congratulations and thanks.

The most important in the scheme of things are the players. Without them, there would be no City College athletics. Every one of them faced a lot more work than the average student, for it takes a real love of the sport to turn out for practice every day and still keep up the grades.

Certain scholastic marks must be maintained to stay eligible by Big Seven rules, and the grind has forced many to give up their athletics for more time with the books. All of them deserve plenty of credit for their college spirit and hard work.

The other half of the team deserves the same credit. The coaches have worked hard to train the young men who come under them not only in the technical skills of the sport but in the moral aspects as well. No one likes to lose, and being a good loser is hard, but that is one of the most important jobs of the Ram coaches in preparing their charges for whatever they might have to face in life. They deserve congratulations for their ability, their patience and the high standards that they set.

The last, but most certainly not the least, in the athletic field is the Associated Students. They provide the money and the support and the Rams couldn't get along without either of them. The AS deserve thanks for supporting the teams, win, lose or draw.

This final idea for the sports year might sound trite, but we know of no other way to express it. Regardless of the records, the odds, or anything else, the Rams never quit. City College has displayed this year, just as in past seasons, a desire to win and a hustle and determination that never dies out.

Split Earns LBCC Baseball Crown

Long Beach City College captured the California State Junior College championship from West Contra Costa, Big Seven and Northern California winner, by splitting a double header with the Comets at Long Beach on May 29.

West Contra Costa won the first game, a thrilling 7-6 affair, in 14 innings, but Long Beach came back to take the second game, 8-2, for the title. The Vikings whipped West Contra Costa in the opening game of the best of three series on May 28, 2-1, when Bob Mesa, Long Beach second baseman, singled in the winning run in the last half of the ninth inning.

Gigantic Tilt On Tap Friday; Sophomores Vs. Professors In Crucial Softball Game

By Don Osborne

Rumors have it that one of the most devastating machines to be invented by any college will be born on this campus. This machine has one objective — the winning of the Soph-Prof softball game.

Reports are flowing in from all corners of the campus that many normally calm instructors have had fits of stuttering and one even admitted to writing a last will and testament. This sudden hysteria can be attributed to only one cause, the most ruthless Sophomore softball team in the history of this college.

Led by that dazzling right handed hurler from North Beach, Joe Garbarino, who is also Associated Student President, the mob will give their all in an attempt to avenge misjudged students on the college's athletic field during the double college hour Saturday, June 11.

The faculty have secretly picked out scouts who have been spying on the Sophomore team as they limbered up their machine, and the reports coming in have led to stammering exclamations of horror.

One instructor, while limbering up on batting practice, tried to make it a twofold operation by attempting to direct his hits toward the heads of any opposing players who happened to be walking by. For once the learning outsmarted the learned and none was hurt.

Latest reports from the Sophomore dugout are that the rest of the team will include such feared men as Robert Burns who has bravely offered to catch for Garbarino, Ron Orsolini at second, Bert Kamalman, a very versatile first baseman, Bill Bixby at shortstop and Jim Glasson at third. The slugging outfield include such worthy men as Ken Felidin in left field, Walt Yakovleff in right and that ambidextrous power hitter, Jim Brownfield, in center. These men will be backed up by Wray Jacobs, George Saba, Jack Frost and George Towns.

The faculty has not as yet divulged their batting order in hopes of surprising the opposition.

Wright Awarded Tennis Trophy For Racket Exploits

By Bob Chrisman

Bill Wright, number one man for the college tennis team and co-holder of the Big Seven Conference Doubles Championship, was awarded the annual tennis trophy for being the outstanding tennis player on the team, at the Block SF Society dinner on June 2.

According to tennis coach Roy Diederichsen, "He won it on his good play in the California State tourney and his even, consistent league play."

The only league loss Wright suffered was to Pancho Contreras of Modesto, who defeated the Ram tennis star, 6-1, 6-0. Other than this defeat, Wright won every match, going through his opponents in straight sets.

Despite these accomplishments, it was in post seasonal tournaments that Wright reached his peak. In the Big Seven Conference Tournament, Wright met Contreras, the Mexican Davis cupper, in the finals and lost, 6-2, 6-3.

Wright played his best tennis of the season when he met Gerry Moss of Modesto, who is ranked 33 in the United States in the men's division, in the semi-finals of the California State Championships and lost in a close match, 6-4, 8-6.

Moss' attempted drop shots went awry as Wright ran them down and passed Moss repeatedly, forcing the Modestan to stay in the backcourt, where Wright is strongest.

Big Seven Conference Doubles Championship was won by Wright and Hal Kopp as they defeated Cliff Vickery and Jerry Raffo in straight sets.

Kopp and Wright also won the Consolation Doubles Tournament of the California State Championships as they breezed by Cooley and Read of Citrus College in straight sets.

It was in Seattle, as a youngster, that Wright first learned to play tennis, and he developed a sound, steady, all court game which is highlighted by a fine backhand. Unlike many players, Wright employs undercut strokes, particularly on the backhand and forehand. Wright drives his forehand on passing shots, hitting it with a decided topspin "loop."

This tennis season was Wright's swan song to tennis competition at City College, and he came through in fine style, winning four medals and leading the Rams to second place in the league.

Intra Mural Ends Friday In Playoffs

Final playoffs for the college intramural athletic championships here will be played in the men's gymnasium and on the field adjacent before the Soph-Prof game this Friday, June 11.

During this time, all winning and runner-up teams in the hour-day-class competition will be present to receive their awards.

Medals will be awarded to class champions and runner-ups and belt buckles will go to the college champions.

It will be to the student's advantage to be present, Ralph Hillsman, intramural director stated, in the men's gymnasium to receive their awards. If, he added, students deserving these awards have not informed their instructor and presented their AS card number, they may not be counted in the award handout.

SIX OF THE EIGHT coaches of the college's athletic department are left to right, Tom Wilson, former baseball coach and now hygiene instructor; Ray Diederichsen, varsity boxing and tennis tutor; Ralph Hillsmon, basketball and golf mentor; Bill Fischer, baseball; Grover Klemmer, assistant track and head football coach; Ray Burkhead, assistant football and head track deon. Not pictured are Jack Gaddy, athletic director and Alex Schwart, football and coach.

"JACK BRADY, dean of semi-professional coursers here, prepares to take a healthy cut at sophomore pitching as he prepares for the upcoming Soph-Prof softball game to be held on the college athletic field Saturday, June 11. Brady is bidding with other faculty members for a starting berth.

Baroni Tops ASL All-Star Cagers

Don Baroni, high-scoring Beta Phi Beta forward, led the selections for the Associated Student Basketball League All-Star team as announced recently by Al Kingston, Men's Athletic Commissioner here.

Baroni has averaged some 25 points a game in sparking his team into title contention. Complete final standings and scoring records have not been compiled as yet.

Every team in the seven-club loop was represented with Beta Tau, Lambda Phi and Alpha Sigma Delta placing two men each. Beta Phi Beta, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Alpha Kappa Rho and Tau Chi Sigma each placed one.

Behind Baroni in the scoring race was Tau Chi Sigma's Jack Lucas, who did the majority of his team's scoring. At the last figures Tau Chi Sigma, still looking for their first win, had scored 185 points and Lucas had 107 of them to his credit.

Others named by Kingston were John Aaro, Alpha Sigma Delta; Dan Corsetti, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Rich Fine, Lambda Phi; Bert Kamalman, Lambda Phi; Phil Gaal, Beta Tau; Stanton Lee, Alpha Sigma Delta; Ron Malespin, Alpha Kappa Rho; and Dave Ridenour, Beta Tau.

The ten named to the All-Star team were all among the league's top scorers. Kingston, playing center for Beta Phi Beta, rounded out the leading point-makers.

Loss Of Key Men Hurts Linksmen

Handicapped by the loss of two key men, the Ram golf team failed to place in the Big Seven Conference Tournament at Modesto on May 14 and the California State Championships at Pasadena on May 17.

City College golf team displayed little of the form that won the Big Seven Conference as they placed ninth in the post-season Conference Tournament. Doug Hierdohrn and Dave Watkins were unable to compete in either tourney because of obligations to their Armed Forces Reserve units. Loss of these two key men put extra weight on the shoulders of Gene George, Tony Prinz, Lou Sartor, Bob Flanagan and Dick Derry.

At Pasadena, the Rams competed in the California State Championships on May 17, but once again failed to play up to par, as Gene George averaged 85, Prinz 85, Flanagan 87, and Sartor 88 over 36 holes of golf. Each player shot approximately 5 strokes above his seasonal average. Neither Watkins nor Heirdohrn was available for this tourney.

Child Born To Hillsman Family Memorial Day

Ralph Hillsman, head basketball coach here, became a father for the second time on Memorial Day, May 30, when his wife Doris gave birth to a daughter at Children's Hospital.

The newest addition to the family, named Joan, weighed in at nine pounds five ounces. The other member of the Hillsman family is son Johnny, 4½ years old.

Injuries And Bad Luck Plague Ram Baseball Team

Baseball season at the college is over but repercussions can still be heard from the fans. For instance, at one of the games a diamond fiberd was heard to comment on the fickleness of lady luck which refused to smile on the locals.

Coach Bill Fischer and the baseball brigade of the college have to be commended for the fine spirit displayed in the face of adversity. Not once did such players as Stan Fetterman, Bob Word, Nolan Wilson, et al, stop hustling.

The Rams ended the season in last place in the Big Seven standings, winning one game and losing the rest. West Contra Costa took the championship but was later eliminated from the state junior college tourney by Long Beach.

Word pitched the Rams to their only victory of the season. It was a well earned 2-1 decision over Modesto.

Bad luck, injuries and a tendency to commit errors plagued the local throughout the season.

Top Ram Athletes Receive Awards

Five of the top City College athletes received awards as the most valuable players in their respective sports at the Block SF Society's semi-annual dinner on June 2.

Al Carlson, Ram champion halfmiler and Big Seven record-holder in that event, was awarded the track trophy. Nolan Wilson, centerfielder and leading hitter of the Ram baseballers, received the award in his sport, and Warren Baxter, the basketball team's leading scorer and All-Conference forward, took the cage award.

In tennis the trophy went to Bill Wright, the team's number one man. The golf award was given to Bob Flanagan and in addition Flanagan, Gene George, Doug Heidohrn, Tony Prinz, Lou Sartor and Dave Watkins received trophies as members of the Big Seven Conference championship team.

Two special trophies were awarded by Bill Fischer, society sponsor, on behalf of the society. Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare here, was honored for his years of service to the Block SF as an administrator, and Ken Lopolito received a trophy as the member who has done the most for the society this year.

Most valuable players in each sport were chosen by votes of their teammates.

Beta Phi Beta Wins, Ties For ASL Cage Lead

Beta Phi Beta edged into a first-place tie in Associated Student League basketball play as they handed Beta Tau their first loss, 39-34, on June 2 at the men's gymnasium here. Don Baroni bucketed 16 points for the winners.

The two teams now have identical 6-1 records and met this week to determine the league champion.

Drama Student Is Miss SF

Beauty And Talent Win Coveted Title For Lee Ann Meriwether

By Deane Wylie

Lee Ann Meriwether, Miss San Francisco of 1954 and City College's pride and joy, describes her reaction to being chosen the City's new queen of beauty and talent as "I nearly flipped!"

The tall, dark-eyed and very pretty Lee was crowned in ceremonies at the Fairmont Hotel May 29 after competing with 16 other local girls for the title. She will compete June 18, 19 and 20 in Santa Cruz for the Miss California crown and the right to represent the state in Atlantic City this summer for the coveted Miss America appellation.

When she was first approached by Lafayette Jamerson, a student here, and asked if she would compete in the city contest, Lee states that she thought to herself, "This guy is nuts."

Born in Los Angeles 19 years ago this last May 27, her dramatic abilities were first evidenced in Phoenix, Arizona where she starred in an elementary school version of The Courtship of Miles Standish, taking the part of Priscilla.

At Aptos Junior High School and George Washington High School here, Lee took leading parts in school plays and at the college she has been featured in the drama department's productions of The Torchbearers and Kind Lady.

An Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society student here, she carries an awesome 20½ units and maintains them with a 2.6 grade-point average, an "A-." "I want to be an actress," Lee declared in her mellifluous voice, "If I find that I can't be an actress, I would like to teach theater arts. If I can't do that — well, get married, I suppose."

She plans to work for a Master's degree at the Pasadena Playhouse, and after that she hopes to gain entrance to New York stage and TV. Immediate duties include local radio and TV appearances, welcoming troop ships and participation in ceremonies where she will be awarded the many prizes that attended the crowning. And oh yes, 34½-22-35½ are the attractively arranged measurements.

LEE ANN MERIWETHER, drama student here, wears the crown signifying her triumph of being chosen Miss San Francisco of 1954.

President's Message Expresses Appreciation

The past year has been a highly successful one for the college scholastically and also in the field of student activities. Additionally, we have witnessed the dedication and occupancy of Cloud Hall which marks an important milestone in the history of the college.

The many accomplishments of the year were made possible because of the loyalty and devotion of faculty and students to the welfare of the college.

May I take this opportunity to express my most sincere appreciation to all concerned for the cooperation received during the year and to extend best wishes for a most enjoyable summer.

Louis G. Conlan, President,
City College of San Francisco.

Parking Regulations

Parking area on the west campus will remain in use next semester, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men here, announced recently.

Parking space on the circular drive around the Science Building and Cloud Hall will be available, Browne added.

Orchid Award Goes To Uriel Furlong

For the second time this semester Beta Tau fraternity bestowed its orchid award to a deserving woman of the college's non-certified staff—Uriel Furlong, secretary to Dean of Men Edwin C. Browne, received the purple orchid at the Student Council dinner last night.

Miss Furlong's favorite slogan, "It's nice to be important, but it's more important to be nice," explains her patient and helpful attitude with students and the reason why the members of Beta Tau chose this friendly secretary to receive their award.

Known by her paternal grandfather as "Petina" and by Dean Browne as "Irma Peterson," Miss Furlong was born in San Francisco sometime before the second World War. She graduated from Farragut Grammar School and later received her diploma from Mission High School.

Before coming to the college two years ago, Miss Furlong served with the Veterans Bureau in San Francisco and in Washington, D. C. and traveled through Europe.

Vets Sign Last Attendance Slip In Final Week

Veterans now attending the college under Public Law 550 must sign their last monthly attendance slip during final week, June 13 to June 18, and must fill out a transfer form if they intend to change colleges, according to Dr. F. G. Marsh, coordinator of student welfare here.

Veterans not attending summer school but intending to return to City College after vacation must sign their monthly attendance slips during finals week. This will terminate any allowance they are now receiving and the allowance will not start again until next semester, Marsh said.

If any veterans plan to attend another college either during summer session or next semester they must fill out a Change of Place of Training form before leaving City College, Dr. Marsh said. After attending a summer session, if a student decides to reenter the college he must have his records transfered back.

Science Fiction Film Due Friday

Destination Moon, a science fiction account of a trip into space, will be shown twice on Friday, June 11, in Room 136 of the Science Building, according to Charles Mahnken, spokesman for the Engineering Society group sponsoring the film.

First showing will be at 9:45 a.m. during the double college hour. Second show will begin at 1:10 p.m. Mahnken added. Film runs for an hour and a half.

Admission price is 25 cents. Tickets may be purchased at the student bank in the Science Building or at the door.

Stars of the full length technicolor motion picture are Warmer Anderson John Archer and Tom Powers.

Mahnken noted that all the details of rocketship construction, space navigation and the appearance of the moon are based on actual scientific fact.

'Meals' Drive Nets $100, To Continue

Donations totaling $100 were contributed to the Meals for Millions drive, sponsored by the Hotel and Restaurant Society and the Associated Students here, Dick Gould, student chairman of the drive, announced last week.
